District court met again Monday

after having recessed from the middle of the afternoon Friday, when the list of special veniremen was exhausted—and the Judge ordered another hundred summoned, to appear here Monday morning at eight o'clock. The list was completed Saturday night, when the roll was called Monday morning ninety nine were present, the tardy one came in very soon after the list had been called.

A few errors crept into the list of names, and two men were present whose names did not appear and two were absent whose names were in the list. J. M. Marcy, instead of Morrison, was one and Mr. Morrison had been summoned, but his name was not on the list he was excused by the judge. The same was true of Mr. Sheely who was summoned and was present but his name did not appear on the list, except as Sheeley, and the judge excused him also. This cut the list to ninety-eight.

Judge Mulligan addressed the veniremen after they had been sworn in. Judge Mulligan plead for men to carry on the business of the courts. He impressed it upon the men who had been summoned there to serve on the jury the importance of jury service. He contended that it was not contemplated by the laws of the land that the court should be operated by transients in as much as that class of people could not qualify for jury service. That it required men who had an interest in the community to serve on the jury, and that is as it should be. He continued by saying that the officers elected by the people are not the law, that they are merely placed in office to see that the work is carried on, but still they cannot run the courts, and should not.

Judge Mulligan called for those to render excuses who felt that they had a real legitimate reason for being excused and he would hear them and the following were excused:

- M. L. Gentry on account of absence in the family.
- R. L. Goode, under treatment of eye specialist.
- I. J. Kidd, exempt on account of age.
- J. M. Marcey, not summoned.
- Earnest Sheeley, summoned, but under wrong name.
- This left ninety three of the 100 special veniremen from which to select the jury. Judge Mulligan requested that the men return to the county court room on the second floor of the building, and that they not discuss the case among themselves, and with no one else, and that if any one attempted to talk to them about the case that they report it to some of the officers in the court room, and also asked that they not discuss anything about the trial.

The Belgian Foreign Office Now Branch of French Government - French Will Be the Dictators Now

By the United Press.
NEW YORK, July 2.—Efforts on the part of Belgium to establish an independent foreign policy for herself have failed. The Belgian foreign office must now be considered as a branch of the French government.
 Ever since France went into the Ruhr, there has been an anti-French party at work in Belgium. But the increasing success of Premier Poincaré's Ruhr adventure has had a decisive effect at Brussels and the overthrow of the Belgian government means the anti-French clique has failed.
 Efforts by Great Britain to win the Belgians to the British point of view about German relations are now far from realization. The Belgians have decided to follow France's lead still more closely, and this fact makes Poincaré's position more secure than it has been at any previous time since the beginning of his premiership.

What Belgium Wanted.
 The visits of Belgium and French statesmen back and forth between Brussels and Paris for more than a month, showed the growing differences between the policies of the two countries. Belgians wanted no break between France and Great Britain, for it is to both of these countries that Belgium owes her independence. The real purpose of the Belgian to become something more than a second to France was to act as a mediator and restore unitary action on the part of France and Great Britain.
 Belgian statesmen would have succeeded in that ambition if the Germans had shown signs of winning the Ruhr struggle. But Germany is slipping too fast for anybody to believe Berlin will defeat France in the present contest. The firmness of Premier Poincaré is increasing, as German indecision grows. The practical logic of the situation, therefore, has resulted uncomfortably for those Belgian leaders who wanted to take the initiative away from France and lodge it once more in a joint committee of all the allies.
 It has become impossible for them to convince their followers that Belgium's interests would be better served by breaking away from the Poincaré leadership at a time when Germany is approaching nearer and nearer the point of surrender.

Belgium Follows Victors.
 Henceforth, Belgium will be a docile follower of the French victors. That is to say, this satellite condition will continue as long as French victory continues to remain in sight. If an unexpected change should occur in the situation, and if the German collapse should be halted and should give place to a new vigor of resistance, then the Belgians will be able to strive once more for an independent foreign policy.
 But no such reversal of form is to be expected for the immediate present, if at all. There is no room for doubt but that the French are displaying the highest morale in the present struggle and that the Germans are showing evidences of moral disintegration.
 The expectation that Germany would develop a sense of iron discipline and Sparten fortitude over the Ruhr situation has not been realized. The French squeeze is being too painfully felt for that. The final evidence of it is the new acknowledgement of Belgium that the welfare of the Belgian people can now best be served by following fully in Poincaré's footsteps.

RANGER BARBERS PLAN TO PLAY BASE BALL

By the United Press.
RANGER, July 2.—Barbers of Ranger are stripping their baseball bats preparatory to massaging the base lines for enough runs to beat any of the local nines at their own game.
 The "lather pushers" have announced their willingness to take on any of the various teams in the city just to prove they can play baseball a lot better than they can talk it. In broadcasting the challenge the barbers announced they would play any time, the money to go to some worthy charity.
 Already the razor artists have started practice—indoor as well as out. Callouses are beginning to appear on their hands where they've gripped the bat hitting longsters to the outfield in practice.
 In all, fourteen barbers have signed up, and are working out each evening after work hours.
 In the meantime patrons are getting a fearful of promises and soap—as the embryo Cobbs and Ruths, tell what they expect to do on the diamonds as they "get 'em close" or "drop the temple."

