Some FACTS About

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Here are authentic figures from the Ford factory at Detroit. They show you just how many Ford cars and trucks have been built each month since January 1, 1921 and how many have been sold to retail customers, in the United States.

	Produced	Delivered to Retail Customers
JANUARY	29,883	57,208
FEBRUARY	35,305	63,603
MARCH	61,886	87,221
Total Production	127,074	Total Retail Sales 208,032

showing that actual sales for the first three months of 1921 exceeded production by 80,958 Ford cars and trucks!

April requisitions already specify 107,719 additional cars and trucks and the estimated April output of the factory and assembly plants combined calls for only 90,000!

These facts clearly show that the demand for Ford products is growing much faster than manufacturing facilities to produce and were it not for the dealers' limited stocks, which are now being rapidly depleted, many more customers would have been compelled to wait for their cars. It will be only a matter of weeks, therefore, until a big surplus of orders will prevent anything like prompt deliveries.

If you would be sure of having your Ford car or truck when you want it, you should place your order now. Don't delay. Phone us or drop us a card.

...to nullify its former size by the Treaty of Versailles, and now disassociated from Austria and having no alliance with other neighbors, is peopled by a race unusual in many ways, according to the following communication to the National Geographic Society by C. Townley-Fullan:

"Pastoral Hungary has features all its own. It stretches across the vistas of the Great Plain in the region of the Hortobágy. There is the genuine original Magyar, the Szent-Miklós, who, like his sires of old, that rushed Alexander on the plains of Szeged, eats, drinks, sleeps on his small, treeless charger, and chokes with pure delight in lust of life and rush of wind. The long white 'gatyai'—no peasant's waistcoat, the plumed or befringed hat, the gorgeous mantle, the deep-bowed pipe, mark this tanned, Bacchante cavalier; more surely than does the anthropologist. He cultivates no circus trick, but he and his horses are Freemasons in one craft. There is nothing spectacular in this man's work nor annuals. His blood-brother, the shepherd of the night, sustains himself on sheep cheese and milk and in his lonely vigils could still do service to astronomy. The Queen of the Great Plain has no such run as the shepherd of the plain, whose vistas are wide, illimitable and peaceful.

"What may be the psychological keynote of a pastoral and peasant people, shepherd kings, whose whole corporate national life has been one long test of endurance that in the end has tired out Turk, Teuton, Slav, and even Destiny herself? A musical, wine-loving, hospitable race; warm, generous and combative; proud and calm, dogged with the curse of Rembrandt, with a total incapacity to yield on great issues and the power to fight on any soil but his own.

"Imagine this people, its gods still the gods of the victor's camp, cut off from all the world we know by its Turanian tongue, whose heavy chain of the admiral of Cardinal Mezzoranti (who is said to have spoken 28 languages), but sheer force of character in that strange pentecostal mosaic of race, creed, and caste which until recently held the Danube and the Central Plain as Austria-Hungary. "Imagine a virile stock which can still sit and think, can fall into gleaming frenzy as its harp or picture-post storms a delicate imagination with breathless dead; a race which combines the Buddhist aversion from action with the Celtic instinct of opposition; improvident, lavish, actively charmed at the courtesy of the stranger; simple, with the barbarian lust of pleasure to the eye; sensitive to its inmost chords to gentleness—a passionate, dreamy race of fatalists; the true Asian mystery."

MOROCCO: BANDITRY THERE A PROFESSION

The United States has had diplomatic difficulties in recent years with the people of northern Morocco where Spanish armies have just scored their greatest success in sustaining the colonial power of Spain in Africa. Some insight into the kind of people with whom the Spaniards have had to deal is contained in the following communication to the National Geographic Society, concerning Raisuli, "the Villa of Morocco," whose raids caused political crisis in Spain.

"He could not bear to hear a child cry, while on several occasions I noticed his care even to avoid allowing the bees collected in his cup to drown." is the surprising statement, not of a friend, but of the wealthy American who was held for ransom by Raisuli in 1904, until President Roosevelt sent a fleet of warships and his famous ultimatum, "Perfidious alive or Raisuli dead," to Morocco.

"In many respects the man interested and attracted me in spite of all my natural motives for dislike," continues the writer. "I am Perfidious dignified, not to us only, but to his own wild adherents, who evidently idolized their chieftain, whose position among them seemed that of the head of a Highland clan in the olden times.

"He was quick to see the humorous aspect of a situation, while his repartee was as immediate and to the point as though he had been born in County Galway itself. In fact I discovered to my consternation that I was beginning to like the man in spite of my natural resentment. I found myself unconsciously accepting his contention that he was not a mere brigand or cattle-lifter, but a patriot struggling to rescue his Berber followers from the tyranny of the corrupt-shereefian officials. His charm of voice, the natural poise and dignity of his manner, his self-control under provocation, all betrayed a superior character.

"In fact, this strange experience while in camp with Raisuli at Tazra, dawned upon me as an aspect of an expected and idyllic charm. The life of the natives; the little touches of more gentle human character; the tiny child who offered me fruit, which I at first declined, until I noticed the expression of disappointment and mortification upon the boy's face, and then the radiant and almost ridiculous satisfaction of the little fellow when I pretended to enjoy his half-ripe offering; the many attempts of the wild people about me to propitiate me; their curiosity as to our own manners and customs, as when one venerable inhabitant of the village led me gently aside to inquire why we walked so energetically up and down the village green. For health's sake, Mohammedan, and may I ask how many such daily turns up and down, it may require to keep a Christian in good health—all afforded matter of interest and reflection.

