Cherokee man charged in Girl Scout murders

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — A stoic Gene Leroy Hart, charged in the grisly slayings of three Girl Scouts at a northeastern Oklahoma summer camp last June, was under close guard at the state prison here today 10 months after he eluded the largest manhunt in Oklahoma history.

Hart, a full-blooded Cherokee with a woodsman's knowledge of eastern Oklahoma's rugged hills, was captured by state crime bureau agents who quietly surrounded an isolated residence in the hilly brush country of the Cookson Hills.

Eight heavily armed agents kicked down the door of the remote cabin at 4:15 p.m. Thursday.

The arrest came after what Dick Wilkerson, deputy director of the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation, called a long "compilation of intelligence information."

Wilkerson said the OSBI had learned that there was "some one living with an old man who lived by himself in a rural area and who cut wood and received some type of check."

The check was eventually determined to be a Social Security check, Wilkerson said. The OSBI official said it was believed Hart had been living at the house since November 1977.

Charges of harboring a fugitive were being prepared against the owner of the house, identified as Sam Pigeon Jr.

Hart's capture closed a chapter in one of the most brutal crimes in recent state history. The 34-year-old former Pryor High School football star was charged with three counts of first degree murder June 23, 1977, 10 days after counselors at Camp Scott near Locust Grove, Okla., found the bodies of the three young Scouts in crumpled sleeping bags.

Before Hart was charged a force which grew to more than 400 citizens, National Guard and law enforcement searchers combed the northeastern Oklahoma woodlands in search of a slayer.

But the rattlesnake and tick-infested woodlands revealed little to help law officers solve the sex slayings of Doris Denise Milner, 10, and Lori Lee Farmer, 8, both of Tulsa, and Michelle Guse, 9, of Broken Arrow.

The victims were found about 150 yards from their tent early on the first morning of the summer encampment.

Investigators found two blood-drenched mattresses and a bloody footprint in their empty platform tent. They said two of the girls were apparently bludgeoned to death while they slept.

One of the girls appeared to have been strangled outside the tent. She was found lying face-up, with her hands taped behind her.

Hart is a convicted rapist who had been a fugitive since his September 1973, escape from the Mayes County jail in Pryor, Okla. He sawed his way through jail bars to freedom while awaiting transfer to the state prison to begin serving a rape sentence.

Authorities linked him to the Girl Scout slayings after finding two tattered photographs in the cave-filled forests around the camp. The pictures were taken at a 1968 wedding in southwestern Oklahoma. Authorities believe Hart printed the photos in a prison darkroom after acting as a photographer's assistant at the ceremony.

Wilkerson said Hart offered little resistance when agents rushed into the shack. He said the suspect was not armed, and scuffled briefly when agents began to handcuff him.

When Hart entered the prison's main gate Thursday night, his head was bowed and his arms were interlaced with the arms of two OSBI agents who held tight grips on him.

Hart wore the cutoff blue jeans and sleeveless T-shirt authorities said he was wearing when arrested. The 5-foot-10 suspect was heavier than numerous OSBI drawings of him had estimated, something over 200 pounds.

His hair resembled an overgrown crewcut, while most likenesses distributed by investigators had him with shoulder length hair.

"We did not know when we went to that house today that Gene Leroy Hart would be there," said Wilkerson, alluding to the dozens of false leads and dead-end rumors which authorities had pursued toward the fugitive's capture.

District Attorney Sid Wise, who met with OSBI legal experts late Thursday night, had said during the manhunt Hart could hide almost indefinitely in the hills of eastern Oklahoma, where he had scores of relatives who were reluctant to talk to law officers.

The capture ultimately came about 40 miles from where Hart had been suspected of using his woodsmanship to avoid tracking dogs and hovering helicopters.

Three candidates miss file deadline

By CHRIS EDWARDS
Pampa News Staff

Three candidates for county offices could be fined up to $200 because campaign contributions and expenditure statements were not on file in the county clerk's office by 5 p.m. Thursday.

Statements were not on file today for Sherry Jones, candidate for county judge, and Ronnie Rice and Coley Davis, candidates for the county commissioner spot for precinct 2, Pampa. Deadline was 30 days before the May 6 primary.

According to Kevin Reynolds of the elections division of the Secretary of State's office in Austin, not filing campaign and expenditure statements is in violation of the Texas Election Code, a class C misdemeanor.

But the code is not specific on what happens if the statements are filed late, Reynolds said.

Statements of contributions and expenditures that are incorrect could result in a class A misdemeanor charge, punishable by a fine not to exceed $2,000 and confinement to jail for less than a year, Reynolds said.

