Fire Destroys Sudan High School Building

HOUSE AND FIXTURES REPORTED TOTAL LOSS

ORIGIN OF FIRE UNKNOWN BUT FOLLOWED RENDITION CLASS PLAY

Sudan, one of the principal Santa Fe towns in Lamb county, is without a school, as the result of a fire that broke out at about 1 o'clock Saturday morning.

There have been two reports received in Lubbock of the fire, one to the effect that the entire structure was burned, and the other was to the effect that one wing of the building, comprising three class rooms, was saved from the flames.

Peters & Haynes, local architects, received a telegram from Pete Boush, president of the school board, stating that the building had been destroyed by fire and requesting that they go to Sudan today and meet with the school board to advise them as to the feasibility of reconstructing the building on the foundation from which it burned.

This building was completed last September and entered by the school students on the 15th of that month. A total of $46,000 was spent on its construction, but reports heard here to the effect that insurance coverage of $35,000 protected the school patrons from suffering the complete loss.

The Sudan school was a frame and stone structure, built on the Mission style, and was considered by many as being one of the most complete and attractive little school plants in West Texas.

Reports received in Lubbock were to the effect that a class play was given in the building Friday night, and it is believed that a cigaret stub had been cast into inflammable materials by someone of the attendants.

Mr. Coolidge has already served notice publicly he would not agree to amendment of the Mellon plan "in any vital particular."

Longworth told the president that the surtax rates would be somewhere between 25 and 44 percent with 35 percent appearing the most likely compromise.

HERRIN, Ill., Feb. 9.—Bloody Williamson county keeps the peace at the point of the bayonet.

Three companies of state militia brought here on order of Adjutant General Carlos Black, patrolled the dimly lighted streets ready for action in case of further outbreaks between the Ku Klux Klan and "Knights of the Flaming Circle," a rival organization.

George Galligan, sheriff of Williamson county, was arrested by Young and his aides and held in jail here on a charge of killing Caesar Cagle, Young's "first lieutenant."

John Layman, chief deputy sheriff, also accused of participating in the attack upon Cagle was later wounded in a gun battle. He was taken to the Herrin hospital, where his chances for recovery were considered slim.

The second outbreak of violence occurred at the hospital when a group of Layman's friends called to inquire of his condition. Young and his followers came at the same moment to arrest them. Shots were exchanged between the two groups but none seriously wounded.

TECH OFFICIALS ARE SEEING BOSTON TECH AS IT OPERATES IN ITS NEW PLANT JUST FINISHED

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 8.—The region about Boston is headquarters for technological education. It ought to be because the people up here have the four great requisites for developing schools of technology. They have the brains, they have the money, they have the industries and, perhaps most important of all, they have had the time for bringing these three elements together in the best discoverable fashion.

During the week the members of the Texas Tech committee were in Boston and vicinity, they visited the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (better known as a distance as the Boston Tech), the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, the textile schools of Lowell, New Bedford and Fall River. They also visited the establishment of the Saco-Lowell Company, the largest manufacturer of textile machinery in the world. They were entertained for luncheon by this company and saw the latest development of their product.

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology is the Leviathan among schools of technology. It occupies 50 acres just across the Charles River from Boston and has recently purchased 30 acres more. The school has only recently moved into its quarters. Every cubic foot of its buildings is new. It is estimated that $25,000,000 have been expended on this new plant, of which about $7,000,000 went into equipment.

The buildings serve as an inspiration for architects desiring technological school buildings elsewhere. It is doubtful if buildings just like them will ever be erected elsewhere. This is true first because no other school is likely soon to have $25,000,000 to spare and second because in places where climate conditions are different, these are not the buildings which would be put up even if the money were available.

The Texas architects found much about these buildings valuable for suggestion or adaption, but certainly nothing which, on any large scale, could be copied. The new Texas Tech buildings must be adapted to the climate and environment of Texas, not to those of New England.

This institution began regular work in 1865, although provision for it was made in 1861. It began on a very small scale and has had fifty years in which to grow to its present size. Fifty years hence the Texas Tech may have reached twenty-five million dollars in valuation, as it starts with much better appropriations than did the Massachusetts Institute.

The Boston Tech now has 2900 students in attendance. Of these about 10 per cent come from foreign countries. Not quite one-half come from Massachusetts. Last year there were 39 from Texas.

Like many other eastern institutions, the Boston Tech is co-educational and yet it isn't. Women are admitted but apparently more or less under protest. At present about 2 per cent of the students are women.

Among the degrees granted are those of Bachelor of Science, Master of Science, Doctor of Philosophy. Degrees are granted in fifteen different courses, including architecture, biology and public health, chemical engineering, chemistry, civil engineering, electrical engineering, electro-mechanical engineering, engineering administration, general science, geology and geological engineering, mechanical engineering, mining engineering, and metallurgy, naval architecture, marine engineering, physics, sanitary engineering. All these are four-year courses and a strict standard of college entrance requirements is maintained. The textile work is merely one small subdivision of the work in mechanical engineering.

A very large part of the work is along the lines of original research. One of the most interesting features is the way in which the United States government and many of the great industrial corporations cooperate with the institution in working out problems of research. For instance during the war, such problems as the detecting of submarines by locating the sound were worked on in these laboratories. The big rubber corporations, the big corporations dealing with oils, cotton, sugar and other commodities, have rooms assigned to them here, where their own scientists in connection with the scientists of the institution and the students work on research problems connected with these commodities.

Some of the great magazines and papers, such for instance as the Saturday Evening Post, are adopting the policy of guaranteeing the truth of statement made in their advertisements. Accordingly they are sending samples of molasses, baking powder and other articles advertised, to the laboratories of the M. I. T. to ascertain by analysis whether statements as to purity and analysis are borne out by actual investigation. It is said that this practice is becoming more and more frequent.

In fact, the Boston Tech is more than a mere school for instruction. It is a clearing house for the latest and best ideas on all kinds of scientific and industrial problems. It is one institution that is making its research work count for real advancement along industrial line and other lines that closely affect the life of the people. It has exalted its own mission, not by withdrawing itself from the problems of every day life but by coming close to them.

Can Texas ever have a technological college equal in standing to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology? Yes, most assuredly, when Texas fulfills the four conditions outlined above. That means, when the industrial development of Texas is as great as that of Massachusetts now is when $25,000,000 has been spent on a technological plant under the direction of the best brains available and when fifty years has been allowed for the bringing of the other elements together. It certainly can not do so of any one of these four elements is missing. And the sun of Texas is "a rising sun, not a setting sun."

P. W. Horn.

Texas to Establish Large Textile School

(From Southern Textile Bulletin) The State of Texas is planning to build the largest and best technical school in the country, according to statements made by John W. Carpenter, of Dallas, Texas, vice president and general manager of the Texas Power and Light Company, who spent a few hours in Charlotte Saturday.

The new college, which will be known as the Texas Technological College, will be located at Lubbock, in the western part of the State, 300 miles from Dallas.

Mr. Carpenter is a member of a commission appointed by the Texas Legislature to visit the chief technical schools and textile centers of the country, with a view to getting the most advanced ideas on the construction of technical schools and a thorough knowledge of the practical operation of textile mills.

Other members of the commission are: Dr. P. W. Horn, president of the new college; William Ward Watkins, of Houston; W. C. Hedrick, of Fort Worth, and L. W. Robert, Jr., of Atlanta, architects and engineers who will have charge of the construction work.

The Legislature has already appropriated $1,500,000 to the college, in which it is expected that close to $20,000,000 will eventually be invested, Mr. Carpenter stated. Present plans call for the erection of 27 buildings. Chief interest will be centered on the textile department which it is the intention to make second to none in the world.

Actual construction will start immediately after the commission returns to Lubbock, and it is expected that the cornerstone of the initial building will be laid July 4.

"Texas is making tremendous strides in the production of cotton," Mr. Carpenter stated, and as instance cited the fact that whereas 10 years ago Lubbock county produced not cotton at all, last year the crop totalled over 60,000 bales. Texas farmers during the 90-day period of crop marketing last year deposited $100,000,000 a day in banks, the return from their cotton crops alone. "We believe that within 25 or 30 years Texas will be the textile center of the South," Mr. Carpenter declared.

The Texas Power and Light Company, of which Mr. Carpenter is the active head, occupies the same relative position to the textile industry in Texas as the Southern Power Company holds with the industry in the Piedmont section, he explained.

"We are giving the mills we supply as low a rate as the mills in this section are getting, which is made possible by the fact that we are in the center of three sources of fuel supply, coal, lignite and oil. All of our power is furnished by steam.

"We believe that our system of power plants and power lines will equal anything you have in this section," Mr. Carpenter continued. "We are now erecting a 100,000 kilowatt station."

The party drove over to Kanna-polis Saturday morning to inspect the big Cannon Mills. They left for Philadelphia Saturday night, the present itinerary calling for stops at Philadelphia, Boston, Lowell, Pittsburgh, and other technical school and textile centers. The party has already visited Atlanta and Raleigh. The Texas party, during its stay in Charlotte, was accompanied by E. W. Hunter, of the Charlotte office of the Saco-Lowell Shops, who conducted the party through several mills in Charlotte and nearby towns.

A. TEXAS TECHNOLOGY

(Boston Evening Transcript)

A Texas technology is being planned by a group of educators and architects from that State, who are now in Boston visiting the various engineering schools and textile mills. Dr. P. W. Horn, for seventeen years superintendent of city schools in Texas, will be the president of the new institution, which will cost about $10,000,000 when completed. The State legislature has already appropriated $1,500,000 and ground will be broken at Lubbock, located in the western part of the State on the Fourth of July. The institution will be opened to students in September of 1925 and, when all the buildings have been erected will accommodate 3000 men and women students.

According to Dr. Horn and John W. Carpenter, a member of the board of trustees, the institution will be to Texas what the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has been to the East. "Texas is developing rapidly," said Mr. Carpenter today, "and we need such a college in which to train our young people. Lubbock is in one of our western counties and during the past year that county supplied 60,000 bales of cotton, while the State of Texas produced forty-three per cent of the nation's production and also more than fifty per cent of the nation's wool. In regard to oil, Texas is the second most productive State, California being first and Oklahoma third.

"We are very rich in natural resources and our population is increasing. We now stand fourth in

TEAPOT DOME SCANDAL COMPLETELY CHANGES DEMOCRATIC SITUATION ON EVE ELECTION; M'ADOO STRANDED

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
(United News Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright 1924, By United News)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Revelations in the Teapot Dome affair have changed completely the complexion of the democratic situation.

