Chiang Kai-Shek, Remarkable Man

The death recently of President Chiang Kai-shek of the Republic of China brought back interesting recollections of this illustrious leader. The Generalissimo and Madame Chiang, old friends of mine, taught me much about the skill of living effectively. Chiang was a man of great spiritual insight. Indeed I was so impressed by his depth, having been with him on many occasions, that I asked how he had developed that inner peace and the calm control which he demonstrated.

His reply humbly expressed was: "I was not always this way. I did not always have inner peace—I was a tense man. But I knew I had to conquer this to be a true leader and with God's help I learned how to do so. That was one of the supreme experiences of all my life."

"How did you do it," I wanted to know. "I decided upon the practice of spending 30 minutes every morning in meditation and prayer. But that did not prove to be enough, so I added 30 minutes at noontime. Even that did not seem to be sufficient to give me the spiritual values I desired, so I added 30 minutes more in the evening."

He told me that he spent this hour and a half in meditation and prayer each day without fail or interruption. He gave strict orders that regardless how great a crisis might develop, he was not to be disturbed when at his devotions. The amount of time given to prayer and meditation as well as the top priority assigned to it is quite remarkable and perhaps unique.

As a guest in the Presidential summer residence high among the mountains of Taiwan I had the unusual privilege of watching this famous member of the Big Four at those prayers he had told me about at dinner. Early the next morning about 5 o'clock I awakened and was watching sunrise over the mountains. Just opposite my room was a balcony circling this classical Chinese style building. Suddenly along the balcony came the Generalissimo clad in a long black cape and wearing a sort of slouch hat. He was walking slowly followed by an enormous dog. His hands were raised, fingers touching in an attitude of prayer and his lips were moving.

Fascinated I watched as man and dog disappeared around the corner only to reappear again in the same intense prayerful attitude. This went on for more than the thirty minutes the president had mentioned which indicated that he had no time clock on his prayers.

Saudi Arabia-Israel Coexistence Hinted

By JIM HOAGLAND
 The Washington Post
 RIYADH — King Khaled of Saudi Arabia said Saturday that his nation would concede Israel's right to exist in its pre-1967 borders in return for total Israeli withdrawal from Arab lands occupied in 1967 and the establishment of a Palestinian state between Israel and Jordan.

Khaled became the first Saudi ruler to declare explicitly that his deeply conservative nation would accept Israel's existence.

His remarks came in the first formal, extended interview he has granted since coming to the throne following the March 23 assassination of his brother, King Faisal.

The 61-year-old monarch also resolved the ambiguity that Faisal deliberately had left concerning the long-term viability of a Palestinian state based on the former West Bank territory of Jordan, by declaring that Saudi Arabia would extend financial help to a Palestinian state on a scale similar to its support of Syria, Egypt and Jordan.

"We are doing our duties vis-a-vis Arab brothers and will also fulfill our obligations towards the Palestinian state once it is established. At such time when these things have been accomplished and Israel has withdrawn from all the occupied territories including Jerusalem, she can live within her 1967 borders," the King said in response to a question.

Khaled's remark fell far short of offering the diplomatic recognition and normal relationships that Israel has demanded from the Arab states as part of a final peace settlement. Senior Saudi officials have said Saudi Arabia will not agree to formal recognition of Israel.

But this answer and Khaled's other responses to a series of questions, submitted in writing in advance here in the Saudi capital, provided a sharp contrast to the studied official ambiguity that Faisal spread over the question of Arab coexistence with Israel and many other matters. Khaled's answers frequently were direct and copise.

The King's remarks carry enormous weight. Saudi Arabia is the world's largest petroleum exporter, the second wealthiest country in the world in foreign (See SAUDIS, Page 4A)

Sergeant Went To Viet Armed With Diapers And Baby Bottles

By JAN WILLIAMS
 Air Force Sgt. Joseph Galloway went to Vietnam armed with diapers and baby bottles instead of rifles and hand grenades. But that didn't make his job any easier.

As a member of the 10th Aeromedical Evacuation Squadron (AES) at Travis Air Force Base in California, Galloway participated in the airlift of Vietnamese refugees last month and flew a total of six missions for that purpose.

Most of the refugees Galloway was involved with were infants. The native Midlander wound up changing diapers, burping babies and even helped deliver one while flying over Guam.

Galloway was among the crew on the first airlift mission to Vietnam following the crash of the C-5 plane near Saigon carrying Vietnamese refugees.

"We (the 10th AES) left for Vietnam six hours after the C-5 crashed," Galloway said last week while home on leave. "We had no preparation. It was just dropped in our laps, but everyone volunteered to go. It was something you didn't question, you just did it."

"It wasn't for publicity or anything," Galloway continued.

Students Still Hold Compound

VIENTIANE — Laos (AP) — More than 170 Americans were evacuated from Vientiane on Saturday as U.S. embassy employes burned documents and angry Laotian employes demonstrated outside the embassy gate demanding payment of back wages.

About 350 Americans have been flown from Laos to Bangkok in the past two days while students, influenced by growing anti-Americanism apparently fueled by the Communist-led Pathet Lao, called for the ouster of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

The students held the AID compound for the fourth day to back their demands that the Americans leave, while Laotian AID employes demanded payment of their wages. The embassy declined to pay until the students leave the compound.

Most of the Americans flown out of the country were women and children. While U.S. Charge d'Affaires Christian A. Chapman said some non-essential documents were being "trimmed" and Marines could be seen burning papers, a spokesman said there were no plans to evacuate the embassy. About 650 Americans remain in the country.

In other Indochina developments: —In Saigon youth parades are condemning the "decadent culture" left behind by the Americans as a new society is shaped by Communist leaders, AP Correspondent George Esper reported from the South Vietnamese capital. Regimentation and austerity are being introduced, he said, and the enemy are no longer the Americans. (See LAOS, Page 4A)

Truck-Train Crash Kills 2

By BUDDY BAKER
 Two Odessa men were killed and another Odessa man was seriously injured Saturday morning when the truck-trailer in which they were riding was hit by a freight train 12 miles west of Midland just off U.S. 80.

Killed were Elias Natividad, 30, and Roderick Hollis May, 21. They were pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace John Biggs.

The driver of the truck, James William Gilliam, 35, was in guarded condition late Saturday in Medical Center Hospital at Odessa.

The three men were hauling a seven-ton pump jack concrete foundation to a lease near Foran for Ruthco, Inc., James Whitley of Midland, manager of the concern's Midland-Odessa branch, said.

The truck was owned by Ruthco and the men worked for the concern, Whitley said. Near Overpass

The accident occurred only a few hundred yards from an overpass-underpass complex at the Midland Regional Air Terminal entrance that has just been completed. Dedication for the complex which was built to assure more safety for U.S. 80 traffic near the terminal entrance will be June 4.

The truck was using the F.M. 1280 to cross over the railroad and had just moved onto the track east bound when the train hit the cab of the truck.

A Department of Public Safety investigating officer said Gilliam, the driver of the truck, probably was heading south to get on Interstate 20.

The investigator said May was thrown from the cab which was dragged about 175 feet and separated from the trailer. The truck's engine, wheels and other parts were scattered along the right-of-way.

Moving At 25 MPH

William Thomas Bradberry, 61, of Big Spring, the train's engineer, said the train was moving about 35 miles an hour at the time of the accident.

"I saw the truck ahead of the train going east on eighty and it had its turn indicator on and it turned just in time to hit the track when the train got there," Bradberry said.

No one on the train was hurt. Department of Public Safety officer Glen Redmon of Odessa said the "engineer blew the train's whistle to get the truck driver's attention, but he apparently didn't hear it."

Department of Public Safety Officers Assisted

Officers also were assisted by officers from the Midland Police. Maj. E. K. Browning, regional commander of the DPS, said "This is a heck of a way to start our Memorial Day weekend." He speculated the angle of the truck's turn prevented Gilliam from seeing the approaching train.

The train was en route from El Paso to Fort Worth. Whitley said the three men (See CRASH, Page 4A)

Phil Adams Named Fasken Foundation's Executive Director

Phil M. Adams, longtime officer and director of The Midland National Bank, has been named executive director of the Fasken Foundation effective June 1.

The announcement was made by Murray Fasken, chairman of the bank and the foundation's board of trustees.

The Fasken Foundation is a non-profit corporation chartered to provide financial support to benevolent, educational and charitable activities. Its main thrust has been in higher education in Texas, and it has made substantial gifts to Midland College for its building program.

It also provides a large number of college scholarships to local applicants, including more than 80 last year alone.

Scholarship applicants are screened by a committee of school officials, who recommend recipients to the trustees.

Adams holds a law degree from the Kansas City School of Law and attended the Rutgers School of Banking. He served in the U.S. Army Air Corps.

He joined Midland National in 1955 as vice president in the commercial loan department after almost 30 years with Interstate National Bank of Kansas City, Mo. He organized Midland National's trust department that year. The department has grown from a one-man department to a major organization with 19 officers and employes managing sizeable trust assets.

In 1960 Adams was elected senior vice president and trust officer and was named to the bank's board of directors. In 1961 he was named executive vice president and trust officer. (See ADAMS, Page 4A)

Baccalaureates Set Today

Baccalaureates for seniors at both Midland high schools this evening will initiate formal graduation activities for some 1,500 of the city's students.

Programs for both Midland and Lee high schools will be at 6 p.m. in the respective schools' auditoriums.

Addressing the Midland seniors will be the Rev. Elbert L. Smith of Bellview Baptist Church. Prospective graduates at Lee will hear Bert Mercer, minister of the Golf Course Road Church of Christ.

Following the traditional services, seniors from each school will be honored at the receptions for the school Youth Centers for both students and parents.

Available at the reception will be tickets for the all-night party to follow Thursday's commencement exercises. The party, dubbed "Circus '75," is a joint effort of the parents from both schools and will be held in the Midland County Exhibit Building.

Although the after-graduation party will combine graduates from both schools, the handing out of diplomas will be executed in separate ceremonies. Lee graduates will begin their service at 6 p.m. in Midland Memorial Stadium, with Midland seniors scheduled for 9 p.m. commencement exercises at the same site.

Rain, Light Hail Hit City

A dryline front carrying warm air hovered over the Permian Basin early Saturday and when cool, moist air from the Gulf collided with it rain and light hail abounded in Midland and surrounding communities.

An average of 7 inch of rain was recorded on rain gauges throughout the city and across the county.

During the 24-hour period beginning at midnight Friday measurements near the Greenwood Community, 13 miles east of here, indicated good rain falls between 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. Saturday. Measurements of 7 inch with some marble size hail were recorded.

At the Gulf pumping station on the city's eastern edge, rain measurements totaled 34 inch during the early morning Saturday with very light hail.

In South Midland County, light hail and rain measurements of 7 inch were recorded during the morning Saturday while gauges inside the city recorded half inch to one inch measurements.

No damage was reported by area police and fire departments as a result of the early morning storm activity.

Department of Public Safety officials said all area highways remained clear during the storm and no accidents were caused by the activity.

Near the Municipal Airport at Odessa, some golf ball size hail was reported, but no damages were said to have been suffered. Odessa weather stations were reporting rain measurements up to an inch from the Saturday morning rain.

In Andrews, gauges measured .07 with strong thunderstorm activity including lightning and some light hail.

At Big Spring there was thunderstorm activity with .25 inch of rain measured at approximately 4:30 a.m. Saturday. No hail was reported at the Big Spring stations.

Crane stations reported heavy lightning and thunder activity with no precipitation recorded.

Lamesa gauges recorded half inch downpours within the city and nearby farming areas.

At Rankin, no rain was recorded, but light mist shrouded the city late Saturday morning.

Sterling City had showers amounting to one inch measurements early Saturday with light showers at 1 p.m.

Most areas were reporting sunny skies by 2 p.m. Saturday.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal recorded a high temperature of 84 in the Tall City Saturday and an overnight low of 57.

Forecast today calls for clear to partly cloudy conditions with a slight chance of late afternoon and night thunderstorms.

High today should peak in the upper 80s with tonight's low forecast in the upper 60s.

Armed Gangs Subdivide Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Armed gangs subdivided this Arab capital with roadblocks Saturday but Lebanon's new military government still hoped to end street fighting without imposing martial law.

Asked if army troops would intervene in the conflict between Palestinian guerrillas and right-wing Phalangists, a government spokesman replied: "Not yet... It is only a dispute between brethren and we will try to restore order with dialogue."

Previous attempts to negotiate a cease-fire have failed. The military government faces mounting opposition from the Moslem half of the population and armed militiamen of other political factions have added to the chaos.

Beirut residents encountered roadblocks manned by Nasserites, Baathists, Socialists, National Liberals and several other private armies in addition to the 12,000 Palestinian guerrillas and 8,000 Phalangists who have turned this city into a battlefield.

Sporadic shooting continued in Beirut suburbs despite a cease-fire order from Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat. He sent a message to senior aides in the Palestine Liberation Organization, saying: "The PLO Command considers the formation of the new government an internal affair. It concerns the Lebanese only and we have nothing to do with it. We will deal with the new reality according to the policies and attitudes toward us."

No damage was reported by area police and fire departments as a result of the early morning storm activity.

The first miniwar between the guerrillas and the Phalangists last month left 700 casualties and led to the resignation of Premier Rashid Solh's civilian government. A resumption of the fighting five days ago killed more than 50 and wounded 200 before President Suleiman Franjeh appointed a military government Friday night.

The new premier, retired Brig. Gen. Nureddin Rifai, heads a cabinet of six other active army generals and only one civilian. But his deputy premier told newsmen: "We come in civilian clothes with civilian minds."

Brig. Gen. Moussa Kanan, who is also minister of information and education, appeared out of uniform at a press conference, saying: "It is not a military government but a government of military men appointed by civilians... to restore law and order."

He stressed that the government would abide by all constitutional procedures and honor all previous agreements with the Palestinian guerrillas, including the 1969 Cairo pact that gave them control of Lebanon's 14 refugee camps and allowed them to operate in southern border areas adjoining Israel.

House Democrats Defend Failure On Energy

By EDMOND LeBRETON
WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, back home for 10 days, expect to hear that they've frittered away their majority power by failing to agree on a substitute for President Ford's energy program.

The reply they hope will mollify critical constituents is: Look at the whole record, not just the special, tough case of energy.

Most of a cross-section of Democrats spoke along these lines in interviews as Congress left last week on its third recess of the 1975 session.

Looking back over the 1974 election, that gave two-thirds of the nation are going to fall on the House to Democrats, and to the subsequent divisions among the majority, Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., said it is possible that "we're turning a great victory into a total final disaster."

But Bolling said perceiving the danger might avert it. Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., shrugged off the anticipated bias from Ford and suggested the tables may soon be turned, after Ford avows his candidacy.

"Beginning about next September, we'll take off on him," he said. "The economic woes of the nation are going to fall on Jerry's shoulders."

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., head of a party task force that produced a blueprint for an economic and energy program, acknowledged he was disappointed that the energy portion hadn't won support. But Wright argued that congressional Democrats recognized all along that the economic problems, notably unemployment, were the more pressing ones and "on the economic front we have been the energetic Congress. . . I have to admit we haven't looked to good on the energy front."

Rep. Michael T. Blain, D-Iowa, who started his elders by comparing the House to a lion, said he and other freshmen found little to admire in either executive or congressional energy proposals.

He said he doesn't expect a roasting from his constituents. "I don't think people want this bill passed. There is an overwhelming consensus they don't want us relying on a tax."

Congressional Democrats previously rejected Ford's energy program, especially a 50 per cent barrel tax on imported oil and deregulation of domestic oil prices. They promised to develop a strategy of their own, and Ford delayed part of his program, giving Congress 90 days to work out a compromise.

Safer Hunting
Fewer persons were killed in Texas hunting accidents in 1974 than in any other year since the hunter safety training program began 21 years ago. There were nine fatalities in '74.

Trautghber was presented the Representative DeMolay Award, the highest self-achievement distinction a DeMolay can earn.

Awards and merit bars were presented to members of the chapter. A reception was held in the Banquet Room of the Temple following the installation.

Commissioners Okay Contract For Plaza

By ED TODD
Voting 3-2 twice on a double-decked proposal, the Midland County Commissioners' Court Friday awarded a two-pronged contract to Pace Construction Co. of Midland to build the county's 1976 Bicentennial project: a memorial plaza and clock tower on the courthouse square.

Floyd Pace, who under bid two other building contractors, said he would construct the Frank Welch-designed plaza for $16,400 and the clock tower for $11,300 to yield a $27,700 total bid. He offered an Aug. 30 completion deadline and a work starting date of June 10.

Last month, the commissioners unanimously accepted Midland architect Frank Welch's sketched concept of the plaza-tower project.

But the actual letting of the contract did not come so easily or with the enthusiasm the concept brought the county's governing body.

Here's how the commissioners got around to signaling the project's go-ahead.

GRS Construction Co. of Odessa offered a $15,641 base bid, $1,026 on the all-brick addition, and $12,300 on the 40-foot tall triangular tower. JK&G Inc., Building Contractors, of Midland, offered, in line, $19,760, $3,900, and $12,180. Pace's three-fold bid read $16,400, $3,900, and $11,300.

But before any motions and discussion got under way, Judge Culver made what she called "a public declaration":

"This whole thing (Bicentennial project) is built around the oath that we will not damage the pecan tree." Later Commissioner Charlie Welch explained that "many people called us worrying about the welfare of this pecan tree," which is planted on site of the proposed plaza. The plaza will encompass the state tree.

The save-the-tree question set-

TA Courses Slated Here

The first of two courses on transactional analysis and marriage to be offered this summer by Midland's Pastoral Counseling Center will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights at the center, 4301 Andrews Highway.

A second course is being planned for July 22-24, said Dr. Ray Bristol, executive director of the center.

Dr. Bristol, a member of the International Transactional Analysis Association, said that the objective of the Pastoral Counseling Center in offering the two sessions is the introduction of transactional analysis, commonly referred to as "T.A.," as a means of achieving personal growth as well as improvement of the marriage contract.

Persons interested in signing up for either of the two courses may contact the Pastoral Counseling Center, 697-2261, for full information.

ted, Judge Culver asked the four commissioners if they had any comments on the plaza-tower bid proposals.

"I have some feelings," said Commissioner John Thomas. "I'd like to go ahead. . . My preference is for the plaza, and I have no preference whether the plaza is brick or concrete."

So he seconded Commissioner Duward Wright's motion that the court accept Pace's No. 1 bid for the brick-garnished plaza.

Charlie Welch proposed an amendment to Wright's motion: that the clock tower be added on. Commissioner Win Brown seconded the clock-tower amendment.

Wright and Thomas voted against the amendment. "The court votes 'aye,'" said Judge Culver to break the 2-2 deadlock.

Again, the vote was deadlocked 2-2 when Wright and Thomas joined to vote against plaza-tower combination. And, again, Judge Culver repeated her 'aye' vote.

Kneeland Trial Moved From Kermit

KERMIT—The murder trial of Tommy Ray Kneeland, charged with the suffocation death in 1970 of a 27-year-old Kermit woman, is to be held in Judge Charles Sherrill's 12th District Court in Fort Stockton.

The transferring of the case from Kermit to the Pecos County seat came Friday in a change-of-venue defense motion granted by District Judge Ken Spencer.

Defense attorney James Clack of Andrews held that Kneeland could not get a fair trial here because of excessive publicity about the murder of Nancy Siler Mitchell. Skeletal remains of the woman were found on an oil lease near here nine days after she disappeared from her Kermit home Sept. 15, 1970.

Kneeland, a former Kermit Sunday school teacher, was living across the street from Mrs. Mitchell at time of her disappearance.

Winkler County Dist. Atty. Calvin Wesch will prosecute Kneeland, who is expected to go to trial June 18.

Kneeland is under two life sentences for a double-murder conviction last year in Fort Worth. He was convicted of slaying Mary Jane Handy, 17, and Robert Taylor Gholson, 15, both of Oklahoma, July 1, 1972. He was charged with those murders two years later at his home in Eales, a Fort Worth suburb.

Work Halted On Section Of Alaska Oil Pipeline

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Work was ordered halted along a four-mile section of the $6-billion trans-Alaska oil pipeline for fear that further construction could cause permanent environmental damage.

C. A. "Chuck" Champion, Alaska state pipeline coordinator, issued the stop order Friday for an area involving Minton Creek, 60 miles south of Fairbanks between Rosa Pass and the Salacha River.

The halt involved construction of a work pad and did not affect any actual installation of pipe.

"Wonderful West Texas": With some notable exceptions, the black population of a great number of the West Texas communities and small towns is growing smaller each year. Many of the black communities that once had a thriving populace, most of whom worked in the cotton fields, gins, compresses and in some areas worked for the "oil kings" now are gone and in their places are deserted wooden shacks and the "old frame school" that stand as a memory of the good "ole days" that marked the community "in the flats." And like so many other farm and small town communities of most ethnic groups, the reason has been the constant search for greater economic opportunity or plainly put — jobs.

In the meantime, West Texas cities like Lubbock, Midland, Odessa, Amarillo and Wichita Falls and a few others manage to hold on to their black citizenry and in a number of cases, have reported general increases in population and job opportunity, especially in the oil industry, which gradually is opening its doors to larger numbers of minority groups.

And what is true of West Texas is markedly related to the black population in Southeastern New Mexico, which has been labeled in the past as "Little Dixie" by the upstate citizenry of Albuquerque, Santa Fe and their environs. Even so, the largest black population in New Mexico is located in such Southeastern towns and cities as Roswell, Carlsbad, Artesia, Clovis and Hobbs.

Most of these towns manage to hold on to its six to 15 per cent population and in several of the towns, there has been a slight increase — Clovis and Hobbs. This too, is attributed to increased job opportunity for blacks (browns too) in the oil industry.

In many of the smaller communities and towns of the rolling West Texas Plains there are no black doctors, lawyers, undertakers and, with a few notable exceptions, no outstanding business people in a great majority of these West Texas-S.E. New Mexico communities.

A great number of the present generation of male high school-agers excel in athletics and institutions of higher learning bid heavily for their enrollment. With integration, hundreds of black teachers who used to "teach" in Jim Crow schools are no more in many of these communities and "the old black schoolhouse" is boarded up or has been turned into a "community center." There are a number of West Texas communities that have no black teachers and in some cases hold on to one or two for "decorative purposes" as one bellringer told me in a West Texas community recently. Is there hope for black youth in West Texas? What towns and cities in S.E. New Mexico-West Texas hold the most hope? We shall deal with this phase in a coming column. We hope you are here.

Until later, Peace and remember neighbors come in all colors. Be a good one.

DECORATIVE BRILLIANCE
INSPIRED BY THE VENICE OF A GOLDEN AGE

Famous Heritage created Venetian with an eye to the ultimate in bedroom luxury and by all standards, they've succeeded. Rarely has a grouping come along that boasts such outstanding features. The most important? The magnificent custom hand decorating that the cabinetmakers of long ago Venice would be proud to call their own. And what hometaker wouldn't thrill to its exquisite luxury and totally feminine look. But the surprise is the relatively modest cost. Nowhere to be duplicated except in bedrooms costing twice as much. If ever there was a grouping that had to be seen to be appreciated, this is it! Instead of in black and white newspaper, why not come in and see it in glorious color. Moderately shaded, striped and decorated to offer a profusion of pastels on a brushed white field.

Rain, Light Hail Abound In City

YMCA Schedules Pre-School Class In Gymnastics

Meanwhile thunderstorms continued to roam over the state Saturday, but this time they finally hit the right spot — South Texas.

Shifting from soggy Central and North Central Texas, heavy thunderstorms cascaded over South Texas and the Rio Grande Valley.

The thunderstorms, although accompanied by a few tornadoes, were a welcome change in the Valley.

"It's the first rain we had in more than two months," a McAllen Police Department spokesman said.

He said funnel clouds were sighted early in the afternoon near McAllen and Mission, but there were no reports of twisters touching the ground.

The thunderstorms were moving to the southeast into the Gulf area.

Funnel clouds also were reported over the coastal area near Corpus Christi.

Some of the rains persisted in portions of Central and East Texas. Center in East Texas reported four inches of rain in about two hours.

At least three deaths were attributed to the bad weather. Lightning killed one person and injured two others in Valley Mills in Central Texas. The dead man was identified as Angel Balderas, 16, of Mexico.

