

Wildcats Set In PB Areas

Wildcat sites have been staked in Pecos, Scurry and Garza counties.

Brock, Highland Equity & Snyder of Midland plan to drill No. 1 Wimberly-Bryan, a 14,500-foot venture in Pecos, 25 miles southeast of Fort Stockton.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 11, block 100, EL&RR survey, 1 1/2 mile northeast of the Puckett (Devonian and Ellenburger) field.

Second Probe Texas Oil & Gas Corp. plans to drill No. 1-60 Canon as an 11,000-foot venture in Pecos, five miles west of Sheffield.

Drill site is 467 feet from south and 1,027 feet from west lines of section 60, block A-2, TCR survey, 3/4 mile northwest of the firm's No. 1-B Blackstone-Slaughter, recent Strawn oil discovery.

It was completed March 5, for a daily potential of 204 barrels of 43.9-gravity oil, through a 10-64-inch choke and perforations at 8,292-8,304 feet.

Scurry Try WEST-TEX Drilling Co., Abilene, has staked site for No. 1-233 Buford Light, a 7,800-foot try in Scurry, three miles southeast of Hermleigh.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and approximately 2,400 feet from west lines of section 233, block 3, H&TC survey, or 660 feet from east line of the Buford Light lease in section 233.

Garza Venture American Petrofina Co. of Texas plans No. 1 Slaughter-Lott, an 8,850-foot prospector in Garza, seven miles southwest of Post.

It is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 18, block 8, TTRR survey, abstract 1003, 3/4 mile northwest of the Strawn oil discovery in the Texas field.

Two Discoveries Final In Ector

Two discoveries have been completed in Ector County. Phillips Petroleum Co. has dually completed No. 1-C Williamson, a Devonian producer, has a Wolfcamp oil pay opener in the G&W field, eight miles northwest of Goldsmith.

The 24-hour potential test pumped 33.4 barrels of 35.2-gravity oil and 64.6 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 524-1. Production was through perforations at 7,717-7,756 feet, which had been acidized with 6,000 gallons and fractured with 8,000 gallons, plus an unreported amount of sand.

Total depth is 8,550 feet, and it is plugged back to 8,500 feet, in 7-inch casing set on bottom. A retrievable bridge plug will be pulled to allow continued production from the current Devonian zone.

It spots 1,983 feet from south and 678 feet from east lines of section 18, block 45, T-1-N, T&P survey.

Second Pay Opener Adobe Oil Co. completed No. 1 Cole to re-open San Andres gas production in the Goldsmith area, seven miles northwest of Goldsmith.

Rebellion Erupts In Saigon

Two Arrested In $500,000 '73 Burglary

A two-year investigation of a half-million-dollar burglary in Midland has led to the arrest of two men in San Antonio. Anderson said Rodgers and Brewer were arrested Saturday by FBI agents and Texas Rangers at San Antonio International Airport when they attempted to sell securities to undercover agents.

Thieu Vows To Remain In Saddle

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu escaped injury today when a South Vietnamese fighter pilot made a bomb and rocket attack on the presidential palace in Saigon. Later, a high ranking military officer was seriously injured by an explosion in his office near Saigon, military sources said.

Thieu said in a broadcast that the attack on the palace was "an act of a group of people aimed at killing me with the intention to change this legal and constitutional regime. I am determined to continue leading this country."

But the commander of the air force, Lt. Gen. Tran Van Minh, said it was "an individual act of an air force officer" who "did not realize the danger of such a violent, senseless act." Military sources said Brig. Gen. Nguyen Van Hieu, deputy commander of the military region that includes Saigon and 11 surrounding provinces, was working in his office at Bien Hoa 15 miles northeast of Saigon when an "explosive charge" went off. They said the type of charge and other circumstances had not been determined.

Two Persons Killed Two persons were reported killed and three wounded in the attack on the palace. The pilot, identified as 1st Lt. Nguyen Thanh Trung, flew off and was thought to have landed in territory held by the North Vietnamese or Viet Cong. Gen. Minh said the air force is loyal to Thieu. Former Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, a former commander of the air force and one of the leaders of the political forces in Saigon demanding that Thieu step down, denied that he was involved in the attack.

24-Hour Curfew Lifted The South Vietnamese government ordered a 24-hour curfew in Saigon but lifted it in midafternoon after six hours. The city normally is under curfew from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. each night.

Meanwhile, heavy Viet Cong and North Vietnamese attacks were reported east and west of Saigon. The closest attack was 20 miles to the east, on the Long Thanh armored school where five soldiers were killed and 28 wounded, the Saigon command said.

Bomb Blasts Cut Power In California

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Terrorist bombs ripped through a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. substation early today, knocking out power to 22,000 homes, authorities said. It was the second series of blasts at the facility in 12 days.

Three bombs exploded at the utility's Hicks substation at 12:25 a.m., causing extensive damage to two transformers and disrupting service over a 20-mile area, the Santa Clara County sheriff's office said.

Facility Hit Previously No injuries were reported. Terrorists hit the same substation with five pipe bombs on March 27. On that occasion, three banks of transformers were wiped out, and service was disrupted to 35,000 homes.

A PG&E spokesman said a security guard had been posted at the substation after that bombing but was removed Monday night.

After today's bombings, PG&E rushed two portable transformers to the substation, some 15 miles southwest of downtown San Jose, and a spokesman reported that service had been restored by 3:54 a.m.

FBI On Scene An estimate of damage was not immediately available, but PG&E spokesman Larry McDermott said "it was less extensive than last time."

A bomb squad and FBI agents rushed to the scene, cordoned off the area and searched unsuccessfully for other possible bombs.

Officers said they did not yet know what type of devices were used. A group calling itself the New Liberation Front claimed responsibility for the March 27 bombing, which shook homes two miles from the substation.

It demanded that the utility lower its power rates for persons with fixed incomes.

Turbulence Rips Much Of Texas

Death-dealing and destructive thunderstorms, packing twin threats of tornadoes and flash flooding, kept a big chunk of Texas under siege today.

The wild turbulence raged through a second straight night and persisted this morning as the cold front triggering it swept southward toward the coastal plains.

What Cleburne Police Chief Claude Zachary described as a tornado struck that city shortly before midnight Monday, causing an estimated $200,000 in damage. Stacy Wright, 10, suffered minor injuries when the floor of her second-story bedroom collapsed, spilling the child to the first floor of her home.

Boards were driven through walls, windows shattered, trees splintered and roofs were damaged in Southwest Cleburne. Witnesses said the storm sounded like a train moving through the city.

Severe thunderstorm alerts and warnings against possible floods, which often expire before dawn, were kept in force well into the forenoon for some areas as radar spotted deluges losing rain at rates topping two inches per hour in places.

Much of the violent weather pounded sections from West into Central Texas during the night, and it broke out anew in the south central part of the state while spreading into eastern areas this morning. Police in Fort Worth reported

Monday night that Joseph Scott Jordan, 13, drowned while trying to ride a horse through a crossing which suddenly became a torrent. A second boy swam to safety.

Boat club owner Jack Horton estimated winds up to 80 miles per hour sank as many as 30 boats at Eagle Mountain Lake north of Fort Worth.

The average wind speed in the Tall City Monday was 23.2 m.p.h., with the highest wind speed 35 m.p.h. Peak gusts reached 46 m.p.h. Tornado watches were in effect Monday to the north and east of Midland County.

The high is expected to reach 70. Fair and cool weather will prevail over the area tonight, with clear to partly cloudy skies and warmer temperatures predicted for Wednesday with a high in the mid-70s.

Winds are reported from the WSW at 10 to 20 m.p.h. today in the Tall City, and will become southerly at five to 15 miles tonight. A trace of precipitation fell on the city yesterday, with none in the forecast through Wednesday.

As the fierce storms erupted again late Monday, there were reports of tornado sightings—but apparently no widespread damage—from near Canyon and Whitharral in the Panhandle-Plains sector and southward later around Plainview, Lubbock, Snyder and San Angelo. The turbulence continued full steam during the night, gradually spreading toward the south and east as the National Weather Service issued one alert after another.

By this morning, however, official observers were able to report that calm weather once more was taking command across the northwest half of the state.

As skies cleared in the Texas Panhandle the temperature near dawn sagged to a chilly 33 degrees at Dalhart. At the same hour it was still a comfortable 75 at McAllen in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Top (See TURBULENCE Page 2A)

American Energy Conferees Confident On Summer Session

PARIS (AP) — American officials express confidence that a compromise agreement will be reached soon to hold a world energy conference this summer attended by 18 to 30 nations and with limited discussion of raw materials other than oil.

One official said the American delegation to the preparatory meeting that opened in Paris Monday expects the future conference to be "something more than a discussion limited exclusively to energy and something less than a discussion of all raw material problems."

Speeches at Monday's public opening of the preparatory meeting reiterated the opposing positions taken previously by the industrialized nations and the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and other developing nations whose only wealth is in the raw materials they export. But American officials said private contacts with the other delegations, including the militant Algerians, convinced them that a compromise will be worked out on all the procedural issues.

Publicly, representatives of the United States, Japan and the European Economic Community said they wanted the coming conference limited to a discussion of energy and energy-related problems, with participation restricted to a small group of key countries. The oil-exporting countries, with Algeria in the lead, insisted on a general discussion of all raw material problems at a large

House Takes Up New Constitution

AUSTIN (AP) — Using the same hall as the ill-fated 1974 Constitutional Convention, the House today debated a Senate-approved resolution submitting a new Texas Constitution to the voters.

Speaker Bill Clayton, in a departure from normal protocol, told the House he would exercise his right to vote and "will be voting in the affirmative for this document." The Senate last week approved the resolution calling a

Nov. 4 statewide election on a document virtually identical to the one hammered out in seven months of debate during the convention.

That document, however, fell three votes short of the required two-thirds majority in the final hour of the convention, which was held in the House chamber.

"It has been recognized by the experts who have studied it as being the most readable, the most understandable of the state constitutions in this country," Rep. Bill Sullivan, D-Gainesville, a sponsor said of the proposed document. Sullivan said the proposal is supported by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Atty. Gen. John Hill.

The legislature considering the proposed new constitution is almost the same body that served as last year's convention.

Sullivan said the big question was whether the "petty, hurting issues that divided us last year would again deny the people a new constitution."

In Monday's action, the House rejected Senate amendments to a bill setting up a primary system to choose the bulk of Texas' delegation to presidential nominating conventions.

That means a House-Senate conference committee will be appointed to negotiate a compromise. The bill contains a feature labeled "winner-take-all" that would avoid giving various candidates a share of the Texas delegation based on their proportion of the total vote. Sen. Lloyd Bonnen, a candidate for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, would probably (See HOUSE Page 2A)

Mayor Angelo Urges Care On Utilities

Austin Bureau AUSTIN — Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo urged the House State Affairs Committee Monday night to move carefully on creating a state utilities commission.

"I am convinced," he told the committee, "that an objective review of the facts in this matter will not justify a utilities commission on the basis of providing either better or cheaper service to Texas residents."

Local communities have handled utility regulations well in the past, and will be able to continue doing an effective job, Angelo said. "Don't let Texas be stampered into giving up a broad area of local control," he urged.

He predicted the "vast majority" of Texans would oppose a utilities commission when they discovered that "it will not bring better service or lower rates."

He asked the committee to leave utility regulation "in the hands of those closest to the people." Angelo did agree, however, that cities may need more power to regulate effectively, and that intrastate long distance telephone rates may need to be under state control.

Other West Texans also appeared before the committee, which is considering five bills dealing with utility commissions. The committee is in its third week of hearings on the bills, and expects to complete its work Wednesday evening when the bills will be sent to a subcommittee.

Big Spring Mayor Pro-Tem Eddie Acki said he was surprised to hear that large cities are complaining that they can't regulate rates. Acki said he feels some city officials "can't stand the heat" and are looking for a way to avoid granting justified rate increases.

Midlanders Entertain State Legislators At Austin

By TOM RUTLAND
Staff Writer

AUSTIN—Even the rain in Austin Monday was straight out of West Texas—light, just enough to dampen the streets and buoy the spirits of the people.

It was heavily overcast when an enthusiastic delegation of 50 plus Midlanders landed at Austin Municipal Airport shortly after 2 p.m.

By the time they had visited both houses of the Texas Legislature and presented personalized oil well core gifts to the legislators, a gentle rain was falling.

The Texas Capital is regaled in the green splendor of spring, and the Midlanders were quick to comment on the beauty of the city.

After spending the afternoon at the Capitol, the Tall City's representatives for the Midland Chamber of Commerce's Midland Day in Austin retreated to the Driskill Hotel where they entertained scores of state representatives, senators, other elected officials and Capitol employees.

"It was a good group," said chamber president Bill Mewhorter. "It is hard to get a feel for the senators and representatives who are here, (and House Speaker Bill Clayton was among them) but what I have heard is appreciation of a community from West Texas which bothered to come down and on a soft sell basis tried to get our message across on some of the legislation important to West Texas."

A sign in the ballroom where 69 Midlanders entertained the lawmakers proclaimed the legislative program of the Midland chamber:

One—Secure District Court designation for Midland County Domestic Relations Court.

Two—Secure a municipal court of record for Midland.

Three—Support the continuation of utility regulation at the local level.

Four—Secure approval of the rebracketing of Midland relative to airport revenue bonds.

Five—Support academic, financial and administrative programs of Midland College.

Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland termed the reception a wonderful opportunity for the City of Midland "to visit those in state government." It was good for Midland, he said.

Midland is not an island and must maintain contact with the rest of the state, Snelson said.

He said the good turnout by Midlanders and legislators was great public relations for the city.

Chamber executive vice president Fred Tyler praised Harry Clark, chamber Legislative Committee Chairman, and public relations director H. A. Tuck and the chamber staff for their work in arranging the reception.

After the reception, the Midlanders returned to the Capitol where Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. told the House State Affairs Committee why he opposes creation of a state utilities commission.

"It is unfair to our citizens to cause them to expect the impossible. No utilities commission is going to find more gas, oil, coal or uranium. In fact the exact opposite would be true as demonstrated by the Federal Power Commission's effect on natural gas.

"Sure, other states get cheaper gas from Texas than do many of our own citizens, but the ultimate cost of this benefit will be no gas at any price."

"Natural gas never again will be available at prices which were ridiculously low when they were established and are totally absurd today. The sooner all of us in public office level with the people concerning the fact that cheap power...is a thing of the past, the better off we all will be," said Angelo.

He noted the Midland City Council last October unanimously endorsed a resolution opposing creation of a utilities commission and that Midland substantially led an effort which culminated in the adoption of that same resolution by the Texas Municipal League.

"I am fully aware of the need for state agencies to handle some of the business and problems of all of the state's citizens. In many instances they simply cannot be handled on a local basis because of their interlocking effect on all of the communities or because of the exorbitant expenses if handled on an individual city basis.

"Utility regulation is not in this category with the possible exception of intrastate telephone service. Local communities have handled it and handled it well in the past," Angelo said.

