The New Era, a semi-submersible drilling rig, is en route to the Baltimore Canyon area off the coast of New Jersey where Conoco will use it to hunt for new petroleum reserves. The rig left the Texas gulf coast March 30 on a two week trip around Florida to its drilling site. Now officials are worried that offshore drilling off the coast of New England will bring a dramatic boost in the number of workmen compensation cases filed. They said the injury problem could be "a sleeping giant."

Nightmares terrorize volunteers

CINCINNATI (AP) — They tried to help. Now they need aid because of what they saw after last May's fire that killed 165 people at the Beverly Hills Supper Club.

Aftermath Center. "Many of the people who worked as volunteers have complained of having nightmares. The bodies and the scene of the morgue are common elements in most of these dreams."

Lindy said Tuesday that of the 50 people the center has seen since opening in January, one-third were people who tried to help after the fire at the Southgate, Ky., supper club.

Some people have come together to share their common experience. "They have sought each other out," Lindy said. "They are dealing with deaths of a unique and sudden quality. Few people can share with them the experience that 'yes, we were there when the lights went out, or yes, we went through those rows of bodies at the morgue.'"

Winds smash West Texas town

By The Associated Press
Tornado-like winds smashed through the tiny community of Pansy near Lubbock late Tuesday night highlighting a gusty, wet weather picture that was expected to continue across northwest sections of the state today.

State police reported no injuries but said debris was scattered throughout the town, located 10 miles northeast of Crosbyton in Crosby County. High winds knocked down power lines, uprooted trees and destroyed some barns. A church also lost its roof to the storm.

Many volunteer firemen who battled the blaze have gathered to talk about their common experience. Lindy said a benefit performance for the children of the survivors grew out of a desire by supper club employees to get together again.

Hospital pushes surgery

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — You give us your appendix, we'll give you a chance at a $4,000 vacation. That could be the advertising pitch of a hospital which is trying to lure elective surgery patients in on normally idle weekends.

So along with a local advertising agency, the hospital came up with a plan. Elective surgery patients are given a chance to win a trip, valued at up to $4,000, to wherever they want to go, in a lottery. And it worked.

problem common to hospitals. Expensive equipment at the $40 million facility was overworked during the week but lay nearly unused on weekends.

Caucus endorses cut in SS taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Democratic Caucus today endorsed a cut in Social Security taxes and voted to use income taxes and other general revenues to help finance Social Security.

The vote by members of the party that has nearly a 2-to-1 majority in the House was 150 to 57.

The non-binding resolution adopted by the Democratic caucus does not endorse any particular amount of general treasury funds to be used for Social Security, which now is financed by payroll taxes equally levied on employers and employees.

The resolution neither specified how much Social Security taxes should be cut nor whether the taxes should be cut more or less than the tax increases voted by Congress last year when the lawmakers adopted a plan to bolster the sagging finances of the system with tax hikes of $227 billion over 10 years, beginning in 1979.

32 Congressmen get extra check

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Glenn, Bob Dole and Barry Goldwater have something in common besides the title, "U.S. Senator." All three get a second check from the government each month in addition to their congressional salary.

Lloyd, a California Democrat, draws $618 a month in military pension for his 21 years in the Navy.

Lloyd and Glenn, an Ohio Democrat, are the only two members of Congress that are retired regular armed forces officers. All the others held reserve commissions. The difference is that the pensions for Glenn and Lloyd are reduced several thousand dollars a year because of a law designed to discourage retired officers from going into civilian federal jobs.

A sick prescription

The sick dollar is now in intensive care but is not responding to treatment and hovers between sharp drops in life signs and slight improvement. The United States and West Germany announced a joint plan designed to cure, but the patient's response was feeble.

International exchange dealers in Frankfurt, Zurich and London were unimpressed by the measures taken.

As the dollar continues to weaken, American military families living abroad are hit by immediate effects and are hard put to survive. Americans at home can take little comfort over the long range effects of the dollar sickness.

Under the joint agreement (the proposed cure) the U.S. bought 3.5 billion marks in an attempt to shore up the staggering dollar. To do this the United States borrowed $1.75 billion.

The U.S. increased its borrowing from the West German central bank from $2 billion to $4 billion.

Right on the heels of the joint announcement, an active demand on the silver commodity market pushed the price 13.5 cents an ounce in New York and 17.5 an ounce in Chicago. Silver, like gold, is an historic hedge for investors when currencies become in doubt.

In one week the total price jump for silver was 48.5 cents bringing the present silver price to $5.47 per ounce. Bags of pre-1965 silver coins with a face value of $1,000 are still being traded on the exchanges, and they jumped from $3.540 to $3,900 in one week.

This means that one hundred dollars in real silver coins is now worth $390 just for the silver it contains. At that rate any silver quarter will soon be worth a devalued paper dollar.

Before the worthless clad coins, silver dimes, quarters and half dollars had about 93 cents per dollar of precious metal in their content.

The treatment prescribed to "cure" the sick dollar has been termed a "Band-Aid" measure, and little optimism has been noted. Even the president of the West German central bank did not express any positive hope. A Swiss dealer said the plan "wasn't very much," and a German dealer said the plan will not do the trick.

Like the fellow who runs around town from loan firm to loan firm trying to stay ahead of a final accounting, our Uncle Sam is not presenting a pretty picture as he attempts gimmickry instead of fiscal responsibility. If the dollar is to regain its health it will take bitter medicine to halt its demise. Increases in federal spending must be exchanged for decreases. Trying to borrow ourselves out of debt will only lead to inflationary chaos and monetary collapse. Tricky maneuvers only stave off the ultimate accounting and will add to its impact.

Trouble in industrial paradise

News Service

NEW YORK — Having enjoyed a Revere whistling teakettle for years, I recently decided to treat myself to a new one. Not that the old one didn't work well. I just thought it would be nice to have one that wasn't scratched and dulled by a dozen years of use, so I bought another just like it, same brand, at a well-known city department store. I took it home, filled it with water and waited until it boiled. No whistle. I got in the car and drove 20 miles to the suburban branch, where I got to see the service manager. He laughed. "No kidding?" he said. "I guess it was connected up wrong. Just bring it on in and we'll take care of it."

But the service department isn't open Saturdays or evenings, and I'm a commuter. By the time they open in the morning, I'm already on a Conrail train broken down in the tunnel north of Grand Central. "Just bring it on in" is not as simple as it sounds. An understanding boss made it possible for me to get it to the service station again, where I cooled my heels, waiting for the man who had misconnected it to reattach the job. When he got it burned - out radio light on my dashboard. The radio itself worked just fine. When I picked up the car, the service bill included three dollars for "bulbs," and a $15 charge for "labor, replacing radio bulb." It seemed like a lot but I paid it.

The next morning I turned on the radio. It didn't play. It did play at night, however, and I soon figured out why. It had been reconnected in such a way that it only played when the headlights were on. I called the service manager. He laughed. "No kidding?" he said. "I guess it was connected up wrong. Just bring it on in and we'll take care of it."

Of course, I didn't know this when I set the alarm. Even chimes are alarming when they ring, as they did, at 3 a.m., waking both my husband and me. Whoever worked on the clock also didn't know much about removing and replacing the front glass. The clock had been returned to me with the fixed I was told, "There's no charge."

I have an old General Electric alarm clock that I really like, because it wakes me with gentle chimes. They don't make that alarm anymore. But I seem to be having trouble with light bulbs — the one that lights up the face of the clock at night had expired. So I was really happy when G.E. opened an appliance service center in the next town. They're not open Saturdays or evenings either. I spent part of a vacation day taking the clock to the service center.

When I picked it up, it was packaged in a tied sack and it never occurred to me to examine it. As it turned out, whoever had replaced the bulb had jiggled the alarm hand loose so that when the big hands went around they pushed the alarm hand along with them.

For Christmas, we bought ourselves a king-sized Fieldcrest electric blanket at a city department store. It came with dual controls. One didn't work. I went back to the blanket department and spoke to a saleswoman who said, "No sweat, just return the blanket." Perseverance got me to a "floating" floor manager. I explained that we really wanted the blanket, and that it would be easier all around and certainly more profitable for the store if I might just bring in the faulty control and have it exchanged. She went off to discuss it with the buyer and returned to the floor with a big smile. "Done!" she said. "Just bring in the control and ask for me. If I'm not here, ask for the department manager. I'll fill her in." Two days later, I showed up with the nonworking control. My "floater" was not around. I found the department manager. No one had filled her in and she didn't know what I was talking about. "Anyway," she said, "we don't have any spare controls. Why don't you just return the blanket?"

This was my third trip to the department, and I had already paid the bill. I made for the store's executive quarters. The president's secretary sat in a small office outside his. I asked to see him. "Mr. Christian doesn't talk to customers," she told me. "and besides, he isn't in." "When will he be back?" I asked her. "Not today," she replied. (Was he out talking to Marshall Field about selling the store?)

I surprised myself by what I did next. I sat down on the sofa opposite her and announced, "Well, I've come a long way, and with the store's approval, to exchange a defective item which I have paid for. I will not leave this office until someone in a position of authority sets this right."

Mr. Christian's secretary turned back to her paper work. I began to sweat. What if the store closed and I were still sitting there? I couldn't back off now. "If you like," said the secretary, calmly, coldly, "I'll arrange for you to talk to Mr. Stern." She told me that he was a man hired to talk to customers who had problems. Eventually, Mr. Stern showed up and listened to my tale. He took me back to Blankets, found my "floater" and instructed her to give me a new control. But (a) the store did not have any, (b) there were no more blankets of the kind I had bought and (c) "The lady who sold you that blanket didn't know the stock. She's from Pillows and only helps out when we're busy. She should never have been in Blankets."

