Organization Made For Securing Lower Rates On Telephones

N. C. Outlaw, Post attorney, was named permanent chairman and Arthur V. Bullock Ralls Chamber of Commerce secretary, was selected secretary of the "New Deal Telephone Regulatory Association" in a meeting held in Lubbock, Thursday afternoon of last week.

The association is composed of representatives of West Texas communities being served by the Southwestern Associated Telephone companies. Purpose of the organization is to secure more telephones in the various cities and a lower customer rate from the company.

Ten Cities Represented
Ten cities were represented in a meeting at its conclusion Chairman Outlaw was empowered to form a directorate composed of representatives from each town served by the phone company. From that directorate he will select an executive committee which will hold future conferences with officials of the Southwestern companies.

Declaring that "this is no fight on the company but, instead, a business proposition," Chairman Outlaw and Secretary Bullock explained the plan of the association. They feel, as do other members, that more telephones in the various communities served by the Southwestern company will be of benefit to the business interests of those communities as well as to the telephone concern. They said, however, that to secure more phones was impossible without reductions in rates.

Rates "Are Varied"
Secretary Bullock and Chairman Outlaw, in reporting the activities of their association, said the rates charged in points served by the telephone company were "varied and various." They said amounts charged in one city often differed with those charged in another and that "practically every city served by the company had suffered approximately 50 per cent loss in number of telephones in the past three years." Rates, they declared, had been unchanged since 1925.

A WASTE OF MONEY
It took a terrible calamity to prove that money spent on giant airships like the "Akron," which recently went to the Atlantic with more than 70 lives, is unwise investment. Uncle Sam has owned three of them, and two of the three have been destroyed. The third has only recently taken the air.
The "Akron" alone cost this country more than $50,000, and the average taxpayer around Muleshoe can't bring himself to believe that it was worth it. Defense we must have, but let it consist of the kind of weapons that are practical. Five million dollars would have bought a lot of airplanes; it would have built a pretty fair warship. To put it into a gas bag that an enemy nation could destroy in a few minutes; a vehicle that could only be landed where special equipment had been set up to receive it, appears to the average man to be either a case of graft or of money unwise spent. Some of us are not sure that it doesn't represent a little of both.