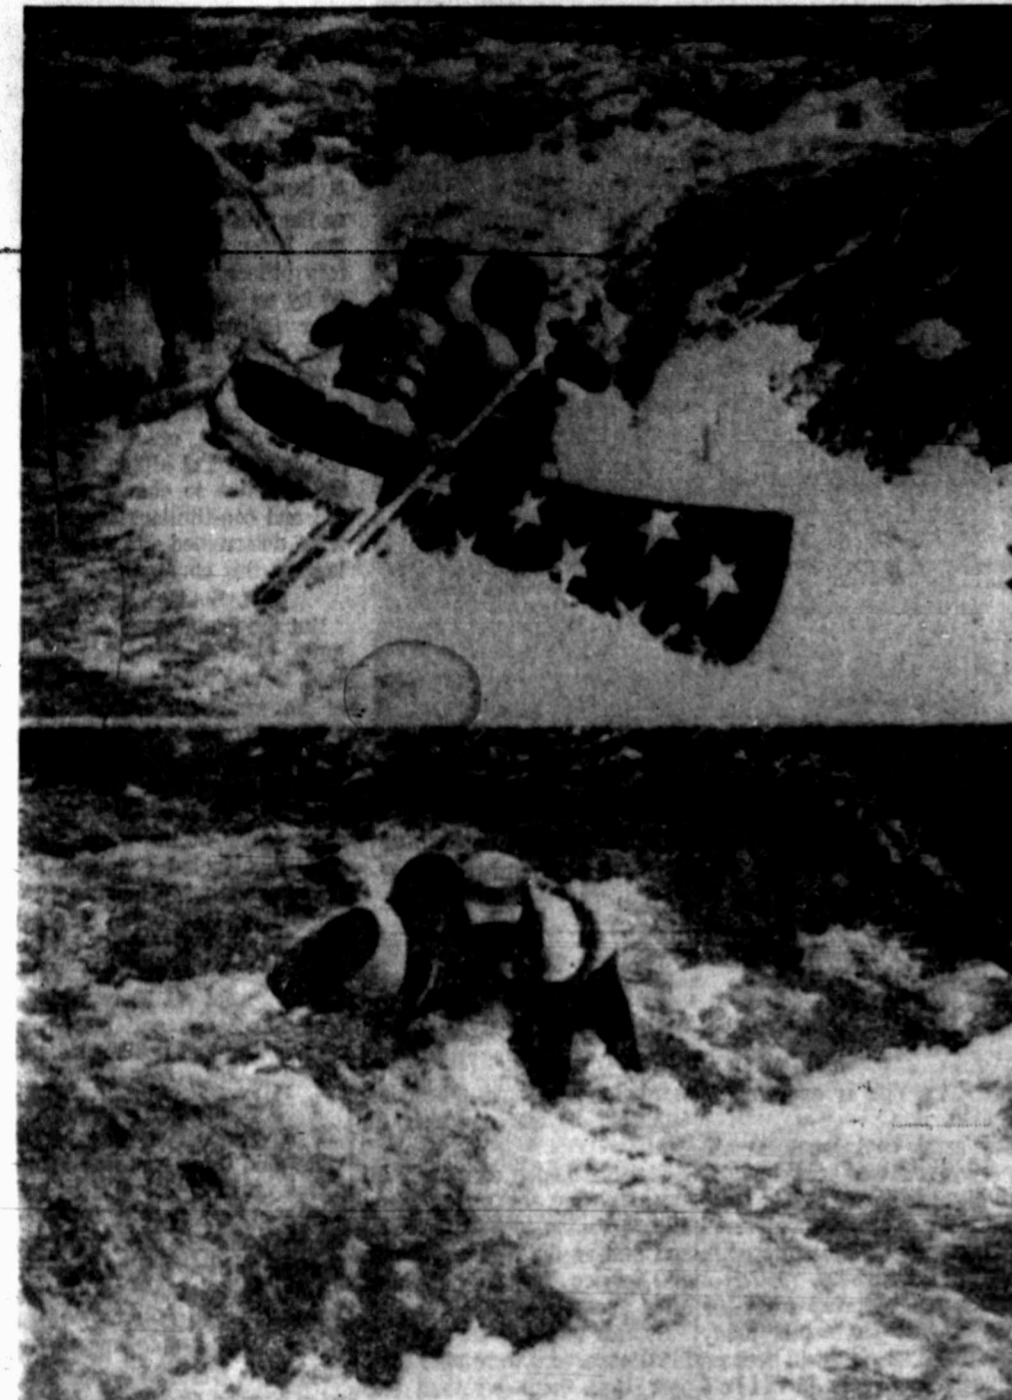

"The majority of Texans...are continually advocating the return of responsibility from federal to state and from state to local levels of government. Give the cities of Texas the type of remedial legislation asked for in the Texas Municipal League approved resolution, and I am confident the situation will continue to be in good hands," the mayor concluded.

The chamber group was accompanied on the flight to Austin by Rep. and Mrs. Tom Craddock.

Craddock arrived at the House Chamber in time for the start of Monday's session and was successful in turning around a house resolution intended to ask Congress to maintain regulation of the price of oil and natural gas.

Craddock deftly amended the resolution to urge Congress to let oil and gas prices seek the free market value. The amended resolution was passed by the House, seemingly before the original authors and supporters realized what had happened.

Solons Advised To Keep 'Low Profile'

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas legislators are being urged to keep a "low profile" on the April 22 special election over legislative pay raises and increased retirement benefits for teachers and state employees.

"Get those people out to vote who will support the amendment," said special instructions handed House members.

"Keep the others home. To do this, a 'low profile campaign' should be run. That means not much press, publicity or public speaking, but a lot of personal contact."

The four pages of instruction were labeled "Strategy for the April 22 Vote" and distributed by Rep. Ben Bynum, D-Amarillo.

Bynum told newsmen the instructions resulted from a recent meeting of about 15 or 20 House members, at which an "ad hoc committee" was organized and he was named chairman. He said his office is being used as headquarters for the group.

A spokesman for Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said there was no such organization in the Senate and he had heard no talk of a "low profile campaign." He said Hobby would be making several television tapes to be used shortly before April 22 in an effort to get out the vote.

"Although the press, as a general rule, will not be called upon to stir up the muddy waters of this issue, the smaller rural newspapers might be prevailed upon to favorably editorialize on the amendment," said the instructions distributed by Bynum. "It is felt a friendly call from the local legislator or a close acquaintance would be the best tactic. A favorable rural vote can make the difference."

Each House member was asked to send a letter to at least 100 of their personal supporters and ask them to vote. Legislators were cautioned to use the word "adjusted" not "increased" in talking about the pay raise.

Under the proposed state amendment legislators' pay would be "adjusted" from $400 to $600 a month, or $4,800 to $7,200 annually; personal daily expenses during sessions would be "adjusted" $12 to $30 a day and travel pay "adjusted" from 10 to 16 cents a mile.

The other amendment on the ballot would revise provisions of state and local retirement systems for teachers and state employees and let the state contribute up to 10 per cent of an individual's pay, instead of the present 6 per cent.

E. P. Turnbough Dies; Rites Held

ODESSA — Elmer Paul Turnbough, 61-year-old Odessa and father of Barbara Richardson of Midland, died Sunday in a Big Spring hospital following a lengthy illness.

Services were at 10 a.m. today in the Easterling Funeral Home with interment in Sunset Memorial Gardens.

Born March 23, 1914 in Oklahoma, Turnbough was married in Fort Sumner, N.M. Dec. 13, 1948 to Johnnie Headrick.

The couple came to Odessa in 1973 from McDonough, Ga.

Other survivors include the widow; a son, Tom Hunt of Dallas; three more daughters, Joyce Campbell of Odessa, Alice Burke of Clovis, N.M., and Virginia Staffield of Midlothian; two sisters, Ethel Ina of Fort Sumner, N.M., and Thelma Turney of Portales, N.M.; three brothers, Everett Turnbough of Fortales, and Alford Turnbough and Allen Turnbough, both of New Mexico; eight grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Jacobsen Admits Memory Not Clear

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jake Jacobsen admitted under cross-examination today that his memory is hazy on some details of an alleged cover-up of bribe money he says he paid to former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

Jacobsen said he is not sure if Connally used one or two rubber gloves to count out a bundle of cash which Jacobsen says was intended to fool investigators.

And he said he cannot be certain of the exact date of a telephone conversation in which he says he first told Connally that he had been subpoenaed to testify about the alleged bribes before a Watergate grand jury in Washington.

Connally's chief defense lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams, drew an admission from Jacobsen on Monday that he believes he gave Connally a third illegal $5,000 gift but has no memory of actually handing him the cash.

Connally is accused of accepting two $5,000 payments

17 Midlanders Slated To Receive Degrees From UTPB

ODESSA—Seventeen Tall City residents, who received their degrees in December from The University of Texas at the Permian Basin, will be among an estimated 329 graduates to be awarded diplomas May 17 during spring commencement.

Midlanders who have completed requirements for the bachelor of arts degree and their majors are Donnie M. Christian, art; Martha Cummings, literature; Robert D. Keegan, government; Jimmy C. Porter, creative writing; Charleen K. Ramsey, literature; and Nancy Smith, art.

Marion J. Kimberly completed work for a master of arts degree in counseling.

Bachelor of business administration degrees were received by Linda Murl Felts, accounting; Gary Edward Fickinger, aviation management; Larry Davis Jones, accounting; Charles Bernice Lacy Jr., accounting; Gary Alan Peters, management; Leonard Douglas Shifflett, management; and Frances Darlene Simpson, accounting.

David Robert Blaschke and Richard Eugene McKenna completed studies for master of business administration degrees.

Mark P. Rylander received a bachelor of science degree in mathematics.

J. C. Poarch, 64, Dies In Hospital

Jesse C. Poarch, 64, of Midland died Monday in a Lubbock hospital after a long illness.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Newme W. Ellis Chapel with the Rev. Jerry Allen, pastor of Dellwood Baptist Church, officiating. Interment will be in Gilmer Cemetery.

Poarch was born Feb. 18, 1911, in Hill County, where he spent his early life. He moved to Midland in 1948 from Dallas. He was employed with the Texas Highway Department here.

Survivors include the widow; a daughter, Mrs. Henry K. Adamson III of Leavenworth, Kan.; two brothers, W. L. Poarch Jr. of Dallas and Billy J. Poarch of Houston; two sisters, Mrs. Eric Mathis and Mrs. Sammy Lee Johnson, both of Houston, and a grandson.

Honorary pallbearers will be R. C. White, Alva Boyd, J. M. Walthall, Bill Allen, Russell Neal, Forrest McCleary and Vernon Wilkinson, of Odessa.

The family requests memorials be directed to the Midland Heart Fund.

Accreditation Team To Visit Midland College

Midland College will enter the final stages of the accreditation process Wednesday when a visitation team from the Southern Association of Colleges and Universities will arrive in Midland this afternoon.

The 11 team members were to begin arriving in Midland this afternoon.

Dr. Al G. Langford, college president, said, "There will be a dinner for them tonight with the board of trustees, the administrative staff and Dr. Ray Hawkins of Austin, director of community college programs for the coordinating board of Texas Colleges and Universities."

"They will begin looking at the campus and visiting with the staff Wednesday at 8 a.m.," he said.

The final accreditation visit Association. They will inspect our operation as well we are doing in development of our institution.

"The main objective of this visit is not just accreditation, but also to serve as consultants to help Midland College become a better institution."

Langford said the visitation team will be in Midland through Friday morning when they will meet with the administrative staff to present their recommendations for improvement.

Final word on the college's accreditation will come in December following a vote of Southern Association members.

Redline's Bond Reset At $75,000

ODESSA—District Judge R. L. McKim today signed an order reducing to 75,000 the bond of Ralph Leland Redline, 53, of Odessa.

The order was signed after a hearing Monday afternoon in which Redline's attorney, Bill Alexander, asked for the reduction.

Redline remained in Ector County jail this morning.

Bond for Redline, charged with murder in the shooting death March 30 of his ex-wife, Norma Davis Redline, 47, was originally denied when he was arraigned that day by Justice of the Peace James Harris.

After an examining trial April 1, Judge Harris said he set bond for Redline, a former Midland oilman, at $500,000.

Algerian chief delegate Ali Chalaal told a news conference that the three other oil exporters at the preparatory meeting — Saudi Arabia, Iran and Venezuela — and the three other developing countries present — Brazil, India and Zaire — are in full agreement with the Algerian position.

However, the American sources said they consider Chalaal a realist who would accept a compromise avoiding a conference too unwieldy to produce results. And the United States recognizes that the future conference cannot avoid all discussion of raw materials other than oil, the officials added.

The overnight round of storms recurred while Eagle Pass on the Mexican border was still clearing away debris left by a Sunday night storm in which damage was placed at approximately half a million dollars.

Two tornadoes and pounding hail caused damage to about 150 homes which the Maverick County Red Cross chairman, Baltazar Gomez, rated as minor to serious. He reported three persons suffered minor injuries and 32 remained in emergency shelters Monday night.

Midlanders' Kin Dies; Rites Slated

THROCKMORTON—Mrs. Lela Taylor, 98, died in a Throckmorton hospital Monday night after a long illness. She was the grandmother of Mrs. Earle Reno and the aunt of Mrs. Lela Glasgow and Mrs. Bernice Webb, all of Midland, and the mother of J. W. Taylor of Odessa.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in the First Christian Church at Woodson, with interment in Woodson Cemetery.

Survivors include three daughters, 13 other grandchildren and a number of great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren.

Jackson: Secret U.S.-Vietnam Agreements Exist

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said today he has learned of secret agreements between the United States and South Vietnam and called on President Ford to make them public.

Jackson said in a Senate speech that he will call administration officials before one of his subcommittees if the "documents embodying or reflecting these secret agreements" are not made available voluntarily.

The officials to be called presumably would include Secretary of State Henry Kissinger who played the chief role in negotiating the Paris agreement on Vietnam.

Midland, Ontario, Rotary Members Will Visit Here

Twelve members of the Rotary Club of Midland, Ontario, Canada, will visit Midland, Texas, next Monday and Tuesday on a goodwill mission, with an international flavor, to the Rotarians of this city.

The Canadian Rotarians will meet with members of the Midland West Rotary Club next Tuesday noon at their regular luncheon meeting at the Rodeway Inn.

President Jimmie F. Rhoads of the host club said members of the Midland Downtown Rotary Club have been invited to attend the meeting.

A special program will be presented by the Rotarians from Canada.

Rhoads said a representative of the Midland, Ontario, Rotary Club contacted him by telephone

300-Unit Apartment Complex Request Denied

The Midland Planning and Zoning Commission Monday denied a request by Harold Shull for a zone change to allow construction of a 300-unit apartment complex in the 3500 block of Andrews Highway.

The commission said the area involved in the zone change request was too large (16 acres) and that increased traffic problems in the area abutting the property on Godfrey, Humble and Andrews Highway would need to be solved.

The commission suggested Shull incorporate a planned district design for the proposed project and use a smaller portion of the tract for the apartments with a buffer zone of single family units.

The commission tabled action on a proposal by R. C. Maxson who is requesting a zone change on 56 lots bounded by Belmont, Hicks, Stokes, Locaine and Main streets in South Midland.

Maxson is seeking the zone change to allow the development of a mobile home tract on individual lots under MF-2 zoning.

The commission gave its recommendation of approval to a request by R. Jerry Stone for a zone change to allow construction of a 160-unit apartment complex at Illinois and Rice streets.

The commission suggested Stone's project include a six-foot fence on the west side and have a no parking restriction on Illinois Street.

Senators added an amendment that would make the bill effective only for the 1976 election, then cause it to "self-destruct."

Liberals urged the House to accept the Senate's version because it would not perpetuate "winner-take-all" beyond 1976.