"Raisuli was confronted by the problem as to what disposition he was to make of the seventy thousand silver Spanish dollars which he demanded for our release. Here at Tazra there were no iron safes, nor so much as a house with a cellar, while the thatch of straw, or dried reeds, the only roofing of the houses, offered but poor security should he leave so much coin stored in a village where he himself was but a transient sojourner.

"At last the mules bearing the silver dollars, carefully packed in boxes, arrived and the bullion was counted. "I was summoned by Raisuli. The silver," he said, "has been counted—twenty thousand dollars, as stipulated, in Spanish dollars; but these letters, showing me as he spoke a check book containing certified checks on the Comptoir d'Escompte, the French bank at Tangier, of the value of these, which are supposed to represent fifty thousand dollars, I know nothing. However, I will accept them on your personal guarantee, but on that condition only."

"When I had examined the checks I gave the required assurance verbally, and Raisuli, leading me to the door, where I found my horse waiting for me, bade me adieu, saying that he intended to look upon me as a friend, and that he hoped I cherished no ill feeling on account of my detention. He furthermore assured me that should any danger menace me in the future, that not only he himself, but any of the men of the three tribes under his orders, would hasten to my relief.

KIACHOW: THE FIUME OF CHINA

Kiachow, China, was seized by Germany in 1897 and captured by the Japanese when the latter entered the World war in 1914. Its permanent disposition has been the subject of wide discussion, especially in the United States because of our historic friendship with both China and Japan. Now dispatches state that a Japanese representative at the first meeting of the League of Nations announced that his country is ready to prepare for the transfer of this territory back to China.

Following the murder of two German missionaries in 1897, Germany employed her retaliatory seizure of Kiachow as a means of obtaining an indemnity and a 99-year lease on Tsingtau and the bay of Kiachow. She gave the name of Kiachow to the entire German concession, which is not to be confused with the nearby city of the same name. The concession includes the German-built city of Tsingtau, outlying towns, and the bay, which has a narrow outlet into the Yellow sea on the west coast of the province of Shantung.

Tsingtau illustrates aptly Germany's pre-war methods of getting a foreign foothold in anticipation of her dream of world domination. The setting of this effort lay in a province conspicuous in Chinese history for 4,000 years, and revealing traces of pre-Chinese inhabitants. For Shantung was the birthplace and teaching field both of Confucius and Mencius. There also the Boxer movement first was directed against foreigners.

But the harbor of Kiachow, apparently, interested the Germans more than history. It is considered one of the best along the Chinese coast, and to have a stronger natural defense than Port Arthur.

Back of the city rise hills as high as 1,000 feet and a range 600 feet high dominates the harbor. This range was utilized by the Germans for forts where they mounted powerful Krupp guns, commanding every point of land and sea approach. When the Germans completed their defenses Tsingtau was considered one of the most strongly fortified ports on the globe.

All this protection was not to be afforded a fishing village and a none too busy harbor. Natives were persuaded to move, and the lessors built a typical German city on the site of Tsingtau. They also renamed this city, calling it Ching-ao, but the older name clung to it.

Streets were laid out, and given German names. German banks, German industries, including breweries and German hotels were established. No other port office than the German one was permitted to handle foreign mail.

Del Rio, April 16.—Concession has been granted for the building of an international bridge over the Rio Grande at Del Rio by the Mexican and American governments.

It is understood that three Americans and three Mexicans have formed a company to push the scheme through to completion in a short time. Plans for the immediate construction are available, it is indicated. The Americans live in this vicinity. Two of the Mexicans live in San Antonio and the other in Mexico City. It is understood their names are withheld until the project is assured.

W. S. Poole of London, a heavy investor in both stock and notes of the Orient and London representative of the line, was here yesterday. He made the statement that the best thing that can happen is to start immediately the construction of the Orient railroad from San Angelo to Del Rio so that the road can go to making money. He indicated that so far the line was little more than a great long switch with no terminals from which to draw trade. The building of the bridge at Del Rio insures the connecting up of Del Rio with the Allende branch of the Mexican International Railroad.

"I am satisfied extremely with what I have seen, and now the only thing that remains is to make my associates see why they should invest," said Mr. Poole. He also said that he would report the favorable consensus of opinion of the men with him.

Charles M. Jones, investment banker of New York, here with the party, said "finances will not be lacking for the construction of the road."

The bridge over the San Antonio river on the Mexican side will be finished in a short time, according to L. F. Pastiana, chief of engineering construction of the Allende Las Vacas Railroad, in Del Rio today—San Angelo Standard.

As clean as the purest water is Liquid Borzole. Yet it is the most powerful healing remedy for flesh wounds, sores, burns and scalds that medical science has ever produced. Try it. Price 50c and $1.00, sold by the nearest drug store.