The line up of candidates has been upset for one thing. William G. McAdoo, romping along toward the democratic presidential nomination, has been hit in the leg by a stray bullet. He was just an innocent bystander, having been engaged by Doheny to handle some Mexican matters, in no way connected with the oil leasing scandal. But McAdoo was standing too close to the melee and an erratic bullet hit him. He is just as lame now as if he had been hit while in the midst of the scramble as a combatant.

Political Tragedy.
It is one of those tragedies of politics, for no one believes that McAdoo has done one thing off color. The public mind rarely draws fine distinctions and however unjust it is to McAdoo, the hard fact is that his vote pulling power has been gravely damaged and it will be difficult to find 732 delegates at the New York convention who will be willing to take a chance on trying to put Doheny's lawyer in the White House.

McAdoo has hit back in his own defense, but at the same time he announces that he has quit Doheny, and this will be seized upon by many who will ask why he quit now, if his connection has been proper heretofore.

Another Candidate Sought.
Now the hunt is on for another available candidate. John W. Davis of West Virginia, is a man of recognized ability, but being J. P. Morgan's lawyer he will have a hard time winning the nomination. Al Smith's friends grow more confident daily, but there are two things which will make him as poor a candidate in the middle states—his religious connection and his wet views.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, the hero of the Teapot Dome scandal, would be the logical candidate, except that he, like Smith, has a religious affiliation which crosses certain prejudices. Of the men who have been prominent in the democrat picture—Senator Oscar Underwood is the strongest at the moment and is profiting by McAdoo's ill luck, but he has considerable opposition among the drys which probably will become more active a little later.

Ford Best Candidate.
Henry Ford would stand right now as the best possible candidate for the Democrats, had he not committed himself for Coolidge a few weeks ago. Like Herbert Hoover, he threw away a good Democratic nomination by casting his lot with the Republicans just when there was talk of bringing him the nomination on a silver platter.

William Jennings Bryan, and his candidate, Dr. J. R. Murphee, Senator James A. Red, of Missouri, Senator Rolston, of Indiana, and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, are all in the picture, some more prominently than others. One figure now remaining in the background, who should be watched closely is Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York. Copeland is sawing wood and he will have a surprisingly big pile ready when the convention meets. His nomination as senator from New York was a surprise to every one. He may spring a surprise about July 1. He had been slated to run as vice president with McAdoo. But now talk of putting him at the head of the ticket is heard. He stands at the moment as one of the most potential of the Democratic figures.

Changes Stir Party.
Turning from the matter of candidates to the situation of the party as a whole, the outstanding change is the sudden lull which has stirred the Democratic ranks since the Teapot Dome scandal broke. A month ago the Mellon tax plan had just about sold the Coflage administration to the country and there was keen discouragement among the Democrats.

They had been out-manuevered by the Republicans who leaped in with their tax reduction bill first. Then they allowed the Republicans to propose that reductions be applied this year, instead of next, as had been previously planned.

Party Fought Shy of Leases.
But now the Teapot Dome affair has smeared itself over the whole record and little else is being noticed.

Individual Democrats may be shown to have entered Doheny's employ after leaving the cabinet. But the Democratic administration fought desperately against leasing of oil fields and held out to its last day inaugurating the policies which were so quickly adopted by the Republicans with the present disastrous results. The Democrats are eager to go to the country on the oil leasing issue, and the spluttering of some individual Democrats with oil does not in the least weaken them in this desire.

It will be remarked that Doheny is a prominent Democrat and that he was placed in nomination as a candidate for the vice presidential nomination at the San Francisco convention in 1920. But he was never able to induce the Democratic administration to open its oil reserves to him and that is the all-important fact so far as the coming presidential campaign is concerned.

TECH OFFICIALS ARE SEEING BOSTON TECH

population and we have the people—native born Americans—to develop our natural resources. For a long time we have felt the need of a college of technology. Our textile industry is growing in importance. Concerns in New England are establishing mills in the South and Southwest and Texas is getting her share of that industry. In fact the trend of the textile industry is to the Southwest.

Mr. Carpenter, who evidently loves his State, is general manager of the Texas Power & Light Company, which supplies more than one hundred cities, the rates being lower according to Mr. Carpenter than those in New England.

The proposed institution will be built in a series of courts, or patios, after the Spanish style. In all there will be six courts, with four buildings to a court, while there will be three buildings separate, making a total of twenty-seven buildings. The administration court will contain the library, assembly hall and a gymnasium. The women's court will comprise a dormitory, coking, arts and crafts departments. The men's court will naturally have a dormitory, while the other three buildings will be devoted to civil, mechanical and electrical engineering. The science court will be given over to chemistry, physics, biology and meteorology. The agriculture court will be used for soil analysis and animal husbandry. In addition, there will be farm lands and a textile department, which will include a miniature textile mill of two thousand spindles. The buildings will be heated and lighted by a central plant and the institution will have two thousand acres of rolling land at its disposal. Dr. Horn did not comment at great length upon the Ku Klux Klan. He declared, however, that there are more Klan members in the Northern States than in the South. In regard to Mexicans, he stated there were eight hundred thousand in the United States, and half of that number reside in Texas. "The Mexican is a regular fellow and is peaceful if you handle him right," added Dr. Horn. The architects with Dr. Horn and Mr. Carpenter are William Ward Watkin, formerly with Cram & Ferguson; L. W. Robert, Jr., and W. C. Hedrick.

HOPE HAMPTON HAS FINE CAST IN BIG FEATURE

Clarence L. Brown, director for Hope Hampton production has assembled a powerful cast for Miss Hampton's forthcoming First National feature, "The Light in the Dark" which will be shown at the Lyric Theatre on Monday.

In support of Miss Hampton will be found such film celebrities as Lon Chaney, E. K. Lincoln, Dorothy Walters, Dore Davidson and Edgar Norton. Chaney, who many regard as the best portrayal of the crook type of character in the silent drama, portrays the part of a reformed East Side crook of New York, giving him ample opportunity to display the genius and ability which has made him famous in this sort of role. He will be remembered best for his work in "The Miracle Man," "The Trap," more recently in "Bits of Life."

Lincoln has appeared in so many successes as to make further mention quite unnecessary, while Norton's "butlering" on the stage and screen has won him considerable renown. One of Davidson's best contributions to the silver sheet was his portrayal of the father in "Humoresque," and again he registered a big dramatic triumph as Isaac Abrahamson in "The Rosary." Dorothy Walters has appeared in a number of Constance Talmadge's productions, and as Mrs. O'Dare in "Irene" she appeared nightly in the eighty-five weeks' run which his play enjoyed on Broadway.

"The Light in the Dark," which was filmed at the Paragon Studios in Fort Lee, N. J., is declared to be Hope Hampton's greatest and most elaborate production to date. It is adapted from an original story by William Dudley Pelley.

Read about Professor Pep. He will be at the high school auditorium again Monday night. Be sure and read the ad and go. 89-1

RETAIL MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION WILL GIVE BANQUET FOR MEMBERS AND OTHER BUSINESS MEN FEB. 19TH

Tickets are being sold for the Retail Merchants' Association banquet which is to be held at the Lubbock high school at eight o'clock on the evening of February 19th.

It was announced by a member of the association Saturday that one hundred plates will be sold for the banquet, and that they want that many business men in attendance.

It was pointed out that the association officials are wanting to have that many business men at the banquet, and included in the number may be those who do not belong to the association or they may even not be prospective members.

The Merchants' Association of Lubbock is doing much good in up holding business standards in Lubbock and in offering ample protection for the various businesses of this city, and we want more business men to become acquainted with our organization," a member of the association said in discussing the banquet.

The senior class of the high school will have charge of the banquet service, which insures its being a success.

Prominent business men will talk on the problems that confront Lubbock businesses, and in every way this meeting will be made profitable for those in attendance.

Tickets are now on sale at the office of the Retail Merchants' Association which is located in the Cotton Exchange Building.

LAND NEAR ABERNATHY SOLD FOR $75 PER ACRE

DO YOU KNOW WHAT PRINTER'S DEVIL IS?

Do you know what is meant by a "printer's devil"?

Probably not, as the term is confined to the printing trade. It means an errand boy who is always rushing in and out with copy and proofs and rushing out again. It began to be used several hundred years ago in England by authors who had contracted to deliver a certain piece of writing by a specified time and were in arrears; the errand boy would bound them and remain at their door having orders not to return without the copy.

Somebody compared him to a devil keeping after tortured souls, and the simile was so apt that it stuck, till now the errand boy of a printer's establishment is called a printer's devil.

Wesley Barry, freckled as ever, and as irresponsible and lovable, has the starring part in "The Printer's Devil," a Warner Brothers classic of the screen specially written for him by Julien Josephson. In the part of "Brick" he is shown as a devil of a printer's devil of a country newspaper who has to do everything, from acting as reporter and chief engineer, to janitor and general utility boy.

The picture will be shown at the R. & R. Theatre Monday. It is said to afford Wesley the best vehicle of his career for the exhibition of his fun-loving propensities. Supporting him in the cast are the following: Harry Myers, Katherine McGuire, Louis King, George Pearce, Ray Cannon, Mary Halter and Harry Rottenberg.

There are hundreds of ranches all over West Texas being cut into tracts and for sale to farmers on DIFFERENT terms and at a range of price from $15 per acre to $50.

The fact that all of West Texas is experiencing the greatest immigration period in its history also brings out the fact that one cannot be too hasty in the purchase of a home—even in West Texas! It is the rush that causes inflation of values. Therefore let us present facts upon which you may well consider before purchasing.

Investigate before buying! Consider the distance from GOOD MARKETS—WHOLESALE FACILITIES—LARGE DEPARTMENT STORES—because all of these things enhance the real value of the property you may purchase

That is why we say that it is possible for you to win $1,000 or lose that amount or more in the real value of the property you may purchase in West Texas.

retaries of the Interior.

North Carolina forbids teaching in public schools "any form of evolution which makes it appear that man descended from any of the lower order of animals, monkeys or anything else."

The North Carolina authorities should also forbid study of embryology. It is discouraging to find, in embryonic conditions, that human beings in the period before birth, pass through various animal stages, duplicating practically all of them, from the single cell up to the fully developed "primate."

At one stage of his development before birth every man has two feet like a gorilla. Sometimes one of the feet does not develop, and the man is born with one gorilla foot, which we call a "club foot." That can easily be arranged by forbidding the teachers to say anything about embryology. If you don't like facts, why, smother them.