"If we're going to have a winner-take-all provision, then for God's sake, let's limit it to one time," urged Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale.

The vote to call for a conference committee was 91-49.

Picket Briefly Halts Work At Bank Site

Construction work at the new Midland National Bank Tower at Marientfield and Illinois streets was halted two hours today while a single picket from the International Union of Operating Engineers protested the use of non-union heavy equipment operators.

Rocky Ferguson, office manager with Harvey Construction Co., said all union personnel halted work in honor of the "informational picket" for two hours between 8 and 10 a.m.

Ferguson said Melvin Bachofer, business agent with the Fort Worth based Local 819, negotiated with Harvey Construction Co. officials and the union workers went back on the job at 10 a.m.

two government soldiers.

In the Mekong Delta, a thousand-round barrage hit a base camp near Moc Hoa, a provincial capital 50 miles west of Saigon. Five government troops were reported killed. Attacks also were reported on Tuyen Binh, a district town in the area, and the government claimed 24 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed.

The U.S. Defense Department said 1,500 more U.S. Marines have been moved to the Philippines to provide "backup capability" for the 2,500 Marines aboard U.S. Navy ships off Vietnam.

Midlander's Brother Dies At Amarillo

Tres Rios Presbytery Meet Scheduled For Thursday

The fourth annual meeting of the Women of Tres Rios Presbytery will be held at 9 a.m. Thursday in the First Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Courtney Cowden is president of the hostess group.

Mrs. Robert Hobbs of the First Presbyterian Church is president of the Women of Tres Rios Presbytery and will preside during the business session.

"The Promise of the New" is the theme of the program. Robert Poer, minister of music at the host church, will be the featured speaker. He will use music to illustrate his program on "Creative Worship."

Interest groups will be conducted on such topics as mini-reviews of inspiring books, led by Mrs. George A. Farlow; community service-outreach, led by Mrs. John Ingram; "The Creative Woman," led by Mrs. R. B. Smith and Mrs. Roy Neely, and "Birthday Objective," led by Mrs. M. F. Driscoll, who will speak on the Orient.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. There will be a business session at 9:30 a.m.; program at 10 a.m., and the interest group meetings will start at 11:30 a.m. Following a 12:30 p.m. luncheon, officers will be installed at 1:30 p.m.

Thirty-eight counties are included in the Presbytery. Cities to be represented include Midland, El Paso, Pecos, Sanderson, Fort Stockton, San Saba, San Angelo, Coahoma, Big Spring, Andrews and Odessa.

HINTS FROM Heloise A Soft Heart Makes Play Dough

Dear Heloise: When I get soft-hearted enough to let my children have play dough, we like the homemade kind. It washes off my kitchen tools much more easily than the commercial plastic stuff. Also off the table and floor.

My recipe is 1 cup salt, 2 1/2 cups flour, 1 tsp. oil and 1 cup water. You can use any food coloring desired. Divide it and color as much of it as you want.

Mrs. H. T.

Bridge Tourney Planned By RHCC

The Ranchland Hill Country Club will have a membership bridge tournament beginning at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the clubhouse. Two more sessions are planned for 7:30 p.m. April 16 and 23.

Additional information may be obtained by dialing 683-6653, 694-2437 or 694-0705.

Jackie Pollard Honored At Party

Jackie Pollard, bride-elect of Ken Straw, was the honoree at a recent miscellaneous shower held in the home of Mrs. B. D. Armstrong, 4316 Tanner St.

The co-hostesses were Mrs. Leonard Mouser, Mrs. Frank Wolfe, Mrs. Wendell Mayo, Mrs. Jim Moore, Mrs. George Graham and Mrs. John Griffith. Yellow and white were the colors used in the decorations.

Business Meet Held By Chapter

The Beta Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met recently in the home of Mrs. Robert Kozio, 2604 Terrace St., for a business session and program.

Plans were made for the Founder's Day luncheon and preparation of a centerpiece for the luncheon was started.

A program on "Travel" was given by Mrs. Jerry Blanton. Mrs. Mike Williams won the hostess gift.

The chapter also had an outdoor barbecue recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Adams. Members and guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. Blanton, Mr. and Mrs. James Laughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Pepper, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Rowan and Mr. and Mrs. Williams.

Crystal Stewart, Burks Married

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Stewart Jr. of 1314 E. Jax St. announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Crystal Yvonne, to James Burks Jr., formerly of San Angelo.

The maid of honor was Sharon Zachery, and the best man was Clifford Robertson.

The couple will reside in Midland, where the bridegroom is employed by Midland Mobile Homes, Inc. Tidwell Industries.

HOROSCOPE

by Correll Richter

(April 21...)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have unusual charm now to win the goodwill and active assistance of a person you like very much. Attend to social matters as the evening is unusually beautiful and good fortune from this.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Query others early. They make plans for greater success. Put them in effect before nightfall. Consider higher-ups who can help.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get ideas for advancement from a good friend. Keep whatever you are doing confidential. Go after personal aims in p.m.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan how to increase present success and then contact influential friends who can assist you. Improve present prestige.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A situation arises that will help you get your finest talents better recognized and add to your aims with relative ease.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Go through with promises made so that later you can enjoy social pleasures without worry. (Please make more) be understanding.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) Study projects in detail to know exactly how to proceed with them. Try to improve and win approval you win from over.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 21) Get dates down to 10 a.m. to free time later for making agreements with associates.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22 to Nov. 21) Make creative plans in p.m., then put in operation. Amusements are best in p.m., but contact friends early to accompany you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Finish work at home by lunchtime so you can then be off to more important matters. Be alert businesswise. Gain biggest respect.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 21) Shop, do research work, etc., in a.m. Then you can sit down with partners and make progress in business. Use diplomacy at home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 22 to Feb. 19) Handle any monetary matters that are important. Then you can have more success at regular duties. Listen to expert's suggestions.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Ideal time to get into the activities that most please you and be happy. Then handle marital problems wisely. Be charming.

for a fine future. Live a more active life.

Good Intentions Are Soon Beseet By Many Definite Pitfalls

I am constantly being exhorted by magazine articles to fight inflation and the rising cost of food by resisting the temptation of impulsive buying.

This can be easily accomplished, the magazines assert, by carefully planning meals in advance and proceeding to the supermarket armed with a definite list of necessary ingredients.

While this is an admirable enough theory and might cause me to arrive at the check-out counter with fewer TV dinners, smoked oysters, and plastic daffodils, there are definite pitfalls.

For example, last week I planned my Sunday dinner menu most carefully: I would serve baked ham with pineapple rings, sweet potatoes, and brussels sprouts with almonds.

Smugly whipping down the aisle of the supermarket on Saturday, I loaded the cart with pineapple rings, sweet potatoes, and almonds, only to arrive at the meat counter and discover that the ham was not only $1.78 a pound, but a nasty shade of grey.

Deciding to switch to pot roast, I walked back to return the pineapple rings to the shelf.

Since pot roast wants white potatoes, I realized that the sweet potatoes must go back, too.

While I could have pushed on with the brussels sprouts and almonds, there weren't any brussels sprouts. The cauliflower looked good, but it meant relocating the aisle where they kept the almonds and hanging the cellophane bag up again.

While I was there, I saw the most fabulous buy on smoked oysters...

Beauty Clinic To Begin Friday

Registrations still are being taken by the Central YMCA for the Health and Beauty Clinic to be conducted from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday for all interested women 15 years of age and older.

Working women and school girls are urged to attend the Saturday session.

The clinic will be conducted in the Activities Building of the First Baptist Church by Toni Beck, who is associated with the Neiman-Marcus Greenhouse. She will teach methods of posture and exercise and will discuss diet and nutrition.

The clinic is being sponsored by the Women's Health Club of the Central YMCA. Registrations may be made at the Y.

Computer To Replace Mercury?

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — If you are a patient in a hospital, don't be surprised if they put a computer in your mouth.

It will take your temperature — in about 17 seconds — and beep when it's finished.

What actually goes in the mouth is a thermal probe which is attached to a pocket-size computer hung around the nurse's neck. The temperature is electronically recorded in red lights on a small screen on the computer.

According to Rita Grady, who trains nurses at Mercy Hospital where the computerized thermometer has all but replaced the conventional mercury type, the nurses overwhelmingly prefer the new thermometers. The same thing is true at many other hospitals.

"They are time-saving," said Mrs. Grady. "It takes just seconds, compared to three minutes. There's no chance of human error, not leaving it long enough. It's safer, there's no glass to shatter, there's no cleaning and no shakedown."

Dear Abby Ticklish Problem Not At All Funny

— By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Ned and I have been married for seven years, and we have one child. Our marriage is far from perfect, but it's a lot better than most.

My biggest problem is that Ned loves to tickle me. Now, please don't laugh, Abby, because it's not funny. I mean, Ned holds me down, tickles my ribs and the bottoms of my feet until I am screaming and nearly hysterical.

Ned also likes to tickle our little girl, and she doesn't like it either.

I've begged him to stop this tickling business but he insists that it's all in fun—that people enjoy laughing, so I shouldn't get angry with him.

What is your opinion?

TICKLED (NEARLY TO DEATH)

DEAR TICKLED: Ned may not know it, but "tickling" is an ancient form of torture. If he continues to tickle you, knowing that you dislike it, he is being intentionally sadistic.

Tickling one beyond his ability to tolerate it may appear to be a "harmless" game — all in fun — but in reality it's downright cruel.

DEAR ABBY: My husband left me three years ago. At first I thought he would come back, but he never did. I was seven months pregnant at the time.

He just took off, and I never heard from him again. To tell you the truth, I don't even know if he's living or dead. And I wouldn't have the foggiest notion of where to look for him.

Now for my big problem: I met a guy who loves me, and wants to marry me and adopt my child. I want to marry him, but how can I get married when I am not even divorced?

All the lawyers around here talk double talk. Isn't there a mail-order divorce I can send for?

OUT IN THE BOONDOCKS

DEAR OUT: Sorry, a mail-order divorce wouldn't be worth the paper it was printed on, so forget it. Look around for a lawyer who talks single, if you want to BE single, which is absolutely necessary before you can get married again.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé and I are going to be married this June. She will graduate from high school the end of May. We would like to know if it would be proper to send graduation and wedding announcements in the same envelope? It would save time and money.

And can we kill two birds with one stone and send one thank-you note for graduation and wedding gifts?

WONDERING IN N.W.

DEAR WONDERING: The graduation and wedding announcements should be sent separately. And so should the thank-you notes.

DEAR ABBY: Student, Henry County Sr. High, McDonough, Ga., wrote: "I have learned to love according to character, not color."

If the late Martin Luther King, Jr. (himself a Georgian) were alive today, he would have been proud. For he once said: "I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character."

ARTHUR H. PRINCE

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Aug. 9, 1974: A Day For Nonpartisan Tears

EDITOR'S NOTE: With participants now free to talk, it is possible for the first time to know the high drama of the days which immediately preceded the resignation of President Richard Nixon. This is the final installment of that story.

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent
Copyright (c) 1975
The Associated Press
All Rights Reserved
WASHINGTON (AP) — It was Thursday, Aug. 8.
The President, never a sound sleeper, had slept less than usual.
After midnight, he was on the phone to Ray Price, dictating changes in his resignation speech. Between 3:45 and 5 a.m. he called Price three times with more ideas, mostly about foreign policy.
Price now knew this was no contingency speech. The Nixon family knew it. Several others knew but the man who most needed to know for certain didn't. Vice President Ford, who was in no position to press the point, knew resignation was likely but he didn't know for sure or when.
Ford said nothing but the people around him, trying to plan a transition, had felt frustrated for several days. "It was like your grandmother was lying dead under a shroud in the next room," said one man. "And nobody would admit that granny was in there dead."

Third Of Three Parts
At ten minutes of eleven, Thursday morning, the President had Price in to the Oval Office to discuss the finishing touches of his resignation speech. Now it was time for his scheduled 11 a.m. appointment with the Vice President.
On the way in, Ford was stopped by Haig.
"We still don't know for certain which way he's going," said the President's chief of staff. "He has wavered repeatedly."
Seated at his desk, his top sweep clean, Richard Nixon was once more sheathed in his well-ordered calm, in his well-ordered impersonal office.
"Jerry," he began, "you'll do a good job." And that is how Gerald Rudolph Ford learned from the 37th President of the United States that he was about to become the 38th. For all its historic quality, the meeting lacked the overt drama of what either man felt, one on the way down from the golden peak, the other on the way up.
Ford asked for any suggestions and Nixon talked at length in a practical businesslike way about the problems of the office, especially foreign policy, and the talents of Henry Kissinger.
Ford said little. "What the hell could I say in these circumstances?"
Nixon thanked him for his support over the months in which Ford had proclaimed the President's innocence. There is no indication that this expression of gratitude included an apology for what most politicians regard as mortal sin: to let the other fellow catch your mud in his eye without, at least, a whispered warning to duck.

The business of the Nixon administration ground down with a veto of an appropriations bill for environmental, consumer and rural assistance programs.
The rest was routine — resignations, appointments, inexorable flow of a massive bureaucracy.
The president's pool of typists closed down. Staff members lingered long over their luncheon martini, reluctant to return, and outside the White House, along the Pennsylvania Avenue fence, crowds materialized in that quiet, mystical way people have of appearing before the home of Presidents in times of crisis.
Presidents, but he secretly mentioned it. He acknowledged some errors of judgment, not of morality, and quickly wrapped them in "what I believed at the time to be the best interest of the nation."
He said he was resigning because he had lost his support in Congress. He did not say why he had lost that support. He reminded the world again that he was no "quitter," said he would have preferred to fight on but, instead, felt obliged to "put the interest of America first." He injected into his departure a note of martyrdom.
He talked about the accomplishments of his administration. He compared himself to Theodore things the President would want on the flight to California the next day.

The Oval Office was dark. A single Secret Service man stood guard in the corridor. Bull went in and, reaching into the center drawer of the President's desk, gathered up his reading glasses and calendar pad.
Without thinking, he opened a small silver music box given the President several years before by White House reporters. He slammed the box shut as soon as he realized it was playing "Hail to the Chief."
The President was up late his last night in the White House. He was still on the phone after midnight. To various assistants, he expressed his gratitude and the hope he hadn't let them down. He called several friends. To one, he observed, "some of the best political writing has been done from jail."

