With a yell Hilary leaped forward, but Leblanc leaped forward with a yell. So sudden was the attack that it drove within an inch of Hilary's throat. Madeleine screamed, rushed forward, and pulled Hilary back. As Leblanc caught sight of her he uttered an exclamation and followed Pierre back into the darkness of the lumber piles.

Silence followed. That wait was tense and nerve-grIPPING. Hilary tried to get Madeleine to return into the cabin, but she kept her place at his side. Then, to Hilary's utter surprise, he heard Brousseau's voice, and discerned him moving out of the darkness of the lumber.

"Monseigneur Askew, I want to speak to you!" he called. "I am coming to you. I can trust you."
Hilary returned no answer, but Brousseau, apparently confident of Hilary's honor, pushed forward and came up to the barricade.

"Ah, mademoiselle, you have done a foolish thing!" he said quietly to Madeleine. "No harm was meant to Monseigneur Askew. I want those papers—that's all. I admit he was coming aboard and adopted this ruse to get them. They are lies, written by a discharged employee, and I can't afford to be lied about. I want to clear my honor in your eyes, mademoiselle."

But as neither answered him he dropped his pose of blandness and addressed Hilary.

"I've got more at stake than the segnatory and the asbestos mine," he cried. "That's only a drop in the bucket. I admit it's been a fair fight between us and you've won. I didn't want the segnatory. I wanted the fight. I'm willing to drop it now and give you best. But I want those papers."

"They ain't yours, Monseigneur Askew. Morris forged them, but you kept them, and that's why I trapped you here. It was me stopped Dupont from killing you, because of his daughter."

Madeline laughed contemptuously at the lie, and Brousseau snorted like a tamed horse.

"I want those papers," he went on doggedly. "They ain't in your clothes, and they ain't in your bag. Give them to me and we'll cry quits, and I'll put you and Madeleine ashore at Ste. Anne. I can trust you and you can trust me. Are you going to agree?"

"No!" shouted Hilary.
He had had the sense that Brousseau meditated some treachery, but he was not prepared for what followed. Madeleine cried to him and pulled him back, just as Pierre and Leblanc leaped down from the fore-castle roof, to which they had climbed during Brousseau's fictitious parleying. Each had his knife ready, and they were upon Hilary together.

There was no room for maneuvering, and Hilary never knew afterward how he escaped. But he thrust his club into Leblanc's face, and, then, as the man stumbled back, brought it down with full force upon Pierre's skull.

All the strength of his arms went into the blow. Pierre never spoke again. He went reeling across the deck like an inanimate thing, struck the bulwark, and, as the schooner lurched, toppled into the sea. He was probably dead before he disappeared beneath the waves.

Leblanc rushed frantically toward the barricade. Hilary was upon him when he saw Brousseau whip out a revolver and take deliberate aim at him. He felt the bullet clip his cheek. Twice more Brousseau fired. At the second shot Hilary stumbled and fell flat in the cabin entrance. At the third, Leblanc, shot through the brain, whirled round twice and collapsed in front of the barrier.

Madeline dragged Hilary within the cabin. Blood was gushing from a wound in his breast. Frantically she began to tear away the upper part of his clothing and to endeavor to staunch the wound. Suddenly she perceived the little rusted revolver upon the floor

She snatched it up and ran to see Brousseau in the act of crossing the barricade. She pushed it into his face.

Brousseau cursed and dropped on the far side. Madeleine heard him running into the darkness. She had brought a temporary respite. She ran back to Hilary. But it was almost dark in the cabin, and there was hardly anything she could do. He was conscious, but he seemed bleeding to death, and she could only try to staunch the blood that never stopped flowing.

Suddenly there came a terrific lurch of the vessel, which began to spin crazily in the trough of the sea. And above the roaring of the wind came the wild cries of Dupont and the expostulations of Brousseau. The captain's reason had deserted him; he had abandoned the wheel to fight out his quarrel with Hilary. The schooner, uncontrolled, ran a sideway before the wind, and Brousseau, willing as he was to let Dupont go on his errand of murder, was unable to steer her. He had handled ships before, but the swift cross-currents at the juncture of river and gulf made the task impossible for one who did not know intimately that uncharted track, far from the main channel, now impassable with ice. The schooner was rolling heavily, huge seas were sweeping overboard, and she turned successively half round the compass; the wind, catching her swinging sails, began to whirl her round and round; and steadily she drifted toward the pack ice along the shore of the island.