Are You a Member of the Chamber of Commerce and Do You Support It In the Work of Developing Lubbock

There are many sound reasons why every man who claims Lubbock as his home should belong to this organization.

"Cities do not happen—they are built."

That is a slogan carried on all stationery put out by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and one that is being widely quoted by other commercial organizations thru their letter heads, their monthly publications and newspaper articles.

Lubbock is not what it is as a matter of accident nor altogether on account of the many favorable natural conditions found surrounding the town. True, the soil is most fertile, the water shallow, the climate ideal, and transportation facilities most favorable. But that has not made Lubbock. Hockley and Cochran counties have just as fertile soil just as shallow water, just as ideal climate—but they do not have the railroad facilities of this county or the growth of this town.

They have just happened thus far—and are only now started to "being built" and with the present rate of growth both of these counties will soon be taking their places among the other South Plains counties. Prosperous, progressive counties. But that will be on account of the organized effort of a bunch of men who plan things, and do things.

Lubbock Has Just Been Started
If you believe that Lubbock is a "finished town" that it was just as big today as it will be ten years from now—that there was nothing else to be done, no improvements to be made, reputation to be maintained, or expansions, new centers, growth or development in any line, how long would you live here? What would your property be worth?

Lubbock has made a remarkable growth—and with every stage of that growth have come problems that make men think, study, plan and work together. But it has only started toward its final goal. But with each stage of future growth there must be carefully laid plans, carefully worked out programs, carefully protected details that either make or ruin a city. There must be organized effort to meet these demands and thru no other organization can this work be effectively done as thru an efficient local commercial organization.

Notice these reasons given by a Ft. Worth-Record reporter after an interview with the managers of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce and see how well they fit into the local situation:

"The Chamber of Commerce is the co-ordinated spirit of the community with particular reference to its material well-being; it is the practical application of teamwork set to the task of community development, and its business is to initiate movements for the city's advancement."

"The Chamber of Commerce has no power beyond moral suasion; it has no capital for investment, nor has it authority to compel others to invest. Its sole power for good rests in its ability to smooth the way for investment and development, to do those things that the individual has neither the inclination nor the power to do."

"The Chamber of Commerce isn't doing anything—how often this statement is heard. The Chamber of Commerce may not accomplish as much as it should or could, but isn't that partly your fault? The Chamber of Commerce will accomplish just what you want it to do. If you make up your mind to increase your sales, don't you have to put your energy back of the movement? It's the same with the Chamber of Commerce—assist and do your part.

"So many people in Fort Worth have the impression that a membership in the Chamber of Commerce is limited to business institutions only. This is wrong. The Chamber of Commerce is an organization of individual citizens."

"Some men join a lodge or a club for what they can get out of it in a business way. The Chamber of Commerce is not a selfish proposition. Business profits come of course to Chamber of Commerce members in the same manner as any other organization of business contact but besides this the member benefits through the knowledge that he is a man among men—he is carrying his share of the common burden."

"If you are worth something to your city, show it by doing some things you do not expect profit on—then you will get profit on some things you do not expect. Your prosperity depends on that of your neighbors. No matter how successful you may be or how high your character, you are not a good citizen unless you are doing something for the good of your community."

There are more than 7,500 people in Lubbock. There is but one secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and 16 directors—who are all busy men. Way is it necessary for you to be seen personally, solicited personally, or even argued with before you will join the local Chamber of Commerce? Two men walked into the Chamber of Commerce office this last week and asked for a membership blank, filled it out and are actively connected with the organization—as every citizen in the city should be.

"It Ain't Run Right"
That is the usual objection of the old granch who is too tight to kick in the necessary $1.00, $2.50 or $5 that it takes to become a member. He does not stop to figure that the organization is run just exactly as the directors who are started by the membership itself, wants it to be run. If you do not like the way the organization is run, the sort of folks they hire to work for it or any of its policies—why get on the INSIDE and correct the trouble as a patriotic citizen should do. You should not sit idly by and see the town ruined because you won't pay the necessary nickles to take a part in its management.

Seriously the Chamber of Commerce needs help—come over and get acquainted with the work and get connected with the organization.

LOS ANGELES TO HAVE ITS OWN PIED PIPER

By the United Press.
LOS ANGELES July 2—The modern Pied Piper of Hamelin will begin work in Los Angeles shortly but the county supervisors who are doing the hiring, will pay for the work as it goes along and take no chances on a trickery of the piper.

The piper, The Kely Exterminator Company, has a contract calling for $62,500 a month for which it is agreed to rid the county buildings of rats for one year. The decision to hire rat exterminators came when the rats showed an utter disregard for the sheriff, the district attorney and superior court judge, by scampering thru the offices, disturbing routine and frightening female employees. They also showed complete disregard for evidence by eating it.