E. Webb is in from his report Monday. Mr. Webb says a report comes from Del Rio in effect that the Orient railroad will use the more easterly route on its extension from Sonora to Del Rio. This route would have the new road passing through Mr. Webb's ranch and only 16 miles west of Rocksprings. Years ago two routes were surveyed. The more westerly route is over a rougher country, and an expensive tunnel would be necessary at one place. Using the easterly route Edwards county will be crossed from one side to the other.—Rocksprings Leader.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Puckett were in from the ranch 16 miles west of town Monday visiting and shopping.

Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Wardlaw and son Jake of San Angelo were here Saturday to see Mrs. Charles Evans who is seriously ill.

Miss Mary Preston of Plainview who is teaching the school at M. Mittel ranch on the South Divide was visitor in town Monday.

Miss Willie May Winn attended the Interscholastic meet at San Angelo. Friends there wanted to know what to call her "auntie or grandma" if she was a chaperon.

Former Adjutant General W. D. Cope of Austin and Judge King of Throckmorton, spent Sunday visiting Walter Davis and family on the ranch two miles north of Sonora.

TRUSTEE ELECTION.

Four trustees for the Sonora Independent School District are to be elected on May 7th. The trustees whose term of office expires at this time are: L. W. Elliott, Mrs. G. B. Hamilton, R. J. Biddle, Geo. J. Trainer. The "Holdover" trustees are Mrs. W. C. Bryson, Mrs. H. P. Allison, and W. A. Miers.

The school is the life or death of a community such as this, and even of much larger places.

The people should take more interest in the election of the trustees because they are the ones on whom the success or failure of the schools depend. Whoever you want for this position should be given such a representative vote that they will do their best with the trust imposed on them.

There are only two "Class A" schools in the Scholastic District of which Sutton is one of eleven counties. Why should Sonora remain in "Class B"? There is doubtless a reason why it is in "Class B" but there is no reason why it should remain there.

Geo. J. Trainer, secretary of the Board of Trustees, estimates that the school next year will cost about $28,000 and pay the present salaries. He says they hope to have more credits this year but to be sure of becoming a "Class A" school they would need another teacher and more room.

Manual training and Domestic science could then be added, more libraries and play ground equipment secured and Sonora become a "Class A" school. It will soon be necessary to have other buildings and the sooner we have them the better. There is plenty of room on the present site for additional buildings, and the campus is one of the largest and best in the State. Let everyone take the proper interest and make Sonora schools as good as the best.

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur McDonald of Del Rio were here Sunday visiting their mother Mrs. Josie McDonald and sister Miss Estelle McDonald.

Mrs. Annie Cusenbary and daughter, Miss Hattie B. Cusenbary were in town Monday from the ranch, 20 miles south of town. Mrs. Cusenbary and daughter are spending most of their time on the ranch.

SONORA'S FIRST CHAUTAUQUA QUASUCCESS.

Sonora's first Chautauqua has gone into history. It was a memorable event because of being concluded without financial loss at a time when the products of the country are not selling at their value. The entertainment furnished by the Calhoun Co. was of good quality and the program was diversified to such an extent that all the patrons were pleased with some of the performances. The Woman's Club did the Herculean task of selling the tickets and arranging for the grounds on very short notice. It is doubtful if it could have been done so successfully in any other community. The season tickets were placed at a price that would pay expenses and nothing more was expected at this time, but the Club is $100 ahead for the effort.

A canvas of the people resulted in the request of a return of the Chautauqua next year and the Woman's Club has made the contract. They now know what to expect and what will be required of them and the arrangements will be better next season.

The Chautauqua has established itself as a popular means of bringing to small communities a series of entertainments that otherwise would not be available. This is possible only through the "coincident" employment of many artists for the entire season.

Those who have lived where "The Chautauqua" is a regular event find that the entertainment feature becomes secondary to the benefit the community receives from the bringing together of all the people and the benefits there resulting.

INTER-SCHOLASTIC MEET.

Superintendent M. O. Britt, Misses Lowrey, White and Rees and Messrs. Runnels and Hamilton of the Sonora school faculty accompanied a number of children to San Angelo for the Interscholastic District meet. There are 11 counties in the District but only two "Class A" schools in the district, San Angelo and Balldinger. Sonora is in "Class B" and in its class took first place in athletic events with a total of 53 1/2 points. Kinnetts county had 34, Sterling 22 1/2, Reagan 5, Tom Green 4.

Sonora won first in 100 yards dash: A. Runnels, 1 second.

440 yards run, G. Rees, 57 1/5 seconds.

Half mile run, Garnie Wyatt, 2:24.

Pole vault, W. Moreland, 9 feet.

Shot put, G. Rees 36 feet.

50 yards dash, A. Runnels, 6 sec

Discus throw, A. Runnels, 77 feet 6 inches.

Sonora had placed in hurdles, 120 yards, 2nd W. Moreland, 3rd G. Hill.

220 yards dash, A. Runnels 3rd.

Mile relay, G. Rees 2nd.

Pole vault G. Rees 2nd.

Shot put, A. Runnels 2nd.

High jump, H. Rees 4th.

The only literary events in which Sonora contested was in the Junior girls declamation and Junior boys declamation. In these contests, Mary Mitchell was third and Duke Bryson third respectively. Miss Mary Fields who would have been the Sonora representative in the Senior girls, was unable to attend because of illness.