Contributions and expenditures not reported or reported incorrectly could result in a civil suit brought against the filer, Reynolds said, with the filer liable for double the incorrect or non-reported amount to the opponent and triple that amount to the state of Texas.

Statements on file today for the county commissioner spot for precinct 2, Pampa, indicated that candidates are spending more than they're getting.

Of the five candidates who did file statements, only three listed any contributions with $395 for George H. Wallace, $125 for Raymond Barrett and $15 for Grover Willoughby.

Wallace listed $300 from West Texas Golf Cars Co., $50 from Hart Warren, $25 from Elmer Wilson and $20 from Vern Pendergrass.

Although it is not necessary to itemize contributions and expenditures of less than $50, some candidates did.

Wallace listed $571 for expenditures with Barrett at $533.49 and Willoughby at $523.

Payments included money for matches, cards, posters, emery boards and filing fees.

Jones Seitz, the only Republican candidate for the position, and Ronald Jack Heasley, Democrat, each listed $302 in expenditures and no contributions.

The money was a bit higher for the three candidates who filed for county judge, starting with incumbent Don Hinton, who racked up $1,299 in expenditures, the most of all candidates.

His contributors included: Glen Dawkins, $150; Bill Gabelman, $100; Ernest Wilkinson, $100; Dwaine Urbanczyk, $100; and Ray Jordan, $50, for a total of $500, with another $150 in donations less than $50.

Joe B. Curtis, the only Republican candidate for county judge, was the only candidate who listed a campaign treasurer, H.C. Grady Jr.

His total expenditures were $302 with contributors and amounts listed as H.W. Gruben, $10; D.A. Rife, $10 and Joan Phillips, $10.

Robert D. McPherson another candidate for county judge, spent $798.13 for matches, emery boards and ads, with $180 listed for contributors of less than $50.

Carey Don Smith reported expenditures of $369.95 and Dorothy Beck Patterson expenditures of $320. Neither Democratic candidate for justice of the peace for precinct 5 listed any contributions.

Otto Mangold and Mrs. Venora Cole listed expenditures as $273.58 and $202; Mangold listed $85 in contributions less than $50, with Mrs. Cole listing no contributions. Mrs. Cole is a Republican; Mangold is Democrat.

No candidates for the justice of the peace slot for precinct 1 listed contributors; expenses for Margie Prestidge were $126.60, for Nancy Trusty, $213.60 and Bennie Williams, $228.30.

Mrs. Prestidge apparently overlooked listing a $200 filing fee for the position when she listed her expenses.

Unopposed candidates need not file statements, Reynolds said.

Running unopposed are Ted Simmons, county commissioner for precinct 4; Mrs. Helen Sprinkle, district clerk; Mrs. Wanda Carter, county clerk; Mrs. Jean Scott, county treasurer; Gene R. Barber, county surveyor; Don Cain, 223rd district judge and Herman H. Keith, constable for precinct 2.

Carter to barter bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced today he is delaying a decision on whether to order U.S. production of controversial neutron warheads.

The president said any future decision on whether to produce the weapons "will be influenced by the degree to which the Soviet Union shows restraint in its conventional and nuclear arms programs and force deployments affecting the security of the United States and Western Europe."

Carter made clear by his statement that he expects some action on the part of the Russians in response to his move to defer production of the neutron warheads, thus using the new weapon as a "bargaining chip" in arms limitation talks.

Neutron warheads are designed to kill primarily by use of radiation.

Race betting goes on ballot

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Local election officials had the word today they could start printing the May 6 Democratic primary ballots.

The go-ahead came late Thursday after the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals refused to give opponents of a referendum on horse race betting an injunction to further delay preparation of the ballots.

However, State Democratic Chairman Calvin Guest warned there might still be more court action.

"If this should happen, though it is not likely, you might have to line out or paste over the proposition your ballots," Guest said.

Douglas A. McCrary, Calvert, president of the Texas Horse-racing Association, said he hoped Thursday's court action would "take this question out of the courtroom and put it on the ballot, where it belongs."

"We are perfectly willing to trust the judgment of informed voters on this issue," McCrary said, "but obviously, the self-appointed guardians of morality who took this matter to court are afraid to even let the people express their opinions in a non-binding referendum."

A similar straw poll is slated for the Republican primary ballot.

The 3rd Court of Civil Appeals issued the denial of an injunction without comment but said in an opinion would be written later.

The decision, in effect, upheld the decision last week of District Court Judge Jim Dear that his court did not have the right to interfere with an election process that was underway.

Already cleared for the Democratic ballot, after a court test before District Judge Herman Jones, was a referendum that will ask voters what they think about an increase in interest rates for loans under $5,000.