Shortly after 1 a.m., Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia received a call.
"I'm sorry to phone so late," said Richard Nixon. "I just wanted to know if you feel I took the proper course."
He was assured he had.
FRIDAY, AUG. 9
In the broad, marble foyer, the Marine Orchestra was playing an incongruously gay medley of show tunes from Oklahoma, South Pacific and other old favorites.
It is through this foyer that one enters the White House from the Pennsylvania Avenue side, past the portraits of John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson, to the long, red-carpeted Cross Hall.
To the right, down the Cross Hall, past the small elevator that leads to the family quarters, is the elegant crystal chandeliered State Dining Room. It was here that John Adams once had an inscription put on a fireplace mantle: "I pray Heaven to bestow the best of blessings on this house and all that shall hereafter inhabit it. May none but honest and wise men ever rule under this roof."
At the opposite end of the Cross Hall, past the portraits of Dwight Eisenhower and Harry Truman, past the grand staircase and likenesses of Franklin Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson, is the simple gold and white beauty of the East Room.
It was here that the family of John Adams, the first to live in the White House, once hung its wash, here that federal troops bivouaced in Abraham Lincoln's time, here that children roller-skated on the parqueted floors in Theodore Roosevelt's time.
It was also in the East

Room that Presidents danced with their ladies, entertained kings and prime ministers and here that they lay in state.
At 9:30 a.m., Friday, Aug. 9, the East Room was filled to overflowing with Richard Nixon's cabinet and staff, who had come to hear his farewell.
At the other end of the corridor, the elevator door opened on the President and his family. It was clear that the ladies had wept saying their goodbyes to the household staff above. Pat Nixon wore dark glasses. Her daughters' eyes were red.
In the doorway, the family looked to the left, toward the East Room, and paused, as if reluctant to proceed.
Steve Bull began to brief the President as usual.
He talked about his mother, and he came to tears.
"Nobody'll ever write a book, probably, about my mother. Well, I guess all of you would say this about your mother. My mother was a saint. And I think of her, two boys dying of tuberculosis, nursing four others in order that she could take care of my older brother for three years in Arizona and seeing each of them die... Yes, she will have no books written about her, but she's a saint."
He talked about Teddy Roosevelt again and, for the first time in public, he let go of a tiny part of his image. He put on glasses to read what Roosevelt had written about his dying wife. "And when my heart dearest died, the life went from my life forever."
But still Teddy Roosevelt became President, Richard Nixon went on, and even in death or the loss of an election a man must persevere because "the greatness comes not when things go always good for you, but the greatness comes when you're really tough, when you take your knocks, some disappointment, when sadness comes, because only if you've been in the deepest valley can you ever know how magnificent it is to be on the highest mountain."

It was now occupied by Secret Service agents, and Richard Nixon, who could see the destructive quality of hate in others, made another of his nervous little jokes: "Smells a whole lot better in here, doesn't it?"
Across the land that day, the tears were nonpartisan. There were tears among people who liked him and there were tears among people who never liked him. He thought they had in common was that this could happen to a man.
And to a country.

In the East Room, the new President stirred his audience when he said, "Our long nightmare is over... Our Constitution works; our great Republic is a government of laws and not of men."
The applause for Gerald Ford could be heard on the second floor where Julie Nixon Eisenhower had remained behind to pack. She wept.
On Air Force One, Richard Nixon finally left the solitude of his private compartment. He came back to cheer up the small staff still with him. He walked to the aft section, where reporters used to ride.

It was now occupied by Secret Service agents, and Richard Nixon, who could see the destructive quality of hate in others, made another of his nervous little jokes: "Smells a whole lot better in here, doesn't it?"
Across the land that day, the tears were nonpartisan. There were tears among people who liked him and there were tears among people who never liked him. He thought they had in common was that this could happen to a man.
And to a country.

Ford: 'Our Long Nightmare Is Over'

In a corridor of the West Wing, the President passed his physician. "How are you?" asked Dr. Walter Tkach. "Everything is fine," said Richard Nixon, moving on. He spent most of the afternoon in his EOB office across from the White House.
When it was time to return, he let it be known he did not want to be seen making the short walk between the two buildings. Thus, reporters were literally locked in the press room while the President made the last passage.
On the way, he asked an aide, "Do you think I'm doing the right thing?"
"No," said the loyal aide, at the edge of his control.
Nixon met with the leaders of Congress and then with special friends from the Hill, his most loyal supporters. To those, who at the risk of their own credibility and careers, had protested his innocence while he knew better, he said, "I just hope I haven't let you down." He left in tears.
He explained to the TV makeup lady, "My allergy must be acting up." He went into the Oval Office for his resignation speech, fighting tears with snappiness. "I don't need any agents around for this," he told the Secret Service. They stayed.
At 9 p.m., Richard Nixon looked squarely into the red eye of the television camera and began his 37th and last speech to the American people from the Oval Office.
In offices around the West Wing where his assistants watched on TV, and in the solarium of the residence, where his family watched, there were people murmuring, almost audibly, "Hurry, hurry." They teared he would not be able to get through the speech without breaking down.
Six years ago to the day, Richard Nixon had told a cheering Republican National Convention, which had just nominated him, "America is in trouble today not because her people have failed but because her leaders have failed."
Now it was his failure deeper, more personal than any in the long march of Roosevelt's "man in the arena whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood... (who) knows in the end the triumph of high achievement and... if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly."

He did not recall something else the same Roosevelt said: "No man is above the law and no man is below it; nor do we ask any man's permission when we require him to obey it."
Richard Nixon got through that speech without tears. His family, back in the solarium, didn't. His daughters wept and finally, in the words of Bonnie Angelo in Life Magazine, "Pat Nixon, once more the bride of failure, began to sob."
The President walked back alone to the residence.
FBI Chief Worries
There, David Eisenhower, a veteran of the White House in two administrations, marveled at a wondrous change.
"Suddenly," he said, "the White House as an institution dropped the pretense that nothing was wrong. Suddenly, the servants had disappeared and even the Secret Service had peeled away. It was so different: even the first floor was deserted. It had occurred to somebody that on this last night the family might want to be alone."
In his home, Clarence Kelley, director of the FBI, snapped off his TV set after the President's speech and called his office. He was worried about "the charged air of the situation." He was concerned that "some group might try to take advantage of the country's weakened condition and try something."
He ordered FBI headquarters to check all its field offices throughout the country. Nothing, it turned out, was happening.
At the White House, around midnight, Steve Bull went to the West Wing to collect, as he usually did before a trip, pressed his gratitude and the hope he hadn't let them down. He called several friends. To one, he observed, "some of the best political writing has been done from jail."

Shortly after 1 a.m., Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia received a call.
"I'm sorry to phone so late," said Richard Nixon. "I just wanted to know if you feel I took the proper course."
He was assured he had.

It was also in the East

"Sir, there will be three television cameras, on the left and..."
"Television! who authorized television?" asked Pat Nixon, who apparently had hoped this last ordeal would escape the eyes of a national audience.
"I did," said the President, "and we're going to do it. We owe it to them."
In the corridor, the President spotted Ken Clawson, his director of communications and one of his most aggressive defenders. The President smiled and waved thumbs-up. Clawson dissolved in tears.
"You'll be all right, Ken," Richard Nixon said as he went by. "You're tough."
Pat Nixon removed her dark glasses and they walked toward the East Room. As they did, the doors opened, and they heard the introduction, "Ladies and gentlemen, the President of the United States and..." And they heard the orchestra play "Hail to the Chief," and they heard it all for the last time.
Tearful Farewell
They entered the East Room to a stirring, standing ovation and they mounted a small platform between the portraits of George Washington and Dolly Madison, and Richard Nixon began.
He talked about the beauty and warmth of the house he was leaving and the devotion of the household staff. He talked about his pride in his cabinet and in his executive staff and he said no member of his administration had ever profited at the public expense.
He talked about the ultimate reward of work in a cause larger than one's self. He talked about the pride of achievement the people of his administration could pass on to their children, and now he was reminded of his father.
"I remember my old man," he said, fighting tears. "I think that they would have called him sort of a little man, a common man. He didn't consider himself that way..."

He talked about his mother, and he came to tears.
"Nobody'll ever write a book, probably, about my mother. Well, I guess all of you would say this about your mother. My mother was a saint. And I think of her, two boys dying of tuberculosis, nursing four others in order that she could take care of my older brother for three years in Arizona and seeing each of them die... Yes, she will have no books written about her, but she's a saint."
He talked about Teddy Roosevelt again and, for the first time in public, he let go of a tiny part of his image. He put on glasses to read what Roosevelt had written about his dying wife. "And when my heart dearest died, the life went from my life forever."
But still Teddy Roosevelt became President, Richard Nixon went on, and even in death or the loss of an election a man must persevere because "the greatness comes not when things go always good for you, but the greatness comes when you're really tough, when you take your knocks, some disappointment, when sadness comes, because only if you've been in the deepest valley can you ever know how magnificent it is to be on the highest mountain."

'Never Be Petty'
Standing on the platform behind him, David Eisenhower thought how hard his father-in-law had worked to become President, how he had wanted it more than anything else in the world and wanted to do a good job, and now "it was like watching a man die."
Out front, a senior member of the Nixon administration, with a rather clinical view, thought, "My God, he's beginning to break down in a flow of associations, a picture of a man unraveling."
The President closed with a fervent expression of thanks to those who had served him and with this admonition: "Never be petty. Always remember: others may hate you, those who hate you don't win unless you hate them. And then you destroy yourself."
And then he was gone.
On the way out of the South Portico, he paused to make a nervous little joke to Gerald Ford about the lounge chair in the Lincoln Sitting Room belonging to him, not the White House. "Good luck, Mr. President," he said, and soon was in the helicopter.
On the way to Andrews Air Force Base with his wife, her elder daughter and her husband, not a word was spoken, and then he was on Air Force One, for the last time, heading west.
Meanwhile, his pictures were coming down in the corridors of the White House while Gerald Ford's were going up.

At ten minutes of eleven, Thursday morning, the President had Price in to the Oval Office to discuss the finishing touches of his resignation speech. Now it was time for his scheduled 11 a.m. appointment with the Vice President.
On the way in, Ford was stopped by Haig.
"We still don't know for certain which way he's going," said the President's chief of staff. "He has wavered repeatedly."
Seated at his desk, his top sweep clean, Richard Nixon was once more sheathed in his well-ordered calm, in his well-ordered impersonal office.
"Jerry," he began, "you'll do a good job." And that is how Gerald Rudolph Ford learned from the 37th President of the United States that he was about to become the 38th. For all its historic quality, the meeting lacked the overt drama of what either man felt, one on the way down from the golden peak, the other on the way up.
Ford asked for any suggestions and Nixon talked at length in a practical businesslike way about the problems of the office, especially foreign policy, and the talents of Henry Kissinger.
Ford said little. "What the hell could I say in these circumstances?"
Nixon thanked him for his support over the months in which Ford had proclaimed the President's innocence. There is no indication that this expression of gratitude included an apology for what most politicians regard as mortal sin: to let the other fellow catch your mud in his eye without, at least, a whispered warning to duck.

The business of the Nixon administration ground down with a veto of an appropriations bill for environmental, consumer and rural assistance programs.
The rest was routine — resignations, appointments, inexorable flow of a massive bureaucracy.
The president's pool of typists closed down. Staff members lingered long over their luncheon martini, reluctant to return, and outside the White House, along the Pennsylvania Avenue fence, crowds materialized in that quiet, mystical way people have of appearing before the home of Presidents in times of crisis.
Presidents, but he secretly mentioned it. He acknowledged some errors of judgment, not of morality, and quickly wrapped them in "what I believed at the time to be the best interest of the nation."
He said he was resigning because he had lost his support in Congress. He did not say why he had lost that support. He reminded the world again that he was no "quitter," said he would have preferred to fight on but, instead, felt obliged to "put the interest of America first." He injected into his departure a note of martyrdom.
He talked about the accomplishments of his administration. He compared himself to Theodore things the President would want on the flight to California the next day.

The Oval Office was dark. A single Secret Service man stood guard in the corridor. Bull went in and, reaching into the center drawer of the President's desk, gathered up his reading glasses and calendar pad.
Without thinking, he opened a small silver music box given the President several years before by White House reporters. He slammed the box shut as soon as he realized it was playing "Hail to the Chief."
The President was up late his last night in the White House. He was still on the phone after midnight. To various assistants, he ex-

Traffic Fatalities Start New Upswing

CHICAGO (AP) — Traffic fatalities, which declined 17 per cent in 1974, are climbing again as many Americans return to driving patterns to which they were accustomed before last year's gasoline shortages.
The latest National Safety Council statistics for the first two months of this year show a 6 per cent rise from the same months in 1974. January marked the first monthly increase from the previous year since October 1973.
There was a dramatic decline in the fatality rate in the early months of 1974 during the gasoline crunch as motorists drove less frequently and slower.
From January to May 1974, traffic fatalities were down 25 per cent from record 1973 levels, and the National Safety Council expected some slippage this year.
"There was a tremendous reduction in miles driven last spring," Ron Kuykendall, a council spokesman, said Monday. "Now, mileage is back to normal, a little bit above 1973 levels."
"We also don't have the national trauma we had last spring when we had to wait in long lines for gasoline and service stations were closed on weekends. They, too, there is not as much emphasis on reducing driving and on reducing speed."

Initial projections of the 1975 Council statistics for the first two months of this year show a 6 per cent rise from the same months in 1974. January marked the first monthly increase from the previous year since October 1973.

Many Congressmen Find Public Thinks Vietnam Total Loss

By JIM ADAMS
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Many members of the House and the Senate say they found a feeling among constituents during the Easter recess that Cambodia and South Vietnam are lost and that any new U.S. military aid would be wasted.
 But some of the lawmakers, while reporting the views of their constituents, were more cautious about describing their own sentiments and future actions. Some said they would wait until President Ford delivers his foreign policy address Thursday night.
 Rep. Tom Steed, R-Okla., said: "It seems to me it's just like the folks down home said: 'It's all over but the shouting.'"
 Steed, until now a staunch supporter of U.S. aid for Indochina, said he won't vote for any more.
 Referring to voter sentiment, Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, said: "They're saying no, a loud, loud no."
 Rep. G. V. (Sonny) Montgomery, D-Miss., a supporter of U.S. aid, harshly criticized the South Vietnamese forces' collapse.
 Montgomery said he would vote more military aid "if they've got a halfway chance" but said of his constituents: "Most of them said don't give them any more money unless they stand and fight."
 However, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan said congressional failure to support South Vietnam is "the most irresponsible action of the Congress of the United States in the last 100 years of our history."

 Speaking in a London television interview, Reagan said the "United States should continue to support its pledge to support the South Vietnamese and Cambodia." Meanwhile, there were these developments:
 —President Ford, who returned to Washington Monday night after a nine-day West Coast vacation, has directed the National Security Council to meet today to assess the situation in Vietnam.
 —U.S. officials say there are indications that the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong will not directly assault Saigon in the near future but instead will press for the ouster of the Thieu regime and a negotiated settlement.
 —U.S. preparations to evacuate Americans from South Vietnam continued quietly to avoid triggering defeatism that could hasten Vietnam's collapse. There are more than 5,000 Americans in South Vietnam.
 —A Marine battalion of about 1,500 men has been moved to a U.S. naval base in the Philippines to be ready for use if needed in any evacuation. This brings to about 4,000 the number of Marines stationed within a few days' sailing time of South Vietnam and Cambodia.
 —The evacuation of orphans will continue, but in smaller groups, South Vietnamese officials said. Almost 2,000 children already have been sent to the United States, Britain, Australia and Canada.

Food Stamp Recipients Due Increase On July 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 18.5 million food stamp users will get a cost-of-living increase in benefits on July 1, according to new calculations by the Agriculture Department.
 Stamp benefits for a family of four, for example, will go up about $8 a month from current allowances to reflect a rise in grocery costs since last summer.
 Although not yet official, the July 1 food stamp allocation was indicated Monday by the department's computed cost for an "economy" meal plan in February.
 The economy meal plan is used by the department in setting food stamp allowances for needy people. The allocation is adjusted twice a year to reflect changes in retail food prices.
 The economy food cost in February is used to set July 1 benefits, and its cost next August will determine stamp allocations next Jan. 1.
 In February the economy food plan cost a four-member household including two elementary school children an average of $162 per month, the department said.
 Thus, the July 1 food stamp allocation for a four-member family will be $162 a month, a 3.2 per cent increase from the $154 a month in effect since the first of the year.
 The expected rate of $162 a month for a four-member family will be up $12 a month or 8 per cent from the rate for the second half of 1974, which was set last July 1.
 Food stamp enrollments and costs have soared, from 15.3 million persons in February 1974 to 18.5 million last February. Total federal costs are estimated at about $5 billion for the fiscal year to end July 30 and at $6 billion or more in 1975-76.