Albert Runnels of the Sonora High School was "High point" man in the District Interscholastic meet of the B. class schools. He won three firsts, one second and one third place, making a total of 20 points. Albert is a demonstration of what the ozone of West Texas will do for a growing boy. When he came here with his father, Principal Runnels, from Brazoria, he would hardly have ventured to make a track and now he is a whole track team in himself.

The girls double tennis was represented by Miss D. ... and Joan Stokes. They had hard luck, the wind being against them and they lost to Mertzon.

The boys double tennis representatives were A. Runnels and Horace Rees. They were eliminated in the preliminaries by Mertzon and Mertzon defeated San Angelo in the finals.

Miss Grace Trainer of Sonora won the girls single tennis finals, defeating Mertzon.

J. B. Moreland, represented Sonora in the boys single tennis.

Mr. and Mrs. De Wallace were in from the ranch Tuesday shopping and visiting.

Mrs. Keesee is in receipt of a letter from her son Wallace stating that he would sail April 12th for Italy and he sent his regards to all enquiring friends.

J. J. Yowell, the carpenter, says he is 75 years old and has a story worth repeating. Their cat had three kittens and the kittens died. They had a setting hen and before time for hatching the hen died. They put the eggs under a neighbors hen and got three chickens. The chickens were brought home and put in the box where the kittens had died and the cat is caring for the chickens by keeping them warm and caring to them. The chickens are now five days old and Bon Amia—what will the cat do?

WOOL SCOURING.

The Texas Experiment Station will be prepared to scour wool samples for the Texas sheepmen this season. The wool scouring plant at College Station has been installed and the services of Mr. Richard Riley of Boston, have been secured to grade or scour the samples of wool that may be sent to College Station for testing.

Instructions covering the selection of wool samples will be made available in the near future. Parties interested in having samples of wool scoured should communicate immediately with J. M. Jones, Texas A & M College Station, Texas.

TIE THE FLEECES

With the shearing season at hand and economy the watchword we find that a few of the wool growers are contemplating the saving of a few dollars by not tying their fleeces. Information from those who know marketing conditions, even under the most favorable circumstances of an active demand, it is a mistake for the grower not to tie and tag his fleeces. Take the present wool supply as exceeding the demand and what chance has the untied and untidy clip selling early or at true market value. It is the same in everything. Look at the apples in the windows of two stores. Which will you buy first, the polished, clean looking, or those with the dust and travel stains. Same quality, yes, but which attracts you first. You see a bunch of white face calves of about the same size and condition, and another bunch of mixed colors and sizes, which would you buy first. Even with more buyers than steers the even bunch is the first to sell. The cost of tying is estimated at about two cents per fleece but there is no doubt about it being worth the additional expense. You have the desired class of wool so why not try and have it as attractive as it should be. Experts in marketing, pooling or other authorities advise proper preparation of the product. By all means tie and tag the fleeces.

DIDN'T TAKE TO SUGGESTION

School Superintendent Quite Unable to See Things From the Small Boy's Viewpoint.

The young superintendent was not only unmarried but very bashful and the principal at the building at which he was visiting was hearing the middle-age stage and also anxious to get a husband. He always dreaded this building, for she did try to vamp him, but dutifully he came this morning. And as he went up the stairs a little boy stumbled into him and both went down together.

The little boy rose howling and the superintendent rather bruised. He was embarrassed the next minute, though, for down the stairs came the principal. She had seen the accident and came to give first aid. For policy's sake she went to the little boy first. She comforted him tenderly. And then she asked, "How do you feel—all right now?" The little fellow sobbed. "I'd feel better if you'd take me on your lap a while," he begged, and then he turned to his fellow-sufferer, the superintendent. "Wouldn't you, too?" he asked.—Indianapolis News.

AN INCESSANT TALKER

"Jimson married money, didn't he?"

"He thought he was marrying money, but he married something else, that talks."

EXTRA SUNS.

An imaginative writer in a current magazine tries to speculate in regard to conditions on a planet lighted and heated by more than one sun.

Inasmuch as very many suns are "doubles" and doubtless others occur in bunches, the notion of a planet enjoying the luxury of more than one is at least plausible. Presumably there are plenty of planets thus situated.

Probably there are in the universe billions of inhabited planets, each one having its own conditions more or less unlike ours, and occupied perhaps by living creatures altogether different from ourselves or any that we know.—Philadelphia Ledger.

USE FOR OLD CLOTHES.

An enterprising woman, whose last year's coat had grown too small, inserted a "For Sale" advertisement in a local paper. She sold the coat for half of its original price. Many of her friends also adopted this idea and thus are able to get new clothes more frequently. The people who buy are glad to get much-needed clothes at a low price. There is quite a demand for such clothes, and a clever woman can make her old clothes earn quick profits for her.

WE'VE ALL SEEN THEM.

The other day an examination was given to some high-school geometry pupils. One of the questions asked them to name the three sides of a right-angle triangle and most of the children named hypotenuse base and altitude without any difficulty.

But John S.— wrote his third way: "Bass, attitude and hippopotamus."

PROBABLY SEASICK.

"Father, what does a volcano do with its lava?" asked Teddy.

"Give it up," replied the long suffering one.

"That's right," said Teddy.—Science and Invention.