Austin attorney Buck Wood, representing the opponents, argued Thursday that the SDEC approved the referendum on March 13 only because it had been presented a petition with more than the required 76,000 signatures of qualified voters. Wood claimed he could show in court, if given a chance, that the petition was signed by less than 76,000 qualified voters.

Wood said that the state Democratic committee has "spent time and money to put something on the ballot that is a legal issue... members of the party have a right not to have an inflammatory illegal referendum on the ballot."

"The plaintiffs in this cannot show they will be harmed no matter the result of the referendum," said Shannon Ratliff, attorney for the Texas Thoroughbred Breeders Association. "This is not like a wet-dry election. This referendum simply allows people to say what they think about an issue."

Shannon argued that "the court may not by injunction interfere with an election process already begun."

Slagle said the law does not require the SDEC to verify the qualifications of signatures presented in petitions.

Is tax reform possible?

By DR. MILTON FRIEDMAN

(Editor's note: Dr. Friedman is generally acknowledged to be one of the foremost economists in the world today. In 1976 he was awarded the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science. This text is abridged from his address to Americanism Educational League.)

Everyone in this country today has a deep, personal interest in tax reform... for we are all involved in devoting about 40 per cent of our working lives to supporting governmental activities. And very few of us believe that we are getting our money's worth for the 40 per cent of our incomes being used to support government.

Yet, that percentage keeps growing. Now we do have a democratic system. We have elected representatives. They do what the public at large wants. And year by year they vote on our behalf to spend more and more of our money. What is it that produces a result not in line with the wants of the people?

Everybody agrees on the desirability of tax reform... but is it possible? My answer is that it is possible, but not by the usual route. We are not going to get tax reform by Congressional committees in Washington, or committees in the State houses of this nation, voting for an improved tax structure. It is the way we've been trying for years on end. That way is hopeless.

The only effective tax reform is tax reduction. But even that is too ambitious a target now. In my opinion, the most we can hope for in the near future is to stop the steady increase in the percentage of our income being spent by government. And I believe that the only feasible way of stopping tax increases is by a Constitutional limitation on government spending and taxing.

To render this view plausible, we must clear away some of the misconceptions about taxes. There are three main sets of such erroneous ideas. They involve (1) the use of Orwellian "new-speak"; (2) the idea of what really constitutes fiscal responsibility; and (3) the view that tax simplification is possible, rather than a pipe dream. Let's examine these errors, one by one.

(1) Orwellian "New-speak". This is the government's saying one thing when the substance of it is the opposite. In the book "1984", one of the chief devices used by the government to keep its citizens in line was "new-speak". The great example in the book was the slogan "War is Peace".

That is the kind of talk that always emanates from Washington. An immediate example is the talk about proposals to cut taxes. The Administration says it is proposing a $25 billion cut in taxes. Other politicians are trying to outbid this figure. The plain fact is that nobody is really proposing to cut taxes, but simply to shift taxes from one kind to another.

In the first place, the proposed increases in social security and energy taxes will between them amount to more than the proposed income tax cut. In the second place, without anybody voting for it, your taxes are going to go up, because inflation will inevitably drive more and more of your income into higher brackets. The increase in the taxes on people will bear, as the indirect result of inflation, will be more than the tax cut that President Carter is talking about.

But even that isn't the whole story... because the real tax that the American people bear is not measured alone by those payments that are called "taxes". The real tax on the American people is what government spends.

If the government spends $60 billion more than it takes in — which is roughly what President Carter proposes — who do you suppose pays that extra $60 billion? You are going to pay it, because it does have to be paid. But instead of direct taxes — such as income, excise or payroll taxes — it will be paid for indirectly in the form of inflation. There is no other source. The proposal to cut explicit taxes is simply a proposal to raise less money by income taxes and more money through the hidden tax of inflation.

(2) Now let's turn to the second erroneous view that I think impedes proper tax reform. It is the idea — held by so-called fiscal conservatives — that the real test of fiscal responsibility is whether you have a deficit or not. Many well-meaning citizens have been seeking a Constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget. Now, I am not against a balanced budget. But I submit that in emphasizing primarily the deficit, the fiscal conservatives have ended up being the front men for the big spenders.

The big spenders have voted government expenditures that produce a deficit. The fiscal conservatives have said, "That's terrible, we mustn't have a deficit!"... and so, they have worked for higher taxes to balance the budget. And... as soon as taxes have been increased, the big spenders are off again! And the end result is more and more government spending! Remember the real tax is what the government spends, not what it collects in so-called taxes. The real problem is not government debt. The real problem is government spending!

I would much rather have a government budget of $200 billion with a $100 billion deficit than to have a government budget of $400 billion with no deficit... because the government budget of $400 billion is simply twice as much taken from the disposition of the citizens and spent on their behalf by government.