For an additional $45, the store traded me up to a blanket with a special feature. The Fieldcrest instruction pamphlet that came with this more expensive model read: "The control marked 'label side' operates the side of the blanket to which the label is attached. Be sure to place each control on its proper side of the bed." Trouble is, neither of my controls is marked "label side." I have just sent off a letter to Fieldcrest.

I think our once - great industrial society is going down the drain. I don't think it's the fault of the people who run our big manufacturing companies. At dinner once, I sat next to the president of the company that makes my whistling teakettle. He struck me as a very decent sort, smart and competent, the kind of man who would surely want my kettle to whistle. And once, in a business meeting, I met a number of General Electric executives. They didn't seem like people who would want to crack my clock case and wake my husband in the middle of the night.

So what's going on here? Why the shocking decline in craftsmanship and service? Why the mix-ups with the retailer? Do the problems stem from a lack of dedication among workers? The new adversary relationship between government and business? The fact that there are so many young people who never knew when it was any better?

I don't know the answers. All I know is that there are days when I think maybe we should just sit back and let the Japanese, who seem to be much better at making products, take over everything. Then, if someone cracked my clock case or hooked my radio to my headlights, I'd know it was an accident.

Observer: presidential catnip

By RUSSELL BAKER
(c) 1978 N.Y. Times
News Service

NEW YORK — In 1959 the old propeller - driven Lockheed Constellation in which President Eisenhower used to travel the country was displaced by the new jet - powered Air Force One, and the age of the worldwide Presidential air circus was born. It was another illustration of advancing technology's power to expand man's scope for inconsequentiality.

Although Presidents could now leap mighty oceans and speed across continents faster than a moving bullet, the dynamics of world touring always required them sooner or later to come to earth. And when they did, of course, their problems were the same problems they had left on the desk back in Washington, and not a whit easier of solution for having been sped around the planet and hauled out over the ceremonial punch bowl for inspection by the Pope, emperors, prime ministers, khans, kings, generalissimos and assorted tyrants temporarily resident at the palace between coups.

General Eisenhower's first trip established the model most barnstorming Presidents have followed since. Leaving Washington in early December 1959, he romped through 11 nations and covered 18,500 miles in less time than it takes to do the Christmas shopping. I still have a souvenir recording some of the statistics of the expedition. Total flying time: 37 hours, 54 minutes. Top speed: 620 m.p.h. Fuel consumed: 79,813 gallons. And so forth. I recite them here because they record the only precise even of any lasting interest that seemed to be happening.

President Eisenhower was setting an astounding Presidential travel record. The record was easily broken by Lyndon Johnson, never one to let another man outdo him at bestriding the narrow world like a colossus. On one occasion, finding himself in Australia, Johnson decided to fly back to Washington via the European route, thus becoming the first President to circumnavigate the earth.

To lend the European route some semblance of purpose, he hastily arranged to put down in Rome and meet with the Pope.

Meeting with the Pope is considered very high - powered activity in global barnstorming. Eisenhower had done it in 1959 and Kennedy did it in 1963.

In any case, Johnson was able to scour up a bronze bust of himself aboard Air Force One to fill the need for a ceremonial present and, having bestowed it upon His Holiness, went back to the airport to complete his globe - girdling record.

It is probably wrong to suggest that absolutely nothing of consequence occurs on these Presidential junkets. President Kennedy's journey to Paris and Vienna in 1961 established his wife as the toast of Paris and left Nikita S. Khrushchev so unimpressed with the new President that he decided he could convert Cuba into a Soviet missile base with impunity. Which of course brought us to the edge of thermonuclear war the following year.

The Ford and Nixon trips to China and the Soviet Union differed from conventional Presidential barnstorming in having specific diplomatic purposes. They signaled publicly certain diplomatic changes worked out in advance. Even these trips, however, were timed to exploit the domestic political capital which usually accrues to the globe - trotting President.

To say that Presidents go jetting over the globe only to improve their popularity polls, however, ignores the most troubling aspect of these tours. Of course, world touring is good for their polls. It provides the sort of superficial spectacle that is catnip to the press and particularly to television. The President is seen being hailed by the alien millions, and though many of them may be so primitive that they don't even know what a President is, back home the spectacle of President on a hero's progress through distant lands is politically superior to the humdrum sight of President being pushed around by the Congress on butter - and - egg issues. This is the stuff that winning is made of. (Although it doesn't invariably work: Nixon's triumphal train ride through Egypt when Watergate was worst seems to have been perceived everywhere as an irrelevant and fraudulent attempt to change the subject.)

The danger, however, is not that the voters are likely to be deceived, but that the President is. It is far more gratifying to walk the red carpet in alien capitals and talk foreign policy with distant rulers than it is to sit in the dull air in Washington swelling on garbage disposal, slums, unemployment and the intractability of Congressmen. Thus, it is not surprising that Presidents invariably persuade themselves that foreign policy is so urgent that they can afford to spare little time on domestic affairs and end by letting the internal problems of the country go over to the next Administration.

For President Carter, who has taken rough treatment on his domestic program, this could be a most juicy temptation.

Infrastructure

Ready for socialized medicine

With 30 years of socialized medicine under its belt, what is the prognosis in Great Britain? "In fact, the demand is endless and the cost has exploded."

This is how Anthony Thistlewaite of the British Medical Association sums up the socialized medicine experience in a country where one more social program helped to shake the whole economics roof down.

When it was launched July 5, 1948, as the National Health Service, the hope was that once total health care was provided, everybody's health would improve and there would be a reduced demand for services at a later date.

That has not happened. In 1977, the program cost $11.7 billion, almost 11 percent of Britain's total spending.

And the greatest part of the cost — 70 percent — now goes for wages for the 900,000 person payroll. Britain's National Health Service is also its largest employer.

The cost? Each worker pays 5.7 percent of his salary and his employer 8.75 percent. But the money isn't enough and there is now a shortage of hospitals and beds with a waiting list of 591,000 persons to enter hospitals for elective surgery. It is anticipated that another $3.8 billion is needed now to keep the program going.

The physicians are also affected, according to one London doctor who said: "Doctors' standards of living are falling behind Europe and the United States."

In the United States, a bill for a national health insurance program — the euphemism for socialized medicine — is already in Congress with the blessings of President Carter.

If it is ever enacted the American public will be strapped with a worse money - hungry animal than Social Security turned out to be, and saddled with another massive arm of the mushrooming bureaucracy.

We must note that by careful planning the infrastructure for socialized medicine in this country has been already erected. There will be no problem with delivery of services or controls. Congress will be told by backers.

The infrastructure has a lot of letter names, like HMO, AHEC, and PSRO.

These are the letters to existing programs set up under federal legislation. HMO stands for Health Maintenance Organization and is supposed to act as a medical insurer. Tried in places, some HMOs have already failed, but others are supposedly working.

AHEC stands for Area Health Education Center, also a federal program, and buildings are now in place all across the country to provide this link to federal grants coming in and training and various programs for health personnel.

Now comes the PSRO, which is a designation for Professional Standards Review Organization, another creature created by the federal government under which regional or local groups of physicians are supposed to review the performances of their colleagues and operations to see if the quality of medical care is up to par and to determine if each operation was needed.

The PSRO will be an important ingredient in the socializing of medicine in this country, because it will probably end up acting as the government's eyes, making sure no one is ripping off fees for operations, since the money to pay for everything will be abundantly available.

Abundantly available, that is, from the taxpayers, if the American public permits this Congress to sic such a dragon on them.

Why don't they just bug off

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Co-Editor

Fellow by here the other day asked me to vote for him in one or another of the many political races extant.

Told him politics is one bad habit in which I no longer indulge. Swore off.

He sputtered. Indicated that if folks didn't turn out and vote in sufficient numbers something terrible might transpire. His opponent might even win and wouldn't that be awful.

I said as much as I could to him. I wouldn't give 10 cents for the difference between two politicians in the entire game.

"Okay, so the government may have some problems," he admitted. "Wouldn't you still rather have me down there representing you than my opponent?"

And thereby hangs a tale. I'm reminded of that story about the cotton farmer.

A couple of Texas A&M government - paid ag researchers scientists had some opposing theories on boll bugs.

"I've developed a strain of big bugs that we should introduce to your field," one scientist told the farmer. "My research shows that this big variety will do less damage because they don't have as much energy as little bugs."

"But how do they get to be big bugs unless it's by eating more than the little bugs in the first place?" The other scientist, a small bug advocate retorted.

"I'd rather not have any bugs in my field at all," the cotton farmer offered.

"Oh my," the scientists said in unison. "You're always going to have some bugs. If you've got cotton you're going to have some bugs. There's no way to get around that. It's always been that way."

That's the way it is with government. The best thing for us all would be to be entirely free — no federal regulations, no taxation, no governmental fetters of any kind.

"But that's impossible," the politico cries. "Always has been a government, always will be. I can't do away with it. But I'll be a better office holder than my opponent."

What kind of choice is that? Big bugs or small bugs. The real opportunity would be to choose a field free of bugs.

But it's obvious what would happen then. All the boll bugs and the boll bug researchers would be out of work because everybody would choose to live with a bug - free field.

So we're told the only logical thing for us to do is listen to the rhetoric and try to vote for the lesser of the two weevils.

Something's wrong with a system like that.