UNGRATEFUL MAN.

Her Husband—I don't see what I get out of this marriage game. You get every cent of my salary.

Mrs. Gruball—Why, listen to the talk! Don't I pay your income

CEMETERY FOR FAMILY PETS

Graveyard at Dedham, Mass. Testimony to the Affection in Which Dumb Animals Are Held.

Fresh wreaths of evergreen placed on tiny graves in Pine Ridge cemetery for cats and dogs at Dedham, Mass., bear testimony that family pets are not forgotten. The cemetery, the only one for animals in this part of the country, is controlled by the Animal Rescue League, and now contains 400 graves.

The lot is situated in a sunny little valley. In its center, with a background of green shrubbery, is a tablet surmounted by the statue of a white poodle, sitting up as if begging for attention. The inscription reads: "To the many dogs who have given their lives in the service of man."

In the winter, when the ground is too hard to admit burial, there is a receiving vault, where the body is kept until spring. There is also a crematory operated by the Animal Rescue League at a charge of a few dollars for each cremation.

A plain granite cube over one grave is marked: "In Memory of Master Billy Arliss." This is the last resting place of the fluffy white terrier of George Arliss, the actor.

SELFISH EVE

Mother—Why did you strike your little sister?

Young Bobby—Well, we were playing Adam and Eve and instead of tempting me with the apple, she ate it herself.

OVERTURE AT 20:15.

France for a considerable period has had the twenty-four-hour clock time, instead of the time that is divided into two twelve-hour periods, which still prevails in English-speaking countries. In Argentina, too, the twenty-four-hour clock is in use, with the advantage, at least, of doing away with the cumbersome symbols a. m. and p. m. In advertisements of theatrical performances the overture is announced to begin at 20:15. Should the twenty-four-hour clock ever come into use in the United States, the closing hour of theatrical performances, usually 11 p. m. at present, will often fall, oddly enough, on the figures that are used colloquially by many persons to signify the taking of one's departure.—Christian Science Monitor.

MULTIPLE HORNS IN CAIRO.

Nouveaux riches among the Egyptians and Syrians of Cairo are reported by the Egyptian Mail to be causing great distress to the residents of the foreign quarter of that city by buying large automobiles with about four different kinds of horns to match. The trouble arises because in the opinion of the Levantines it is exceedingly good form to tear along the streets with all four horns going at once. "The king approaches. Make way for the king," they seem to tout, whistle and clang and "klaxon" all at once.

KNOCKING.

"We will have an old-fashioned knocker on the door," said the architect.

"Don't do it," replied Mr. Growcher. "A natural born knocker can work fast enough without providing him with any mechanical facilities."

BETTER LUCK NEXT TIME.

"Did the telephone operator give you the wrong number again?"

"I guess the number was all proper enough," replied the subdued citizen, "only I didn't happen to be the right party to fit it."

BOKHARA: STRATEGIC CENTER OF TRANS-CASPIAN REGION

Reported nervousness on the part of the Bolshevik leaders at a growing restiveness under Soviet institutions in the region of the Caucasus, raises the question whether similar conditions may not be present in Bokhara, just across the Caspian. The Bolshevik army and counter plots have followed another bewilderingly during the last few years.

Bokhara, dusty and tawny, is nevertheless a colorful city because of the striking costumes of the male inhabitants. The women, clad in somber tones and hiding their faces behind horsehair veils which resemble a protective coloration which enables them to move like shadows about the ancient city. But the Bokhara male, be he Uzbek, Sart, Persian, or Tajik, utilizes all the colors and tints of the solar spectrum in his costume.

Bokhara is an important religious center. It has 364 mosques. With a practically unknown railway running south to the Afghan frontier, its location in the midst of Central Asia gives it a strategic importance that is little appreciated. The Amu had a Klantite of Bokhara has an area about equal to that of Utah but with four times the population. Since the outbreak of the war, its fortunes have varied. Part of the time it has been an independent khanate, showing its prerogative by taking up the rails of the Trans-Caspian railway which passed through its territory. Several times it has been under the control of the Bolshevik forces. The Amu had a picturesque army of about 11,000 soldiers, many of whom carelessly lounged along the stone passageway which leads up to the Ark or castle.

On this incline, in front of the royal residence, formerly there was enacted every Friday morning a ceremony impressive in its dignity and dazzling in its color effects. Hundreds of sun mullahs, clad in bright silk robes of stick candy stripes or gorgeous gold suns on purple fields, belted with silver, and with buckles as large as salad plates, gathered here in impressive rows, each with a priceless prayer rug beneath his feet.

These were not the dashing types which once made Mohammedanism a power from Mecca to Gibraltar but the ceremonialists whose religion is a thing of dignity and prosperity, founded on trade rather than life in the saddle. In union, they how low so that only broad backs can be seen, but a moment later all are erect with their spottish white turbans the most prominent feature in a scene so colorful that only an Oriental sun could harmonize it.

Bokhara is architecturally unimpressive but nowhere are there more attractive Oriental bazaars. Brass smiths vie with goldsmiths to add the glint of glowing metal to the half light of the covered souks and there the makers of peculiar Bokhara caps display their brightly colored wares, the edges glistening with soft furs from Siberia.