(3) Now let's turn to the third set of erroneous views — that somehow tax simplification is possible. Why is it that the tax system is so complicated? Why does the system have so many rules and regulations that nobody can possibly know them all? Why do rates go from 14 percent for an individual up to 70 percent? Why do we have such a system?

Some people say that this is for equity. That is not so. Hardly anyone in the political spectrum, from left to right, will say that our present personal income tax system is equitable. People in fundamentally the same economic position will pay very different taxes according to all sorts of accidental elements.

Well then, if this complex and highly graduated system is not for equity, it must be for revenue. Not so! It doesn't yield much additional revenue. Suppose the tax law is changed to replace every tax rate higher than 25 percent with a 25 percent ceiling. No other changes are made. You might think that would cost the Treasury a lot of money. Not so! If everybody reported exactly the same amount of income he now reports, tax receipts would go down only 7 1/2 percent.

But that would be just the first step. If the top rate were 25 percent, would it pay you to spend 50 cents on the dollar to get a tax shelter? Would it pay you to hire expensive tax lawyers and accountants? No! If you had a top tax rate of 25 percent, the amount of income reported for tax purposes would go up sharply. If you will take the time to look at the detailed figures, you will agree that a top rate of 25 percent, with the law otherwise the same, would yield more revenue than the present law.

If the top tax rate were 25 percent, nobody would get hurt... except for two important groups, and this is why tax simplification is impossible! Who are these two groups? One is obvious — the tax lawyers and accountants. The other is less obvious, but more important. It is the members of Congress!

With a 25 percent top tax rate, what would Congressmen have to sell in order to raise campaign funds? If you are a Congressman, you have to engage in activities that will enable you to get re-elected. One of the most important activities is to make the tax system more complicated. By this means you get people who are willing to contribute to you to get a special privilege that will benefit them. Also you will have people willing to contribute in order to avoid having a special burden placed upon them. If you had a simple tax system, that possibility would disappear!

How can we proceed? Why is it that we have a situation, in a democratic society, with government spending that keeps going up as a percentage of income even though very few voters feel they are getting their money's worth? I believe that the fundamental explanation is that there is a defect in our political structure. I believe the fundamental defect is the way in which our government budgets are constructed — by voting individual pieces and then adding them up.

With each individual piece there is a group that feels very strongly about it. They are going to make a big effort to get it included in the budget. The cost is comparatively small and spread over all taxpayers. And nobody makes a real effort to stop it. But when you get one little piece piled on top of another, and another, the total adds up to more than the public at large wants to spend.

How can this defect be remedied? There is only one fundamental way: by political change in the form of Constitutional provisions setting a limit on government spending. What we need to do is give our legislators a budget — to say "This much and no more." Then the special interests can fight with one another instead of ganging up on you and me. That's the fundamental, first step toward making tax reform possible!

A case of government 'simplification'

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Co-Editor

It always prompts a smile when I read or hear 17 words used to say what one would have said better, plainer.

"Bureaucratized," some folks call this business of wordiness. I prefer "gobbledygook," which has a dictionary definition of "wordy and generally unintelligible jargon."

The gem in my current collection of gobbledygook came to the office just about a week ago. It's a real beauty, the shining star of bullshooting.

Normally, when some agency or company or what-have-you wants to update a mailing list, we are sent a penny post card — which inflation and postal rates have driven up to nine cents — and asked to check one box if we want to remain on the mailing list or another if we wish to be removed. We are further asked to make any needed corrections in the mailing label, then return the card.

A workable, understandable, simple process. But not the governmental gobbledygooky way of operating.

The pride of my collection is nothing more than a mailing list update from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. But it is an eight-page computer print out measuring seven feet three and one-quarter inches from perforated end to perforated end.

With a page width just shy of eight and one-half inches, total one-side page area of the missive comes to more than 700 square inches. And there's precious little white space in the black sea of printed words.

Second paragraph into the first page explains:

"If you wish to continue receiving information please review the attached material and make necessary changes or selections. Return (sic) the completed form by 4-15-78. The data input form instructions were developed to assist you in completing the data input form. Data elements have been cross-referenced on each form by the number that appears within the () ."

It is sublimely hilarious, asinine in a pure form, unequalled hogwash.

Have you ever had anyone explain to you the purpose of instructions?

Imagine buying one of those swing sets for your kids, for example, and an opening the box you unfold the instructions and the first thing you read is "The swing set instructions were developed to assist you in completing the swing set."

Seems a bit insulting, somehow. Like the fellow who wrote the instructions thinks you may not have enough sense to figure out their purpose.

Of course, I did have some trouble figuring out why it should take 700 square inches of printed space to do the job normally done by a post card of 20 square inches or less.