Jury acquits Tyler businessman

TYLER, Texas (AP) — It took weary jurors more than 18 hours and one stern admonishment from State District Judge Glenn Phillips to acquit businessman Don Trull of aggravated kidnapping charges stemming from an Aug. 9, 1977 incident.

The jurors returned the innocent verdict Tuesday night after two days of numbing deliberations.

Trull, who claimed he held a man hostage to recover $1.5 million he lost in deals involving paroled swindler Billie Sol Estes, took the news dry-eyed and without emotion.

"I was just thinking about winning, that we were going to win," Trull said later.

Asked if he expected the verdict, he said, "Yes sir, I sure did."

"The jury heard all the evidence available and determined it did not convict beyond a reasonable doubt," said Smith County District Attorney A.D. Clark III. "By golly, I have no quarrel with the jury's verdict."

"You might say that we had great confidence in the jury," said defense attorney G. Brockett Irwin. "We felt, regardless of the verdict, that they had given the case full, fair and impartial consideration."

Jury foreman Hilmar Kuhlman declined to talk to newsmen about the verdict. "We don't have any comments. We're just tired and we want to go home," he said.

Phillips had sternly admonished the deadlocked jurors earlier in the evening to press for a verdict.

"Some jury, sometime, will have to try this case," Phillips told the jurors. "You are that jury and it seems to me that you should make every effort to reach a unanimous verdict."

Trull, 40, was charged with dousing the Tyler office of millionaire Billy Pyron with gasoline, taking Bill May, a Pyron employee, hostage and threatening to ignite the office during a four-hour standoff with police.

Trull claimed during and after the standoff that Pyron and Estes hoodwinked him out of $1.5 million in a series of complicated business transactions.

The jury has sent out more than a dozen notes, requesting evidence and testimony from the week-long trial that was highlighted by a courtroom appearance by Estes and numerous allegations of perjury and shady business deals.

The panelists spent three hours in the courtroom Tuesday morning, listening to tapes of May's testimony about the incident. Irwin later said that was a pivotal point in the deliberations.

The jurors began deliberations about 1:30 p.m. Monday and continued until midnight, taking only a dinner break. Phillips ordered the jurors sequestered at midnight Monday. Deliberations began again at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Phillips did not allow the jury last week to hear testimony by Pyron and Estes about alleged business transactions with Trull, ruling that it was not relevant to the kidnapping charge.

Many of the sessions out of the jury's earshot were heated. At one point, attorneys for both sides accused the other's witnesses of lying under oath.

Documents Trull took from the Abilene office he shared with Estes in 1976 have sparked state and federal investigations into Estes' alleged recent business activities in violation of his strict parole.

Estes was paroled in 1971 after serving six years of a 15-year federal prison sentence for his multi-million dollar swindle.

During Monday's closing arguments, Irwin delivered a revival-like plea to the jury, brandishing a Bible in one hand, his other on Trull's shoulder.

Irwin said Trull was just "running a bluff" at Pyron during the incident at the office in an attempt to recover his losses.

Clark said, however, that Irwin's defense was "throwing a skunk in the jury box... to put anybody on trial except the defendant."

Children still eat paint

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has spent seven years and nearly $9 million on research, but still doesn't know how best to prevent children from poisoning themselves by eating lead-based paint.

In 1971 and 1973, Congress ordered the Department of Housing and Urban Development "to determine the nature and extent of the problem of lead-based paint poisoning in the United States, particularly in urban areas, and the methods by which lead-based paint can most effectively be removed from... surfaces to which children may be commonly exposed."

A lengthy report obtained by The Associated Press concedes that HUD still doesn't know the nature and extent of the problem or how best to solve it. It recommends further study.

In 1973, HUD concluded that most lead poisoning in the United States occurred among pre-school-age children who lived in run-down, inner-city tenements and apparently ate lead-based paint that was cracking or peeling off the walls.

There were estimates at the time that more than 200 children a year died from what came to be known as "ghetto malaria," and thousands more suffered severe brain damage, mental retardation or other serious injury.

Congress banned paints containing more than a trace of the toxic metal, and HUD directed its efforts "at improving the effectiveness and lowering the cost of abating lead-based paint hazards."

The agency's most recent report, still in draft form, shows it has doled out millions of dollars in research contracts to study the problem and come up with new means of detecting lead paint in buildings and getting rid of it or covering it up.

A private firm has developed a portable, $4,500 machine that can measure the amount of lead in multiple layers of paint on a wall without defacing the paint or requiring laboratory analysis.

But "the major emphasis of HUD's research program on lead-based paint poisoning prevention has been on hazard abatement" — removing the menace, the report said. And that effort was less successful. HUD paid the National Bureau of Standards to come up with a classification scheme that suggested four categories of techniques for getting rid of the hazard.

After complicated, technical field testing and analysis the report concluded:

"It is impossible to present a precise evaluation of these methods and to make yes or no recommendations about their use."

The agency then asked private industry to help it find cheaper, easier and more effective ways of dealing with the problem. It received 170 responses identifying 83 "potentially promising" products.

In the meantime, the report said, "There has been no significant action to remove lead-based paint from housing."

Hill accuses Briscoe of using scare tactics

By The Associated Press
Attorney General John Hill, accusing Gov. Dolph Briscoe of "scare tactics," says there will be enough money in the Texas treasury next year to cover Hill's proposed $1.3 billion increase in education spending.

While other candidates remained on the campaign trail as the final month of campaigning approached, Briscoe was in Washington today for discussions concerning a proposed deepwater port off the Texas coast.

Hill said Tuesday Briscoe is using "scare tactics" and trying to spread the "big lie" that Hill would raise taxes. The attorney general told a news conference in San Antonio that he would veto any personal or corporate income tax.

The attorney general said he thought he could win the May 6 Democratic primary without a runoff.

Another Democratic candidate Former Gov. Preston Smith, said if he is elected he will submit emergency legislation calling for an immediate 6.8 percent pay increase for state employees.

"Instead of giving our state employees a badly needed 6.8 percent increase in the last legislative session, Briscoe chose to put the huge surplus into his pet projects and donate state employees a token 3.4 percent boost, leaving them far behind the cost-of-living," Smith said in a statement.

Gov. Briscoe urged Congressmen W.R. Poage and Eligio de la Garza "to give all due consideration to fashioning a bill that will give the farmers the help they need in this growing season."

"The farmers do not want a handout. They want a 'way out,'" Briscoe said in a telegram to the Texans who are members of the conference committee considering farm legislation.

The governor said Tuesday he will meet with Transportation Secretary Brock Adams in Washington "to underline our commitment to making a state deepwater port off the coast of Texas a reality."

Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements also talked of going to Washington. Clements planned to "fight like a cornered bear" against an attempt by the federal government to take over control of Texas' intrastate natural gas.

Clements told the American Petroleum Institute in Houston that the gas regulation issue is "as sensitive an issue as the offshore tidelands" in the 1950s.

Four more endorsements have been received by U.S. Senate candidate Joe Christie, the candidate said Tuesday. He said they include The El Paso Times and the Tulsa Herald.

Farm bill election year hoax?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The emergency farm aid package headed for votes in the Senate and House — and a presidential veto if it passes — is an election-year hoax, says a disgruntled congressman, designed to lay blame for farmers' troubles on the president.

The bill was approved Tuesday by conferees from the House and Senate, despite administration promises of a veto. It now goes to a Senate vote, possibly this week, and then to the House.

"It's an election issue, and it's rotten," said Rep. Frederick W. Richmond, D-N.Y., a dissenting member of the conference committee. "It's a hoax on the farmers (that this will become law)."

The congressman said conferees approved the bill because "it cleans their skirts. They can blame it on the president."

"I'm disgusted," he added. "This is a disservice to the Democratic Party and to the farmers."

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., sponsor of the most controversial section of the bill, said he didn't know why conferees approved the bill despite the veto threat, "but it happened. I hope we can persuade the president that it's not the monster he's been told it is."

Dole said he sent Carter a telegram asking for a meeting before any final decision is made. "But we're not under the direction of veto threats," he added.

Dole's section, one of the main targets of the veto threat, would allow growers of wheat, feed grains and cotton to secure a federally guaranteed return on their harvest of almost parity, provided they idle one acre for every two planted this season.

Washington (AP) — A six-year-old federal program to reduce noise pollution is "poorly administered and irresponsibly conducted," says Sen. John Culver, head of a subcommittee holding hearings on the results of noise control.

Culver said the Environmental Protection Agency, which has chief responsibility for enforcing the 1972 Noise Control Act, has failed "in so many ways to meet its mandated responsibilities."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new National Advisory Committee for Women will report to the president regularly on "initiatives needed to promote full equality for American women."

President Carter created the committee Tuesday, and said it also should review the recommendations of the now defunct National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will be able to work longer under a new law to be signed by President Carter.

Carter plans to sign into law Thursday a bill that allows federal workers to remain on the job as long as they are able and most people in the private sector to work until age 70.

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Postal Rate Commission goes along with it, large and oddly shaped mail will cost an extra 13 cents by summer.

The Postal Service Board approved the surcharge Tuesday and sent it to the commission for authorization. The surcharge is expected to have its greatest effect on greeting cards, many of which come in unusual sizes.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress "would make us look silly" if it prohibited the Central Intelligence Agency from assassinating foreign leaders or overthrowing other governments, says one of the CIA's organizers.

Clark Clifford, a former secretary of defense, told a Senate committee "at it that prohibition was written into a new CIA charter, "then all activities not prohibited would be at least by inference be permitted."

