ENGLAND MAKES GREAT PROGRESS ON PROGRAM FOR AIR DEFENSE AND PLANS NUMEROUS SQUADRONS OF AIRPLANES

LONDON, (By mail to the United Press)—Britain's business of putting the waves is gradually forcing her into the air.

The old empire is as confident of her naval ability as she was in the days of Nelson, but the flight of time since she has seen her sea power slipping away from her hands.

And that explains why today Britain is already more than a quarter of the way through the aerial defense program approved earlier in the year to become officially operative on the first of next April.

Elaborate plans have been drawn up along that scheme, was designed largely as armor against France and France's growing flock of flyers.

Reliable aviation circles now reveal, however, that the fear of naval attack is proving reasonable.

Britain plans by 1925 to have at least fifty-two air squadrons defending the shores of the British Isles. An elaborate system of coastal and interior defense has been arranged. Strategic air squadrons will be located along the seaboard, but 2 or 30 squadrons will be posted through the country back behind the coastal defense zone. In these establishments to the rear, the real heavyweights of the fighting forces will be kept grounded and waiting, ready to rush to the front at a moment's notice.

Fast-moving, single-seater scout planes will do outpost duty along the coast. If any little flier of a cruiser tries swooping on for a second at the British coast, in a flash and-ro attack, the eyes of the scout will have seen it coming. A radio message from this little single-seater will bring up swarms of their bigger brothers from the rear.

The Cubaroos

And among those present will be one or two Cubaroos. A Cubaroo is a three-seater torpedo plane so large that it would furnish ample living quarters for a fair-sized family, if the wings and all were enclosed. The first of its type was tried out successfully the other day at Brown's aerodrome near Hull. The plane's machine was ready for its trials when the American world flyers stopped at the same hangar not long ago. Especially for the Americans' benefit, it was taken out of the shed for a better view. Heavy and-ro torpedoes carried it to the earth while its 1,000-horse-power engine was given a whirl. The enormous propeller, six-feet in diameter, created a young girl so strong that a man could not stand near the tail of the plane.

The Americans were amazed at its size and apparent power. "I hope in some time," was Lieutenant Smith's laconic comment. He was then shown the framework of a second Cubaroo, at the time just put under construction.

Carrier Torpedo

The machine the world flyers saw, the same that was taken into the air for the first time the other day, is the first big plane the British have built under their new defense scheme. The all-on weight of the Cubaroo is nine tons, of which 2.5 tons is "useful load." When it is ready for battle, 1.4 tons of the plane's "useful load" will consist of er that, although officially America had no delegates, in Geneva, the general and his colleagues were there far from passing unnoticed, and their role, if semi-official, was not the least efficacious.

This contradiction of American policy and the presence of influential American citizens at these gatherings was spoken of as a "grave menace" presumably some tasty food for thought.

There was no bitterness in the French press over the "private citizen" status of the Americans at this latest conference, rather it was accepted as understood that the Americans wanted to help if they could as long as they were able to keep their country clear of foreign antagonists. It was rather plainly pointed out, however, that America is keeping abreast of the times, was maintaining her position of importance in the world affairs.

Nor has there yet appeared any shadow of American position of importance. All the allies are glad to see the American influence operating and German circles affirm most cordially that American pressure is necessary before the European scales can balance in fair business.

It is recognized that American stands alone among nations. Strong, prosperous, independent and with no selfish interests to serve. The weight that she throws in the balance, with her caution, may be variously determined. It has been called "self-protection," it has been called "observation."

But with the Dawes plan functioning and the "Bliss plan" under study, America is being looked to more and more and Europeans are getting the notion that in world affairs, she means to keep her place of "preponderance."

London's match-teaser is dead. He struck 40 matches a minute during working hours. Many pipe smokers beat that record.

PAINLESS DENTISTS UNDER BAN AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The National Capital has been rid of the "painless" dentists.

Believing that there never were such persons, the local Board of Dental Examiners has just concluded the job of causing all "painless" dentists and signs of like character to be eliminated.

Under the dental law passed by Congress at its last session Dr. C. Willard Camalier, secretary-treasurer of the Board of enforcement and officer of the board, is responsible for the downfall of "painless" dentists.

Dr. Camalier believes the new law has not only dealt a death blow to "painless" dentists but also has put a stop to dentists practicing under names or under company association or trade names.

"Quite a few persons who were operating illegally under the old law have been forced to give up their work," said Dr. Camalier. "The Board believes that many others will be uncovered as soon as its wheels have been more thoroughly set into motion."

"The new law," Dr. Camalier explained, "does not prevent advertising except that which may tend to mislead or defraud the public, and before the law was passed many advertisements of dentists who had no experience appeared bearing the instance and with statements which could be hardly substantiated."

Offices found by Dr. Camalier to have been owned or operated by unregistered men have been either closed or sold to licensed practitioners.

A provision in the new law which provides that only dentists who have been graduated from schools approved by the board shall be permitted to take the examination to practice will preclude the possibility of dentists take diplomas operating here, according to Dr. Camalier.

"It also prevents graduates of low grade colleges from being examined to obtain a foothold in this city."

The first registration of dentists and oral practitioners begins next December. This will be the first time that a record has been kept of every dentist operating here.

inspected frequently for several months.

Another precaution to be taken on the recommendation of the Bureau of Animal Industry will be the closing of the Stanislaus Forest by the Forest Service to all livestock during 1925. This will inconvenience a few neighboring ranchmen, but the Forest Service and the Department of Agriculture believe this action to be necessary and in the interest of public safety. The value of the grazing in the area is small compared with the cost of suppressing another possible outbreak. Department officials believe the infection, though able to live for several months under favorable conditions, has not been known to exist in the absence of living carriers for more than a year.

"Throughout the rest of California, the disease has apparently been suppressed," the Department reports, "and with every week that passes without a recurrence the winning of the strenuous fight against the plague is more hopeful."

JAZZ BLUES CAUSE NEIGHBORS TO FUSS

HOUSTON, Oct. 4.—Jazz blues led to blows and then broken friendships here.

Almeda Gitter and Johnnie Mae Carter, dusky dancers, lived just across the street from each other. Johnnie Mae had some of Almeda's phonograph records. Almeda has some of Johnnie Mae's dishes.

When they "swapped" back, Almeda missed the "very meanest record" "Mamma's Got the Blues," and "Outside of That He Is All Right to Me."

They met in the street, talked, fought and were arrested. Almeda was fined. She appealed.

WINNING FIGHT AGAINST THE CATTLE PLAGUE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The livestock industry has little further to fear from the outbreak of foot and mouth disease in California, according to the Department of Agriculture.

The only place where the infection is still suspected is in the Stanislaus National Forest in Fresno County, California. No new cases have been discovered or reported since August 16 and in that case only two animals in a herd of 800 were affected. Officials are hopeful that the prompt slaughter and deep burial of the sickened herd destroyed the virus of foot-and-mouth disease before it could spread.

Twelve large herds which were given a thorough inspection on leaving the forest recently, showed no symptoms of the disease. As an additional precaution, those herds and all others which are allowed to leave that area will be

PARIS SEES U. S. RULING WORLD IN JUSTICE

By MINOTT SAUNDERS
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Despite reiterated claims of America's European policy by "White House spokesmen," sentiment is growing in France that before many years the United States will exercise a dominant influence in the affairs of the world. Gradually the United States is being looked at as a "very important" factor in the decision that affects the world at large.

The Paris Soir expressed this sentiment boldly when it said:

"Although America officially follows a policy of aloofness, she tends naturally to take a preponderant place."

The newspaper was discussing the Jossely woven plan for outlawing aggressive warfare as submitted at the League of Nations meeting by General Bliss on behalf of the Carnegie Foundation's special committee. The newspaper and many French people saw in this the shadow of what may become a policy correlative to the Dawes plan for world peace. It was widely received in France and by Premier Viviani himself, as a bid for compromise between the French and British viewpoints on "disarmament, neutralization and security."

"Will we next have the Bliss plan asked the newspaper, as we now have the Dawes plan?" What is most pertinent is the fact that this program is the work of a military man—a military man who dreams of solving international arbitration. Such a thing is strange and new.

The career of General Bliss was reviewed by war record, his signature at the Peace Conference, with emphasis that he was a real general and adding, "Perhaps it is because he has seen the horrors of war at close range that he works to prevent a new war. He shows himself more humane and more of a 'pacifist' than many who remained a hundred kilometers from the front. Today he devotes himself to a battle far more by defending a project that would eliminate honor war and substitute decision by arbitration for those of the cannon."

Articles and Local News About South Plains Farmers; Prepared by Welton Winn, a Practical Farmer

Why All Should Plant Pecans on the Plains

First: The pecan is the Officially Designated State Tree of Texas. Second: It is recognized as the best shade tree of all. Third: It is the most profitable tree to grow. Fourth: We have found it will grow well on these plains. It will be remembered by those who have read this page that some time ago we gave it as our opinion that pecans would grow on these plains and that they were without doubt the best shade tree for yards, parks and every place shades were wanted after that we made some investigation and found that they recently were growing nicely and bearing well right near Lubbock and also learned of some in Castro county, with this assurance we have urged the planting of pecans in all our parks and yards and we feel fully justified in urging all to plant these trees this fall instead of other trees less useful and profitable. As the time to plant is now nearly here we want to submit an article from that splendid paper the Farm and Ranch which will be read by patrons of the Avalanche, either weekly or daily, it is well worth your time to read carefully every word of the article. The plains people could do no greater thing for themselves and their posterity than to dot these plains with the useful pecan trees.

In the article submitted you will see that it is claimed that pecans will grow where cotton will grow and without doubt, we have the greatest cotton section of Texas why not make this the greatest pecan producing part of the State as well. We will try to find where we can secure the best Pecan stock and the best prices if we buy together we can make a great saving.

THE TEXAS PECAN AND THE PILGRIM

A. W. Woodruff.

Now it came to pass, during the early part of the year 1920, that a certain pilgrim wandered from among the wild tribes of the North and abode in almost the geographical center of the great State of Texas, being directed thither by tales of taller pecan trees which were said to be found along the water courses of the Brazos, the Concho, the Colorado, the San Saba, the Llano, the Guadalupe, the Pedernales and many other valleys in this commonwealth. And the "something left behind the ridges" which he sought was the fruit of the State tree—the pecan.

About twenty-four years prior to his arrival in the land of the Lone Star, the pilgrim had been bitten by the pecan microbe; and thus happened in a noted county in Alabama where he planted his first pecan tree. In that far time it was solemnly agreed by experts, so-called, that the only way to cure the ideal number to plant on one acre, Anteplanting cultivation and fertilization were not exactly frowned upon, but such methods were regarded as the impractical designs of "book farmers."

Back in that far generation certain wise men had started pecan propagation in Georgia; notably in and around the present city of Albany. Having no native pecans worthy of the name, they were planting what they thought was a new "valued" "paper-shell" pecan, although by the same token, as the fellow said about the circus giraffe: "There ain't no sick animal."

In the dark ages of 1885 to 1890, when the idea of a standardized pecan was finding its way into the minds of forward-looking persons who were interested in pecans, some enthusiasts, with more enthusiasm than good judgment, began to blurb about pecans with "paper shells," and the "American public" laid hold of the term "superbelle," and warbled it over and over until now it is applied indiscriminately to almost any pecan which can be cracked without resorting to the use of a sledge hammer or a pile driver. Like the title of one of Goldberg's series of cartoons, "It doesn't mean anything."

The pilgrim landed in Texas just a few months in advance of the pecan harvest; and during his sojourn in that State he had a most inspiring message for present and future generations, when he requested that a pecan be planted at the head of his grave, and a waif of the foot, and that the fruit of these trees be distributed far and wide to the end that Texas might become a land of trees. At least that was the gist of the message.

These things did the pilgrim learn, and more. He learned that Texas contains the greater part of the native pecan trees of the world—some strangers are found in other States, but one county in Texas has as many native trees of the pecan as all the other States combined, and produces more native pecans than all the other States put together. That was one of the most interesting things he learned, and he found further that in Texas are almost an unlimited number of native pecan trees which bear nuts with those "paper shells" that exist now here in the preferred imitation from the non-producing "superbelle" thin shells, nevertheless, which enclose 50 per cent and upward of most delicious and health-giving meat—one of the important foods of the future for human kind.

thousands of nursery seedlings. And he was ignorantly curious enough to note the progress of those grafts during the next few months—and just about 15 per cent of them lived. Arriving in Lubbock, the "grafter" holding forth a large ovation regarding his success in root-grafting, during which occasion he cited that in a certain season—the season a second year previous—he had achieved some what more than 90 per cent of success by this method. Although the pilgrim hung around and stretched his long ears to the utmost he heard no word mentioned about that 15 per cent season, whereupon he came to the conclusion of another great-truth about pecan culture, namely: keep mum about anything that runs under 50 per cent.

Proving about in a degree of definite information regarding financial matters, the pilgrim came across the truthful history of five pecan trees, planted by a Southern woman, of which an accurate record was kept for twenty-two years. The five young trees were taken from a nursery and planted in the home garden, forty feet apart. The first commercial crop was harvested the fourth year after planting—thirty-five pounds which sold for $17.50, and the eighteenth crop, harvested the twenty-second year after planting, brought $390 cash. The total cash returns for the eighteen crops amounted to $5,117, or an average of $284.27 per year for the eighteen years, or nearly $57 per tree, per year, from the time the first crop was harvested, or a grand average of more than $40 per tree, per year, for the entire twenty-two years following the day the trees were put into the ground. The original cost was $5 for the five trees, $1 for digging the holes, and the woman planted the trees with her own hands and tended them during the years that followed. These five pecan trees clothed and educated her children; and she was a typical American housewife and mother and told the truth, and the truth set down here are correct. How long would it take to grow $5,000 worth of corn or cotton on less than an eighth of an acre of ground?

Many more things might be set down regarding what the pilgrim learned during his sojourn in Texas to inscribe them in a fair-weather hand would require too much space. A few of the things he did find, upon which to base conclusions, are:

That some movement is needed to stir up the daily papers of Texas constantly to urge the systematic culture of pecans as a staple crop. That city foresters, school teachers, and others engaged in public instruction, be urged to learn something about the pecan and its economic possibilities.

