Broncos Draw Bead on District Title With 14-0 Win Over Ozona Lions

by Gary McGilvray
The Sonora Broncos swept to their eighth straight victory of the 1965 football season and clinched a tie for the District 8-A championship by blanking the Ozona Lions, 14-0.

The game was a defensive battle from the start, with neither team being able to get within scoring distance during the first quarter.

The Broncos came out in the second quarter and took the ball on their own twenty after an Ozona punt rolled into the end zone. They then marched 80 yards with the aid of an important third-down play in which a fake reverse resulted in a 43-yard pass play from Noe Chavez to Ben Perez to the Lion 28-yard line. A few plays later, Eddie Howell drove over from the five. Mike Wuest kicked the extra point and the Broncos were ahead 7-0 at halftime.

Disaster almost struck down the Broncos on the kick off opening the second half. Lion Bill Carson took the ball and returned it 63 yards before being caught from behind by Howell and Laney Cook. The scoring threat was halted on the very next play when Ben Perez jarred halfback Beto Ramos loose from the ball and tackle Carl Teaff curled around it.

Sonora seemed as if they would score once more when they reached the Ozona two-yard line, but a fumble cost them the ball and six points. The score at the beginning of the final quarter was Sonora, 7 and Ozona, nothing.

About midway through the final stanza, the Broncos took possession once more. This time they marched 59 yards in eight plays with Cook throwing to Howell for 23 yards on a fourth-down play for the score. Wuest added the point and the final score flashed on the scoreboard.

The Bronco defense played a major role in this victory as it allowed Ozona only seven first downs and 101 yards rushing. Defensive stand outs for Sonora were Wuest, Teaff, Mario Sanchez, and Bert Bloodworth.

Doing the honors for the offense were Howell, Cook, Chavez, and Mike Gosney.

SPACE AGE STEWARDSHIP

Years past, when deer numbers had diminished to a dangerously low level in many areas of Texas, hunters and landowners were told the populations could never grow unless the killing of does and fawns were stopped. Save the does to grow more deer for the future, was the basis of the theory.

Sportsmen and landowners were sold on the idea and deer numbers increased. The program was so successful in many areas that deer became so numerous they started damaging crops, causing deterioration of the range food supply, decreasing livestock production, and dying of starvation.

When this happened, game researchers recommended removal of both sexes of deer to bring the herd back to a more reasonable level that would be balanced to the food supply and other conditions. But the biologists' recommendations were not accepted by a segment of the public, which held to the outdated theory of bucks-only hunting.

These individuals failed to consider a change had taken place in the situation and they were plowing modern game problems with mule-drawn theories. Times have changed and modern game management practices are needed.

When the effect of the antlerless hunting program is analyzed objectively it is easy to see that it is a sound program with its own checks and balances. One factor that caused the whole overpopulation problem is the "carrying capacity" of the land, limiting the number of animals a given area of land will support. This includes the animal's demands for food, water, cover, and other necessities of life.

The primary problem in many regions of the State is that the removal of natural predators, the effectiveness of the screwworm control program, and protection from excessive hunting has permitted deer numbers to build up to a level exceeding the "carrying capacity." When this happened, deer starved to death or died from related causes during the hard periods of short food supply, usually in late winter or late summer.

With the antlerless hunting program, extensive population census procedures determine the number of deer present in local areas of each county. The carrying capacity of the land is also determined. With this information, trained personnel can estimate how many antlerless deer should be removed to reduce the threat of starvation, range deterioration, crop damage, and other indications of overpopulation.

Extreme precautions are taken to guarantee that even if every doe permit were issued to landowners and used by hunters to kill antlerless deer, the deer herd would not be in jeopardy. A slight increase in hunting lease income may entice landowners, but they benefit more from better livestock production. Hunters benefit by enjoying additional hunting opportunities.

The antlerless deer program warrants objective consideration by every landowner and sportsman. Deer must be managed along with sheep, goats, and cattle, and included in individual ranch grazing programs, if this extremely valuable wildlife resource is to be properly utilized to benefit all Texans and Texas.

Philosopher Not Excited About Ranch Computers

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on Devil's River shies away from a new idea in ranching.

Dear editor:
I was out here looking this bitterweed ranch over yesterday afternoon without really planning on doing anything about it, I guess the reason some people don't get ahead is that they don't know they're behind, and for no reason at all I kicked a brush pile and a copy of a ranch magazine fell out, which I took home and read that night. At first I thought it was a rabbit.