 Like many a poor girl, West was led astray by glittering diamonds. She led the queen of diamonds, and that was the end of her.
 Declarer won in dummy and lost a heart finesse to the king. Now West shifted to a trump, but it was too late.
 Declarer won the trump return with the queen, cashed the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart in dummy. South took dummy's ace of clubs, ruffed a club, drew trumps and gave up a trick to the jack of hearts.

 South still had a trump and the last heart to assure his contract. He lost only two hearts and one diamond.
Look Ahead
 West should listen to the bidding and look ahead. Clearly, dummy will show up with two spades and two hearts.
 If North had three spades, he would raise spades instead of bidding notrump. If North had three hearts, he would prefer hearts to spades. If North had a singleton, he wouldn't bid notrump.
 If West opens a trump, she can lead another trump when she gets in with the king of hearts. That takes both trumps out of the dummy, and West gets three hearts instead of only two.

ANSWER: Pass. Since you have only 6 points in high cards, the combined count is only 22 to 24 points, which is seldom enough for game. Be content with a part score.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
 Today is Tuesday, April 8, the 98th day of 1975. There are 267 days left in the year.
 Today's highlight in history: In 1513, the Spanish explorer, Ponce de Leon, landed in Florida in his search for the fountain of youth.
 On this date — In 1500, a French army, aided by Swiss mercenaries, conquered Milan.
 In 1786, the first Jewish congregation in American consecrated its first synagogue in New York City. The congregation dated back to 1655.
 In 1826, Secretary of State Henry Clay fought a duel with Senator John Randolph of Virginia. Neither was hurt.
 In 1929, King Zog of Albania fled as Italian troops invaded his country.
 In 1961, a referendum in France approved a peace settlement with nationalist rebels in Algeria.
 In 1968, the U.S. Supreme Court removed the death penalty provision from the Lindbergh kidnaping law.
 Ten years ago: A federal grand jury in Newark, New Jersey indicted eight major oil companies on charges of conspiring to fix oil prices in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware.
 Five years ago: The U.S. Senate rejected President Richard Nixon's Supreme Court nominee, Judge G. Harold Carswell.
 One year ago: Baseball pitcher Hank Aaron broke Babe Ruth's home run record by hitting his 715th homer in a game in Atlanta between the Braves and Dodgers.
 Today's birthdays: Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia is 56 years old. Opera tenor Franco Corelli is 82.

Dallas Will Contest Gas Rate Ruling

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas City Council voted Monday to fight the Texas Railroad Commission's ruling which allows Lone Star Gas Co. to pass along 100 per cent of its increased fuel acquisition costs to Dallas customers.
 The action is expected to create a legal battle which may resolve how much power the commission will have in Texas gas rate cases in the future. City Atty Alex Buckley said he will ask that the city be allowed to intervene in a commission hearing on April 25 involving Lone Star Gas and other area cities.
 Commission Orders Payment
 The adjustment cost was sought by Lone Star to offset higher charges for natural gas from the Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. The Railroad Commission ordered Lone Star Gas to pay the increased rates to give Lo-Vaca sufficient revenues for exploration.
 Lone Star vice president C. L. Neaves said the increased rates have cost the company an additional $10 million this year. He said a deficit of $2.5 million would result unless the adjustment is allowed.
 $24 Average Increase
 The adjustment would cost the average Dallas user about $24 more per year, Neaves said.
 In the meantime, company officials have said they intend to participate in the Railroad Commission June 2 hearing on phasing out natural gas as a boiler fuel in Texas.
 The company says it would not be affected by such a proposal.

Amarillo Doctor, Companion Killed In Plane Crash

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Federal Aviation Administration investigators were probing today for the cause of a small plane crash which killed an Amarillo physician, Dr. Lee Harris, 35, and Paula Wynn Fern, 25.
 Officials said the plane, piloted by Harris, left Dallas Love Field for Amarillo Sunday night. A search was launched after it failed to arrive at Amarillo's Tradewinds Airport.
 The wreckage was discovered Monday about 30 miles southeast of Amarillo in the Caprock area. Officials said the plane crashed into a side of the Palo Duro Canyon.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
 Today is Tuesday, April 8, the 98th day of 1975. There are 267 days left in the year.
 Today's highlight in history: In 1513, the Spanish explorer, Ponce de Leon, landed in Florida in his search for the fountain of youth.
 On this date —
 In 1500, a French army, aided by Swiss mercenaries, conquered Milan.
 In 1730, the first Jewish congregation in American consecrated its first synagogue in New York City. The congregation dated back to 1655.
 In 1826, Secretary of State Henry Clay fought a duel with Senator John Randolph of Virginia. Neither was hurt.
 In 1939, King Zog of Albania fled as Italian troops invaded his country.
 In 1961, a referendum in France approved a peace settlement with nationalist rebels in Algeria.
 In 1968, the U.S. Supreme Court removed the death penalty provision from the Lindbergh kidnaping law.
 Ten years ago: A federal grand jury in Newark, New Jersey indicted eight major oil companies on charges of conspiring to fix oil prices in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware.
 Five years ago: The U.S. Senate rejected President Richard Nixon's Supreme Court nominee, Judge G. Harold Carswell.
 One year ago: Baseball pitcher Hank Aaron broke Babe Ruth's home run record by hitting his 715th homer in a game in Atlanta between the Braves and Dodgers.
 Today's birthdays: Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia is 56 years old. Opera tenor Franco Corelli is 52.
 Thought for today: Rotten wood cannot be carved — a Chinese proverb.

Dallas Will Contest Gas Rate Ruling

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas City Council voted Monday to fight the Texas Railroad Commission's ruling which allows Lone Star Gas Co. to pass along 100 per cent of its increased fuel acquisition costs to Dallas customers.
 The action is expected to create a legal battle which may resolve how much power the commission will have in Texas gas rate cases in the future. City Atty. Alex Bickley said he will ask that the city be allowed to intervene in a commission hearing on April 25 involving Lone Star Gas and other area cities.
Commission Orders Payment
 The adjustment cost was sought by Lone Star to offset higher charges for natural gas from the Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. The Railroad Commission ordered Lone Star Gas to pay the increased rates to give Lo-Vaca sufficient revenues for exploration.
 Lone Star vice president C. L. Neaves said the increased rates have cost the company an additional $10 million this year. He said a deficit of $2.5 million would result unless the adjustment is allowed.
$24 Average Increase
 The adjustment would cost the average Dallas user about $24 more per year, Neaves said.
 In the meantime, company officials have said they intend to participate in the Railroad Commission's June 2 hearing on phasing out natural gas as a boiler fuel in Texas.
 The company says it would not be affected by such a proposal.

Amarillo Doctor, Companion Killed In Plane Crash

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Federal Aviation Administration investigators were probing today for the cause of a small plane crash which killed an Amarillo physician, Dr. Lee Harris, 35, and Paula Wynn Ferris, 25.
 Officials said the plane, piloted by Harris, left Dallas Love Field for Amarillo Sunday night. A search was launched after it failed to arrive at Amarillo's Tradewinds Airport.
 The wreckage was discovered Monday about 30 miles southeast of Amarillo in the Caprock area. Officials said the plane crashed into a side of the Palo Duro Canyon.

Market Forces Count

America should solve its energy and economic problems by allowing market forces to work, not by "changing the fundamentals of our private enterprise system."

This is the way Randall Meyer, president of Exxon Company, U.S.A., put it in addressing the Baytown Chamber of Commerce recently.

And this certainly is the way it should be stated. It was when government started tampering with the "market forces" that economic problems arose in various facets of business.

The thing we do not want to do is to change the fundamentals of our private enterprise system.

Private enterprise and its accompanying profit system are the very things which have made this nation great, and it is strange that there are those who would alter or do away with this system which works, and which long has worked for the United States of America.

"In one issue after another, Congress faces a fundamental choice," Meyer said. "It can turn away from controls and rely on the competitive market forces that have brought us unparalleled material standards and freedoms in the past, or it can move further toward a government-controlled, government-dominated economy."

The mere mention of a government-dominated economy is enough to frighten anyone even vaguely familiar with free enterprise.

Meyer said that existing controls on the petroleum industry are retarding efforts to meet future energy needs.

He explained that price controls and other regulations have restricted refining profits to the point where investments in additional capacity have become unattractive. He noted that a number of companies have canceled or postponed previously announced expansion projects.

Meyer most certainly is justified in calling on businessmen for a "vigorous, effective educational program" to convince the nation that solving national problems "can't be accomplished through the dismemberment of our economic system."

He is of the opinion that it will require real understanding and courage for the nation's leaders to leave the system free to work instead of searching for quick, easy solutions that are, in reality, counterproductive.

And then he hit the nail on the head with this comment:

"No matter what business we're in, we cannot afford to preoccupy ourselves exclusively with selling our own particular product line. Increasingly, we must devote attention to helping mold a favorable business climate, to explaining our traditional economic system. If we do not, we may find ourselves living in a world of government oil companies, government steel makers, government savings and loan associations and a whole range of government-operated businesses."

This is enough almost to make one ill. It is completely contrary to our system. It is heading down the path toward nationalization. Britain has tried it and it has done everything but work satisfactorily. The U.S. certainly should be smart enough to benefit from the mistakes of others.

We should and must make every effort to keep America's cherished free enterprise system from being exchanged for a government-operated system of business.

THE BUREAUCRATS

"But, it's MY penny"

That Did It

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — A confidential economic study of the coal industry suggests that prices have been artificially inflated to swell profits.

The study points out that coal prices have shot up an incredible 282 per cent since 1955 — far beyond anything that can be attributed to wage increases, mining costs, safety regulations, short supply or other factors.

Although it is "virtually impossible to prove conclusively that coal companies have entered into a conspiracy to raise prices and limit output," states the report, the findings "are entirely consistent" with this conclusion.

The report, therefore, strongly urges "an investigation of the coal industry with respect to pricing and supply."

The coal study was conducted by George Washington University economists James Barth and James Bennett for the American Public Power Association, National Rural Electric Cooperative Association and other consumers groups.

The Country Parson

By Frank A. Clark

"Looks like to reform you often begin with the kind of questions you ask they wouldn't answer."

Outside Washington Vs. 'Inside' Group

WASHINGTON (KFS) — Washington columnists like to convey the impression (and often the fact) of "insidership" — of having just lunched with Henry Kissinger or Hubert Humphrey, of being part of the capital power structure's journalistic wing.

In contrast, this column might be entitled "Outside Washington." My thesis is that the people, policies and pressure groups of "Inside Washington" are central to what's wrong with the United States. Today, even more than in 1800, 1828, 1860 and 1932 (these the years of previous Washington revolutions), the Capital power structure is bloated, inbred, remote from the rest of the country and badly in need of a purge.

If this sounds like a revolutionary theme, I suppose it is. But it has been sounded before. The watershed political campaigns of Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln and Franklin Roosevelt were all, at least in part, directed at the need to purge Washington of institutionalized bureaucracy, arrogance and failure.

Thomas Jefferson's bitter, but successful campaign against Federalist Party officialdom has been described by civil service historians as "the Revolution of 1800." By 1828, a new elite bureaucracy had grown up, once again remote from popular feeling, and Andrew Jackson's presidential campaign promised a Washington purge. His ardent supporters waved symbolic hickory brooms, and fiery Jacksonian newspapers like the Albany Argus and the New Hampshire Patriot demanded that "the barnacles shall be scraped clean from the ship of state." Upon election, Jackson instituted the spoils system, to restructure federal employment.

After a quarter century, a new power elite had taken over Eighteen-Fifties Washington — the Southern Democratic "slaveocracy." Orators of the new Republican Party raved about their hammerlock on government. As of the 1860 election, Southerners controlled the Executive bureaucracy, the War Department and the army, and Dixie set the tone of Washington society. To anti-slavery politicians in Vermont or Minnesota, pre-Civil War Washington was just as evil a place as the Adams-Massachusetts elitist capital pictured to Jackson's Western followers in 1828.

After winning the Civil War, the Republicans soon became the Washington Establishment. And by the next successful national upheaval, in the depression election of 1932, the Democrats took office as outsiders. "We stood in Washington on March 4," said Roosevelt brain-truster Raymond Moley in 1933, "like marauders in hostile territory."

But 40 years have passed since that day, and the once-weak New Deal has itself grown into a huge Liberal Establishment that reaches from the bureaucracy and mushrooming congressional staffs to the power centers of the New York-Washington media and the assorted research, educational and non-profit institutions. Reform demands another electoral revolution. But alas, that may no longer be so easy.

As anybody who reads the statistics will realize, the 1933-74 growth of Washington bureaucracy, interest groups and media power has achieved a level absolutely dwarfing the circumstances of 1800, 1828, 1860, or 1932. Compared with 1932, there are three or four times as many government employees, eight times as many congressional staff people, ten times as many journalists and media staffers, and probably 20 times as many lobbyists and Washington interest group representatives.

This size and power of Washington's liberal "Media-Bureaucracy-Congressional Complex" was enough first to stymie Richard Nixon and then to bend his anti-establishment politics in the direction of illegality. Consequently, the electoral revolutions of 1968 and 1972 miscarried. Now Washington's Liberal Establishment is stronger than ever. Gerald Ford's Administration is little more than a tolerated, ineffectual intruder — and a potentially convenient scapegoat for hard times.

Which leads us to the irony and the challenge: It is one thing to talk about once again sweeping out Washington with Andy Jackson's hickory broom, and something else to figure out how to achieve it. Yet doing so may be the critical celebration of America's upcoming 200th birthday.

Letters To The Editor

HUD Action Resented

To The Editor:

A letter in a recent issue regarding the community development grant provides some superficial reasoning on why Midland should grab the multimillion dollar grant on HUD's dictatorial terms. It avoids the broader and more fundamental issues involved.

The letter reasons that such funds "will stimulate business growth, provide jobs and increase buying power of those on fixed incomes who suffer most from inflation." The opposite is more likely the truth of the matter. Federal handouts such as this, multiplied by thousands of cities and "good causes," are the chief inflation factor that has hurt worst the fixed-income group. Such funding programs add further to staggering deficits which everyone knows to be the root cause of rampant inflation.

To say we are merely calling back Midland tax dollars from Washington, D.C., is an oversimplification at best. More appropriately, it assuages the guilt we feel in our addiction for the federal funny money.

I for one deeply resent HUD's use of taxpayer's money to intimidate the city to do its bidding. This is the way in which we have lost so many of our local prerogatives in the management of school systems and other institutions. Whatever the Feds invest in, they also control. When will we learn?

I applaud Mayor Angelo and the majority of the city council for standing up to the bullies in defense of local government's right to exercise jurisdiction in local affairs. I hope they stick by their guns. I also hope that other cities and communities will take a lesson and demonstrate similar backbone.

INSIDE REPORT— President Ford's Reassessment Begins

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — President Ford's "reassessment" of Mideast policy, coinciding with the most recent U.S.-Israel relationship ever, has produced one hard result: a holdup of final approval for arming Israel with two advanced U.S. weapons systems.