So I picked up the phone to call the name listed at the bottom of the cover letter portion of the printout:

A G VALLEJO, DIR-REG
DATA CENTER
1200 MAIN TOWER
BUILDING RM 835
DALLAS, TX 75202

He was very patient in trying to answer some of my questions about the funny form he sent out but I didn't always follow the explanation. He talked a bit like the form reads, and fast, too. Looking back over the notes I made of that conversation with A G VALLEJO, I find:

"What we're trying to accomplish... this information we don't have in our data bank..."

"Trying to make it as compact as possible yet give as many clientele the opportunity..."

"While the initial thrust may sound ironical, if one could probably forecast the number of hearings we're going to have..."

"We're trying to eliminate a certain amount of redundant mailouts..."

And so on until he came to the statement I was waiting for, the one I knew he'd make in defense of the ridiculous document sent out over his name:

"We're just trying to simplify the amount of output from HEW to its clientele..."

I didn't know how he'd use the word exactly, but I knew he'd get around to saying that the purpose of the ridiculous and confusing accumulation of babble he mailed us was to "simplify."

I knew it because anytime evidence and common sense point one direction somebody in government can be found, without looking very hard, who will point the other direction.

'How fortunate the dollar decline! How else could we play the Big Spender while so wisely limiting our purchases?'

A reader's right

And readers write

Dear Editor:

I want to compliment you on the new format of your paper, it is a much better paper than some times in the past. We all enjoy and appreciate more local news coverage and the inclusion of club news. We get enough crime, violence and etc. on radio and television, so it is a pleasure to read the paper that hasn't so much of that sort of news in it. While I realize news on the sensational side appeals to many, many of us enjoy reading a newsy paper that is constructive. I know sometimes sensational news or reporting is needed to get us out of our apathy and that is fine. We are a small town in spite of the fact a lot of people would like to think we are a large city and we do need news reporting from all angles but not to the extent of leaving local news out or just giving it very small space unless it is sensational. I know you are limited as to space and have to choose what you think will appeal to most readers because your paper depends on circulation. Especially enjoy "Pampa Post Script" by Pam Turek also the "Gallery" and "Community Profile". Living in a town the size of Pampa and knowing the many things that are being done know the people who do them is what makes Pampa such a great town to live in. I've heard many favorable comments on your paper the last few weeks. Continue the good reporting and wishing you well, I am.

Dear Editor:

I would like to reply to the article "Our Wasting Forests" on the March 29 editorial page. Actually, there have been several articles in recent months, all on the same general theme that National Forests and Lands are being poorly managed, and the U.S. taxpayer is the loser. Too often the attitude is that if the forests are not making money it's a crime. Forests are more than just a business venture. I am one of the so-called "few" who love and appreciate these remote areas. These "wilderness" areas are small sections within National Forests restricted to foot and horse travel. I continue to be surprised at the increasing number of people using and enjoying these areas. I see more and more families with young children hiking and camping in these beautiful, wild areas. I see many teenagers, as well as people in their sixties. All find a healthy relief from the frantic pace of today's world. Sure, it isn't for everyone, but what activity does have universal appeal? There are many generations of people to come who can share this pleasure if we stand up for and retain a few areas of wilderness.

I occasionally have misgivings and wonder if I am really being selfish about limiting some areas to healthful recreation rather than logging, mining, and commercialization; but after thinking it through, I always come back to my original stand that I must speak up for and insist on retaining some of this important part of our heritage.

I appreciate companies who reforest, as does the Lufkin Paper Mill in East Texas. I believe that perhaps more logging can be done in National Forest Lands without destroying their value to backpackers like myself. I am concerned, however, that our ever increasing population will cause us to frantically cut down our remaining forests. I spent several months in a "concrete jungle", Sao Paulo, Brazil. I don't think this is what any of us want to offer to our children as the only alternative.

Very truly yours,
J.W. Edminster

How to beat college cost spiral

If you're the parent of a student entering college (or continuing studies) in the 1978-79 academic year, you'll find costs at still another all-time high, up an average of 6 per cent above 1977-78, and simply beyond your reach without outside aid. This will be painfully so if your child is only an average student and your income falls in the middle-income classification, or between $15,000 and $30,000 a year.

Even at public colleges offering four-year educations, total expenses will average $3,054 next year for on-campus resident students, up 5.3 per cent over 1977-78. And at a few public colleges, expenses will hit the never-before-touched $4,000 level.

At private four-year colleges, the average will be $5,110 if you child lives on-campus, up 6.1 per cent. And at a few private colleges, '78-79 expenses will total a shocking $8,000!

To round out the brutal dollar facts, while your child will save by commuting to school from home rather than by residing on-campus, the difference generally will not be more than $600 a year for students attending the same type of college.