That in particular a crowbar be used, if necessary, to pry into the minds of bankers and other persons planted in bearing pecan trees is equal to ten acres of the best cotton ever grown in Texas or anywhere else.

That if a little common sense be given, pecans and cotton can be grown in the same field without either interfering with the other, also, that young pecan trees will not flourish if the land whereon they stand is used as a roosting place for cattle.

That if but ten young pecan trees of good varieties were planted in each school child in Texas, within twenty years the country from those trees would pay the annual running expenses of the State Government—that is, the legitimate expenses.

That none of these things will come to pass until the citizens of Texas awaken to the possibilities of their State tree—until heed is paid to the wishes of their great governor, and Texas becomes a land of trees.

Father's Pecan Testimony On

In some past issues of the Avalanche we stated that we had one pecan tree in our grove in Coleman County that was considered to be not less than a hundred years old, but to day we received a statement from Mississippi where there was one tree in that state that was known to be 400 years old and still bearing.

Now why would any one plant any other tree for shade or long life when the pecan is the longest life of the valuable pecan.

We have a creditable record of one tree that produced last year 287 pounds of paper-shell pecans, that sold for 60c per pound or $170.20. Another tree that produced 70 pounds the 9th year set out, and the 10 year produced 89 pounds, a total of a 165 lbs that sold for $99.00. Now we want to ask again that you read these things carefully and get ready to plant all the pecans you have a place for this fall. See me and let's talk the matter over.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Baskins had as their guests last week Mrs. Baskins' father, the Rev. H. H. H. Baskins and her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Burnett, and their two children, Rev. Burnett had the pleasure of meeting many old friends and acquaintances while in Lubbock which he had made in his long career an evangelist throughout Texas. He is also net a former classmate, Dr. P. W. Horn, whom he had not seen for many years.

H. V. Soggen, of Taylor, Texas, was here last week looking after his farm interests and also after his town Saturday morning he renewed his subscription to the Avalanche and will keep up with developments in this territory.

THE SLATON FAIR

We had the pleasure of visiting the Slaton Fair on Friday the first day of the fair. We were not surprised to see the wonderful exhibit as we have found so many good surprises that we are prepared for the next from day to day. As the minute description has been given we will only deal with the agricultural exhibits. These were all very fine and demonstrated the great possibilities of these plains as a farming country. It had been grown three kinds of Maize on many kinds of Kafir fully as many kinds of sorghum and all the samples were as good as any one would desire to see. There were melons galore and special prize melons were interested in the sample of corn grown right near Slaton. There was an exhibit of stalks of corn with two ears to the stalk very uniformly on each stalk, and the blades both green throughout which showed that it had been grown late in the season. The two well developed ears on each stalk proved that corn of the right variety can be successfully grown on these plains. The fact that fine corn can be grown in the Slaton country is that it can be grown any year if we will only learn the proper method of cultivation. We learned recently of a piece in Arizona where the Indians have been producing corn for two thousand years and have an average of 4-inch rain fall. If we can't do as well as the Indians then we would better get a teacher from among them to come down and teach us the art of corn growing on the plains, where we are getting an average of 24 inches of rainfall. Corn should be one of our diversified crops, not risk too much on it until we learn more about the proper cultivation of it, but we have mentioned in these columns before that an acre of corn can be grown any year on the plains if we will only observe certain rules of culture. There was one other thing about the Slaton Fair we noticed and that was the exhibit of fine melons. No farming operations can be successfully carried on without good teams. It is not certain yet as to what part the tractors will play in the farming operations on the plains, but we think power milks will always be in the demand. We will see on the farms of this and other parts of the country.

One thing we learned was that those melons were not grown in this section of the state, but were shipped in and sold here. We think a good melon can be raised here as well as any where else in the United States and farmers should look after this branch of farming at once. For many years on the farm we used good percheron mares for farm work and raised a good male team each year, which did the farm work. We suggest the same plan for farmers on the plains.

One other thing we noticed about the Slaton Fair was the lack of any kind of cattle, and we are especially interested in the lack of any where else in the United States and farmers should look after this branch of farming at once. For many years on the farm we used good percheron mares for farm work and raised a good male team each year, which did the farm work. We suggest the same plan for farmers on the plains.

Thursday, October 16th, has been designated by officials of the State Fair at Dallas as Texas Farm Bureau Day. The Association Day and Fair are being celebrated for cotton growers of Lubbock county to appear in a body, according to W. E. Bennett, secretary of the Lubbock County Farm Bureau.

Farmers have been cordially invited to visit the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association's headquarters at Dallas. CROP CONDITIONS IN LAMB COUNTY VERY GOOD

On the booster trip of Thursday the people of Lubbock had the occasion to see some of the finest crops that have ever been raised on the wonderful south plains. One great feature of the crops of the south plains, and it was shown very clearly in Lamb county and that was the diversified farming. All through the Lamb county trip were excellent. The row crops were in fine condition and will give the farmers of that section something in return for their money spent in the first years production.

Something similar to that around in the Lubbock territory, it is a little late but is looking fine and will produce in some sections of the country, as was stated by Gus Shaw the director of the local Chamber of Commerce, as much as one-half to three-fourths of a bale to the acre.

Several gin-houses have been constructed in Lamb county during this year. The gins will be overflown when the rush does start.

Lamb county will be one of the strongest contenders for the county exhibit prize that will be represented. This was shown by the wonderful exhibits of the farm products at the Lamb county fair at Olton.

HALF OF TEXAS COUNTIES FAIL FILE TAX ROLLS

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 2.—About half the counties of Texas have failed to file their 1924 tax rolls with the state comptroller, though the law requires them to before today. There are 12 counties delinquent in the matter, Comptroller Lon A. Smith said. Among the larger counties which have not reported are El Paso, Garrettsville and Wichita.

PATENTS GRANTED TO TEXAS FOLKS

OF 857 patents issued in the last week, Texas inventors obtained 18. Do you know any of these inventors?

That these inventions are worth while is attested by the number of patents that already have been assigned for manufacture and sale. In other cases the inventors are planning to manufacture them themselves or still are negotiating for assignments or royalties.

The following information is compiled by Munn & Company of New York, patent and trade mark attorneys.

Robert C. Stubbs, of Dallas, TEXAS, has been granted a patent for a ROAD-BUILDING DRUM. This is for road or street building equipment, especially measuring devices for securing uniform amounts of ingredients for making concrete or other materials.

David Leonard Hampton, of Fort Worth, HEATING AND VENTILATING SYSTEM. This comprises a main air pipe, horizontally extended, a hot air pipe, extended vertically, and a cold air pipe, extended vertically.

Charles Dean Kennedy, of Corpus Christi, HEMSTITCHING AND PITCHING ATTACHMENT FOR SEWING MACHINES. It may be readily attached to and readily held in place on the pressure foot of a sewing machine, and is so constructed as to prevent the usual needle passage from getting out of alignment.

Tat H. Bean, of Amarillo, FAN BELT TIGHTENER. This is an automatically acting belt adjuster for the fan driving belts of Ford cars. The device consists of a single spring which can be applied to the car without any alterations.

Charles A. Hartmann, of San Antonio, HEAD LIGHT DEFLECTOR DEVICE. This is a simple and efficient shutter device for the lamp or headlight of an automobile.

Gerald K. Campbell, of Pecos, BRAKE. This relates to automatic means for applying the brakes of a railroad car, if the car should leave the rails, thus acting to stop the car immediately so as to prevent serious damage.

Carl E. Tally, of Crawford, ROSE COUPLING. This relates to automatic couplers for railway cars wherein one is made of air, brass and steam heating pipes which are equipped with valves that are automatically opened when the cars are coupled and automatically closed when the cars are disconnected.

John M. Browne, of Houston, PROCESS OF TREATING PICKLES. This process so treats pickles after they are taken out of the salt brine as to render them more brittle and wholesome and at the same time to give them a smoother and more attractive appearance.

Rex C. Hamaker, of Houston, CABLE BEARING FOR WALKING BEAMS. This bearing is attached to the beam in which the cable works without obstructing injury to the cable.

Robert J. Schuyler, of Mexico, AUXILIARY OIL SAVER. This is for saving the oil when the joints of oil well tubes or pipes are broken for the purpose of cleaning or repairing them.

SEESSAD FATE FOR THE GIRL WITH BOBBED HAIR

CHICAGO (United Press) Bobbed hair in time is going to have a serious effect in cutting down the number of marriages, according to Charles Nestle, beauty specialist of New York, in an address here.

"That bobbed hair eventually will result in beards for women, is a prediction," said Nestle. "That it will rob women in appearance at least of womanly charms is a fact and there is no doubt that this fact will reduce the marriage rate and may in time lead to a falling off of the world's population."

"Since the beginning of time, the glory of women has been her hair. Shorn of her long tresses she is devoid of much of her physical allurements. She appears mannish. Men do not care for mannish-looking women and will not marry them."

"Long hair enables a woman, by changing her coiffure, to add the charm of variety to her beauty. Bobbed hair deprives her of this varied attractiveness. She appears always the same. She attracts no more admiration than she might expect if she appeared every day in the same gown."

"As she grows mannish in appearance, she will grow mannish in nature. This will be an inevitable psychological consequence. This bobbed hair, with its tendency to subvert the womanliness of women, may become a source of tragic conditions in the future."

HEROIC YELLOWSTONE RANGERS BATTLE FIRE AGAINST ODDS

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., Oct. 3, 1924.—It was two o'clock on a hot afternoon when the alarm of fire was telephoned to Ranger Headquarters at Mammoth.

Fire in a National Park is an outlaw and it is feared and hated more than any human desperado, for it is a thousand times more fiendish and powerful. So when the word comes to headquarters that the forest is aflame, no city fire department with its speedy apparatus, ever moves as quickly as the Rangers.

For in fighting a forest fire, time is just as important an element as it is in battling the flames that are eating at the heart of a house or a business block in town. But here in the wilderness is a hundredfold more difficult and hazardous for many reasons.

Forests Easy Prey.—August's sun dries out the forest and makes the measy prey for the fire-outlaw. Once started, he mounts with a rear to the tip of the tallest lodgepole or spruce, the mightiest of the Douglas fir in an instant.

"And if it gets a real start on you," says Sam Woodring, veteran of many a nasty conflict with the fire-outlaw, and chief of the Ranger force, "then there's hell to pay."

"Fire on the mountain a mile of Secret Valley," the report said. And so to Rangers scattered over distances from 25 to 50 miles from the blaze went the urgent order by telephone to get there pronto. They had no automobile equipment to pour gallons of water on the flame, nothing but the order to get there with a prospect of being on the job all night and maybe two or three nights and days, with little food and no rest and all the time bitter, back-breaking labor.

Chief Takes Grab.—Chief Woodring loaded up a lot of grub and a huge coffee pot and streaked it from Mammoth with four men. Before sundown the firefighters were all assembled on the edge of the burning forest. The last of the few miles from Mammoth and his crew, laden with the grub, were made up the almost vertical wall of a canyon and over the top of a mountain peak. Sometimes their trail led over treacherous slide-rock, then along a narrow ledge in the canyon wall, now following a faint game trail now clinging to trees and the precarious handholds afforded by brittle sagebrush, now holding on by hands and heels dug into the earth.

Thus, panting and leg weary, and drenched with perspiration, after labor that would have knocked out men less injured to such things, they came to the fire, their real task. Then began the battle with the outlaw, entrenched in the timber, and defying them. The heavy smoke was choking thick and the heat terrific.

The fire had broken out high on a mountain in an old fire scar far from any water. Tens of thousands of fallen, half-consumed logs, relics of the former conflagration, lay matted into huge piles. The old scar had been covered with a good stand of tall lodgepole pines, new growth since the old fire, which occurred probably 35 or 40 years ago. Like exploding casks of varnish or spirits, these would suddenly go up in flame, scattering burning brands for 50 yards or more into the surrounding forest.

Underfoot lay a thick carpet of needles, dry as chips. The fire, igniting these, ate rapidly among the main spread in all directions, burning through the layer of needles to the damp soil beneath, sometimes a depth of eight to twelve inches.

Water Far Away.—Most fires in the Yellowstone break out as this one did, far away from water. There is no way of fighting them except by smothering the edges with dirt, and digging ditches around the burning area, leaving the fire to burn itself out within the circle.

They began ditching. The ditch must be two feet wide, and deep enough to prevent the fire creeping through the needle carpet. The matted, rotten logs must be chopped in a way, so that the fire would not run along them beyond the burning area and ignite other trees beyond the ditch.

There were 10 men in all—Tians—and they were grimly at work. Remember that they had not been idle before they started for this fire; they had been doing their regular work as Rangers. They had no time for a comfortable, satisfying supper before they started their fire-fighting; a sandwich and a cup of hot coffee was their evening meal, after their arduous labors in reaching the fire area.

They Hacked and Dug.—They went on with their ditching. This is no child's play. Roots, stones, fallen logs barred and hindered them. The smoke filled their eyes and lungs. They hacked and dug and grubbed.

Darkness fell and the glory of the stars shined on the scene. And still they fought and still the outlaw raged. Dawn found them still at it, smoke grimed, incredibly weary but still hacking and grubbing and digging. And so, 24 hours after the alarm came in, they conquered the outlaw; this was a comparatively easy 40-acre fire. And the Rangers took themselves wearily back to their stations and their duties, until the next call of fire should summon them to another skirmish.

OFFICER ADMITS HIS OFFER OF REWARD IN POTHIER CASE

TACOMA, Oct. 3.—Wm. P. Conley, New Haven railroad policeman offered Roland Pothier accused of the slaying in 1918 of Major Alexander P. Cronkite, a reward for "a set of facts" showing that Cronkite did not meet death at his own hand; Conley admitted late Thursday under cross examination at Pothier's trial in federal court here.

The admission was made after Conley had told of interviews with Pothier at the latter's home in Central Falls, N. Y., in which the accused ex-bugler admitted the shooting, cross examination at Pothier's trial in federal court here.

The offer of a reward, Conley admitted came after he had an interview with Major General Adelbert Cronkite and Mrs. Cronkite in the Hotel Astoria in New York.

At this interview, Conley said he first heard the name of Captain Rosenbluth, in connection with the shooting.

"What was said?" Attorney Maurice Langhorne, for the defense asked.

An objection was made and sustained.