The seminary received the Bible as a gift from its former dean, the Very Rev. Eugene Augustus Hoffman, in 1898 shortly after he had bought it for $15,000.

Businessmen to teach free enterprise at HS

Members of the Chamber of Commerce and the business and professional community will teach facets of the free enterprise system to three business classes at Pampa High School at 9:30 a.m. Friday.

Members of the Chamber's speakers' bureau will meet to discuss plans for an on-going high school program between business leaders and students at 7 a.m. Thursday at the Coronado Inn.

An as yet undertimed number of leaders will meet with business students in the classes of Mrs. Ronnie Leiker, Marvin Bowman and Linda Kirkpatrick said Mrs. Marjorie Gaut, chairman of the Chamber's free enterprise committee.

Floyd Watson, president of the First National Bank, will speak before the classes are divided into groups led by a business person. The groups will also include a student leader and reporter.

The discussions will include supply and demand, competition, comparison of the free enterprise systems with other economic systems, the profit motive, governmental regulation of business and the open market system, the American work ethic and labor organizations, individual freedom with protected rights and responsibilities and ownership of private property.

The three classes will meet again Monday for a report and discussion from each splinter group to all three classes and an evaluation of the program.

Party won't swap terrorists for Moro

ROME (AP) — The Christian Democrats appear determined not to release terrorists in exchange for former Premier Aldo Moro despite a specific plea for a swap from the kidnapped political leader.

Premier Giulio Andreotti and other top leaders of the government party met Tuesday night after the receipt of the fourth letter from Moro since his kidnapping three weeks ago by members of the Red Brigades, Italy's most feared urban guerrilla group.

After the meeting Il Popolo, the party newspaper, said the party is president of the Christian Democrats, had been forced to make the appeal and did not mean it. It said: "The text of the letter... reveals once more the conditions of absolute coercion in which such documents are written and confirm that this letter, too, is not morally attributable to him."

Andreotti said the same thing in reporting to Parliament Tuesday on an earlier letter from Moro. He said then that the government could only "respond in rejecting in the most firm way any acceptance of blackmail."

This left the possibility of private negotiations by Moro's family. However, a communique from the Red Brigades said: "The trial of Aldo Moro will go forward."

The kidnapers in earlier communications said the five-time premier was being given a premier's trial for "crime against the people" during the years he has been an influential political figure. But one of the 15 leaders of the Red Brigades on trial in Turin said Monday that the organization did not "think it necessary to eliminate Moro individually."

Moro's earlier letter to the government, delivered last Wednesday, only hinted at the possibility that his captors might exchange him for the 15 defendants in Turin. His second letter was more specific, though it still did not specify that it was the Turin 15 whose freedom his kidnapers wanted.

He wrote that an exchange was "the only possible positive solution" and complained: "I am a political prisoner placed in an untenable situation by your hasty decision to close any discussion relating to other persons imprisoned in a similar way. Time is flying and unfortunately there is too little."

"May God enlighten you. We hope that you do quickly what is necessary."

Names in the news

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II reportedly has given her younger sister, Princess Margaret, a royal ultimatum: end her relationship with brewer heir and aspiring night club singer Roddy Llewellyn or withdraw from public life.

Buckingham Palace declined comment on the front-page report today by the Sun newspaper.

"I wouldn't dream of contacting the royal family about private conversations," a palace spokesman said.

The Sun, quoting "a close friend of the royal family," said the queen was "deeply upset" by criticism of the royal family because of the 47-year-old Margaret's friendship with Llewellyn, 17 years her junior.

ATLANTA (AP) — Former budget director Bert Lance says a Time magazine report that claimed a Carter aide called him an embarrassment to the Carter administration was "a complete fabrication."

Also denying the account was a secretary to presidential aide Hamilton Jordan, who Time said told Lance in the White House two weeks ago that Lance "should keep as much distance as possible between himself and the president."

Time said the exchange took place when Lance turned in his diplomatic passport. He resigned last summer under criticism over business practices.

The Atlanta Constitution on Tuesday quoted Jordan's personal secretary, Eleanor Connors, as saying the meeting couldn't have taken place. She said Jordan was in Florida at the time.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Will she or won't she run?

That's the question Sen. Muriel Humphrey says she will answer Saturday at the annual Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party's dinner.

The dinner is being dedicated to her late husband, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who died of cancer Jan. 13. The affair also will serve as a forum for the widow to announce whether she will be a candidate in a November election to fill the remaining four years of his term.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Morris K. Udall is reported in good condition at Bethesda Naval Hospital after undergoing emergency surgery for a ruptured appendix.

A Navy surgeon performed the 40-minute operation after the 55-year-old Arizona Democrat congressman was admitted to the hospital earlier Tuesday suffering severe stomach pain.

Udall, who challenged Jimmy Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976, may remain hospitalized for about a week.

BOSTON (AP) — John Wayne's recovery from open-heart surgery is routine — except for a presidential phone call and televised get-well wishes from Bob Hope.

Martin Bander, spokesman for Massachusetts General Hospital, said Tuesday that President Carter had telephoned Michael Wayne, the 70-year-old actor's son, to say he was praying for him.

Bander also quoted the president as saying: "John Wayne is a great national asset. If there's anything I can do for him, please let me know. He surprises all of us with his ability to recover. Tell him he is in my thoughts and prayers."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The proposed neutron bomb, which President Carter reportedly decided will not be part of the U.S. arsenal, is known to American military men as the equalizer.

U.S. military officials say the weapon could halt a tank attack in central Europe where the Soviets have an estimated 3-to-1 numerical tank advantage.

There has been considerable speculation about Carter's plans for the weapon, which is intended to kill enemy troops with radiation while limiting destruction of the surroundings.

Sources told the Associated Press that Carter has tentatively decided against producing the weapon. He should make a final decision soon, according to State Department officials who declined to be identified.

Bette Davis marks 70th birthday

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bette Davis doesn't hide her age, but she doesn't dwell on it either. "It's just another birthday," she says of her 70th today. "A big one, I'll admit, but I don't believe in birthdays."

An expectable response from an actress who, unlike some others, has never been reluctant to reveal her age: She was born April 5, 1908, in Lowell, Mass.

At 70, Bette Davis exhibits no slackening of her enormous energies. She declined a recent birthday interview — "I'm much too busy with the Academy Awards and all that." She has spent 47 years in films and during the past year appeared in three movies: Disney's "Return from Witch Mountain," the television film "Harvest Home" and the all-star Agatha Christie mystery "Death on the Nile," her 85th movie.

"That's the best thing for me, having my work," she said at the Egyptian location in October. "I would never get married again; that just wouldn't succeed. When your children grow up and leave you, it can be very lonely. Luckily for me, I've got my work to fill the gap."

When she is not working in films, she goes on the road with her one-woman show, screening highlights from her film career and commenting on her life and work.

Mias Davis has always been free and open in her comments, and these are some of her remarks in recent times:

"I've always known the value of the press. They're just as valuable as the performances you give; you can't exist without them. That is something that is lacking today. Young people don't realize the value of publicity. They're fools."

"It took me a long time to learn to fight. In the beginning I wasn't that way at all. It wasn't in my nature, but I realized that you have to force yourself to fight for what you want or they simply won't respect you. I never would have had the same career if I hadn't fought."

"The only thing I worry about is dying without a cigarette in my mouth. People have suggested that I give up smoking, to which I answer, 'Whatever for?'"

"Of Human Bondage" was my first step up the ladder, the first time I was considered possibly a really good actress. The character I played was the first bitch heroine on the screen, and none of the well-known actresses would play it."

"Nuts to growing old. Don't you ever believe that life begins at 40 or that it's wonderful to be 70. I'd give anything to be 30 again. Every so often somebody asks me if I've had my face lifted. I always tell them, 'Would I look like this if I did?'"

"I think the key to life is to never stop accepting its challenges. As far as I'm concerned, once someone stops accepting challenges, he's dead."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional energy negotiators are meeting to write a compromise energy bill, but so far can only agree that "there is complete unanimity of feeling that we have to move fast," says Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

Jackson said conferees hope to complete their work by April 20, the first anniversary of President Carter's presentation of the stalled energy bill to Congress, but that there was no guarantee of even this. The House-Senate committee remains deadlocked over the issue of natural gas pricing.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: How do you tell a husband to SHUT UP? After 40 years of marriage, I have heard everything he has to say at least 15,000 times. I know all his war stories by heart, also his "raised-on-a-farm" routine, and his cures for all the ills of the world. I have had it up to here with his loud, long-winded monologues on politics, religion, business—you name it, he's an authority on the subject.

He demands absolute silence when he's watching a ball game on television, but he thinks nothing of turning the set off in the middle of something I'm watching if he wants to say something.

We have lost most of our friends because of his know-it-all attitude. Who wants to be around someone who talks all the time and never listens? I've listened to him for 40 years and I'm sick of it.

I've read your column for years. So has my husband. He loves your humor. Maybe with humor you can offer a solution to my problem. Thanks for trying. And please don't send any letters to the house. My husband doesn't believe in privacy—except for himself.

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: It will take more than "humor" to solve a problem that's been building for 40 years. Obviously, to improve an ailing marriage both parties must be willing to try. Professional counseling might help. If your husband refuses to cooperate, you can either split, or "bear the ills you have, rather than fly to others that you know not of."

DEAR ABBY: Just a note to protest your approval of giving gifts in someone else's name: If someone were to give Reverend Moon (remember the "Moonies"?) so much as a toothpick in my name, I'd likely go over and blow up his house.