"Death Valley Scotty" Headed North In Search of New Mine

By the United Press.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 2.—Riding in a light spring wagon hitched to a team of excellent horses, "Death Valley Scotty," known to gold miners the country over, is traveling north through Oregon, bound for another mine and a fresh start. Up in the British Columbia country "Scotty" will spend the summer and fall months, working a claim with Al Tigar, for 30 years his partner in the mining game.

He's practically "broke" now, "Scotty," and he is past 70 years of age, although he doesn't look more than 50.

And being but of money doesn't bother him, either. More than one fortune has "Scotty" made and spent soon after the making.

His first came into prominence in 1906, when he emerged from the depths of Death Valley California, with "dust," which netted him over $240,000. It was the largest sum "Scotty" had ever owned at one time. But he soon found a way to spend it. Hiring a special passenger train, the minor trip in state to New York City. There he saw everything there was to see which money could afford. Then he went on to Europe and visited all the important cities on the continent.

18 Months Spending.
In 18 months "Death Valley Scotty" was back in the desert the $240,000 gone, but with recollection of sights well seen, and with no regrets for the money he had spent.

"Scotty" still has his claims in Death Valley, but admits that the best there is more than he can now stand. He bears seven bullet wounds as the result of different scraps with bandits. Some of the bullets have never been removed from his body, and these, he admits, bothers him at times.

So "Scotty" is bound north to British Columbia up where it is cooler and where the chances for bringing out a stake are just as good, he believes, as the valley which gave him his nickname.

Can Get Work.
And if he fails to find gold, there will be no worries for "Scotty," either. His horses are strong, and so is he, and a man with a team can always get work. "Scotty" knows.

In fact, he is working his way north through Oregon by stopping from time to time and hiring out, with his team, to road gangs or to farmers who need a little extra help. "I've been on both sides and the top of the fence," says "Scotty."

I've dined with millionaires and with tramps, but I like it best like this, camped by the side of the trail.

MEN WANTED—APPLY TO THE STATE OF TEXAS

Texas needs men—not just ordinary men with political ambitions, but patriotic men with vision who will spend time in trying to discover that much talked-of but most elusive thing called "Business in Government." King Tut's tomb has been discovered and it is said that even older objects of a former civilization have recently been uncovered in America. Such being the case, perhaps this famous "Business in Government" can be found in Texas if the right kind of men are commissioned to look after it.

Laying all jokes aside, isn't it about time that a careful study was made of Texas, its industries, its natural and undeveloped resources, its educational facilities, State institutions and its system of government, including its methods of raising revenue and spending it? Isn't it time that big men came to the rescue of the State by offering themselves as sacrifices to progressive, economical government? Politicians would not meet the requirements. Men who may have political ambitions, capable as many may be, should not be considered in this emergency. No one with an ax to grind, or who is devoted to the boosting of one section at the expense of another, will fill the bill. We must have men capable of looking at the State as a whole with ability to understand our present needs and future requirements as measured by our ability to pay. They must be men of courage, honest and energetic. If there are a sufficient number among our population of approximately 5,000,000, who can qualify, let them step forward, or if too modest, let their friends bring them out before the people and support them in the elections of 1924.

Texas has suffered grievously in past years through the bickering of petty politicians, selfish interests and politically controlled public institutions. It is time the qualified electors quit sending immature lawyers to the Legislature for post graduate courses in public speaking. The man who is boasted for public office because he represents some particular section or some powerful organization should be the last in the race. Candidates who base their campaigns on promises to milk the public treasury for selfish sectional interests, or for promoting the welfare of any special organization, are not the men we want in office.

Texas has an assessed valuation of approximately three and a half billions of dollars, and spends approximately $20,000,000 per year in support of the Government and Government institutions and activities. The business of the State is certainly sufficiently large and important to command the attention of our big men.

If we are to have "Business in Government," let the people turn a deaf ear to all those who are continually demanding a law for this and a law for that. Let them get together and select the biggest man in their country or district and send him to the Legislature. Insist on placing a plank in his platform which will require a thorough survey of the State's resources and the State's needs, and to be followed by the adoption of a budget system which will be fair to every institution and to every taxpayer. Let the people put "Business in Government" by putting men into office who know business when they see it. Let us have a "Government of the people, by the people and for the people."

CLEAN TOWNS, CLEAN FOOD, CLEAN FOLKS.

There are many reasons, perhaps, why this interesting little American city of Mansfield, Ohio should hold the attention of its sister municipalities throughout the country. To begin with, it is one of the state's most picturesque towns and industrially is a front runner in the matter of production per capita. Then again, it is the headquarters of the Child Health Demonstration, an experiment, conducted under the sponsorship of the American Child Health Association for the purpose of determining to what extent the resources of a typical American community can be developed for the protection of child health and the improvement of its boys and girls, physically as well as morally. As the headquarters of the Demonstration, Mansfield has become a center of interest to all social workers. But there is something else about Mansfield and Richland County that promise to win fame. It is a movement growing out of the Demonstration and in reality a part of it—a determination by mothers of children already benefitted by the experiment to invoke the principles of sanitation in every nook and corner of the county. This campaign had a modest beginning.