"Did you leave the general with the impression that he was after Rosenbluth and not Pothier?"

Special prosecutor Osborne objected, but Conley beat him to it with a negative shake of the head.

Conley said the offer was made while he was posing as "Mr. Steele, of the Metropolitan Insurance company."

He told Pothier, he said, that the agent who could establish the fact that Cronkite did not die by his own hand would save the company a law suit and get a bonus. He would be willing to split with any one who would give him such "a set of facts" he said he told Pothier.

After this Langhorne moved to strike out all Conley's testimony concerning Pothier's story of the shooting on the ground that the story was given in response to an offer of reward. The motion was denied.

HAD A STRONG PIPE AND BATH TUB SHY.—DALLAS, Oct. 4.—Charges that her husband was "bath tub shy" were made in a petition for divorce filed by a woman in Judge Louis Wilson's court here recently.

The plaintiff declared in her petition that she was descended from a family noted for cleanliness and a daily bath. Her husband, however, she alleges, often missed his tub for ten days at a time without bathing an eye.

Among other irritations ascribed to her spouse, was the habit of using "wile over-powering pipes."

SAFETY FIRST WITH JOB, PLEA NEGRO BELL-HOP

DALLAS, Tex.—One negro "cham bermaid" believes in punctuality if nothing else.

With an alarm clock hanging from one suspender and a ukelele under his arm, attired in bell-bottom breeches and with other jelly attributes, detectives arrested an early morning stroller.

"Where you goin' boy?" asked the officer.

"I've swine nowhar" replied the suspect. "I've done been to a party."

"What's the idea of the Big Ben?" "I wuz scared I would go to sleep and not wake up in time to go to work" was the reply. The officers told him to be on his way or he might lose his job.

CAST IRON CASTLES BID FOR PLACE IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Cast iron castles are bidding for a place on the English landscape.

Being brand new castles at only $1,000 a piece, they aren't quite in a class with their medieval predecessor and they are not palatial, but every Englishman's heart is his castle, and the type had been designed as a means of relieving the housing shortage.

Potter, a Rotherham foundry proprietor is inventor of the cast iron house. He has submitted a model to the Rotherham housing committee and expects to erect six specimen buildings for trial if the ministry of health approves the proposition.

They are to be built of cast iron plates, bolted together, with concrete on the outside and plaster covering the interior. They are capable of springing up like mushroom rooms.

Potter says that if houses of this kind were erected throughout the country all foundries would be fully employed and work would be available for thousands of semi-skilled men. Another designer of the "cheaper dwelling puzzle" has appeared in the person of Lord Weir, but the odds at present are on Potter because the Weir specimen is of steel and costs about $1,500.

Russians are now said to have money in their pockets, the first time in five years. We may have to recognize them yet.

WORLD-WIDE CONFAB ON DISARMAMENT IS PROBABLE

GENEVA, Oct. 2.—The League of Nations council will at once begin the gigantic task of preparing for an international disarmament conference at Geneva in June, 1925, as provided in the league disarmament, arbitration and security protocol, following the unanimous adoption of the protocol by the league assembly.

Forty-seven nations voted for the acceptance of the protocol Thursday.

The assembly then adjourned for the purpose of laying the ground work for the disarmament conference which will be provided by the various governments ratifying the league pact.

The protocol has already been signed by France, Poland, Latvia, Serbia, Estonia, Albania, Czechoslovakia, Portugal and Greece. Other nations are expected to sign shortly.

Before the adjournment of the assembly that body re-elected all non-permanent members of the league council. As a result of this the council next year will be composed of representatives of permanent members, England, France, Italy, and Japan, and the non-permanent members, Belgium, Spain, Brazil, and Portugal.

The Chinese delegation had left the floor of the assembly in a body when the assembly failed to elect China as a member of the council.

Criticism Increases.—LONDON, Oct. 2.—There is increased criticism of the League of Nations disarmament, arbitration and security protocol here and some informed observers predict that the protocol, and the projected disarmament conference are already doomed.

The British dominions are already opposing the protocol, according to advices received here. Australian dispatches report that newspapers there are declaring that acceptance of the protocol is impossible due to Japanese amendments.

WILL FINISH CHICAGO STATION IN 1925.—CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Six months more is expected to see the practical completion of the new Union Station here, the largest in the world. The work was started 10 years ago, but was interrupted by the world war. Some parts of the terminal are already in use and new sections are being opened as completed. When finished it will have a capacity of 300 trains a day and will have cost $60,000,000. It can handle 50,000 passengers and 40 tons of baggage every 24 hours.

Unusual features include the largest restaurant service of any entire place in the world—a large lunch room, a main dining room, several smaller rooms and a cafeteria. A jail, a chapel and a morgue are also built in the station. The waiting room is 230 feet long and 100 feet wide.

W. C. T. U. WILL SUPPORT ROOSEVELT ON PROMISE

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The promise of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., to bring back the state prohibition law if he is elected governor of New York, has brought him at least one supporter among dry organizations.

The W. C. T. U. has announced its endorsement of "Young Teddie." The Anti-Saloon League, which recently attacked Roosevelt in its customary gusto, has yet to be heard from following the candidate's promise.

THE SMALL PARK SITE

By Phoebe K. Warner.

What is the mission of a park? That settled, then we may all better understand who should have parks and who should not. If the campaign for parks in Texas does no more than encourage all the people to think a little along the line of parks and their real mission in Texas, it will not have been in vain. So far in the history of Texas it would seem that the first mission of parks in Texas is to give the city and town folks somewhere to cool off summer evenings, somewhere for tired city people to go and get a few breaths of fresh air somewhere for all the people to spend their Sunday afternoons somewhere for the city children to play and paddle and swim and dive in the water; and somewhere for sweethearts to meet and tell the "same old story." And it doesn't seem to make so much difference whether the trees in the park grew there naturally or were just planted so they are there and furnish the needed shade and beauty. It does not make any difference to a boy whether he swims in a nice clean pool of water that has been fixed up especially for that purpose, or whether he goes out to some dirty, desecrated lake or stream to have a swim. It is the thrill of the water and the real mission in Texas, it is somewhere if he is a natural, how much difference does his the park is just so there is plenty of room in it for everybody who needs the rest and recreation it offers. The only point we see in all this talk is this: Are city boys and girls the only boys and girls that love to wade through the woods and say nice things to each other? Are city boys the only boys that need to know how to swim, and love the water? Are city folks the only people who get tired through the week and need a cool, shady, beautiful place to spend their Sunday afternoons? Do

God create all the natural park sites and plant them in trees and through the streams of water through them just for the rest and recreation of city people? Do the small town folks and the country folks need no outdoor recreational centers, just because they live farther apart? Or are we human beings all alike and need the same influence in our lives to make us 100 per cent happy and healthy?

We are led to ask ourselves these questions by our observations. So far it seems that most all the beautiful parks in our State and there are city parks for city people. There are two kinds of a park, but we do not have any in Texas yet. There are the State parks in twenty-five different States and there are national parks in fourteen different States. These are for the pleasure of anybody who can afford to go to them. Now suppose we pick out some of the most beautiful places in Texas and make three or four big State parks. Suppose we locate one way over in the Davis Mountains. Another way down on the 13th corner of Texas at Brownsville. Suppose we take one for our on the northwestern plains in Palo Duro Canyon, and then wind up one corner of State parks over on Caddo Lake in East Texas. How many of our tired country people and how many of our boys and girls could run, or down and dive in the water, and take a dip in the swimming pool, or take one of these parks in from 500 to 1,000 miles apart. If you do not believe it get your Texas map and look it better still get in your car and drive it. In the least 500 miles from Palo Duro Canyon to the Davis Mountains. It is almost 1,000 miles from the Davis Mountains to Brownsville. It is almost 1,700 miles from Palo Duro Canyon to the Davis Mountains. It is almost 500 miles from Palo Duro Canyon to Caddo Lake and another 500 miles from Caddo Lake to the Palo Duro. The people of the Panhandle could drive to Dallas in less than a day, and drive to other one of the State parks in Texas. And that is just what they have been doing all these years. The boys and girls of the Panhandle who have seen the Palo Duro Canyon and want something new to see, could run in to Kansas City and take a noon car for $10,000,000 park system, one or two miles and cheaper than they could reach any other State park in Texas. But all their sight-seeing would be in some other State and all their gasoline tax would go to help other States build better roads. And when they get there, everything they would be manufactured beauty. Hundreds of small towns in Texas have better park sites than Kansas City, or Dallas, or Houston, or even Denver. If either of those cities had the Hamlin, Texas park site it would mean thousands and thousands of dollars to them. If any city had the natural park site that the little town of Strawn, Texas, has, it would be worth a half million dollars to the city. There are the most beautiful and the most natural park sites going to waste all over Texas. And while these wonderful places, planted by God for the rest, happiness and social safety of all the people are going to waste the boys and girls of Texas are riding round wasting gas and money and fishing their lives in search of pleasure. What the people of Texas need is to recognize the beauty right at their own doors and get busy and make it serve the needs of their own people, every day of every year. And then when they can spare a little extra time and money go to the larger places. But we all need something beautiful and restful in our lives every week instead of once a life's time.

Now which will serve the most people and which will be of greatest value to the State? A few large parks beyond the reach of the masses of the people or a chain of smaller State parks with the larger ones as the final goal? Which will bring most joy to all the State? Which will give every class of people a chance to see something beautiful now and then? But they will cost so much. How much will they cost? The people are giving them back to the State. So far the State of Texas has spent less than $1,500 on the State park system and something like 40 beautiful sites have been returned free to the State, covering over 10,000 acres, and valued at many thousand dollars, to be used some day by all the people. The same offer is made to the city as the small town. So far none of the large cities have come forward and offered a State park to the State. They will have to be forced. But San Antonio and our cities of need in size. And now if these parks by the side of the road and near our smaller towns are to be used by all the people who pass by, why should not the State help develop them? And if the State will help develop them with an area of 50 square miles and a population of less than 200,000 to have 26 city parks does it not seem reasonable for the country folks to have a park every 900 square miles, or an average of one park to every 100 square miles? San Antonio is not fussing about the small parks. She knows the value of parks for all the people. The prime motive of the State parks plan is to bring beauty, rest, recreation, companionship, neighborliness, health, and happiness to the people of Texas by utilizing Nature's priceless gifts, and preserving them for all the generations to come before they get beyond the reach of the people. And if the most beautiful places happen to be near a small town, why neglect so great an opportunity and so beautiful a gift to the State? Every city in Texas was only a small town a few years ago.

BROOKHART NOT BE KICKED OUT BY REPUBLICANS

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 3.—The republican state central committee meeting here Friday refused to excommunicate Senator Smith W. Brookhart from the party saying that "his repudiation of the republican nominees is a repudiation of and a bolt from the republican party." The committee re-affirmed its faith in President Coolidge and General Charles G. Dawes, heads of the ticket, and placed the blame for Brookhart's demand that Dawes resign as candidate for vice-president on LaFollette leaders. "It is our belief that this action has been inspired by the heads of the LaFollette party for malicious purpose of attempting to turn the attention of the voters from the real issues of this campaign." Thus read the statement made public by the committee at the conclusion of a two day star chamber session with Brookhart as the principal worry. Call of the committee by chairman B. B. Barnquist came immediately following Brookhart's letter to Chairman Butler, demanding Dawes' withdrawal and an address by the junior Iowa Senator Friday at Emmetsburg. "President Coolidge and the leaders of the republican party are dominated by financial powers." The statement goes on to say. The self-imposed bolt from the republican ranks by Senator Brookhart is the result of a conspiracy to defeat the right of the people to elect a president at the polls and force such an election by a congress selected two-to-six years ago.

"We as republicans who believe in the constitution of the United States and believe in construction rather than destruction will continue our campaign for President Coolidge and Mr. Dawes and all republicans on the ticket." "On any issue of honest integrity, and interest in the welfare of all the people, we are proud to stand on the life and record of Calvin Coolidge against the attacks of any man." Of General Dawes the committee said: "We take pride in his constructive genius and brilliant achievements. His staunch Americanism is an inspiration to all who believe in the principles of a representative form of government as outlined in the constitution of our republic."

THE GROWTH OF IDALOU

(Idalou Echo).

A brick building per month for a dozen months and four to spare is the record set by this city since the first house of cotton came in a year ago—and every one of the new structures has been a brick or tile store to replace a wooden shack or make room for a new incoming merchantile establishment.

Eight years ago the scholastic enrollment of Idalou high school reached the "huge" total of eight pupils, six of whom came from the same family. School opened here last week with an enrollment of 520, and another hundred will come in before Christmas—just as soon as cotton is out of the way.

The first gin opened at Idalou only four years ago, and has done 1,640 bale run. Four gins will handle the 1924 cotton crop, and 8,000 bales are expected to be ginned here, with 12,000 bales to be marketed locally—the extra 4,000 bales to come from two nearby community gins off the railroad.

The 1923 crop was just a few bales over 7,000—and the two nearby community gins were not in operation—or a gain of nearly 5,000 bales for this year.

Idalou has claims to having been the smallest town in Texas with a golf course—until it got grew that record. Now the town claims to be the smallest town in Texas with a station exchange, receiving full reports by radio and wire.

Incorporated only six months ago with a bare 500 inhabitants as required by law, Idalou has already increased to almost 3,000 population mark.

New homes are started every week. The 16 brick stores built during the past year indicates the general growth of the town for the residence construction is keeping pace with the business development, and the surrounding farm development is leading in both, as is indicated by the cotton development increase.

L. P. Small is mayor of Idalou Roy C. Russell is president of the Chamber of Commerce, J. C. Turley is head of the public schools, while Jess W. Harcoy is secretary of them all, city secretary, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, secretary of the school board and secretary of the golf club.

Idalou is served by 24 hour electric service. Plans are being discussed.

crossed for water works and sewers. A weekly newspaper is liberally supported. Trade is stimulated by trade day programs, with special prizes, bargains etc., under direction of the Chamber of Commerce.

In short this is the biggest little town in Texas.

CROPPED HAIR

We are indebted to one of our good old solid citizens for the following poem. He has asked us not to use his name, but many may know him anyway. The poem is based on the scripture, 1 Cor. 11th chapter 14-15.