Doctor Semashko announces that Lenin's brain weighed 1,340 grams; not an unusual weight. The brain of Turgenieff weighed 2,000 grams. That of the great naturalist Cuvier was even heavier. But the convolutions in Lenin's brain were extraordinarily deep. That is what counts.

The deeper the convolutions the larger the surface of the brain, and all thinking is done close to the brain's surface, just as all crops are raised close to the earth's surface.

In the depths of the brain, doubtless, as in the depths of the earth, are hidden great treasures not yet developed.

Surprising to Americans that do not know the English is the fact that Englishmen of high rank and most conservative traditions consent to join the Labor Government.

You could not imagine any of our powerful reactionaries joining a cabinet with a union labor man at its head. Britain has statesmen, used to changes, asking only, "How can I render service to the Empire?"

It is announced that President Coolidge will veto any tax bill carrying a higher surtax than 25 per cent.

In time of war any tax is just. When Government says to the poor man, "I will take your life for a dollar a day," and takes it may well say to the rich man, "I will take half to three-quarters of your income."

But the war is over. Excessive taxation discourages new enterprises that employ new labor and develop new wealth. If this country knew as much about collecting taxes as they know in England, a twenty-five per cent surtax on the biggest incomes that even our excellent spenders couldn't spend.

the true motive lying behind his dealings with Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome.

Senator Lenroot, chairman of the committee, believes if it can be circumstantially indicated that Sinclair wished to keep hidden certain information concerning the financial condition of former Secretary of the Interior Fall, he can use it as "a practical confession" of corruption.

Lubbock Morning Avalanche

Early Days on The Plains

By J. J. DILLARD

The Bean ranch house, a dug-out and "dobe" building, was on section 6, block D-2, about 14 miles northwest of Lubbock, instead of northeast, as I was made to say in last Sunday's issue.

I had visited Lubbock in June, 1896, and had entered into contract to teach the Groves school, which was located on section 26, same block.

I was examined for a teacher's certificate in August, 1896, and the examining board was composed of Geo. R. Bean, D. P. Lowe and W. D. Crump. I recall several incidents connected with the examination, which lasted two days. Judge Crump pronounced twenty words as spelling test, and among them was the state of Missouri. When checked by the board for accuracy, it was discovered that I had the state Missouri, using an "o" instead of an "i", as I was misled by the abbreviation, Mo. Another test was the analysis of a geometrical figure containing about ten sides, which, according to its statement, was impossible. I drew the figure, but could not make it harmonize and gave it up after making statement. I went no further with the demonstration. Later I was much surprised when the board gave me one hundred per cent. The examiners thought that I knew it was an impossible problem, and gave me full credit, when in fact, I had not discovered it was a "catch" question, but it was simply impossible for me. However, the test was a good one and since that experience, I learned the worth of trying out every proposition that confronts you in life. Some times you know more about the question than you understand.

The school was opened on the first Monday in September, with enrollment of seventeen pupils, and was represented by children from the families of G. O. Groves, Joe Lang, Sam E. Ghoslon and E. Y. Lee. Among the citizens of Lubbock who were pupils in this school, are Mrs. E. B. Penney and Mrs. C. E. Hunt, and perhaps one of the Groves family. I recall an incident that happened that came near being serious to the writer. One cold, disagreeable morning I was building a fire in the heating stove and the school children were teasing me in many ways. One pupil, Hazel Lang, lighted a match, and while I was in a stooping position, touched my heavy head of hair, which ignited and blazed high, similar to a cloth saturated with kerosene oil. No harm was done, for one girl standing near with her heavy cloak on her arm, immediately dashed it over my head, completely smothering the flames almost instantly. The school continued eight months.

The national election was one of the interesting events that transpired that year, as the question of free coinage of silver was agitated by one wing of the Democrats, and championed by William Jennings Bryan, of Lincoln, Nebraska, candidate for President of the United States, while another faction of the Democrats, had bolted the convention and nominated John M. Palmer, former Gov. of Illinois, candidate for President on the sound money, or gold standard ticket, and Simon B. Buckner was nominated for Vice President on same ticket.

In the meantime the Republicans had nominated Wm. McKinley of Ohio as their candidate for President. The interest was all absorbing, even in this sparsely settled country. I was permitted to vote, and eagerly cast my vote for Wm. J. Bryan. I remember that on Saturday just before the November election, that our townsman Frank E. Wheelock who was an ardent supporter of Bryan and his policies, was engaged in a heated argument with another gentleman who was an adherent of the gold standard policies. The argument waxed warm and finally Frank and his opponent decided the question by physical combat and since Frank was quite a giant physically, he easily won the battle. However, Geo. R. Bean, Frank Wheelock and several other followers of Bryan went down in defeat as Bryan was defeated by a few votes and McKinley was elected.

Among the candidates for county officers were Wm. Lowe, who had been the successful candidate for sheriff at the November election, in 1894, but was opposed in 1895 by J. Ben LeGette. Another interesting contest was the re-election of P. F. Brown, who had been the successful candidate on November, 1894, defeating the first county judge of Lubbock county, G. W. Shannon. J. Winford Hunt, one among the oldest pioneers on the Plains, with reference to residence, tells an interesting story on Judge Brown, who, by the way was as we all know, is our present county judge.

At that time Lynn, Hockley and Cochran counties were attached to Lubbock county for judicial purposes and all citizens of the three counties voted for county officers in Lubbock county. Brown was "dubbed" the nestor or settlers' candidate while his opponent was charged with being in sympathy with the large cattlemen.

On the night of the election, all parties interested remained late to get the results of the election, and among them Judge Brown. The results of Lubbock, Hockley and Cochran counties had been ascertained, and only Lynn county had to be heard from to decide who was elected. It was generally conceded that Lynn county would only cast nine votes. Immediately after Brown learned the vote in all the counties except Lynn he knew beyond a possibility of a doubt, that he was elected, as he then had seventeen votes more than his opponent and if all the nine votes in Lynn were cast for his opponent he would be elected. The judge felt much elated and at once stole out into the darkness, where his one cylinder hay burning automobile was parked and cranked her by sayin "git up," and applied the gas, which was a rawhide buggy whip applied with force by the right hand, instead by the foot as is now the custom. He was in high gear and was soon making fifteen miles per hour, headed toward his dug-out home, near the present site of the Canyon school, seven miles east of town.

Winford Hunt had been out to Frank Wheelock's home, which was one mile south and four miles east from the northeast corner of the original town section, and this road then continued east to Judge Brown's home, in same place as road is today. However, the road from Wheelock's home intersected the road east at a point some two miles east of town, entering same at a gate, going northwest from the Wheelock ranch home. Winford Hunt was returning and as he neared the intersection of the road traveled by Brown, he heard quite a commotion and was undecided for some moments whether it was a stampeded herd of cattle or a cowboy on the warpath, or celebrating the election, with an overdose of "white-mule."

He halted and listened and soon discovered that it was Judge Brown on his way home, going at full speed in his buckboard, with loose boards in the floor and all four tires loose, together with loose spokes, made a noise like unto a fast freight train. At intervals of about each fifty yards distance the judge would apply the fuel to the sorrel one-cylinder, hay burning engine, by standing on his feet in the rickety buckboard, and lash his animal on the back and yell with a voice like a Comanche Indian and say "Whoop-ee," "seventeen votes ahead and Lynn county to hear from." Hunt informs the writer that he continued in this manner of celebrating his victory, until he had traveled to such a distance that he could not be heard. He knew if every vote in Lynn county was cast against him that he was elected.

The contest for county and district clerk was interesting. The candidates being Geo. C. Wolfarth and C. F. Stubbs. Wolfarth was elected.

If my memory serves me correctly, J. Ben LeGette was elected sheriff; J. B. Mobley, county treasurer and Wm. Tubbs, tax assessor; and P. F. Brown, judge.

Among the teachers in Lubbock county at that time was myself, Prof. D. P. Lowe, and Albert J. Clark and perhaps one more.

I remember that all public entertainments, public gatherings and church services were held in the court house. The county teachers' institute was held during the winter months and among the entertainers were: Mrs. Lou Stubbs, Cotter Caraway, now Mrs. Will Ross, Miss Lottie Hunt, now Mrs. Geo. C. Wolfarth, Miss Myrtle Hunt, now Mrs. W. A. Bacon and Miss Jonnie Mobley, now Mrs. Albert Taylor, Albert J. Clark and myself. I recall that Albert Clark declaimed, "Darius Green and his flying machine," which was the imagination of the boy who climbed to the top of the barn and tried to fly and the attendant results.

My favorite declamation was "Peter Sorghum's Courtship." Other entertainers along other lines, were: Winford Hunt, and his sister, Miss Nora Hunt, now Mrs. Geo. R. Bean, and Claud Green and several others, who were vocalists, and especially Winford Hunt who had one of the strongest bass voices west of Fort Worth; also, Claud Green and Albert Clark possessed fine tenor voices.

I am sure that there are a number of old-timers who will recall with pleasant memories, the occasion of the Teachers' Institute and Christmas Entertainment, which were attended by cowboys and citizens from Lynn, Terry, Hockley, Cochran, Crosby and Hale counties.

O memory, thou fond deceiver, Still importunate and vain, To former joys recurring ever And turning all the past to pain. Lulled in the countless chambers of the brain Our thoughts are linked by many a hidden chain Awake but one, and lo, what millions rise, And each stamps its image as the other flies.

NEW SCHEME TO SEND U. S. NEGROES TO AFRICA

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (United Press)—The steamer Nile, at one time famous on the Pacific Coast as a China trader, has been bought from a junk company for $80,000 by the Liberian Transportation Company and Church of God line. The purchase was announced by Rev. J. Eliphalet Lewis, ebony-hued president general of the company, and also bishop of the Ethiopian Promoters of the World.

The Nile will be used in maintaining a direct passenger service between Monrovia, on the west coast of Africa and Los Angeles. She will carry blacks from this country to the negro republic, and return with a cargo of ivory, gold, platinum and precious stones.

"The destiny of the black race lies in its people being returned to their homeland, and the salvation in America will be brought about by the Nile and the Church of God line," he said.

McCain Brothers will plant 1000 acres of cotton near Ropesville this season. This cotton crop will be planted on all new land and is the largest one undertaken in Hockley county.

The best seeds will be used and Messrs. McCain express confidence of a large yield, in view of the fact that the season is all right. The land is the finest to be had and the boll weevil is unknown in this part of Texas. Hockley county is fast becoming a big farming country.