In Cameron two persons drowned when they were washed away by flood waters while attempting to get cattle out of a creek. The victims were not identified at once.

Rivers and streams across central and eastern sections, swollen by the heavy rains of the past week, bolted out of their banks and threatened motorists and homeowners.

All of the eastern half of the state was under a flash flood watch, The Associated Press reported.

Low-lying areas, unable to absorb any more of the week-long thunderstorms, shook off the deluges of Friday night and Saturday and sent the brackish, debris-laden floodwaters surging into already stuffed streams. They in turn churned out of their banks on low-lying roads, pastures and into some homes, mostly in South and Central Texas.

A tornado watch was posted in the Houston area while a more threatening tornado warning was issued in the Austin area following sighting of a Capistrano.

The Midland YMCA has scheduled a special gymnastics instruction class for pre-school youngsters to begin June 10 at the Central Y facility.

The course, called "Tiny Tumblers," is for ages four, five and six years and will meet each Tuesday and Thursday from 4:15 p.m. to 5 p.m. through July 3.

Miss Kerry Reynolds, a member of The University of Texas Gymnastics Team will instruct the classes, which are designed to develop locomotor skills, agility, balance, and coordination.

The Tiny Tumblers class is scheduled to coordinate with pre-school swimming instruction, which meets from 5:15 p.m. to 5:45 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Registration for all Central Y summer programs will be June 2 to June 9. More information may be obtained at 682-2551.

As the protector of the holy Moslem shrines at Mecca and Medina, the King also is a major figure in both Arab and Islamic affairs. And Saudi Arabia has been a close ally of the United States in regional and global politics.

Khaleid called directly on the United States "to arm Egypt and Syria" and end their dependence on the Soviet Union. This would stop the flow of billions of dollars of Arab money to the Russians for arms, he said.

Other points made by the King include:

—American efforts to secure peace in the region will determine whether the Arabs go to war against Israel again and impose another oil embargo. "The Arabs dream of peace and they will not fight unless they are convinced that the United States has abandoned its assurances to exert its efforts to restore peace."

—Saudi Arabian troops would take part in a renewed Arab-Israeli war. But the King ducked the question of whether Saudi Arabia would ignore American restrictions on transferring American-supplied arms to other Arab armies if asked to do so.

—Khaleid implicitly sanctioned the Arabs' agreement to a return to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's "step-by-step" diplomacy as an alternative to the Geneva peace conference, which he sees as "not an end as such but a means to a goal."

—The monarch strongly indicated that Saudi Arabia is not in agreement with efforts by Iraq and Iran to arrange a security pact for the Persian Gulf, which Khaleid and all other Arab leaders call the Arab Gulf.

The Permian Basin Graduate Center will accept registration through Friday for several graduate-level courses for residence credit through Sul Ross State University this summer.

The courses can be used on a master of education degree, for certification in counseling, administration, educational diagnostician and kindergarten endorsements.

The courses will be held in Midland, Odessa and Seminole. Courses scheduled in Midland are: Ed. 5301-School Finance (Dr. Glen Neswick); Ed. 5304-05-Public School Supervision (Gilbert Denny); Ed. 5316-Educational Sociology (Dr. Gerry King).

And, Ed. 5318-Personnel Problems (Dr. Neswick); Ed. 5319-Public School Law (Dr. Douglas Brown); Ed. 5322-Behavior Management, individual learner program. (Joyce Kipken).

And, Ed. 5312-Advanced Studies in Early Childhood Education (Beverly Ininger); Ed. 7307-Theories in Administration (Bryant Saxton); and Soc. 5301-Socio Cultural Systems (Dr. King).

Odessa courses are: Ed. 5314-Personality Theories (Mike Carter); Ed. 5317-History and Philosophy of Education (Jay Davis); Ed. 6308-Advanced Studies in Child Growth and Development (Freddie Buchanan); Ed. 7305-Techniques of Counseling (Mike Carter); and Ed. 7306-Workshop in Education, Transactional Analysis for Administrators (Dr. Jim Lewis).

Scheduled for Seminole: Ed. 5306-Advanced Tests and Measurements for Counselors (Bill Morgan); Ed. 5310-Educational Statistics (Marvin Lewis); Ed. 5308-Advanced Studies in Child Growth and Development (Morgan); and Ed. 7302-Administration of the Guidance and Counseling Program (Bill Curry).

Head-On Collision Takes Three Lives

STOCKDALE, Tex. (AP) — Three members of a Fort Worth family were killed and three other persons were injured early Saturday in a two-car head-on collision near this South Texas town.

State police identified the dead as Luis L. Flores, 22; his wife, Janie, 19; and their son, Luis Jr., 11 months old.

Authorities said the Flores car collided with a car occupied by a McAllen family around 12:15 a.m. near here, some 40 miles southeast of San Antonio.

The injured were treated and released from a nearby Floresville hospital.

had left minutes before from the Ruthco yard three miles west of the mishap.

"We hit that guy just exactly like we hit everybody else," said H. D. Carroll, head brakeman. "He came up real slow and didn't stop."

Carroll, who said he was a veteran of "several" other train-vehicle crashes, said, "This is basically how people get hit on a railroad track. They don't stop, look and listen."

"The general public don't know how dangerous a train is. They just don't respect it enough," he said.

Midland County deputy sheriff Joe Payne said he heard the injured Gilliam say, "I didn't see the train."

Services for May and Nativity were pending late Saturday at the Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home at Odessa.

Russians Orbit Two Cosmonauts

MOSCOW (AP) — A manned Soviet space ship was put into orbit Saturday, Tass said.

The official Soviet news agency said the spaceship, Soyuz 16, is piloted by Piotr Klimuk and Vitali Sevastyanov, who have taken part in previous flights.

Tass said their mission is to conduct further experiments with the orbital research station Salyut 4.

On April 6, a two-man Soviet space shot, also called Soyuz 18, was aborted when the third stage rocket went off course.

Tass said then that the craft made a soft landing in Siberia and the two cosmonauts were safe.

The aborted mission came two months after two Soviet cosmonauts set a Soviet record of 30 days in orbit after linking up with the Salyut 4. The U.S. record is 84 days.

managing the commercial loan division. He retired as a bank officer in May 1972 but remains active in the daily affairs of the bank as a consultant.

Tony A. Martin, Midland National president and vice chairman, said Adams will continue to be active in day-to-day operations of the bank and will remain on the bank's board of directors.

Adams is past president of the Midland YMCA, the Midland Optimist Club and the Midland Cubs Boosters. He has served as president of the Petroleum Club, director of the United Way and of the Easter Seals organization. He organized the Midland Chapter of the American Institute of Banking as a study group in 1956. He is an elder at First Presbyterian Church.

Adams began his banking career in Kansas City as a runner for Inter-State National. When he resigned to move to Midland, he was the bank's cashier. He is a past president of the 1,500-member A.I.B. chapter in Kansas City.

New Teachers' Group Planned

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A Houston teacher said Saturday some Texas educators are organizing a teachers' organization that will be an "alternative" to the Texas State Teachers' Association.

William Crockett of Katy, a suburb of Houston, said the new organization, which will be known as Texas Professional Educators, is a reaction to the recent unification between TSTA and the National Education Agency.

Airlift Mission Crew Armed With Diapers, Bottles

"We landed about four hours after the bombing of President Thieu's palace. The Vietnamese started shooting at us when we got off the plane so we got back on and left — in a hurry."

Galloway's sixth and last trip to Saigon was to pick up 102 refugees including two premature babies, four infants and two expectant mothers, one of whom didn't make it to the hospital. The baby was delivered in the plane with the help of Galloway.

"It was a natural birth. We had no anesthetic and no medication, but we delivered a nine-pound baby boy. Both mother and baby came through it fine."

Following that trip, Galloway finally got to use his three-month-old airline ticket to Midland for leave that was well-earned.

"It was an experience I'll never forget," Galloway said of the evacuation mission. "It was like a three-ring circus, but under the circumstances it was handled very well."

Galloway said the mission received the cooperation of all the services, including Canadian and Australian troops who protected the American crew from Vietnamese gunfire during the evacuation process.

He said the success of the operation was the result of one total effort.

"We had the cooperation of all the military services and everyone helped especially the Red Cross."

Galloway received his basic training at Lackland Air Force base in San Antonio, in the Medical Fundamentals School. Following that, he worked for two years at David Grant U.S.A. Medical Center at Travis Air Force Base in California and last May attended the School of Aerospace Medicine at Brooks Air Force Base in San Antonio.

So far he has earned the Presidential Unit Citation, the Air Force Outstanding Unit Citation with three bronze clusters, the National Defense Service Ribbon, a marksmanship medal and wings.

When his four-year enlistment is up next year, he plans to continue his studies at The University of Texas in Austin. He previously attended the University of California.

Galloway is a graduate of Midland High School and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Athan Galloway. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Snodgrass, also of Midland.

In commenting on the influx of Vietnamese refugees into the U.S., Galloway said he was strongly in favor of it.

"They (the Vietnamese) should be able to stay here if they want to. After all, I helped to get them out of Vietnam and they have to go somewhere."

Galloway said there was never any question in his mind about getting the infants out of Vietnam. He wanted to do it. But the feeding and burping and changing diapers has changed his way of thinking.

"After this," he said, "I think I'd like to remain a bachelor for a little longer."

This included delegations from Iran, Indonesia, Poland and Hungary. The seven regions of Vietnam involved were the far north, DaNang, Pleiku, Phan Thiet, Ben Hoa, My Tho, and Can Tho.

After spending six and a half years in Vietnam, Bulta was evacuated in April. But he was among the last Americans to go.

"I was planning to make Vietnam my home," Bulta said. "I had contracts to provide meat to off-shore drilling companies, and government agencies, as well as an export license. I also had a home and a car and I had to leave it all behind."

Bulta, his wife, two children and one adopted Vietnamese orphan, left Saigon April 23. They don't expect to ever return.

"Many Americans there were in business and they were investing money in South Vietnam because of the commitments made by the U.S.," Bulta said. "If the U.S. had met those commitments there's no way the north could have taken over the south."

Bulta said most of the Americans in Vietnam felt the U.S. had reneged on their commitment.

"The Vietnamese did everything they could do," Bulta said. "It's not that they didn't want to fight the North Vietnamese, but when you see a tank coming at you and all you've got is an M-16 you're not going to stand there and fight it."

Bulta said there were no problems as far as the evacuation was concerned.

Everything Suddenly Was Gone For Businessman In Vietnam

By WILLIAMS

Warren Bulta had planned to make his home in Midland. He had a nice little business set up there, a house, a wife and a family and then suddenly it was all gone.

Within a matter of days, Bulta was no longer a resident of Vietnam, but a resident of Texas. Although he did bring his wife and family with him, he left behind a meat packing business, a house, a car and most of his belongings, all of which added up to about $40,000.

Following the evacuation of Americans from Vietnam last month, Bulta and his family have been staying with his brother in Midland. He plans to make his home here.

Bulta, a retired chief master sergeant with the Air Force, had served in Vietnam in 1966 before retiring from the military in 1967. Following that, he worked in Vietnam as a civilian for International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS), an engineering firm providing engineering support for the seven regions investigating breaches of the Paris Peace Treaty.

Bulta said there were no problems as far as the evacuation was concerned.

"The Air Force did everything possible and I think 100 percent of the Vietnamese appreciated what was being done for them."

As far as reports that some Vietnamese were shooting at the American soldiers trying to evacuate the Vietnamese, Bulta said some Vietnamese may have felt bitter about being left behind.

"It just wasn't possible to evacuate all of them and some of them just didn't understand that."

Bulta's wife's family is still in Vietnam, by choice. She has two brothers in the South Vietnamese army and has heard from none of them since she left the country.

Bulta said it was his wife's first trip outside Vietnam and she was very impressed with the United States, but very homesick.

Bulta said he thinks the Vietnamese refugees in this country will get along fine.

"Many Americans who have never been to Vietnam underestimate the intelligence of the Vietnamese. Many of them are very skilled and they deserve a chance to make it here."

Substitute School Financing Plans Pushed

By PATRICK CONWAY
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Sen. A. M. Aikin Jr. of Paris, one of the fathers of modern public school financing in Texas, has a substitute pending for the $779 million program passed by the House.

Aikin's proposal, which would cost an estimated $633 million during the next two years, is being introduced as a substitute for the House bill. It is sponsored by Sen. Oscar Matzky of Dallas, which is Gov. Dolph Briscoe's weighted-pupil concept of school finance and would cost an estimated $556 million during the same period.

Both bills provide a base salary minimum of $8,000 a year, but differ in their approaches to other programs and to equalization grants for poorer districts.

Both bills would not provide any new minimum foundation money for districts that are considered to be prosperous.

Aikin, who with former Rep. Claude Gilmer of Rocksprings, passed the original foundation program in 1949, is supported by the Texas State Teachers Association. Matzky is backed not only by the governor, but by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

The accompanying chart shows what districts in the Midland area would receive or not receive in additional money over the current foundation program. The totals are in the thousands.

The first three columns of figures represent what the district is currently receiving in foundation aid and the increased foundation program for the next two years. The next three columns reflect how much the local districts currently contribute to the foundation program and how much more they will contribute from local tax funds in the next two years.

The next three columns reflect current state aid and how much more or less it will be in the next two years. The final two columns are for equalization grants from the state in an attempt to insure a more equitable educational program statewide.

District figures for the Aikin plan are listed first, followed by the Briscoe program.

Martin County Sheriff Named To State Panel

STANTON — Dan Saunders, sheriff of Martin County, is one of six persons appointed Friday by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to the newly-created Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council.

Sheriff of Martin County for the past 23 years, Saunders said, "It is a distinct honor for a sheriff from a small county of West Texas to be named to the council created to fight encroachment of organized crime in Texas."

The council was created, Saunders said, to suppress organized crime present in Texas and to prevent encroachment into the state of any organized crime.

Gov. Briscoe created the agency April 28 by executive order.

Before being elected sheriff, Saunders had been employed with the Department of Public Safety for three years.

Midland Man Knocked Out By Four Nighttime Burglars

Domingo Guzman, of 1812 E. Oak St., was struck over the head and knocked unconscious by burglars whom he surprised as they entered his home about 11:15 p.m. Friday.

Guzman told police he was in his bedroom when he heard voices outside at the rear of the house. He went to the kitchen he said, to call the police and as he picked up the telephone, he said, four men forced open the back door to the kitchen and entered.

One of the burglars grabbed Dog of God, the telephone cord from the wall, he said, and Guzman was knocked unconscious. Police said he was discovered lying on the kitchen floor by his sister and her husband, Ben Garcia, as they returned home about 11:30 p.m. Nothing was reported missing from the house.

"EVALUATE YOUR COMMUNITY"

The wise home buyer of today will realize that he is the home seller of tomorrow.

As he does he will want to consider all elements that will lend to the future value of the home he is about to buy.

One of the often-overlooked contributions (or subtractions) to home value is the general reputation and stature of the community in which it is located.

Like people, individual communities have distinct personalities. Some are progressive; others, stable. Some are youthful; others, mellowed with age. Many are growing but still others are stable.

All of these factors — and many others — lend to the general reputation of a community — and the value of the homes in it.

Knowledgeable Gallery of Homes Realtors maintain detailed data about every community in their marketing area.

Ex-Convict Kills Two, Wounds Eight Others, Shoots Self

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A 28-year-old ex-convict shot and killed two women and wounded at least eight other persons early Saturday before killing himself, police said.

Authorities identified the slayer as Russell Lee Smith, who had served time for first-degree manslaughter. The dead women were identified as Joni Gatewood, 16, of Dayton, and Paulette Couch, 25, of Miamisburg.

Police, who could offer no motive for the city-wide shootings, gave this account of the incident:

Miss Gatewood apparently was the first person shot. Her body was then dumped on the emergency ramp at St. Elizabeth's Medical Center. Police said as Smith took her to the hospital he forced another car off the road and shot the driver, who was not identified immediately. The driver's condition was not immediately known.

Smith shot himself in the head as police approached. He was accompanied by two unidentified women, who may have been hostages but were not injured. Police said they found stolen merchandise in his car.

300 Million Hindus
In India alone there are more than 300 million adherents to Hinduism. In contrast to other religions, it has no founder. Considered the oldest religion in the world, it dates back perhaps to prehistoric times.

Miss Couch's body was found in the middle of a Dayton street and police said they were unsure where she had been killed.

The wounded included four members of the Charles Baltzer family of suburban Trotwood who were shot as they sat in their car in a movie theater parking lot. A six-year-old girl was listed in serious condition. The other three family members were in fair condition.

Smith shot himself in the head as police approached. He was accompanied by two unidentified women, who may have been hostages but were not injured. Police said they found stolen merchandise in his car.

Jobs Object Of Program

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Creation of 4,000 new jobs that will help Texas through the current recession — and that will remain once the recession is past — is the goal of a new program announced by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

"Texas First" is being undertaken by the Texas Industrial Commission (TIC) and Texas Department of Community Affairs (TDCA), along with help from the Education Agency and Employment Commission.

The program hopes to create 4,000 new jobs with the expansion of 160 industries for a total economic impact of $277,000,000 annually.

Gov. Briscoe is urging employers to pledge to hire as many new workers as they can — pointing out that hiring even one new employee by many companies would have "a tremendous impact on the economy."

Primary responsibility for the program falls on the TIC, which is to provide assistance to businesses and industries in determining "labor surplus areas" and "resource and site availability."

The TDCA's Division of County and Rural Services is to provide "technical assistance" to local lending institutions, and to work with local governments, chambers of commerce and other interested parties in planning facilities and related matters.

The TEC will help by locating the people to be hired and/or trained — with training available through the Texas Start-Up Training program, a joint TIC-TEA venture which uses local training institutions.

Chambers of commerce have been asked to coordinate efforts at their levels by Gov. Briscoe.

As workers are hired, companies will be "formally recognized for their contributions to Texas industrial and economic growth," the announcement of the program says.

Questionnaires were sent to 1,000 industries, and in less than one week, 113 had indicated that they will be participating in the program.

Of those responding, 41 indicated they have the potential to increase employment, 33 are considering physical expansion of present facilities, and 13 are considering an additional branch plant location in Texas. Twenty would like assistance in industrial expansion training.

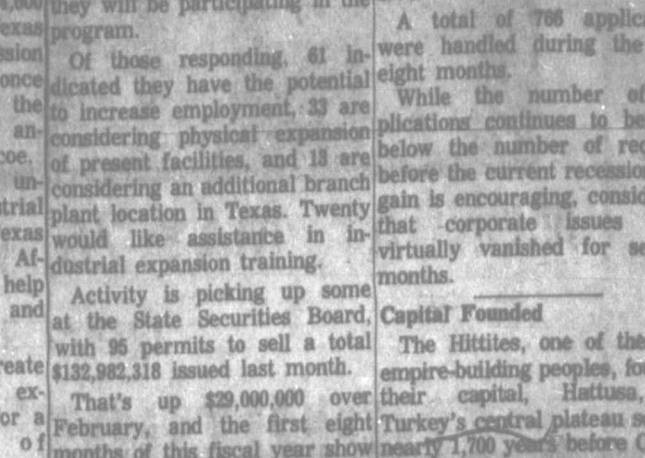

Activity is picking up some at the State Securities Board, with 56 permits to sell a total of $132,982,318 issued last month.

That's up $29,000,000 over February, and the first eight months of this fiscal year show a gain of $98,000,000 over the same eight months of fiscal 1974.

A total of 788 applications were handled during the first eight months.

While the number of applications continues to be well below the number of requests before the current recession, the gain is encouraging, considering that corporate issues had virtually vanished for several months.

Viet Girls Ply Trade In Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Vietnamese prostitutes recruited by a former Saigon brothel operator are working military bases here, the San Antonio News says.

The madam, described only as an attractive, 30-year-old Vietnamese who fled when Saigon fell to the Communists, was brought to San Antonio by a "high ranking U.S. Army officer," the newspaper said Friday.

San Antonio is the site of four Air Force bases and Fort Sam Houston, headquarters of the 5th Army. The Defense Language Institute which trains many foreign students also is located here.

Near Kelly Base
Most customers of the brothel in a residence near Kelly Air Force Base have been foreign military personnel and U.S. soldiers who served in Vietnam, the newspaper said.

The News said it learned of the brothel from a military officer of a Middle East nation who is undergoing training here.

He said his men were "going wild" over several Vietnamese girls working the military bases.

San Antonio's military officials apparently cannot place the brothel off-limits until a complaint is filed.

"Nobody has complained yet about this reported Vietnamese brothel," one military spokesman said.

Subject To Deportation
Immigration and Naturalization Service regional director Joe Staley said Vietnamese prostitutes caught plying their trade would either be deported or put in custody.

"We give the refugees a lot of privileges, but one thing we have not waived: those who practice prostitution are not eligible for the program," he said.

The newspaper quoted also a 20-year-old Vietnamese girl who said she had refused an offer to work for the madam.

"I never want to wear my Vietnamese clothes again," she said. "One day I was dressed in my native clothes and I was downed and all those soldiers followed me. I hate it. I just hate it."

Free Competition Creating Turmoil In Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — Free competition is beginning to sweep Wall Street three weeks after the Securities and Exchange Commission ended fixed commissions by brokerage houses on stock transactions.

Traders report discounts running as high as 50 per cent on some trades.

The industry is in a turmoil, brokers are unwilling to talk for the record, and trade publications are calling the events an "all-out war."

"We didn't make any forecasts of what would happen after May 1, but the breadth and depth of the discounting is more than I expected," SEC chairman Ray Garrett Jr. said recently.

Many of the institutions have been somewhat stunned by it, as have the brokers," he added. "We want to see where it settles down and whether it's contrary to the public interest."

For almost 200 years, much of the industry was protected from competition by exchange regulations, sanctioned by the government, which permitted the fixing of rates. The Securities and Exchange Commission ended the fixed commission rates on stock transactions, effective May 1.

Institutional traders are now obtaining the greatest discounts. Commission charges for individuals have remained nearly the same, or in some cases gone up.

Odessan Sentenced To Jail For Holdup

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — An Odessa, Tex., man has been sentenced to one year in jail for the Feb. 3 holdup of a convenience market here.

Fresno County Superior Court Judge Denver Peckinpaugh Thursday ordered the jail term and five years probation for Burns E. Thacker, 34. Thacker was captured near the store shortly after the holdup with $80 taken in the robbery, police said.

Kleasen Says CIA After Him

By ROBERT HEARD
 AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The state has called only six of its 48 witnesses in Robert Kleasen's Mormon missionary murder trial, and testimony resumes Tuesday with the expectation that the trial will last at least another week.

Among the prosecution's witnesses Friday was Dale Littleton, special agent for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in the Treasury Department.

Guns, Knives Found
 Littleton said when he arrested Kleasen half a mile from a church in Burnet on Nov. 5, Kleasen had a hunting knife on the front seat of his car, covered by a newspaper containing a story about the missing missionaries.

Under the seat on the right was a .357 magnum pistol, Littleton said, and in an unopened case in the back seat, within Kleasen's reach was a .22-caliber rifle.

Earlier that day, Littleton said, he and other officers searched Kleasen's trailer and nearby outbuildings and found two shotguns, "six or seven" rifles, smokeless powder, casings and other equipment for making ammunition.

Watches Found Later
 But they apparently didn't find two bloody wrist watches in a leather case in a trailer drawer. The owner of a taxidermy shop in front of the trailer, L. M. Rathbone, testified he found the leather case "several days" after the search by federal officers.

Kleasen contends any incriminating evidence found at or near his trailer was planted there. The CIA is out to get him, he says, because he quit the CIA to join the peace movement several years ago. CIA officials deny Kleasen ever worked for them.

Kleasen, 42, is accused of killing and then butchering on a taxidermy band saw Gary Darley, 20, of Sini Valley, Calif., and Mark Fischer, 19, of Milwaukee, Wis., on Oct. 28. He is being tried only in the Fischer slaying at this time.

Commissioners Get 'Thank You'

A "thank you" accented with echoing gusto came down on the Midland County commissioners Friday afternoon. The appreciation was in a framed resolution handed the Commissioners' Court by Martin Alday, president of the Industrial Foundation of Midland, Inc., an arm of the Midland Chamber of Commerce. "The county and the city both have been most helpful in our efforts to encourage business and industry of all sorts to Midland," Alday told the commissioners.