The word of the Lord will show you the way,
In which you should travel every day.
And from it you need not ever roam,
If you'll follow it through it will lead you home.

It says it's a shame for men to wear
Their heads covered with long hair,
And to woman she never need fear
For her long hair is a glory to her.

But now we sometimes are stopped,
To see bold women have their hair cropped,
But more modest ones look better
To men.

And thus thus expressed again and again.

Where is it from his boldness and
The soldier says the other side of the world,
It is called propaganda among the refined.

France, Russia and Turkey with it are lined.

We must bear it with patience on to the end,
Be humble and kind as a true scripture
friend,
And with kindness must lead back to the book,
So conscience can guide them as on its pages we look.

Now in the scriptures to which we have referred,
The Holy Spirit teaches it is God's Holy Word,
And it is to judge us at the last
great day,
So we all ought to travel the narrow way.

PIONEER OF ABERNATHY DIES FROM WOUNDS

ABERNATHY, Texas, Oct. 4.—P. L. Wimberly, a pioneer citizen of the Lakeview community, was the victim of a fatal accident which occurred at his home last Wednesday morning. While holding a horse while it was being clipped, the animal reared and struck Mr. Wimberly on the head with its forefeet, the blow inflicting such injuries as to cause his death. The accident occurred about 7 o'clock in the morning and medical aid was immediately summoned from Abernathy, and later Dr. Overton was called from Lubbock, but the nature of the injury was such that no human agency could stay the end, and death ensued at about 10:45 a. m.

Funeral service was conducted at the Lakeview church at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Rev. G. I. Britain of Plainview, conducted the service, being assisted by Revs. J. W. Saffers of Plainview and L. H. Davis of Abernathy. Interment was made in the Strip Cemetery beside the grave of a son who had passed away four years ago.

It falls to the lot of a few private citizens to have paid to their memory a greater and more spontaneous degree of esteem than was paid to the deceased by a large concourse of neighbors and friends who assembled at the late funeral and followed the remains to the chapel, and from there to the cemetery as the evening shadows gathered, and the last rites were administered and the body committed to the tomb.

In their tributes the ministers of the consolation of the gospel, on behalf of the bereaved family and friends, and commended the personal character and christian virtue of the deceased as an example of well spent and useful life.

Mr. J. H. Lutrick, who had known the deceased intimately for nearly a quarter of a century, on behalf of the neighbors, joined the ministers in paying a tribute to the life of their former neighbor as it had been exemplified in the community.

The many and beautiful floral pieces spoke eloquently but forcefully of the place the deceased held in the affection of those who knew him.

Relatives present at the funeral, in addition to the immediate family, included a sister, Mrs. T. B. Warley of Midland, A. C. Wimberly of Lockney, W. W. Wimberly of Midland, J. B. Wimberly of Houston, N. H. Lewis Wimberly of Plainview, a son-in-law, Lee Guthrie of Matador, Mrs. L. B. Conner of Tulsa, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wimberly, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Wimberly, Abner and Marjorie Wimberly all of Briscoe county, Addison Wesley of Midland, and nephews of deceased, Messrs. James A. C. and J. T. Wimberly of Briscoe county, Mrs. W. W. Wimberly of Midland, sisters-in-law. Relatives present of Mrs. Wimberly's were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bergsdyer, her brother Frank Bergsdyer and brother-in-law Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Caraway from Stephens county, and another brother Chester Heffley and family of Crockett and her sister Mrs. Burr Jones of Abernathy.

Preston Lee Wimberly was born February 18, 1871, near Prescott, Arkansas, some six years later the parents moved to Stephens county, Texas, where he grew to manhood and resided until September, 1901, when he came to Hale county settle-

THE SMALL

By Phoebe K. Warner.

What is the mission of a park? That settled, then we may all better understand who should have parks and who should not. If the campaign for parks in Texas does not move then encourage all the people to think a little along the line of parks and their real mission in Texas. It will not have been vain.

So far in the history of Texas it would seem that the first mission of parks in Texas is to give the city and town folks somewhere to go on summer evenings, something to fire off their eyes and get a few breaths of fresh air somewhere for all the people to spend their Sunday afternoons somewhere.

It is no great wonder then that today we see boys and girls rapidly developing their talents in drawing and painting. You have but to visit the art department of our South Plains Fair to see the results.

well. Her landscapes were beautiful in coloring and composition.

Mrs. E. B. Adcock graciously consented, when asked by the superintendent of the art department to enter her beautiful and expensive tapestry. It was given honor prize and did much to add to the already splendid display of the department.

This was quite a display of non-professional oil paintings, a variety of subjects and colors. The first prize in landscapes was awarded Mrs. J. G. Adcock.

Second prize in landscapes was given to Devey Campbell. A jaunty straw hat resting slightly to one side and shading yellow curls and blue eyes of a little old-fashioned girl was a subject chosen by Mrs. Earl Hunt, and it was given first prize under best head or figure.

Miss Louise McKee entered choice selection of work in neo-impressionistic style—resembling somewhat the old mosaic art known as the Byzantine style. She was given a blue ribbon on this artistic piece of work.

Water color painting was always a favorite medium with most young artists, and this year's exhibit was no exception to the rule; a wide space was given for the many beautiful water color pictures.

There were landscapes, flowers and still life studies, some of our best present day painters. Those receiving first prizes under the different heads of water color painting were: Mrs. Alvin Miller of Floydada, Mrs. J. E. Benton of Slaton and Mrs. J. B. Ryan of Slaton.

Edward R. Hatcher and Mrs. H. K. Cooper, all from this city.

Mr. Ferman Martin is to be complimented on his original pen and ink drawing—a poster representing the City of Lubbock.

Mr. Martin had other pictures in black and white which were exceptionally good.

The articles entered under crafts were both clever and original. The basket work display was quite good and well proportioned, and the baskets showed both skill and patience.

On first prize and Mrs. James H. Goodman and Mrs. J. E. Yickers all received prizes for decorated tin novelties.

The superintendent of the art department reports a marked improvement over last year's exhibits and wishes to thank the judges of this department for their cooperation and deliberation in making first decisions and especially wishes to thank Mrs. Marsh the head of the women's department of the fair for her many thoughtful suggestions in making the department a success.

HOME EDUCATION

THE POWER OF EXAMPLE
Maude Freeman Osborne.

If parents would remember that the power of example is greater than precept, there would be not only less of the "don't's" philosophy in bringing up children, but more real results. In other words, when parents themselves set a good example, children find it much easier to conduct themselves properly than when just told what is right.

It is of little effect to tell children not to get angry, or to scold or punish them for getting angry, or to tell them to read the Bible verse, "If that ruth-his spirit is better than that that taketh a city," when there is someone in the house, especially someone they love and reverence very much, who once in a while has a display of temper. True, children of ten because of this instruction "want" to keep from getting angry, but they find it hard to do so when they have the opposite example set them.

I am reminded of a friend who had lost her only son told me. It was that she felt as if she must "dress and go, and keep cheerful," and as she felt, in order that her former husband might be remembered by her daughters if ever any of them had a similar experience.

Sarah was visiting Aunt Harriet who was suddenly taken ill one day as she was preparing dinner. Sarah could do everything but bake the pie. Looking in a cook book she was told to handle the dough!

Cousin John said, "Oh, I can make a pie!"

"You can?" said Sarah. "You never made a pie!"

"No, but I've seen mother hundreds of times."

And he did make a fine pie, although not so good as mother's.

I was very much amused as my little Laddie and a neighbor child playing house. "Billie, the older, was "Mama". Slapping the dolls and animals around, and talking in a pre-emptory manner, "she" was evidently bent on instituting order out of chaos. Suddenly in great dismay, "she" exclaimed, "Oh, my! There's the telephone!"

Going to an imaginary telephone "she" said in a very low voice, "Hello." Then followed one side of a conversation, in the sweetest, most cooing tones, imaginable. After the final "Good-bye," the slappings and commands began again.

My eyes were opened, "Oh, what is the use," thought I, "of preaching what we do not practice, when their little ears and eyes are so sharp and their powers of observation to keen when they can see right through one like that!"

Truly, good examples do far more toward constructive character-building than all the advice that can be given.

WHOM ALL CHILDREN LOVE, SCOLDED.

"Why will mothers alienate the affections of their children's friends! When Dick is older, and Margaret wanting him to bring his friends here, she'll be wondering why they won't come. I dislike these mothers who are always taking part in children's arguments and little quarrels. Children should have a little privacy of their own, and we grown-ups should respect it, the same as we expect them to respect ours."

"Well, you're right, Aunt Emmy-Lou," I admitted, surprised as always at her wisdom.

"Margaret will make Dick unpopular all his life if she keeps this up," she continued. "I was there one day when Dick came home with a torn shirt, grimy hands, and all the earmarks of a scuffle. After she had fairly forced the child to tell his tale of woe, she started to ward the door. 'Where are you going, mother?' Dick asked. 'I'm going to see that rough Dawds boy!' she snapped. 'Oh, mother, please don't do that!' Dick pleaded. Margaret was determined. But I was determined she shouldn't go. And she didn't. I gave her some good straight-from-the-shoulder advice, but I guess she didn't heed it."

Aunt Emmy-Lou left, I thought, "Well, I know one thing. I'm never going to have my boy's friends dislike me, if I can help it."

And I deliberately walked into the house and closed the door, leaving a crowd of youngsters in our front yard, having a most heated argument.

When Sonny hopped in a while later with, "Gee, mother, you're a brick!" I only smiled, for I knew why he thought mother a "brick."

BUSINESS WOMEN TO PRESENT PLAY

HERE OCT. 4

Plans for the presentation of the musical comedy, "Mr. and Mrs. Polly Tick," by the business and professional women's club of Lubbock are well under way, and the play will be witnessed by many local people. It will be held at the Lindsey Theatre or the high school auditorium, definite plans for the meeting place not having been completed as yet.

The proceeds from the play will go to the Lubbock Public Library Fund to buy new books and bookcases for the new homes in the city hall.

Members of the club have requested that local people give them all co-operation possible, and have promised that the play will be one of the best of its kind ever presented here.

DONT ENTER INTO CHILDRENS QUARRELS AND ARGUMENTS

"I don't like Dick's mother," Bud confided one day when he, Aunt Emmy-Lou and I were having a little heart-to-heart talk.

"And why not, Bud?" we wanted to know.

"Well, every time us fellows get into an argument, she's always poking her head out of the window and asking, 'Now what's wrong? Can't you play without quarreling?' And then out she comes to settle matters. Seems pretty nifty to me. She's always spying on what we're doing. I tell you, we don't often go to Dick's—not any more'n we can help."

TASTY RECIPES

In the early Fall it almost as difficult to plan the meals for the family as in the spring because of the scarcity of vegetables and fresh fruits. However, there is the advantage that the appetite is better, and good substantial food is appreciated. Apples should be used every day as long as they are obtainable. They are wholesome and may be used in a variety of ways.

The wise housewife plans to have as much of her meal as possible cooked in the oven when she is making

Twelve Southern States Enroll In Modern Crusade To Complete Work for Orphans of Near East

CHARLOTTE, N.C.

REPRESENTATIVE committees from twelve Southern states have completed a study of the humanitarian work done by the American public in the Near East during the post-armistice period. Their reports, based on personal observation, stress emphasis on economy and efficiency as the keynote of this relief and orphanage work, and they recommend the organization of special crusades in every Southern state for the purpose of carrying it to completion.

Mrs. Alice Hegan Rice of Louisville, Ky., author of "The Wizard of the Cabbage Patch," reports: "The Near East Relief is not only America's greatest philanthropy, but the greatest single achievement in philanthropy ever accomplished in the world. A unique experiment in practical Christianity is now being tried out in the world with results that may be epochal. For the first time in history a day has been set apart in which Christianity is to put its practice what has been taught for over thirteen centuries. A day has been set apart, Dec. 7, named Golden Rule Sunday, for the strengthening of international friendship and the practical application of the Golden Rule."

visited Turkey, Greece and Palestine, for the purpose of seeing the American work there, and to consult with representative people regarding the character of the work and method of administration, as well as the necessity for its continuance. I was tremendously impressed with the wonderful efficiency of the organization. The work in the orphanages, schools and hospitals was of the highest order. Not only myself but other business men who accompanied me came back determined to assist in every way until the last of these little ones has been permanently cared for. The American people must not relinquish this job until it is finished.

Organization of the new "crusade" idea, for carrying through this greater work, has been completed in Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina and several other Southern states. The chairman for North Carolina is J. B. Ivey of Charlotte, while the chairman for Kentucky is Dean R. L. McCready of Louisville. The state of Virginia has pledged itself to the entire support of an industrial training school for 2,500 children, located at Syria, Greece.

PARIS FASHIONS INTRODUCE NOVEL HEADGEAR IN THE CIGARETTE HAT

By HEDDA HOYT
(Fashion Editor of United Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—From Paris comes the cigarette hat which has the little side pockets in the crown, one to hold gold-tipped cigarettes and one to hold a colored silk handkerchief. These hats are made of colored felt and the cigarette supplied with them are ready. They are retailed in New Orleans for $12.50 each, which is rather cheap for a cigarette case, hat and handkerchief all combined in one, to say nothing of the real gold-tipped cigarettes!

Saint Patrick may have chased all the snakes out of Ireland but he had nothing on the leather good people who have corrupted every lizard and crocodile in existence and made them up into bonnets and slippers for the fair sex. It is reported that there aren't enough reptiles left to supply the demand for the milliners' shops. At any rate, we have just discovered among the Parisian imports leathers that once were cowhides—dyed up to resemble crocodile and lizard skins. These are made up into sports hats and shoes for the most part although there are belts and handbags which also use these reptile substitutes.

pendants of small heads are also liked.

As many as 20 bracelets are being worn at a time. Real diamonds are worn with rhinestone imitations so that the real stones add to the brilliancy of the imitation ones. A popular bracelet is of the flexible type with three rows of stones joined together at the clasps. The outer row are of rhinestones and the middle row is imitation sapphire.

Colored canes are still popular. The wearing of real or imitation flowers on the chiffon evening scarf is greatly favored just now. The flower is placed so that it will be on the left shoulder.