HONDURAS: LAND OF RIVERS AND BIG DEBT

Honduras, least developed of the five Latin American countries which are now considering the formation of a "United States of Central America," is a country of hills and valleys; of rain and sunshine; of large and small rivers.

A half dozen rivers may be crossed in one day, and while they are usually narrow and shallow, a few hours' rain will turn them into roaring torrents, absolutely impassable. A traveler may be held up for many days by a stream that when he first crossed it was less than three feet in depth.

Honduras is said to be the most backward of all the Central American republics, and she will remain so until railroads cross the country and the government becomes stable. Then there will be great opportunities there for many, and Americans and American capital will always be welcome.

The country is just a little larger than the State of Pennsylvania, yet it has a population of only a little more than half a million. It has the largest per capita debt of any country in the world—at least it had before the present European war upset all statistical conditions. It owes $220 per capita. Most of this debt was created by loan-shark methods, however, for Honduras would agree to pay $10 to get one—or some such ridiculous proportion.

The name of the country is said to be derived from a Spanish term meaning "depth," and she will remain so until railroads cross the country and the government becomes stable. They were so delighted when they reached the Nicaraguan shore nearby that they called the headland "Cape Gracias a Dios" (Cape Thanks to God), a name it still holds.

As a rule, the night will be spent in a native house, sometimes little more than a hut, built of mud, thatched or roofed with thatch. Apparently always welcome to the host house, a hammock as part of the traveler's outfit is a necessity, for the beds of stretched bull-hide or canvas are usually fully occupied. If not by those at whose houses you are a guest, then by other residents greatly to be feared.

Everybody sleeps in one room—men, women, and children together. Your hosts are curious, but politely so, watching you undress and get into your hammock, with a calm stare that must not be considered impertinent, for a white man is not an every-day visitor. One learns seldom to undress completely.

THE TRAGEDY OF ARMENIA

The plight of Armenia about the end of 1919, a condition which has been aggravated by the recent defeat of Armenian forces by Turkish nationalists, is described in the following communication to the National Geographic Society from Melville Chater.

"Erivan, the capital of Armenia's provisional republic is an inconceivable contrast to the Georgian government seat at Tiflis. At Erivan one finds no spacious prospect, no viceregal palaces, no smart shops, Russian opera, nor any life. To behold misery in Tiflis, one must search it out. In Erivan one cannot escape it.

"This poor, straggling, dingy city of the plains, whose government offices suggest some hastily extemporized election headquarters and whose parliament chamber is crisscrossed with benches and checkers in the auditorium of the second-class theater, boasts of but one beauty, and that—to speak in paradox—is four miles away; for, in whatever quarter of Erivan you may be, if you glance and great Ararat of eternal snows is seen brooding distantly over the mean streets with his aspect of majestic calm. He is the Armenian's Olympus, or rather say, the Sinai of a race which has known bondage and wilderness-wandering, and for centuries a people's imagination has turned toward him.

"The little Erivan republic has been the center of refuge for Turkish Armenians ever since the massacre of 1915, and between 200,000 and 300,000 of them are crisscrossed within its borders. As for the city itself, its former population of 40,000, has been doubled by this influx. There, starvation and typhus have claimed their toll of 9,000, the death rate fluctuating between fifty and eighty a day.

"Though the doctor and I were here to observe the latest phases of the situation, each of us waited for the other to suggest a trip to the Igdir region, where we were told starvation was most acute.

"The town of Igdir, with its local and near-by populations of 30,000 Armenians, 20,000 Tatars, and 15,000 Yezidis, revealed some squalid streets with but a few people seated here and there, as we drove in. Throughout those tortuous, unshaven byways, no children played and no animal roamed. The air was heavy with dreadful silence, such as hangs over plague-stricken communities.

"We found the children, such as they were, inhabiting an orphanage wherein one sickened at puritidity's horrible odor, and were informed that there were neither medicines nor disinfectants where-with to allay the condition of the many little sick beds.

"Sick? Sick, father, the bed-ridden—a word which more justly described those tiny, withered-up, crone-like creatures, upon whose faces the skin seemed stretched to a drumhead's tightness; whose peering eyes shot terror and anguish, as if death's presence was palpably perceptible to them, and whose here at famine's climax of physical exhaustion. In those young, yet grotesquely-aged faces, we seemed to see a long lifetime of tragedy packed into eight or ten childish years.

"The mud huts which we visited presented an invariable picture—a barren, cave-like interior, lacking one stick of furniture or household utensil, and with a few bleached bones scattered here and there."

MUCH LIKE MODERN WOMAN

Drawing of Female of Prehistoric Age Shows Her to Have Been Slender and Graceful.

Contrary to the general opinion, the woman of prehistoric days was slender and graceful, much like the women of today, according to drawings of 20,000 years ago which have been found in the caves of the Colombarie on the Ain, France. A picture of the Venus of the stone age was found. The drawing which was made on a part of the bone of a mammoth has been described by Dr. Lucien Mayet at Lyons university.

The picture, according to Doctor Mayet, shows two figures, a man and the headless torso of a woman. The man well fits the popular conception of the prehistoric man, being covered with hair. But the woman has a figure of exceptionally high type with a slender and graceful waist and the general lines that remind one of the early Greek art. Perhaps the only thing about her that the modern woman might take exception to is that her hips are somewhat prominent.