It all started when Miss Edna C. Endley began a nutrition service and began to organize the necessity for regulating the diets of their children. The children already were certain that Miss Endley knew what she was talking about because of the health education they had had. Then they persuaded their mothers to attend nutrition classes for women held in the public schools. Two marked steps forward have been made as a result of these lectures on nutrition.

First, the next school year will see a home economics department in every city and village school in Richland County. Even the rural schools will give some attention to the subject—as much as their one room will permit. In these classes school girls will learn how to prepare wholesome food.

Secondly, and quite as important in the opinion of the Demonstration's experts, the lectures have created among the mothers a desire to see that the food to be prepared is clean and wholesome when it is received into the schools and homes. To this end all mothers' organizations in the sparsely populated villages as well as in the larger towns, have made it their concern to call on tradesmen and other purveyors and remind them that cleanliness is next to popularity with them.

"The result of this quiet campaigning," Miss Endly said recently, "is that the stores of Richland county are clean. Even the shop keepers have been enlisted in the health game."

GETTING GOOD SCHOOLS.

Modern life demands better trained young people than ever before. If the schools of a community fall down to any considerable extent, a handicap is placed on the young folks of that town. But if school affairs can be handled with good judgment and intelligence, a tremendous shove toward the goals of success is given every young person who attends them.

The subject of good schooling is vital, and our young people are talking about it much of the time. It forms the subject of earnest discussion in many home and social circles. The Avalanche would like to enter into this discussion, with a few thoughts suggested by modern school developments.

Education is discussed in a technical and professional way in many pedagogical books, magazines and lectures. Much of this talk seems very theoretical to the average man. Perhaps it will be helpful for an editorial writer who is entirely outside school work to tell how the subject looks to average people. Possibly the school authorities may like to know what many folks are thinking on this subject. And certainly it will be useful for the common run of people to consider certain principles that help promote good school development.

This town is certainly fortunate along the line of educational interests. We have fine schools, and the people are doing their dead level best to provide adequate room for the students. The new high school building is completed, and is now being furnished with the most up-to-date equipment, and it will all be ready for the opening of the fall term of school, and $80,000 worth of bonds have been voted, printed and sold for the building of a ward school in the north part of town, and the old high school is being remodeled, the white primary building will be sold or used in the building of the ward schools, and by the time school opens or soon after there will be ample provisions made for taking care of the children of this community, much to the credit of the children of this community, much to the credit of the people of the Lubbock Independent School District.

PROMOTING RETAIL TRADE.

The development of a community depends to a large extent on the degree of enterprise shown in developing retail trade. Is a city satisfied just to sell goods to its own people, and those living close by? Or is it reaching out into the open country to get the trade that might not come in without special urging? In these days when people will slip around a long distance by automobile to do their trading, retail business can be drawn several times as far as it could 10 years ago. Many people will go to more distant towns because they believe that the opportunities are better there, or for some reason they like to do business there better.

Hence the people of Lubbock who are anxious to see their own business and that of their city grow, should study carefully the different methods which successful and growing cities push out for retail trade.

As the Avalanche is keenly ambitious to see Lubbock grow, and believes that if properly pushed it can advance farther than most of our people have believed.

Sometimes it looks as if Japan is more sincere and determined than any other nation in its effort to prevent future wars. The latest news is that the Japanese government has decided to delete from school books, including the national reader, all references of a military and narrowly patriotic character. In this country an effort to make school histories a bare trifle less "narrowly patriotic" has just been furiously denounced by self-seeking politicians.

Our unmitigated falsehood for the day: It makes us very happy, as we pay the second installment of our income tax, to reflect that we thus have the privilege of helping in our small way to defray the expenses of Mr. Lasker's delightful little party on the Leviathan.

All American Meal Contains Lubbock's Contribution—Turkey

Other Contributions From Scattered Towns Of United States

Food commodities produced in Lubbock and vicinity are conspicuous in the "All American Meal," breakfast, luncheon and dinner, just announced by the Sacramento, Calif., Chamber of Commerce following a unique nationwide survey. To carry out his idea of popularizing American food products, A. S. Dudley, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce in California's capital, invited communities throughout the United States to select from their lists of locally produced products several outstanding articles which were produced entirely in America and could be secured practically anywhere in the United States any time in the year.

Approximately 200 cities joined in the movement, and from the wide range of commodities, food exports of the California State Department of Agriculture and Stanford University worked out the menu printed here with.

The next step in the program is an appeal to all American hotels, restaurants and families to serve the "All American Meal" on the big All American Day, July 14th.

To get first hand information on the food value and nutritive value of the various commodities, a big dinner consisting of foodstuffs sent there by various cities which entered into the movement. Starting with cock-tails made of Florida grapefruit and concluding with Michigan chocolates for the ladies and Connecticut cigars for the gents, this spread was pronounced the "most bizarre in the gastronomic annals of California."

George P. Gray and George E. Colby of the State Department of Agriculture, and John P. Simpson of the Food Research Institute of Stanford University were present and after sampling the articles announced the following All American meal menus.