Negotiations for delivery of the 170-mile-range Lance missile with conventional warhead and the F-15 fighter aircraft, both avidly sought by Israel, have been suspended. That is by no means proof that Mr. Ford has decided to use the weapons lever to force concessions from Israel. To the contrary, reassessment at the highest levels here will reach no final conclusions prior to completion around April 10.

Yet, the holdup of the two weapons systems is certain to raise apprehensions in Israel, considering this backdrop of abrasive events surrounding and following the breakdown of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's Israeli-Egyptian mediation.

Item: U.S. anger over release by Israel of two maps purporting to show the difference between Israeli and Egyptian offers for a Sinai withdrawal. U.S. officials told us Kissinger and his negotiating team never did receive "a map or a line" of any kind from Israel. The maps released by the Israelis, they say, could not reflect precise lines because the Israelis refused to draw precise lines.

Item: The Israeli charge, reported by us last week, that Mr. Ford's letter to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin "boomeranged" and hardened the Israeli position. One official who has worked closely for years with Israel called it "a lie." The letter could not have affected the talks, he said, because it wasn't sent until after Rabin turned down the last Egyptian plan (even though the formal Israeli cabinet approval of the turn-down came a few hours later).

Item: Israel's insistence on formal Egyptian "non-belligerence" as the price for yielding strategic Sinai passes and oil fields, despite highly persuasive Israeli statements to the U.S. before the latest round of talks that this would not be a sticking point.

While such distrust and anger were being sown between the Israeli and U.S. governments, a special Israeli military training team was under instruction at a U.S. Army base in the use of the Lance missile. The Pentagon routinely informed Congress several months ago that the weapon had been cleared for Israel.

But now approval for actual delivery to Israel of the highly accurate and sophisticated weapons system is being held up. Negotiations for the brand new F-15, wanted by Israel as the follow-on of the F-4 Phantom (still being delivered to Israel), have come to a standstill.

These preliminary, possibly temporary decisions in the President's reappraisal of American policy barely hint at what may be in the offing. The President, privately angered that Israel failed to move as far as he thinks it should have to break the Sinai deadlock, wants his reassessment to examine the whole question of American arms deliveries. That means deliveries to Moslem allies — specifically, Saudi Arabia and Iran — as well as Israel.

So pervasive is the President's reappraisal that Kissinger summoned a blue-ribbon panel of elder statesmen and former high officials for a private review Monday at the State Department.

Among the dozen present were former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, former Under Secretary George Ball (who has differed fundamentally with Kissinger's settlement formula) and former Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon. All have tried in the past — always unsuccessfully — to negotiate Israeli withdrawal from captured Arab territories, seeking Arab-Israeli peace.

In his long session with this panel, Kissinger and Under Secretary Joseph Sisco delivered an unemotional, step-by-

Jack Anderson

When they presented their findings to the Justice Department, according to a confidential memo on the meeting, antitrust official George Hay dismissed the conclusions as "a bunch of crap."

This attitude has led Rep. John Seiberling, D-Ohio, a power on the House Judiciary Committee, to complain directly to Attorney General Edward Levi.

Citing the study, Seiberling contended in a private letter to Levi that the coal industry should get the same scrutiny that a Justice Department task force now is giving the oil companies.

"The price situation in the coal industry is, if anything, more serious," wrote Seiberling.

Indeed, there is a relationship between the two industries. The report describes how the oil companies have moved quietly into the coal business. The top 15 coal companies, the report declares, now control about half of the nation's production. Four of the 15 are owned by oil companies.

Supporting their suspicions, the researchers note that coal production has remained almost stable while prices have soared. The end of price controls in 1973, for example, was followed by an "extraordinary rate of price increase."

Meanwhile, coal production strangely has been slipping in some areas. "With rapid price increases," suggests the study, "one would expect a firm... to expand output... When this doesn't happen, the evidence may suggest an

Briscoe Signs Measure Giving Texas First Claim To Natural Gas

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas as much right to reserve itself gas produced from state-owned lands as New Jersey does to prohibit oil and gas development from its offshore lands, says Gov. Dolph Briscoe. Briscoe signed a bill Monday giving Texas first claim on all gas produced from state-owned lands under future lease agreements.

The bill is constitutionally valid, he said, because "it represents proprietary taking of the resources rather than governmental taking and should be viewed no differently than similar actions by other states. California, for example, produces and uses entirely within the state the minerals taken from state lands. The refusal of New Jersey, for example, to explore and produce oil and gas from state-owned lands within the three-mile limit off its shores should be viewed in the same manner. Their decision not to develop is tantamount to withholding energy production in the interest of the people of New Jersey."

Runnels Gains Pool Reopener

Runnels County gained a field reopener and sites for two exploratory tests. Alsbrook & Edwards Oil Co. of Richardson completed No. 1 Dolph Richards as a Goen line re-opener in the Norton, West field.

Briscoe said the bill would give other states "a clear example of the benefits to be gained by developing their own energy resources."

Deep Gas Flows At Winkler Test

BTA Oil Producers, Midland, No. 1 7407 JV-S Winkler, 3/4-mile southeast outpost to the Montoya-Ellenburger sector of the Wink, South field of Winkler County, flowed gas at the rate of 6 million cubic feet per day, plus 132 barrels of distillate in 24 hours, from the Ellenburger.

Phillips Slates Concho Offset

Phillips Petroleum Co. has scheduled No. 1-D Duncan as a 3/4-mile northeast offset to the opener of the proposed J-D (Goen line) field of Concho County, 12 miles southwest of Eden.

Dorchester To Dig Sterling Try

Dorchester Exploration, Inc., Midland, has scheduled No. 1-A-1 Foster Conger as a 3/4-mile northwest outpost to a dual producer in the W. A. M. (Fusselman) oil and survey (Canyon) gas field of Sterling County.

Stonewall Area Gains Stepouts

Ryder Scott Management Co. of Wichita Falls has scheduled two stepouts to production in the two-well Moffett (Swastika) pool in Stonewall County.

Adobe Completes Andrews Gasser

Adobe Oil Co. has completed two extensions to Yates gas production in the Block 12 field of Andrews County, 18 miles west of Andrews.

Adobe Wildcat In North Dakota Hits Oil Flow

Adobe Oil & Gas Corp., Midland, and its 1974 drilling program have announced a wildcat discovery flowing at the rate of 360 barrels of oil daily, at the Signalness No. 1 well, in section 11, T-147-N, R-96-W, Dunn County, N.D.

Wildcat Staked In Crockett Area

A wildcat was scheduled in Crockett County and an extension was completed in a field. Texas Oil & Gas Corp. has scheduled No. 1-A Massie West in attempt to re-open Ellenburger production in the depleted Ozona, North multizone pool, 10 miles northeast of Ozona.

Operator Sets Terry Project

Williamson & Underwood of Midland have made plans to drill No. 1 Reed as a 1/2-mile north stepout to the four-well Mound Lake (Fusselman) field of Terry County.

IPAA Chief Fears Congressional Actions Will Lay Waste U.S. Petroleum Industry

DALLAS (AP) — The president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America says that "if Congress does all the things it is threatening to do, the domestic petroleum industry will be laid waste." In a prepared text for delivery today at the meeting of the American Petroleum Institute, C. John Miller charged that some elements of Congress seem determined to make it impossible for the domestic industry to respond to America's energy needs.

Miller's criticism of Congress echoed charges made by another oilman at a meeting across town of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists. There, Merrill W. Haas, vice president of Exxon Co. U.S.A., said, "many in Congress ... have made the petroleum industry their whipping boy." Haas said the establishment of a federal oil and gas corporation would be an "unwarranted use of government funds, delay or risk the loss of future reserves," and would "result in the beginning of a massive energy shortage."

Miller referred to the elimination of the oil depletion allowance and regulation of natural gas sales as "punitive measures" against the industry. "The politicians who are talking about reducing imports of oil by up to two million barrels a day also are supporting the punitive acts to make sure that future supplies of domestic oil and natural gas will be reduced," he said. Another speaker, Hiram E. Bond, vice president of Atlantic Richfield Co., said in a prepared text that neither "exotic" fuel sources nor improved methods of oil extraction can be relied on to solve the U.S. energy crisis during the next ten years. He said the United States has enormous reserves of oil shale, oil and natural gas and the potential for harnessing geothermal and solar energy.

But, he pointed out, the question is when those energy sources will be tapped in amounts large enough to make significant contributions to the nation's energy needs. Bond said that many of the recent setbacks and delays in developing oil shale, tar sands and other new energy sources stem largely from economic and political uncertainties rather than from the lack of technical feasibility. James E. Chenault told the API representatives that there may be shortages of drilling pipe in the near future because of the reduction in the availability of natural gas needed to manufacture them. Chenault, president of the oil well division of U.S. Steel Corp., said the situation is much better for independents who are exploring at relatively shallow depths and use only casing in which the pressure requirements are low. But he said the possibility of higher grade casings for deep drilling "being in balance by the end of 1975 seems remote."

My Grateful Thanks . . .

My family and I thank our many friends and supporters for their help during our campaign. It has been a great honor to serve you as a member of our school board the past two years, and I have appreciated this opportunity to make some contribution to our schools and to our community.

I have honored the commitment of prior boards to do whatever is necessary to have the two finest high schools in West Texas. Both high schools must be kept equal in every respect, and I cannot stress too strongly the Board's responsibility to continue to live up to that commitment.

Thank you so very much for giving me the opportunity to serve. We have a fine school system and a wonderful city. Let's keep it that way!

'Chinatown,' a detective story

Inventory Control Seminar Scheduled

An inventory control seminar, designed to help businessmen combat losses, will be sponsored April 28-May 1 by the Midland Chamber of Commerce. Sessions will be held at the Western State Bank.

Jim Ford, membership relations director of the Texas Retail Federation, will conduct the seminars.

Programs for business owners and managers will be held from 1:30-4:30 p.m. and 6:30-9:30 p.m. April 28 and 29. Fee for the one-day course is $10.

Sessions for employees will be from 7-10 p.m. April 30 and May 1. Fee for the employee sessions is $5.

Enrollment for each day's seminar will be limited to 30 persons.

Chamber officials said the program would use audio-visual presentations and the problem-solving aspects of shrinkage control.

Advance registrations may be made at the chamber office, 211 N. Colorado St.

set in Los Angeles in the '30s, is favored as the star tonight at the 47th annual Academy Awards.

Texas Press Women District Meeting Begins Here Friday

Approximately 100 media representatives from 30 cities are expected to attend the Texas Press Women Inc. convention here this weekend.

About 25 TPW board members are expected to arrive Thursday for a board meeting early Friday before the noon opening of the convention in the Midland Rodeway Inn on Interstate 20.

Heading the local delegation is District Two president Myrtle Corley, Crane News; vice president Mary J. Goodwin, Reporter-Telegram; secretary Beverly Boase, Monahan's News; treasurer Robert Staggs, Crane News, and convention program chairman Tricia Shelton, KMD-TV News.

District Two will host the event which concludes Sunday.

NBC news reporter Judy Woodruff, based in Atlanta, and Jim Allison Jr., president and publisher of The Midland Reporter-Telegram will headline.

MHS A Cappella Choir To Compete

Midland High School's A Cappella Choir will be among 60 choral groups competing April 18 and 19 in the second annual Six Flags Over Texas Choral Festival in Arlington.

Some 50 members of the Midland group, directed by Don McCartney, will make the trip to the festival, which is drawing competitors from across the nation.

The Tall City choir won eligibility for the meet by garnering a first division rating in Region VI of University Interscholastic League (UIL) competition this year.

over 'The Godfather, Part II,' 'The Towering Inferno,' 'Lenny' and 'The Conversation.'

Jack Nicholson, who played the puzzled detective in 'Chinatown,' was the favorite for winner the Oscar for best actor. His rivals include Al Pacino for 'Godfather-II'; Art Carney for 'Harry and Tonto'; Albert Finney, 'Murder on the Orient Express,' and Dustin Hoffman, who played the title role in 'Lenny.'

Faye Dunaway, the tragic heroine of 'Chinatown,' was afforded a good chance to win as best actress if a sweep for the film develops.

Otherwise, the best actress Oscar looks like a toss-up between Gena Rowlands of 'A Woman Under the Influence' and Ellen Burstyn for 'Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore.'

Other nominees for best actress are Diahann Carroll for 'Claudine' and Valerie Perrine for 'Lenny.'

Many seemed to think — or hope — that old, faithful Fred Astaire would be chosen as best supporting actor for his role in 'Towering Inferno.'

The Oscar for supporting actress was more difficult to predict. The favorite seemed to be Valentina Cortese for 'Day for Night,' with Ingrid Bergman as sentimental choice for 'Orient Express.'

Howard Koch, who is producing the Oscars show, promises, 'This is the year we return to glamor.'

With the industry enjoying a long-awaited prosperity, Koch has planned a production to match.

'The whole show will have a crystal look, and the women will appear in glamorous gowns, all designed to match the sets,' he said.

The Motion Picture Academy is striving to repair its image after events that have tarnished the Oscar — no-shows by important winners, refusals of the award by George C. Scott and Marlon Brando, a streaker onstage at last year's telecast.

This year will be different, Koch said between rehearsals at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion. The NBC telecast (7 p.m. PDT) will mark back to Hollywood's one-time glamor with a parade of film clips of past winners.

Beverly Sills Finally Makes Debut At Met

By MARY CAMPBELL
NEW YORK (AP) — Operatic superstar Beverly Sills made her long-delayed Metropolitan Opera debut Monday night. The audience made it a superoccasion.

Miss Sills now says the few offers Bing made to her were for appearances on nights when she was busy. It is generally assumed in New York musical circles that Bing didn't hire her because the Met hadn't discovered her. But this season the two have been speaking amiably of each other in interviews.

The air of excitement before the curtain went up on Rossini's 'The Siege of Corinth' carried through the performance.

The audience stopped the production with more than five minutes of applause after Miss Sills' big aria in the second act. During nearly 20 minutes of curtain calls at the end, fans showered the coloratura with bits of metal foil, confetti and rose petals. She caught a bouquet of white roses with one hand.

Miss Sills sounded dazzling, never shrill, tossing off the trills and caballets in her usual flexible, lovely and warm manner. She hit a clinker in the second act, but the enthusiastic audience applauded as much as ever.

'The Siege of Corinth' was also the opera in which Miss Sills made her debut at Milan's La Scala in 1969, and all but one of the excellent principals with her Monday were with her then: conductor Thomas Schippers, tenor Harry Thayer and bass Justino Diaz. Mezzo-soprano Shirley Verrett sang the part taken at La Scala by Marilyn Horne.

The opera had not been presented previously by the Met.

Now 45, Miss Sills has been singing with the New York City Opera for 20 years. Since her sensational success in that company's 1966 production of Handel's 'Julius Caesar,' she has become the highest priced singer in the world and has starred at La Scala, London's Covent Garden and other major European houses. But the Met showed a marked lack of interest in her until after the retirement of general manager Sir Rudolf Bing.

Miss Sills now says the few offers Bing made to her were for appearances on nights when she was busy. It is generally assumed in New York musical circles that Bing didn't hire her because the Met hadn't discovered her. But this season the two have been speaking amiably of each other in interviews.