I imagine you have a pile of letters on your desk concerning this subject, so if any of them agree with me (and most should), I'd appreciate it if you would publish them.

DEAR A.P.E.: Some readers agree with you, but you're the only one who threatened to blow up the house of anyone who gave an unauthorized gift in your name.

DEAR ABBY: A comment to BITING MY TONGUE, the wife of the man who tells co-workers that he owns his own home, when in fact he is only renting it.

Ownership of property is a matter of public record. All one needs to know is the address of the property and it can be looked up in the county assessor's book. Other pertinent information, such as when the property was purchased, how much was paid for it, the owner's mailing address, and how much it is taxed is also available.

If the man who falsely claims to own his own home has a job that calls for in-depth investigation of his character and assets, he is in deep trouble. For obvious reasons, lying about such a matter implies a lack of integrity.

So please tell his wife to stop biting her tongue so she can open her mouth and tell her husband what he's toying with.

REAL ESTATE SECRETARY

DEAR SECRETARY: Thanks for the helpful information.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I was happy to see your article on Librium and alcohol but you did not go far enough. The two combined can make even a person who loves life become suicidal. Librium is used extensively in treating alcoholics.

Several years ago I had a nervous breakdown. My family and doctor put me in the hospital. All patients, most of whom were alcoholics, were put on Librium. After a month I was released, with no instructions on continued treatment or warnings about Librium. My family doctor knew little of psychiatry and on identifying my capsules gave me a prescription to continue them. I drink socially but am not an alcoholic.

It was not until several years later and several attempts at suicide, including brushes with the law and commitment to a state institution, that I learned what Librium and alcohol would do.

The law should require any doctor to explain fully the effects of any drug given to a patient.

DEAR READER: Librium is one of many tranquilizers used mostly to eliminate anxiety. Yes, it is used extensively to relieve the anxiety state that so often accompanies the withdrawal from alcohol in the treatment of alcoholics. It is useful in relieving anxiety from any cause—not just from withdrawal from alcohol.

Alcohol is a nervous system depressant and can even be used as an anesthetic. As such it is not a good combination with any tranquilizer or sedative and in many cases interactions do occur. Alcohol has important interactions with many other medicines as well; using it can be a factor in the success or failure of even the complications of a medical treatment prescribed by your doctor.

Caesarean birth has pluses, minuses

By JANE E. BRODY
(c) 1978 N.Y. Times
News Service

NEW YORK—At a time when more and more women are insisting on "natural" childbirth, an increasing proportion of babies are being delivered by what most women consider the least natural way of all—Caesarean section. Nationally, last year one in eight births was by Caesarean—nearly three times the rate a decade ago—and in some hospitals as many as one in four babies are born via surgical incision through the mother's abdomen.

Some view this trend with alarm and charge that many of the operations are unnecessary. Others regard it as a progressive move in obstetrics that is helping to bring forth living, healthy babies in situations that might otherwise be tragic. Recent surveys suggest that both views may be correct, depending on the circumstances.

Whatever the reason it is done, for the parents a Caesarean delivery is often a traumatic experience for which they are totally unprepared. The fathers may feel left out and helpless, the mothers may be overwhelmed with disappointment and taken aback by the pain and temporary incapacitation that follow all major surgery.

Since the large majority of the Caesareans are last-minute operations, decided upon after labor has begun, it behooves every pregnant woman to know something about the operation and its aftermath. At least one study showed that couples who were knowledgeable about Caesareans, who understood the reasons for them and knew what to expect, experienced less emotional trauma as a result.

There are now increasing numbers of prenatal classes for couples who are anticipating a Caesarean delivery, as well as postnatal support groups for women who are trying to adjust to a Caesarean birth. More and more Caesareans are being done under local anesthesia, and some hospitals now allow fathers to remain with their wives during a Caesarean delivery, a move that seems to make the entire experience less trying for both.

Whereas in the past obstetricians concerned themselves mainly with the mother and delivery, today they are much more interested in the quality of the product they deliver. This new focus on the welfare of the baby is the main reason for the recent upsurge in Caesarean births.

Personal health

Until recently, Caesareans were considered operations of last resort, to be done only after extended efforts to deliver the baby vaginally had failed. However, now that all surgery, including Caesarean sections, is much safer thanks to improvements in anesthesia, obstetricians are departing from the "heroic" measures of the past which too often resulted in the delivery of a brain-damaged or stillborn baby.

Rather than risk injuring the baby through the use of forceps or by turning the baby around in the womb, doctors today are more inclined to operate when an easy vaginal delivery is not forthcoming. Thus, most breech or transverse babies—those that are not lying head down in the womb—are today delivered by Caesarean.

At the same time, new equipment has enabled doctors to monitor the effects of labor on the unborn baby. They can detect when a fetus is "in distress" and predict which babies may be harmed if a vaginal delivery is allowed to proceed.

Other reasons for performing Caesareans include the following:

— The failure of labor to progress satisfactorily, perhaps because of a too tight fit through the birth canal.

— A delivery complication such as the appearance of the placenta or umbilical cord before the baby's head, which could result in a loss of oxygen to the baby.

— A complication in the mother, such as diabetes or severe high blood pressure, which could endanger her health and possibly that of her baby if she has a natural delivery.

— A previous birth by Caesarean, which in rare circumstances can lead to rupture of the uterus if a subsequent pregnancy goes to term and the woman goes into labor.

— The threat of malpractice suits, which prompts some physicians to operate when there is the slightest doubt that a healthy baby would result from a vaginal delivery. In an informal survey of 50 leading obstetrical experts in 1975, nearly all mentioned the threat of malpractice as a reason for the recent growth in the Caesarean birth rate.

Although much safer than in the past, Caesareans still entail some risks to the mother, and to the baby as well. The death rate among Caesarean mothers today is one-tenth or less what it was in the 1940s, but there is still an occasional death among women delivered surgically. Major complications, which in one recent study occurred in 6 percent of cases, include hemorrhage, serious infections, blood clots and injury to the bladder or intestines. Approximately a third of Caesarean mothers suffer some complications as a result of the surgery.

The major risk to the baby born by Caesarean is premature delivery. This can happen when the Caesarean is scheduled in advance, usually because the woman had a previous Caesarean, and an incorrect estimate is made of her due date. To guard against delivery of a premature baby, who may suffer from life-threatening lung disease, doctors in many hospitals first test for the maturity of the baby's lungs by taking a sample of the amniotic fluid and determining the so-called L-S ratio, which measures the relative amount of two chemicals produced by the lungs.

In other cases, the doctor may allow labor to begin before he does the surgery, with nature telling him when the baby is ready to be born. Some, in fact, are letting women with previous Caesareans attempt subsequent vaginal delivery (unless the same condition that necessitated the first Caesarean section is present again); most who try it are able to deliver vaginally without strain to mother or child, one study showed.

Except in the case of an ultraemergency, Caesareans today are often done under a local anesthetic that numbs the pelvic region but leaves the woman awake. While she cannot see the actual surgery she can hear everything that is going on and can be handed her baby right after it is born. In hospitals that allow fathers in the operating room, she can talk to her husband and hold his hand throughout the operation.

The type of incision has also changed, with most women now getting whittis called the "bikini" cut—crosswise just above the vaginal hairline—which is much less destructive to abdominal muscles and which permits the scar to be covered even by a skimpy bathing suit.

Following a Caesarean, the woman is given pain-relieving drugs as needed and is fed intravenously until her intestinal tract overcomes the temporary paralysis that often follows abdominal surgery. The average hospital stay in uncomplicated cases is four to eight days. However, full recovery to normal energy levels can take six weeks or longer.

But the emotional "complications" sometimes last for years. It is not uncommon for women to feel depressed and inadequate for not delivering vaginally, as well as cheated out of a natural birth experience. Caesarean fathers may have similar feelings, especially if they had prepared for natural childbirth and instead were banned from the operating room. Breast-feeding, which Caesarean mothers can do as well as others, often helps to counter the mother's negative feelings.

So do Caesarean support groups, nearly 100 of which now exist around the country. To find out about such groups and about prenatal classes that discuss Caesareans, contact the Lamaze or other childbirth preparation course in your area or write to one of the following groups:

C-SEC, 181 High Street, North Billerica, Mass. 01862; Maryland Caesarean Section Association Inc., 2403 Shellydale Drive, Baltimore, Md. 21208; or International Childbirth Educational Association, P.O. Box 20652, Milwaukee, Wis. 53220.

If you are pregnant, be sure to ask your physician about Caesareans and about the hospital's policies governing anesthesia and father participation, if these are a concern to you. Further information about Caesareans can be obtained through an excellent pamphlet and a book. The pamphlet, "Caesarean Childbirth," is available at Waldenbook stores or directly from either of the authors: Christine Coleman Wilson, 2491 Pinecrest, Ann Arbor, Mich. 48104, or Wendy Roe Hovey, 3184 Sing Sing Road, Horseheads, N.Y. 14845. A single copy is $2, postage and handling included. The book, "The Caesarean Birth Experience," by Bonnie Donovan (Beacon Press, 1977, $8.95), is available through booksellers.

Rice Hotel transforms

HOUSTON (AP)—The historic downtown Rice Hotel will be converted to luxury apartments, office and retail space by the spring of 1979.

New owners estimated Monday the cost of the conversion would be about $10 million.

Lance Funston, president of Portfolio Management of Texas, Inc., also said an application has been filed with the Department of Interior to have the 18-story, 800-room structure included in the National Register of Historic Places.