Commuters at private four-year colleges will pay about $4,577 in '78-79. At public two- and four-year colleges, total costs for commuters will average $2,426 and $2,605 respectively, a 4.8 per cent increase. All figures are at unprecedented peaks.

These are the highlights of the annual nationwide survey released today by the College Scholarship Service of the College Board. Its results cover studies of expenses at 2,693 colleges.

One bright note is that federal and state financial aid funds will rise by about 15 per cent for the '78-79 year and funds from all sources — government, institutional and private — are expected to reach $12.3 billion. These estimates do not include the effect of any legislation Congress may pass increasing funds available to students in 1979-80 or giving parents — students other relief. In the words of Elizabeth W. Suchar, CSS director of financial aid services:

"Students, including many from middle-income families, may qualify for financial aid and should apply for funds to help them attend colleges which they may not be able to afford on their own."

Love bug bites senior citizens

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Edith Schaefer says it doesn't bother her that her new husband, Edwin, is older than she is.

"It just makes me a young bride," says Mrs. Schaefer, 65. Schaefer is 80.

The couple marked their third week of marital bliss during a reception in their honor this week at the Ella Austin Community Center, where they met in a senior citizen's program.

"The love bug bit us—it bit us strong and powerful. Like love at first sight even though we had known each other for about four years," said Mrs. Schaefer, a widow for 18 years until recently.

"We missed seeing each other for about 10 days and then upon meeting again, well, it was a nine-day whirlwind courtship.

"We feel like teen-agers again—just starting out!" she exclaimed.

Schaefer, who is less talkative, said he had no reservations about their marriage on a brisk Sunday morning in New Braunfels, northeast of San Antonio.

GI charged in slaying

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — A Fort Benning enlisted man has been charged in one of two slayings attributed to the killer who called himself "chairman of the Forces of Evil."

Spec. 4 William Henry Hance, 26, of Lexington, Va., was charged Wednesday with the murder of Brenda Gail Faison, 21, one of two black women whose bodies were found near the fort.

Before the bodies were discovered, police and a local newspaper had received a series of rambling, handwritten letters signed by the "chairman of the Forces of Evil."

In one letter, the author vowed to kill a "black woman every 30 days" until police solved the murders of six elderly white women who were strangled at their homes in an exclusive section of town between September 1977 and February of this year.

Local police said they have been unable to come up with any concrete leads in the stranglings of the white women, but they believe there is no direct connection with the "Forces of Evil" case.

Hance was being held by federal authorities on charges of murder and theft by extortion.

Police said one of the "Forces of Evil" letters they received demanded money. The amount demanded has not been disclosed.

"We identified three interested groups that want to participate in a project and we will put in a pre-proposal by April 15," said Milton Holloway, director of the Texas Energy Advisory Council.

Holloway met with representatives of grain sorghum, corn, wheat and sugar farmers to discuss the feasibility of such a project. The three groups most interested in a pilot plant are Amstar Inc., the Rio Grande Valley Sugar Growers and Dimmitt Agri-Industries.

"In 1935, 90 percent of U.S. industrial alcohol was produced from natural carbohydrates," Speaker Bill Clayton told the group. "Now, 90 percent of alcohol comes from ethylene. It's been done, and now the largest potential market for alcohol is as an additive to gasoline."

A report from the advisory council says two types of alcohol, methanol and ethanol, could be produced by either fermenting crops or by thermal conversion.

"Ethanol, when mixed 10 percent by volume with gasoline does not appear to decrease gas mileage, but actually raises you know, elope. But my son got it into his head that we should go to a church and do it that way," Mrs. Schaefer added.

Her new husband said: "At our age, why go through a big wedding deal? We had just decided to run off somewhere and do it."

The oil portrait, traditional for secretaries of agriculture, was delivered last fall but has gathered dust waiting until an official hanging ceremony could be arranged.

Butz indicated months ago that he would not come to Washington just to have his portrait hung, but that he would think about participating in a ceremony if he happened to be here on other business.

Butz, now 68, lives in West Lafayette, Ind., the location of Purdue University where he taught for many years.

The eastern Pennsylvania borough of Jim Thorpe originally consisted of Mauch Chunk and East Mauch Chunk, which were Indian names meaning "bear mountain." The two villages merged in 1954 when they adopted the name of Jim Thorpe, the Indian football player whose body was brought to the area for burial.

By-products of alcohol production include carbon dioxide and grain residue.

In order to qualify for the federal project, the pilot plant must put out more in total energy and products than it uses in fossil fuels. In addition, applications for the project must specify how the products would be marketed.

"It has to be energy efficient," said Spencer Baen, director of the Center for Energy and Mineral Resources at Texas A&M University.