Schools To Participate In Flag Ceremonies

Public schools across the city will participate Monday morning in special flag ceremonies in observance of Memorial Day. Although one central program has been planned to take place at the school district's administrative offices, each school will stage a program on its own campus between 8:30 and 9:30 a.m.

Residents in the schools' neighborhoods are encouraged to attend the presentation, calling the school for the exact time of its flag ceremony.

The program at the administration building, 702 N. N St., is scheduled to begin at 9:15 a.m. An honor guard of Girl Scouts from Sam Houston Elementary School will participate in the flag raising with their leader, Mrs. Laura Scott, posting the flag.

Following the flag raising, the Pledge of Allegiance will be led by Artie Butler, the school district's supervisor of accounting, assisted by two Sam Houston sixth grade students.

The Austin Freshman School band then will play the National Anthem, with the school's choir and the public singing the tribute.

Before the band and choir presentation continues, Joe Dominey, chairman of Midland's Bicentennial Commission, will address the crowd briefly.

Musical presentations will include "O! What a Beautiful county employes "for their public-spirit activities and cooperation for the betterment of the community."

Alday said a similar resolution would be presented to the Midland City Council.

"We have enjoyed working with the chamber and the foundation," County Judge Barbara Calver told Alday.

Airline Arguments Scheduled Aug. 11

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge William M. Taylor says he will hear arguments Aug. 11 from airlines that want to challenge Southwest Airlines' use of Love Field in an Austin state court.

The judge set the trial date Friday and announced he has affirmed an earlier temporary restraining order into a temporary injunction. The new order prohibits the airlines from pursuing the controversy in the Austin court until the trial is completed in federal court.

The resolution "heartily commended" the commissioners and

Dr. L. L. Morris will speak here

Dr. L. L. Morris, longtime pastor of Midland's First Baptist Church before becoming director of evangelism for the Baptist General Convention of Texas last Feb. 1, will fill the pulpit at morning and evening services of the local church today. The services will begin at 10:55 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

A highlight of the morning service will be the recognition of 75 young people of the congregation who are graduating seniors in the city's two high schools.

Records will be available for transfer to physician of choice and will be maintained at the new address.

HIGH SCHOOL'S END — Friends and relatives of students in Greenwood School's second graduating class gathered Friday night in the gymnasium to see 10-graduates.

Greenwood Holds Second Commencement Exercise

Greenwood School superintendent Mel Williams and trustee president James Brooks Friday evening handed out 10 diplomas in the school's second commencement exercises held in the Greenwood gymnasium.

Dr. Robert A. Hawkins, Midland College instructor and counselor, was the commencement speaker, whose topic was "Forward in Faith." Giving the valedictory and salutatory addresses were Rebecca Ann Cranford and Terresa Maudine Smith, respectively.

Miss Cranford, who plans to attend Western Texas College on a basketball scholarship, was senior class president and editor of Treasures, the yearbook.

Midlander Slightly Injured In Accident

Alfonso Galindo, 38, of 1102 S. Baird St., was treated at Midland Memorial Hospital and released early Saturday after being injured in a two-car collision about 1:25 a.m.

Galindo was a passenger in a car driven by Felipe C. Leon, 21, of 304 E. New York St. He was injured when the car driven by Leon and a car driven by Jesse Mantel Leon, 27, of 601 N. Weatherford St., were in collision in the 1500 block of East Front Street.

Action Line-Fish Luncheon Held To Honor Volunteers

The board of directors of Action Line-Fish held a noon luncheon Thursday at the Midland Country Club to honor the volunteers who donate time to the organization.

Jim Allison Jr., publisher of The Midland-Reporter Telegram was guest speaker.

Twenty-eight persons, including many of the 40 volunteers plus representatives from various agencies Action Line works with were on hand.

Action Line is 100 per cent volunteer with no salaries. It is sponsored by the Association of Churches and has offices in the First Presbyterian Church.

It is basically information and referral service for persons with problems ranging from welfare cases, legal aid and medical aid inquiries to new residents inquiring about various subjects. Allison in his remarks praised workers were churches, patient care at hospitals, the two-party political system, United Fund and others.

Allison pointed out that Action Line had handled 2,183 incoming calls the past 12 months by volunteers.

"I commend Action Line on its leadership in volunteerism and beg each of you to continue your great work," Allison concluded.

Mrs. Vincent Scurry is chairman of Action Line. She is assisted by Mrs. George Dye. Board included Mrs. Harry Hinkle, Mrs. Jack Jordan, Mrs. Jack Jordan and Mrs. Margaret Purvis.

persons on hand for their willingness to volunteer their time for such services. "Sometimes I get concerned that, with the intrusion into our daily lives of government agencies, citizens will quit volunteering their services to community projects," Allison said. "And this cannot happen. Many governmental services are needed by the poor and afflicted but these services must not compete with the efforts of private agencies nor can they replace entities who provide volunteer services." Among the agencies and organizations he listed as being largely dependent on volunteer

Red-Cross, City To Sponsor Free Swimming Classes

Free introduction to swimming and stroke improvement classes will be held for youngsters between 4 and 12 years of age by the City of Midland Parks and Recreation Department in cooperation with the American Red Cross.

Classes are scheduled Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the Midland High School Pool.

Mrs. Glen Carnett, Red Cross water safety instructor trainer, will instruct the classes. Classes will be limited to 40 students and will be divided in the following age groups: 4-5 years old, 6-8 years old, 9-10 years old, 11-12 years old, 13-15 years old.

Two classes will be held each night — one from 7 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. and the second from 7:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

"This is an excellent opportunity for children to start swimming lessons early with a chance to have individual attention and help since there will be an instructor for every one or two participants," Mrs. Carnett said.

"Also, this class will be especially helpful for those who will be taking regular lessons this summer as it will give them additional time to adjust to the water."

Interested persons may register their children for the classes by calling the Red Cross at 684-6161 indicating the age group and class period they wish to attend. "The only requirement is that the child attend all three classes," Mrs. Carnett explained.

Federal Judge To Decide On New Beef Grading Rules

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A cattle-raising federal judge has the job of deciding for the rest of the country on the tenderness and juiciness of the beef that goes on America's dinner tables.

At issue are new beef grading guidelines proposed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

Most of the distaste for the proposed revisions centers on the lowering of the "fat marbling" required for cattle to be graded "choice" or "prime."

Experts say the tiny flecks of fat in red meat are the best indicator of how juicy, tender and tasty a piece of meat will be.

Many consumer groups claim the revisions will result in higher prices for lower quality meat by allowing some cattle now grading "good" to move up to the "choice" grade, and cattle now grading "choice" to move up into the "prime" category.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert V. Denny of Omaha, who has raised some cattle of his own, issued a preliminary injunction early last month halting the scheduled April 14 implementation of the revisions.

He was upheld by the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals, but the appellate court set a 45-day limit on the injunction and the USDA from implementing the new standards. Testimony in the hearings was completed Friday.

The suit was filed by the Independent Meat Packers Association of Omaha, which claims the new standards will raise grading, transportation and production costs. Ten other groups, six of them consumer-oriented, have joined with the association in opposing the revisions.

The government, joined by the American National Cattlemen's Association, claims studies show the lower marbling requirements will not result in a significant loss of taste or quality at the retail level, and could lead to lower beef prices because cattle will need less time and feed to reach the "choice" grade.

Through 10 days of hearings and a one-day preliminary hearing, expert witnesses in nearly every field related to the production and consumption of beef have paraded before Denny.

Denny's ruling will be filed late next week, and it is already scheduled for appeal to the 8th Circuit Court.

Snelson Says Domestic Relations Elevation Out

By GEORGE WATNEY

State Sen. W. E. "Pat" Snelson revealed Friday that the elevation of domestic relations courts to district status is not for this session of the Legislature.

The Midland Democrat said none of the 31 Domestic Relations Courts across the state would be elevated by the Legislature.

Snelson said the Midland Municipal Court has been made a court of records by enactment of the Legislature, but noted that elevation of the domestic relations court would have to meet the test of the voters.

Elevation of all 31 courts to district status will be included in the Judicial Article of the coming November election in which eight constitutional amendments come before the public.

Snelson said the court was established here after he introduced the bill in 1965. Since then, 31 of the county supported courts have been established across the state, Snelson said. He said that to elevate one of the courts to district status would be "unfair" to the other

Snelson said all of the courts are county supported, and let one or several of the courts go to state support would result in a "pork barreling" type of situation.

Concerning much local interest in a proposed Utilities Regulation Commission the Senator said, "There will be a utilities commission come out of this session."

He said just how strong a commission it will be is "questionable" at this time. The bill has been through the Senate in what was termed a "weak" form and then back through the House in what was termed a "strong" form, Snelson said.

Presently the bill is being considered by the Conference Committee which includes five members of both houses, Snelson said, in an effort to settle differences between the two proposals.

Snelson said the reason he supports the utilities commission is because it will give many citizens, other than those such as Midland which has good representation now, a chance to have someone to voice their complaints to concerning rates.

Snelson said, "I cannot promise that a utilities commission will guarantee lower utility rates."

Snelson was in Midland to address the Tri-County Pharmaceutical Association during a banquet at Midland Country Club.

He spoke to the local pharmacists from Midland, Ector, Andrews and surrounding counties on the status of medical legislation affecting pharmacy and small business.

Snelson said one of the major medical bills is H.B. 2164 to require a certificate of need and health planning activities in various areas of the state. Snelson said any proposed new medical facility would have to obtain a certificate of need before building in the designated areas. He said the Permian Basin 17 county area has been designated as one of the areas, but said he did not know the exact status of the bill.

Snelson said medical legislation being considered included malpractice insurance problems and proposals for health maintenance organizations.

Trinity Towers Celebrating Fifth Anniversary

Trinity Towers, a non-denominational retirement facility, is celebrating its fifth anniversary today. An open house is scheduled from 2 to 5 p.m. and the public is invited.

The program will feature Dr. Matthew Lynn, former minister of the First Presbyterian Church here, who was instrumental in getting Trinity Towers started.

The program will also honor employees who have been at Trinity Towers for the past five years including Clyde Haden, executive director; Mrs. Haden, A. J. Hayes, Mrs. Margie Coleman and Mrs. Sammie Thompson.

Following the program, a tour of the facility will be conducted and refreshments will be served.

According to Haden, the facility has operated with 100 per cent occupancy for the past four years.

"When we first opened there were only 35 to 40 units occupied," Haden said. "It went slowly at first because people were waiting to see what kind of operation it was going to be."

The facility has 94 units, with 100 residents and a long waiting list. Haden said it usually takes nine to 12 months for a resident to get in from the time he makes the application.

Operating strictly on a monthly fee basis, there is no contract, lease or obligation for the residents. Fees for the apartments are $215 per month for a one bedroom and $245 per month for a two bedroom. This includes once a week maid service, 24-hour attendant on duty and free washer and dryer facilities.

A private room and bath is available for $313.50 and includes three meals a day, utilities, once a week maid service, 24-hour attendant on duty, all linens and free washer and dryer.

A private room and bath in the health care unit is available for $434.50. This includes three meals a day, utilities, maid service, 24-hour attendant on duty, all linens and free washer and dryer. Some facilities are available for those requiring daily assistance.

Admission requirements are that the resident be at least 65 years old, ambulatory (able to take care of personal needs without any outside assistance). Those needing some assistance may be eligible for admission in the Health Care Unit, must not have any contagious disease and must have a physical examination.

The average age of residents is 81 and 75 to 80 per cent are female. The oldest resident, Mrs. Jessie Wiseman, will be 94 this year. She came to Trinity Towers in 1970 and is also one of the first occupants. The first resident was Mrs. Mabel Whiting who is still living at Trinity Towers.

The facility also offers a wide variety of activities for its residents including an auxiliary which has approximately 80 members, a daily refreshment cart to the health care units, bridge, dominoes, birthday parties, bible classes, movies and musical programs.

Haden said the facility is a non-profit community sponsored project chartered by the State of Texas. No one owns Trinity Towers and the board of directors doesn't get paid for its services.

"If for any reason the facility should cease to exist," Haden said, "the property would go to a non-profit or charitable organization. No one can gain or profit from this operation."

The facility is privately funded and does not accept any state or federal funds. It operates on an annual budget of $350,000 to $400,000.

Haden said he has never understood the image Trinity Towers got as being a place for only the rich.

"I am acquainted with many other facilities throughout the state and this is one of the lowest priced as well as one of the finest," Haden said.

He also said Trinity Towers will accept and assist people who are unable to pay. This includes of this type that did not require eight to 10 per cent of the entrance fee which in some current residents who are helped places ranges from $2,000 to through private contributions.

Trick-Or-Treat Poison Trial Defendant Claims He Received Vision From God

By PAUL REGER
 HOUSTON (AP) — Ronald C. O'Bryan, on trial for his role in the poison-trick-or-treat candy death of his son, claimed he received a vision from God that described the man who gave out cyanide-laced Halloween sweets. O'Bryan's brother-in-law testified Friday.

John E. Tucker, Jr., a Fort Worth theology student, said the defendant claims the heavenly vision came to him while he slept the night of last Nov. 1.

Tucker said O'Bryan talked about the vision while the family was riding to the cemetery after O'Bryan's son, Timothy, 8, had been buried.

"On the way, Ron said he had had a vision from God," said Tucker. "In the vision, he said he saw a man's hand—a rough hand—a working man's hand—and he handed out the Pixy Stix."

Timothy O'Bryan died Halloween night after eating part of a poisoned Pixy Stix, a powdered confection packaged in a plastic tube.

O'Bryan first told police he got the candy during a trick-or-treat outing but could not remember from which house it came. On Nov. 2, O'Bryan gave police a detailed description of the man and the house where he claimed the candy was distributed. It developed, however, that the man he described had been away from the house on Halloween night and could not possibly have distributed the candy.

Tucker also testified that O'Bryan talked of how he would spend the money from insurance policies he had on Timothy.

The day after Timothy's funeral, said Tucker, O'Bryan was quoted as saying: "John, you know I'll be getting some insurance money from Tim's death. Do you think I should pay off the bills or make a down payment on a house?"

Tucker's wife, Dorleen, also testified, telling of O'Bryan discussing his plans for the money.

She said her husband was planning to start study at a Fort Worth seminary and O'Bryan "said he wanted to give us some of the insurance money to help us go through school. I thought he needed it worse than we did."

Both Tucker and his wife told how O'Bryan expressed great interest in the news coverage being given the death of Timothy.

Mrs. Tucker said he insisted that the family watch the local television news after the funeral and then O'Bryan stayed up alone to watch the midnight national news.

"He seemed quite excited that Tim's name was mentioned second," Tucker said.

The next day, he said O'Bryan bought four or five newspapers which carried stories about the tragedy.

Both Tucker and his wife were openly hostile toward lawyers defending O'Bryan. At one point, an evasion by Tucker elicited an angry, shouting question from Marvin Teague, one of O'Bryan's lawyers.

Earlier, an insurance agent, Robert D. Ballew, testified that O'Bryan took out a $30,000 life insurance policy on each of his children on Oct. 3. On Nov. 1, shortly after 9 a.m., less than 12 hours after Timothy's death, Ballew said O'Bryan called to start the processing of a claim on the policy for his son.

Ballew said the policy was so recently taken out that he had not even yet received a copy from the insurance underwriter. The claim has not been paid, said Ballew.

Ballew said O'Bryan paid for the policy with $108 in cash and was careful to not have Ballew contact his wife (Mrs. O'Bryan) about the insurance policy.

O'Bryan is charged with capital murder in the death of Timothy under a Texas statute permitting death sentences in the case of a murder for profit. The state contends he killed the boy to collect the insurance.

He is also charged with four counts of attempted murder in the distribution of poisoned candy to four other children.

Testimony in the trial began Monday before a jury of 10 men and two women.

District court judge Frank Price recessed the trial Friday. O'Bryan took out a $30,000 life insurance policy on each of his

300,000 Veterans To Receive June GI Benefits Late

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least 300,000 veterans due to receive GI Bill benefit checks early next month, probably will receive them late because Congress went on recess without appropriating the money, officials say.

The $425 million needed to cover the June checks for educational and training benefits is contained in a $15-billion supplemental appropriations that is stalled because of House and Senate disagreement over a proposed $700-million program to upgrade railroad tracks and facilities.

Congress left on its Memorial Day recess Thursday and will not reconvene until June 2, the day that Veterans Administration officials had planned to send the first vouchers for June benefits to the Treasury, which sends out the checks.

About $200 million remains in the GI Bill account, enough to last until the end of May.

Texas Road Deaths Up 25 Per Cent

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas traffic fatalities are running 25 per cent ahead of last year, according to statistics released Saturday by the Department of Public Safety.

The department said 1,138 persons had died this year in traffic accidents, an increase of 225 over the same period in 1974.

City Offers Varied Summer Recreation Programs

SUPERVISED PLAYGROUNDS — The City of Midland Parks and Recreation Department offers various community recreational programs for women and children. Among these are supervised playground activities for the 6-12-year-old child. There will be sports, group games, drama story telling, exercises, Hula Hoop and Frisbee contests, a Hoppy Taw contest and a daily arts and crafts class, using many different materials. These programs will be conducted from 8:30-11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday at the following school playgrounds and parks from June 2-July 24: Burnet, Rusk, Fannin, Crockett, Emerson, Bunche and Pease Elementary Schools; Alamo Junior High School; and Wadley Barron Park and Haley Park. Also, from June 30-July 24 at Park Center YMCA. Davil Stall, left, is an assistant playground leader and Ann Reiter, right, is a playground leader. Participants in the program are Roger Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Lee and LaDonna Callahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donnie Callahan.

LADIES SWIM CLASS — A Ladies Swim and Stay Slim Club will be held from June 2-Aug. 15 from 12 noon-1 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Alamo Pool, Midland Drive and Cuthbert St. This hour of instruction includes toning exercises, stroke improvement, endurance and sun bathing. Mrs. Glenn Carnett, right, recreation supervisor for the Parks and Recreation Department the past 12 years, will be the instructor, and Mrs. Elbert Smithen, left, and Mrs. A. W. Handley are enrolled in the class. Mrs. Carnett also is a Water Safety Instructor Trainer (WSIT) for the Midland area. Another program offered by the department is baton lessons. These classes will meet at the Parks and Recreation Department Building, 300 Baldwin St., in the morning hours only. Minimum age is 6 years, except for a beginner class for 5-year-olds in the first session. All instructional programs are conducted in sessions of ten lessons, Monday through Friday for two weeks. Registration is conducted at the Baldwin St. address from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

TENNIS — The Parks and Recreation Department also offers beginning, intermediate and advanced tennis lessons to both children (minimum age 9 years) and adults. Beginning instruction will be offered at the following courts: Lee High School, San Jacinto Junior High School and Goddard Junior High School. Advanced instruction is offered at Midland High School. Ron Houdek, left, MHS tennis coach, will be the supervisor of the summer tennis program. Susan Nance, second from right, a University of Texas student, will be an instructor. Twyla Trim will be an intermediate student and Mrs. Jerry Pickering, right, is enrolled in the beginner's class.

SUPERVISED PARK — Dennis the Menace Park is a unique park and play area for young children containing various types of play equipment, sand pits and a wading pool, which will open June 2 under supervision of an adult, who is on duty from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. during June, July and August. Ronda Patterson, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Patterson, and Allison Kirkpatrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Kirkpatrick, are taking advantage of the many opportunities for fun at the park. Also, the city's Cole Park Zoo is a great attraction to children as well as adults. The Zoo contains some 90 animals and birds. There is no admission charge.

Betty Ann Monroe, Watkins Married

The garden at the home of the parents of the bride, Betty Ann Monroe, was the setting for the marriage at 7:30 p.m. Friday of Miss Monroe and David Loyd Watkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Watkins, 3115 W. Michigan St.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Zack Monroe, 3216 Camarie St. The bride is a graduate of Lee High School and was employed by Union Oil of California. The bridegroom has a degree in mechanical engineering from Texas Tech University and is a production engineer for Union Oil of California. The couple will reside at 1814 21st St. in Woodward, Okla., after a trip to Oklahoma City, Okla.

Mr. Monroe presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a floor-length gown of candlelight satin and re-embroidered Alencon lace. The lace fashioned the scalloped neckline and cuffed the trumpet sleeves. The gown had a high neckline and a wide border of satin and pearl Camelot headpiece held her three-tiered fingertip-length veil edged with lace. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, white Pixie carnations and baby's breath centered with Burgundy roses.

The matron of honor wore a gown of hot pink solid and print polyester sheer in floor length. She had a wide brimmed hat in pink with Burgundy streamers. She carried pink roses, white Pixie carnations and baby's breath with light pink streamers.

The reception was in the Patio Room of the Holiday Inn.

The Rev. Leonard Lee of McCamey, uncle of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Sherry Wells. Mark Griffin was the best man. Rice bags were distributed by Cindy Woodside and Shannon West. The photographer was Terry Monroe of Austin, brother of the bride.

Decorating the garden were candelabra with greenery, pink and white roses and carnations and hurricane lanterns.

Mrs. Monroe was hostess to the bridesmaids' luncheon at LaBodega Restaurant.

Mrs. David Loyd Watkins

Carrie Ayune Pyle, Bradford Wheeler Wed In Lubbock Methodist Church

LUBBOCK — Carrie Ayune Pyle became the bride of Bradford Stanley Wheeler at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in the First United Methodist Church. The Rev. Hank Scott officiated in the double ring ceremony.

The bride, a spring graduate of Texas Tech University, was a member of Alpha Delta Pi social society and is employed by the English department there. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Pyle of Weatherford. The bridegroom, a senior accounting major at Texas Tech, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Wheeler, 1305 Lawson St., Midland. He is a member of the Phi Kappa Psi social fraternity and is a member of the Texas Tech Accounting Society. Wheeler is employed as a CPA at Pratts, Smith, and Moore of Lubbock.

The maid of honor was Leslie Lark of Blacksburg, Va. The bridesmaids were Nancy Wood of Houston and Connie Morris of Mt. Vernon.

Serving as best man was Robert L. Wheeler, the bridegroom's father. The groomsmen were Scott Walker of Fort Worth and Randy Kidwell of Midland. Monte Gregg of Plainview and Mike McCarty of Midland were ushers.

The candlelight was Hunter Pyle, the bride's brother. Jerry Brainard was the organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of ivory silk organza in the Colonial design of the Martha Washington era. The fitted bodice featured a portrait neckline edged in full small ruffles of Polynesian lace and puffed sleeves cuffed with small ruffles of matching lace. She wore a redingote with a tiny petite point-pale bow over the full bouffant skirt belted with a petal pink peti-point ribbon belt. She wore a matching colonial bonnet and carried pastel pink and cream colored spring flowers trimmed with matching ribbon and lace.

Mrs. Bradford S. Wheeler

A reception was held at the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority Home. After a trip to Creeds, Colo., the couple will reside in Lubbock at 3020 Main St.

Awards Luncheon Held By Chapter

"I LOST 31 POUNDS AND 47 INCHES AT PAT WALKER'S ... I HAVE A NEW OUTLOOK ON LIFE."

HERE'S HOW MRS. KRIMMEL WENT FROM SIZE 16 TO SIZE 8:

"My cousin, who went to Pat Walker's Conroe Salon, and had lost over 50 pounds, motivated me to go in for a complimentary treatment and figure analysis. Since my first visit, I've lost 31 pounds and 47 inches. I enjoy the treatments because it is so relaxing ... I have a new outlook on life. I changed my personality completely. When I was fat, I let my personality slide ... now I have more self-respect and energy."

Dear Abby

—By Abigail van Buren

He's Driving Her Nuts

DEAR ABBY: I must have the most attentive husband in the world.

—ADVERTISEMENT—

He retired last year at 64, and has been with me seven days a week, 24 hours a day ever since. He drives me to the grocery store. He drives me to the beauty parlor—and waits to drive me home. He drives me to the doctor's and dentist's when necessary. He drives me to my bridge club and comes back to drive me home. Yes, I know how to drive, but his excuse is, "Something may happen to the car." He is driving me nuts!

DRIVEN IN DAYTONA BEACH

DEAR DRIVEN: Your man needs a hobby. Has he ever tried driving a golf ball?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I disagree on the following: We have six children ranging in age from 8 to 18, and our method of punishment is to "ground" them for a certain length of time. This means that they are not permitted to participate in any outside activity, which includes Scout meetings, baby-sitting jobs, parties — everything except going to school and church. I feel that if they have already given their word either to participate in some group activity or to babysit, they should be allowed to do so. My husband feels that if they are grounded, they should forego ALL commitments and activities, and phone to say that they cannot participate because they are being punished.