LONGEST TUNNEL ALMOST COMPLETED

By United Press
 CATSKILL, N. Y., Feb. 9.—The world's longest tunnel, with a bore of more than eighteen miles through solid rock in the Catskill mountains is completed, except for the placing of a concrete lining in the last third of the bore. It is the great Shandaken tunnel, part of the immense waterworks system built by the city of New York, to bring mountain water to the millions in the world's metropolises.

Altogether it is the greatest water system ever built, and completion of the Shandaken tunnel will put the finishing touches on it. The tunnel will bring the water of Schoharie county watersheds into Esopus creek, which will carry the flow down into the Ashokan reservoir, through 150 miles of aqueduct, siphon and tunnel to the greater city, assuring the metropolis a supply in excess of its needs for many years to come.

New York uses normally about 600 millions gallons of water daily. The new tunnel tapping the Schoharie watershed will be able to supply that quantity in an emergency, though city officials estimate that only about 250 million gallons will be required in addition to the normal flow from Ashokan.

Divert a River.
 The Gilboa dam, creating the Schoharie reservoir as the head of the expanded system is nearing completion, but a temporary dam permits the use of the reservoir now. When the permanent dam is completed, the entire Schoharie river will be diverted into the reservoir and thence into the Shandaken tunnel.

In effect, the engineers are diverting an entire river, making it run hundreds of feet under the Shandaken range for a distance of more than 18 miles.

The tunnel was driven through sandstone and shale laid in almost horizontal strata. About eight miles of heavy, permanent roofing was required to prevent rock falls before the concrete lining was put in. More than 650,000 carloads of muck and rock were hauled underground an average distance of 4,000 feet to the various shafts that vent the tunnel, and then were hoisted an average of 450 feet to the surface. The blasting called for 2,500,000 pounds of dynamite.

So wild was some of the country in which the work was carried on that engineers had to resort to the radio to keep in contact with the outside world. Governor Smith has often pointed to the creation of the vast water system by the greater city as proof that it is possible for municipalities to successfully put through immense public works projects.

HEAVY CHARITY DEMANDED.

By United Press.
 BERLIN.—One-fourth of Berlin's inhabitants—981,000 persons—are, at present, receiving support from the city administration. Unemployed and short-time workers, including their families, amount to 530,000 persons, who draw their support from doles. Next come 355,000 war invalids and families of fallen soldiers depending on pensions from the commune. Berlin's old age pensioners number about 100,000, while 62,000 persons are temporarily supported on account of illness. The inmates of old-age homes, hospitals, asylums, etc., number 35,000.

MAN SENT AFTER PRIZE NEVER CAME BACK.

BUENOS AIRES (By mail to United Press).—Tragedy followed upon the prosperity of five Italians in Patagonia who won the grand prize in the national lottery, amounting to 300,000 pesos. The men were working as peons. When they learned the ticket they held had won they gathered in a little shack. The ticket was placed on the table, with five fingers sticking in the wood around it.

All night they debated as to which of their number should go to Buenos Aires and collect the money—they had only the fare for one. At last it was decided, and one left. He never returned. One of the men left became a raving maniac when it became certain that the messenger would not return.

S. S. MINNESOTA STRANDED ON DUTCH COAST

LONDON, Feb. 9 (By mail to United Press).—By stranding on the Holland coast while being towed to the yard of some German shipbreakers, the S. S. Minnesota—the expensive pet of the late James J. Hill—maintained to the last her reputation of being one of the world's unluckiest ships.

Launched in 1904 as the "biggest-cargo-carrier-in-the-world," the Minnesota was also the fastest under the Stars and Stripes. Hill's satisfaction in her was great.

He found out that while she was fast as a cargo boat, she was slow as a passenger boat, and he dropped half a million dollars on her in the grueling competition of the Pacific coast.

He found out that she consumed coal cruelly, and was such a brute to handle that when she entered the Inland Sea, it was a signal for every Jap fisherman to up anchor and run for shelter!

He found out that the Interstate Commerce Commission didn't like the idea of a railroad company

He read in the paper one morning that she had broken both propellers some 1,700 miles out of Yokohama.

He read again just before his death, that she had stranded on the beach in the Inland Sea, and that they had had to use a charge of dynamite to get her off! One man killed.

Then Hill died and she passed into the hands of the International Mercantile Marine, who gave her a new set of boilers without, however, curing her boiler troubles.

But during the war her luck changed and she made them money hand over fist.

Then back to the old story again; more boiler troubles and a new immigration law which destroyed her usefulness as a carrier of immigrants. She rusted on the mud near New York until an un-lucky German bought her for scrap. He proposed to haul her over to Germany for breaking up, but the underwriters balked at the German crew and he had to hire an expensive American crew.

And now she is piled up on the Dutch coast, the verdammed pig of a boat that ever tempted a hard-working speculator to part with his money!

DEMANDS ALL ILL. DELEGATES BE INSTRUCTED

By United Press.
 CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 8.—Bitter memories of 1920, "perfidious Michigan" and the capacity of politicians for astounding flip flops still haunt Senator Hiram Johnson.

His heavy heritage of suspicion cropped up once more Friday. In a statement that for acute caution was a masterpiece, Johnson's Illinois manager, Harold L. Ickes, registered a loud veto against leaving the state's eleven delegates at large uninstructed.

Simultaneously, Ickes laid claim to Illinois "by inheritance" as a former Roosevelt state.

Only 33 hours earlier the senator himself left Chicago after a two day conference. During this pow-wow he appointed Ickes to steer his Illinois campaign, and the demand for an instructed delegation at large is Ickes' first official act.

Thus there is small room for doubt that Johnson himself directed the bit of strategy.

In 1920 scores of delegates who were Johnson "stalwart" on the first ballot turned their backs on California and her native son without much ceremony and moved their sympathies eastward at such a rate that Johnson's managers were dazed by the breeze from their coal states and did not understand for days exactly what had happened.

"There will be eleven Johnson delegates and alternates at large," promises Ickes' statement, "and in every district of the state there will be an opportunity to vote for delegates who are known to be for Johnson from the first ballot to the last."

"Wholly unacceptable," is Ickes' verdict on the G. O. P. machine's proposal for an uninstructed general delegation at large.

"This proposal, plausible on its face, would not deceive the merest political tyro," declares Johnson's new lieutenant.

"There have been uninstructed popular delegates to other republican national conventions, pledged to abide by the popular will of their states as expressed at the primaries."

Adverting to the Michigan delegation of 1920, Ickes draws his moral. "Every politician knew that, although Michigan had gone over,whelmingly Johnson, this delegation was not Johnson at heart, and after a few gestures would be ready to vote against the man they were supposed to be for. There was the same situation in other state delegations. His strength rested upon quicksand delegates."

The proposed members of the Illinois "at large" representation, Ickes asserted, are made up "almost overwhelmingly of persons known to be opposed to Senator Johnson."

"But Illinois is a Johnson state," Ickes argues. "It was overwhelmingly a Roosevelt state, and regards Johnson as the political heir of Roosevelt."

Therefore, concludes Ickes, the Illinois delegation to Cleveland must consist of men and women "who believe in Johnson and who are devoted to his interests."

The names of both Coolidge and Johnson were filed Friday for incorporation on the Illinois ballot.

WASHINGTON INSIDE OUT

A Weekly Panorama of Events in the National Capital

By PETER KEEGAN

(Special Correspondent of the Lubbock Morning Avalanche)

Not for many years has Washington been treated to so many thrills as during the past few days when the national scandal over the leasing of naval oil lands to private interests threatened to disrupt the Cabinet, in addition to casting an ominous shadow over the presidential campaign.

There is nothing spectacular about the way President Coolidge has gone about the task of getting the great oil deposits in California and Wyoming back in the possession of the Government, but he is no less determined to go through with it in his usual quiet and determined manner even if some of his friends or the friends of the former administration have to go to jail.

Despite the fact that Albert Fall, former Senator and Secretary of the Interior, received more than a hundred thousand dollars from the oil magnates who got the land from the Government, his old friends declare that after all the investigations are followed through to the end and the political tempest has calmed somewhat, it will be found that neither Fall, nor those associated with him in the oil deals, committed any criminal offense. Somebody, however, will have to be the goat for the Democrats are running wild and the Republicans are just as eager to purge the party of all possible suspicion of downright malfeasance.

These farmer-labor Congressmen are a puzzle to leaders of both major parties. It is always impossible to tell where they are going to strike next or with whom they are going to ally themselves. Among those who have vented their ire on both sides irrespectively is Knud Wefald, of Hawley, Minn., who has served warning on the House that more of his kind will be coming to Washington before long. Wefald is a Norwegian and like many of his countrymen in the United States has never acquired the trick of English pronunciation.

And the wives of the "progressives" are just as independent. Mrs. Coolidge found it out when she ordered out a White House automobile to take Mrs. Magnus Johnson to a tea given for the Senatorial ladies. Mrs. Johnson declined the invitation of the First Lady, explaining that she had promised to stay with a neighbor who was ill and that she couldn't go to the party.

Legislation will be brought out shortly in Congress to make it possible for Cabinet members to come before the Senate or House to answer direct questions with respect to their administrative activities and policies. When the Constitution was written, it was thought advisable to keep the legislative and executive branches of the Government separated as much as possible, but this does not always appear to be in the public interest under more modern conditions. Under the new system, instead of writing letters to Congress the Cabinet members would be subjected to interpellations just as officials of the British Government are.

questioned in the House of Commons.

All the charges of fraud and corruption which the Democrats of the Senate hurled at Truman Newberry of Michigan a year ago is being turned back at them as the fight gets underway to unseat Senator Earl Mayfield of Texas. Among Mayfield's chief supporters is Senator Tom Heflin, of Alabama, who was in the front rank in the Democratic onslaught which led to the resignation of Newberry, although the Republicans finally succeeded in having him accorded his seat in the Senate.

Two members of the Senate formerly owed allegiance to the royal family of Britain. They are Frank Gooding of Idaho, who was born in England and came to the United States in 1867, and Ames Cousens, who first saw the light of day in Ontario, Canada, but amassed his great fortune in the automobile business in Michigan.

SAME COURSE, SAME GOLF SCORE 25 YEARS LATER

PINEHURST, N. C. (United Press)—On either side of the great open fire place in the foyer of the country club here is a collection of carefully preserved mementoes and among them is a silver and amber cup.

The inscription shows the cup was presented to George C. Dutton away back in the last century, for the best gross golf score achieved that year. The cup was the first trophy ever offered here and was given by Ames Tufts, founder of Pinehurst, to the man making the highest score during the season of 1898-99. It was won by Dutton with a card of 81 made on the last day of the season over the original course. Previously W. N. Smith, also of Boston, was leading in the race with score of 83.