COMPARATIVE VALUES.

A Pennsylvania man had just lost his faithful cow. His wife became so grieved over the loss that her heart was broken, and she, too, died. Scarcely was she buried when one of the neighbors came and offered his daughter, another his sister and a third his niece for a wife. Whereupon the bereaved man made response:

"Well, I can easily see that it is better to lose a wife than a cow in this place. As soon as my wife is dead a choice of half a dozen wives is offered me, but when my cow died they didn't offer me a single one."

FRESH BREAD DAILY.

HOW STEEL IS MADE

In the two years since the end of hostilities in the World war, the countries suffering most from the conflict have been importing steel to the extent that their finances will permit; for this substance is needed to patch the industrial injuries inflicted by the war. Some of the important methods employed in the making of steel are described in the following communication to the National Geographic Society, by William Joseph Showalter:

"An open-hearth furnace looks a good deal like an ordinary bake-oven; but when one looks in through the water-cooled door, a vast difference appears. Instead of pans of fragrant, fat loaves of baking bread, there is an imposing pool of fiery liquid as bright as the filament of a high-power tungsten lamp, so dazzling that it can be examined with safety to the eyes only by those using colored glasses. Tinted here and there with streaks of soft blue and dainty pink, it looks like melted stick candy.

"In preparing a battery of open-hearth furnaces for a charge, finely-ground dolomite is shoveled in first. This melts like clay and fills up all cracks and cranies caused by the powerful heat of the preceding charge. Then a little train rolls up before the battery, and an electric crane dumps a box after box of scrap metal from the cars into the furnaces. Off some distance is a great steel tank lined with firebrick and full of liquid pig metal.

"When the scrap has melted and the contents of the cauldron are cooked enough; when the impurities have been driven out and rolled away, the fiery broth is 'seasoned,' as it were, with the proper amount of carbon, silicon, ferromanganese, tungsten, ferrosilicon, vanadium, or whatever is necessary to give the desired character to the resulting steel.

"Then comes the tapping of the furnace. An electric crane lifts a great ladle into position, a workman jams a crowbar through a clay-plugged hole at the base, and out flows the fieriest stream into the ladle. The slag rises to the top like oil on water and overflows, congealing on the outside of the ladle. Then the big crane picks up the ladle, swings it over to the pouring platform, where it, in its turn, is tapped and its purified fluid run off into molds.

"Great care has to be taken in handling these ladles, for the presence of a few drops of moisture when the hot metal is poured into one might cause an explosion and loss of life. Just before they receive the molten metal the ladles are heated nearly white hot in order that the steel or iron may not chill in them.

"As fast as they are filled the ladles are swung out over the ingot molds and the liquid steel is run into them and allowed to cool and take its solid form. It is as if water were poured into molds and set in a refrigerating machine to freeze into blocks of ice. The only difference is that the 'freezing' point of steel is away, above the boiling point of water.

"There are two other important types of steel furnaces—the crucible furnace and the electric furnace. In both of them the idea is to keep all harmful gases and other impurities out and to regulate the addition of alloys and oxygen destroyers to a nicety. In a crucible furnace the metal is placed in graphite clay pots, covered and put over them, and the pots subjected to great heat. Silicon is gradually absorbed out of the clay in the pots and transformed into silicon by coming into contact with the carbon in the steel. The silicon in its turn absorbs the oxygen and thus quiets the frothing, foaming contents of the kettle.

"The electric furnace acts in much the same way, its heat being so pure that there is no necessity of putting the steel in covered pots to keep out gases and other impurities. An electric arc, established between huge electrodes and the surface of the slag, produces the heat in such a furnace. By varying the materials used in the formation of the slag any impurity can be worked off and the glowing steel left as pure as crystal. The alloys are then mixed with the steel and it is made fit for any use desired. It is drawn off into ladles, where it hardens, ready to be worked up into those things that constitute the last word in fine steel."

FINGER PRINTS.

The French have hit upon a new idea for the making of finger prints. Instead of rubbing the finger-ends with ink and making impressions upon paper, the X-ray is used.

The finger is first dusted with a fine powder of bismuth, and then an X-ray picture is taken of it. The picture shows not only the ridged convolutions of the skin texture but also the terminal bones of the digit.

These bones are not exactly alike in any two human beings and thus identification is rendered much easier.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"Which was she?" inquired Miss Cayenne, "terribly poor or awfully fashionable?"—Birmingham Age Herald.

THE "OLD RELIABLE" THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

White Haired Alabama Lady Says She Has Seen Medicines Come and Go But The "Old Reliable" Theford's Black-Draught Came and Stayed.

Dutton, Ala.—In recommending Theford's Black-Draught to her friends and neighbors here, Mrs. T. F. Parks, a well-known Jackson County lady, said: "I am getting up in years; my head is pretty white. I have seen medicines and remedies come and go but the old reliable came and stayed. I am talking of Black-Draught, a liver medicine we have used for years—one that can be depended upon and one that will do the work."

"Black-Draught will relieve indigestion and constipation if taken right, and I know for I tried it. It is the best thing I have ever found for the bill, uncomfortable feeling after meals. Sour stomach and sick headache can be relieved by taking Black-Draught. It aids digestion, also assists the liver in throwing off impurities. I am glad to recommend Black-Draught, and do, to my friends and neighbors."