DISAGREEING PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Children who are being "grounded" should not be allowed to go to parties just because they accepted the invitation. However, I would not insist that a baby-sitting job be cancelled. For the Scout meeting, I'd flip a coin because while it builds character, it's also fun.

HOROSCOPE

by Carrell Righter.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's Full Moon gives you the chance to eliminate some confusing or deceptive conditions from your life that could cause you considerable trouble. Make progress through influential people by being conventional, conservative.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Some situation from a distance is now solved and gives you up further trouble. Ally yourself with progressive persons. Avoid the cynical, skeptical.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle responsibilities today when you are free from business worries. Listen to mate's good ideas. Be happy in fun.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get together with that blimp-speaking partner to iron out any wrinkles in your association. Avoid unreasonable persons.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Showing Mavis how much you appreciate them brings the fine backing you should have now. Show cheer of the unobtainable.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You want to delve into some hitherto unknown environment, but investigate it first. Avoid the unworthy. Devotion to mate brings happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) The situation at home is puzzling, as study it quietly and do not lose your temper. Exertain Make-up at home, within your budget.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Get into philosophical studies early or attend lectures to value your level of consciousness, but don't delve into anything.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) Find more proven methods for increasing an overall clear of some interest. Be full of loquacity. Avoid overcommitting yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You want to delve into new interests now, but stick to the tried and true. Meet fine individuals at a social affair.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Stick to those things that have been tested and show clear law of what you know little about. Assist those who have worked honestly and faithfully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure you screen your friends carefully now and stay close who have been a detriment to you. Make right personal decisions.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Stay into daily activities wisely so you do not make the wrong choices. Safeguard your good name. Be courteous to higher-ups.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to tune in on whatever can be helped to you in extending your activities beyond certain boundaries. Hold your vision steady when asked by one with right to do so.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Unusual situations may come up now that need study before you get involved in them. Avoid temptation to leave home.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study whatever puzzling problems you may have with vocational matters and get clear results. Mate can be helpful now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Discuss agreements with associates and make sure all points are understood. Rectify any opposition directed toward you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Schedule week's activities properly early. Do something constructive about a health problem you may have. Be calm. Give critical thinking early in life.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Put your best talents to work and get excellent results. Later in the day is time for being with congenial.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Fine day to study your home and see what should be done to make it more functional. Strive for more harmony in the home.

Laurie Morse, J. P. Mohel Wed

Mrs. James Paul Mohel

The Rev. James L. Conditine Jr., of St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church officiated for the marriage ceremony at 7 p.m. Saturday of Laurie Teresa Morse and James Paul Mohel.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Edward Morse, 801 George St. 95, Midland and Jerome Mohel of Taylor and Mrs. Roy Williams of Austin.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown fashioned with a molded Empire bodice of imported, white Swiss Guipure lace, English net and embroidered silk organza over peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with long, fitted sleeves and a Victorian yoke. A border of the embroidered organza enhanced the sleeves at the wrists and edged the hem of the skirt and wide chapel train. The slim A-line skirt was veiled with the English net and appliqued with the lace. Her veil of white silk illusion extended beyond the length of her train from an appliqued hood of imported lace. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, baby's breath and springerl fern.

The bridesmaids luncheon was hosted recently by Mrs. Harold B. Welch and Mrs. Robert Hoyer.

Recent parties for the couple also include a dinner party hosted by Mr. and Mrs. White and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dalouis in Midland. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. John Hackney, of Midland recently held a cocktail buffet.

Another dinner party was held in Taylor in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Barron.

WEDDING PLANS MADE — Mr. and Mrs. Bill B. Belt, No. 7 Mariner Court, announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Kay, to George Harold Medley Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Harold Medley, 4610 Mercedes St. Wedding plans will be finalized at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 15 in St. Paul United Methodist Church. The bride-elect attended Angelo State University and plans to be a student at Texas A&M University in the fall. She was a member of Alpha Delta Lambda honor sorority and the Little Sisters of Acacia. Her fiancé will be a junior at Texas A&M where he is a member of Phi Eta Sigma honor fraternity and the Student Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Couple Married In Baptist Church

Jacquelyn Pollard and Kenneth Wayne Straw were married at 7 p.m. Saturday in Crestview Baptist Church, with the Rev. Kenneth James, pastor, officiating for the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jack J. Pollard, 3404 W. Michigan St., and Mr. and Mrs. James A. Straw of Billings, Mont.

Mr. Pollard presented his daughter in marriage. She selected a traditional style Candelabra gown of Oriental silk and re-embroidered Chantilly lace. A panel of lace overlaid the Empire bodice and graced the A-line skirt and chapel train. The fitted bodice featured a ring neckline and shepherdess sleeves finished with the matching lace. Her veil of silk illusion edged in lace fell from a Juliet headpiece fashioned from identical lace. She carried a nosegay of white roses and yellow Sweetheart roses accented with stephanotis and gypsophila.

Nanette Addy, pianist, and Larry Moss, soloist, provided wedding music.

Denise Pollard served her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Cindy Moss of Abilene and Mrs. Irene Collins of San Angelo.

Best man was Randy Straw of Billings, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Kevin Harrison of Gainesville, cousin of the bride, and Jeff Straw of Billings, brother of the bridegroom, and Keith Howell and Eddie Collins, both of San Angelo. Groomsmen were Mike Woolley and Eddie Samson, both of San Angelo.

The church was decorated with a large golden candelabrum accented with white tapers laced with yellow ribbon and greenery and flanked with a pair of urns with yellow and white flowers. These arrangements of flowers were flanked by two tree candelabra accented with white tapers, greenery and yellow ribbon to carry out the bride's chosen theme.

The bridal attendants were dressed identically in princess style floor-length dresses of yellow crepe fashioned with a square neckline and softly gathered sleeves. They carried a nosegay arrangement of mixed flowers accented with yellow satin ribbon. The attire was completed with a hairpiece of mixed flowers.

A reception was held in Conner's West Texas Banquet Room. House party members included Nita Reese, Virginia Carter, Betty New, Irma Mayo, Kristen Winget, Brenda Howell, Nancy Hyatt, Judy Reese, Diana Straw, Kathy Straw and Peggy Straw.

Following a wedding trip to Kerrville, the couple will reside at 1814 S. Pierce St., San Angelo. The bride attended Odessa College, Angelo State University and is a spring graduate of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin. The bridegroom is stationed in Athens, Greece with the United States Air Force.

Avoids Splash
When opening a can of fruit or vegetables that has a lot of liquid, such as beets, first punch a hole in the top with a bottle opener, pour off most of the liquid. This avoids the splash made by the can opener, making a much neater job of it.

Mrs. Joseph Michael Monahan

Katherine Reiter, Monahan Married

St. Ann's Catholic Church was decorated with a pair of seven-branch candelabra accented with white tapers for the wedding of Katherine Clare Reiter and Joseph Michael Monahan. The Rev. Ben Verbrugge officiated for the 6 p.m. Saturday double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Michael Reiter, organist, and Debbie Dugan, soloist, provided pre-nuptial music.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Darold Hobbs of 807 W. Golf Course Road and Fred Reiter of Littleton, Colo., formerly of Midland. The bridegroom, of Lubbock, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John I. Welsh of Georgetown.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length gown of ivory organza fashioned with a scoop neckline, full-length Camelot sleeves, an Empire bodice overlaid with re-embroidered Alencon lace and a softly gathered A-line skirt extending to a chapel-length train. A deep self-ruffle edged with lace formed the hemline of the skirt and train. Her headpiece was a matching lace caplet accented with seed pearls and crystals holding three tiers of illusion. The bride carried a bouquet of white butterfly orchids and stephanotis accented with Hahn's Ivy.

Ellen Reiter of Lubbock attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Beth Reiter of Littleton, also sister of the bride, Ann Keyser and Meg Griffith, both of Midland, and Mrs. Chuck Steube of Carizo Springs.

Best man was the Rev. Charles Tito Sammut of Lubbock. Groomsmen were Chuck Steube of Carizo Springs and Steve Stallings, Mike Dubbs and John George, all of Lubbock. Altar boy was Karl Reiter, brother of the bride.

The maid of honor's dress was of pale yellow textured cotton blend featuring a sweetheart neckline, covered buttons accenting the bodice and a full circular skirt.

The bridesmaids were dressed identically, except the dresses were brick-red in color.

All attendants wore natural straw hats with matching ribbons and carried fireside baskets of wicker accented with red carnations and yellow spider mums to carry out the bride's chosen theme.

A reception was held in the home of Mrs. Gene Keyser, 2014 Shell St. Gretchen Hanson, Leslie Cole, Bridget Mayes, Sally Muir, Debbie Dugan and Melissa Reiter, sister of the bride, served in the house party.

Upon their return from a trip to Colorado, the couple will reside at 2807 Flint St., Lubbock. The bride is a junior student at Texas Tech University, where she is president of the Catholic Student Center. Monahan is a graduate of Texas Tech with a bachelor of arts degree in accounting. He is employed as an auditor for the Texas Department of Public Welfare.

Out-Of-City Guests
Special out-of-city guests for the wedding were: Mrs. Fred F. Reiter of Baltimore, Md., grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ballard of Arlington; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fiddes of Santa Fe, N.M.; Jeanie Monahan of Boulder, Colo.; Tommy Monahan of Austin; Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Monahan of Phoenix, Ariz., and Walt Gusk of Irving.

Pre-nuptial Courtesies
The bride was honored with several pre-nuptial parties. A bridal luncheon was given recently by Mrs. William Griffith and daughter, Meg, and a miscellaneous shower was given by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Frenzel and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Noel. Mrs. George Mayes and daughter, Bridget, were co-hostesses for a linen shower. A rice bag party was given by Mrs. Bruno Hanson and daughter, Gretchen, for the bridesmaids and house party.

Miss Grigsby Shower Honoree
A miscellaneous shower honoring Tracy Lynn Grigsby, bride-elect of Eddie Morgan, was held recently in the home of Mrs. S. T. Miller, 3108 Seaboard St.

The bride-elect's chosen colors of yellow and white were used in the decorations and corsages. An arrangement of yellow and white daisies was on the serving table.

Approximately 50 guests and 12 of the 15 hostesses attended. Miss Grigsby and Morgan will be married July 12 and will reside at College Station, where he is a student at Texas A&M University.

Couple Planning July Wedding

STANTON—July 12 is the date selected by Cheryl Jean Bradshaw and her fiancé, Jerry Dale Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry D. Jones of Woodson, for their wedding.

Parents of the bride-elect are Mr. and Mrs. Troy C. Bradshaw of Stanton.

The ceremony will be held at 7 p.m. in the First Baptist Church.

The bride-elect attended Howard County Junior College. Her fiancé is a graduate of Cisco Junior College and is proprietor of Jerry's Garage and Welding in Woodson.

Patricia Dobbins Honored At Party

Mrs. Evelyn Carpenter and Cathy Scott entertained Patricia Ann Dobbins, bride-elect of Paul Anthony Tucker, with a bridal shower recently in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

Yellow and white, the honoree's chosen colors, were used in the decorations. A tree of life with white doves, wedding bells and rings centered the serving table.

Keel, Munsel Due At Casa Manana

FORT WORTH—For years, Casa Manana has lived with the star system.

Monday night, Fort Worth's famed theater-in-the-round makes it official with a resounding "I Do I Do!"

The gala festivities marking the opening of Casa's star-studded new season will begin at 8:15 p.m. as Patrice Munsel and Howard Keel take over the stage as Agnes and Michael, stars and sole performers in "I Do I Do!" the Tom Jones-Harvey Schmidt musical celebrating a couple's 50 years of marriage.

First-nighters will discover that the theater has a new look inside and out. La Cantina, the outdoor refreshment area which was added to Casa's east lawn last summer has some eye-catching changes. Its arched fence panels have been decorated with charming art nouveau motifs, each design executed in brilliant colors. Interior panels are covered with permanent collages featuring photographs of Billy Robe's original 1936 Casa Manana, along with program covers from the "new" Casa Manana's 17-year history.

And there are other visual changes: Bicentennial flags hang on each side of the theater entrance and inside, the foyer has new decor and patrons will be shown to their seats by usherettes wearing specially-designed, colorful new uniforms.

But all this is subservient to what goes on onstage, and for the current season what goes on there will be sparkling and definitely star-bright: Following "I Do I Do!" which continues through June 7, the theater will offer a one-week special, "An Evening With Roger Miller," with the famous singer and recording artist presenting many of his biggest songs hits. Then, from June 17 through June 28, former teenage-idol-turned-serious-actor Van Johnson will be featured as con artist Harold Hill in a production of Meredith Willson's "The Music Man."

Continuing the star emphasis on Broadway during the musical's long run there, Casa's June 20-July 13 production, "Hello, Dolly!" will bring Martha Raye to the theater in the role of Dolly Gallagher Levi, a role which Miss Raye played for a period of several years during the all-time favorite star Pinkie Lee, will be presented for three weeks, from Aug. 18 to Sept. 6. "Burlique" is not being sold as part of the regular season-ticket package but tickets for this show are being sold at the Casa Manana box office along with regular season tickets. Reservations may be made through the box office, 317-332-6221, or by writing to Casa Manana, P.O. Box 9054, Fort Worth 76107.

Casa's new season will offer performances at 8:15 p.m. Monday through Saturday each week, as well as Saturday matinees at 2:30.

There's some exciting battle footage filmed in Spain, with an outgunned U.S. Marine detachment rescuing the betrayed Conroy from German (in a sequence derived from the finale of "The Wild Bunch") and in turn being rescued by an army of desert men who ride through point-blank cannon fire.

The best performances in the film are by Brian Keith as the bold, boyishly charming, paternalistic President Theodore Roosevelt, and the worldly-wise, disapproving John Huston as his "Bunch" and in turn being rescued by an army of desert men who ride through point-blank cannon fire.

Timing Of Movie Fascinating

By JOSEPH GELMAN Newspaper

John Millus is the John Wayne of movie directors. His movies are gung ho, macho, self-congratulatory. He waves the flag, and he salutes.

Millus' "The Wind and the Lion" is about President Theodore Roosevelt sending a marine to retrieve American civilians kidnapped by Barbary pirates.

The timing of the movie is fascinating. President Ford was, in a sense, repeating history (in Indochina) just as "The Wind and the Lion" was previewed for the press.

With this, his second film as a director (the first was "Dillinger"), the young (31) Millus consolidates his position as one of the best American action filmmakers.

"The Wind and the Lion" is a totally engrossing adventure spectacle of the sort that the British made in the 1930s about their imperial empire (such as the original "Four Feathers").

Millus gets perhaps the best performance out of Candice Bergen that she ever has given which amounts to about half of a performance by a real actress. She plays the widow of a U.S. diplomat who is kidnapped, along with her two children, by a Moroccan guerrilla leader who is trying to unite his people and expel troops of several western powers.

Sean Connery (minus his James Bond hairpiece under his turban) is rather good as the muscular Moslem, though his brogue makes him sound like Sean of Arabia instead of a native.

He is depicted as an idealist who carries a big sword, Teddy Roosevelt's mirror image in North Africa. Each justifies force in terms of religion and patriotism.

The friendship-romance that develops between the dashing, Valentino-style sheik and his captivity beauty is wonderfully rescued by an army of desert men who ride through point-blank cannon fire.

The best performances in the film are by Brian Keith as the bold, boyishly charming, paternalistic President Theodore Roosevelt, and the worldly-wise, disapproving John Huston as his "Bunch" and in turn being rescued by an army of desert men who ride through point-blank cannon fire.

Friends Book Sale Slated Earlier Than Usual This Year

The Friends of the Library, volunteer service organization of the Midland County Public Library, is already deep in planning for its 8th annual used books and records sale. And a good thing, too, since this year's sale will be earlier than usual—in September instead of October or November as in past years.

The sale, which has become one of the most popular and well-patronized annual events in the Tall City, will be held Sept. 19-21 at the County Exhibit Building, site of the 1974 sale which was the "biggest and best" up to that time, the Friends say.

So, how will the Friends top last year's sale with an even bigger, better one in 1975? By having more books, more records, more puzzles, more magazines, more art prints than ever for the public to choose from.

With that in mind, the Friends is sending an appeal to city and county residents for donations of books, records, puzzles, art prints, and other items.

The Friends already have a sizable inventory of the items stored for September, but they need many, many more items to bring their sale stock up to the size of last year's. (And, remember, they're hoping to exceed last year's sale both in volume and in variety of items offered to the buying public.)

Recognizing that traditional "spring house cleaning" is going on all over town, the Friends are asking Midlanders to bring their disordered books (hardbacks and paperbacks), their unwanted phonograph records (LP's and 78's), their jigsaw puzzles and art prints to the library where the items will be sorted, marked and stored awaiting the September sale.

The items may be brought to the library during regular hours any weekday, Friends say. Persons with large quantities of items to contribute to the sale may contact the library to arrange for the items to be picked up by truck or station wagon. The library is at 301 W. Missouri St., and the telephone number is 683-2706.

Funds raised at the annual sale are used to finance the Friends' various projects and programs benefiting the library which, in turn, benefit library patrons.

'Our Town' Opens At Playhouse Friday

ODESSA — A prize-winning American drama which has been called "an exciting theatrical experience" and "one of the great plays of our day" opens at Permian Playhouse Friday night.

It is "Our Town" Thornton Wilder's evocative, hauntingly beautiful play which received the Pulitzer Prize for drama in 1938 and has continued to garner accolades and honors through almost four decades.

The Playhouse, Odessa's community theater, will conclude its 1974-75 season with "Our Town." The theater's 1975-76 season will officially begin in June, although the first production, the musical "George M.," will not be on the boards until next September.

The Permian Playhouse's membership campaign for its Bicentennial season is now in full swing, and memberships for the coming year are on sale at the theater, 310 W. 42nd St., or by mail from P.O. Box 6713, Odessa 79768.

Persons purchasing new memberships for the coming season may attend a performance of "Our Town" as a bonus, PPH spokesmen point out. Following its opening performances at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, the play will have presentations on June 5, 7, 13, 14 and 15. Telephone the box office, 382-2328, for seat reservations. Single ticket prices are $3 for adults, $1.50 for students.

"Our Town" staged and directed by Playhouse associate director James Walters, has a cast headed by Jim Regue, twice mayor of Odessa who was named Outstanding Citizen of Odessa for 1973. Regue portrays the Stage Manager, observer and confidante in playwright Wilder's no-scenery theatrical classic. Joining him in the production are PPH newcomers Charles Guy as Dr. Gibbs, Coy Sharp as Mr. Webb, Rick Stanley as George Gibbs, newcomer Judy Miller as Mrs. Webb, Karen Kelly as Emily, and Roland Pickett, Lee Anna Knox, Rob Caldwell, June Yates, Jim Rodgers, Richard Callaway, Michael Acosta, Gleen Svanas, Kerry Peil, Don King, Martelle Burke, Mary Anne Hill, D'Allice Belanger, Jerry Harbin, Missy Davis, Lori Gray and Phyllis Brister.

Southwestern Area Art Show In Final Days

A reminder that the 9th annual Southwestern Area Art Show is in its final days has been issued by the Museum of the Southwest.

The yearly survey of the creative output of artists in a wide sector of the Southwest is sponsored by the museum and the Midland Arts Association. The exhibition is on view in the museum's Turner Memorial Gallery, 1705 W. Missouri St. It will close this coming weekend.

Today's visiting hours will be 2 to 5 p.m. Weekday hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is free at all times.

Santa Fe Opera To Do Verdi Requiem Aug. 17

SANTA FE, N.M. — A performance of the Verdi Requiem will be a special highlight of the Santa Fe Opera's 19th season which opens just slightly over a month from now.

Verdi's famous work, often termed a sacred opera, will be presented on the evening of Aug. 17 as a major fund-raising event for the Opera Association of New Mexico, sponsor of the Santa Fe Opera's annual season.

Tickets for the benefit evening range from $7 to $60, all prices including a contribution to the Santa Fe Opera. Mail orders should be sent to the Santa Fe Opera at P.O. Box 2408, Santa Fe, N.M. 87501.

The Aug. 17 presentation will have John Crosby, founder and general director of the SFO, as conductor of the orchestra and chorus. The featured soloists are to include soprano Maralin Niska, whose last engagement at the Santa Fe Opera was in the 1970 season, and bass-baritone Donald Gramm, a favorite with Santa Fe audiences as a result of his numerous operatic appearances here beginning with the 1960 season. Also taking solo roles in the benefit performance are two members of the 1975 repertory company, mezzo-soprano Betty Allen and tenor Vinson Cole.

The SFO's new season will be opened on July 2 with a new production of Bizet's "Carmen." Entering the season repertory at intervals thereafter will be Verdi's "Falstaff," Mozart's "Così fan Tutte," Ravel's "L'Enfant et les Sortilèges," DePalla's "La Vida Breve" and Leo Janacek's "The Cunning Little Vixen." A detailed schedule of performances and ticket prices is obtainable from the opera at the postal address listed above.

'Starving Art Mart' Planned

ODESSA — The Odessa Art Association will stage its spring "Starving Art Mart" next Sunday. Artists from the Midland area are welcome to show and sell at the event, and Midland residents are being invited to come browse and buy.

The semi-annual exhibition will be held throughout the afternoon of Sunday, June 1, in the courtyard of the Balie Griffith store at 2307 E. 8th St.

According to art association president Jean Longman, the show and sale will offer original art works for $25 and under (some even under $5). Items to be sold include oil, watercolor and acrylic paintings, graphics and drawings, and macrame and pottery pieces.

Participating artists and crafts people may set up by 12 noon next Sunday. Each person will handle his or her own sales, with the Odessa Art Association collecting a 20 per cent commission on all sales.

TO MARRY — Mr. and Mrs. William Lovera of Odessa announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Elaine, to Robert David Lanham, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Lanham Jr., 2513 Geraldine St. Vows will be solemnized at 8 p.m. June 20 in St. Mary's Catholic Church of Odessa. The bride-elect graduated from Permian High School and is attending Texas Tech University where she is a member of the Women's Service Organization. Her fiancé is a graduate of Lee High School and now is a junior at Texas Tech. He is employed by Dodson's Landscaping of Lubbock.

Karla Bailey Wed To Jeff Marlow

Karla Grace Bailey and Jeff C. Marlow were married at 7 p.m. Friday in the Christian Church of Midland. Billy Stewart, minister, performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Bailey of Cardinal Lane and Mr. and Mrs. John P. Marlow of 4319 Harvard St.

Debbie Driggers was the maid of honor, and Jason Bailey was best man.

Candle trees with greenery decorated the church. Mrs. Carl H. Jasper was the organist, and the soloist was Mrs. C. Ken Strobel.

Mr. Bailey presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of natural-colored muslin overlaid with ecru lace on the front. It was styled with an Empire waistline with a sash in the back, and a round neckline. The long pointed sleeves were enhanced with lace. The A-line carpet-length skirt was finished with a ruffled flounce and circled with a wide border of matching lace. She carried a bouquet of white daisies with yellow pompons and gladiolus on a white Bible. She had a matching floral headpiece with streamers of yellow satin ribbons.

The maid of honor had a carpet-length dress of natural eyelet with floral print. It had a gathered tiered skirt, short puffed sleeves and an Empire waistline with yellow satin. She carried a nosegay of white daisies with satin streamers.

The reception was held in the parlor of the church.

Members of the house party were Mrs. Lawrence Stevenson, Mrs. Joe Hough, cousins of the bride, and the bride's aunt, Mrs. J. B. Hartman, all of Odessa. Guests were registered by the sister of the bride, Suzanne Bailey.

After a trip to Indian Lodge at Ft. Davis, the couple will reside at Airline Mobile Home Park.

The bride is attending Lee High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of LHS and plans to attend Odessa College this fall.

Legal Secretaries Schedule Dinner

The Midland Legal Secretaries Association will have its annual Bosses Night Friday in Midland Country Club.

Secretaries interested in attending may contact Mrs. Ray Anderson, 682-2525, or Mrs. George Taylor, 683-4881, for reservations.

The program will include dinner, entertainment by the "Sun Country Gentlemen," annual awards presentations and the installation of new officers.