An unusual coincidence occurred here recently when these same golfers, playing in the Advertisers' tournament, met and arranged a match over the same course.

Dutton won the match with a medal round of 81, the same score with which he defeated Smith a quarter of a century ago.

The two golfers have agreed to try it again in 1949.

PROPOSED NEW JEWISH STATE IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW (United Press)—An autonomous Jewish state in southern Russia with Odessa as its capital, is being agitated by the general committee of the Communist party.

As planned, the state will cover half million acres and will contain three cities aside from Odessa. Five million dollars is said to be available to start the experiment.

The plan is said to be strongly favored by Rakovsky, Chickering, and Lunacharsky. None of these are Jews. It is said that one of the three will be named president of the committee in charge of the foundation.

ST. LOUIS WOMEN EN-CROACH FURTHER ON MEN'S DOMAIN

By United Press.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Women are continuing to encroach upon fields once regarded as sacred to men. Women doctors, lawyers, surgeons, judges, ministers are old stories.

St. Louis, however, has a woman sauerkraut manufacturer, a woman diamond expert and a woman silversmith.

Miss Clara Meyer, partner in a sauerkraut factory, began at the bottom and worked up. It took 14 years. All her employees are men, with the exception of one stenographer. The nose-powderers and lipstick-wielders of today are too decorative, she says.

Mrs. Annette Pickles, owner and creator of a large retail and manufacturing jewelry concern, started at the age of 12 as a jewel polisher for $4 a week. She built up a business of $25,000 a year and is one of the recognized diamond experts of the country.

Miss Ruth L. Barry is a silversmith. She studied it at schools of art here and in Brooklyn, dropping it for overseas work with the Red Cross during the war. She is making jewelry designed to reflect the personality of its owner, which, she says, are not "casual adornments."

KANSAS MAN GIVES UP BUSINESS TO BECOME EVANGELIST

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Saving souls is better than making money, C. E. Putnam, former Kansas financier, believes.

Putnam has abandoned six thriving enterprises to become an evangelist for the extension department of Moody Bible Institute here.

He was born at Richmond, Kans., and started his career as a school teacher. A yearning for a business career made a rancher of him and he acquired a 1,400-acre live stock farm.

Putnam next went into the lumber business. That also was a success. He was piling up a fortune as lumber dealer, building contractor, jeweler, hardware merchant and rancher when he decided on a religious career.

As a young man he had read writings of Ingersoll and Paine. The more he read the stronger were his doubts and beliefs. He became a student of the Bible and made biblical statistics his hobby. Now, he asserts, he has "evidence" that the Bible was divinely inspired and is presenting it in evangelistic form throughout the country.

Putnam declared the Bible made 3,000 promises which have been fulfilled. This would have been impossible unless the scriptures were conceived by a great power, he believes.

They Paid $200,000,000 for Studebaker cars last year

Find out why folks did it

LAST year 145,000 people paid over $200,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

The demand for these cars has almost trebled in three years. It has become the sensation of Motordom.

There is a new situation in the fine-car field. You should learn what it means to you.

We spend $500,000 yearly on an engineering staff. There are 125 skilled men employed in our department of Research and Experiment. They make 500,000 tests per year.

We employ 1,200 inspectors. Each Studebaker car must pass 30,000 inspections during manu-

Then on some steels we pay makers a 15 per cent bonus to insure exactness in them.

Every Studebaker car is Timken-equipped. The Special-Six and the Big-Six have more Timken bearings than any car selling under $5,600 in America. The Light-Six more than any competitive car within $1,000 of its price.

We use genuine leather upholstery.

We use Chase Mohair for the closed car upholstery. Some good upholstery would cost $100 less.

To curb vibration, we machine all surfaces of crank shafts, as was done in Liberty Airplane Motors. Very few cars do that.

How such prices?

How can we give each extra value—scores of them—yet sell at our low prices?

Because these values brought us buyers—145,000 last year. The major extra costs are divided by enormous output.

Let us show you the extras you get, because of these matchless facilities.

Week Day Religious Instruction In Operation at Huron South Dakota

NOTE:—The following story is taken from the Review of Reviews, and it is upon a subject of such great importance that we hope to help the Review of Reviews in scattering the information that so many people should be deeply interested in.

The Ministerial Association, composed of the pastors and ministers of all the churches of the city of Huron, without exception, endorsed the Dakota Plan and pledged the support of their respective churches by filing with the Board of Education petitions from their controlling bodies asking for the privilege of maintaining religious classes. These petitions from the churches were followed by individual petitions from parents, all of which were acted upon favorably by the Board of Education. Thus, at once the religious classes were organized in all of the churches. In this way the eleven religious organizations of the city are co-operating each with its own program, in the week-day religious instruction.

Percentage of Enrollment
The high percentage of enrollment is an index to the interest taken by the parents and churches in this type of religious character-building work. Of the 1331 pupils in grades one to eight that under the law are eligible, already 1129, or 84.8 per cent, are in regular attendance at the religious classes. The largest grade school in the city has an attendance of 100 per cent, and one of the other grade schools has an attendance of 99.5 per cent. The lowest percentage of attendance is in Junior High School, the seventh and eighth grades, which is only 53.7 per cent. Each week there is an appreciable increase in the percentage of enrollment which, from present indications, will doubtless continue until it reaches as high as 95 per cent.

No pressure has been brought to bear upon the children and parents other than a friendly, enthusiastic interest on the part of their religious friends. Fortunately, the teaching staff are men and women of religious experience, who, with enthusiasm, have co-operated with the religious organizations in creating a wholesome atmosphere of loyalty to week-day religious instruction.

This high percentage of enrollment is quite a little above that of the total enrollment in the Sunday schools of the several churches. Several of the pastors have commented upon the fact that they have quite a number of pupils in their mid-week classes, claiming adherence to their church, who were not enrolled in Sunday school, and whose presence in the city was unknown to the church. This fact alone is an argument of some value in favor of the movement.

Distribution of Enrollment
The distribution of enrollment among the eleven churches of the city is a matter of interest, and it shows the extent to which the many Christian denominations are maintaining their ideals in this city with a population of approximately ten thousand people. In this connection it should be said that there is possibly no other city of its size in which there is less unfriendly rivalry among the denominations than exists here. In fact there is the most loyal spirit of co-operation in all forms of community enterprises. It is this truly religious spirit that has made it possible to inaugurate here such a program of religious character-building work. The uplifting in developing, maintaining, and fostering religious ideals as controlling factors in life's activities are not only felt in the lives of the children but inevitably influence and enrich the moral and religious lives of the adults in the homes and other institutions of the community. This is the goal toward which all such religious character-building activities are moving.

Effect of Week-Day School on Sunday School and Church
The effect of the week-day religious work on the Sunday school and the church is of interest and should be appreciable because of the increased attention and effort given to the moral and religious training of the children, both by the home, the church, and the school. The noticeable effect, as reported in a special questionnaire to the Superintendent of City Schools, by the ministers of all of the local churches engaged in this work, seems to justify the conclusion, from this point of view, that the work is already demonstrating its worth to the community.

One of the churches with an enrollment of 61 in the Sunday school reports 66 in the week-day school. This same church is already planning an addition to its building to provide the additional classroom necessary for the week-day pupils.

One of the other churches reports the reflex upon the Sunday school as "splendid in every way of discipline and interest." This effect would naturally be expected from the fact that on the week-day the pupils carry with them from the day school to the religious classes the working spirit and the idea and habit of obedience to authority and a sense of the importance of accomplishing definite results in their work.

One other church reports an increase of 8 per cent in attendance over that of the Sunday school, and a recognized "source of spiritual education not felt in the Sunday school."

The church with the largest Sunday school has 31 more pupils in the mid-week classes and reports that the Sunday school is growing. Another church says, "It has become a very important element in our service to the community." Other churches make similar reports of good effects.

The Hour of Religious Instruction
The pupils leave the schools at 3 p. m. each Wednesday for an hour of religious work at the churches. The pupils whose parents have not petitioned the board remain at the school in the teachers' care, engaged in the study of regular day-school lessons. The high percentage of attendance in the religious classes, of course, indicates that only a few pupils remain behind in the schoolroom of any teacher. Thus the time of the school teachers is not lost, as they are required to spend this hour in regular school work, such as preparing lessons, making plans, and so forth. The main point to be observed here is that no recitations or school activities of any kind are held during this hour at school that would deprive the pupils in the religious work of any day-school instruction.

The regular attendance of each pupil is carefully looked after. For this purpose an enrollment card bearing the names of all pupils from each school to each church is carried back and forth from school to church by a secretary of each group of pupils for the purpose of reporting to the principal, the following morning, the attendance of each of the pupils. Any absence from the classes of religious instruction is promptly investigated by the principal and treated as the cases deserve.

So far there have been but two or three cases of truancy from the religious classes. The spirit of the pupils in this respect is very fine and the amount of trouble is surprisingly small.

Having the work of all grades and churches the same hour and same day has several advantages over its distribution by grades on two or more days. This method saves the churches expense for heat and light, simplifies supervision, and disturbs the day school least.

Religious Education Instructors

The instructors because of their personal interest in this work, are giving their services free. Many of them were former teachers in day-school work. It is safe to say that this staff of religious instructors are as well-qualified for this particular type of work as are the teachers or professors in the high schools and colleges. From this standpoint the children who leave the day school for this hour of religious work each week are under competent supervision. In each of the churches the pastor of that particular church is the general superintendent in charge of the religious school. From the standpoint of the church and the community the interest and activities of these men and women in religious character-building work will certainly be uplifting and of great value in the future life of our citizens. It would seem conclusive that a work of this type in every city throughout the entire country would do much to strengthen our citizenship and to lessen the tendency to go wrong of such an alarming percentage of our young people. Certainly an activity of this kind is more promising in the interest of humanity than the ever-increasing juvenile and criminal courts and reformatory institutions.

Course of Study in Week-Day School
Following the intent of the State Law on Week-Day Religious Instruction, each church uses its own denominational literature and directs its own plan and methods of class instructions. The resbyterians use a course prepared by their Publication Board for week-day instruction which is correlated with the regular course used in their Sunday school. The Methodist church uses the graded lessons for week-day work prepared by the Methodist Book Concern. The Congregational Church uses the graded lessons put out by the University of Chicago Press. Likewise each other church is utilizing this opportunity to strengthen and enrich the educational work of their church and Sunday school, rather than to develop some line of work disconnected with their regular program. By pursuing this plan of individual church program of instruction no criticism should ever arise concerning doctrinal points or errors.