Madeline, working over Hilary frantically in the cabin, saw Dupont and Brousseau struggling on the poop deck. Dupont was trying to force his way between the lumber piles, while Brousseau urged him back to the wheel. Her mind worked rapidly. Was there any way of controlling the situation? She could see none. The moon had risen high, and the mists were clearing away. Not far distant was the nearest point of the island, and the open Gulf lay beyond. Toward the ice field the ship was hurrying with frightful speed.

Madeline saw the ice fast on every side. The narrow passage behind, filled with black, foam-decked water, was closing in. She did not hesitate, but caught at Hilary and urged him to his feet. He managed to rise, with her support, and staggered at her side toward the bulwarks.

She stopped, picked the fur coat from the shoulders of the dead outlaw, and placed it about him. She pointed toward the ice field. Brousseau was still struggling with Dupont near the wheel and Dupont was thrashing his arms and howling his wild pain. With the last exercise of his strength Hilary managed to drop to the ice.

He lay there. Madeline crouched over him under the bow of the vessel, and her last hope went out.

Coke R. Stevenson, candidate for Representative of this the 115th District, was in Sonora Monday in the interest of his candidacy. The Morning Eagle has the following to say about Judge Stevenson:

Mr. Stevenson is at present County Judge of Kimble county in which position he has served with much honor and distinction. Besides Mr. Stevenson being one of the leading lawyers of this section of the State he holds large ranch and stock interests in which business he has been very successful. His knowledge of the needs of West Texas of which he is a native will enable him to represent the district with conservatism and painstaking care for the interests of his constituency.

No citizen takes a deeper interest in the public affairs of his town or county than does Judge Stevenson and his zeal for the advancement of better things for West Texas assures us that if he is elected to represent this the largest, and, what we believe to be the best district in the State that he will serve with much honor to himself and at all times will take care of the best interests of his constituency.

WILL HAVE FAMOUS BUCKS.

A. A. Bitter of Brackettville, Texas, will handle the Famous Wm. Riddell & Son's Angora Bucks, Monmouth, Oregon, this season.

He will give notice in the News later of the date of opening day so that all parties interested or wanting bucks may be one of the ground.

A. A. Bitter of Brackettville, was in Sonora Thursday on his way home from the Sheep and Goat Raisers' Convention at San Angelo and reported that B. M. Halbert of Sonora, paid $1,750 for Riddell's No. 93, two year old registered Angora billy, raised by Wm. Riddell and Sons of Monmouth, Oregon. This billy took first prize as two year old and up also champion prize. This is the highest price paid for a billy in the United States. Mr. Bitters will handle the Famous Riddell Angora Bucks this season. Date of sale will be published soon in the News.

The Red Tag Sale at Grimland's is for CASH, not credit. The conservative and careful buyer will find splendid bargains at this sale.

A deal was finally closed Wednesday between W. M. Holland and Felix Harrison whereby the latter comes into possession of Mr. Holland's home on the Hill, for a consideration of $5,000. Possession will not be given the purchaser until a few weeks before the coming school term opens in September, at which time there is a possibility that Mr. Holland and his family will leave Del Rio, although no definite decision has as yet been made. The deal was made through the Drake & Payne-Land Co.—Del Rio Herald.

At Grimland's the goods are marked in plain figures and the Red Tag shows the correct price. COME IN AND SEE THE VALUE. The stock is ARRANGED so simply that you can almost wait on yourself.

Misses Bill Martin, Guida Mier, Be-trice Henry and Gladys Woods are to be visited in Sonora Monday on their way to San Angelo.

The following well known stockmen of Del Rio past through Sonora Sunday and Monday on their way to Angelo: Judge O. V. Burwood, G. R. French, John Deake, John Grisham, Lyle Warner, J. Q. Keeps Ban On Australian Sheep

The embargo against the importation of Australian cattle and sheep into the United States will not be lifted until the Australian authorities succeed in eradicating contagious pleuro pneumonia in that country, according to a statement made by Edwin T. Meredith Secretary of the Department of Agriculture, in a recent letter to an inquirer upon this subject.