The new officers are Betty Lewis, president; Mrs. Anderson, vice president; Mrs. Taylor, secretary; Mrs. Curtis Keel, treasurer; Mrs. June Jenkins, governor, and Mrs. Sue Eakin, National Association of Legal Secretaries representative.

John G. Hyde and Bobby L. Sanders, Midland attorneys, will preside for the awards presentations.

Battle Scene

By Ted Battles

We've got to admit Stadium regulars are pretty sharp on their baseball. The nighty trivia questions for a hamburger and cold drink usually brings a "huh-waving" "I've got it, I've got it" fan before the question fades from the PA. The only one that has even showed them down was the "Who was the last Cub to win the National League batting championship?" and only because an average was requested to go with the name ...

Bob Burris, Big Spring athletic director, says a lot of folks are under the impression that the Steers blew the whistle on Midland Lee over alleged football practice violations.

"It looks kind of bad for us because we were there that day, but we didn't know anything about it before the executive meeting. Our assistant baseball coach, Rex Scofield was there and he saw some kids running patterns with coaches, but he's new here and he didn't know any of them."

And Texas League President Bobby Bragan says baseball can trace itself back to the book of Genesis. "After all," says Bobby, "the first four words in the Bible are 'In the beginning ...'"

Crusty A. J. Seeks Fourth 500 Win

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Anthony Joseph Foyt is a crusty, untroubled 40-year-old who thinks this last Sunday in May belongs to him by divine right.

So do a couple of hundred thousand auto racing fans who will jam the Indianapolis Motor Speedway to watch him try for what nobody else in the history of the Indy 500 has ever achieved—a fourth victory.

Of course, there are a lot of people who think the wily Texan doesn't wear a halo, that inevitable victory isn't his.

Among them are the other 32 drivers who, like Foyt, enjoy smuggling down into their low-slung beauties and whipping around this old brickyard at maybe 190 miles an hour or so.

They are veterans like Al Unser and Bobby Unser, Mario Andretti, Lloyd Ruby, Billy Yakovitch, Gordon Johncock and Johnny Rutherford, and rookies like Sheldon Kinser, Larry McCoy, Bill Puterbaugh and Eldon Rasmussen.

But of A. J., well, he's run this race 17 times before, more than any of those 32 others. And in those 17 races he's finished first three times, more than any of those 32 others.

Louis Meyer, Mauri Rose and the late Wilbur Shaw were the only other drivers to chalk up a triple—and Meyer and Rose don't drive race cars any more.

If that wasn't enough of an edge, Foyt also has a headstart. He's starting on the inside of the front row, the pole position, for the fourth time in his career as he guns for the magic fourth and his first victory here since 1967.

A. J. blew everybody out two weeks ago on the first day of qualifying when he rammed his Coyle-Foyt four times around the 2.5-mile asphalt track at an average speed of 193.976 miles an hour. His closest challenger was Johncock, more than two miles an hour slower.

So what? "Starting first means nothing. Finishing first means everything," Foyt snapped after his qualification run.

History bears him out. He was seventh, fifth and fourth at the start of what were to become his three triumphs. In his three pole-position starts, he finished eighth once and 15th twice. Similarly, Bobby Unser started first in 1972 and wound up 30th. The next year, Rutherford was on pole and came in ninth.

Conversely, Rutherford was buried in 25th place in the 33-car starting grid a year ago and ended up as the winner. Johncock had 10 other cars ahead of his before he took the checkered flag in 1973.

Only eight times since the Indy became a 500-mile classic in 1911 has the man on the pole been the man to win it, the most recent being Al Unser in 1970.

Still, with Foyt in the race, you can throw out the history books. A friendly poll of drivers, mechanics and Speedway officials has listed him as the 2-1 favorite to achieve his unprecedented dream.

Ruby, who has gained the reputation as a hard-luck driver since he's never finished higher than third in his 15 previous Indy starts, is second at 3-1 and Bobby Unser, on the outside of the three-car front row (Johncock's in the middle) is rated third at 4-1 in this, his 13th Indy.

Ruby is on the inside of the second row, sharing it with Mike Mosley and Tom Sneva, a pair of relative youngsters in this race. Rutherford, the defending champion seeking to duplicate Al Unser's 1970-71 feat of successive triumphs, sits on the outside of the third row. Inside him are Vukovich, third a year ago and second in '73, and Salt Walther.

Walther started 14th and finished 17th a year ago. That wasn't much of an accomplishment. What was amazing was that he was racing at all.

In 1973, in his second Indy start, Walther's car literally exploded in a 12-car pile-up at the start of the race, one of the most tragic in recent years.

It was a year in which Art Pollard was killed in a pre-race practice, in which Walther was severely burned and 11 spectators were injured by flaming fuel and flying metal in the aborted start, in which rain delayed the race for two days, in which Swede Savage died in a mid-race crash, in which a pit crewman was killed when a fire struck heading for the start. He's starting on the inside of the front row, the pole position, for the fourth time in his career as he guns for the magic fourth and his first victory here since 1967.

It was the kind of race nobody wants to see. They'd prefer a duplicate of last year's, when nobody was even scratched. It was an uneventful race, perhaps even boring at times, but a safe one. An artistic success.

This year's Indy has in its field the winners of seven of the last eight races—Foyt, Andretti, Johncock, Rutherford and the Unsers.

Only Mark Donohue, the 1972 champion, is missing. He came out of retirement this year to drive on the Grand Prix circuit and will be racing in Belgium on Speedway Sunday.

Four of those six active winners are in the first three rows. Al Unser is in the fourth and Andretti is buried in the ninth, mainly because he, too, is splitting his time by racing on the Grand Prix tour. He passed up the first weekend of time trials to compete, unsuccessfully, in Monaco, then returned here last weekend to post the eighth-fastest qualifying speed, 188.490 m.p.h. Because of his first-week absence, he had to settle for 27th place in the starting grid.

That put him ahead of three of the race's rookie entries—Kinser, McCoy and Rasmussen—but well behind the fourth, Puterbaugh, who sits in 15th place, on the outside of row No. 5, by virtue of his 183.833 m.p.h. qualifying average.

Cubs Lose, 3-1

Franklin Stops Midland On 4 Hits

BY TED BATTLES

As far as the Midland Cubs are concerned, Jay Franklin is the biggest fraud wandering around the Texas League.

The Alexandria pitcher stumbled onto the mound Saturday night under the awesome burden of an 11.00 Earned Run Average and a 0-3 record. All he did was shutdown the Midland Cubs on four hits, 3-1.

The win gave the Aces the series 3-2 with all but one of the games decided by one run.

Midland is idle today before heading for series at Little Rock and Alexandria. Midland returns home June 6 for a six-game series against El Paso.

Alexandria broke up a scoreless duel in the fourth when center fielder Jim Wilhelm looped a single to right and Jerry Stone rattled the boards in left-center for a triple.

Alexandria added a fifth inning run when Mike Champion doubled to right-center, moved to third on Marc Rhea's single up the middle and scored on Scott Brown's force out grounder to second.

Midland couldn't do much with Franklin, who walked four batters, all in the early innings, and fanned two. Going into the seventh, Jay still had a two-hit shutout going, but the Cubs averted a shutout when left fielder Rhea missed Joe Wallis' flyball for a two-base bobbie and Joe scored on a wild pitch after moving to third on Aaron Randall's fly to deep center.

The Aces picked up an insurance run in the eighth and chased Moore, now 3-4, in the process. Donnie issued his first walk to lead off better Brown, but turned Wilhelm's bunt in front of the plate into a force out at second. Donnie's wild pick-off throw let Wilhelm go to third and the run scored on Stone's single to right.

Mike Weiss came in at this point and retired the rest of the game's final five batters in order.

The setback gave Midland a 4-6 record for the home stand, but the Cubs actually climbed out of the cellar as El Paso and San Antonio were also experiencing their problems against East Division opponents.

Torrez struck out five and walked five during his time in the game. He surrendered John Mabry's run-scoring hit in the eighth.

Littler, Mahaffey In Memphis Lead

MEMPHIS (AP) — Gene Littler calmly tapped in a short birdie putt on the final hole and tied John Mahaffey for the lead in Saturday's third round of the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

Littler's 3-under-par 69 was within one stroke of the best round of the warm, windy day and gave the 44-year-old veteran a three-day total of 204, 12 under par on the 7,193-yards-of rolling hills that make up the Colonial Country Club course.

"It wasn't quite as steady as I'd like for it to be," said Littler, for two decades known as the man with the game's classic swing. "I'd like to get just a little better tomorrow."

The baby-faced Mahaffey, who owned a two-shot lead when the third round started, shot a 71 to drop back into a tie and said he was lucky to get that.

"It was pretty erratic. I was really pretty fortunate to break par," Mahaffey said.

Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf each encountered double bokeeyed disaster on their way to matching 73s and a tie for third at 209.

"Well," sighed Nicklaus, "I'm five back but there's only two guys in front of me. When you only trail two people anything can happen."

Dave Hill, the four-time winner of this title, passed 14 players with a 69 and moved into contention at 210. He was tied at that figure with Tom Kite, who had a 70.

After a lukewarm front nine, Miss Rankin improved on the back nine for a 36-hole total of 135, nine under par, and led JoAnne Carner by two strokes.

Mrs. Carner, who shot a 69 on the 6,073-yard par 72 course Friday, knocked four more strokes off par Saturday with a 68.

Louise Bruce, with a 67 Friday, soared to a 78 in the second round, but still managed to make the cut with a 145.

Sixty golfers from the field of 86 will compete for the $5,700 first place purse in today's final round. The cut, made at 149, was the lowest score for a cut in the history of the LPGA.

After leading by one stroke on Friday, Miss Rankin said she had planned to "just play a round of golf and not be concerned with the lead." After touring the front nine in one day over 37, she came in on the back nine in four-under 32.

"I really didn't play that badly on the front nine," said Miss Rankin. "I did have trouble all day, soared to a 78 in the second round, but still managed to make the cut with a 145.

Judy Rankin Ups Classic Margin

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — First-round leader Judy Rankin of Midland fired a three-under-par 69 Saturday and assumed a two-stroke lead after the second round of the $40,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association classic at North Ridge Country Club.

After a lukewarm front nine, Miss Rankin improved on the back nine for a 36-hole total of 135, nine under par, and led JoAnne Carner by two strokes.

KC Rally Spills Birds

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Hal McRae's three-run double capped a five-run rally in the ninth inning, carrying the Kansas City Royals to a dramatic 5-4 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Saturday night.

Mike Torrez had stopped Kansas City on six singles and one run through the first eight innings, but was lifted in favor of Bob Reynolds in the ninth after giving up a leadoff double to George Brett. A double by Vada Pinson brought in the Royals' second run and after Reynolds walked Tony Solaita, Wayne Garland came on for the Orioles.

The struggling Orioles, who have lost seven times in their last eight starts, knocked out Nelson Brites with a three-run fifth inning after scoring their first run in the third on Jim Northrup's RBI single.

Dave Duncan's third home run, a two-run shot into the left-field bullpen, stretched Baltimore's lead to 3-0. The fourth run scored on a double-play ball off reliever Marty Patin.

Mother Nature Eliminates Lee Rebels From Playoffs

By JERRY WILLIAMSON

DUNCANVILLE — Mother Nature ended Midland Lee's baseball playoff march here Friday and sent the Duncanville Panthers to the AAAA quarterfinals against Lubbock Monterey.

Heavy rains in the Fort Worth-Dallas area Friday morning buried the Duncanville High School diamond under water as well as every diamond in the East Texas area, making it totally impossible to get a game in by Saturday.

So, after a closed door meeting between Duncanville athletic director Bill Savage, Duncanville baseball coach Jay Miller, Lee baseball coach Ernie Johnson and Monterey's baseball coach Bobby Moegle, Duncanville was awarded the regional championship.

Francis Netters Win Over Yugoslavia, 3-0

PARIS (AP) — France defeated Yugoslavia 3-0 in the Davis Cup Saturday and went on to the semifinal of Group B in the European Zone.

It wasn't an easy decision, and the process covered a five-hour span. Every alternative was discussed by those involved.

It was clear that the game was not going to be played Friday by early afternoon even though a major effort was made to find a place to play in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

System did not have a field playable and even TCU could not help out. It was the feeling of all concerned that no game could be played by Saturday.

So the two teams contacted Dr. Rhea Williams of the University Interscholastic League for a ruling. Williams reported that by past precedent if two teams could not get in a playoff series, the team holding any kind of edge would be awarded the championship.

Duncanville held a 1-0 lead in the best-of-three series after Tuesday's 7-5 triumph at the Lee diamond.

Dr. Williams said that the series could be extended to Monday, provided that Monterey agreed to the move.

Moegle did not want to start a series later than Tuesday, leaving both Miller and Johnson at a disadvantage for a Monday meeting.

"I felt that playing on Monday would put either team at a disadvantage of winning the quarterfinal series," Johnson said. "Jay and I talked about the possibility and neither one of us wanted to play Monday. It would have been especially hard on us. We would have to come back home, then go back to Duncanville for two games. Then we would have to come back to Midland or Lubbock for the next game on Tuesday. It would have been very expensive and our chances on Tuesday would have been very slim."

The weather report from Midland was good Friday, and the possibility was discussed of the two teams returning to Midland on Saturday to end the series, but Duncanville was definitely against such a move.

"That would not be fair to our kids to have to go out there and play again. Plus it would be another great expense for us. We were supposed to be the home team."

Savage continued, "We wanted to win this series by playing, but we have run out of possibilities. There is no place to play between Houston and Midland. I really hate this thing to be decided like this, but I don't know what else we can do."

Coach Johnson emerged from the meeting and said, "Well that's it. It's all over. Duncanville wins it."

The Lee baseball team was waiting in the hallway of the motel for the final news, but the shock of the news had long worn off. Most knew what the decision would be although there was that hanging thread of hope.

Jay Frazier, who was slated to start against Duncanville Friday, said, "Well if they're not going to let us play baseball, I guess it's time to go fishing."

With that Lee mounted the bus and made a very long trip back to Midland.

Whites Score 27-6 Victory

By BOB DILLON

A pair of junior quarterbacks, Brent Wright and David Hobbs, sparked the White team to a 27-6 victory over the Maroon unit Saturday night in the Midland Lee spring football game in Memorial Stadium.

Proceeds from the game go to the Mario Morales Memorial Fund.

Wright passed for two TDs and Hobbs for two as the two juniors-to-be put on a show for the fans.

The White defense shut down the Maroon attack except for a couple of long runs by tailback Clyde Gary.

Quarterback Russell Keilner of the Maroons, never could get his passing game going and may get some stiff competition from Wright and Hobbs this fall.

The graduating seniors were honored at halftime and the District 5-4A victory ball was presented to Bryan Webb, Rusty Laughlin and Keilner, this year's co-captains.

The Whites drew first blood in the opening period after recovering a fumble at the Maroon 38. In nine plays Wright hit Robert Johnson in the end zone with a 28-yard TD strike. Sherman then boot the PAT to give the Whites a 7-0 lead with 8:39 left in the opening period.

The Maroon unit had trouble moving the ball in the first half although Gary tipped off a run of 33 yards to the Maroon 47. Three plays later, a Keilner pass to Junior Miller was incomplete.

Both teams battled to a stalemate the rest of the first period, but the Whites cranked up with Hobbs at the quarterback slot to score twice.

Tom Cloyd handed the punting chores for the Whites and got off a booming 46-yarder with Miller coming within a whisker of blocking the attempt.

Officials walked off 39 yards for a punt for the Maroons instead of having a punt and the Whites went 42 yards in only four plays with a piling on penalty keeping the short drive alive. Hobbs fired a perfect strike to Roy Lee Green for an 18-yard TD. A pass for a two-point conversion failed, making it 13-0 with 4:40 left in the first half.

The Whites scored again late in the second period, marching 54 yards in nine plays with Hobbs again hitting Green with a 28-yard touchdown, with one second left on the clock. Robert White ran over for the two-point conversion for a 21-0 halftime advantage by the Whites.

The Maroons got the ball to start the second half, but once again the Whites scored after holding in the first series of plays.

A 41-yard drive by the Whites put them back into business with Wright hitting Cloyd for 14 yards on a pass down the middle.

Mark West broke up a sure TD pass from Wright to Johnson in the end zone, but three plays later, Wright passed to Johnson for another TD to make it 27-0 with 4:20 left in the third period. The extra point try was blocked by West and Brian Pope.

Twins Edge Brewers, 3-2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Danny Thompson's sixth-inning single drove in the decisive run and rookie Jim Hughes pitched a three-hitter for his fifth consecutive victory, leading the Minnesota Twins to a 3-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday night.

The Twins broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth when Larry Hise opened with his third successive hit, took second on a fielder's choice and scored on Thompson's two-out single to chase loser Pete Broberg, 6-4.

A double by Sixto Escobar started a two-run Brewer third. After a sacrifice and a single by Pedro Garcia scored Escobar, Garcia stole second, took third on an infield out and scored on a balk by Hughes, 5-4.

The Twins gained a 2-3 tie in the fifth after a single by Thompson, a walk to Glenn Borgmann and a sacrifice put runners on second and third with one out. Bill Sharp made a superb catch of Rod Carew's drive to the left centerfield wall.

which scored Thompson, and Borgmann scored when shortstop Robin Yount threw wildly to first on Bobby Darwin's grounder.

BAYLOR IS SECOND—

Troubled 'Horns Win Track Meet

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — The troubled Texas Longhorns successfully defended their Southwest Conference track and field title Saturday, tallying 60 points in the field events to give some solace to Coach Cleburne Price, who is under fire from the league office.

Overton Spencer's 220-yard dash victory in 20.8 seconds clinched the title for the Longhorns, their fourth consecutive SWC title and the 35th for Texas in 60 years of league competition.

The Longhorns went into the day with a shadow cast over Price who is under investigation by the SWC on a claim by sprinter Billy Jackson that he was paid money by Price. The coach denied the allegation.

The SWC faculty representatives said it would be 10 days before a decision was made on the matter.

Price said, "I would have hoped they would have cleared this thing up before the day started. It made it hard to think about winning a track championship with something like that still hanging over you."

Texas captured six first-place events with John Craig winning the mile and Dana LeDuck grabbing first place in the shot put.

A sellout crowd of 3,500 persons watched the championships under near perfect 80 degree weather at Texas Tech's track stadium.

Texas Christian got the day off to a fine start by winning the sprint relay in 40 seconds flat.

It was the only time the school had ever won an outdoor relay event in SWC history.

Texas A&M's Scottie Jones won the 120-yard high hurdles for the third consecutive year, tying his conference record of 13.7.

Neill O'Shaughnessy of Arkansas turned in the second best winning time in SWC history in the 800 with a clocking of 1:48.8.

Bill Collins of TCU, who anchored the Horned Frogs to the 440-relay victory, also won the 100-yard dash in 9.4. However, Collins came in second in Spencer's surprise victory in the 220.

Texas went into Saturday's finals with a 23-24 point lead over Baylor, which was expected to give the Longhorns their toughest battle. Texas defeated Baylor by one point to win the SWC indoor championship in January in Fort Worth.

Baylor finished second Saturday behind the Longhorns as expected.

Tim Son of Baylor won the 440 in 46.3 and Jimmy Galley of the Bears captured the 440 hurdles in 51.5.

Mark Collins anchored Baylor to victory in the mile relay, but he lost first-place points for the event were not enough to catch the Longhorns. Texas finished the day with 101 points to 90 for the second-place Bears.

Computerized Salaries May End Holdout Worry

NEW YORK (AP) — A player for the Atlanta Braves hits a hot streak, raising his statistics in all offensive categories, while his wife is at home feeding those figures into a calculator. The calculator cries jackpot and the ballplayer's wife goes downtown to make a down payment on a new set of furniture.

The above scenario may seem far-fetched but it is one baseball executive has his way, computerized salaries may be the wave of the future. No more holdouts, no more salary hassles, no more negotiating. Just lose your summer's statistics into a computer and presto, out comes next year's wages.

"I've talked to other general managers," said Eddie Robinson, vice president and general manager of the Atlanta Braves, "and we were kicking around ways to pay players fairly but not out of sight. There are a few general managers who think computerized salaries might work."

"My idea is this, pure and simple: take any player's offensive and defensive statistics and match them with the average level of performance for that position. If he reaches the average level of production, then he'll get the average salary. If his production is more, he'll get more; less, he'll get less."

Robinson says a statistical check through the last decade produces some amazing results. "Look back and take the average offensive and defensive statistics for all regulars (at least 400 at-bats) in any position," he says, "and I'll bet you the average production from year to year doesn't vary but a few points."

Robinson says the concept for figuring out salaries mathematically has its precedence "in any industry where you are paid for what you produce."

"Laborers in a certain category who are expected to do the same amount of work are paid on the same scale," Robinson said by telephone from Atlanta. "Ballplayers should be treated the same way."

"I don't mind paying a player who has produced the previous year. I don't mind that at all. In fact, I think they should be paid handsomely. But a lot of players are overpaid."

Robinson's system, all statistics would be weighed equally. "That's the most equitable way of doing things," Robinson says. "That way a singles hitter like Ralph Garr wouldn't be penalized."

"The appealing thing for me is that the system gives a player a chance to be compensated for improving his production, an incentive to becoming a better ballplayer."

BOBBY KNOCKS IN SIX—

Giants Rock Cubs With Murcer Bat

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bobby Murcer knocked in six runs with a three-run homer in the fourth inning and a bases-loaded triple in the seventh, powering the San Francisco Giants to their sixth straight victory, a 10-3 thrashing of the faltering Chicago Cubs Saturday.

Jim Barr, 6-3, survived a shutout by start to post the victory and contributed to the five-run fourth by jarring catcher George Mitterwald with a head-slide, creating one of two Chicago errors in the inning that made four of the runs unearned.

Don Kessinger's leadoff triple and Jose Cardenal's single gave the Cubs a 1-0 lead in the first inning but the Giants tied it in their half on walks to Bruce Miller and Murcer, a for-ought and Willie Montanez' single.

Andy Thornton had a run-scoring double as the Cubs scored twice in the top of the fourth before the Giants chased loser Bill Bonham, 4-4, in the bottom of the inning, sending nine batters to the plate.

Dave Rader's one-out single started the rally and Barr walked. Von Joshua was safe and Rader scored on second baseman Manny Trillo's throwing error trying for a forceout.

Miller singled and Barr scored by causing Mitterwald to drop the ball. Murcer then belted his fourth home run of the season, a 400-foot drive to right-center. Murcer's walk and Montanez' double added a run in the sixth.

Staub Paces Mets Victory

ATLANTA (AP) — Rusty Staub drove in two runs with a pair of singles and rookie Randy Tate pitched seven strong innings, leading the New York Mets to a 5-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday night.

The Mets bunched five singles and scored three runs in the opening inning off Ron Reed, 4-5.

Del Unser opened with a single, stole second and scored when Ed Kranepool lined a single to center. Kranepool, who had taken second on the throw to the plate, then left on Staub's single down the left field line.

Staub moved to second on a single by Joe Torre and scored when Mike Phillips singled to right.

Tate, 2-3, retired the first seven batters he faced before Vic Correll tripled into the right-field corner in the third and scored on Reed's single.

Tate gave up four hits in seven innings but was replaced by Bob Apodaca after walking the leadoff batter in the eighth. The Mets' fourth run came in the fifth inning as Felix Millan led off with a double and scored on Staub's single to center. An RBI single by John Miller in the ninth capped the scoring for the Mets.

So. Alabama Victim—Texas Explodes To 7-4 Victory

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas exploded for six runs in the fourth inning to defeat South Alabama 7-4 and advance to the third round of the NCAA South Central Regional baseball playoffs.

Pan American and South Alabama met in the second game of the doubleheader. It was the second game between the two teams. South Alabama defeated Pan American 8-7 in opening day Thursday.

The Longhorns overcame an early 2-1 deficit by sending 10 men to the plate in the fourth inning with Keith Moreland's two-run double and Rick Bradley's three-run homer highlighting the outburst. Texas pitcher Richard Wortham of Odessa, picked up his 14th victory of the season with a loss. He scattered five hits. Wortham, however, needed help from Terry Ray who retired the last six batters after Wortham yielded a lead-off single in the eighth.

South Alabama jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first inning on a walk to Mike Warren, Jerry Stamps' double and Pat Putnam's single.