The Superintendent of the City Schools visits the church schools frequently merely to look after the administrative relations between the day and church schools. Likewise he and the pastors of the various churches often confer relative to the improvement of these relations. The spirit of co-operation is helpful and stimulating. A library of reference books and textbooks on religious education is being installed in the City Public Library and several of the churches for the use of the staff of instructors which will aid greatly.

ROPEVILLE IS MAKING FAST GROWTH

Ropesville is one of the fastest growing towns on the Plains for its size, and its size is not going to be anything to grin at in the future, for it is developing into a real husky little town. It is assuming the proportions of a real town, and the way town lots are selling, both business and residential, is evidence enough that people are recognizing in Ropesville a town of several thousand people in the future.

The price of business lots in Ropesville has tripled within the past year, and residence locations are worth at least twice as much as they were twelve months ago.

Six business houses have been erected in Ropesville the past month and a large number of dwelling houses.

Among the business establishments that have been erected are the Whaley Lumber Company, a big blacksmith shop, a variety store, drug store, service station and the Highway Garage. A bank building, we understand will be started soon, and Ropesville is in great need of a bank.

Ropesville is growing. It grows over night, and it grows every day. Just help Ropesville to grow a little faster, by everybody pulling the same way.

WEEK DAY RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION IN OPERATION AT HURON, SOUTH DAK.

In the further development of the class instruction.

Outlook of the Religious Movement

The ready and hearty response which this form of religious education is meeting from communities in practically every State in the Union offer hope that a simple and practicable method has at last been found to promote moral and religious instruction without disregarding the fundamental American principle of separation of Church and State.

The development of this work is being made with due regard to public sentiment and in obedience to existing laws. The rapid progress that has been made during the past ten years in this form of co-operative educational work between church and school marks one of the most significant tendencies of this decade.

Twenty years ago the Religious Education Association was formed for the specific purpose of awakening public interest in the wide-spread need of this type of work. Since that time the various religious organizations of the different denominations have been active in furthering the cause.

The public religious consciousness has gradually evolved this simple and practical plan of week-day religious instruction in conjunction with the day school and without interference with the school, and without any valid objection on the part of religious denominations. In other words, this plan for the development of a better type of citizens for the present and for the future has been a wide-spread community evolution distinctly American in its origin and purpose.

This co-operative religious movement in American life has a striking parallel in the business world, which has taken active shape in the form of such organizations as the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary, Kiwanis, and Lions, through which men and women, engaged in similar rival activities, are learning to co-operate on a basis of a universally accepted platform, namely; "He profits most who serves best."

FOUND INNOCENT AFTER FORTY YEARS SPENT IN PRISON

PARIS (By Mail to the United Press)—The action of the high Court of Appeals here in rehabilitating Louis Danval, druggist, after forty years of penal servitude for the supposed murder of his wife by arsenical poisoning, has led to wide spread agitation for a review of cases of arsenical poisoning in the light of recent discoveries science has made. Danval, who is 78 years old has been granted an indemnity and a generous pension for life.

Senator Louis Martin has now made application for the rehabilitation of Marie Capelle, who died seventy years ago. She was a tragic figure in a sensational trial in 1840 for poisoning her husband with arsenic and the controversy over her guilt or innocence stirred France under the reign of Louis-Phillippe.

There was no reason why Marie, who was twenty-six, should kill her husband, named Lafarge, because he was living comfortably on her money and they had not long been married. He ate a piece of cake, which she was supposed to have baked and died shortly afterwards. Three chemists failed to find arsenic in the body, but a fourth, Orfila, then famous, found an imponderable trace, and on the strength of this report the unfortunate woman was convicted. She was sentenced to life, and her pretty black hair turned completely white in one night. She was pardoned twelve years later, because of illness and died from the effects of her prison life.

The celebrated chemist Raspail was called in the case but he could not arrive in time and the verdict was rendered. When he heard of it he gave vent to his famous remark: "It is possible to find traces of arsenic everywhere, even in the legs of the chair of the president of the Assises."

NEW HOPE

We have had two right pretty days, compared with what Sunday and Monday were. We are afraid if all days were like those two that the Plains would soon be very thinly settled. But we have so much good weather here that we people around New Hope pay no attention to as small a thing as a two-days' sand storm.

The McDale girls were in Lubbock Saturday.

The Havens family was in town Saturday.

There was quarterly conference at New Hope Sunday. A large crowd attended in spite of the bad weather. Everyone present reported an extra good sermon by Dr. Robinson, presiding elder. There was dinner on the ground.

Mr. Boyd was in town Saturday.

Mr. Roles made a trip to Lubbock Saturday.

Our boys and girls had planned to go to Posey Friday to play ball but the game has been put off on account of the measles. We have not had them in our school.

The old school building was sold Wednesday, February 6th, there were several bids made, Mr. Brown making the highest, it being four hundred dollars. He is going to improve some of his land.

School is progressing nicely. We are still inviting the patrons to visit our school.

Farming is the latest fad at New Hope.

BUILD UP THE COUNTY

By Phebe K. Warner

At 2:30 p. m., May 13, 1897, the delegates to the first meeting of women's club in the State of Texas were called to order by Mrs. Edward Dickson, president of the Woman's Club of Waco. That meeting was held in Waco twenty-seven years ago in May.

There were delegates present from eighteen Texas clubs. Those clubs represented the cities of Austin, Cleburne, Corsicana, Dallas, Denton, Fort Worth, Galveston, Houston, McKinney, Sherman, Tyler, Terrell, Waco and Denison. Three other clubs had no delegates present but sent in their applications to join the new State Federation of Women's Clubs.

At that meeting the organization which is today known as the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs was created. There was a total of 32 delegates present representing 14 cities in the State and the federation was created with 21 clubs as charter members of the federation. We have no record of the exact number of women in the federation at its beginning but a conservative guess would be not more than 20 to 25 members to the club which would mean a total membership of from 400 to 500 women.

That was less than 27 years ago. Twenty-seven years ago at this time there was no Federation of Women's Clubs in Texas. It was not born until May 13, of that year. Today the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs is divided into seven great districts each with its own corps of officers. And at the last meeting in Wichita Falls, the State Chairman of club extension reported more than 800 women's clubs in the State federation with a total membership of over 50,000. Almost every county in the State is now represented by one or more clubs in the State federations. And practically every town of 1,000 population or more is represented when the roll is called at the district meetings. There are several clubs in the State federation at this time that have more members in their own individual club than there were in the whole State federation at its beginning. As an illustration of its growth more than 200 new clubs were added to the State roster during the last administration of two years. When the new Seventh district was created only two years ago by dividing the great First district it started out with 68 clubs already organized in the district, which was more than three times as many as the State federation started with. In the first two years of the life of the Seventh district 67 more new clubs were organized. It was all because the women in the newer part of the State were lonesome and hungry for the companionship of other women. They saw what the women were doing for their home communities in other parts of the State and they wanted to do something for their part of Texas. But there is not a great big city in all that territory. There is not a city of even 25,000 population in all that district. But it almost doubled its forces in two years.

How did they do it? The women of the Seventh district set out from the very start to build up the lives of the women in the little towns and the rural communities and the county as a whole. The response was almost universal. Is there anywhere in the State where the spirit of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs is needed most it is in the little town and the rural community. And it can do for the little place what it has done for the cities if we will plan a way to take the spirit of the State federation to the little places in our State. And it will do for every county in Texas just what it has done for every city in Texas if we will make the work of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs reach the whole county and all its interests instead of stopping the spirit of the State federation at the city limits. The country and the small town and the whole county is a part of the State of Texas just the same as the city is a part. And the State federation will never be a complete State organization; it will never be a true democracy of women and for women until it reaches all the women of the county.

But suppose we try to get every group of women in every county into the State federation as individual groups? What is going to happen after awhile? What has already happened? Already there are so many clubs in every district that it is impossible to hold a convention composed of busy women long enough for half of them to tell all their club has done during the year. One of the scariest experiences in a woman's club convention is to get up to tell all you know in two minutes. Usually you get so scared that you forget all you do know. And if you do not get scared you try to talk so fast you almost choke to death trying to get through your report before you are called down. Now days to save time a row of women will be called up like a spelling class in a district school, and each one will be allowed to have her little say and then sit down whether she is through or not. Something is going to have to be changed if the club reports multiply and we hope they will.

Why not plan your club work by counties and let some one have time to tell the really big things that each county has done? Let's think in terms of our county for the next two years. Let's study our county and its needs. Let's do the things we ought to do for all the people of the county. Let's make the spirit of the State federation reach every home in the county. You will be surprised how much bigger and better your work will be in the cities when you work for your whole county and the smaller towns and all the rural districts.

Can we not make the COUNTY the unit of club work in Texas? The county is the educational unit. It is the political unit. Why not make it the social unit and the civic unit? There is not a county in Texas that could not have in just a few years everything it needs for all its people if the women of the whole county were working together for those things. What is the mission of the Texas Federation of Women's Club? Is it to serve the cities and towns alone or is it to serve the best interests of the whole State? How can it best serve the whole State and be made up solely of 50,000 women most of whom are citizens of some city or town?

The public opinion of the women of the whole county needs to be aroused and molded into a county power to move things in every county, and to DO things in every county. The woman's club is where most women's opinions have been molded. The thought of all women in every county is needed in that county to help promote the progress of that county. The woman's club is the place to study such things. Let's build up more city clubs. The State needs them. The county needs them most. And it is in their home county that every city club can be of greatest service. Let's get the clubs of every county together in this State to build up the life of all the people in every county.

FOUND 3,000 YEAR OLD TRACE OF INDIAN RACE

BERKLEY, Calif., Feb. 9.—Excavations of mounds in the lake region of the southern San Joaquin Valley conducted by University of California anthropologists has recently uncovered new evidence of the existence of an Indian race in that district over 3,000 years ago.

Dr. E. W. Gifford, associate curator of the university museum of anthropology, reports that in opening ten ancient mounds he and his helpers brought to light bones of some forty individuals, which have been brought here for study. Some of the bones are well preserved, others crumbled when exposed to the air.

Dr. Gifford believes that the find opens a page of history for a new race and extends still farther in scope the romance of the prehistoric man of California.

The scientists found evidence of a highly developed Indian culture in the Buena Vista man, as the San Joaquin race is called. It was apparent that the race maintained regular intercourse with the more advanced peoples of Santa Barbara coast. Examination of the famous rock paintings of the Carisco plains disclosed the location of many of these inter-tribal trade routes, Dr. Gifford reported.

