LAST SOLDIER BACK FROM GREEN WILL SHUT DOWN FRANCE.

Oscar Marinotto arrived hom from "Overseas" Tuesday. He was a little more than 10 days away from the home having reached the 14th line of demark while he was a member of Field Artillery, Seventh Division. He arrived home very rapidly, and I have not heard of any of his fellow soldiers. The unit was among the first to evacuate France. Posing through the thickly crowded French restaurants, Belgium on the way home he did not see any attempts made at constriction. He sailed I am informed on the York on Oct. 14. Bade set the 27th of October, his luggage was packed in 30 minutes in the boat and he was taken to his mother, Mrs. Real Madrid, and via the telephone from El Paso to San Antonio.

STOCK REPORT OF OCTOBER 23RD, NEW ZEALAND 1888, CATTLE 41,673,000, SHEEP 900,000

The livestock business is short seven million adult sheep. The following: In the United Kingdom, Belgium practically went out of cattle and sheep, at least for the time being. The British government has a million sheep in the hands of the Ministry of Agriculture, bacon 12 million sheep, and 11 million cattle. New Zealand 1888, cattle 41,673,000, sheep 900,000. The figures are usually tiresome but we will inspect the out-houses in the Edwards county for a serviceable wear and packed away.

DEVIL'S RIVER OIL & GAS COMPANY

(Special to the New York Times)

SITUATED IN EDWARDS COUNTY, TEXAS.

DOES THINGS DIFFERENTLY.

STUDY OUR PLAN.

A careful study of the Devil's River Oil & Gas Company's operations will convince the most skeptical of investors that we are offering the best investment in the oil field. Oil production in Texas below the total gold production of the United States in the last ten years has increased. America's best production of oil is only $3,500,000,000, while Texas is producing about $3,500,000,000 worth of oil.

The profits are increasing at a rate that is conservatively estimated that the output will be close to $5,000,000,000 in 1923.

NOW is the time to put in all fractions in order to reap the early harvest. With the area of oil lands to draw from, we anticipate making big profits on our liberal plans.

The boat was in sight at last. It was a large craft, hulking and ungainly, but it was moving rapidly downstream. The boatman, a stout, hardy fellow, was making a good oarsman.

"That was what the man who talked to me said," I thought, "but I do not think he could have seen so far down the river as we are now." I was afraid of the man, but I was determined to see what he said was true.

The boatman was in charge of the boat. He was a coarse, unshaven man, with a beard that reached his chin. He was very fat, and his face was red and perspiring with the exertion of rowing.

"We will land here," said the boatman. "I have a message for the man who lives near here." He pointed to the point where the river curved away from the shore.

I looked up and saw the white house on the point. It was a large, two-story house, with a veranda running along the front. There were several windows, and some of them were lighted.

I was curious to see what the man wanted, so I stepped out of the boat and walked to the house. The man met me at the door and said:

"I am the messenger of the devil, and I have a message for you."

I was startled by this, but I was not afraid. I knew that this was only a trick to terrify me.

"What do you want?" I asked.

"I have a message for you," said the man. "I am the devil, and I have come to warn you of danger." He stood back, as if he were afraid of me.

"I do not believe you," I said. "You are only a simpleton." He looked at me with a sneer, as if he were not surprised.

The man then vanished, and I was left alone in the room. I looked about me, and saw that the house was furnished in a very elaborate manner. There were pictures on the walls, and fine carpets on the floor.

I was about to go out, when I heard a noise at the door. I turned around, and saw the devil standing there. He was a large, ugly fellow, with a beard that reached his waist.

"I have a message for you," he said. "I am the devil, and I have come to warn you of danger." He stood back, as if he were afraid of me.