The losing pitcher was Bill Sturgeon, 10-3.

SWC Retains Polygraph Rule Despite Criticism

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — The Southwest Conference retained its controversial polygraph rule Saturday in its annual spring meeting in the face of criticism that it won't work and gave the University of Texas a 10-day grace period in an investigation into the Longhorn track program.

Red Sox Punish California, 6-0

BOSTON (AP) — Manager Dick Williams had his California Angels take batting practice in the lobby of their hotel Saturday and left-hander Bill Lee of the Boston Red Sox made them look like it.

At the time, the SWC pointed out the polygraph, or lie detector, tests would be strictly voluntary. Critics said it could be a violation of civil rights and some added the SWC—the only conference in the country with such a rule—lost prospective high school athletes who were scared off by the provision in their scholarships.

The SWC appointed a committee Saturday headed by incoming President Ken Herrick of Texas Tech to come up with more detailed guidelines on how it wanted the polygraph procedure carried out.

Thompson said, "We want there to be no misunderstanding...We want to make sure there is no invasion of a person's rights."

Price has denied the charge. Cliff Speagle, the executive secretary of the SWC, said, "There will be a 10-day period in which the private institutions may review any penalties."

Thompson said the action by the conference to retain the polygraph was again unanimous and the league would take its program to the special

Indy Failures Push Major Drivers Back

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Sometimes the drivers who don't make it into the field for the Indianapolis 500 make more news than the drivers who do much to their chagrin.

Take Jim McElreath, for example. The 47-year-old veteran from Arlington, Tex., was supposed to be here today, gunning for his first Indy triumph in his 12th attempt.

But earlier this month at the Vigo County Fairgrounds just outside of nearby Terre Haute, McElreath got involved in a bit of a tangle during a sprint car race. What happened was that his car cartwheeled into the track's parking lot.

He wound up with two fractured vertebrae in his neck, a dislocated elbow and a variety of head injuries.

Perhaps in a perverse sort of way, it saved him from an emotional roller coaster like the one he rode in 1971. He'd just as soon forget that Indy 500, thank you. Three times he qualified for the 33-car starting field—and three times he was

Tennis Clinic Set For June

Old tennis racquets in any condition and old tennis balls are needed for use in a tennis clinic to be held jointly by the Park Center YMCA and Washington Youth Center.

The clinic will be partially funded by the Midland Junior Tennis Benefit held back in September and sponsored by the Midland National Bank.

The teaching staff for the clinic will be headed by Keith Diephraam, tennis pro at the Midland Country Club and Jim Hill, tennis pro at the Midland Racquet Club.

All donated equipment should be taken to the Central YMCA. Any child from eight to 16 should contact Don Clay at the Washington Youth Center or Nick Sanchez at the Parker Center Y.

Billy Williams Caps Oakland's 10-5 Win

CLEVELAND (AP) — Billy Williams' three-run homer in the fourth inning and four runs on only two hits in the sixth rallied the Oakland A's from a five-run deficit to a 10-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

The Indians held a 5-0 lead after three innings but the A's narrowed that when Sal Bando was hit by a pitch and Joe Rudi singled prior to Williams' sixth home run of the season off starter Eric Ralch, who was making his major league debut.

In the fifth, the A's narrowed it to 5-4 when Bert Campaneris scored on Bando's single.

Reliever Don Hood gave up a single to Rudi to open the sixth and walked Williams. John "Blue Moon" Odom made his first appearance for the Indians against his former team and Gene Tenace promptly singled Rudi home with the tying run.

Odom then walked Claudell Washington to load the bases and also walked Jim Holt and Bill North, forcing in two runs and putting the A's in front 7-5. Bando greeted Tom Buskey with a run-scoring grounder.

In the seventh, Teddy Martinez' two-run single produced

A's Committee Pledges Support

A Committee of Oakland Coliseum Board members and board Mayor John Reading pledged support to the Oakland A's efforts to increase attendance, but also ruled against any possible changes in the stadium contract.

Although Dick Allen still hadn't provided the Philadelphia Phils' attack with the expected home run thunder, Shortstop Larry Bowa says, "It's just him rooting the way he does... Richie is a plus."

Says leftfielder Greg Luzinski, "Everybody is excited to have him here. And more so after seeing his attitude."

Frank Robinson, Cleveland Indian Manager, should know before Monday whether his suspension and fine will stand, it was announced by AL President Lee McPhail. Robinson was suspended for three days and fined $250 after being involved in a shoving match with Umpire Jerry Neudecker May 17.

Track

Pole vaulter Bob Seagren pulled a tendon in his left leg Saturday during an International Track Assn. exhibition in New York and will miss the IFA meet in Madison Square Garden Wednesday.

Football

Bill Curry, veteran center who was president last year of the NFL Players Assn. and a leader of a controversial training camp walkout, is returning to the Green Bay Packers. Curry, 32, was acquired from the Los Angeles Rams for an undisclosed future draft choice, Coach Bart Starr said.

Basketball

The Phoenix Suns traded their top scorer, guard Charlie Scott, to the Boston Celtics for Paul Westphal and second round draft picks this year and next.

Hockey

The National Hockey League has been offered a limited TV contract for the 1975-76 season by NBC which would include only Stanley Cup playoff games.

FIRING BEGINS TUESDAY AT PBRPC RANGE—

Super Shooters Begin Arriving

The crackle of gun fire could be heard in the distance this weekend as shooters began arriving and practicing for the third Firearms Industry Super Shoot at the Permian Basin Rifle and Pistol Club.

shooters in the world are expected to be here when firing begins in earnest. The PBRPC range "has never looked so well-groomed and so well-maintained," R. J. (Bob) Maberry of the PBRPC stated.

More than $300,000 worth of guns and accessories will be on display during the meet. Guns, gun accessories of every variety, bullets, presses, scopes and other valuable items have been donated by the shooting industry for prizes. Total value is around $12,000.

Individual trophies for each match will be given. Grant awards will be presented after scores are tallied Friday night.

At noon, the same organization will furnish hot sandwiches, hamburgers, cold drinks, milk and coffee for the contestants.

Now, as president of the International Olympic Committee, he plans to go back and try to find a way of getting China's athletes through the bamboo curtain and into the Olympic Games.

body expects Taiwan to allow its athletes to compete as part of an All-China team. Killianian has repeatedly made it clear that he wants to see Mainland China, with its 800 million people, in the Olympics. He has thus far avoided saying what might happen to Taiwan if China is admitted.

Sember, Lamp Team Up To Give Cubs A Split

BY TED BATTLES

"We played together when we were at Tulsa University, so I was looking for a fastball down low," explained Midland relief pitcher Cliff Butcher...

That's just what Alexandria relief pitcher Cliff Butcher threw and Mike poled it over the left field fence for the game winning homer that gave the Cubs a 1-0 victory over the Aces and a split in their Texas League doubleheader Friday night at Cubs Stadium.

It partly made up for the 5-4 loss in the first game when the Aces came from behind 4-0 to yank out an eight-inning decision.

Dennis Lamp pitched a three-hit shutout in the second game for the Cubs for his second pitching victory as the Cubs backed him up with three snappy double plays.

"Cliff was the No. 2 pitcher on our Tulsa team that went to the winner's bracket finals in the College World Series in my freshman year," Sember explained. "So I knew what to expect." Steve Rogers, incidentally, now with the Montreal Expos, was the No. 1 pitcher on that Tulsa club.

Mike was elated over the game winner for another reason. "It was my first hit in four doubleheaders this year," he said. "And going 0-for-3 or 4 in seven straight games makes it rough to keep that batting average respectable."

It was an awesome blow and was a little surprising since balls weren't carrying for distance during the doubleheader because of the heavy air.

It broke up a scoreless pitching duel between Lamp and Alexandria's Frank Snook, who pitched a five-hitter.

"I'm not an overpowering pitcher so I just try to get batters to hit the ball on the ground," Lamp said. It paid off with the Cubs turning three double plays. Al Montreuil starting the first and Sember initiating the next two.

He also turned in a route-gouging performance, something the Cubs needed.

"Give us a rested bullpen and we'll win," outfielder Bill Bright. "We haven't had a rested bullpen for the last week and it has shown."

In the opener, Midland jumped ahead 4-0 in the fourth on a two-run single by Cesar Gonzalez and a two-run triple by Bill Droege. The Aces bounced back for three in the sixth, a two-run double by Gene Delyon and a one-run single by Mike Dupree the big blows.

They tied it in the seventh when Scott Brown hit a bases loaded sacrifice fly and then pinned the defeat on reliever Gary Jung in the eighth on Dupree's triple and Tucker Ashford's single.

The key hit was Bob Taylor's double in the seventh. Mike Champion had led off with a single and the Cubs were charging for the bunt as Taylor chopped the ball past third baseman Gonzalez. Cesar got a glove on it and slowed it down so that it trickled slowly into the outfield, letting runners go to third and second. That set up Brown's fly.

Dan Corder went the first 5-2-3 innings after a three-week layoff and was impressive.

Golden State Leads By 3-0

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Golden State Warriors' newly won believers include the humbled Washington Bullets.

"They've been the better team these three games, I'm willing to say that," Bullets guard Kevin Porter conceded after a 109-101 defeat Friday night in San Francisco's Cow Palace.

Coach Al Attles' Warriors, decided underdogs heading into the National Basketball Association championship series, are ahead 3-0 and could end the best-of-seven series with a coup de grace, fourth victory today on the Bullets' Landover, Md., home court.

"We've got quality in numbers," said Attles, who used all of his squad, from superstar Rick Barry to 12th man Steve Bracey, in the relatively easy third game victory.

Golden State was behind by 16 points before getting hot in game No. 1 at Landover, and they trailed by 13 at one point in the second game, which they won here 99-91 Tuesday night.

The Warriors built an eight-point lead Friday night in the opening quarter, in which Barry scored half his game-total 38 points, fell behind by two points twice midway in the game but were in command with a 12-point edge early in the fourth period.

"We made it tough for ourselves," said Barry. "We missed a lot of passes and shots in the first half. We could have been ahead by about 15 points in the second half, we just made fewer mistakes."

Two second stringers—although that status is almost meaningless the way Attles uses his bench—gave Barry the biggest assist. Forward Derrick Dickey scored 14 points in 30 minutes and center George Johnson had 10 points and nine rebounds in 16 minutes.

Bullets Coach K.C. Jones said, "I'm not surprised by the Warriors. I saw what they did in their playoff against the Chicago Bulls."

Table with 3 columns: Player, Points, Rebounds, Assists. Includes players like Barry, Dickey, Johnson, and Attles.

FLICKED ON IN CINCY 40 YEARS AGO—

Lights Changed Baseball

CINCINNATI (AP) — On the evening of May 24, 1933, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt pressed a gold telegraph key in the White House and baseball has never been the same.

The key turned on the lights on at Crosley Field and outfielders suddenly found themselves squinting into the glare in search of flyballs. Traveling secretaries found themselves juggling traveling arrangements, and husbands found another excuse to get out of the house at night.

The Cincinnati Reds, who hosted that first night game 40 years ago, will be commemorated the 40th anniversary of the game Saturday. The Reds were playing the same Philadelphia Phillies whom they beat 2-1 in that first night game.

The first night game was a success at the box office, with 20,422 coming to the old Reds' ballpark which has since been torn down.

"They came to see the fireworks as well as the game," said Ival Goodman, an outfielder who knocked in a run for the Reds in that game.

"Sometimes the fireworks made it pretty foggy. You had to wait for the ball to come out of the fog. It made it kind of difficult."

Goodman, who had played some night baseball in the minors, said he didn't have any doubts that the new idea would be successful in the major leagues.

"Every year, somebody was adding lights. It gives more people time to get out. Most people work in the daytime and then they were able to see a game."

"It made it a little more difficult on the ballplayers," he said. "Looking up into those lights was hard on the eyes and made them more tired."

Cincinnati scheduled seven night games in 1933, and club officials credited the innovation with helping to double club attendance. This year, the Reds have scheduled 53 night contests at Riverfront Stadium.

Goodman recalled that the popularity of the night baseball game occasionally got out of hand. In the sixth night game in 1933, the Reds oversold the seating capacity of Crosley Field by 9,000.

Fans overflowed the field and a woman named Kitty Burke found herself in the ballgame.

"She got a bat from Babe Herman," Goodman remembered. "I think Paul Dean was pitching. She hit the ball. Of course, she just lobbed it. As he went to tag her, she ran back into the crowd. That caused some excitement."

SABRES-FLYERS—

Buffalo Defenseman Says Hockey Season Too Long

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Buffalo Sabres defenseman Jim Schoenfeld thinks the hockey season is too long. Teammate Don Luce agrees. So they'll be doing their best to make the season one game shorter Sunday when they face the Philadelphia Flyers in the fifth game of the National Hockey League's championship series.

"Playing hockey until the 29th of May is crazy," said Schoenfeld. "The toughest thing is the mental side; it's tough getting up for 80 games in the regular season and then the playoffs. The physical part comes with hard work, but the mental side comes with psychological conditioning."

"I'd like to see the season end on May 15th at the latest, but it'll probably get longer before it gets shorter," said Schoenfeld.

"I think it would be better if the hockey playoffs ended right when the baseball season was beginning," offered Luce, who won the Masterton Trophy earlier in the week as the NHL player who best personified the qualities of dedication, perseverance and sportsmanship this season. "That way, we could get finished earlier in the summer and get more attention in the newspapers."

But this longest season in history can't end before Tuesday night—exactly eight weeks after the regular season ended. And when it finally ends, the league will have a champion that wasn't in the league 10 years ago. The defending champion Flyers joined the NHL in 1967, the Sabres entered in 1970.

Sabres right wing Rick Dudley thinks there might be a new titlist.

"When you play for nine months or so, you don't want to throw it away for lack of effort," he said, recalling the fact that training camp for this season opened in early September and will open for next season a little more than 100 days.

"You've got to give your best shot, and that's what our guys have done in this series. When it comes down to it, Dudley continued, 'a lot of guys have come through and surprised me. The guys who were supposed to come through have done it, but so have a lot of others—the guys who didn't get a lot of recognition, but have played their hearts out.'"

That kind of dedication has lifted the Sabres into a 2-2 tie in the best-of-seven series after dropping the first two games to the Flyers. Game Five will be played here Sunday afternoon in the air conditioned Spectrum—a far cry from the muggy heat at the Sabres' Memorial Auditorium home.

The Spectrum is also an arena that has haunted the five-year-old Sabres, who haven't won there in their history. That string covers 13 losses and two ties.

To listen to the Sabres, that frustration will end Sunday.

"Definitely," said Sabres right wing Jim Lorentz, who scored the winning goal Thursday night. "It doesn't matter to me where the game is played, but we've got to win there some time, and Sunday is as good a time as any."

Sam Houston Nabs NAIA Regional Spot

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Sam Houston provided the hitting power Friday as Sam Houston State University defeated Grand Canyon of Arizona 13-4 and 8-4 in the finals of the Area 2 National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics baseball regional playoff.

The victories sent the Bearkats into the NAIA college world series at St. Joseph, Mo., May 30-June 1.

Sam Houston is 40-12 for the year. Grand Canyon is 46-19.

Some serious talk about West Texas gas

Living in the middle of an area known for its abundant gas deposits, it's hard to imagine West Texans threatened by a shortage of natural gas. However, there is the possibility that governmental regulations could create a shortage here. If we are not vigilant, we could see price controls make it impractical for producers to drill additional wells in this area. What can the average citizen do to prevent that from happening? I would suggest that he be aware of the problem and support Pioneer's efforts to maintain our gas reserves.

Letters To The Editor

House Speaker Intervenes To Head Off Quick Passage Of Strip Mining Measure

To The Editor:
Nightmare is compounded of wrong assumptions, and in this case the wrong assumptions are all mine. When a small group of Midland and Odessa citizens met to draft a proposal for a public meeting in Odessa and, if funding were available, also in Midland, we decided that the issue of public policy is closer to the heart of our community than energy resources and the long range plans of the private sector and government with respect to energy.

Since we were being funded to deal with a public issue from an ethical-moral perspective, we assumed that a meeting which dealt with the energy crisis in terms of social ethics would be useful, although highly unusual. Normally the energy crisis is dealt with in purely political and economic terms, although a number of church leaders in our area have spoken to the issue of the proper stewardship of what has been given to us. Our major interest was proper stewardship, given our needs and our prospects.

I had also assumed that by beginning the formal speeches with a congressman concerned strictly with political and economic questions (and I do not agree with his approach nor with aspects of his proposed energy bill), would give the rest of the speakers and panelists a chance to develop their approach in contrast to his. They tried to do just that, but their attempt was not followed by everyone present at the meeting.

Mr. Kevin-John McIntyre, for instance, gave a talk on James Fenimore Cooper's "The Pioneers" and pointed out that the novel was prophetic in its criticism of the waste of resources, wrong laws and regulations, and a Natty Bumppo style of individualism which did not solve Bumppo's problems and cannot solve ours.

The Midland housewife-student spoke as a financially poor individual, and asked both the congressman and Mr. McIntyre to step down from clouds of theory and abstraction and learn to deal with the human problems at their doorstep and in their neighborhood.

Attorney Richard Abalos was critical of the oil producers, but even more critical of the congressman and Mr. McIntyre. In short, none of the speakers were in agreement, although (U.S. Rep. Bob) Eckhardt and McIntyre agreed on several important points, albeit for different reasons.

I had assumed, furthermore, that if we were to invite a congressman to such a meeting, he should be a Texan whose views on energy are well known both here and in Washington, D.C. Since Congressman Eckhardt insists on discussing energy in purely economic terms, yet is a candid and remarkably transparent individual, he was, in my view, no threat to the program or the audience. I have always thought the real threat to be the politician who comes here to say what you and I want to hear, then returns to Washington to vote otherwise.

The planning committee assumed, also, that energy is an issue for all to discuss privately and publicly: specialists and non-specialists, producer and consumer, educated and uneducated, rich and poor, blacks, chicanos or whites. It should have been clear from the programs in Midland and Odessa that most participants were non-specialists who knew little about wellhead costs or the stratigraphy of the Permian Basin. They were not even specialists on conscience; they merely tried to speak from the conscience to the conscience.

Much was left unsaid, although several independent producers and Mr. Ed Thompson of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association helped to make the open discussion a success by elo-quently and effectively presenting both the information and the views of oil producers in the area.

Finally, I concluded after the first two reports in The Midland Reporter-Telegram on the energy meetings that since the reporter's perception of the meeting differed significantly from the written evaluations we have received from virtually every member of the audience, and that our tape recordings show that several statements purported to have been made were, in fact, not made, it would be in the interest of friendship and toleration not to make a fuss about these differences.

In one respect, at least, we guessed right. The meeting in Midland was spirited, polite and amicable. I wish more Midlanders would have been present to observe Mr. Ed Thompson in action -- an extraordinarily gracious and congenial man, especially with those whose views are different from his own.

I wish, moreover, that more oil people had been present to inform the audience on the day-to-day risks and anxieties of the producer. Personal invitations were sent but with little success. I was especially sorry that the mayor did not respond to our personal invitation to attend the Midland meeting.

In conclusion, let me plead the obvious: that in a democracy in which there are honest differences of opinion, toleration and fundamental honesty are basic. I hope this letter will help to correct some of the recent misrepresentations of the energy meetings.

No Danger Seen

To The Editor:

I cannot believe that you honestly expect your readers to become agitated over your tempest in a teapot you have brewed through your paper over Dr. Kevin-John McIntyre, professor at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin. It has been your paper that has given us Dr. McIntyre and his views. You have deemed him newsworthy.

We have all been subjected to the lines of thinking as students which simply did not wash, and Dr. McIntyre's remarks no more reflect a clear and present danger to the inherent virtues of our system than do your efforts represent a threat to high-level journalism.

A Subversive Effort

To The Editor:

The editorial that appeared in the May 19 edition of The Reporter-Telegram is a fine example of the cheap editorial nemesis that usually appears in this publication. Obviously, this is a subversive effort to have the mentioned UTPB professor dismissed from his position for participating in a very relevant issue. It will indeed be a very tragic moment if this gentleman is dismissed, and I, among others, will consider it an assault on our most basic right--freedom of speech.

To the Midland man that threatened to "hold up" his donation (to UTPB) because of this professor's attitude, I question whether a mental capacity that limited could possibly have anything to offer an educational institution. I also question whether the stated person is not merely the product of an editor's distorted imagination.

I wish to appeal to the citizens of Midland to disregard this assault on worthwhile editorialization. It was most

Consumer Pays

To The Editor:

The following statement will come as a shock to about 99.9 per cent of Americans. No business pays taxes, wages or any other costs. It merely collects from the consumer and passes these costs on to the governmental agencies, workers, suppliers etc. Therefore, any increase in taxes, whether income taxes, unemployment taxes, school taxes, city taxes, county taxes, other taxes, workmen's compensation premiums, wages and salaries (minimum or otherwise), is paid by the ultimate consumer.

Thus, it should be obvious that taxes allegedly designed to soak the rich, also soak the very poorest and all in between. The minimum wage increases always end up increasing wages all up the line and increases all prices, both to the rich and poor alike. Then the dog starts chasing its tail again.

Almost 40 cents out of every dollar spent by the ultimate consumer is for taxes in one form or another. When Congress, legislatures, schools, cities, counties and all other governmental subdivisions increase taxes, they are actually increasing prices to everyone.

The ever-increasing prices of goods and services can be laid at the feet of your elected officials who have the power to write laws and impose taxes. Every interference of business by government increases the costs of goods and services the consumer must pay.

When prices go up, don't blame the businessmen; blame those who advocate and vote for more government services, controls, taxes etc.

Texans Ripped Off By 'Chubbers'

By STUART LONG

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — One week the House of Representatives was in session 59 hours, Speaker Bill Clayton announced proudly on a Saturday afternoon.

By contrast, the Senate had been in session only 139 hours since they came to town in January.

Sit and watch the House of Representatives and you will see the difference from what goes on at the other end of the State Capitol.

The House will be voting on the same proposition a dozen times, in slightly varied form. The Senate will have worked out its differences, or at least reached a meeting of the minds to such an extent that once a bill is brought up, odds are 50 to 1 that it will pass.

The House is full of "chubbers," the legislative slang term given to those who waste time, hour after hour, by useless points of order. By wasting the time, they are able to prevent action on whatever legislation is down the list of bills to be considered.

It is a fine way to kill bills you do not want, even if a huge majority of the House would vote for the measure if they ever got a chance.

A good example of time wasting came the other day when Rep. Bob Davis of Irving appeared on the House floor without a tie. House rules require members to wear a coat and tie during sessions.

Four times in a couple of hours the business of lawmaking was brought to a halt when Rep. James Kaster of El Paso broke in to raise a point of order that Davis was not wearing a tie.

Four times, Speaker Pro Tempore Dick Slack of Pecos "sustained the point of order." But Davis kept taking off his tie. Finally Slack growled, on the fourth Kaster point of order, which was accompanied by a request that Davis be removed from the House by the sergeant at arms:

"Put on your tie, Mr. Davis."

Davis did, and the business of lawmaking was resumed, half an hour or so wasted. And the "chubbers" turned to other ways to delay the process. That one had worn off its humor.

As a result of this sort of thing, committees which are supposed to meet at 2:30 p.m. often meet at 7 p.m. Those which are supposed to meet at 7:30 p.m. do not get quorums because the House has stayed in session until 7 p.m. and members dash off to get dinner before returning.

Again, the result is that legislative proposals do not even get considered. Witnesses who have waited since 2:30 to testify find there is no one to testify to.

"Chubbers" also include wise crackers who make comical points of order, or ask parliamentary questions, and use humor to waste away the hours of legislative time.

The result is, of course, that a great many important matters of state policy never get considered. Either they are lost in committee, or they are lost in the pile of bills on the House calendar which are never reached for consideration.

Look over the list of things you can already see will be left undone by the session which winds up June 2. Pressing problems of reform in school finance, child care, crime and delinquency, prison reform, energy policy, insurance reform, tax inequity and natural resource policy seem certain to be left on the shelf, unattended to.

Mainly, the issues which will be tended to are those with well-organized lobbies which are able to focus attention, drag members to committee meetings, and watch from the galleries to see that their measures are not "chubbed" to death.