Unlike the San Francisco Bay Indian, the Buena Vista tribes, ac-ording to Dr. Gifford, did not merely toss their dead upon piles of rubbish to be buried by dumpings of further refuse, but like the Oregon mound builder, heaped clean earth, according to priestly custom, making of each burial a ceremony and religious celebration.

The Facts Favor this Four! An hour's demonstration and inspection of this Touring model will prove it decisively finer than any car of similar price. There's a lively evenness and briskness to the power-flow that matches costly cars of more than four cylinders. Yet it is exceptionally thrifty in gas and oil. An extra tubular cross-member holds car ruggedly rigid against road-strain and twist. It's worth a special trip to view the features of this Nash model.

CLUE FOUND TO SLAYER OF GIRL

BY FRANK GETTY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—A little country girl who came to New York four years ago to make her living has been paid in full the wages earned.

She had cut short the career of pretentious Lawson—a career far different from the one her parents had set out for her when she was the child piano player in Walnut Hills, Texas.

The drab, talented little moth in the southland became a butterfly before she singed her wings in bright-light flames and died a noble death at the hands of a pair of kinking jewel thieves.

Among the slain girl's effects was found a memorandum book containing names of men from San Francisco to New York, addresses of many Chicago and Milwaukee men were on the list.

They believed that from what friends of the dead artist have told them the case closely parallels that of Dot King, another "Broadway butterfly." Miss Lawson and Miss King were close friends.

GRAFTED SHINBONE ON GIRL'S JAW

ST. LOUIS, Mo., (United Press)—She didn't have a chin.

She had pretty flaxen hair, and pleasant features, except for that chin.

She didn't have much of a chin when she was born, and when she became a young woman the deformity became more marked.

She was referred to Dr. William T. Coughlin, professor of surgery at St. Louis University and one of the chiefs of staff at St. John's Hospital.

Dr. Coughlin transplanted bone from her shinbone to a point where her jaw should have been. The results surpassed hopes.

Dr. Coughlin has exhibited his work, in the person of the very attractive young woman, to the St. Louis Medical Society. Dr. Coughlin is on the staff of the Red Cross hospital at Nautilly, France.

W. K. DICKINSON IS INTERESTED IN THE WIDE STREETS

W. K. Dickinson, prominent business man, banker and big property owner in this city addresses the city commission in an open letter regarding the street paving plans as follows:

To the City Commissioners: Don't get nervous because I am writing you in reference to my views of the contemplated paving soon to begin in Lubbock. I would almost shed briny tears to see you pave 30 or 40 feet of these big broad streets of Lubbock and leave the sides unpaved.

I feel like it is wisdom to work out every plan and manipulation that can possibly be worked in order to cover lots of mileage with your paving money. I have been dreaming of my plan for many months.

Say take your 100-foot streets, viz. Main, Broadway, Avenue I and Avenue Q and make a park of so many feet in the center. I believe you could get 60 percent of the property owners, the most substantial people to take care of the park in the front of their property and care for the trees and say you had to employ one man to care for the balance wouldn't it be wonderful to have three or four miles of beautiful shade in the center and the immense travel that would be separated by these beautiful center parks.

Now I am satisfied the Honorable Commission has never stopped to think what this traffic is going to be within the next five years. Just to think about four years since we paved and we thought we were doing a great piece of work and we did, and now we haven't enough paved streets to mark the cars that are in town on a busy day.

It looks reasonable that heavy traffic could be handled much better on streets with the center parks than those without it. You would lessen the danger of collisions as the traffic would all be moving the same way on opposite sides of the street, which would eliminate cars crashing together as much as the narrow street would. Signed: W. K. DICKINSON.

MAN-KILLER IS HARD TO GET IN THE STATE OF TEXAS

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 8.—"As much as I dislike the duty, I think it would be better for a sheriff to execute a prisoner or two a year than to have some man at the state penitentiary to become brute as he would have to do, to execute men from all over the state."

Sheriff Dan Hartson of Dallas county who is planning to take two negroes to the state penitentiary at Huntsville soon, expressed this opinion on the electrocution of men at Huntsville.

Each sheriff should execute his own prisoners sentenced to death, Hartson believes. He points to the difficulty of obtaining a warden at Huntsville as proof of his conviction.

R. D. Jones, prominent business man of Paducah, and owner of the Jones Cotton Farms in Cottle county, has been in Lubbock the past several days looking after the seed business in this territory.

ALIENATION OF AFFECTIONS CHARGED

By United Press
NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Burning letters from the Countess de Perigney, sister of Harry K. Thaw, to a young automobile salesman, married, whom she showered with attention, were introduced in supreme court here today as part of a $500,000 suit for alienation of affections.

Mrs. Madeline Helen Modica is bringing suit, alleging from the time of her marriage to Modica in 1922 until November of last year when the countess married her present husband, the defendant constantly pursued and sought to alienate the affections of the young and stalwart Italian who is father of Mrs. Modica's six months old baby.

The countess' full name is Margaret Thaw Carnegie de Perigney. The story came out when Frank P. Walsh, attorney for Mme. Modica, filed an order to show cause, directing the countess to show why she should not appear before Justice Bijuron Thursday, next, to testify regarding letters and telegrams, alleged to have been sent by her to Emmanuel Victor Modica at various times. She also is to be questioned, if the order is granted concerning her own handwriting.

The complaint alleges that Madeline Helen Modica and Emmanuel Victor Modica were married in 1922 and have one child, a daughter six months old. It alleges that the Modicas lived happily in Brooklyn at the time Countess de Perigney's alleged alienation began and was carried to a successful conclusion.

It was in July, 1922, says the complainant, that the new Countess de Perigney passed her path. The complaint declares there was an immediate malicious and wrongful effort made by Countess de Perigney to win Emmanuel Victor's affections from his wife. The result was that by means of gifts of money as is set in the complaint, of automobiles and other valuable things to say nothing of acts and demonstrations of love Emmanuel Victor was won away from his wife.

The progress of the affair continued uninterruptedly, the complaint alleges, until July, 1923, when the husband deserted the wife, and, as she alleges, later went to Paris with the defendant. She says she has not seen him since and he has not contributed anything to her support since his desertion.

At the Brooklyn home of Mrs. Modica's father, William D. Martino, wealthy coal dealer, where the plaintiff has been living, it was said, Mrs. Modica was with friends in Connecticut.

"We have no idea where Mr. Modica is at present," was the reply of inquiries as to the husband's whereabouts.

Mrs. W. L. Davis and her son, Tomie, of Tahoka, are visiting their daughter and sister, Mrs. John Atkins.

JUSTICE IN BERLIN EVEN SLOWER THAN AMERICAN

BERLIN (By mail to the United Press).—The little town of Ccenica, now in Jugo-Slavia, has just won an important lawsuit which was started six centuries ago.

The little town—six hundred years ago—lay on the border between Herzegovina and Dalmatia. It was extremely poor in land and resources. Wherefore the Bosnian king put at its disposal certain forests and pastures.

However, other little towns became jealous. On the Dalmatian side were Gromaca, Klischewo, Mrznaka and Mravilujak—all equally as poor as Scenica. Since a portion of the lands granted Scenica were in Dalmatia, the government ordered that these four towns also might participate in the use thereof.

Whereupon bloody conflicts broke out between citizens of beneficiary towns. The town of Scenica was the first to take legal steps, officially complaining to King-Ustojic of Bosnia. During the years one side would win, then the other, largely according to which paid the most. Meantime the bloody combats continued.

Under the Austria-Hungarian monarchy the legal battle was resumed, again without result.

Upon the establishment of Jugo-Slavia, legal experts took up the fight again. Only recently the Minister of the Interior rendered a final decision in favor of Scenica.

POSEY

After the sand storm of last Sunday we are having some pretty weather; and look which way you will, your eyes are greeted by the sight of farmers turning the soil. The health of our community has been excellent all the winter, but at this time the measles are raging. The following have had them: Leonard and Gladys Conner, LeRoy and Marcella Kelley, the Matthew children, the Stahl children, Cecil Morrison and Casey Fine. No one has been seriously ill so far, and we hope each one will soon be entirely recovered. The basketball game that was to have been played between New Hope and Posey this week, has been postponed until the measles situation is better.

Rev. Weiss and family left the first of this week for Temple, Texas, where Mrs. Weiss is to have medical attention, and later plans to visit her parents.
Mrs. Louis Robinson and children are visiting relatives and friends at some point in East Texas.
Mrs. Otto Rinne and family have recently moved to Posey. We understand that he has purchased the store from his father H. Rinne, and will now carry a complete stock of groceries.
Mr. and Mrs. H. Rinne are now staying with their daughter Mrs. O. A. Robertson.
Prof. Pevehouse was a visitor at our school last week.
Miss Mable Marsh was out this week trying to organize some boys and girls clubs. Do not know what success she met.
Last week the Community Club met at the Fine home and assisted in a beef canning demonstration. Our County Agent Mr. Eaton and our Home Demonstration Agent Miss Marsh very ably demonstrated the principles of meat canning. We only canned part of a yearling. Sold one hindquarter, and kept one for home use. Out of the remainder we canned fifty three-pound cans and eight two-pound cans. We canned the following: steak, roast, soup stock, beef rolls, heart, tongue, liver paste, meat loaf, chile, tomatoes, goulash, mince meat and pure old hash. We have ever found our agents willing and anxious to help us work out our home problems, and heartily thank them for the interest manifested.

Mrs. Eaton and babies were welcome visitors in our community last week.
The next meeting of the Community Club will be held the second Thursday in February at the home of Mrs. O. R. Patterson, where we hope to plan ways of buying a community canner and sealer.
Mr. Neal Eubanks has been suffering from rheumatism again, and is planning to leave for a visit to his father's, in hopes of improving his health.
O. R. Patterson recently made a trip to Lawton, Okla., where he visited his brother. The brother returned with him, and is now located at Lubbock.
Little Lila Schutts who was recently run down by a car, has gotten to where she can sit up.