WIZARD IN JAIL SHACKLES WILL TALK AT DENTON

DENTON, Tex., Oct. 4.—Harry Houdini, internationally known wizard of steel safe, shackles and straight jacket fame, will deliver a lecture entitled "Can the Dead Speak to One Living" at the Auditorium of the College of Industrial Arts on October 17. Houdini's lecture on spirit communication will be accompanied by demonstrations.

The noted performer's message is reputed to offer a distinct refutation of the many wonders which spiritualistic mediums claim to perform. He is said to demonstrate fake methods of spirit photography, writing, and the blowing of trumpets by invisible agencies.

PARISIAN FASHION NOTES

V-shaped necklines are outnumbering batwing shapes in the Paris Fall fashion collection.

Frocks have long sleeves or none. Nude hosiery is on the decline and darker shades to match the shoes are more in vogue.

Bronze satin slippers are being stressed for dress wear. They are worn with bronze-tinted hosiery.

Skirts remain 12 to 14 inches from the floor. In most cases they are so scant as to make walking in comfort almost impossible. For the American trade, skirts are especially designed in wide widths.

Black velvet hats with high square crowns and very narrow brims which turn upwards in back are worn by the Parisian who is already wearing her Fall bonnet.

Red, green and dark blue gaudy and soft gloves are shown for Fall wear, to correspond with the trimming used on the frocks.

Three-piece suits with long waistlines and circular peplums are sponsored for Fall.

Without Stockings

At the beach resorts, women are appearing without any stockings whatsoever. One sees them in sports attire with sun-browned ankles and even at smart afternoon functions.

Fringed squares resembling Spanish shawls are being used for beach wear over the abbreviated bathing suit. They are of navy-pinked silk crepe with brilliant colored fringe carrying out the main color of the printed square.

Blood tulle and chiffon frocks are worn by many of the younger women. They are particularly lovely on women with blond coloring and very eye-searing are worn over them. Fluffy frocks are still in evidence for dance occasions for younger girls and matrons.

Gunmetal pearls of large size both in checker and three-quarter length are in great favor with the Parisian women. Checker necklaces with

EVENING FROCKS FOR THE WINTER

By HEDDA HOYT
(U. P. Fashion Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Evening frocks this season are either straight lined chemise effects of tulle, both of which hang straight from the shoulders in slenderizing effects or Frocks for evening are invariably sleeveless and necklines are usually rounding and somewhat high in front and deeper in back, often the back terminates in a deep V-shape.

Dancing frocks for younger Misses very slightly from the two evening types, mentioned, since they are made of chiffon and show flowing fullness at the neckline. Many sheath models attain the fullness at the hem by means of rows of bead fringe, which begin just below the knees.

Velvet is sponsored by many New York establishments for the Winter season. One of the newest effects is the velvet tunic gown which has its tunic heavily beaded or jeweled and posed over plain velvet skirt of self material.

A new evening note is the velvet coat of three-quarter length which accompanies the tunic-gown and is worn under the heavier evening wrap. These velvet wraps are of brilliant color matching the frock or harmonizing with it. They are to be worn as the Spanish shawl was worn last season—under the fur wrap—and for restaurant wear they are thrown over the chair forming a lovely background for the frock.

Daytime shades are black, brown, russet, black and bottle-green, with a slight emphasis for navy blue. Among the evening shades are amber, red, violet purple, rose and black and white.

Four trims the majority of daytime frocks being used in narrow band effect about the hem of trunks and on hem of straight sheath models. Short haired belts are those most generally used. On cloth models leopard, mink and brown-cloved squirrel are favorites. Velvet models favor long haired belts such as fox, skunk and beaver.

Many frocks are made circular hemlines by the introduction of circular pockets and panels at the sides. Backs are always left as straight as possible, even on those models and only to the graceful lines of the hem.

It is not unusual to see wraps colored with fur and with fur about the hem, but with an absence of fur-trimmed on the cuffs. Sleeves usually terminate in rather wide effect at the wrist and are untrimmed either by a set-on cuff or by lace.

Umbrellas are growing shorter and stubbier each season. This year we find them with thick wooden handles of painted wood and they are made short enough so that they can be carried on the wrist without touching the ground.

Gloves for street wear are made of heavy suede in lengths extending half way to the elbow. Many of them are of the slip-on type in colors of tan, taupe, beige and light gray.

Envelope purses are just a bit smarter than hand-bags. They are made of various leathers and in various shades. Some of these are extremely large and in brilliant shades such as red and green and these are carried under the arm and color to the dark street costume. Others of smaller type are of the same shade as the glove and are worn over the back of the hand, being held by straps.

Bracelets are the most important notes in jewelry this season. While many women are still wearing the numerous band bracelets, the most fashionable women are wearing a single bracelet of unusual type in preference to several. For day wear a single large stone is set into a filigree background and carries out the color note expressed in the costume. For instance, a large carved Russian amethyst is surrounded by a wide background of silver leaves and flowers and this is worn with purple velvet afternoon frock. Large carnelian stones are mounted in the same manner. Old Cameos are worn in their original old settings, mounted on an inch wide gold bands.

SUGGESTS NEW TILE FLOOR AT TEXAS STATE CAPITOL—AUSTIN, Oct. 4.—R. B. Walthall, member of the State Board of Control, said Wednesday that he would like to see the coming Legislature make appropriation for re-flooring the Capitol; that the tiling which was put down in 1888, or nearly forty years ago, has buckled in many places and now looks unclean and unsightly. Some of the board has received samples of a rich-colored tile made in San Antonio by a Spanish or Mexican process, which is artistic in the extreme. There are more combinations of colors and designs than shown in other tiling. Some of them have a de luxe appearance. They are beautiful and varied, besides being entirely new to this section of the state.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The reactionary sentiment which was so marked at yesterday's close was checked today by prospects of unfavorable weather early next week and shorts scrambled for cover. Around 25 cents trade for December. There was some trade buying and a line of about 40,000 bales appeared to be the replacement of long cotton for some prominent locals.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 4.—Cotton reversed its course today and recovered most of yesterday's loss. Outlook for unsettled weather followed by a cold wave, strong cables and unfavorable reports from the eastern states caused the change. Recent sellers seemed inclined to cover and they were dependent upon long realizing for their supply as there was very little hedging in this market. Spot houses who were regretful sellers were among the largest of the day's buyers and there was also some buying for trade interests.

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 4.—Basis irregular and slightly easier at most points. BM 28 averages around 85 off shippers trying to buy at 100 off. Movement getting heavy in north-west Texas where basis about 25 points lower. Understand considerable cotton sold yesterday and last night by Dallas firms to mills and abroad.

Quality vs. Bargains

When you buy a suit of clothes you do not go to the man who gives you the cheapest price and place your order, you go to the man who you think will give you the best suit for the money you can afford to pay. This is good business sense.

Why not apply this same sense to the purchase of monuments? The same conditions apply. There are "shoddy" monuments just the same as there are "shoddy" clothes. They are dear at any price just the same as the clothes.

Our monuments are honestly built and priced. Such memorials are a credit to the purchaser, and will be a fitting and lasting marker when erected to the memory of the deceased. We guarantee our settings.

We will gladly assist you in making your selection and furnish you with prices and other details. Our plant is at your service. Call on us.

THE PASSING DAY

By WILL H. MAYES, Department of Journalism, University of Texas

Although he has lately abolished several bureaus and consolidated others in the interest of economy, Dr. Malone Duggan, State Health Officer, has created the position of Secretary of Public Health Education with a view of giving the people more direct information on matters pertaining to public health. This is a progressive step of the Health Department that must redound to the good of the public, for although physicians have of late been impressed with the value of health conservation, the people as a whole are woefully ignorant in matters pertaining to the preservation of health. This is because they have not been accustomed to thinking of health other than as a personal matter, when it is really in most cases a community or even a state- or national problem. The secretary placed in charge of this work is Mrs. C. R. Fields, who has done much efficient service as an educator and as a journalist, and has besides had training through service in the Health Department.

The average citizen seldom thinks of the public health as an asset or liability to his community. The cost of an epidemic is not measured by the expense to those who are the direct sufferers, or by the suffering or by the loss of time, but by the additional loss of community productivity. No community can prosper as a whole where its health average is below normal, for it cannot produce to meet the requirements of a normal population. No person wants to locate in or move to a place where health conditions are bad, even though he could be assured of perfect health for himself and his family, because every one knows that such a place cannot make a desirable home. Considered purely as an economic question it pays a people to ensure the health of the entire population as far as it can be done. If the Texas Health Department can impress this truth upon the entire state and have an even in small measure teach the people how best to conserve their health it will have justified the entire expense of its maintenance.

The best way that people otherwise unacquainted with a place can judge it is by its newspapers, and the part of the newspapers on which judgment is based is invariably the advertising columns. Some eighty Texas newspapers reach my office regularly and I can at once tell whether a town is progressing or going backward by a glance at those papers. One can almost tell how the yards look, whether the homes are kept painted, if the mud holes are in the streets, if hogs and other stock run loose, if the business is good, if the merchants are mossbacks, if the town is always half asleep, just by the spirit shown by the merchants in their advertising. No town is better than its business men make it, and the business men are never better and seldom worse than their advertising shows them to be.

It does not take a big town to make a good place in which to live, but it does take a live town to make an attractive home. Some men and women can grow accustomed to anything and can live anywhere, but the young people are not going to stay a great while in a place that is constantly going down, after they learn that there are better places in which to live. Youth seeks progress for its environment. Age may become content with disintegration. If the older people expect to retain the young about them, they must provide them with pleasing surroundings. There must be good streets and roads, well equipped schools, attractive homes, modern conveniences, bathing and picnicking resorts, well stocked stores, up-to-date entertainment—in short a place must be growing and developing along with the rest of the world or youth will seek more congenial surroundings.

A good way to determine whether yours is such a place is by comparison. How does your community, if you live in the country, compare in every respect with other country communities around you? If it is worse in any way than others you know it is not all that it should be. How does your town compare with the town to the south, to the north or to the east and to the west of your town? Are any of them going forward while yours is hesitating? Have the citizens of your place, with all the natural advantages of the others, gone ahead of the others in every way that makes toward progress, or have they gone to sleep? If your town isn't just as good, just as progressive, just as growing as the others, it is time for an awakening and for serious study, for it is in danger of what for lack of better name often is called the "dry rot."

The best way that people otherwise unacquainted with a place can judge it is by its newspapers, and the part of the newspapers on which judgment is based is invariably the

Earl Cooper to Marry After Romance

MRS. JANE R. DAILEY

During a race in the East some time ago, Earl Cooper, the famous automobile race driver, saw a beautiful red-haired woman in the grandstand as his car flashed past. He could never get her out of his mind. A few days ago his car crashed with another car on the streets of Los Angeles. The other car was driven by Mrs. Jane R. Dailey, of Troy, N. Y. She was the "red-haired woman." She will soon become Cooper's bride.

PRESIDENT URGES CIVILIAN TRAINING IN UNITED STATES

By United Press.
DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 4—Civilian training which would eliminate the necessity of a large standing army was urged by President Coolidge in a letter to Frederick Patterson, president of the National Aeronautic Society. The letter was read here Friday night before the annual banquet of the association.

"The federal government is interested in the promotion of all commercial activities especially commercial aviation," the president wrote.

"Our nation is decidedly for peace and opposed to aggressive war," he added, "but is also for training as civilian occupations as will render entirely unnecessary a large standing military force. Your work fits into this well established American policy."

There is hardly a barber chair footrest in the country now that hasn't had a woman's foot on it.

OVERLAND LEAP IS SENSATION OF FAIR PROGRAM

Newman L. Payne, of the Lub-Tex Motor Company is declared by many local people to be one of the most valuable aids to the officials of the South Plains Fair Association in making for better and more thrilling attractions at the fair this year by having brought Brownie Davidson here for the regular showing of Overland sturdibility and performance each afternoon at the grandstand.

Mr. Payne, cooperating with the Overland exhibitors each of the three afternoons of the fair and everything is set for this feature of the big fair program to be carried out each day.

Yesterday afternoon thousands witnessed Davidson's dare-devil performance in the sturdily Overland Four, which was a stock car selected from among those on the floor at the Lub-Tex Motor Company building.

Strong wooden inclines were placed on the ground 20 feet apart and pieces of steel were fastened at the bottom of the approach to make it easy and to put a little spring into the send-off. Twenty feet away a similar wooden incline was placed for the far to land on at the angle it would describe after its hurdle through the air.

The new stock car was not run fast and had only barely gotten out of second gear when it hit the incline with a slam, shot through the air and out over the second wooden incline 20 feet away. The driver had put a little too much power into the jump and he overjumped his landing place about six inches or a foot

STATE SAVES MILLION BY BOOK TRANSFER TO COUNTIES

AUSTIN, Oct. 4—A saving of about $1,000,000 has been effected in transferring surplus school textbooks from one school district to another, according to S. M. N. Marrs, Superintendent of Public Instruction. This policy of taking the books from the district which has more than it needs and sending them to the districts that are deficient will be continued, especially in view of the fact that Gov. Neff has not yet appointed the new textbook commission, Mr. Marrs said.

There is a possibility that the Governor might let appointment of this body go over to the new administration. The present textbook contracts expire Sept. 1, 1925. Before that time $2,000,000 worth of new books must be bought. If the commission should not get to work before the opening of school in September, Mr. Marrs said the plan of transferring surplus stocks would meet the emergency and save large sums.

WISEST CUSTOMERS BUY THE NICKEL SMOKES

AUSTIN, Oct. 4—A man isn't to be judged by the price of cigars he smokes in the justices of the supreme court of Texas, may be cited as a "case in point." Members of the high judiciary buy the nickel brands according to one of Austin's oldest retail cigar dealers, a druggist who has been here almost as long as the town.

"The judges and most of the higher state officials buy the five-cent brands," he said. "The higher priced cigars in my case are always bought by the man of small means. I've noticed."

This druggist knows personally most of his cigar-purchasing customers. He smokes a five-cent brand himself and declares, after having smoked them all that the judges live up to their reputations for wisdom even in selecting smokes.

"My wealthiest customers smoke five-cent brands—men who could afford to smoke 25-cent cigars just as well," he said.

"It is the laboring man as a rule or the college youth or the young married man who buys the higher priced cigar. No laboring man I know ever buys a five-cent cigar. As a rule, this class smokes a 10-cent or two-four-a-quarter brand."