The delinquent child, the mounting energy crisis, the insurance buyers have no lobbyists to press their causes through to completion. They have their legislative sponsors who cry without effect of the need to do this or that. But it takes organization to get one's problems handled in the mighty few hours of actual lawmaking available to the legislators.

There is really no cure for it, because legislators have rights to say what they please, except to elect legislators who will use what time they have more judiciously, and give the other legislator a chance to have his say, too.

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A fast move by Speaker Bill Clayton has headed off immediate passage of a Senate bill imposing Texas Railroad Commission regulation on strip mining of coal, lignite and uranium.

Sponsors apparently had the votes to suspend rules and send the bill, despite promises that Clayton would not do so after the measure won tentative approval, 116-12.

But as they sought recognition for a motion to suspend rules, Clayton ignored them and laid out the next bill, cutting off their motion.

Wants Amendments
"He wants to have the chance to put on some amendments," one sponsor later said.

Representatives defeated amendments that would have removed uranium mines from the bill, despite promises that uranium would be covered under a weaker House bill empowering the State Soil and Water Conservation Board to regulate surface mining for all minerals but coal and lignite.

"Uranium has raped the surface of Texas more than lignite or coal. In my district we have a ditch that is two miles long, as wide as this gallery, 100 feet deep and full of stagnant water," said Rep. Jon Newton, D-Beeville. "The whole game plan of these two bills is that the Texas legislature should not regulate uranium."

Moves Rules Suspension
The House bill came up first, and Clayton personally intervened when it appeared backers of stronger strip mining regulation had the votes to substitute the Senate bill for it.

He assured the House the Senate bill would come up. After the House bill passed in its original form, Clayton personally moved to suspend rules and bring up the Senate measure at once.

In other action, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill granting numerous tax exemptions totaling about $2 million over the next two years.

Before passing the bill, however, the House removed an amendment added earlier this week raising the size of estates that are exempt from inheritance taxes from $25,000 to $60,000.

Rep. Joe Wyatt, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said the amendment would cut into state revenue for this biennium by about $58 million, reducing funds available for the budget and public school finance.

The bill includes sales tax exemptions for such things as Campfire Girl candy, equipment bought for Little League baseball and football teams and purchases of small shrimp boats. It also reduces the admissions tax for skating rinks and gives the state comptroller authority to set collection dates for various taxes.

House members accepted the Senate's request for a conference committee to work out some $700 million worth of differences between the two chambers' versions of the state budget bill.

Clayton named as House conferees Reps. Bill Prensall, D-Bryan; Walt Parker, D-Denton; Mickey Leland, D-Houston; Jim Nugent, D-Kerrville, and Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches.

Leland said he is the first black ever to serve on the appropriations conference committee.

Senate conferees are Sen. A. M. Aldin, D-Paris; Chad Brooks, D-Pasadena; Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells; Bill Moore, D-Bryan; and A. R. Schwartz, D-Galveston.

The House postponed until Tuesday a proposal to raise from $400 million to $800 million the amount of state water development bonds—a pet measure of Clayton's. The speaker explained the delay by saying several members who would vote for the measure were absent "and we don't want to take a chance."

Also postponed was legislation authorizing issuance of part of the additional bonds, contingent upon voter approval of the hike in the bond limit.

Senators passed and sent to the governor a bill creating a 10-member council headed by the governor and lieutenant governor to establish a state energy policy.

Legislators agreed upon, and sent the governor, a bill extending the land commissioner's power to make land swaps to consolidate state-owned tracts, mainly in West Texas.

The House tentatively approved bills that would: —Make minor changes in the 1973 lobby control act.

—Set up a nine-member state commission to make and enforce standards for jails.

Too Much Time Off? Congress Believes It Needs More

By SPENCER HUGHES
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Is Congress working hard enough, or does it indulge in too many free vacations and long weekends at taxpayer expense?

There's no doubt both chambers take frequent recesses. Since it reconvened

Jan. 14 after a 23-day Christmas vacation, Congress has taken two 19-day recesses and has now gone home for another.

Looking up the road a bit, it plans three more 19-dayers for Independence Day, Columbus Day and Thanksgiving — plus a whole month off in August for a summer vacation.

Some people think the long and frequent recesses are helping destroy public confidence in Congress.

They believe that the average person, who works 40 to 50 weeks a year, doesn't understand why Congress should take off two to three months while the nation's problems are mounting.

"I'm just amazed at the delays," said Sen. Jesse Helms, a conservative Republican from North Carolina.

"I know the leadership has its problems trying to schedule votes and home visits for the convenience of members but I believe the American people are watching this, and they resent it. Until we buckle down, we're not going to eliminate this hostility."

Fred Wertheimer, legislative director of the liberal-leaning Common Cause, a leader in the fight for reform of congressional procedures, made the same point in a rather more muted way: "It sends the wrong signal to the country, when we are facing economy problems and a severe energy problem; when they go off before either chamber has even considered energy conservation legislation."

Wertheimer was referring to the energy tax bill, which was ready for House floor debate but was put aside until after the current recess.

Still, despite the many recesses, Congress has a reasonable list of legislative achievements to its credit so far this year. Many members defend the time off as needed to let congressmen and senators get back home and listen to what the people are saying and thinking — a vital activity for legislators.

refugees from Indochina, the largest budget resolution calling for a $68.8-billion federal deficit, railroad and food-stamp legislation, a $5.3-billion appropriation to create more jobs and securities reform legislation. It also passed farm and strip-mining bills, although they were vetoed. An emergency housing bill is nearing final action.

The House has already completed the most important military policy bill, the $32-billion procurement authorization and an emergency job-creating public works measure. The Senate has taken final action on consumer protection, filibuster reform and standby gasoline rationing.

Possibly the most ardent defender of the numerous recesses is Sen. Robert W. Packwood, R-Ore., who has been pressing for them for years, and who vehemently denies that jockeying and taking it easy during days off is the rule.

"Work isn't just what happens on the Senate floor. Work is also answering letters, meeting

New Law Fails To Halt Malpractice Rate Strike

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has signed into law a bill designed to provide California doctors malpractice insurance at a low initial cost.

But a spokesman for the California Medical Association said the governor's action Friday would not halt the statewide doctors' malpractice rate strike that began in northern California on May 1.

"You have to understand the bill provides no immediate solution to present crisis," said David Willett, a CMA attorney. Willett said it would not send doctors back to work.

The new law is designed to provide anesthesiologists and other doctors with malpractice insurance for between $1,000 and $2,000 for the rest of the year — rather than about $9,000, Brown's office said.

Invented Bathyscape

The bathyscape, a deepwater diving chamber, was invented by Auguste Piccard, father of Jacques Piccard. He also designed balloons for the stratosphere. The diving chamber derives its buoyancy from lighter-than-water gasoline just as the balloons derive theirs from lighter-than-air gas.

Tree Dedication Service Monday

A tree planted to honor the son of a Midland couple will be dedicated in a brief service at 10:30 a.m. Monday in front of St. Ann's Catholic Church Rectory on the corner of W. Texas and M streets.

Air Force Capt. Mark G. Danielson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rod Danielson of 4340 W. Denger St., was aboard a C-130 transport plane which was shot down June 18, 1972, over South Vietnam, his father said Saturday.

Three of the 15 men aboard the craft were rescued the next day. The other 12 since have been officially declared dead, but the Danielsons consider their son to be missing in action.

The public is welcome at the Memorial Day service, Danielson said.

Ford Signs $405-Million Asian Refugee Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford Saturday signed a $405 million aid bill for the relocation and settlement of Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees.

The signing included both authorization and appropriation of the funds.

A total of $305 million will be handled by the State Department for relocation and resettlement of more than 100,000 refugees, who were airlifted out of Vietnam and Cambodia in the final days of the wars there.

Another $100 million is earmarked for education, job and health services to be administered through the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Ford administration originally requested $607 million for the refugees.

Congress took final action on emergency aid for Indochina refugees earlier last week. The authorization bill requires the refugees be made aware that they are free to return home if they wish and that their expenses will be paid. It also requires Ford to report efforts to recover all possible U.S. aid for South Vietnam and Cambodia before their collapse and put the money back in the U.S. Treasury.

Ruff In Dummy At Right Time

It is usually a poor idea for the defenders to make dummy ruff a side suit. For one thing, this merely furthers declarer's plans; there is no reason for the defenders to do declarer's work for him.

Another argument against making declarer ruff in dummy is the danger of a ruff and discard. If declarer, as well as dummy, is void of the suit you lead, declarer can discard a loser from his hand while he ruffs in dummy. This usually gives declarer a trick that he could not win without your help.

Exception To Rule

There are exceptions to the rule that declarer gains by ruffing in dummy.

To begin with, declarer may have only winning cards in the suit that dummy can ruff. It may be quite useless to declarer to ruff a winning card.

Second, declarer may not wish to ruff with a trump in dummy that is needed for some other purpose. For example, it may cost declarer a trick to ruff with the ace of trumps.

Third, declarer may want to postpone the ruff until he has begun to set up a side suit. The defenders may gain by forcing declarer to take the ruff in dummy prematurely.

This is a rather subtle point, so perhaps we ought to see it in practice:

East wins the first trick with the queen of hearts and may cash another high heart or not, as he pleases. His big problem is whether or not to lead trumps.

If East returns a trump, South wins and leads his singleton diamond, losing a finesse to East's queen. Now East can no longer defeat the contract. (In fact, if East fails to cash the second heart trick, he will lose that, too.)

For example, suppose East returns another trump or a club. South takes both black aces and ruffs a club with dummy's third trump. He then leads the king of diamonds from dummy for a ruffing finesse.

That is, if East plays the ace of diamonds, South will ruff. If East plays a low diamond, South will discard a heart and continue with another high diamond from dummy.

Established Diamonds

Sooner or later, East must play the ace of diamonds, and South will ruff it. Then declarer will return to dummy by ruffing a club with dummy's fourth trump. The rest of the diamonds are established, and South can get rid of all of his losers.

East can defeat the contract by taking two heart tricks and then leading a third heart at the beginning of the hand. This forces dummy to ruff prematurely.

South cannot use the diamonds without first drawing two rounds of trumps, leaving only one trump in dummy. He then leads a diamond, losing a finesse to the queen. East returns a club to the ace.

South can ruff a club with dummy's last trump and can lead the king of diamonds to ruff out East's ace. But then there is no way to get back to dummy. South would enjoy having another trump in dummy, but he has been forced to use up dummy's trumps.

Nor can South hope to ruff out all of his losing clubs. Even if South could keep getting to his hand safely, East would overruff the last club ruff.

Forcing dummy to ruff is an exceptional maneuver, but don't ignore it altogether. Think of the exceptions to the rule and see if the dummy and your own hand seem to call for exceptional rather than customary tactics.

Dirt, Squirt & Quirt
 FARM, DAIRY AND RANCH NEWS
 By CHARLES W. GREEN
 Midland County Agent

Rain showers dotted the county on several occasions last week. The moisture was needed and appreciated in most cases, although some damage from hail and washing was reported on newly planted crops. Some replanting may be necessary in some areas, but for the most part the rain will be beneficial. Generally amounts ranged from 1/4 to 1 1/4 inches. More of the county was covered by significant amounts than on any other occasion this spring. Ranges will benefit from the moisture in bringing on grass now that weeks largely are going dormant.

Cotton is "still in the ball game," according to an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Cotton was considered on its last leg by many folks last fall due to declining prices brought on by lack of demand. Although the overall outlook hasn't changed considerably over the last few months, there are a few bright spots," believes Charles Baker.

Despite reduced world consumption of cotton and the highest world cotton stocks since 1966, the bright side of the picture shows a drastic reduction in U.S. and world cotton acreage this year along with an increasing demand as economic conditions improve.

The Upland cotton acreage in the U.S. is expected to be down almost 30 per cent from 1974 levels, points out the Texas A&M University System specialist. Texas farmers will probably plant about 19 per cent less cotton than last year although plantings could increase due to weather problems that have affected early plantings of corn and sorghum in some sections of the state.

Prospective plantings for 1975 were estimated at 4.3 million acres in Texas on March 1, down 1 million acres from 1974. In the U.S. plantings are expected to be down more than 4 million acres from the 1974 crop. Major reductions in cotton acreage are expected in the southeastern states, especially Georgia and South Carolina where farmers plan to plant less than half their 1974 acreage. Failure of Congress to override the President's veto on the new farm bill leaves the cotton producer with a 38-cent per pound target or support price and a 34.27-cent loan price," notes Baker. This loan price will automatically become the floor for 1975 cotton and virtually the floor for last year's crop. Farmers still holding their 1974 crop can easily weigh the cost of holding against the new floor levels. Of course, prices could move above the 1975 price if textile demand improves, adds the economist.

It won't be long until a real common question asked by home gardeners will be "Why are my squash blooms falling off?" Squash, cucumber, watermelon and to some degree cantaloupes have both male and female flowers on the same plant. In order for fruit set to occur, pollen must be transferred from the male flower to the female flower. This is usually accomplished by insects and the most common insect is the honey bee. If the pollen is not transferred from the male to the female flower, then the squash plant will fail to set fruit.

The female flowers of the squash plant are readily identified, because they have the small immature fruit directly behind the showy petals. The male blooms have no such fruit behind the petals. Generally, but not always, the first blooms to appear on the squash plant are the male blooms and since they do not set fruit, will naturally fall off. If female and male blooms are open on the plant at the same time and fruit set fails to occur, you can bet the problem is lack of pollination.

With a large majority of the vegetable gardens already planted across the county, home gardeners are encouraged to save their surplus seed for their gardens this fall or next spring. Although there are optimum storage conditions for different vegetable seeds depending upon various factors, most vegetable seed can be stored quite satisfactorily in the home refrigerator (40 to 50 degrees F.) for periods of 3 to 5 years. For home storage of vegetable seeds, the seed should be packaged and placed in an airtight container such as a coffee can with a tight fitting lid or a glass jar and set in the refrigerator.

Permian Basin OIL & GAS LOG

Atoka Lime Yields Condensate, Gas In Lea Region

Adobe Oil Co. of Midland No. 1-AA-Y Federal, South-Central Lea County, N. M., yielded, developed gas and condensate on a drillstem test in the Atoka lime.

Open four hours, the test was from 12,110 to 12,210 feet. Gas surfaced in 18 minutes and flowed at the maximum stabilized rate of 1,418,000 cubic feet per day through a 1/4-inch choke. Then, through a 3/8-inch choke, two hours, gas volume decreased from 3,100,000 cubic feet per day to 1,325 cubic feet and stabilized.

Recovered 30 feet of 55-gravity condensate, 1,186 feet of gas-cut water blanket. Initial flowing pressure was 1,663 pounds, and the final flowing pressure was 764 pounds.

Location is 1,560 feet from north and 1,830 feet from west lines of section 10-23-34e.

Drilling continued below 12,214 feet on 13,500-foot contract. The closest Morrow production is

Extensions Final To Edwards Fields

Extensions have been completed in two Edwards County fields, and another was making production tests.

North American Royalties, Inc. has finished No. 4-B Jack Mann as a 2 1/2-mile northeast extension to the Jack Mann (Canyon) field, 16 miles northwest of Rockspings.

It rated a calculated, absolute open flow of 2,250 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 5,530-5,573 feet, which had been acidized with 560 gallons.

Location is 2,000 feet from south and 750 feet from east lines of section 3, HEAWT survey.

Second Extender

The Roy Baker (Canyon) field gained a two-mile southwest extension with completion of the firm's No. 4-38 Roy Baker, about 16 miles northwest of Rockspings.

Calculated, absolute open flow was for 500,000 cubic feet of gas per day, producing through perforations at 3,219-3,265 feet.

It spots 467 feet from north and 614 feet from west lines of section 40, BS&F survey.

NAR also was testing at No. 5-13 Roy Baker, 1/4-mile north stepout to production in the Roy Baker field.

Through perforations at 2,026-2,226 feet, it flowed an unreported time on a 16-64-inch choke, at the rate of 105,000 cubic feet daily. It was turned to a 10-64-inch choke to continue tests, with 23 barrels of lost water remaining to recover.

It spots 1,090 feet from northwest and 510 feet from southwest lines of section 15, Washington County RR survey, about 15 miles north of Rockspings.

James A. Underwood

J. A. Underwood Honored By Conoco

James A. Underwood, senior staff assistant with Continental Oil Co.'s Production Department in Midland, recently was presented with a watch in recognition of 30 years service with the company.

Underwood began his career with Conoco as a roustabout first class at Forsan. He progressed through various assignments at Texon, Big Spring and Sweetwater before transferring to Midland as staff assistant in 1955. He was promoted to senior staff assistant in 1972.

Sutton, Runnels Gain New Testers

Exploratory tests have been slated in Runnels and Sutton counties.

Frizzell Exploration Co. of Abilene accounted for the 4,800-foot Runnels tests to be drilled about 5 1/2 miles southeast of Wingate, in section 80, block 63, HT&B survey.

No. 1 A. B. Gray, 620 feet from north and 1,400 feet from east lines of the section, is an east offset to a depleted Gardner discovery, and 1 1/4 mile

IPAA Chief For Deregulation Of Secondary, Tertiary Crude

WASHINGTON—C. John Miller of Allegan, Mich., president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, has urged the Federal Energy Administration to free from price controls domestic crude oil recovered by costly secondary and tertiary methods.

Citing past and recent congressional action which recognized this phase of crude production deserved special consideration, Miller said in a letter to FEA Administrator Frank G. Zarb: "The IPAA very strongly believes that the quickest way for this country to become substantially independent of foreign sources of crude oil is to allow a free market price for energy."

The IPAA president urged consideration of administrative decontrol of oil produced by secondary and tertiary processes, "pending the attainment of complete oil price decontrol." Miller pointed out that the Senate on May 1 adopted an amendment by Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., to Senate Bill 621 to allow incremental secondary-tertiary production to sell at the highest price allowed for domestic crude oil. The Senate also voted down an amendment to place a ceiling price of $7.50 on this type production.

"The Senate by this action has again recognized the justification to accord secondary-tertiary production separate and special treatment," Miller said, as it had previously received in the Tax Reduction Act of 1975.

"It is estimated that billions of barrels of oil can be recovered from existing fields by improved tertiary methods for oil recovery. In this time of energy crisis, it is prudent to encourage this known and existing source in every way possible," the IPAA president stated.

He pointed out that by allowing a higher price for crude oil produced from all secondary and tertiary projects would extend the lives of many existing wells and encourage the initiation of new projects. "This action would also provide impetus for more intensive research and extensive field testing to develop and improve commercial methods of increasing crude oil recovery," Miller stated.

Gulf Oil Creates Minority Relations Director Position

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — Daniel G. Kean has been appointed to the new position of director-minority relations for Gulf Oil Corp. He had been director-equal employment opportunity since 1973.

Kean, a native of Louisville, Ky., joined Gulf in 1964 as its first black marketing representative and assisted in the acquisition of more than 70 service stations—many of them operated by black dealers—in black communities across the country in the 1960s.

TIPRO President Claims Independent Oil, Gas Producers Must Be Optimists

By MAX B. SKELTON
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — George B. Mitchell says an independent oil and gas producer must be an optimist.

Mitchell is president of the 4,500-member Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association, which opens its 29th annual meeting today.

"By any measure, our industry and perhaps our nation are now undergoing some of the most turbulent times ever experienced," the Houston oilman said while reviewing his two years as head of the trade group.

"In the midst of a grave energy crisis, this industry is under the broadest political assault in its history," Mitchell said, weighing the hostility from politicians and the public, might give up in despair.

"But an independent producer by nature has to be an optimist," he said. "For me, there is another more fundamental factor to weigh in the balance, the knowledge that unleashing our full capability to find oil in this country is absolutely vital to the survival of our country and perhaps the free world."

Mitchell added he still has enough faith in the American people "to believe we will not suffer all the bad things some are threatening."

"This year we have had to meet head-on the full brunt of a misguided challenge to percentage depletion," he said. "Still ahead lie the equally or more crucial tests represented by the proposed 'windfall profits' tax, which is nothing less than a wellhead price rollback, and the battles over national gas price, and allocations-regulation."

WASHINGTON OIL— Other Industries Urge Decontrol Of Natural Gas

By CLYDE LA MOTTE

WASHINGTON—A group of major industries is rallying behind the petroleum industry in urging Congress to decontrol the wellhead price of natural gas, at least the new supplies of gas entering the interstate market for the first time.

These industries are doing this not out of a surge of kindness for natural gas producers but because of the impact natural gas shortages are having on them and their customers.

API Commitees To Hold Annual Meet Next Month

WASHINGTON—Energy officials from both sides of the Atlantic Ocean will be featured speakers at the American Petroleum Institute's Annual Finance and Accounting Conference at San Francisco, Calif., June 12-13.

G. Certi, assistant secretary, Continental Shelf Policy Division, Department of Energy, London, and Charles J. DiBona, executive vice president, American Petroleum Institute, Washington, will speak at the second general session at 11 a. m. June 13.

Principal speakers at the first general session at 11 a. m. June 12 will be former Undersecretary of the Treasury Charles E. Walker of Charles E. Walker Associates, Washington, and pollster Louis Harris of Louis Harris & Associates, New York.

Registration begins at 3 p. m. June 11 at the Fairmont Hotel. The conference will begin at 8:30 a. m. June 12 with a meeting of the Finance and Accounting committees.

Mid-Continent Assigns Rose

DALLAS — A. C. Rose of Houston has been named public affairs chairman of the Oil Information Committee of Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Assn., L. R. Johnston, Houston, OIC state chairman, has announced.

Rose is public relations manager of Getty Oil Company's Mid-Continent Exploration and Production Division.

Johnston, who is vice president, Gulf Oil Co. — U.S., said Rose would direct speaker programs and special public affairs activities of the OIC, which is the Texas oil and gas industry's statewide public information and service program.

Further, these spokesmen are emphasizing what this means to consumers of a wide range of products and what it means in terms of jobs in plants and factories from coast to coast that require natural gas in their operation, either as feedstocks or as an essential fuel in processing of their products.

In an effort to strengthen their voice in Washington and elsewhere, some of these major users of natural gas are in the early stages of creating an organization to let the government and the public know how important the natural gas issue is to everyone.

At a session in Washington last week, Thomas J. Devine, vice president of the Celanese Corp., speaking on behalf of 23 independent petrochemical companies, stressed how essential adequate supplies are to his group and to people who use petrochemical-based products.

He cited the needs of the textile industry, where almost 90 per cent of the textile output in the United States is made from petrochemical-based fibers. Other examples: 78 per cent of the nation's rubber is based on petrochemicals, 29 billion pounds of plastics are made each year from petrochemicals, ammonia from natural gas forms the backbone of the nation's fertilizer industry, and pesticides and herbicides also come from petrochemicals.

Devine estimated that a sustained reduction of only 15 per cent of natural gas feedstocks to the petrochemical industry would mean a loss of 1.8 million jobs in the U.S. and a loss of $85.7 billion in production value.

The petrochemical group spokesman said the impact on that industry would be felt in all regions of the United States. He said it would be felt by the textile industry in Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia. "It will

Oil Companies Plug Away In Spite Of Legislation

By JACK WEBB
Casper News Service

A man who had become wealthy through oil was sitting in his home recently fuming about Congress.

"It just gets me mad," he said, as his eyes roved restlessly over jeweled Arabian daggers and other mementoes of a career in oil. "Don't these stupid people realize that oil companies are performing a civic service, that they are manufacturers of mankind, keeping the wheels of industry turning?"

Now this sort of talk is enough to give the average congressman pause.

Can it really be true that oil companies are angels in disguise, unfairly attacked by venal congressmen afflicted with the odd anti-oil industry mentality so prevalent today?

Charles Maxwell, an eloquent analyst for New York's C. J. Lawrence, leans toward the angel theory. As Maxwell sees it, Congress is lumbering around, putting new restrictions on oil companies, while the oil companies are doing their best to provide plenty of cheap energy.

"The oil companies have done a very fine job of making available large amounts of oil and gas at cheap prices," Maxwell said.

"Politicians, however, are blaming the oil companies for oil shortages and higher prices."

"This has been translated from talk to action in Congress to effectively tax and regulate oil companies more closely, and in the final analysis to take away from them some of the profits they've had the last two years. All sorts of things have occurred or been proposed—phasing out of the foreign tax credit, a possible windfall profit tax, import allocations and so on."

Meanwhile, as Maxwell sees it, the oil companies have been plugging away, trying to keep the wheels of industry lubricated.