Belgian Notables Feted In Peking

TOKYO (AP) — Prince Albert of Belgium and other members of his government's economic delegation attended a banquet given by Chinese foreign trade minister Li Chiang in Peking.

Among the guests at the banquet Monday night were Belgian ambassador to China Jacques Groothaert and his wife; and minister Jose van Eynde, leader of the visiting Belgian parliamentary delegation, according to a Chinese broadcast monitored in Tokyo.

Banker Says Regulating Utilities Would Be Error

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas electric utilities are the envy of the nation, and it would be a mistake to regulate them, says a Wall Street banker.

'You have been highly successful under your existing system,' John F. Childs told the House State Affairs Committee Monday night. But many utilities, especially in other states, are struggling today to get capital, he said.

'That means the consumer is going to pay,' Childs said.

Investors may shun Texas electric utilities if the system is changed, he said.

Without capital, utilities cannot build new facilities, and this means fewer jobs, he said.

'I would think the unions would understand that.'

'If you don't get construction today, the lights won't go out, because the companies have some reserves, but five years from now they will. And it'll take another five years to straighten this thing out.'

Rep. Latham Boone, D-Nevada, sponsor of one of the five utilities regulation bills pending before the committee, told Childs Texas electric utilities make 15 per cent on their investment even though they are monopolies and have no competition.

'I think today 15 per cent is a bare minimum to raise capital,' Childs said.

William R. Brown, a Houston lawyer representing the Houston Light and Power Co., told the committee Houston has lower electricity rates than Shreveport, Oklahoma City, Baton Rouge, Albuquerque, Tulsa, New Orleans and Little Rock.

Houstonians are charged $23.67 per 1,000 kilowatt hours in the summer and $21.17 in the winter, he said.

Boone said a majority of the representatives from Houston are co-sponsors of his bill, 'so there must be some problem in Houston.'

Cambodian Leader Reported In Touch With Khmer Rouge

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Premier Long Boret was reported today to have made contact with the Khmer Rouge as Cambodian government sources battled the insurgents on three fronts.

Chartchai refused to give any other information about the meeting, and there was no word of it from Cambodian sources.

Meanwhile, government paratroopers and infantrymen withstood an all-night assault by Khmer Rouge insurgents on the east bank of the Mekong river opposite Phnom Penh, military sources said.

USDA Vice Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigators have turned up evidence of gambling and drug peddling in the Agriculture Department and sources say prostitution also may be involved.

Joseph R. Wright Jr., assistant secretary for administration, said Monday that preliminary findings of department investigators on alleged gambling and drug traffic have been turned over to District of Columbia police.

Reports Unfinished "We had reports of these and we did an investigation," Wright said in response to a newsman's questions.

Sex Ring Rumors Wright said he could not comment on rumors that a sex ring has been operating on department premises but indicated those reports were being checked by department investigators.

MC Counselors To Participate In UTPB Session

ODESSA—Midland College counselors Ricardo Saldana and Sally Isaacs will participate Friday in a counselors' workshop involving five area junior colleges at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin.

Sponsored by the university's admissions office, the one-day workshop is to acquaint representatives from the colleges with UTPB's various academic programs.

Tyler Sworn In As New Deputy Attorney General

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harold R. Tyler Jr. is the new deputy attorney general, the second-ranking position in the Justice Department.

The sources reported 10 government soldiers killed and 60 wounded in the fighting across the river. There was no report on rebel losses.

The insurgents struck along a four-mile stretch and shelled civilian targets on the peninsula between the Tonle Sap river and the Mekong. The rumble of guns was heard through the night as howitzers in Phnom Penh fired back.

U.S. Airlift Continues The airport was hit by 15 rocket and howitzer rounds, but the American airlift of ammunition and supplies continued.

Hard fighting was reported in Kompong Speu, a provincial capital 30 miles southwest of Phnom Penh. The Khmer Rouge were 300 yards from the town market and had cut off an army training center to the southeast.

The U.S. Embassy staff was reported reduced by evacuation from 200 Americans to about 50. The Embassy said it was also evacuating many of its 290 Cambodian employees to Bangkok.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN (An AP News Analysis) It would make sense now for the North Vietnamese and their Viet Cong allies to slow down their assault on what's left of South Vietnam because they'd probably like to have the final result look like an expression of the will of "the people."

Such behavior would be in the textbook design of takeovers masterminded by Communists, and the North Vietnamese Politburo is schooled in Leninist revolutionary-military tactics.

The pattern, repeated with variations according to place and circumstances, has been the use of armed force to the extent necessary to bring an adversary regime to its knees and then apply political force to

Wounded Houston Graduate Student Remains Critical

HOUSTON (AP) — A despondent University of Houston doctoral candidate, who police say shot a teacher and another student in a classroom and then shot himself, remained in critical condition today.

Investigators said Alfred Shen, 25, a teaching fellow from Hong Kong, shot himself in the chest Monday after shooting the other two.

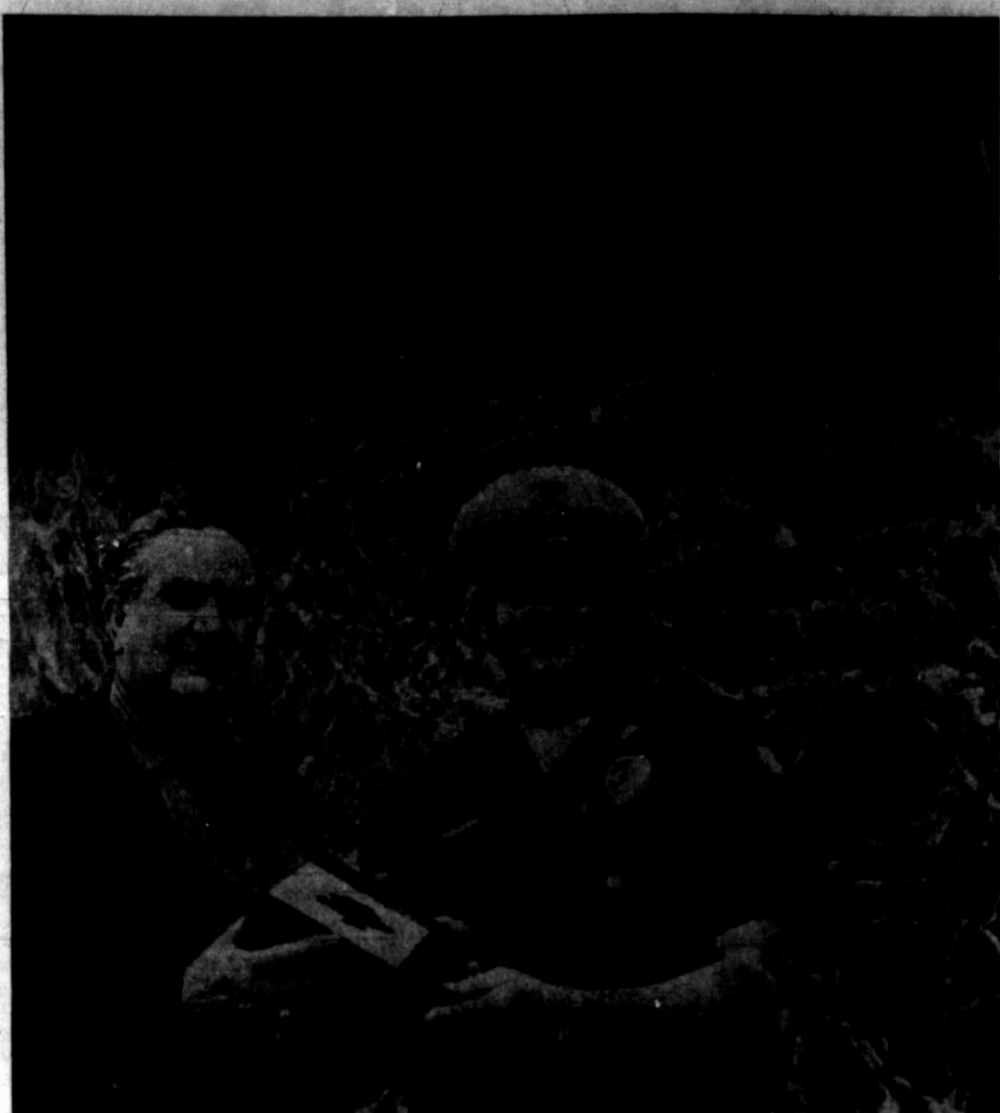

Dr. Guy Neil Cameron, 32, was shot in the leg and Bruce Herbert Johnson, 27, was shot in the shoulder. Both were listed in satisfactory condition.

University spokesmen said Shen was upset over failing a doctoral degree. They said Cameron was a member of the doctoral degree committee that flunked Shen last Thursday on an oral examination on grounds he was not sufficiently prepared.

Odessa Says Blue Law Is Mockery

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas' blue laws represent "one of the most blatant pieces of lobby legislation ever passed," Rep. John Hoestenbach said Monday.

The Odessa Democrat, who is sponsoring a bill to repeal the 1961 law that prohibits the selling of certain merchandise on both Saturday and Sunday, told the House Business and Industry Committee the blue law is "a mockery of justice."

Renewed Demands Now Heard For Continued Orphan Flights

By The Associated Press The large-scale "Operation Baby Lift" orphan flights appeared to be nearing an end today, but there were renewed calls for further massive airlifts from South Vietnam.

adopted, the way the American sentiment is now," said businessman Robert Macauley, who has been one of the major figures in the airlift.

W. Stanley Mooneyham, the agency president, said the baby-lift was a last resort because the "whole philosophy of our operation is to treat the children in their own culture ... but we had to remove our expatriate staff and food supplies were becoming uncertain."

More than 1,700 children have been flown out of the war-torn country by the $2-million airlift sponsored by the U.S. Agency for International Development and major adoption agencies.

Macaulay, a paper mill executive, previously put up $250,000 to fly 325 orphans to the United States. He is the president of the Shoeshine Boys Foundation, a New York-based rehabilitation agency with 11 orphanages in Vietnam.

In Bangkok, Thailand, the president of a California humanitarian agency known as World Vision, Inc., said the agency has flown 21 children to Thailand out of besieged Phnom Penh, Cambodia, en route to adoption in the United States and plans to return for 200 more.

On Reduced Scale The South Vietnamese government has said it will allow orphans to be sent abroad as their adoptions are arranged, but on a reduced scale.

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP) — The Long Island newspaper Newsday said in today's editions that the Ford administration has delayed a plan to evacuate as many as 150,000 South Vietnamese for fear of triggering a wave of panic in Saigon.

longer," the newspaper quoted a U.S. official as saying.

A group calling itself "Save the Vietnamese Orphans" says it hopes to fly about 277 Vietnamese children to Norfolk, Va., within a week.

They would include Saigon government officials, military commanders, educators, and soldiers who defected from North Vietnam to join the South Vietnam Army.

South Vietnamese believed by U.S. officials to be marked for reprisals by the North Vietnamese would be selected for the evacuation, Newsday said.

But the spokesman said the orphans must receive special papers from the South Vietnamese government before they can be adopted in the United States.

It would be too late, but if we move now it could kill any chance that the South Vietnamese Army could hold off the North Vietnamese for a while longer," the newspaper quoted a U.S. official as saying.

Tennessee Convicts Free All Hostages

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A convict leader says he and other inmates took four Tennessee State Prison counselors hostage so "another hot summer of killing" could be avoided.

In a list of demands, the convicts asked for improvement in inmate work opportunities, food, recreation, medical services and visiting privileges; release or review of prisoners being held under administrative segregation; lower commissary prices; a federal investigation of Tennessee prisons; an end to "harrassment of the officers to the inmates"; clothing for all inmates; and immunity from prosecution.

Walker, 29, spent more than seven hours negotiating with Corrections Commissioner Herman Yeatman and other prison officials Monday before the counselors and several inmate-hostages were freed unharmed.

Yeatman said he would head a new permanent grievance panel to listen to inmate complaints. He said none of the dozen inmates who participated in the incident would be prosecuted. He said he will handle disciplinary actions in connection with the incident.

Wichita Sinks M-Cubs, 12-9

By ED PRELL
R-T Correspondent

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz.—When the Midland Cubs scorched the Wichita Aeros with five runs in the third inning it looked like they might be on the way to another of their big score romps in a slightly damp Scottsdale Stadium Monday.

But Wichita not only came back in the last half of the

NBA Wars Open Action

By The Associated Press

The National Basketball Association playoff war began tonight with opening shots being fired on two fronts.

The New York Knicks and Houston Rockets trigger the Eastern Conference series in Houston while in Seattle, the SuperSonics host the Detroit Pistons in the West.

Winners of these first-round, three-game series will have the dubious distinction of facing the teams with the best records in each of their divisions.

By virtue of their records, the Boston Celtics of the Eastern Conference and the Golden State Warriors of the West have drawn first-round byes and will await opening-round winners in the conference semifinals.

In other playoff action, the Chicago Bulls will host the Kansas City-Omaha Kings Wednesday night in Chicago in the opening of a seven-game Western Conference semifinal series. On Thursday night, the start of an Eastern Conference semifinal series will take place in Landover, Md., where the Washington Bullets will host the Buffalo Braves.

The Knicks took their regular season series 3-1 from the Rockets, but Houston Coach John Egan still thinks he has an advantage. Two of the three games will be played at Houston, he points out.

"I think the home court is the best thing we have going for us," says an optimistic Egan. "In a short series, it could make the difference. I don't think it makes any difference in a seven-game series."

But if the Rockets have the home court edge, the Knicks have the edge in experience.

Trillo Sparkles In Practice Game

The Darold Knowles, led by second baseman Manny Trillo's smoking bat, defeated the Bob Lockers, 9-4, in a Chicago Cubs intra-squad baseball game at wind-blown Cubs Stadium Monday.

Trillo hit second and fourth inning homers, cracked out singles in the first and sixth and doubled in the seventh in going four-for-four and batting in five runs in the seven-inning game.

The infielder acquired from the Oakland A's during the off season personally proved the undoing of Burt Hooton, who pitched for the Locker team. Hooton gave up only five other hits in going the route.

Steve Stone went the route for the winners, pitching five-hit ball, with first baseman George Mitterwald collecting two of them, including a double.

Madlock also had a double and single for the home winners in addition to his fifth inning homer.

Baseball In Full Swing With Six More Openers

By The Associated Press

What can Hank Aaron do for an encore? What will Frank Robinson do for a debut?

These questions, and others, will be answered today as baseball takes a full swing after a few short strokes Monday.

Boston, Cleveland, Oakland, Texas, New York and San Diego open their 1975 seasons after sitting out Monday's official Opening Day which featured merely four games.

Along with those six openers, two other games will be played as most everyone else gets started. The only exceptions are Detroit and Chicago, where bad weather has snuffed out openers.

Aaron, the former Atlanta Braves star who broke Babe Ruth's home run record as a National Leaguer, will be making his first American League appearance with the Milwaukee Brewers. After 733 home runs, there's not much more that the slugger can prove — except that baseball life begins at 40.

Aaron actually is 41 and his presence will at least add some punch to the box office, if not on the field. He's starting out his career in an ideal location for a power-hitting right-hander — friendly Fenway Park at Boston where the short left field wall known as "The Green Monster" poses an alluring target for pull hitters.

Aaron will take his historic first American League cuts against Boston ace Luis Tiant. The Brewers will pitch Jim Slaton.