The young married man generally smokes a 10-cent cigar, much as the laborer. The college student however, must have the best. The boy here with plenty of his father's money to spend can't see anything cheaper than a 15 or 25-cent cigar.

Another classification made by this observing cigar dealer places his customers into groups according to the strength of the cigar smoked.

Judges, state officials and wealthy men, he says, smoke very mild cigars as a rule. Laboring men smoke brands of medium strength. Very few real strong cigars are being sold today, according to the druggist. Taste, in this respect, is changing, he declares. Formerly the retired colonial, judge or ex-governor always called for a strong, black brand

MAN PAYS FOR CALF HE STOLE 50 YEARS AGO

MARLIN, Texas, Oct. 4—Another case of "conscience money" being returned to the rightful owner has just come to light in Marlin. A half century or so ago, a man living on one of the broad Texas prairies appropriated to his own use a calf which belonged to his neighbor. After a lapse of fifty years, a letter comes from the conscience-stricken man to a son of the owner of the calf, accompanied by a check for double the value of the calf and begging forgiveness for the deed. The man who received the check and letter is a well-known Marlin resident, while the sender is a resident of a nearby county. Omitting names, withheld at the request of the beneficiary of the restitution, the letter reads:

"Back in 1873 or '74, I lived on the place near your father's home. While living there I took from the open range, as was often done in those days, a cow which was owned by your father, as my family was in need of milk. When the calf was about 6 months old a mad dog bit the cow, causing her death. I did not mark and brand the calf for your father as I should have done, but appropriated it to my own use. I am now striving with all my might and God's help to be a real Christian, and to be sure that my repentance is according to the Bible. I

WANT TO PAY FOR THAT CALF AND GET MY LIFE UPON THE SQUARE IN MY YARD

Today few smoke cigars of this kind. The stronger cigars have passed gradually with the passing of the "Old South" of slavery days, in the belief of this cigar dealer. The milder smoke is merely another phase of modernity, and much better on the system, in his opinion, than the "black stogie" so common among Southern aristocracy of a generation back.

Three More Herds of Cattle Condemned

STEP IS TAKEN AS PRECAUTION OFFICIALS SAY

NO NEW OUTBREAKS OF PLAGUE DISCOVERED BUT BAN TIGHTENS

By United Press. HOUSTON, Oct. 4.—Several thousand head of cattle, which have been grazing on the 6,500-acre ranch on which the hoof and mouth disease was discovered, probably will be slaughtered, it was indicated late today.

There have been no new outbreaks of the epidemic, federal authorities stated, but the cattle will be condemned and killed in an effort to plug any channels through which the disease might spread, it was said.

With the epidemic scarcely a week old, and with nearly 2,000 cattle already slaughtered, and about 1,000 more head of cattle, 1,000 head were condemned to day. They are the property of E. D. Singletary, John Milby, and O. H. Lamb, ranchmen of near Houston.

The heads condemned today are scheduled to be shot either Saturday or Monday. Fear that the 40 head of cattle known to have been missing from the herd of Perry M. Fadden and already condemned and killed, have infected thousands of other cattle, is given as the basis for the wholesale slaughter of animals among which no new outbreak has occurred.

That the strayed cattle have grazed over hundreds of acres of open range and among dozens of other herds is admitted by officials in charge.

According to reports reaching here tonight, 10,000 head of cattle are being driven to the northwest and Colorado, and are being held at the stock yards in San Angelo. The declaration of an embargo by Colorado authorities against all livestock from Texas, except from the northern sections of the state, is given as the reason.

Through the quarantine restrictions of Colorado and other bordering states, shipment of west Texas cattle today facing a serious situation, it is reported, is being run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars are inevitable to those engaged in the sheep raising industry unless quarantine restrictions are modified immediately, it is said. Fort Worth is practically the only market now open for Texas livestock.

BROWN IS ACQUITTED OF ARSON CHARGE IN FLOYD CO.

LOCKNEY, Oct. 4.—The jury in the case of the State of Texas vs. W. S. Brown, charged with arson, returned a verdict of not guilty in the district court at Floyd county Tuesday afternoon.

The case of the State of Texas vs. E. M. Broyles was called for trial Wednesday morning. As we go to press a day early on account of the Lockney Trade Exposition, we will not be able to give the result in this case until our next issue.—Lockney Beacon.

WINNERS OF AYALANCHE ATTENDANCE GUESTS BE ANNOUNCED TUESDAY

Owing to the fact that the totals for the four days of the fair could not be determined by the officers of the fair in time to announce it today, we will be compelled to make the announcement Tuesday morning. The interest in the guessing was indeed good, and many hundreds guessed as they registered at the booth during the four days of the fair.

HUGHES SCORES ATTACK ON GOP SAYS WILL PROVE AS VAIN AS THOSE ON GARFIELD AND ROOSEVELT

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 4.—The present attack upon one republican party "will prove as vain as those vented upon the administration of Garfield, McKinley, and Roosevelt," Charles F. Hughes, secretary of the state, declared in an address here tonight, opening the republican presidential campaign in Ohio.

Hughes paid an eloquent tribute to the late President Harding and said the republican party was fortunate in having so wise a leader as Mr. Coolidge to take his place in the white house.

"As time goes on and the responsibilities of office are met, the general confidence and satisfaction with President Coolidge increases," Hughes said. "We must first political corruption, and demand the punishment of the corrupt politician who sells his hands in corrupt dealings, is as treacherous to his party as to his country."

"But after inveighing against those who have already been indicted and are about to be tried, our opponents, as they shift to general denunciation, managing the guilty and the innocent in distribution, which are the first and last resort of desperate partisanship."

"It is idle to bewail an honored and trusted political party, comprising many millions of our people, which credits all such as a single has been a great constructive force in our national life, securing the needed basis for protective activities and higher standards of living, conserving the interests of agriculture, protecting labor, maintaining sound money—the party that has the effective instrument in resisting again and again the period of economic fallacies and programs of folly which would have involved us in disaster."

WHEELER TO ANSWER ALL CHARGES OF MISCONDUCT

GREAT FALLS, Oct. 4.—That Senator Burton K. Wheeler will answer before election the charges of misconduct brought against him, was removed as a possibility Friday when Judge Bourquin discharged the petit jury which has been in session since Sept. 1st. Bankruptcy matters will hold court open here not later than October 10th.

FIRE DESTROYS GINS AT MONROE AND SLATON SAT

BOTH HAD BEEN ERRECTED AND IN OPERATION ONLY SHORT TIME

Special to the Avalanche. SLATON, Oct. 4.—The New Gin which was completed here last month and which started operating at the opening of the cotton season burned here this morning at four o'clock.

The fire originated, it was reported here, on Friday but it was thought that the flames had been extinguished and at four o'clock this morning, such a roadway had been made by the flames before they were discovered, that the firemen were unable to overcome them and concentrated their efforts on confining the flames to the one building.

Several hales of cotton about the platform were destroyed.

MONROE, Lubbock County, Oct. 4.—One of the two gins of the place burned to the ground this morning, before efforts of the volunteer firemen could make any headway in overcoming them.

There were only two gins here, the second of them having been destroyed in today's fire.

G. O. P. LINKED WITH KLAN IS CHARGE DEM. CHAIRMAN

By United Press. DENVER, Colo., Oct. 4.—A definite link between the republican national committee and the Ku Klux Klan was charged in a statement issued today by Thomas Annett, state democratic chairman of Colorado.

"No reputation of the Ku Klux Klan has ever come from the head of the republican party. On the other hand, events in Colorado have definitely linked that organization with the republican national committee Annett's statement read.

"That committee recently invited the grand dragon of this state to designate a Klan speaker who should hold himself under orders from headquarters. The grand dragon appointed the Rev. William Oschberger, exalted cyclops of Denver Klan No. 1, and his engagement with the committee will begin next Monday."

"On his admission the cyclops has been engaged to work on the platform in the middle west in behalf of Calvin Coolidge and the rest of the republican ticket."

SLANDER SUIT FILED BY PREACHER ON JACK WALTON

By United Press. OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 4.—Former Governor Jack Walton, democratic candidate for the United States senate, was sued for $50,000 late today by Rev. E. D. Gregory, Baptist preacher, at Sulphur, Oklahoma.

The impeached governor was charged with slander. The suit was the outgrowth of an attack by Walton on Gregory in a speech at Sulphur recently in which Walton is alleged to have said Gregory "would steal nickels off St. Peter's eyes and vanish the Holy Virgin Mary."

Walton was expected to be served with a summons tonight on his return from a speaking tour thru the state.

The former governor has consistently denounced ministers in his campaign speeches. His alleged denunciation of Gregory aroused the ire of Sulphur citizens and more than 100 affidavits, that Walton slandered Gregory have been signed to date.

Technical points of law do not appeal much to the average person as reasons for letting a gunman get away with it.

55 INDICTED IN OKLAHOMA FOR CONSPIRACY

By United Press. OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 4.—A federal grand jury here late today indicted 55 prominent members of the Oklahoma City Livestock Exchange on charges of forming a buying and selling conspiracy in violation of the packers and stockers act, enacted by congress in 1921.

The men are charged with causing a boycott by refusing to buy and sell cattle, hogs and sheep from and to certain commission houses. Indictment of the livestock-dealers resulted from several weeks investigation by federal agents. Those who presented the government evidence to the grand jury were Judges B. J. Tanner, solicitor for the department of agriculture, W. G. Campbell, chief director of the enforcement of laws, department of agriculture, Dr. F. W. Miller, Kansas City, divisional director, and V. E. Foster, Fort Worth, Texas, regional director.

Similar tactics by livestock men have been in use in Chicago, Kansas City, and St. Louis, it was alleged.

YEATS' DIVORCE RULED ILLEGAL

FRAUD PERPETRATED IN CASE, JUDGE SETS OUT IN DECISION

By United Press. NOWATO, Okla., Oct. 4.—The divorce decree granted Rev. Jos. E. Yeats, Alluvium Methodist pastor, from his wife, Mrs. Yeats, by the coroner's jury at Nowato, Okla., was set aside, this afternoon by Judge C. H. Baskin, of the District Court.

Fraud was perpetrated by Yeats in obtaining his divorce, was the opinion of Judge Baskin. The pastor charged his wife with improper conduct.

The court's move today shows further trouble on the pastor's part. He is now in jail in default of $3,000 bond on a charge of abduction resulting from his elopement with Georgia Fields, was set aside, this afternoon by Judge C. H. Baskin, of the District Court.

According to the girl Yeats performed the wedding ceremony, telling her the church gave him authority to perform his own marriage ceremony.

In this case, charges of assault will be filed against him. A. T. Angelin, county attorney, said tonight.

Denies Girl's Statement.—Vigorously protesting his innocence and calling upon the deity to bear him out, Rev. Joseph E. Yeats, Alluvium Methodist minister, without a severe grilling by county attorney A. T. Angelin late today.

Yeats' denial was made to the county attorney Friday afternoon by 14 year old Georgia Fields, who the pastor claims is his wife. The girl stated that Yeats performed their own marriage ceremony.

Yeats' denial was made in default of $3,000 bond on a charge of abducting his girl bride, refused to discuss the details of the marriage. He maintained an air of indifference and argued with his questioning as to the latter's right to question him.

Yeats lost his composure when asked point blank by the county attorney the question:

"Did you ever stop to think that the blood of Rev. J. G. Miller, an aged Durant minister, who committed suicide, may be on your hands?"

The pastor moved nervously and his face blanched at mention of Miller's name.

In his suit for divorce, Yeats charged that his wife had been intimate with Miller. Miller committed suicide to prevent divorce to his church.

A statement presented at the divorce hearing by Yeats and purported to have been signed by his former wife in which she admitted relations with Miller is a forgery, in the opinion of Angelin.

WILLIAMSON CO. JURY RETURNS 15 INDICTMENTS

3 LEADERS ANTI-KLAN ARE BILLED FOR FIRST DEGREE MURDER

MARION, Ill., Oct. 4.—Ku Klux Klan forces in "Bloody Williamson county" today won a victory as an aftermath of the street battle in Herrin August 30, in which seven men were slain and tonight, trouble with the officers. After a two weeks investigation, the county grand jury this afternoon returned three indictments charging first degree murder, naming the three leaders of the anti-Klan faction, Sheriff George Galligan, state attorney Desha Duty and City Judge E. N. Bowen of Herrin.

Twelve other anti-klanmen were indicted for murder in connection with the Herrin affray. Bowen and Duty, both of whom have taken leading parts in investigating previous riots, were charged together with Dr. A. R. Black, of Herrin, with firing from an automobile and slaying klanmen Newbold and Willard.

When the indictments were formally reported to Circuit Judge D. T. Hartwell, he refused to fix bail for Duty or Bowen, stating he was disqualified as he was positive neither was in Herrin on that day and that he would testify in their defense. Hartwell also refused to issue a warrant for their arrest.

There was no outbreak as the indictments were reported but the frequent recurrence of violence in the last three years caused leaders of both factions to prepare for possible trouble.

A total of eighty indictments were returned by the grand jury. John Smith, at whose garage the latest Herrin riot, was staged and who was held by the coroner's jury afterward on a charge of murder, was not mentioned, except by a recommendation that he be called as a witness and hence is freed.

Sheriff Galligan and the 12 anti-klanmen were ordered arrested but the writs may not be served until after the week end. Galligan is charged with the murders of two of his deputies Roland and Reed and with malfeasance, in office.

Ora Thomas, another of Galligan's deputies, was indicted for the murder of Green Dawning, a klanman. Deputy Bud Allison and Herman Permerster, reputed klanmen, both of whom were slain, were not mentioned in the indictment.

States Attorney Duty drew up the indictment against himself at the request of the grand jury.

Jury Indicts Own Member. MARION, Ill., Oct. 4.—The Williamson county grand jury, which today indicted 15 anti-klanmen, also indicted a member of itself, Ike Tolyer, a constable of Creel Springs near here, for murder.

Tolyer shot to death a boy he was trying to arrest, supposedly in connection with the Klan troubles.

The indictment was made by a standing vote.

STRIKERS DOUBLE LIVING COSTS IS ASSERTION

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 4.—"Strikers have doubled the cost of living," the American Economic Institute said today in a statement issued through the Employers' association of Kansas City, warning that "the greatest danger in America today is the threat of radical labor leaders who are sponsoring the presidential candidacy of Senator Robert M. LaFollette."