The inquirer called attention to an article published in an Australian trade paper purporting to contain a statement by the chief inspector of stock of New South Wales to the effect that there is no foot-and-mouth disease in Australia, and that as contagious pleuro pneumonia is purely a disease of cattle, and can be carried only by them, its existence in Australia is not a good reason for the embargo against sheep.

While agreeing that sheep are not subject to pleuro pneumonia of cattle, the Secretary pointed out that "there is no positive evidence that they may not serve as carriers." The disease, he said, was "only finally eradicated from this country in the early twenties, after an inauguration of methods of operation which included the elimination of possible indirect sources of infection, one of which was believed to consist in the possibility of sheep carrying the infection in their fleeces."

"The department, therefore," the Secretary said, "having in view the responsibility imposed upon it by law, of protecting the cattle interests of the United States, has felt compelled to decline to issue permits for the importation of cattle, sheep, or other ruminants from countries in which either foot-and-mouth disease, rinderpest, or contagious pleuro pneumonia of cattle exists, and it is considered that until such time as the Australian authorities succeed in eradicating contagious pleuro pneumonia from each commonwealth, favorable consideration can not be given to the importation of either cattle or sheep from Australia."

Shoes are still high and will probably continue so, but Grimland is offering his entire line of shoes, $4,000.00 worth at the old time attractive prices. See the other things at this Red Tag Sale.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

DANGER IN GENERAL UNREST

Practically Universal Feeling of Discontent Will Grow Unless the Causes Which Gave It Birth Are Removed.

Article VII.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

A specter haunts Europe. It is the specter of unrest. When I started out to interview unrest in Europe I did not give my ear to the idle theorist who always knows all about everything, but never from direct experience with it, nor did I go to the agitator who preaches unrest in red words. Neither did I seek out the type of fanatical labor leader, who is eager for trouble, who is trying to mobilize unrest and marshal it under the banner of Revolution. I passed by the placemonger, time-serving politician. I was not interested in platitudes and promises.

I sought knowledge of unrest from those who know it from contact with it, those who were part and parcel of it. I went to the man in the street, the average man. I talked with the sweaty, dirty coal miner at the mouth of the shaft. He had just come from his day in the darkness deep in the ground. I visited the man who works in the mills. I listened to the rough speech of the teamster. I went to factories and talked with men between the two whistles which mark the time of the noon meal. They munched at black bread, ate cheese or sausage, gulped tea, coffee or cheap, diluted red wine. I spent time with the idle, the idle by choice as well as those without work through no fault of their own. Only yesterday many, yes, most of these men were in khaki; now, back on the job in overalls, they were thinking. Their speech was troubled. Discontent looked out from their eyes. I could feel it. They talked it, but never as unrest, always protest.

Unrest Must Be Quieted.

Their state of mind is the problem. Unrest is epidemic. It is militant. There is little of pacifism in it. It is not without cause. To get close to the cause of this disease which threatens revolution, one must know and understand what is going on in the minds of the men we are looking to and depending upon to do the world's work. It doesn't take a prophet to understand that if heed is not given to the things irritating them and a remedy is not found for the irritation, serious trouble will follow.

White war is hell. It has at least the restraint of discipline. A revolution growing out of unrest would mean mob madness, terrorism, fanatical, brutal, cruel and merciless. Once started, it would spread like wildfire. The world would be swept from its hinges. The fire would run its course until stopped because there was nothing left to burn. Who dares picture the state in which it would leave the world? In this day, when the nerves of the world are on edge, when cold and hunger irritate, one shudders when he thinks of the fate of civilization if unrest is not checked before it explodes in passion and wrath.

Unrest existed before the war. It was an acute then, it is an oak now. Before the war men were complaining, and justly complaining, about their lot. The difference now is that four years in the trenches have caused them to stop complaining and act. Soldering taught them much. They learned of the greatness of force.

Back of their present tendency to act is the grown grievance and the war lesson. Before the war they complained; today they demand. It is interesting to examine unrest in the complaint stage, as these men knew it before 1914.

These plain, ordinary average men have always been intensely human. They loved their wives and children, they lived for their homes, they felt keenly their responsibility for the happiness of their loved ones. They have but one thing to give. Before the war they gave it unspasmodically—it was their labor. Their one source of income was the pay envelope. With their wages they had to buy shoes, clothes, food, and provide shelter for the lives they brought into the world, and for the women they had chosen to be the mothers of those children.