- AT THE CHURCHES
- Church of Christ
U. R. Forrest, from Quana, preached twice for the church. His morning sermon was on "Walking in Newness of Life." His evening sermon was a continuation of his morning one.
- Forrest pointed out that "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature. Old things are passed away. Behold, all things have become new." He showed how the new creature had a new work, eats new food, wears new garments, is called on for new sacrifice, thinks new thoughts, speaks new words, has new joys, seeks new associates, and gives his time in a new service. He closed with a strong exhortation to Christians to find their work and accept their individual responsibility and go forward in the service of the Master.
- In the evening sermon Forrest showed how God had promised to "lay judgement to the line and righteousness to the plummet," and that in His wrath He would "sweep away the refuge of lies," and that there would be no hiding place for us to escape His judgement, God is without "variableness, neither shadow that is cast by turning." He is a God of mercy now, but at the judgement bar he will be a God of justice. Judgement has begun first at the house of God. It behooves Christians to guard their every thought, word, and deed, and to occupy all their time in building up the cause of Christ, which is seeking the good of his fellow men.
- Baptist Church.
Sunday School attendance was fairly good. The Young Business Men's Class was in charge of the closing exercises. Next Sunday the church orchestra will have charge. The pastor preached a good sermon at both morning and evening hours.
- Remember that our meeting will begin next Sunday, instead of the third Sunday. A large tabernacle will be erected just southeast of the Lubbock Sanitarium for the services. Rev. F. F. Evans will do the preaching. He will have with him one of the greatest evangelistic singers in the West.
- Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock.
Choir practice Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock.
The B. Y. P. U. will leave Tuesday evening at 6:00 o'clock, for Blanco Canyon. —Reporter.
- FIRST METHODIST
Attendance was not up to the average in Sunday School, however usual interest was shown in all departments, and the contribution was beyond the one hundred dollar mark.
- Charley Ferguson, son of Rev. and Mrs. C. N. Ferguson, who has charge of the affairs of the church during the absence of his father, preached two appreciated sermons.
- The Epworth League meeting in the evening was well attended, and some time was given over to the discussion of plans for the Clarendon College entertainment Monday evening.
- A mummy, perfectly preserved, believed to be that of an Inca chief, has been unearthed from a hill in the province of Salta, Argentina, near the Chilean border. A large number of artistic carvings and art objects of stone, copper, earthenware and onyx were buried with it. The nails, teeth and most of the hair are perfectly preserved, as are the vital organs, according to reports, which would indicate a method of embalming that may be superior even to the Egyptian. The method used to unite the different parts of the implements, also found in the tomb, suggest the handwork similar to that of the Egyptians.

HUBBERS TROUNCE GASSERS FOR 1ST PLACE

TAKING SIX GAMES OUT OF SEVEN FROM AMARILLO HUBBERS TAKE A ONE-GAME LEAD IN FIRST HALF

Spectacular Comeback Features Closing Of First Half With Hubbers Suffering From Disabled Pitchers

Fighting for first place when they left home on June 20th, for a twelve day road trip, in which they were forced to play fifteen games on account of having dropped a full series at Amarillo on the previous trip the Hubbers returned yesterday topping the league by a one-game lead.

Although they were four games behind the league leading Amarillo Gassers when they departed, and working under adverse conditions on account of crippled pitchers, four of whom was on the disabled list, they broke a little less than even with Clovis and Roswell, but when they hit the Gasser city five games behind, they went wild and gave up only one contest out of seven to the 1922 champions of the West Texas League. Going into their hitting stride on their arrival in the northern metropolis, and with a determination to take the larger end of the series, moundman after moundman for the opposition was mauled mercilessly by them; the Gassers were seemingly being unable to stop the onslaught in any manner of satisfaction, and although fighting to the last, they were forced to drop to second place. Considering the fact that only two games yet remain in the first half, it seems to be a fact conceded that the Hubbers are now in a walkoff for the first half pennant.

HUBBERS ANNEX DOUBLE BILL FROM GASSERS FOR LAST OF SERIES GOING TO FIRST PLACE

AMARILLO, July 2. Lubbock's Ran for Shepard in second, forged into the lead here Sunday when they took both games of a double header and the lead in the Panhandle-Pecos Valley League. Hard hitting by the Hubbers and some flashy playing completely outclassed the locals. Two teams were used by the home team in each game but Pipkin who pitched twelve innings allowing only five scattered hits and no runs was used only after team mates of his had lost the games in the early inning in both instances. A triple play in the first inning of the first game followed by a double in the second game was the feature of the Hubbers' fielding. Dean and Mueller pulled the fielding stunt. Only two more games remain for the locals in the first half and they will be with Roswell here Tuesday and Wednesday. In all probability Lubbock has won the pennant.

Signs 16-yr.-Old Wonder Third Baseman

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2. The San Francisco Seals, bidders for pennant honors in the Pacific Coast League, believe they have helped their chances for next year by signing Eddie Montague, young high school baseball star, said to be the youngest player on contract in organized baseball. Montague is only 16 years old. He got his training on the sand lots of Golden Gate Park and with the Polytechnic high school team. Experts who have watched him work claim he is the sweetest third baseman they have ever seen for his years and promises to be a greater player than Willie Kamm, his discoverer.