Acceptance for listing in the register could mean federal grants up to half the cost of purchasing and restoring the property. Funston said his firm acquired the hotel building from Rice Preservation Corp. and the land on which it located from Rice University in a

$3 million transaction concluded Friday.

Rice Preservation Corp. bought the building and its furnishings for $542,962 in a foreclosure sale last September after attempts to operate the facility as a hotel proved unsuccessful.

Funston's firm which specializes in restoration and management, also acquired the University's 99-year lease on the five-story Rice Hotel Garage.

"We feel this is essential to the Rice's long-term preservation, Funston said in announcing plans for applying for recognition of the structure as a national historic place.

On orders from Gen. Sam Houston, the capitol building of the Republic of Texas was on the site from April 10, 1837 until Jan. 19, 1840.

Credit unions offer increasing number of services

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Credit unions are offering an increasing number of services these days, narrowing the gap between the types of accounts available at the member-operated organizations and other financial institutions.

Part of the impetus for change comes from laws enacted by Congress last year and part comes from the increasingly automated face of banking itself.

The latest trend is the move by credit unions to offer "share draft" accounts which are, in effect, interest-bearing checking accounts. Holders of such accounts simply write what is called a share draft instead of a check. The programs are similar to NOW (Negotiated Order of Withdrawal) accounts allowed in New England.

Credit unions are financial cooperatives, organized by people with a common bond through employment, sex, religion, place of residence, etc. Credit unions are regulated by federal or state law, depending on where they get their charter. Federal statistics show that as of early this year, there were 12,611 federal and 9,691 state credit unions. About 36 million Americans belong to credit unions.

The credit unions are managed by their members. They are operated mainly by volunteers and, because of their status as nonprofit organizations, they pay no income tax, enabling them to offer higher interest rates on savings and charge lower rates on loans than other financial institutions.

The most common type of account offered by credit unions in the past was the basic share account. This account is similar to a bank passbook account, but members who deposit money are actually buying one or more shares in the credit union.

Fred Ringenburg of the Credit Union National Association said that the proposals for electronic funds transfers — where money is transferred immediately and electronically from one account to another — caused concern among operators of credit unions. They feared their members would be at a disadvantage if they had to go to the credit union itself every time they wanted to withdraw money. Share drafts "provide members with an easy way to get their money," Ringenburg said.

Ringenburg said about 1,000 federal and state credit unions now offer share draft accounts.

Court challenges have delayed the introduction of share drafts in many areas. At the federal level, the American Bankers Association filed suit in U.S. District Court in Washington last year, seeking to prevent federally chartered credit unions from offering the share drafts. The judge ruled in favor of the credit unions early last month, but the bankers group is appealing a decision is pending.

Other new types of accounts being offered by credit unions provide greater flexibility regarding amount of type of interest paid. The National Credit Union Administration also is putting the final touches on a proposal that would allow federally chartered credit unions to offer long-term residential mortgages, a service already provided by some state credit unions.

HEW squandered $7 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has tightened its grip on major spending programs in ways that should bring "substantial reductions" in the estimated $6.3 billion to $7.4 billion that it squandered in fiscal 1977, HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. says.

HEW's Office of Inspector General issued a report Monday cataloging the losses for the first time. The auditing agency said its figures were rough "conservative" estimates.

The funds that were spent unnecessarily or improperly amounted to about 5 percent of HEW's outlays of $148 billion in fiscal 1977, which ended last Sept. 30. The department, with its social security, health and welfare programs, spends one-third of the federal budget.

CHOICES

Karen Blaker Ph.D.

Advice by consent

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I want to ask your advice about a very important decision in my life. In fact, I am holding off on any action until I hear from you. When you tell me what to do, I will do it.

But my first problem is that I can't write you the letter because I have to include very specific pieces of information. If you answer it in the paper, people in my town will know I wrote it. It would be very embarrassing. What should I do?

DEAR READER — Write — but mention the sensitive nature of the information. I will then publish a slightly revised version of the letter.

Although a personal reply would solve this problem, it is impossible to offer that service to all without offering it to all. And at this time, the volume of mail I receive makes that prohibitive.

When I receive a letter, I assume I have permission to use it in a column. However, I never print the writer's name.

As an additional precaution, I either omit the names of people and places or change any personal identifying information to protect confidentiality. Sometimes I even make significant alterations in the letter so it will be relevant to more people.

One thing concerns me about your letter. You seem certain that I can solve your problem.

I must offer a few words of caution: Never completely trust an advice columnist. It's not that we are a particularly evil breed of person. But we must respond to complex human problems with only a minimal amount of information.

You really cannot trust yourself either. How could you possibly write a completely objective account of the events in question? And we cannot contact one another to discuss any points that seem unclear.

Please read my answers with these limitations in mind. Do not merely do whatever I say.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — My wife is driving me crazy. She is constantly complaining about the housework. But when I suggest she get someone to help, she says she is showing me how much she loves me by doing something she hates.

I can't understand her reasoning and she is making me feel very guilty.

DEAR READER — Your wife is confusing love with subservience and martyrdom. She is miserable because she is suffering and you are suffering because you feel guilty. What a mess!

Enter Jack Lemmon in a scene from one of his classic movies. He explains that he always takes his wash to Andre's French laundry because he never has to tell Andre that he loves him when he picks up his clean shirts.

Since you obviously cannot take your house to the cleaners, why not do the next best thing? Hire a housekeeper and present it to your wife as a fait accompli? Your assertiveness might be just the reassurance she needs.

Injuries up with increase in drilling

HOUSTON (AP) — A U.S. Labor Department official said Monday that as offshore drilling operations increase, there will be a dramatic boost in the number of workmen compensation cases filed for major injuries.

Daniel Elisburg, assistant secretary of labor, told newsmen that the injury problem on the drilling rigs "could be a sleeping giant and we are preparing for a sharp increase in accident reports from Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York."

"Nationwide in the fiscal year of 1973 there were 2,328 injuries reported on the offshore drilling rigs, but in fiscal 1977 the number rose to 5,575. In the Houston-Galveston area alone, there was an increase of 340 percent, from 175 to 751 injuries," he said.

Elisburg said, "as the offshore drilling increases, both the Gulf Coast and the East Coast area, there will be an increasing need for enforcement of the U.S. Coast Guard and the federal Occupational, Safety and Health Administration."

"We are now convinced this is a high-risk business and as offshore drilling increases, we can expect more injuries. We hope the employers realize the high risk and will set into action their own preventive programs."

"Enforcement of the laws after something may happen is generally the best way to get the laws applied in the future," he said.

TAC may pay for airport improvements

Money for improvements at Perry Lefors Field that the Federal Aviation Administration will not fund may be forthcoming from the Texas Aeronautical Commission, the chairman of the Gray County Airport Board said today.

Jack Hood, chairman, and Gene Barger, of the engineering firm of Merrianna & Barber, had breakfast with a TAC official and toured Perry Lefors Field in a preliminary step toward application for funds from the TAC.

But application will not be made until the board learns what FAA will and will not fund and the TAC is "booked solid" with requests for funds.

The TAC will fund for improvements such as the resurfacing of taxiways, a bad weather instrument approach system and beacon lights, but Gray County will not see that money until a determination is made on how much the board can afford.

TAC will fund 50 percent for the improvements, but money may not be forthcoming until 1979 or 1980, Hood said.

Gerald Turner, chief engineer for the TAC, will report back to the board on the cost of the hoped-for improvements, Hood said.

County board sets meeting

The Gray County school board will meet at 9:30 a.m. Monday at the courthouse annex east of Pampa on Highway 60 to canvass votes of the April 1 trustee election.

Oath of office will be given to W.A. Rankin, trustee from precinct two, and Marvin M. Finney, member-at-large.

The board will also approve office and travel expenses.

Mrs. Nisbet attends confab

Mrs. Scott Nisbet, chairman of the Gray County Republican party, attended a leadership conference for county and precinct chairmen Saturday at the Travelodge in Amarillo.

The conference, sponsored by the Republican party of Texas, was designed to help county and local GOP leaders in the Panhandle prepare for the May 6 primary elections.

The conference was one of nine such training seminars conducted by the GOP during March and April.

Water: lifeblood of Texas economy

EDITOR'S NOTE — Water, water everywhere, nor any drop to drink... Water is the target of good poetry and bad jokes. There's nothing like it. No one thinks much about it—until it's unavailable. But water is the lifeblood of the Texas economy, rivaling oil and gas in economic importance. One in a series of special reports on Texas water.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — "Water, taken in moderation, can not hurt anyone." — Mark Twain.

"A mixture of brandy and water spoils two good things." — A wise old sage.

Water, when compared with more exotic delights, seldom fares better than poor. Devotees of the devil's brew spurn it as an unnecessary evil.

That old scoundrel W. C. Fields cursed it immortally.

So who needs it?

With all due respects to ole W. C. — most everybody needs it, especially in Texas, the nation's third largest state with nearly 13 million thirsty residents.

Besides drinking it, Texans find water the lifeblood of a complex economy that includes hundreds of water-using industries and a variety of agricultural purposes.

Dr. Herbert Grubb of Austin, one of the state's outstanding authorities on water, talks in charts, graphs and smart, a combination which is not easily understood by everyone. But he makes this point:

"The interdependence among the specialized Texas industries makes it important for Industry A to be concerned about a water supply for Industries B, C and D, since Industry A may depend upon either or all of these other industries for essential production materials and for markets.

"For example, the retailer of finished foods, such as ground beef for hamburgers, depends upon the supply of beef, which depends upon the supply of grain, which depends upon a supply of irrigation water, fertilizer from the agricultural chemical industry, fuel from the energy industry to pump water, and a large number of inputs that are obtained from manufacturing industries."