"Home" Before All.

"Home, Sweet Home" is the international anthem. It is the heart song of the average man. The club plays no part in his life. From his home he goes to work, and from work he goes home. Shanties and tenements are not homes. Those men have always protested against the ugly shacks in which they were compelled to house their loved ones. They hit their fists in jobs days when their children went to bed hungry. Resentment grew in their hearts when they saw how poorly dressed their wives and children were. They muttered curses when their children were forced to go to work. They wanted to give their children a better education than they had had, a better chance in life, and they laughed at laws prohibiting child labor, while conditions compelled children to work or starve. As these men grew older their families grew in size and demand, while their ability to earn decreased. The tragedy registered in their pay envelopes. They were being ground between growing needs and diminishing wages. The grinding not only hurt their bodies, it furrowed their brain.

They lived in dread of poverty. It had been their nurse, they feared it would be their pallbearer. Poverty had taken its revenge upon them. They were resolving that if they could help it it would not put its lash upon their children's heads. They knew poverty intimately. It wasn't a word, a name, it was a living hateful, cruel companion. It was the devil that recruited the Marys of Scarlet Hall, the Magdalens of the slums, and always the army was mobilized from the shanties of the poor. Children who had been robbed of their youth, who had never owned a flower, poorly fed and miserably clad, dragged out of bed by alarm clocks, sounding the call to toil, when they should have been answering the school bell, children physically made for the breadwinner's struggle, children without the moral endurance necessary for the fight, were driven into No Woman's Land, the rotten scum under the world.

Light in Education.

Before the war men were brooding on these things, papers, books, magazines mirroring life, pictured these horrors. They were the subject of public discussion and debate. Men returning from a hard day's work talked these things over with their wives after the children had gone to bed, and many a man left his supper table to peek through the half-closed door into the room where his kiddies were sleeping, tiptoeing back, only to look into the eyes of a mother, and see reflected there the fears he felt.

The invention of the typesetting machine, the cheap manufacture of paper, the growth of public school systems, and public libraries, brought light to the dark minds of the workmen. In that light they saw more clearly their needs and more completely realized their rights. It is the natural ambition of man to climb. He wants to get on, and up. Ignorance had kept him from climbing. Ignorance is darkness. Men stumble when they try to go forward in the dark. Education is the light in the road. They sought to make haste, to make up for the lost time. Education taught them to want things for themselves and their families that their fathers and mothers never thought of wanting. The homes which satisfied their parents depressed and irritated them. The habits and tooth brush acquired habits. The desire to straighten the back that has been in a coil too long, is part there by education.

One thing stood in the way—it obstructed the path upward to decent living. They saw the barrier clearly and distinctly—poverty. They saw this impassable obstacle was made out of poor wages. They saw more. They saw that poor wages built the poorhouses and filled them, organized the bread lines, introduced the soup house. Out of their thoughts, in their experience, they carved a truth, "As long as some people have more than they can possibly use, while others through no fault of their own have less than they absolutely need, something is wrong," and when the call to arms came these thoughts were living in the mass mind of the world. Many not concerned with the problem of the other seven-eighths, knowing nothing of what was happening in the minds of the men and women of toil, and caring less, they did not know that these men were unthinking and planning to tear down the wall of poverty.

Contradiction in Berlin.

Fats, oils, clothes, milk for babies and other necessities are scarce in Berlin, and so high-priced that the poorer people can hardly afford them at all; yet the shop windows along Unter den Linden are full of beautiful goods.

Housing conditions pinch despite the fact that Berlin and other cities have the less population than before the war. Every second store window in Berlin has a crowd before it all day long. Adults, as well as children, stand and stare at the displays of sweets.

Movies—most of them immoral—are always crowded. Twelve new moving picture houses are to be erected. The most popular firms are those "on the ragged edge."

Theaters are crowded, and so is the opera, as a rule.

"Old Times" on Rhine Again.

Quite a number of regular "old timers" who marched to the Rhine with the American army of occupation in December, 1918, and who have been to the United States and discharged and enlisted again, go to make up the Fifth and Fifteenth Infantry regiments which arrived recently in the vicinity of Coblenz to await possible dispatch in the near future to Upper Silesia to supervise the plebiscite.