"These labor leaders," the statement continues, "would upset the present railway system and return to the chaos of 20 years ago merely to abolish the United States railroad labor board, which, in turn, would be followed by enactment of the Howell-Parkley bill."

"This is a measure written by the railroad labor unions and which has been described by representative Tinker, of Kansas, as 'return of the strike measure.'"

Alleged Rum Runner Faces Death for Piracy

Max Jerome Platt, a German-American alleged bootlegger, is under arrest at Havre, France, on a charge of piracy, the penalty for which is death. The French declare he is the "master mind" in the gang of pirates who boarded the French steamer Mukobee off the coast of Long Island and shot and killed 120,000 worth of liquor. Platt asserts he was in 1923 on the Blue and Black avenger of the pirates.

GIANT LIQUOR HAUL IS MADE

OFFICIALS SAY UNCOVERED BIGGEST PLOT SINCE "DRY" DAYS CAME

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—A battered steam trawler of 195 tons, the Frederick B. lay at anchor tonight while the office of the United States district attorney investigated what prohibition agents said was the biggest rum plot uncovered since prohibition made rum running one of the major industries of two-run millionaires.

The Frederick B. was seized by the coast cutter Manhattan, off the coast of New York, today with 14,000 cases of liquor valued at upwards of a half a million dollars in her hold.

Her crew of 20 including two women cooks, were held on the ship while the super cargoes, Harry Klein, Earl Fletcher, of Newark, were brought ashore and arraigned before a United States commissioner.

The Frederick B., according to prohibition agents is one of a fleet of five steamships operated by an Anglo-Canadian-American rum ring which linked with one of the biggest gangs in Canada.

An official of this bank, who has a branch office in New York probably will be indicted as a result of the seizure, the agents said.

Montreal, according to agents was the Canadian headquarters of the ring, which also had an extensive organization in London and New York.

Agents posing as rum buyers negotiated with representatives of the syndicate in New York several months and finally paid $10,000 for 2,000 cases of liquor, which was to be delivered by the Frederick B. The delivery was made as promised and seizure of the rum ship followed.

STARTS LOOTING 48 HOURS AFTER HIS RELEASE

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 4.—Forty-eight hours after his release from the state penitentiary after serving four years for robbery, John Adams, ex-city detective of Des Moines, Ia., started pilfering again. He was arrested here today and confessed to robbing ten houses during the 48 hours. All of the loot was recovered with the exception of a few pieces of jewelry.

IS PRONOUNCED SUCCESS FROM EVERY ANGLE

ATTENDANCE ON LAST DAY WAS ESTIMATED AT NEAR 15,000 MARK

At midnight last night the curtain was drawn upon the closing episode in one of the most spectacular four day's expositions ever staged in Lubbock, when the South Plains Fair, which had been attended by more than fifteen thousand people during the day, was brought to a close.

The Fair opened Wednesday morning with a record first-day attendance when nearly ten thousand people attended, and for each of the four days their interest in their Fair was unabated despite the dust storm that threatened to cut the attendance materially, but which, records of the gate keepers show, must have had little or no effect upon the crowds.

The South Plains Fair engaged the energies and entire attention of several hundred prominent local people, as well as exhibitors who were here with livestock, poultry field crops and in fact products of every industry of this great section, eagerly doing their bit toward lending prestige and bigness to the well established and growing institution.

Exhibitors Are Faithful. The exhibitors remained faithful through the last, many of them having remained on the grounds until the last of the long list of spectators filed through the various exhibit halls late last night.

Now the people of Lubbock and of the South Plains have finished their work with the fair, and while it is another year before they will be compelled to give their entire attention to this institution, they now have their hearts and minds centered upon a not less important work of arranging an equally big program, that of fittingly celebrating the laying of the cornerstone at the Texas Technological College, construction on which is now under way here. This celebration will be held on Nov. 11th in connection with the American Legion's annual celebration of the signing of the Armistice that brought an abrupt end to hostilities in the World War.

Pageant Postponed. Saturday's program was carried out as advertised, excepting the Pageant of the Magic Fleece was not given at four o'clock in the afternoon. It was called off because of the high winds which would have made it impossible for the pageant to have been conducted in a manner fitting such an elaborate program.

AL. SMITH OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN WITH G.O.P. ATTACK

BY PERCY B. SCOTT
SCHEENSTADY, N. Y., Oct. 4.

In a fighting speech here tonight Gov. Alfred E. Smith accepted his fourth nomination for the governorship of the Empire State by the Democratic party.

The governor aside from one or two paragraphs of appreciation of the honor and explaining his attitude toward the position, devoted his entire talk to a denunciation of the republican-controlled assembly and setting forth the record of accomplishments of his present administration. Launching into his attack on the republicans, the governor said:

"Strange it may seem, political considerations seem to enter into the determination of a great part of the state's business that should be entirely divorced from politics."

And then a moment later he added:

"Despite the public statements made that the assembly majority would not stand in the way of constructive proposals, the final record beyond the power of anyone to dispute, indicates that in matters that should be of no political concern whatever, that opposition made itself felt for whatever political benefit by republican friends, though they could get from it. Personally I am unable to see it in that light and believe that by his time the men selected by the republican party to set up the opposition must agree with me."

Smith accused the G. O. P. of refusing to abolish some of the offices in the state government purely for the purpose of patronage.

PLANE EXPLODES IN MID-AIR, KILLING ARMY PILOT

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 4.—One of the most dramatic airplane tragedies since the world was marred by the closing of the international air races here late today. Captain Bert S. Skeel, army sergeant pilot, Selbridge field, Michigan, was killed in mid air when his plane collapsed and exploded as he neared the ceiling of his course in the Pulitzer trophy race. Sixty thousand spectators, including the pilot's wife, saw the fuselage of the Curtiss racer come hurtling down out of the sky in a shower of wreckage. A cry went from the stands as the crowd realized what had happened. No trace of the plane or of Captain Skeel's body could be found. A large hole in the boggy tract of land which persons familiar with this section is a bottomless pit was all that could be seen. The hole, which rapidly closed in over the ill-fated racer and his ship was surrounded by bits of wings, and scraps of wrecked fuselage. Geysers of mud shot skyward as the body of the plane, weighted by its 420 horse power motor buried itself in the bog. Lt. H. H. Mills, flying a Sperry racer won the Pulitzer trophy with a speed of 216.5 miles an hour, almost 30 miles an hour slower than last year's winner at St. Louis.

Body Recovered. DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 4.—The body of Captain Bert S. Skeel, killed when his airplane exploded while competing for the Pulitzer trophy today recovered from the bog into which he sank when the wrecked plane crashed to earth. Reports from Wright field said the body was badly mutilated. It was found eight feet below the surface of the bog.

EDUCATIONAL NEEDS IN TEXAS SUBJECT TEACHERS' MEET

FORT WORTH, Oct. 4.—"Educational Conditions and Needs of Texas" has been announced as the theme for the Texas State Teachers' Association convention, which will be held in San Antonio Nov. 27, 28 and 29. The session will open Thanksgiving Day morning with a patriotic program in the new Scottish Rite Cathedral. All preliminary plans have been announced by President C. O. Clough of the association. Outstanding educators of America have been engaged to make the principal addresses before the convention, which will be the largest in the history of the association. Dr. George A. Works of Cornell University, who has just completed the Texas School Survey, will appear on the program several times. Dr. Edwin R. A. Seligson of Columbia University, and said to be America's foremost financial writer, will discuss the financial problems of Texas schools. President Charles McKenney of the Michigan State Teachers' College will speak on the relation of education to human progress. Dr. James Hovic of New York will outline plans for the strengthening of the elementary schools of Texas. Dr. F. J. Kelly of the University of Minnesota will outline plans for the development of the higher education program in this state. Miss Frances E. Sabin of New York will make an address. Most of these have visited Texas during the making of the Texas School Survey, and all have carefully studied the state's problems. State Superintendent of Schools, S. M. N. Marra, and Dr. J. L. Henderson of the University of Texas will make addresses on special phases of the school needs, while Hon. T. N. Jones of Tyler will make an address on the rural education conditions in Texas.

COMMUNITY BOOTHS AT FAIR VERY ATTRACTIVE

The people of Lubbock county have proven themselves splendidly loyal to the South Plains Fair and much favorable comment was made on the beautifully arranged community booths in the industrial building, which but for the fact that they occupied smaller booths than the county exhibits, would have been equal to the best of them. The painstaking in arranging these booths reflected in their neat appearance was a praiseworthy feature while the large number of exhibits gathered from the fields and gardens and exhibited there proved the interest of the people of the communities exhibiting have in the big fair. Slaton, Idalou, Hardy, Slide, New Hope, Snallowater, Acuff and Canyon were represented with booths in this department, and the people of those communities deserve much credit for the agricultural building being the big attraction it was, and they will be depended upon in the future to add still greater attractions to the South Plains Fair.

CATTLE EMBARGO TO BLAST HOPES FOR A. & M. STOCK

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 4.—With an exceptionally promising herd of steers and horses already fitted for showing at the Dallas Fair, Waco Cotton Palace, American Royal at Kansas City and International Exposition at Chicago, the restrictions on interstate and intrastate shipments of livestock has come as a very detrimental blow to the hopes of the officials of the Animal Husbandry department of the A. & M. College of Texas. Before the animals were taken off their special fitting rations this week the officials held a local showing which was attended by College and Bryan people. The necessity of the strict regulations on shipments is recognized, however, and there is no complaint in commenting on the situation in the Southern Texas infest zone yesterday. Dr. Mark Francis, dean of Veterinary Medicine at the College, said that it was a difficult task to handle, commanding the full cooperation of everyone.

DALLAS COPPER DAZED BY ACTS 'MEDICINE' MAN

DALLAS, Oct. 3.—One Dallas copper is still baffled by what he saw a few days ago and dizzy from trying to decide what he ought to have done. A man, apparently well-fed, halted on a street corner of his beat, took a bottle from his hip-pocket, a spoon from his vest, poured out a "dose" and swallowed pleasantly. "Hey!" shouted the cop "what's the idea?" "Just taking my medicine, officer," the "patient" replied calmly. The "prescription" on the bottle read: "One tablespoon full every four hours." "Look my first at 6 a. m. at home and in time for another," the man said. "Too much for me," the policeman, still dizzy, said as he walked away.

SEES SAD FATE FOR THE GIRL WITH BOBBED HAIR

CHICAGO (United Press) Bobbed hair in time, is going to have a serious effect in cutting down the number of marriages, according to Charles Nestle, beauty specialist of New York, in an address here. "That bobbed hair eventually will result in boards for women, is a prediction," said Nestle. "That it will rob women, in appearance at least of womanly charms is a fact and there is no doubt that this fact will reduce the marriage rate and may in time lead to a falling off of the world's population." "Since the beginning of time, the glory of women has been her hair. Shorn of her long tresses she is shorn of much of her physical allurements. She appears mannish. Men do not care for mannish-looking women and will not marry them." "Long hair enables a woman, by changing her coiffure, to add the charm of variety to her beauty. Bobbed hair deprives her of this varied attractiveness. She appears always the same. She attracts no more admiration than she might expect if she appeared every day in the same gown." "As she grows mannish in appearance, she will grow mannish in nature. This will be an inevitable psychological consequence. Thus bobbed hair, with its tendency to subvert the womanliness of women,

INTERESTING YOUNG PEOPLE IN THE WORK OF THE CHURCH

This is an age that is claiming the attention of the young people in so many different ways, that it is exceedingly hard for the churches of the city or the rural communities to get their attention as they should, and there has been no solution offered for this condition by ministers or laymen. Ministers have studied the situation and the only solution that they offer is in the home life, and in the control of the young people by the parents. While far from solution of the question, we suggest that there is possibly not anything that causes the young people of the country today to stand aloof from the church as does the apparent hypocrisy of the membership of the church. No man's life is a hidden something from the boys and girls of the community. It comes near being an open book than anything else, and the youngsters peruse the pages with considerable interest, and with closer interest than many of us believe and for that reason they watch the movements of the older heads of the town, and note the sidesteps that many are making from the real and true christian life. Young people do not have any patience or use for sermons, and so it behooves the church people to put forth their best and genuine articles if they will interest the youngsters of this community. There seems to be the amorous idea in the minds of some self-appointed leaders of youth today that, if you would draw and hold the young people to the church and the work of the kingdom of God, you must give them entertainment bordering on the frivolous; that you must make your services "snappy" and comical. Now, frankly, this is considered a gross misconception, if not an insult, to the noble, heroic, stalwart youth of our times. They soon discover that it is all a feigning and come to despise it.

In the second place young people should always be given something to do for they are by nature restless, and if their time is not occupied there is no chance in the world to hold them. The life is one that longs for challenging tasks, and they become more and more interested when there is a bit of excitement and the heroic thing presented to them. The love to test their strength, and pit themselves against a task that is to a certain extent difficult, yet not so hard as to discourage them by failure to perform it with an ordinary amount of work, yet the work should be brought to them as one of difficulty and demands their courage and perseverance, and some sacrifice, but encourage them in their efforts, and assure them that they can do what they have started out to do. If you show that you have confidence in their ability and willingness, they will readily respond to your appeal. It is just what they like and want. It is the way of the world which explains the success of the world in attracting the young people. Let not the children of the world be wiser than the children of light! All branches of Christian Church have their young peoples' societies. These societies are designed to train the young life of the church for efficient service in the kingdom of Christ. They are well organized. They have their various departmental activities. If the organization is made to function in all its departments, a very large number of young people can be kept busy. This is exceedingly important with young people. There has been complaint to come from some quarters that the Church is overburdened with organization, but this is not found so. Finally the young people, just like other people, like to be appreciated and to know that their pastor considers their efforts worth while. It is a duty as well as a privilege to speak complimentary and approvingly of a good piece of work or effort upon it. If you like what they do, say so. It will greatly encourage to further effort. The people of Lubbock must begin to get hold of the young people of the community, for there is much work to be done among them, and with them. The coming year will add many responsibilities on the people of this city, as the great throng of young people begin to pour into our city to attend the new college that will be opened in due time, for the work next fall.

Lubbock is to be the center of activities for the young people of this section of the country, and we should be prepared to meet every emergency.