Clayton said two of the projects unofficially have been awarded to Nebraska and Louisiana. He said a Texas proposal could be from the state, industry or a joint state-industry application.

Mitchell has surgery

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, on medical furlough from prison, was admitted to Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center on Thursday for hip surgery, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman said Dr. Frank E. Stinchfield will replace Mitchell's arthritic right hip.

Mitchell has been on furlough from Maxwell Air Force Base prison camp in Alabama since Christmas, when he was released to undergo surgery in January for repair of an artery in his abdomen.

Mitchell reported to the Alabama prison camp last June to begin serving a 2½-to-8-year sentence for obstructing justice and lying under oath in connection with the Watergate scandal.

LoVaca argues for plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A top negotiator for Coastal States Gas Corp. says much higher natural gas prices and supply shortages will result if the railroad commission does not approve a proposed settlement of Coastal-LoVaca Gathering Co.'s gas problems.

A hearing before examiner Tom Hill of the commission went into the fifth day today.

Major customers of LoVaca, a Coastal subsidiary, are asking the commission to approve the proposed settlement of $1.6 billion in customer suits against Coastal-LoVaca.

Opposition has surfaced, however, from several customers including those who get their gas from Lone Star Gas Co., which buys from LoVaca.

Bernard Schrader was asked Thursday if the commission refused to affirm the settlement "will consumers still have a supply of gas at reasonable prices?"

"It's my opinion," Schrader replied, "they would not have as adequate supply as under the settlement plan, or anywhere near approaching the prices — they would be much higher."

Cross-examination of accountant Palmer Moe revealed that apparently only a few major customers would benefit economically from the settlement.

The customers include Austin, San Antonio, Corpus Christi and others who worked with Moe in negotiating the settlement.

One benefit, Moe testified, would be the write-off of $22,794,000 in LoVaca claims against seven customers. LoVaca, for example, says the City Public Service Board of San Antonio owes the company $8,295,000 and Austin owes $7,215,000.

Bob Burleson, a lawyer for Charter International Oil Co., complained that the settlement would permit Lone Star to pass through 100 percent of its gas costs to Lone Star customers, including Charter.

Lone Star now passes on only 85 percent of its costs.

Charter was not a party to the negotiations, Burleson noted. Only the settling customers, Burleson said, "share in all the good stuff. They get full benefits plus they get out of the indebtedness."

"You might summarize it that way," said Moe.

Burleson said, "There is no reasonable probability" that benefits would flow through to ratepayers but would be "eaten up" by companies' prior claims.

"I don't think that is a proper summarization," Moe said.

"My view," said Burleson, "is that the only ones who are going to profit are the settling parties and Coastal."

Butz portrait untitled

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $5,000 oil portrait of Earl L. Butz, hung without ceremony or nameplate, now graces a corridor of the Agriculture Department he headed for almost five years.

There is no brass nameplate or other marker to identify Butz or indicate the job he held: secretary of agriculture during the Nixon and Ford administrations.

Plans are still underway to hang Butz' portrait officially if he can be persuaded to attend a ceremony, a department spokesman said.

Butz resigned Oct. 4, 1976, after protests over remarks made public at the height of Gerald Ford's unsuccessful presidential campaign. Butz made a racial joke to companions about the bathroom, sexual and footwear preferences of black people.

Black teens without jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate edged slightly upward to 6.2 percent in March after four straight months of declines, and for black teen-agers it rose to 39 percent, the Labor Department said today.

The overall jobless rate in February was 6.1 percent. A year ago it was 7.4 percent.

Officials are still worried about the high unemployment rate among black youths. There was no sign in March that new job-creating jobs were helping the minority group.

The unemployment rate among blacks between the ages of 16 and 19 rose from 38 percent in February to 39 percent last month.

Jobless rates were virtually unchanged for adult men at 4.5 percent, adult women 5.8 percent and all teen-agers 17.3 percent. Unemployment among black adult women rose from 10.1 to 11.4 percent.

The number of Americans with jobs advanced by 260,000 to 93.3 million, the department said. The labor force — the number of people holding jobs or seeking them — rose 320,000 to 99.4 million.

The department indicated more women are looking for jobs and finding them. In both the labor force and employment, adult women outgained adult men two to one.

Department analysts said the coal strike, which ended March 26, apparently had little effect on unemployment in other job sectors last month. The strike ended before coal shortages could lead to extensive layoffs, they said. The striking coal miners are not included in the unemployment rate.

The department said although unemployment rose, the increase was only slight. Before it was rounded off, the unemployment rate rose from 6.146 percent to 6.184 percent.

The report indicated that people who held jobs were getting in more hours of work in March. Average weekly hours rose from 35.8 to 36.1 in March, and among factory workers the rise was from 40 to 40.5 hours.