According to an article in it, electronic computing machines, the kind that guides astronauts down from space when a fuse doesn't blow and they have to do it by hand, will someday be commonplace for ranchers.

You'll carry a tiny tape recorder with you and talk each day's ranch business into it as you go about your work, then at night you plug the recorder into your telephone and a central computer collects your day's reports and stores them in its electronic mind. When you need to make a decision on something, you phone the computer and have it do the figuring for you.

I don't know about businessmen, newspaper publishers, lawyers, etc., maybe they keep their mind on business and nothing else all day, but I reviewed some of my thoughts for one day and I doubt if science has produced a computer that could digest them to any great advantage. Here are some of them: (8 a.m.) There must be some way to figure out a football game where both sides win and everybody leaves the stadium happy. Will work on it tomorrow. (9 a.m.) One way to stop having so many junk yards alongside highways is to stop building so many highways. (10 a.m.) That sick calf will either get well or die, wish he'd do one or the other, I'll check on him tomorrow. (11 a.m.) I'm getting hungry. (1 p.m.) I'll think about Viet Nam after my nap. (2 p.m.) That fence needs fixing. (3 p.m.) Coffee break. A man can't work all the time. (4 p.m.) It's a little late in the afternoon to start rounding up the pasture now. (5 p.m.) When you capture the moon, what have you got? (6 p.m.) I'm hungry. (6:30 p.m.) Time to quit work. Wonder what's on television tonight?

I guess if the government gave me one of these machines to talk into I'd take it, but I believe I can get the same results and do it cheaper just by talking to myself. Yours faithfully,
J. A.

YOUR MINISTER SAYS

Matt 5:14-16 "You are the light of the world. A city set on a hill cannot be hid. Nor do men light a lamp and put it under a bushel, but on a stand, and it gives light to all in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father who is in heaven."

Jesus not only called himself The Light of the World but he said to his disciples you are the light of the world. The purpose of light is to expell darkness, we say, and no better definition of light has ever been given. As followers of Christ we are to expell darkness because that is our mission as the light of the world.

Office supply catalogues advertise globes. Some are illuminated globes and some are not, but the ones that are illuminated by the electric light within costs much more. We find here a parable of what the new testament teaches. When we consider the globe on which we live we see that it is more costly to have a globe that is illuminated by The Light of the World than it is to have a dark, unlighted globe.

It is our calling to pay the cost in strength, time, and money. We find people who give themselves to the good but neglect the best. There are many good community activities that are worthy and we expend ourselves to advance them. We should not, however, give all our strength to that which is not the Light of the World. Our greatest need is to follow the light of Christ. Or we think of how we spend our time and if we are honest we will admit that all too often we have neglected the best in our pursuit of the good, or in some instances the bad. We convince ourselves that we don't have time to be The Light of the World, yet in our better moments we know that we do.

Then too, it takes money to illuminate the world with the Gospel of Christ. Many of us keep for ourselves that which belongs to God. We forget that we are stewards, trustees, and called to be children of Light. We will never be able to bring the light of God's truth to the world until we consider the cost in strength, in time, and in the material wealth that has been entrusted to us.

Everybody was very happy to see Eddie Howell's new rifle. It'll really be great with hunting season just around the corner. Carl Teaff won't have to wait for Santa Claus to get a Barby doll, either! Has anyone noticed the twirlers' new uniforms? They are really pretty.

At the Junction game, Janie Letsinger was named Band Sweetheart. Everybody was really pleased with the Band's choice this year.

Turkey Designated As Plentiful Food For "Turkey Month"

November in the United States traditionally has been "Turkey Month."

Turkey Month 1965 will be just that, for turkeys are plentiful, says the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Also termed plentiful this month are onions, cabbage, rice, split peas, and sweet potatoes, as well as apples, prunes, and frozen concentrated orange juice.

Potatoes, onions, and rice all are scheduled to be on hand in abundance, reflecting record crops. The fall potato crop is estimated at 20.9 billion pounds, 22 percent above last fall, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Production of late summer onions for storage is set at over 20 billion pounds.

Better than average split pea supplies this November should make excellent low-cost food buys, while cabbage is expected to be in better supply than last year — about eight percent more.

Extension officials note that apple production this year is expected to rank second largest since 1949, with a total commercial crop estimated at 133.2 million bushels.

Food shoppers also will find sweet potato stocks well above last year. In fact this year's crop is expected to run about 200 million pounds more than in 1964, according to the Agricultural Extension.

Congress Appropriates Funds for Screwworm

Funds spent on the screwworm eradication program by the federal government no longer will have to be fully matched with non-federal money, thanks to action taken by Congress during the closing days of the session, announced screwworm officials.