EXPLORER SAYS ARTIC CIRCLE LIVABLE PLACE

PORTLAND, Ore. (United Press) The modern geography is undoubtedly the most widely read piece of fiction in the world.
Such was the statement made here by Vinjalmar Stefansson, Arctic explorer, who declared the Arctic regions are inhabitable and are not the places of absolute desolation.
There are some seven hundred varieties of plants and bowers that grow in the far north, he explained.
The North Pole, for instance, is not the coldest spot in the world. Cities in Montana, North Dakota, and other states experience a lower temperature at times.
Snow houses are as scarce as thatched roofs in America.
"At certain times of the year Italy is colder than Iceland. At Fort Youkon, in the Arctic circle, the thermometer often reaches 90 degrees, or thereabouts.
"Most of the travelers and explorers who have died in the north succumbed to natural causes or were drowned, instead of freezing to death," he declared. "The Arctic region is a livable place."
"The proposed Arctic trip of the American navy's great dirigible Shenandoah," he said, "will open a new era. It will make close neighbors of continents now separated by thousands of miles. It will dispel many myths of the north."
ENGLAND DRINKS 26,000,000 BARRELS OF BEER YEARLY
By United News.
LONDON, Feb. 9.—Beer may not be what it used to be in jolly old England, but the United Kingdom Alliance (England's anti-saloon league) sadly admits that it is still popular.

In the Alliance Year Book and Temperance Reformers' Handbook, for 1924, there are figures to show it.
A train of 1,209,000 trucks is represented as stretching across Europe from Lisbon to the White Sea. These trucks, says the hand book, contain 26,600,000 barrels of beer, one year's ration for the British nation.
If all the barrels used in conveying beer to thirsty Englishmen were stacked into a huge pile that pile would mount larger than the Capitol building at Washington, or one of the greatest pyramids of Egypt.
Some member of the Alliance, with a penchant for statistics, has calculated that enough beer is drunk annually in England alone to fill a canal stretching from London to Brighton, a distance of 52 miles, and wide enough for barges to pass.

RUSSIA PLANS TO MANUFACTURE ITS OWN FURS
MOSCOW (By Mail to the United Press)—American fur dealers will be interested to hear that the Russian market, as far as peltry is concerned, will be closed to them, or to any foreign dealer.
If the dream of Engineer Bulgakoff is realized, only fully finished furs will leave Russia in the future. Outside of some cheaper stuff, Russia never dressed any furs. The peltry was always sent abroad, finished there and re-imported into Russia at much higher prices.

Bulgakov on behalf of the Russian government, has spent several months abroad studying the methods of the fur dressers at Leipzig and various other places. He is now establishing a fur laboratory attached to the All-Russian Leather Syndicate.
Ultimately it is intended to dress and finish all the furs in Russia and export no peltry at all. But this is still a theory and the practical knowledge and experience is another thing.

PLAINVIEW REAL ESTATE FIRM OPENS OFFICE HERE
The McIver-Scoggins real estate company of Plainview, has opened an office in the rear of the Shepard-Smith Drug Company at Lubbock, and both members of the firm will make their homes in Lubbock, according to Price McIver, who was a visitor at the Avalanche office Saturday.
These men have built up a big business at Plainview, and we understand they are to retain their business at that city.

Beauty through the Toilette Table

This beauty is so American that she will permit none but American perfumes and toilet accessories on her dressing table.

Copyright Colgate Co.

bottle holds the most important place. It is not that perfume makes a woman beautiful but that even a beautiful woman is more attractive if she smells as good as she looks. That is the function of a perfume—to add to and to underscore a woman's individuality,—to waft a delicate odor wherever she goes that is in harmony with the spirit of her being.

Whereas grandmother was wont to carry a fragrant piece of shrub or bergamot tied in the corner of her handkerchief, the modern woman exhalates the subtle essence of flowers from her whole person. It has begun with her bath in which the toilet soap has been fragrantly scented with the odor that is her own, and this is associated with the appropriate color which pervades all things that are intimate to the person.

Not so many years ago the choicest perfumes all came from Europe—mostly from France—but to-day the perfumer's art has been developed in this country to the highest possible degree. All the world may contribute the essences of flowers—France, Italy, the Orient or Far Cathay—Arabia its spices. Siberia its musk-ox and even the depths of the ocean gives up its ambergris, but it is in the blending of these that the perfumer's art lies. Therefore, the domestic odor compositions are largely replacing those of foreign origin. Why not? Can you express the individuality of a thoroughly American woman, vital to the very core, with a French perfume?

Not very long ago a test was made of the taste of American women in the matter of perfume. One hundred and three women were brought together for the test from all walks of life—from society, the stage, the home, business, the college. Six perfumes—three foreign and three American—were offered for choice and, choosing by the name and reputation, sixty-one expressed their preference for the foreign. A second test was made, when the ladies were asked to choose by the sense of smell alone, the different perfumes—being dropped on numbered slips of tissue paper. Eighty then chose the American perfumes as being the most expressive of their taste.

Follies Beauties aiding nature, but for stars use only.

Keystone View Co.

By BETH JEFFRIES

BEAUTY flat has gone forth. No one knows where these things start from, but they are obeyed. It is only a short time since the flappers of America, as if of one mind, dropped their skirts to their ankles and then took out their sleeves. What unseen authority pronounces these decrees is beyond human ken—but there it is.

Along with the short skirts—which are now said to be coming back because of the freedom of action they give—the same quality of sense has decreed the banishment of the make-up box, except in its proper place which is behind the footlights. Farewell to the juicy—too juicy—red lips; to the pink—too pink—cheeks; to the pencilled—too poorly pencilled—eyebrows; vale also the white—too white—nose.

In place of the painted lady we are to have the well-groomed woman in all walks of life. That is the dictum, and when even the chorus girls of Broadway—the Follies Beauties and the Winter Garden girls—band together to eschew the tinted lipstick, the mussed eyebrow pencil and the ever-ready and germ-laden powder puff, and go in for perfect grooming it means that all the feminine world will follow.

Not too much, nor too little. But just enough from toilette table.

There is said to be a Dorcas Society—doing all this and bringing in the beauty that comes from good health, sound sleep, exercise, proper diet, sensible bathing and good grooming.

There's a world of meaning in that word "grooming." It suggests at once the beauty of the sleek and shining coat of the thoroughbred horse, with the wonderful muscles rippling beneath the satin skin, the very personification of physical beauty. Pass up beauty of feature, of line or contour. Let the plainest of women be well-groomed, clean and not smeared with cosmetics, redolent of personal care, and in that one thing alone there is a beauty that will turn men's heads.

The campaign against red patches for lips, hectic flushes for blushing and black smears for eyebrows is but the natural reaction against the misuse of cosmetics by the inexperienced and inattentive. Hereafter you will have to be a psychoanalyst or else a vocational expert to be able to tell an actress off the stage from any other well-dressed, modest woman of refinement.

With the advent of the new dispensation comes a revolution in the toilet table as an aid to beauty. If the rouge-pot is to go, something must take its place. The ubiquitous powder blood rushing to the surface, have already sent the hare's foot running to cover and eyes are made brighter through being closed for a time in sleep rather than being made to look like two burnt holes in a blanket by something closely resembling lamp-black and grease.

There's an interesting story told about Aaron Burr, who was something of a fop. A young man watching him array himself for the street sought to make an impression by getting off the copy-book sentiment and asking the great man if it was not true that "clothes do not make the man." "Quite true, my lad," said Burr. "But when he's made, don't you think he looks a good deal better if he's well dressed?"

Which applies with equal force to the woman's toilet table of to-day on which the perfume

WIFE OF CANDLER IS ARRESTED IN ATLANTA

Efforts to locate Mrs. Asa G. Candler for a statement were fruitless tonight and her husband and relatives denied any information. Candler said his wife was not at home and that he did not know where she was but denied any knowledge that she had been arrested and refused to comment in any way. His brothers, Judge Candler and Bishop Candler, also refused to talk. Attorneys for Asa G. Candler said they did not care to make any statement.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 9.—A woman said by Chief of Police Beavers, to be Mrs. Asa G. Candler, pretty young wife of the aged multi-millionaire soft drink manufacturer and two men were arrested in an apartment house here late today.

They were released on bond of $100 each and trial set for Tuesday morning in Municipal court. Bond was furnished by W. J. Stoddard, prominent young business man, who with W. G. Keeling, was arrested at the time.

The three were charged with violation of a city ordinance which defines a disorderly house.

Liquor was found on a table in the apartment, according to Chief of Police Beavers and Captain Holcomb, and the arresting officers.

Beavers declared the woman admitted she was the bride of seven months of 73 year old Asa G. Candler. He declared the identity was established by an acquaintance of Mrs. Candler's.

"We were just having a little party—there was no harm in it—the apartment belonged to a friend of mine," Chief quoted the young woman as saying.

When police entered the apartment, the woman and the two men were seated in a room. They were taken to police headquarters in the chief's automobile and docketed. They gave bond and then were driven by Chief Beavers back to the apartment where they entered an automobile and drove away.

None of the three arrested was under the influence of liquor, the police said.

Efforts to locate Mrs. Asa G. Candler for a statement were fruitless tonight and her husband and relatives denied any information. Candler said his wife was not at home and that he did not know where she was but denied any knowledge that she had been arrested and refused to comment in any way. His brothers, Judge Candler and Bishop Candler, also refused to talk. Attorneys for Asa G. Candler said they did not care to make any statement.

Stoddard could not be found either at his home or office.

"I asked her if she wasn't ashamed of herself—a woman in her position being arrested and taken to police headquarters," Chief Beavers told the United Press.

"She said there was no harm in it, that they were just having a little party."

Mrs. Asa G. Candler was formerly Mrs. May Little Regan, a stenographer.

She became the bride of the aged multi-millionaire less than a year ago, shortly after Mrs. Ozma de Bacbel, New Orleans beauty, filed suit for $500,000 against the cocoa coin king, charging breach

EVER HEAR OF OSLO? YOU WILL, SOON.

CHRISTIANIA, Norway (By Mail to United Press).—Christiania will be renamed Oslo to do away with the last vestige of Danish influence, according to municipal action here. The town, once called Oslo, was renamed in honor of King Christian of Denmark when he rebuilt it in 1624.

Oslo was founded in 1050 and early became the seat of a bishopric. Since 1397 it has been the most important city in Norway. In 1624 came fire and Christian IV caused the town to be rebuilt across the fjord and it was named in his honor. In another year news dispatches dated Oslo will really be coming from the old town of Christiania.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—"The 'Dyers' Bible,' a monumental work which has taken three years to complete, is now presented to the world by the Society of Dyers and Colorists of Bradford.

To the "trade" of dye-stuff manufacturers it is known as the "Color Index" and it takes the place of the German "Farbstofftabellen," of Professor Gustav Schultz, a work so important that during the war the Americans made a costly photographic copy of it to circulate throughout the United States.

Schultz's last edition contained exact copies of 1,001 colors; the new British work contains 1,236 synthetic dyes and 87 natural dyes pigments, and so on.

While the "Dyers' Bible" was being assembled, about 150 proof copies were sent out to manufacturers all over the world in an effort