Some of them saw ten and twelve months' service in France and Belgium before the armistice.

Russ Losses 35,000,000.

The Polish professor, A. A. Ossendofsky, chief of the intelligence department of the all-Russian government, estimates that the world war, bolshevism, Civil war, starvation and disease has cost Russia a total of 35,000 lives. He places the cost of bolshevism at 12,250,000 lives. Professor Ossendofsky says that formerly the Russian population increased at the rate of four persons a minute. Today it is decreasing at the rate of twelve to thirteen a minute.

DAVIS-WALLACE.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized at the home of Mrs. M. S. Davis, mother of the bride, at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, when Miss Ruth Davis and W. E. Wallace were united in marriage, Rev. W. E. Hathorn, Pastor of the Baptist church officiating. The wedding march was played by Mrs. O Dell of Dallas. Miss Ray Davis, sister of the bride was her attendant and Orvil Word was the groom's best man. The ceremony was witnessed by all the members of the brydes family, a number of close relatives, friends and neighbors. After the ceremony refreshments of punch and cake were served and the happy couple started on their wedded life with the best wishes of those present and of hosts of others who were unable to attend.

The bride is the daughter of the late J. Love Davis and was reared to young womanhood in Sonora. The groom is a worthy young man who has made his home here for several years and is a valued employe of the Sonora Garage.

JULY WEATHER REPORT.

Eagle Pass, Texas, June 19.—As the Glorious Fourth falls on Sunday, Billie Hart, weather forecaster, serves notice to celebrate it then, and not on Monday, lest the celebration be marred by the elements. Billie predicts fair and hot weather from July 1 to 4 and an electrical, wind and rain storm on July 5-6, in north and northwest Texas, with probability of spreading over the State. For the rest of the month his prediction is as follows, and includes a norther:

- July 6 to 8 fair and cooler.
- July 9 and 10 local rain, norther cool. Northwest, southwest, gulf coast.
- July 11 to 13 fair.
- July 14 local rain in northwest Texas.
- July 15 and 16 local rain south west Texas, gulf coast, Corpus Christi.
- July 17 to 19 fair and cool.
- July 20 to 25 fair and hot.
- July 26 and 27 local rain north west and north.
- July 28 rain and wind, north and northwest, south central and southeast and gulf coast.
- July 29 and 30 fair.
- July 31 and August 1 heavy rains throughout Texas.

How Will the Ladies Vote?

At the primary election in Sutton county in 1918 the estimated number of women voters was 270. In January 1919 only 45 paid their poll tax, but in January 1920 146 poll taxes were paid by women. In the coming primary there are three contests for county offices and the question agitating the mind of the candidate is what or who the Ladies will vote for in the local campaign. The 146 of the possible 500 votes in the county would be the determining factor if voted as a body.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

GREAT NEED IS PRODUCTION

Men Must Be Given Inducement to Work and Guaranteed Fair Deal in the Distribution of the Result.

Article VI.

By FRANK CORMFORD.

The world lives by two kinds of work, the work on the soil and the labor spent in making things. In this way we get the things we eat and wear. We have eaten up our surplus. The world's reserve is gone. We are literally living from hand to mouth. To overcome the food shortage we must put every inch of available ground into production. Only by doing this can we live and gradually get back the surplus which stood as a protection against crop failures.

Production is not automatic. It is the work of man. There is not anything complex about it. You can't use magic. To grow things men must plow and gather. The will to work is our greatest need. The land is available. God furnishes the sunshine and the rain. To get the plows, tractors and farm tools we must look to the industrial arm of life. Here again is the call for men. We are short of man power. Men were killed and crippled in the war. The men who survived the war must help do the work that would have been done by those who did not come back. In their present frame of mind they do not will to work, at least under the old conditions obtaining before the war. It is necessary to furnish them with an inducement to work. There was little inducement for men to work before the war. The discontented are not kicking at work. Their objection goes to the unfairness shown in distributing the result. It isn't any secret. They are shouting it from the housetops of Europe. They demand a larger share of the things they produce, or they refuse to work. There is a good deal of human nature in it, too. It is only human nature to think of self. There isn't anything unnatural in the workman looking for reward. Willingness to work is largely based on the thought of working for oneself.