The young Seal has been under cover for some time and his signing was kept a dark secret until the school season had been played out. Eddie is a right-handed hitter and, according to George Alfred Putnam, Seal secretary, "has everything the old arm, the old punch with the bat, the speed and grace of Kamm and the eye of O'Connell. Tell you, he's a marvel."

Kamm claims to have discovered Montague, and told Charley Graham, NEW YORK, June 20. One ball player may not make a team, but for the Seals, that Montague will make a better ball player than Kamm ever hoped to make. Which season by letting the St. Louis Browns mosey along in the pennant race without his services. Minus the star first baseman, the Browns look like an ordinary baseball club, with nine players on the field stopping batted balls. With Sisler as the line-up last year, they lost the pennant race by a nose.

It isn't so much Sisler's physical powers that the Browns need. If he was batting around .310 and stealing 50 bases for them this year, it would help, of course. But it's the mental hazard of his absence that is doing more to keep them down.

With Sisler, they are confident; without him, they know they haven't got a chance.

In their failure lies one of the most tragic incidents of hard-luck baseball.

In the absence of Sisler it has been the veteran Walter Gerber that gives the old infield its warped conception of pep. They used to say it was Gerber who was the right side of the diamond and Sisler the left.

But it's sort of hard to be both sides at once. Big Jess Willard is adding to his reputation around New York every day. When the western giant first blew in Manhattan for his battle with Floyd Johnson, everyone gave him the razz. Old Jess, they called him, just back from the old men's home. They saw Jim prompted by greed to come back against some of the hams of the ring and pick up some of the easy money that the promoters were tossing out.

"Nickel nigger!" they yelled. Jess went plugging right along and, to the surprise of everyone, succeeded in getting himself into the best shape of his career. When he meets Luis Angel Firpo, champion of the "nickel niggers," there are going to be a lot more fans rooting for him than there were at the Yankee Stadium when he socked Johnson. They had a chance to call him hero a while back when he dragged his huge frame through a

Dr. Vinson Addresses the Student Body of the State University On the Eve of Departure for New Location

Special to the Avalanche.

AUSTIN, July 2.—Appearing before a large audience on June 30, Dr. R. E. Vinson, retiring president, made a farewell talk to the students and faculty of the University of Texas, prior to his leaving for his new home in Cleveland, Ohio, today. When he arose to speak, the audience stood and greeted him with applause, signifying their respect and admiration, as well as regret at his departure. At the close of his address, students and faculty crowded up to shake hands with Dr. Vinson and personally bid him farewell.

Dr. W. S. Sutton, acting president of the University, was introduced by Dr. Frederick Eby, dean of the summer school. Dr. Sutton made the presentation speech, introducing Dr. Vinson, paying a high tribute to his work not only in behalf of the University of Texas, but on the part of every branch of the educational system in Texas.

Dr. Vinson recalled the fact that he had addressed a body of students attending the summer school in 1916, and that he had also been invited then to address them by Dr. Sutton, who asked him to tell how it felt to be a university president after twenty-four hours of service. After seven years Dr. Vinson said that the task was even more difficult.

"One or two things stand out conspicuously, however, as personal recollections," said Dr. Vinson. "Now, more than ever before, after thirty days separation from the institution, I am more entirely committed to the fact and advisability of permanent education in America. From the university to the lowest grades, the system of public education in America is permanent. Americans are committed to it by national traditions, national practice, and the manner in which the young men and women are reacting to the system. The time is past when Americans can give up the system. Now that I am leaving the system of public education for an endowed school, I have no delusions regarding the fact that the public schools are the main dependence of the youth of America."

"In regard to the matter of numbers in the institutions of higher learning," said Dr. Vinson, taking up the second point of his speech, "we must accommodate ourselves to bigness in American industries, business and schools and set our intelligence to account to meet this bigness. At last the young people of America have been sold on the idea of higher education and the higher institutions of learning are reckoning their increase of enrollment on a compound rate. We must bring the same personal contact to the students of the big schools as in the small colleges. Truth only goes by contact of personalities, and if we are to restore the warm personal relationships, we must restore the small college attitude between students and faculty. The biggest internal problem of the American universities today lies in the adjusting of the machinery to meet the new conditions."

A pretty wedding took place Wednesday morning, June 21st, at ten o'clock, at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Ed. R. Wallace, 1720 Monroe Street, when their daughter, Victoria, became the bride of Charles Ferguson of Lubbock.

The decorations used throughout the rooms were simple but very effective, involving a profusion of rainbow tinted sweetpeas, ferns and other flowers from the June garden, while the ring service was read by Rev. C. N. N. Ferguson, father of the bride groom, who is pastor of the Methodist Church at Lubbock and formerly pastor of the Polk Street Methodist Church here.

The bride was attractively gowned in midnight blue point twill, with trimmings of gray and accessories to correspond.