THE CONSTITUTION AND ITS SUPPORT

By those who have studied the forms of government under which nations have lived throughout the centuries the American constitution has been declared to stand superior. Mr. Gladstone designated it the "most remarkable document ever struck forth at a given time by the brain and purpose of man." For one hundred and thirty-seven years this Constitution has been in effect. It was on September 17, 1787, that the convention which framed it adjourned.

The amendments which have been made to our Constitution are in extension, not in violation, of the great principles set forth in the original document.

ment. To the aims of the Constitution as originally adopted this nation keeps true. There has been no revolution in our land, only progress, and other nations have immensely profited by our doctrines and example.

Our Constitution makes every citizen a sovereign, and this fact renders it important that the Constitution be known and understood by every voter. To the end of extending among American youth a knowledge of it there were contests arranged in the high schools a few months ago in which boys and girls delivered orations upon the subject. That was a commendable and important movement. The growing generation of children, educated concerning that document, which has given their fathers and will give them their liberties, will too well understand the meaning of the Constitution and the benefits of its provisions to permit radical changes in it. They are being taught that the Constitution has not outlived its usefulness but, on the other hand, that its ideals are necessary to our welfare and offer a way by which the other nations of the earth might attain to similar happiness.

Comparing our government with other governments, we are led to think of a remark by Washington: "The aggregate happiness of society, which is best promoted by a virtuous policy, is or ought to be the end of all governments." The one aim of our Constitution is "the aggregate happiness of society," and how well this object has been attained is written in the story of our past and present. Under our Constitution we as a free people have made such advancements as can be found nowhere else in the accounts of mankind. To be sure, our natural resources have supplied the rich basis of our wealth, but no amount of raw material is wealth until it has been converted to the uses of an appreciative people. Nor do material riches make a people great. In those spiritual interpretations of life which give high place to honor, justice, and brotherhood does a nation come to its glory. To these very essentials are our people dedicated. For the following of them was the Constitution written. The men who gathered around the table in that momentous hour of the signing of the Constitution were actuated by a regard for our God, who calls upon all men to love mercy and do justice. The fear of the Lord underlay those articles, and that fact gave assurance of their fitness and permanence. So long as our nation keeps the God of nations in its thinking we may confidently hope for a stable and happy government. Only by departing from the paths of our Christian fathers, who ever kept the Lord before their eyes, shall we endanger our peace and safety. Our very patriotism urges us to keep the mind of the nation under the light of the Most High. Planted upon the teachings of the Scripture, born a Christian nation, our government could not survive a revolt against the religion of Jesus Christ. Monarchies and empires using great weapons of warfare may hold their uncertain courses for a time through the storms, but a democracy must have righteousness in all its supports and must turn its understanding to Him who is the source of truth. Given over to atheism or materialism, our national fabric would collapse. The letter of our constitution left to stand without the life of the spirit in it would bring us confusion and decay.

The Churches have always been the right arm or rather the breathing soul, of our government and now when the land is filled with cries of discontent they should do their utmost to settle confidence in our national institutions and to engineer a deeply patriotic admiration for our laws. They need to give sympathetic interpretations of the decisions of our courts, to turn the people from speaking evil of magistrates, and to insist that due process of law be followed in all cases that arise for adjustment. By upholding and extending the principles of the Constitution, by teaching all people to revere the law, and by striving to bring the country into the worship of God the Churches can continue to be as they have always been, the strength of our nation.—Christian Advocate.

THE FAIR

Lubbock continues to put one great event after another behind her, and we have just completed one of the most brilliant successes of the history of the fair, as the last day of the South Plains Eleventh Exposition closed at midnight last night. The people of Lubbock cannot but marvel at the rapid growth of the fair. It seems but a very short time back when the idea of a general fair was first presented to the minds of the people of this country. Still the event just brought to a close proves conclusively that there is no mistaking the claims that this fair has to the name of regional events, because of the interests that is shown in it each year, and with the increasing interest with every subsequent showing.

With the fair completed, and a great success, now comes on the celebration of the cornerstone of the Texas Technological College. This event is scheduled for the eleventh of November and will in all probability be equal in magnitude to the celebration when the Tech was located here. At any rate great preparation will be under way in a very short time now. Just as soon as the smoke clears away from the big fair we will enter into the preparation of the arrangements for this big celebration which will mean so much for the entire South Plains.

Does advertising pay? In 1875 Thomas Cusack began painting signs in colors. Last week he sold his billboard and outside advertising business to a syndicate of New York bankers. The annual revenue last year was $22,000,000. The advertisers who use his firm publicity are not throwing their money away and they don't use any guesswork.

Business is service. If a concern does not fill a place in the economic chain of service it is not really in business and it will not long survive. To serve best, business must serve more than its customers; it must serve those from whom it buys, it must serve its employees, it must serve its stockholders, and it must serve the general public.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs which manages business matters for Indians under government guardianship, has collected nearly $33,000,000 during the past year, principally from bonuses and royalties on oil leases. The Osages of Oklahoma will receive the largest sum.

Take Agriculture Out of Politics

There can be no doubt that justice has been done throughout the entire country by the election of a President who has placed the basic industry of the Nation and must be placed on a profitable business if they themselves are to prosper. They have discovered the cause of depressed business conditions, but are disagreed as to the remedy to be applied in effecting a cure.

Political leaders, however, pretend, at least, to be in possession of the prescription, which when filled in their own legislative drug store will put pep in the industry which feeds and clothes the Nation. The moderate prescriber a large-sized dose of legislation similar to the McNary-Haugen bill, which was rejected by the last Congress. General Dawes, vice presidential nominee on the Republican ticket, is afraid of any suggested remedy and wants another diagnosis. He wants another prescription, a large-sized dose of legislation similar to the McNary-Haugen bill, which was rejected by the last Congress. General Dawes, vice presidential nominee on the Republican ticket, is afraid of any suggested remedy and wants another diagnosis. He wants another prescription, a large-sized dose of legislation similar to the McNary-Haugen bill, which was rejected by the last Congress.

The agricultural industry is in politics. It has been put there by politicians who want the farmer vote. They may be sincere, some of them, in their desire to do something for the industry, but whatever they do must lead prestige to themselves and to their party. Just so long as the politicians think of themselves first, their party second, and the agricultural industry third, farmers will have to work out their own program without outside aid. The only way to put the industry on an even footing with other industries of the country is to take it out of politics. Let Congress assemble and consider the problem of agriculture from a practical and not from a partisan standpoint. Let them forget that farmers have votes and consider only the welfare of the industry and its relation to the prosperity of the country. As R. F. Yeakum puts it, "Provide the machinery for farmers to control their own business, start it going, and leave it in the hands of those who are most interested in its success."

The Carter-Kelly bill, which received a favorable report in the Senate, comes nearer to providing a practical solution of present-day agricultural problems than any other that has been offered. It is strictly a nonpartisan measure.

Scissored Editorial

AUTOMOBILE DRIVERS SHOULD BE LICENSED.

The Texas Tax Journal, in its last issue, declares for stricter regulation of automobile traffic in Texas and for the licensing of drivers. It goes a step farther and suggests that automobile passenger lines be placed under the control of the Railroad Commission.

Farm and Ranch has frequently referred to the growing necessity of strict regulation of automobile traffic, and has more than once called attention to the fact that there are no restrictions on motor drivers. A nominal license fee for drivers and a stiff penalty for driving without a license would decrease accidents by half, provided the license was taken away for a short period from those guilty of careless and reckless driving or for breaking the laws regulating the driving of motor cars on public highways.

In cities by far the greatest number of accidents are due to fast and reckless driving of boys and men operating small cars in the delivery of goods or in other lines of business. Drivers of these cars become over confident of their ability to maneuver out of tight places, or brazenly hold in forcing more careful drivers to halt or to move to one side. They dash across intersections at a high rate of speed, mounting upon halting such traffic as may be coming up or down the other street. Only when two such drivers meet and contest the right of way are they stopped in their mad rush. They are not accident registered. If the license to drive a car were taken from drivers of this character and they were jailed for driving without a license, our streets and public highways would be 50 per cent safer than they are now.—Farm and Ranch.

(Big Springs Herald) While cotton is king—it is difficult to interest folks in anything but cotton. Most of us realize, however, that we cannot hope to keep cotton king in West Texas forever.

Unfavorable seasons and insect pests have made the raising of cotton difficult in the long dependable cotton belt, whereas West Texas has been favored with reasonable years and insect pests do not seem to thrive in our country. If this state of affairs was to continue without change it would be foolish for West Texas to overlook the profitable cotton crop. Especially so, since oftentimes one crop will pay the pur-

A LESSON FROM GOLF.

You'd better keep going, my lad; when you're up, take a bit of a warning from me: Don't walk with a swagger or brag of your game when your ball's flying straight from the tee: And don't think the golf match is settled because you have birdied the first hole in three. Keep driving that golf ball as far as you can, keep straight with your irons and true: Don't act like a fellow who's sure he can win. Don't think that a poor shot will do: And don't think the golf match is tucked in your bag, when you've taken the short hole in two.

When I was a youngster and glib with my tongue once I walked with an arrogant air. For I came to the turn in a tournament match and was four up on Sandy McNair. For Sandy was not playing as he could and I'd had good fortune to spare.

The tenth hole I lost, but 'twas little I cared for I'd plenty of margin, though: But Sandy let go on the next with a shot that was straight and true as a die. While I looked to the woods and was out of the hole when I found an unplayable lie.

My lead dwindled fast in the rush that he made; at the fifteenth the match was all square. At the seventeenth he ran down a putt for a four. I was beaten by Sandy McNair. And I'd learned that the lead which you get at the start at the finish may never be there. So don't get proud when you're out in the lead or good fortune is coming your way: Don't swell with conceit at the shots you have made; for there's many a hard shot to play. And in life it's the same, it takes years to succeed, but a man can go wrong in a day.

Judge Alfred J. Talley, of the Court of General Sessions in New York City, while inducing into office a new jurist said, "One of the things that you will come to learn is that you have come on the bench of the greatest criminal court in the world, and the oldest court of any kind in the United States, at a time when this country is suffering under an indictment which proclaims it to be the most lawless on earth. You will find that the United States has pleaded guilty to that indictment. Most of the desperate criminals are mere boys. You will be heartbroken at discovering that the vast majority of defendants are under nineteen or twenty years old. That is going to be your most distressing problem."

Job Printing—That's Our Business!

"We made a mistake in last week's issue," says the editor of a Connecticut paper. "A good subscriber told us about it. The same day there was a letter in our post-office box that didn't belong to us. We called for 98 over the telephone and got 198. We asked for a spoon at No. 56 thread and when we got home we found it was No. 60. The train was reported 20 minutes late. We arrived at the depot 20 minutes after train time and the train was gone. We got our milk bill and there was a mistake of 10c in our favor. We felt sick and the doctor said we were eating too much meat. We hadn't tasted meat for two months. The garage man said the jitney was missing because it needed a new timer. We cleaned a spark plug and it's run ever since. Yes, we made a mistake in last week's issue of the paper."

OUR TRIP INTO NEW MEXICO

Oh, the joy of traveling and camping with a crowd of fun-loving people! No matter how many stories one has read about camping trips, a person can never really realize the pleasure until he has experienced it himself. I am sure that is how each an every one of us feel about it. At least that is true in my case, and I shall attempt to give an account of our trip. One thing I fear, however, and that is that I cannot do the theme justice.
 We were seven in our crowd, all out to see all we could see, and do all we could do, to make the trip worth while. And our two Overlands did their best too. Nothing but a Hudson or an Essex or some such car, left us trailing in the dust, and let us feel like we probably made a number of Ford's feel.
 The casings, to our surprise, covered the entire 141 miles with only three flats, one of which was still in Texas. And that after we had hoped to get out of Texas without puncture.
 If we ever thought that there were not many tourists on the roads we soon thought otherwise. They were coming and going continually. Amongst the tourists could be seen young folks out for an outing; old people making use of an opportunity which they were unable to have in their younger days; newly wed on their honeymoon, and old maid school teachers taking a vacation. These people from different states in the union, (only about fifteen states were not represented) were all out to see new country and get as much enjoyment as possible.
 Our route led us across the line at Farwell-Texico. These cities really appear to be only one, however in reality there are two. A large turning post divides them and each has a post office, one in Texas and the other right across the line in New Mexico. At this place or rather ten miles further at Clovis, we set our watches back an hour. Clovis is one place we have reason to remember, but more about that later.
 From Clovis we went thru Fort Sumner and Santa Rosa to Las Vegas. The road and surrounding country here was very different than any we had seen in Texas. The first part past Santa Rosa some ten miles or so is rather poor and uninhabited. The little scattered settlements made of dirt flat roofs which are half fallen in are scattered all along the side. By far the greatest part deserted the condition of the country being too poor and too dry to support human beings. A large, the steady desert looking scenery a still more deserted appearance God forsaken impression. How many a person hoping for a bright or future had taken up a claim, was forced to abandon it again and turn his back on what had seemed such a golden opportunity.

 The latter part of the road to Las Vegas led thru mountain or at least hilly country. It wound in and around the mountains. Although at places a person could see far in the distance where the clouds hung heavy on the mountain tops, and the lightning seemed to split right into the earth. A fresh rain which we could see, but did not get into, made traveling a little difficult.
 We were rather amused at the city of Las Vegas. This city is in reality two parts. The old Las Vegas, with its real old Spanish houses and costumes made a foreign impression while the new Las Vegas, was very modern with homes and business houses built on American style, and also with street cars. We certainly did not expect to see street cars, but fear they will not continue in use much longer for never did we see more than one passenger at a time. Not one in the crowd will forget Las Vegas, not for its beauty which was apparent enough, but in which Raton went one better; not for its quaintness, although it was picturesque but in which Santa Fe had it beaten; not in its modern appearance, which in spite of street cars, Albuquerque had it surpassed, but for the fun we had there. Toward evening a storm seemed to be coming so we went into camp, a camp near "Meadow City." After supper the men decided to put on extra rigs and go to the city for a spree. No objections in that at all, but we wondered why they never went again. Maybe the joke was on them after all, for it seemed as when they returned they were unable to find their beds very comfortable. However this was not their fault completely. For in arranging the bedding the girls found the stave wood so tempting and handy that they