In other words, a lot of people need a bunch of water for different reasons, or you can't have a hamburger.

And, as Grubb says:

"This analogy applies to clothing, housing, home furnishings, utilities, energy, transportation, medical services and supplies and all other goods and services produced within Texas and marketed to in-state and out-of-state customers."

Few states have such a diverse economy so dependent upon fresh water supplies.

Some 72 percent of the present water use in Texas comes from underground sources, and most is used for irrigation.

Texas produces staggering amounts of grains, meats, cotton and other food and fiber, all requiring water. It is the leading oil and gas producer in America, and again water is essential.

Freshwater inflow into the bays and estuaries of the Texas coast provides the ecological balance for marine finfish and shellfish, the basis for another multimillion dollar industry.

There are nearly 15,000 different manufacturing establishments in Texas, according to Grubb, "and the gross value of output by the 10 major water-using industries totals $17 billion annually."

The heavily industrialized areas in Southeast Texas are the major users, but paper milling, closely related to the East Texas logging and forestry industries, is another heavy user.

"Shortages of water required to produce paper will impact all areas of the state," Grubb said. He offers this example:

"A small shortage of 1,000 acre feet of water would cost an estimated 102 lost jobs, more than a $1 million decrease in income to Texas labor and a $100,000 decrease in taxes to state and local governments."

An acre foot of water, incidentally, is the amount of water it takes to cover an acre of land a foot deep. It's also 325,850 gallons.

Now, the chilling news: Texas now uses some 17.3 million acre feet of water a year, and as its population and industry increase, so do its needs.

But it is now using its ground water at a clip of 12.2 million acre feet per year. Those underground aquifers, however, have a recharge capability of about 5.1 million acre feet.

So the state is using up 7.1 million acre feet of its reserve each year.

Allen White, Grubb's assistant as director of planning and development for the Texas Department of Water Resources, provided this analogy:

"Say you got a savings account and you put $5 million in each year. But somebody takes out $12 million a year. Even if you had $100 million to begin with, you can see what's going to happen if someone takes out $12 million a year. You're going to run out eventually."

The problem, he said, is that "it's just damn hard to get that across to the man on the street."

LoVaca gas pact

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Housewife Peggy Buchorn held up a 1,200-page proposed settlement of LoVaca Gathering Co.'s natural gas troubles and asked, "Why was all this done — to look good?"

Accountant Palmer Moe replied, in an apparent attempt to justify the length of the document, "You need legal counsel just to sell your home. It's just the red tape that it takes to operate in the business world today."

Mrs. Buchorn, who claims she works free as executive director of Citizens for Equitable Utilities, Inc., cross-examined Moe on Tuesday as examiner Tom Hill of the railroad commission and veteran corporate lawyers looked on.

The commission must approve before the settlement of $1.6 billion in lawsuits against LoVaca can take effect.

Moe sat in on private negotiations leading up to the settlement.

Most LoVaca customers joined in the settlement, which establishes a new, customer-controlled company called Valero Corp. to replace LoVaca as their supplier.

The settlement also calls for LoVaca's parent, Coastal States Gas Corp., to spend at least $180 million in a search for gas that would be sold to the customers below market price.

Major LoVaca customers include the electric generating plants operated by Austin, the Lower Colorado River Authority, San Antonio and Central Power & Light, which serves Corpus Christi.

In response to Mrs. Buchorn's questions about what the settlement would mean to individual ratepayers, Moe said $9,775,000, plus the interest from an $8 million note, might be available at the end of the first year to spread among customers.

"But the only way we get anything back is if we put it in there in the first place," said Mrs. Buchorn.

"That's right," replied Moe. "The consumer is paying anyway. The high cost of gas is here with us."

Dan Crowley, executive vice-president of Southern Union Gas Co., said his firm would not sign the settlement because it does not allow Southern Union to pass through to consumers $2.3 million it paid LoVaca in excess of contract prices.

Lone Star Gas Co. said it supports the settlement, which allows it to recover off the top $41.8 million in alleged damages for rising gas costs before passing any benefits through to consumers.

City restroom reopens

JACKSON, Minn. (AP) — One of the major attractions in this small southwestern Minnesota town — the municipal women's toilet and lounge — has been saved.

An informal survey that showed about 300 women had used the restroom during the past six weeks persuaded the six-member city council to keep the facility open. The vote Tuesday night was unanimous.

"They want it open, so it's open," Mayor Arvin Schultz said of the little cubbyhole next to the movie theater on Jackson's main street.

City fathers had voted in January to close the toilet and lounge area, hoping to save about $4,500 a year in operating costs for the town of 3,550 residents.

But the people did not like it. The mayor got phone calls, the local newspaper editor got letters and 344 people — men and women — signed a petition to keep the restroom open.

Older women said they meet in the lounge area of the restroom every day to knit and crochet. Some said they like to stop there for a rest while they are downtown. And some women said it was a good place to wait while they have their cars serviced.

A woman from Sioux City, Iowa, who visits Jackson frequently wrote that the restroom is "one of the nicest things the town has to offer."

When the furor grew, the council decided to have women who visited the restroom sign a guest list to determine whether there was enough business to justify keeping the facility open.

Faced with results of the survey, council members agreed they had made a mistake. But they only went so far.

Schultz said the council did not plan to take up a second petition that was circulated demanding a similar facility for men.

"That was done largely in jest," Schultz said, "and we don't plan to do anything about it unless someone brings it up again."

Abuse jury to be picked

Jury selection started at 9 a.m. today in Judge Grainer McIlhenny's 31st District Court for the trial of Billy Hulsey, who is charged with sexual abuse of a child.

One hundred fifty persons were called for the selection. Testimony is expected to start this afternoon.

Sexual abuse of a child is a second degree felony punishable by 2 to 20 years in the Texas Department of Corrections and up to a $10,000 fine.

Plant to pay

HOUSTON (AP) — A chemical firm agreed in a settlement Tuesday to pay $28,495 in federal penalties on charges of worker health and safety violations at its Bayport pesticide plant.

How to buy diamonds safely

Sylvia Porter

So wild has international speculation and the resulting price upsurge in diamonds become that de Beers Consolidated Mines Ltd., the world's largest diamond mining-marketing cartel, is slapping a brutal 40 per cent surcharge on the prices it quotes for rough stones. And Tiffany, among the world's largest diamond retailers, is publicly warning that diamond prices have been driven up far too high.

De Beers' surcharge could be "counterproductive," by putting a floor under the already steep level of diamond prices, but it is intent on protecting its cartel. Tiffany's warning to customers to "look before you buy" may intrigue rather than discourage many would-be investors (or speculators), but Tiffany is resisting buying at today's bloated prices.

Diamond buyers are seeking protection against the shrinking U.S. dollar. Or you're intent on buying your diamond (or diamonds) for a profit as well as to give as a gift. Or you're fleeing into what for centuries has been a traditional haven for funds of individuals frightened of what the future may be.

OK, say you're a would-be buyer. Against today's price-speculative background, what rules should you obey?

Deal only with companies established in the real diamond industry. If a company says it sells diamonds wholesale, ask if it sells to jewelry stores. Obtain references in the jewelry industry which the company claims to service. Bernhard Dohrmann, president of IDC, suggests checks with the Jewelers Board of Trade in Providence, R.I., and the Jewelers Vigilance Committee in New York City, to find out if the company is a member of either organization. Ask your local Better Business Bureau if it has any data on the firm.

Shop and compare prices and grade categories. Do not buy diamonds sealed in plastic or containers which make examination hard.

Be sure the diamond is sold according to specifications set by the Gemological Institute of America, an international grading standard. If the seller does not have its own gemological lab (bonded and insured), have the diamonds appraised by an outside lab.

Buy only from companies which guarantee to repurchase the diamonds if you are not totally satisfied — and the guarantee would be unconditional. Many reputable sellers offer this guarantee.

If you're buying diamonds as a collector, buy merchandise of the highest clarity grade, under GIA grading criteria, in the colorless spectrum of G-H color or better, and of very fine proportion and finish. Only about 1 per cent of all diamonds fall into this high band of excellence. If any one of the scales of quality is lowered even slightly, the merchandise is much less rare, much more abundant, and appreciates at a much, much lower rate. Although many companies advertise that they have ample supplies of this merchandise, few firms in the U.S. actually do have many gems of this grade.

Get full disclosure of fees at your initial purchase of the diamond for collection, and in advance of your purchase full disclosure of fees and charges to resell the diamond at a future date. Avoid any seller unwilling to make, or who is vague about, these disclosures.

You're up against a record number of unscrupulous promoters, speculators and dealers. But you still can buy diamonds well — for enjoyment and profit. Study your market thoroughly, learn as much as you can, and you'll minimize your risks.

The first of two prime considerations for you, says the International Diamond Corp., headquartered in San Rafael, Calif., is to understand that, of the 2,000 separate categories of diamonds, an overwhelming 99 per cent have shown gains of less than 15 per cent a year — and only the top 1 per cent of quality grades appreciate at faster rates. Many firms claiming to sell this high quality merchandise are in actually selling the lower quality gems.

The second basic guide you must follow is to have the grade of a diamond analyzed by a bonded and insured gem laboratory, with qualified and trained personnel. Also, the lab should guarantee the accuracy by international standards of the grade supplied or guarantee you money back. These are essential protections in addition.