ENGLISH CONDUCTOR IS COMING TO AMERICA

By the United Press

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 2.—Rochester is "all het up" over the announcement that Albert Coates, noted British conductor, will assume the post of director of the Rochester British Orchestra in the fall. Coates made a hurried visit to Rochester and after wiggling his pen at the bottom of a contract, dashed back to England, presumably to complete arrangements for his relief.

Eugene Goossens, another noted conductor and composer will come to Rochester in the early fall, whip the orchestra into shape to successfully tackle and throw for a loss such stumbling blocks as Wagner and Tchaikovsky conduct a short series of concerts and then turn over the reins to Coates.

The Rochester Orchestra was founded by George Eastman, of the family which made kodaking a far outdoor sport. It has hitherto been operated in conjunction with the Eastman Theatre and the Conservatory of Music but now plans on stepping out in real big league fashion. Eastman has done much for the development of music and art appreciation in the community.

ONLY TWO WEEKS LEFT TO APPLY FOR C. M. T. C.

Applications for the 1923 Citizens Military Training Camps are coming in to the C. M. T. C. Office at Eighth Corps Area Headquarters, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, in large numbers. The recruiting campaign will close July 15th, and as in previous years the rush of those who decide to come the last minute, has begun. There are only about 750 vacancies left in the four camps which are to be held at Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Fort Sill, Oklahoma; Fort Logan, Colorado, and Ft. Huachuca, Arizona. These will be filled during the next two weeks so it is urged that young men desiring to attend one of these camps apply at once.

The camps start July 28th and end August 26th. They offer a month of recreation and training carefully scheduled to appeal to the candidates. The government pays all expenses to and from camp, furnishes quarters, clothing, arms and equipment, wholesome food and medical attention.

Much of the time at the camps is devoted to athletics and other forms of recreation. All candidates are urged to bring swimming suits, baseball uniforms, track suits and musical instruments. There will be many competitive games and the field day which is held at the close of the camps will be a big event.

Application can be made to the local C. M. T. C. Committee or by writing direct to the C. M. T. C. Office, Eighth Corps Area, Fort Sam Houston, Texas. It must be remembered, however, that the time is short and immediate action is necessary.

Soft Coal Miners Enjoy Homes Rented For Twelve Dollars A Month; Amusement Costs Are Reported Low

The men and women and children, too—who live in the bituminous coal fields live well. They have advantages of which many city dwellers might well be jealous.

The lower picture shows a typical vine-covered cottage in which a mine worker and his family lives in one of the Colorado fuel fields. It has, like nearly all of them, a yard and garden space, is clean, comfortable, and attractive in every way.

Coal companies build these houses for their employees. In former years, the experiment has been tried of selling the houses to the miners, but this has been discontinued as it was thought to be unfair because of the nature of the coal mining industry. The average life of a coal mine is twenty-five years, and when the coal is worked out, the community often dies. The companies now provide the houses.

For these houses, the miners pay at a rate running from $1 to $2 per room each month. Usually the higher figure obtains. This means that a comfortable six room house, with modern improvements, is rented by the mine worker for $12 a month. Can you match this anywhere else?

Consider, too, that at some mines the family fuel for cooking and heating is supplied for about $1 a ton—at many mines it is entirely free—and that the lighting of the houses is done by the companies free of charge in nearly all cases.

nurse giving instruction to wives and daughters of miners in sewing. These visiting nurses are forming a more and more important phase in the life of a coal mining community—a phase which was unknown up until a few years ago.

When epidemics come, the visiting nurses have been the means of saving hundreds of lives of miners and their families.

Only nurses who can pass rigid tests are taken for this work. The first requirement is that they be graduate, registered nurses. Two years' practical experience since graduation is required before they can be considered for the mine work, in most of the fields where they are used.

cludes with these words, "The law is a distinct recognition of the individualistic tendencies of the mass of the peasants to guard against any return to economic inequality in land possession. The new system of land taxation which is markedly graduated in character, helps toward the same end of maintaining a social equilibrium."

It might be well for some of our would-be leaders to study carefully this story of Russia. Why not study out a policy for Texas? It might be well for them to remember that one-fourth of the population of Texas is made up of tenant farmers whose lot is growing worse year by year. It is also well for them to take note that there is an increasing land hunger in our midst that must be satisfied and that can only be satisfied thru combining security of possession with use. Soviet Russia has crudely pointed the way. We can work it out intelligently without any disturbance of the social order.

Flood in the west and pulled out a number of women, children and sheep horses. Jess was wading in a spot where ordinary human beings were trying to swim.

They've found out what the matter with Joe Beckett in London. A writer for the Mail there says Beckett has only one failing.

"His failing seems to be that whatever leads at him, Beckett leapt right back with his chin."

There are a lot of British boxers who have the same failing.

The race fans like to see Jockey Earle Sande move up in the last sixteenth with his double whip movement and push his charge under the wire while the other boys are gazing at him with open mouths.