Some matching is still required, however, particularly of those costs of treating screwworm outbreaks that occur in U. S. areas where screwworms have already been eradicated, officials added. Nevertheless, the expense of maintaining a barrier zone along the U. S. - Mexico border to guard against reinfestation by fertile flies will be borne by the federal government.

Congress voted $2.8 million for maintenance of the barrier. It also appropriated $320,000 for an intensive survey of screwworm problems in Mexico and $1 million to cover eradication activities in Arizona and California—the only states where screwworms have not been eradicated. Of the latter amount, $600,000 will have to be matched by the two states.

Since inception of the eradication campaign in February 1962, half of the costs have been paid by the federal government, the other half by the livestock industry and state governments in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, pointed out eradication officials. The livestock industry, through the Southwest Animal Health Research Foundation, has raised nearly $4 million on a voluntary basis.

Dolph Briscoe Jr., Foundation president of Uvalde, praised the action of the Congress, stating that it "assured protection of all states from reinfestation by screwworms which have caused up to $100 million damage annually."

Briscoe stressed to livestock producers that they still have an important obligation to the eradication program, and urged them to continue to support the campaign by treating animal wounds and reporting infestations.

Girl, Cub Scouts Present Program At P-TA Meeting

The Girl Scouts and Cub Scouts gave the program at the monthly Sonora P-TA meeting Tuesday.

Mrs. Bill Morriss, president, opened the meeting and Smith Neal read a Thanksgiving poem.

Various troupes of Brownies and Girl Scouts gave Scout pledges and laws and told what it means to be a Scout today. They exhibited samples of rope and twine lashings.

The Cub Scouts were under the direction of George Wallace and Mrs. Lawrence Finklea, den mother of Den 6. These Scouts told of their aims and goals.

A business meeting was held after the program and it was announced that Mrs. Moore's sixth grade had won the ice cream party prize awarded for P-TA membership.

Rex Lowe, superintendent, gave a resume of the ten amendments that were voted on Tuesday.

As the members of the P-TA left the auditorium they visited a science exhibit in Mrs. Conaway's room.

Refreshments for the meeting were furnished by Mrs. Steed's kindergarten class.

Local Merchants Sometimes Responsible For Home-Town Christmas Shopper Loss

Samuel S. Talbert, Ph. D. Chairman, Dept. of Journalism University of Mississippi

Seventy percent of the shoppers who perennially leave small cities to buy Christmas needs in distant metropolitan centers gain nothing in variety or savings.

This estimate, made from a study of markets in cities under 25,000, is considered conservative by some retailers. The merchant may justly wonder why local citizens — perhaps his own family — travel 50 or 100 miles to buy Christmas gifts.

Who is responsible for the recurrent sapping of community wealth? Why is loyalty to the local community so flagrantly void?

The merchant who raises such questions should look first to himself. He may be responsible.

The retailer who fails to inform consumers that his bicycles or doll carriages are attractive in price and quality may be responsible for shopping in metropolitan media.

It is an essential service in retailing to inform the community that variety, brand names, and bargains are conveniently available.

The consumer habitually depends upon newspaper advertising to complete a lengthy Christmas list. He cannot shop at home if he does not know who has what in local stores.

The shopper, then, often fails his local retailer only because the retailer first fails to provide an essential service through advertising.

Halloween Dance Club Has Annual Party

Halloween decorations prevailed and best costumes were judged when the annual masquerade party was held by the Halloween Dance Club Saturday night.

Most original costumes were worn by Mr. and Mrs. Jerrold Duncan, and Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Humphreys wore the scariest costumes. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trees' costumes were judged the funniest.

Sandwiches and dips were served, and decorations included cats and pumpkins.

Lee Roy Valliant and the Devil's

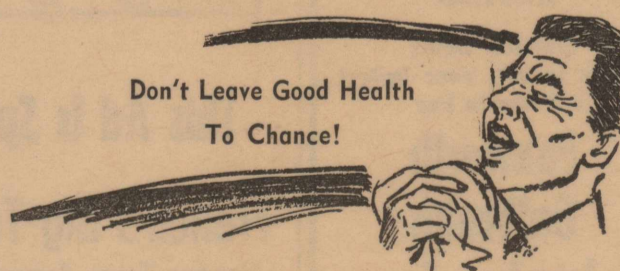

River Ramblers provided dance music. Approximately 100 persons attended.

Club president is Frank Adkins, and Darcy Carroll is secretary.