Theford's Black-Draught is a standard household remedy with a record of over seventy years of successful use. Every one occasionally needs something to help cleanse the system of impurities. Try Black-Draught. Insist upon Theford's, the genuine.

DOES THINGS DIFFERENT.
STUDY OUR PLAN.

A careful study of the Devil's River Oil & Gas Company's plan will convince the close student of investments that we are offering the BEST inducement in the oil fields. Oil production in Texas fades the total gold production of Alaska in its best days into insignificance. Alaska's best production of gold was only $15,000,000.00, while Texas is producing about $150,000,000.00 worth of oil. The production is increasing so rapidly that it is conservatively estimated that the output will be close to $300,000,000.00 in 1920.

NO is the time to get in the oil business in order to reap the early harvest. With 600 acres of oil lands to draw from, we anticipate making big profits on our most liberal plan. PROFITS that will make fast friends for our company in future enterprises which we have in mind when the Company's present plans are in operation. DO NOT DELAY your subscriptions. There is nothing to gain and MUCH to lose by deferring until some future date. TRUSTEE ELECTION.
Four trustees for the Sonora Independent School District are to be elected on May 1st. The trustees whose term of office expires at this time are: L. W. Elliott, Mrs. G. B. Hamilton, R. J. Bidley, Geo. J. Trainer. The "Holdover" trustees are Mrs. W. C. Bryson, Mrs. H. P. Allison, and W. A. Miers.

The school is the life or death of a community, such as this, and even of much larger places. The people should take more interest in the election of the trustees because they are the ones on whom the success or failure of the schools depend. Whoever you want for this position should be given such a representative vote that they will do their best with the trust imposed on them. There are only two "Class A" schools in the Scholastic District of which Sutton is one of eleven counties. Why should Sonora remain in "Class B"? There is no doubtless a reason why it is in "Class B" but there is no reason why it should remain there.

Geo. J. Trainer, secretary of the Board of Trustees, estimates that the school next year will cost about $28,000 and pay the present salaries. He says they hope to have more credits this year but to be sure of becoming a "Class A" school they would need another teacher and more room. Manual training and Domestic science could then be added, more libraries and playground equipment secured and Sonora become a "Class A" school. It will soon be necessary to have other buildings and the sooner we have them the better. There is plenty of room on the present site for additional buildings and the campus is one of the largest and best in the State. Let everyone take the proper interest and make Sonora school as good as the best.

Mr. and Mrs. Anne Cosenberry and daughter, Mrs. Mattie B. Cosenberry were in town Monday from the ranch, 20 miles south of town. Mrs. Cosenberry and daughter are spending most of their time on the ranch.

SONORA'S FIRST CHAUTAUQUA QUASUCCESS.

Sonora's first Chautauqua has gone into history. It was a memorable event because of being concluded without financial loss at a time when the products of the country are not selling at their value. The entertainment furnished by the Cadmean Co., was of good quality and the program was diversified to such an extent that all the patrons were pleased with some of the performances. The Woman's Club did the Herculean task of selling the tickets and arranging for the grounds on very short notice. It is doubtful if it could have been done so successfully in any other community. The season tickets were placed at a price that would pay expenses and nothing more was expected at this time, but the Club is $100 ahead for the effort.

A canvas of the people resulted in the request of a return of the Chautauqua next year and the Woman's Club has made the contract. They now know what to expect and what will be required of them and the arrangements will be better next season.

The Chautauqua has established itself as a popular means of bringing to small communities a series of entertainments that otherwise would not be available. This is possible only through the "circuit" employment of many artists for the entire season. Those who have lived where "The Chautauqua" is a regular event find that the entertainment feature becomes secondary to the benefit the community receives from the bringing together of all the people and the benefits there to resting.

TIE THE FLEECES.
With the shearing season at hand and economy the watchword we find that a few of the wool growers are contemplating the saving of a few dollars by not tying their fleeces. Information from those who know marketing conditions, even under the most favorable circumstances of an active demand, it is a mistake for the grower not to tie and tag his fleeces. Take the present wool supply as exceeding the demand and what chance has the untied and untied clip selling early or at true market value. It is the same in everything. Look at the apples in the windows of two stores. Which will you buy first, the polished, clean looking, or those with the dust and travel stains. Same quality, yes, but which attracts you first. You see a bunch of white face calves of about the same size and condition, and another bunch of mixed colors and sizes, which would you buy first. Even with more buyers than steers the even bunch is the first to sell. The cost of tying is estimated at about two cents per fleece but there is no doubt about it being worth the additional expense. You have the desired class of wool so why not try and have it as attractive as it should be. Experts in marketing, pooling or other authorities advise proper preparation of the product. By all means tie and tag the fleeces.

J. J. Yowell, the carpenter, says he is 75 years old and has a story worth repeating. Their cat had three kittens and the kittens died. They had a sutting hen and before time for hatching the hen died. They put the eggs under a neighbors hen and got three chickens. The chickens were brought home and put in the box where the kittens had died and the cat is caring for the chickens by keeping them warm and purring to them. The chickens are now five days old and Bon Amia-what will the cat do.