That double Whip movement is a bear. Sande's right hand whips around in a figure eight so fast that the horse is touched spiritedly fore and aft within the flash of an eye. The motion, too, makes it look like Sande is running with the horse, and many a final drive in this fashion has won a race that otherwise would have been lost.

It is Sande who is largely responsible for Ze's big place on the turf this year. He came east from Idaho a few years ago with a few nickels in his pocket and decided to be a jockey.

It's unwise to estimate how much he has salted away, but he will never have to worry for cigarette money. He's now 26 years old, married and happy, thank you.

The Speaker says golf doesn't hurt a baseball player. The big chief of the Indians, who has sliced many a brassie in the rough, contradicts Frank Chance, new Red Sox manager, who issued a ban on golf for his ball players.

"I have never had any trouble reconciling the swing of a golf club and a baseball bat," Speaker declares. "I have never found since I started playing golf that my work on the diamond suffered."

"Anything that keeps you out in the air and gives you exercise is beneficial, and golf can be included in that classification."

SAD STORY OF DEATH OF THE FRENCH OYSTERS

By the United Press.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Fifty years ago, Portuguese oysters, declared war on French oysters, and today the gallant Frenchmen are about extinct.

On a stormy day in 1883, a Portuguese vessel, laden with oysters, was forced to seek shelter in the estuary of the Gironde River, near Bordeaux.

Before the vessel could put to sea again the oyster cargo commenced to decompose and local authorities ordered that the dying oysters be thrown overboard.

Just as the crack of the minute man's musket at Lexington was a shot heard round the world, so the order of the local gendarmes was one that spelt the death of the French oyster.

No sooner did the Portuguese oysters hit the bottom than rentless war was on. French oysters scurried up the estuary out of harm's way, but to no avail. In three years the last French oyster in the estuary exhaled its last bubble and the estuary was Portuguese.

Turning to new oyster worlds to conquer, the invading host of Portuguese bivalves moved out to sea and up and down the coast. Into the Marennes-Oleron region and the Arcachon basin they filtered, routing 200,000,000 French oysters. In fact today, on the entire coast of the Gironde River, not a single Gallic oyster remains to tell the tale. To the north alone in isolated beds, a few native French oysters survive.

In their behalf the French government has issued vigorous decrees to protect them from the savage Portuguese invaders.

But rapidity of growth, superior fecundity, and greater filtering power, among oysters, like among men, determine the rise and fall of nations, and there is little doubt but that the conquest of the French by the Portuguese oysters will soon be complete. Then only in Portuguese oyster sagas will the French oyster survive.

PROPERTY VALUES AT WICHITA FALLS DECLINE

By the United Press.

WICHITA FALLS, June 2.—A conservative estimate of the total valuation of city property for this year has placed the figure at $32,600,000. This is $2,000,000 less than that of last year.

Coal dealers don't make so much money during the summer, but they get their friends back.

THE BIG ISSUE

By Wm. A. BLACK

The hunt for big issues, for next year's campaign is now on. There is great scurrying here and there. Prospective candidates are led away by false scents and then come hurrying back to take up a new trail. President Harding is the most outstanding example. He started off after the world court with a considerable following as was natural, and now he is back again, still hunting for a big issue.

His example will no doubt be followed by hundreds of others. It will be seen here in Texas. Candidates will be jumping sideways until they have to settle on some question or questions that they think will appeal to the voters. There will be mighty few candidates that will boldly throw down the gauntlet on some fundamental issue and stand by it regardless of results.

declaration of February, 1918. The government at Moscow soon discovered that this plan would not work. So in February, 1922 another law was made that declared in favor of large Soviet estates, rural Communes, Group, Agricultural and all other forms of collective life.

It was declared that force after individual use of land should be regarded as only temporary. Rent was to be paid in kind and at first thirteen products were named. Later these thirteen were reduced to four. This plan failed. The Peasant did not respond. It was modified but the peasant would have none of the big Soviet estates. He wanted land of his own. The interesting things that the authorities at Moscow know their peasants and how much depended on their contentment. So in February, 1922 the whole scheme was changed. Land was allotted in severity. The peasant was to pay an annual tax, graduated on location and fertility. The peasants have gone to work and recent reports indicate that Russia will export large quantities of wheat this year something that has not taken place since before the war.

A report of our own Department Committee on this question con-

There is one issue that is world wide but that must be settled locally first. This is the world wide hunger for land. Man instinctively realizes that he is dependent on the use of land and all that that word implies. The unrest that is so much talked about today as if it were a post war phenomenon has long existed. We for the moment forget the past and credit most of our troubles to the World War.

We may yet have to turn to poor ignorant, despised Russia for guidance. As much as we condemn these unfortunate people they seem to have approached the solution of the land question in a way that may prove equitable and permanent? 85 percent of the Russians are peasants. They have experienced land hunger for generations. They care little for their government so long as they have land and can retain its produce.

The first step in a land policy by Soviet Russia was to declare for the "socialization" of all land. The peasant was allowed to work the land and he would be allowed to keep what was necessary for his existence and the surplus turned over to the Government. Mr. Peasant decided there would be no surplus. There was a marked decline in cultivated acreage following the