While Aaron is in the spotlight, Robinson will be on the hot seat. He will make his debut as baseball's first black manager at Cleveland, where the Indians open their year against the New York Yankees with Gaylord Perry on the mound. Doc Medich is the Yankees' opening day pitcher.

The Oakland A's, gunning for their fourth straight World Series title, are banking on Vida Blue to get them off on the right foot. The quick left-hander will face Chicago's Wilbur Wood at Oakland.

Indiana Clubs Spurs, 98-93

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Indiana's George McGinnis had a lousy first half Monday in the second game of the American Basketball Association West Division playoffs.

But he exploded for a furious 30-point effort after intermission to lead the Pacers to a 98-93 victory over the San Antonio Spurs for a 2-0 Indiana margin in the best-of-seven series.

"I felt I had embarrassed myself and my teammates," McGinnis said of the first half. "The guys look to me for leadership and I played like a high school player."

McGinnis, who finished the regular season as the league's high scorer and shared most valuable player honors with New York's Julius Erving, claimed only three points in the first half.

That set off his second half scoring spree, McGinnis said. "It was really a one-half ball game," he said. "Neither team seemed to do well in the first half, but we came back in the second."

The 6-foot-8 forward hit the first two shots of the second half and Indiana bounded into a lead it lost only briefly during the rest of the half.

Now the series moves to Indianapolis. The first two games were played in the HemisFair Arena here.

Rebs, Bulldogs Meet In First Half Climax

By BOB DILLON

Midland Lee needs a victory over Midland today to stay in first place in the District 5-4A Standings.

Lee sports a 5-1 loop mark and shares first with Odessa Permian and Abilene Cooper going into today's 4 p.m. game.

Bobby Stevens, senior righthander, will pitch for the Rebels. The 6-2 hurler has a 3-1 mound record in loop play and is the No. 1 hitter in the league with a robust .545 average in six games.

He also leads the district in runs batted in with 11. Terrill Littlejohn will throw for MHS.

Midland's attack is paced by catcher Terry Copeland and pitcher-outfielder Jackie Wells. Copeland is hitting at a .423 clip while Wells has a .400 loop average and is second behind Stevens in RBIs with 10; Wells also is the leading home runs with four.

Lee takes a 9-10 season mark into the game while MHS stands 10-12 on the year and only 1-5 in loop play, but the Pack did beat Lee in the Tourney of Champions, 2-0.

In other loop action, Odessa Permian entertains OHS, which is on a three-game winning streak while Abilene is at Cooper and San Angelo is at Big Spring.

Dave Johnson May Slug Homers For Tokyo Giants

HOUSTON (AP)—Atlanta's Dave Johnson, who set a major league baseball record for second basemen with 43 home runs in 1973, says he is a step away from doing his slugging in Japan.

Johnson, 32, said Monday he is certain he is bound for Japan and the Tokyo Giants, who have on their roster Sadaharu Oh, the Japanese home run king.

Johnson said a Tokyo representative met with Atlanta vice president Eddie Robinson prior to the Braves' opener with the Houston Astros.

"I feel the sale is imminent," said Johnson. "I hope so. I've been swept under the rug by this team. I know I'm not going to play here... I'd like to try it over there."

Robinson is reportedly asking the Giants for $150,000 to obtain the services of Johnson, who hit 261 last year with 15 home runs and 62 runs batted in. If Johnson is sold, waivers would have to be cleared by the 11 other National League clubs.

"I think I'm in the prime of my career," said Johnson, who was obtained by the Braves in a trade with the Baltimore Orioles during the winter of 1972.

"I have no lingering injuries, and I really feel I have at least three good years left," said the native Texan who makes his winter home in Orlando, Fla.

Johnson asked the Braves to trade him during the spring when the club announced he would be platooned at first base.

"I don't want to get paid just for sitting," says Johnson who earns an estimated $80,000 per season. He signed a two-year contract just prior to spring training.

"Dave Johnson has a lot of pride," said teammate Vic Correll. "He doesn't want to accept money when he doesn't earn it. Some people would, and you couldn't blame them, but Dave wants to play."

As this time, however, the Braves only want him to play on a part-time basis and haven't tried to talk Johnson out of leaving. Robinson had given Johnson permission earlier in the spring to try and make a deal for himself with another major league club.

Baseball Opens

Expos, Reds, Astros, Angels Win

By The Associated Press

Today Gary Carter is a man, Monday night he was Super-man.

The rookie catcher-outfielder of the Montreal Expos turned 21 today after throwing a party for himself at the expense of the St. Louis Cardinals. He smacked two singles and a three-run homer, driving in four runs as the Expos opened the baseball season with an 8-4 triumph over Bob Gibson and the Cards.

In other National League openers, the Cincinnati Reds edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1 in 14 innings and the Houston Astros trimmed the Atlanta Braves 6-2.

The only American League game saw Nolan Ryan fire a three-hitter, striking out 12, while the California Angels rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth to edge the Kansas City Royals 3-2.

With outfielders Bob Bailey and Rich Coggins sidelined, the Expos used rookie Tony Scott in left field and Carter, the No. 1 catcher in the minor leagues last year, in right. Scott's two-out, two-run double in the eighth inning off Bob Gibson gave the Expos a 5-4 lead and Carter, who nicked Gibson for a run-scoring single in the first, wrapped it up in the ninth with his three-run homer off a high fast ball from Elias Sosa.

"I'll tell you this was a heck of a birthday present," said Carter, who hit .407 in nine games at the end of last season, batted .321 in spring training and is hitting a cool .750 this year... albeit with 161 games left.

Reds 2, Dodgers 1

Cincinnati, which finished four games behind Los Angeles in the NL West last year, edged the Dodgers when Cesar Geronimo raced home from third base on pinch hitter George Foster's infield single off knuckleballer Charlie Hough with two out in the bottom of the 14th.

The Dodgers took a 1-0 lead in the fourth when Don Gullett issued consecutive walks to Jimmy Wynn and Ferguson and Garry singled. The Reds tied it against Don Sutton in the sixth on singles by Rose, Joe Morgan and Dave Concepcion.

Astros 6, Braves 2

Houston's Jose Cruz took advantage of an interference call against Atlanta catcher Vic Correll with a tie-breaking three-run homer, capping a five-run fifth-inning rally against Phil Niekro that erased a 2-0 deficit.

Cesar Cedeño's infield single drove in the first of five unearned runs before Milt May apparently filed out to end the inning. But plate umpire Doug Harvey ruled Correll's glove had interfered with May's bat. Cliff Johnson's double then tied the score and Cruz then clubbed his three-run shot over the right-field fence.

Angels 3, Royals 2

Rudy Meoli opened the ninth with a pinch single, California's first hit since the third inning. Steve Mingori replaced Steve Busby and the Angels loaded the bases on a walk to Morris Nettles and Mickey Rivers' bunt single. Tommy Harper drove in the tying run with a bloop single off Doug Bird and the winner came home on Bruce Bochte's sacrifice fly.

Ryan struck out more than 10 batters for the 68th time in his career. He fanned designated hitter Harmon Killebrew four times. John Mayberry's sixth-inning homer had given Kansas City a 2-1 lead.

Denver Edges Stars To Lead ABA Series

DENVER (AP)—The Denver Nuggets, overcoming a 10-point deficit in the final quarter on the play of forward Bobby Jones and guards Mack Calvin and Ralph Simpson, have moved into a commanding position in their American Basketball Association playoff series with Utah.

The Nuggets' 126-120 triumph Monday night gave them a 2-0 edge in their best-of-seven Western Division series. The third and fourth games will be played in Salt Lake City Wednesday and Friday.

In the only other ABA playoff game Monday night, the Indiana Pacers turned back the San Antonio Spurs 98-93 to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-7 first-round series.

"We're 2-0, that's a hell of an advantage," Denver Coach Larry Brown said. "But we can't take anything for granted. Utah came in here and gave us a good game tonight. And the Stars always play well at home."

The Western Division champions pulled out the triumph over the fourth-place Stars despite falling behind 101-91 early in the final period.

Utah guard John Roche paced Utah's 42-point third quarter, during which the Stars rebounded from a 56-55 half-time deficit to lead 97-89 at the end of the period. Roche scored seven straight points to put Utah on top 90-78, then followed a minute later with a three-point play for an 85-80 lead.

FBI Chief Didn't Pass Information To Saxbe

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley says he did not tell the attorney general when he learned of J. Edgar Hoover's files of derogatory information on public officials.

"These files were described as general files. There was nothing to indicate to me that it was a situation of great concern," Kelley said Monday while explaining why he did not tell the attorney general.

He said he was told of the secret files in January 1974, six months after he took office. William B. Saxbe was the attorney general then, and he said before leaving office early this year that he knew little about the files.

Kelley discussed the files in an interview on "Washington Straight Talk," a program produced by the National Public Affairs Center for Television and broadcast on public tv stations.

The files contained derogatory and unsubstantiated allegations about the personal lives of presidents, executive branch officials and 17 members of Congress, the Justice Department has said.

Department officials told a House subcommittee in February that they first learned details of the files while preparing to testify to the panel.

Kelley has told a House subcommittee he agrees with Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi that such files should not be maintained.

Levi has promised to develop guidelines regulating the type of information kept in FBI files.

"When they set the guidelines, we'll follow them to the letter," Kelley said in the interview.

Canadian Lutheran Leader Dies At 87

KITCHENER, Ont. (AP) — The Rev. John Reble, 87, first full-time president of the Canada synod of the Lutheran Church in America, died Monday. He was ordained in 1909 and served three Ontario parishes during his pastorate. He was elected synod president in 1945.

A mobile home was destroyed and a storage house slightly damaged by a fire Monday afternoon.

The mobile home, owned by Arley Ivey Owens, is located on County Road 140E about 1 1/2 miles east of FM 715.

Cause of the fire, reported about 3:30 p.m., is still undetermined.

In another fire Monday, burning grease on a stove caused heavy damage to the kitchen cabinets of the F. W. Gordon home, 1703 Harvard St. The blaze, reported at 6:05 p.m., also caused heavy smoke damage to the kitchen and light smoke damage to the rest of the house. The fire was out on arrival.

Authority On Aging Dies At St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — John Esben Kirk, an internationally known scientist in studies of the aging, died at his home in suburban Marlborough Monday at the age of 69. Kirk, a native of Denmark, was editor of the Journal of Gerontology and received many national and international awards for his research in biochemistry, nutrition and metabolism. Kirk authored eight books and co-authored 14 others.

IN MIDEAST— Extension Of U.N. Mandate Reported

By The Associated Press

Egypt, Israel and the big powers have reportedly agreed to a three-month extension of the mandate for the United Nations Emergency Force separating Egyptian and Israeli troops in the Sinai.

Diplomatic sources at U.N. headquarters in New York said Israel wanted an indefinite extension but agreed Monday to the three-month period which Egyptian President Anwar Sadat had said his country would accept.

The current mandate expires April 24. The force was established by the U.N. Security Council after the October 1973 war, and its previous mandates have run for six months.

Sadat and Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat apparently patched up their differences stemming from Sadat's cooperation with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's unsuccessful attempt to negotiate an Israeli-Egyptian agreement that made no provision for a Palestinian state.

Arafat, the chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization, and Sadat met Monday in Cairo. The Middle East News Agency said afterward Arafat reported they discussed Arab and international matters in the light of latest developments, and "understanding prevailed."

Israel commemorated the 6 million Jews killed by the Nazis with its annual observance of Holocaust Day today, the anniversary of the Warsaw ghetto revolt against the Germans in 1943. Premier Yitzhak Rabin said his people are still threatened with annihilation.

"We live in a world that is far from brotherly love," he said at a memorial meeting in Jerusalem. "The world still tends toward appeasing those forces whose characteristics are blackmail and despotism."

Texas Economy Stable Compared With Rest Of U.S.

HOUSTON (AP) — The director of the Texas Bureau of Business Research says the economy of Texas is stable compared with the national economy.

Dr. Stanley A. Arbingast forecast a turnaround nationally beginning this summer but predicted longer term problems for the Texas economy.

"The impact of massive layoffs elsewhere have not really been felt here as yet," Arbingast told the annual meeting of the Texas Automobile Dealers Association Monday.

"On the other hand, when the nation's economy begins to strengthen, recovery in Texas will lag behind two or three months."

William Hancock, president of the National Automobile Dealers Association, said more government control and declining prices is the long term outlook for the automobile industry.

"Before this is over, the government will dictate to a great extent what kind of cars will go on the market," said Hancock of Columbia, S.C.

Colby: 'Covert Action' Controlled Better Now

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Director William E. Colby says much-criticized covert action by the Central Intelligence Agency is less common now than under tighter control.

Covert action is the agency term for secret projects undertaken in an effort to shape another country's political course — ranging up to paramilitary operations by CIA-financed forces.

Critics such as former agent Victor Marchetti contend the CIA operates with little control — and that a strong tendency toward covert action is to deal with complex situations frequently posed serious political problems for U.S. officials.

In response to a question from one of the editors and publishers attending Monday's annual meeting of The Associated Press, Colby said things have changed.

"During the Cold War in the 1950s and 1960s we were heavily engaged in this kind of action," he said. "Today we do very little of this. We also have considerably greater controls on it than perhaps we did once."

"The Congress in December passed a law that says if we are to do any of this the President must find it important to the national security and I must go brief six committees of the Congress."

He said such requirements are "certainly going to reduce any very foolish use of this."

Colby's talk before the question and answer session centered on a plea that the press help keep the CIA's "good secrets" because disclosing them in news stories jeopardizes CIA operations overseas.

He defined "good secrets" as including the names of foreign residents who have helped the CIA in the past, and the identity of American businesses with foreign branches that allowed the CIA to use them as "covers" for an agent or two.

Briscoe Gives Conditional Okay To Changes In School Finance Plan

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he does not object to the House sponsor's changes in his school finance bill, as long as they would not require new state taxes. Rep. Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, laid out the revisions Monday at a meeting of the House subcommittee on public school finance. Briscoe later told an informal news conference he does not oppose Massey's effort. Both Massey and subcommittee chairman Herman Adams, D-Silsbee, indicated they're chafing under the restriction of Briscoe's "no new taxes" policy. Massey's changes would make $725.5 million in additional state money available to local school districts over the next two years, instead of the $500 million to $620 million originally provided. He was uncertain, however, where the extra money could come from without a tax bill. Massey is a member of the subcommittee and chairman of the parent House Public Education Committee. Massey's revised bill would preserve Briscoe's weighted pupil approach but in a way that would increase state aid and provide higher teacher salaries than Briscoe recommended. It also would reduce the number of districts that would have to raise taxes if they chose to meet their total local fund assignment. Minimum teacher salaries would increase from $7,340 next year under Briscoe's bill to $8,015 under Massey's revision. The present minimum is $6,600. A major change raises from $635 to $685 the base weight for a full-time student equivalent in the first year of the program. The base weight for the second year would increase from $670 to $715 in Massey's revision. Massey said the money could come from not following Briscoe's recommendation to repeal the sales tax on utilities. Adams, subcommittee chairman, said the panel would consider two basic approaches, Briscoe's weighted pupil system and a continuation of the present method that provides state aid according to a formula based on the classroom unit. He indicated there would be little action until a computer printout has been received comparing the impact of the two funding methods on local districts. The subcommittee's deadline to write its bill was extended from Monday to April 17, and Adams said he thought the panel could meet it.