Five things are necessary to start and keep production going. In other words, to get the clothes, shoes, stockings, coal and comforts of life, to give the farmer the tools he needs for agricultural production, so that we may eat; to provide the transportation necessary to collection and distribution, to bring the city to the country and the country to the market we must do five essential things.

Production's First Need. First, we must have plants, and I use the word in the most general sense. These plants must be equipped with machinery and tools, they must be ready for work.

Second, a plant is useless and stands idle unless we provide raw material, the thing furnished by nature that men and machines work into the finished product.

Third, we must have coal. Coal runs the machine and keeps warm the home of the man who runs the machine. The helplessness of the world without coal is brought home to me while I am writing these articles. The miners have left the pit. The government, through the courts, has tried to force them back. The effort is a failure. The streets are dark at night. The houses are cold. Business is crying out against necessary restrictions imposed because of the coal shortage. I realize as I never have before how dependent we are on the men who pick and dig the coal. All of the intelligence and culture, the courts, the gold, are but symbols of power. When the coal miners folded their hands and set their teeth things stopped.

Fourth, transportation is necessary to the gathering, collecting and delivering of raw material and the distribution of the finished product.

Fifth, and last, but first in importance, is man power. The purpose of production is man. He is master of it at every stage, in every department. Without him production is impossible. The business men who proceed on the theory that men could not live without their business, its pay roll, forget the first and greater truth that there would be no business without the workers. Men cut, dig, gather and haul the raw material. He hews the wood, builds the plant. He mines the ore, he makes the tools, the machinery. He oils it, sets it in motion. He runs it. He makes the furnace and the boiler. He digs and shovels the coal which makes the power. He feeds the heat of the furnace. He feeds the locomotive and pulls its throttle. He makes the freight car and stands in the street in the dangerous railroad yard with the signal of safety.

Railroads All Worn Out.

Transportation in Europe is partly paralyzed. During the war railroad tracks and roadbeds were allowed to deteriorate. It could not be helped, but the fact that it was unavoidable doesn't alter the situation. Roadbeds and rails have fallen to pieces. There is a terrible shortage of cars. Everywhere on the Continent this is felt.

They have less than a third of the rolling stock necessary to meet normal requirements. The demand for transportation facilities will necessarily increase during the period of reconstruction. I have seen locomotives smoking, coughing, expiring every few miles. Old, broken-down engines, the kind one expects to find in a museum, I was on a de luxe train, a diplomatic express. I commented upon the condition of the locomotive, which came to a full stop every once in a while. I commented upon the condition of the coaches. The chief of the train looked at me, smiled and said: "If you think this one is bad you ought to see some of the others."

The war disarranged plants and factories. The demand was for munitions. Peace gave way to war and plant equipment efficient for peace production gave way to plant construction necessary to manufacture the weapons of war. Plants were commandeered. Machinery was torn out, new machinery put in. A complete reconstruction and reorganization was effected. Now that the war is over and the demand for everything is great, it is necessary to change these plants back and fit them for the production needed. It is expensive, it takes time, it retards production.

It is strange that, while everyone can see and understand the difficulties and delays incident to reorganizing and rearranging machinery and plants, many people cannot see or understand the problem of rearranging men's lives, who for four years have been living abnormally. The effect of the war upon plants and equipment is exceeded by the very men who refused to see any effect of the war on the men who were in it.

Women in Labor World. During the war women answered the roll call. They left their homes and went to work. There is hardly a kind of work that I can think of that I have not seen women doing in Europe. I have seen them loading boats, shoveling coal, washing windows, driving wagons, cleaning streets, conducting on trams. Many of the women who went into the industries were young women. Now that the war is over and the men have come back there is a demand on the part of the men that the women retire to their homes. This is impossible in many cases, for these women have grown dependent upon their jobs for their living. Then, too, there is a shortage of marriageable men. Some employers of labor have taken advantage of this situation. They pay a woman less money than they pay a man for the same work. This makes both dissatisfied. The woman has the sympathy of the working man. He doesn't want her to compete with him to the extent that his wages will be lowered, neither does he want the boss to discriminate against her.

Women have come into the world of work to stay. If there is any meaning in the phrase "class conscious" they are living examples of it. They are more outspoken about their demands than men. They sense a wrong long before a man can see it. They have brought their intuition into the labor world. They are more radical than men, and they stimulate men to action. They have brought to the labor problem a new and interesting angle.