Buy diamonds of the very finest qualities and be careful about the size you select. Large diamonds appreciate faster than smaller diamonds, but in very top qualities, large diamonds are extremely expensive and often not very liquid. Very fine diamonds of from one-half to two-carat sizes are the most liquid when you wish to resell all or part of your diamond assets.

Astro - Graph

by Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

April 6, 1978

Conditions appealing to your adventurous spirit will be in the offing this coming year. You will have full control as to which ones you'll take advantage of.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Delegating authority is something you prefer not to do. Today your premise is right: no one can look out for you better than you can. Having trouble selecting a career? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll only have to do later that what you sweep under the rug today. Attending to things as they occur is the solution.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's important to mingle with new and different people, but today don't ignore a friend of long-standing for someone you met recently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Challenges are something you'll respond well to but may not want to handle today. All problems should dissolve easily under your direction.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your outlook is far-seeing and courageous today, but you also could be too impulsive. Don't repeat past mistakes in your zeal to get things done.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be adventuresome today and you'll discover, much to your surprise, you have talents hidden in areas where you've always relied on others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're likely to seek to postpone rather than meet issues squarely today. It will only work against you if you try to find too many excuses.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You may be too much of an eager-beaver today. You'll be much more efficient if you pace yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Looking for fun things to do will be the diversion you need today. However, you'll have more success if you avoid places where big crowds gather.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There's no need to have a chip on your shoulder when dealing with authority figures today. Nothing will be refused you if you appeal to their sensitive feelings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Suggestions of others may be selfishly motivated today. Carefully evaluate all approaches before moving in a specific direction.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Take advantage of all your material opportunities today. If you're bold and enterprising your chances for high returns look quite good.

Tascosa downs Harvester Team

The Harvester baseball team began slow and were unable to come unstuck in a frustrating game with the Tascosa Rebels Tuesday.

The Rebels, now 2-0 in district play, allowed just one run in the contest.

Pampa had five hits in what must have seemed the longest afternoon of the season.

In the first inning, Rebel southpaw pitcher Kevin Thompson drove in three runs on a home run to right. He then took the mound and fanned three of four Pampa hitters to set the first inning score at 3-0.

pretty much as it started. Pampa was able to get wood on the ball but could never find gaps in the outfield.

The second inning saw two deep shots by Pampa fall to waiting out fielders. Along with a line drive to second, the inning was over.

John Davis, the starting pitcher for the Harvesters, threw eight strike outs but was hurt by the big hit. In the third inning, Tascosa scored three runs on a single, a double and a home run. When Pampa failed to score, the count after three was 6-0.

In the fourth, Pampa put out the first three batters on a fly and two strike outs. They were unable to score themselves, however.

The fifth inning saw Tascosa score a run off the triple of Greg Gutierrez. Pampa put a man on with a walk, but was unable to bring him home.

The sixth was another three run inning for the Rebels. Pampa pitcher John Davis was relieved with two away and replaced by Johnny Hays. When Hays struck out Gutierrez for the last out of the sixth, the score was 10-0.

The Rebels went three up three down their last time at bat.

Pampa's last inning saw Quarles take first base on a walk. After a strike out that made it one away, Rick Dougherty drove Quarles home on a double. With the score 10-1, Pampa hit into a double play that ended the contest.

With the loss, the Harvesters' record in district stands at 0-2. Overall this season their record is 9-6.

Tascosa currently has the first half lead in district with a 2-0 record.

Baseball opens tonight

By HAL BOCK
 AP Sports Writer

Minnesota's Dave Goltz and Glenn Abbott of Seattle will be the starting pitchers and Hall of Famer Joe DiMaggio is scheduled to throw out the first ball Wednesday night when the Twins face the Mariners in the opening game of the 1978 major league baseball season.

Houston and Cincinnati open the National League season on Thursday with J.R. Richard starting for the Astros and Tom Seaver working for the Reds. Seaver has won six opening-day assignments in the last seven years, all of them for the New York Mets. Richard won 18 games last season, four of them against the Reds.

The remaining National League teams open on Friday with other American League openers scheduled throughout the weekend. By Saturday, all 26 major league clubs will be in action.

Goltz, 20-11 in 1977, was one of only three 20-game winners in the American League last season and Abbott, 12-13 last year, emerged as the ace of the expansionist Seattle pitching staff.

Both clubs will have some new faces in their lineups, the Mariners by their own choice and the Twins as a result of the free-agent escape chute.

Seattle will start Bruce Bochte, a free-agent pickup from Cleveland, in left field and John Hale, who has had prior major league shots at Los Angeles and Toronto, in right field.

Minnesota, which lost two top outfielders, Lyman Bostock and Larry Hise, in the free-agent auction, has replaced them with a pair of rookies. Hosken Powell will lead off and play right field in Manager Gene Mauch's lineup with Willie Norwood batting seventh and playing left field.

Bostock signed with California and Hise with Milwaukee and both are expected to play major roles with their new teams. The Angels open at home Friday night against Oakland and the Brewers' season begins in Milwaukee Thursday against the Baltimore Orioles.

Cincinnati, the oldest franchise in the major leagues, has traditionally hosted the opening game but the Seattle-Minnesota contest will beat the Reds to the punch. Dick Wagner, executive vice president and general manager of the club, says he really doesn't mind.

"We're the club that traditionally opens the National League season," said Wagner.

"They (the AL) could open at Christmas and it wouldn't bother me one bit."

Ironically, on Wednesday and Thursday when the major league seasons are getting underway, there still will be teams playing exhibition games. There are 10 exhibition games scheduled for Wednesday as teams begin leaving their Florida and Arizona spring training sites and move on to major league cities for the start of the regular season.

Spurs streak to five

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Coach Doug Moe says when his San Antonio Spurs play the Phoenix Suns in a National Basketball Association game, it's like watching the Spurs practice against themselves.

"Phoenix is the quickest team in the league. They're a lot like us," Moe said Tuesday night after San Antonio rallied in the second half to claim a 125-119 come-from-behind victory over the Suns.

The victory was the fifth straight for the streaking Spurs who, in winning their 51st game of the season, tied the franchise record set in 1975-76 when San Antonio was in the old American Basketball Association.

The Spurs clinched the NBA Central Division title last week with a victory at Cleveland, but there has been no letup in their play.

"We're just getting tougher and tougher in the second half," said Moe, who last year often watched his team do just the opposite after building early leads.

"We're playing with a lot of confidence and we have been really active defensively," the San Antonio coach added.

Larry Kenon and George Gervin, the Spurs' two NBA All Stars, combined for 54 points and keyed a fourth quarter rally that moved San Antonio ahead of Phoenix after trailing by three at the half.

Kenon, Gervin and Coby Dietrick each had nine points in the final period, and Kenon's seven straight put the Spurs ahead 120-108 with 2:51 left to play.

Kenon finished with 29 points

Leon Spinks - "It's mine"

NEW YORK (AP) — "The only heavyweight champion," a flack said Tuesday. "The only man to win the title in combat."

Leon Spinks, his two front teeth appearing with him at a news conference, smiled. And agreed.

"Why should I be down," the half-heavyweight champion of the world said of the World Boxing Council's decision to withdraw title recognition from Spinks and bestow it upon Ken Norton.

"They took it away and gave it to somebody on a silver platter," said the conqueror of Muhammad Ali. "I fought for it. It's mine."

"The New York State Athletic Commission recognizes you," said a questioner. "So does the world," said Spinks, who appeared at a news conference to accept the championship belt from The Ring, a boxing publication which joins with the World Boxing Association and others in recognizing Spinks as champion.

Spinks, whose timing in the ring is much better than his timing for personal appearances, was an hour and 15 minutes late and reportedly blew an appearance on a television show in which he was to engage in a live telephone hookup with Norton.

Before answering any questions, Spinks told reporters, "I'm gonna fight Muhammad Ali my next title fight ... sometime in September or October."

Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, Inc., which has promotional rights to Spinks' next three fights, was in New Orleans and there were in-

An Aggie carwash

DALLAS (AP) — Who do you suppose in Texas built a carwash with an entrance that is so small to accommodate cars? If you guessed the Texas Aggies, you're dead wrong. It was the city of Dallas.

It seems that the carwash, affectionately called by city officials an "Aggie carwash," was installed last November in one of the city's garages.

Foreman Larry Brown said plans called for the inside entrance to be enclosed and the outside wall to be knocked out so that vehicle could be driven in from a parking lot.

The inner entrance was closed off, leaving the only entrance one too small to accommodate vehicles.

It was too cold in January and February to have the hole knocked into the outside wall so the city was stuck with a car wash on the inside and no way to get a vehicle inside.

Brown says construction of an outside entrance is to begin this month to make the carwash functional.

Clements may have opposed bases

By the Associated Press

Republican gubernatorial candidate Ray Hutchison claims that Bill Clements, his GOP opponent in the upcoming primary election, opposed efforts to keep open military bases at San Antonio, Big Spring, Corpus Christi, Laredo and Houston.

Hutchison said that U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, fought to protect jobs at Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio and to keep open Webb Air Force Base near Big Spring, the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station, Laredo Air Force Base and Ellington Air Force Base in Houston, but was defeated by Washington bureaucrats.

"And who was the leader of these bureaucrats? Bill Clements (former deputy secretary of defense)," Hutchison said Monday at a meeting of the Memorial West Republican Women's Club at Houston where both candidates appeared.

Hutchison also said the nomination of Clements as the GOP gubernatorial standard bearer "would indeed be a drag on the entire Republican ticket in 1978."

Clements told the group "our campaign is gaining fast and building up for the general election in November."