"Their capital expenditure has been about 10 per cent higher than total earnings over the last two years," Maxwell said. "They are making a lot of money, with profits up 40 per cent in 1973 and 70 per cent in 1974."

"But they are taking this money and making a major effort to find new supplies with it."

Government regulations, on the other hand, have combined with slower energy growth and the lack of inventory profits this year (oil companies got a one-shot boost in profits last year because their inventories were revalued upward) to create a 25 per cent drop in first-quarter profits, Maxwell said.

"We're a crisis-prone government, moving from crisis to crisis before we take remedial action," Maxwell said. "We've had 20 years in which the natural gas situation has been allowed to deteriorate, and Congress has done nothing. Suddenly Congress is facing a tremendous gas shortage next winter, so they appear likely to act to raise natural gas prices and allow the companies to increase their efforts to find more supplies. It's very late in the day, though."

"But on the oil side, things aren't desperate enough. Congress will do nothing constructive until we have another oil embargo."

Washington Oil—

be felt in the plastics in New England, the rubber industry in Ohio, the automobile business in Michigan and elsewhere," he said, "and in the Midwest farm belt — indeed, in every state."

His group is greatly concerned over a Senate Commerce Committee bill which, among other things, would put intrastate gas under Federal Power Commission control.

This would drain natural gas supply away from petrochemical plants in Texas and Louisiana and that, in turn, would affect the flow of the supplies of petrochemicals to other industries across the nation.

Preemption of the intrastate market — cutting or diverting supplies — will be felt nationwide, Devine said. He gave examples of what he meant: "The nylon used in South Carolina to make carpet and clothing can be traced to ammonia produced in Texas and Louisiana from natural gas now free from federal regulation. Polyester fibers, increasingly essential to these same uses nationwide, can be linked with the ethylene produced from natural gas liquid in Texas and Louisiana."

William J. Moschola, vice president of Georgia-Pacific Corp., a paper company, said industrial users of natural gas generally have not done their part in developing solutions for the natural gas shortage and for their adoption.

"We believe it is time for more energy consumers from business and industry to get involved," he told a group of Washington reporters.

Dr. Walter J. Mead, a professor of economics at the University of California at Santa Barbara has frequently been a critic of the petroleum industry. But he currently is a strong advocate of decontrol of the wellhead prices of natural gas.

He said federal controls not only have created a shortage of natural gas but have created inequities among gas consumers.

"About half the people who want to buy gas cannot get it at any price, while the other half obtain natural gas at bargain rates and, as result, many of them consume it lavishly," he said.

Meanwhile, he pointed out, on the supply side the initiative to explore for and produce natural gas is reduced.

Mead said it does not make economic sense that domestic natural gas prices are restricted to 51 cents per thousand cubic feet at the wellhead while the supply gap is being filled by importing liquefied natural gas from abroad at extremely high prices or by making synthetic gas from coal at a cost of about $3.

The professor pointed out that the high cost of imported LNG or synthetic gas is paid for by the consumer — not only the direct consumer but also the consumer of products made from gas feedstocks.

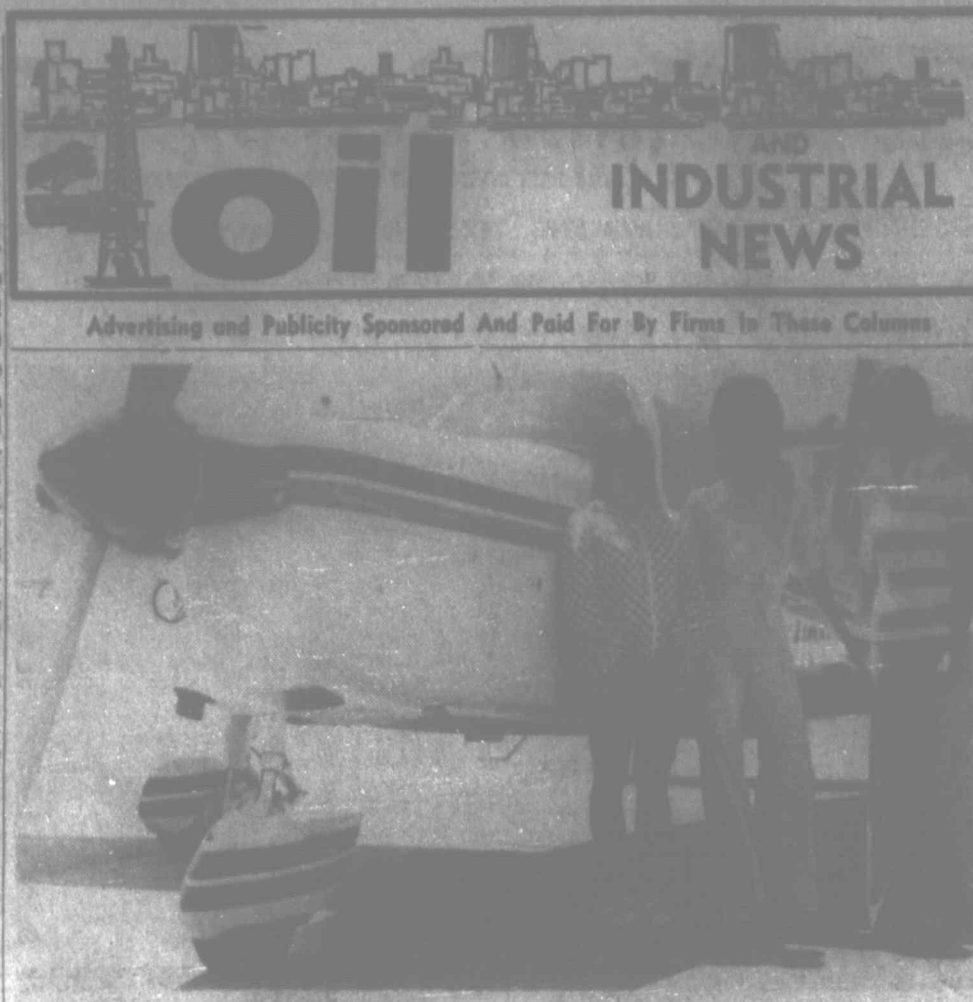

He suggested that gas controls be phased out gradually over a period of four or five years to ease the impact of higher prices, although he conceded that if the price of new natural gas is decontrolled immediately it would have only a gradual impact because old gas would still be under contract at old prices.

It remains to be seen how much success the move to have the big users telling their story will have.

However, it is worth noting that only a few short years ago just about everyone outside the gas producers themselves appeared to favor gas price regulation. Now that picture is changing rapidly as more and more people become aware of the impact of natural gas shortages.

FLYING IS NOT FOR MEN ONLY — Teri Henry, Avis Wharton and Sue McCracken are women pilots trained at Hank's Flight Center, Midland Air Terminal. They are three among the many women pilots that are now flying for companies, their own pleasure and for businesses.

Women Become Pilots At Hank's Flight Center

Hank's Flight Center

Class has come to Aviation. Women pilots are on the increase. Male pilots watch out. In the near future more women captains and co-pilots will be seen flying the airlines, according to Hank's Flight Center, Midland Air Terminal.

At present there are women charter pilots, flight instructors, FAA Designers, jet pilots and crop dusters to name a few. It doesn't take muscle and brawn to be a pilot, just brains. And the women who have learned to fly have proved that women have brains.

Hank's Flight Center has many women learning to fly and find that they are quick to learn. Detail doesn't stump them as most of them work with detail from day to day.

They are enthusiastic and eager to learn.

Their objectives include becoming captains, co-pilots, flight instructors, jet pilots, crop dusters, flying for their own companies, many oil companies, pleasure flying the family and as a relaxing and enjoyable hobby.

Three local women who have recently become pilots are seventeen year old Teri Henry, Avis Wharton and Sue McCracken.

It is a pleasure learning to fly at Hank's where top rated instructors train in the new air conditioned Piper Cruiser.

For hints about flying watch Hank's TV Show on KMDI at 10:30 P.M., May 25 and every other Sunday thereafter.

Visit Hank's Flight Center. See the fleet of beautiful Piper aircraft for charter, rent and sale. Hank's meets the needs of everyone.

Private and Commercial Ground School will begin June 9th. Classes meet Monday and Thursday 7 to 9 p.m. Instrument Ground School will tentatively begin in June. Call for enrollment at 563-1192.

tical climate is not conducive to a maximum effort," he said. Mitchell said more people now know about independent operators than ever before.

"In the depletion fight we went a long way to communicate the viewpoint our industry is not one giant monolith gouging the public," he said.

"For the first time ever, the man on the street seems aware that there are some 10,000 independent producers as well as some 100 big oil corporations."

Police committees for the Texas trade group start their meetings Sunday afternoon. Policy recommendations go before the membership Tuesday morning during a concluding session at which Frank Zarb, head of the Federal Energy Administration, will be the speaker.

Midland Operator Completes Strike

Eddy County, N.M., gained a Morrow gas strike with completion of Mark Production Co. Midland, No. 1 Foster, 13 miles southwest of Lake Wood and six miles west of the Cemetery (Morrow) gas field. It had a calculated, absolute open-flow of 1.896 million cubic feet or dry gas per day, producing through perforations at 8,825-9,060 feet, which had been acidized with 4,600 gallons. The well has 4 1/2-inch casing set at 2,300 feet, total depth. Ground elevation is 3,730 feet. Wellbore is 2,310 feet from south and 1,300 feet from east lines of section 21-26-24.

AAPG Publishes Complete History Of Oil Industry

TULSA, Okla.—Probably the most comprehensive history of the oil industry of the world ever compiled has been published by the American Association of Petroleum Geologists. A thousand fascinating tales of explorers, wildcaters, promoters, discoveries, failures, and the formation of major oil companies are recounted within the 1,600 pages of "Trek of The Oil Finders: A History of Exploration for Petroleum."

The author is Edgar W. Owen of San Antonio, Tex., a veteran oilman, former president of AAPG and winner of its Sidney Powers Medal. Owen also is a lecturer at The University of Texas at Austin.

The book was commissioned by AAPG to commemorate its 50th anniversary in 1978. It has been 10 years in preparation. The book can be obtained from the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, P.O. Box 977, Tulsa, Okla., 74101, at $28 per copy.

SPWLA To Meet In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS — The Society of Professional Well Log Analysts (SPWLA) will hold its 18th annual symposium June 4-7 at the Marriott Hotel here.

Forty-one technical papers covering formation evaluation subjects will be presented. Andre Poupon, a Schlumberger employe since 1959 and a resident of Paris, France, will be presented an award for his contribution in the field of log interpretations.

SPWLA is an international society with memberships in 43 countries. It is dedicated to helping solve the energy problems through scientific formation evaluation techniques.

Donald S. Johnson and Patricia M. Beck will teach an oil and gas accounting and office procedures session from 7-10 p.m. Monday at the Permian Basin Graduate Center classroom, 119 N. Colorado St.

The session is part of the oil and gas fundamentals course. Registration will take place at the graduate center office, 104 Gulf Building. The fee is $15.

James C. Langdon Jr., Washington, D. C., associate administrator for price regulation-development, Federal Energy Administration, will address the meeting on the present and near-future outlook for stripper oil operations.

The meeting will begin at 8:30 a. m., with "best attention being given the need to maintain, at the highest practical level, the production of crude oil from the nation's stripper wells and to minimize premature abandonments," McAdams said.

Midlander Presents Testimony To Committee

(EDITORS NOTE: The following is part of a statement presented by Charles D. Proser, senior vice president and petroleum engineer for The First National Bank of Midland, to the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs last week in Washington, D.C. The hearings were held specifically to discuss the impact of the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973 on which the Federal Energy Administration price control regulations on crude oil at the wellhead, refinery entitlement program and other such regulatory controls evolved. Testimony was expanded to include the impact of the Tax Reduction Act of 1975 which eliminated percentage depletion for the bulk of the oil industry and the impact of other government policies.)

Bob Bales Opens Landmen's Office

Bob L. Bales has opened an office as an independent petroleum landman after 14 years in the oil business with major oil companies and the last seven years with Mitchell Energy Corp.

Bales was district landman in charge of Mitchell's land activities in West Texas and New Mexico with offices in Midland prior to opening his office.

He attended Texas Tech University and Texas Christian University majoring in business administration. He also has attended various institutes and seminars at the University of Oklahoma. In addition to AAPL, he is a member of Permian Basin Landmen's Association.

Bales plans to specialize in negotiating oil and gas leases, assembling lease blocks, drilling deals and related land work.

"For many years, we have predicted a rejuvenation of the Permian Basin oil and gas industry believing that foreign governments would force our nation to recognize the value of domestically owned and secure energy resources. In this sense we predicted the OPEC embargo of 1973, although, we had not expected this disruption so soon or in such a drastic manner.

"The immediate and almost irrational reaction in Congress resulted in a multitude of punitive proposals which, if enacted, would have been disastrous for our business as well as for the domestic oil industry.

"This prompted us to dedicate ourselves to the establishment of direct contacts with you in government. From such contacts, we hoped to determine probable rules of the future regarding our industry and to contribute our knowledge in an effort to minimize regressive or ill-advised legislation and regulation.

"Although our immediate concern was prompted by the need to manage our bank's oil and gas lending, I am certain that Representatives of both sides in a labor dispute will begin negotiations at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the Ramada Inn here.

The negotiations are the result of an interim agreement reached by unskilled laborers who walked off two construction sites and the general contractors on the projects.

Frank Fuller of Abilene, manager of the West Texas Chapter of the Associated General Contractors of America, said Cooper Construction Co. and Rose & Sons Inc. agreed to talks in exchange for an end to the walkouts.

Cooper is contractor on the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. switching center here and Rose & Sons is in charge of the Midland Hilton Inn construction.

The laborers, led by representatives of the Laborers' International Union of North America, walked off the job May 13 and returned to work Thursday. Although not on strike, craftsmen — with the exception of plumbers — stayed off the job and refused to cross picket lines.

The laborers were seeking standardized pay scales for unskilled workers.

the consequences of governmental action with regard to energy policy are much more far-reaching. Your decisions on energy policy will dictate whether or not The United States can retain its position as the greatest nation in the world.

"Contrary to contemporary opinion, I charge that The United States has had a definite energy policy regarding crude oil and natural gas and that this policy has changed little since the OPEC embargo. Unless it is changed, our bank, and even worse, the nation as a whole is doomed to suffer grievous consequences.

"The energy policy of which I speak is amply documented in pre-1975, Federal tax laws; FEA regulations flowing from authority of The Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973; Federal Power Commission actions on natural gas pricing; and, most recently, The Tax Reduction Act of 1975. Pre-1975 tax laws appear to have been designed to encourage investment of American capital in the search for "cheap" foreign oil reserves. With little effective restraint on resulting imports, domestic exploration and development was condemned and discouraged.

"Additionally, 1969 tax reform legislation reduced the vitally needed depletion allowance, eliminated the carved out production payment as a viable means of generating capital, and devaluated domestic oil and gas properties by eliminating the ABC production payment.

"Simultaneously and under the guise of consumerism, the Federal Power Commission insured a forewarned shortage of natural gas by applying magic formulas for return on investment based on always out-of-date cost information and with no thought given to forward projections of the cost of finding gas in increasingly marginal reservoirs or at depths exceeding 20,000 feet.

"After more than 15 years of this well defined policy, it is amazing that any oilmen are left in The Permian Basin.

"It took the OPEC embargo to break the depression gripping our region. From 1960 through 1972, people moved away from The Permian Basin, students avoided the disciplines of geology and petroleum engineering, supply companies went out of business, rigs were stacked and cannibalized for parts, equipment manufacturers were forced to other industries by a seemingly inexhaustible supply of salvaged machinery, and our capacity to explore and develop evaporated. The price of crude oil at the wellhead remained virtually constant but declined in real dollars because of inflation. In 1970, there were more than 3,000 vacant houses in Midland alone.

"When the OPEC embargo and cartel price increases struck, our local oil and gas industry revitalized dramatically. On May 9, 1975, 253 rotary drilling rigs were running in The Permian Basin; more than double the 1970 average. Many more old rigs are in various stages of reconstruction and rig manufacturers have a large backlog of orders for new equipment.

"It would appear that the domestic industry is going all out in response to improved economics. I warn you that this is not true. We as bankers and our oil customers know that our economic incentive is hanging by a thread.

"Consider the furor over the price for "exempt" crude oil at the wellhead. The Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973 provided authority under which regulations suddenly defined four types of crude oil: new, released, old, and stripper. Following the traditional FPC concept of tiers, oil discovered in 1973 or before was arbitrarily classified as "old" and its wellhead price was frozen. To eliminate competition for "old" oil, producers are effectively

Stripper Group Meets June 9

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—The National Stripper Well Association will hold its Midyear Meeting at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco June 9.

The meeting will be held in conjunction with the midyear meeting of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, T. P. McAdams Jr. of Bristol, Okla., president of the stripper well group, said.

The meeting will begin at 8:30 a. m., with "best attention being given the need to maintain, at the highest practical level, the production of crude oil from the nation's stripper wells and to minimize premature abandonments," McAdams said.

James C. Langdon Jr., Washington, D. C., associate administrator for price regulation-development, Federal Energy Administration, will address the meeting on the present and near-future outlook for stripper oil operations.

The meeting will begin at 8:30 a. m., with "best attention being given the need to maintain, at the highest practical level, the production of crude oil from the nation's stripper wells and to minimize premature abandonments," McAdams said.

Parachutists Over Phorty Assemble For Annual Shindig

By DAVE BARRY
NEW HANOVER, Pa. (AP) — In his younger days, Tom Morrison played quite a bit of golf.
 But at 51, he doesn't play much any more. Now he jumps out of airplanes.
 "It's more fun," he says.
 Morrison, an advertising executive who lives in Ambler, Pa., belongs to the Parachutists Over Phorty Society—called POPS for short. On Saturday he hosted a group of 31 POPS members who came to the New Hanover Airport about 25 miles northwest of Philadelphia for two days of competition. All 31 were over 40. Some were well over.
 "If I survive this meet, I'll be 70 on the 4th of July," said George McCulloch of Syracuse.

N.Y. McCulloch has jumped 710 times since he got interested in the sport in 1959 at the tender age of 24.
 He says it provides a release from his job as an urban renewal planner in Syracuse.
 "Urban renewal's a pretty strenuous job."
 On his birthday, McCulloch says he plans to ride his 10-speed bicycle 50 miles from his home to Seneca Falls, N.Y., where he will make his annual birthday jump. Each year, "just for sentiment," he counts out his age in seconds before pulling the ripcord, he said.
 "Larger Every Year"
 "It gets longer every year. I guess I'll have to jump this year from 14 grand (14 thousand feet)." That means he will fall 12,000 feet before he opens his parachute.

Carrillo Inquiry Due To Continue Beyond June 2

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The head of the special House committee investigating State Dist. Court Judge O. P. Carrillo says the panel's probe will probably continue after the legislature adjourns June 2.
 Rep. DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi, chairman of the 11-member panel, said he does not see how the committee can finish by the adjournment date in view of the amount of testimony already heard and the number of witnesses expected to be called.
 The committee has heard five nights of testimony, mainly from Duval County residents. Carrillo's attorney, Arthur Mitchell, has said he plans to call as many as 50 witnesses in the South Texas judge's defense.
 The committee was set up by the House following its adoption of a resolution by Rep. Terry Canales, D-Prentiss, that cites Carrillo's federal indictment on income tax evasion charges as the basis for the impeachment study.
 Witnesses have attempted to show Carrillo's involvement in the control of Duval county politics and his alleged misuse of county employes and property.

Ed Pierce, a 53-year-old aviation engineer from Massapequa, N.Y., told of a problem he had at the POPS meet at New Hanover two years ago.
 "I had a malfunction," he said. "That's when you pull your cord and the parachute comes out looking like the Saturday night wash." He landed safely with his reserve parachute, he said.
 "You're just like a bird," he said. "You're on your own. The chute is just a necessary evil to get you to the ground."
 Morrison says POPS has about 875 members nationwide, half of whom still jump. POPS chapters hold six to eight meets a year, he said.
Try Mainly For Accuracy
 Morrison, who has jumped 2,275 times, said POPS members at the New Hanover meet would be trying mainly for accuracy. The competitors each make four jumps from 2,300 feet and try to land as close as possible to a small target disc.
 But for George McCulloch at least, the competition is secondary.
 "I'm really pretty marginal at the sport," he said. "But it's a tremendous challenge. It keeps me young, and as long as my reaction time is good and my blood pressure is low, I guess I'll stay with it."
 "Frankly, it surprises me that more men over 40 aren't in it."

Lawmen Hunt Escaped Desperadoes

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Lawmen looked for a pair of Texas desperadoes Saturday, both of whom escaped from prisons in Oklahoma and Kansas in the last three weeks.
 "I figure they're armed. They certainly know how to find the guns," said Tarrant County Sheriff Lon Evans.
 A manhunt was on for Donald Gene Richardson, 28, of Sweetwater, and Hovey Dale Webb, 28, of Fort Worth.
Uses Butcher Knife
 Richardson used a butcher knife to break out of the Oklahoma State Prison facility at Stringtown, Okla. April 30. He was serving a 15-year term for shooting an Oklahoma City policeman in 1969. Officers at that time were trying to arrest Richardson, Webb and two women in connection with a Houston murder and bank robbery.

Richardson was in jail at Eastland awaiting transfer to the state prison at Huntsville to do nine years for burglary. After escaping the county jail he was charged with robbing a Houston bank of $23,000 and another Houston bank of more than $28,000.
 Webb and Richardson were objects of a massive search by the FBI and other officers during a prolonged rash of bank robberies in Texas in late 1969.

Webb knows the Fort Worth area pretty well. I went over to Arizona once to pick him up but he may well come back here to hide with Richardson. We're watching pretty close."
 "They're bad, really bad people," Evans said. "I don't think they'd stop at anything. Webb was the worst, the meanest. Because they were so young they didn't have time to get into an awful lot before they were caught but they were well on their way to getting into business. I think they first teamed up in Bossier City, La. and they came over here and started all the bank robbing and such."

Atheist Plans New School Prayer Suit

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Madlyn Murray O'Hair, perhaps the nation's best known school prayer critic, said Saturday she is "furious with the nation's atheists and agnostics" and plans a suit seeking cut off of federal funds for all schools which permit classroom prayers.
 "I've had it with these people. The walls are crumbling and I mean to stop it once and for all. They're (atheists) letting this happen," she said.
 It was Mrs. O'Hair's challenge of school prayers in 1962 which led to the landmark U.S. Supreme Court ruling that public prayer in school classrooms violated the constitution's concept of separation of church and state.

"The Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) is funneling money into schools across the nation and the Negroes have used a cutoff of such funds to get equality. This is the only way to go. We will file suit to force the HEW to cut off all federal funds for any school district which does not conform to the Supreme Court ruling."
 Mrs. O'Hair, who heads the Society of Separationists here, said 23 per cent of the national population describes itself as atheist or agnostic but "they're sitting around doing nothing. Why don't they speak up? If they're afraid to speak up, at least they can anonymously support our efforts."

Bills are waiting for gubernatorial signatures in Connecticut and New Hampshire which would permit pupils to "meditate" silently at the beginning of each school day at the discretion of local school districts.
 Following approval of the bill by the New Hampshire Legislature, state Sen. Robert B. Monier said "I couldn't care less whether the Supreme Court thinks this bill is unlawful."
 "Monier is typical of politicians who think people are mindless. They deserve him," Mrs. O'Hair said. "They're just changing the words from prayer to meditation. It's a word game but it all means the same thing."
 She said she is trying to enlist the support of the American Jewish Congress, the American Civil Liberties Union and Americans United along with sufficient legal funds to file a suit next fall.

Gunderson Named Dallas FBI Chief

DALLAS (AP) — Theodore L. Gunderson, 48, special agent in charge of the FBI in Memphis, Tenn., has been named agent in charge of the agency's Dallas office, it was announced here Friday.
 He will replace J. Gordon Shanklin, who will retire June 27.
 Gunderson joined the FBI in 1951 shortly after he graduated from the University of Nebraska. He has worked in Mobile, Ala., Knoxville, Tenn., New York, and Albuquerque, N.M.
 In 1960 he was transferred to FBI headquarters in Washington where he served in the general investigative and special investigative division. He is a native of Colorado Springs, Colo.