The key to the future is in the hands of these men and women. Production is the door that must be opened. Men and women must work, or win, and want will make a No Man's Land of Europe before the sun of 1929 thaws the frost from the ground.

Children crying for bread, shivering in the cold these bleak winter nights, are praying that men will work when they pray to God for good and warmth. Their help cries are smothered by a great blanket--unrest. Will men hear them?

So I sought to find the causes of unrest, knowing it would bring me close to the heart of the trouble. (Copyright, 1929, Western Newspaper Union)

Dickens' Tribute to the Cow. If civilized peoples were to lapse into the worship of animals, the cow would certainly be their chosen god. What a fountain of blessing is the cow! She is the mother of beef, the source of butter, the original cause of cheese, to say nothing of shoe-horns, hair-combs and upper leathers. A gentle, amiable, ever-yielding creature, who has no joy in her family affairs that she does not share with man. We rob her of her children, that we may rob her thereafter of her milk; and we only care for her when the robbery may be perpetrated. --Charles Dickens.

Approaching the End. Cicero in his dialogue entitled "De Senectute" makes one of his interlocutors say that all men wish to attain old age and yet complain of the fact when they have attained it. He adds that one of the grievances of the old is that age steals over them more rapidly than they expected. It is pointed out that we cannot prevent time from passing, and that even if we lived eight hundred instead of eighty years the past time, however long, cannot when it has flown away be able to "soothe with any consolation for an old age of folly."

A Sister Wilhelm D.S. Net Like. Princess Charlotte of Meiningen, sister of the ex-kaiser, who died recently, had been a sufferer for years and had undergone many operations. She passed most of her time on the Riviera. Indeed, the princess was a woman you couldn't miss. She wore bobbed hair, when no other woman had ever dreamed of such a thing, and talked democracy, and smoked all the time. The ex-kaiser was rather alarmed at her vagaries and preferred his other sister, Queen Sophia of Greece, who is more his sort. --London Mail.

CALLED HER FAMILY TO HER BEDSIDE

Six Years Ago, Thinking She Might Die, Says Texas Lady, But Now She Is a Well, Strong Woman and Praises Cardui For Her Recovery.

Royce City, Tex.--Mrs. Mary Kilman, of this place, says: "After the birth of my little girl...my side commenced to hurt me. I had to go back to bed. We called the doctor. He treated me...but I got no better. I got worse and worse until the misery was unbearable...I was in bed for three months and suffered such agony that I was just drawn up in a knot..."

I told my husband if he would get me a bottle of Cardui I would try it... I commenced taking it, however, that evening I called my family about me... for I knew I could not last many days unless I had a change for the better. That was six years ago and I am still here and am a well, strong woman, and I owe my life to Cardui. I had only taken half the bottle when I began to feel better. The misery in my side got less... I continued right on taking the Cardui until I had taken three bottles and I did not need any more for I was well and never felt better in my life... I have never had any trouble from that day to this."

Do you suffer from headache, backache, pains in sides, or other discomforts, each month? Or do you feel weak, nervous and fagged-out? If so, give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a trial.

(UNINCORPORATED)

SITUATED IN EDWARDS COUNTY, TEXAS.

DOES THINGS DIFFERENT. STUDY OUR PLAN.

A careful study of the Devil's River Oil & Gas Company's plan will convince the close student of investments that we are offering the BEST inducement in the OIL fields. Oil production in Texas fades the total gold production of Alaska in its best days into insignificance. Alaska's best production of gold was only $15,000,000.00, while Texas is producing about $150,000,000.00 worth of oil. The production is increasing so rapidly that it is conservatively estimated that the output will be close to $300,000,000.00 in 1929.

NOW is the time to get in the oil business in order to reap the early harvest. With 600 acres of oil lands to draw from, we anticipate making big profits on our most liberal plan, PROFITS that will make fast friends for our company in future enterprises which we have in mind when The Company's present plans are in operation.

DO NOT DELAY your subscriptions. There is nothing to gain and MUCH to lose by deferring until some future date. NOW is the time to INVEST, and OUR company is the ONE to be in, for it gives you the biggest run for your money in the race for MILLIONS.