This gain represented a return to the levels that prevailed late last year before severe weather forced shorter work weeks in some regions, the department said.

The unemployment rate had hovered near 7 percent most of last year, but declined in October to 6.8 percent, November 6.7 percent, December 6.4 percent, January 6.3 percent, and February 6.1 percent.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department reported Thursday that wholesale prices rose 0.6 percent in March, which could lead to an annual inflation rate of just over 7 percent if such prices increase at the March rate for the rest of the year. Wholesale prices rose 1.1 percent in February, the biggest increase in more than three years.

Wholesale food prices rose 0.8 percent in March after jumps of 1.1 percent in January and 2.9 percent in February, the department said. The price of other consumer goods rose 0.5 percent.

Economists watch the monthly wholesale price report closely because price increases are usually passed on to consumers.

Diggs pleads innocent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles Diggs, a 12-term congressman from Michigan, pleaded innocent today to charges that he received more than $101,000 in kickbacks from employees on his federal payroll.

Diggs entered the plea at his arraignment before U.S. District Judge Joseph C. Waddy. Diggs was charged in a 35-count indictment March 21.

Waddy set June 26 as a tentative trial date.

After the hearing, Diggs repeated to reporters his prior statement that he is innocent and said he has no intention of resigning from Congress or curtailing his congressional duties.

Diggs appeared in court with his attorney about 10 minutes before his scheduled court time. He talked quietly and laughed with a few friends and aides in the court room.

Diggs is chairman of the House District of Columbia Committee and the senior black member of Congress.

Each of the 35 counts carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison. Diggs could also face fines of up to $224,000 if convicted.

The indictment said Diggs inflated the salaries of employees on the House payroll so they could make kickbacks to the congressman for his personal use.

The indictment also charges that Diggs added three employees of the House of Representatives to the House payroll despite the fact that they performed no congressional duties.

Royalty gets pay raise

LONDON (AP) — The Labor government today announced a 9.2 percent pay raise for the royal family, a move sure to stir up new controversy around Princess Margaret.

It will not be known for weeks how much of the $450,000 increase might go to the 47-year-old princess. Some of her critics not only oppose any increase for Margaret but also have suggested that she lose her current $101,750 stipend.

The princess, Queen Elizabeth II's younger sister, has been under fire for her relationship with brewer heir and aspiring pop singer Roddy Llewellyn, 17 years her junior, for their frequent vacation trips to the Caribbean island of Mustique, and for her alleged inattention to royal duties.

The so-called Civil List, the annual allowance granted to members of the royal family to pay their staffs and enable them to carry out their official duties, was raised to $5.29 million from last year's $4.84 million.

The allotment among family members will be decided later in consultations between Civil List trustees, who include Prime Minister James Callaghan, and the queen's treasurer.

The government said the increase was designed to cover inflation and falls within its anti-inflation ceiling of 10 percent for wage increases.

A spokesman for Princess Margaret, meanwhile, said she plans a quiet weekend at Windsor Castle recovering from the flu.

British Press Association correspondent Grania Forbes, who has close contact with the royal family, reported Thursday that Margaret, sister of Queen Elizabeth II, probably will abandon her relationship with Llewellyn in order to continue her public life.

The princess has been separated from her husband, Lord Snowdon, for two years. They have two children. She met Llewellyn in 1973.

Train derails near Somerville

SOMERVILLE, Texas (AP) — Authorities evacuated an area three miles east of the scene of a train derailment near this South Central Texas town today after one of the derailed cars containing propylaldehyde began to leak.

Santa Fe Railroad officials could not specifically describe the substance, but said it is a "hazardous" material and that an explosives expert was dispatched to the scene.

The derailment involved 27 cars of a 45-car freight, eight of which overturned, including the one leaking the propylaldehyde. Burleson County Sheriff Alfred Wilhelm blocked highways in the area and firefighters kept a constant spray of water on the dangerous car.

Mitchell reported to the Alabama prison camp last June to begin serving a 2½- to 8-year sentence for obstructing justice and lying under oath in connection with the Watergate scandal.

Common Market seeks push

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — The Common Market summit is being overshadowed by unhappiness over President Carter's policy on the falling dollar and deliveries of nuclear fuel to Europe.

The Europeans want more action from the U.S. government to bolster the price of the dollar on world exchanges.

"It is part of the world problem which calls for more stable currencies," said Danish Prime Minister Anker Joergensen, chairman of the meeting, which opens today and ends Saturday.

Attending are the heads of state or heads of government of Britain, France, Italy, West Germany, Denmark, Ireland, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

The fate of the dollar is tied to the main problem facing the nine Common Market countries: how to find jobs for 6.5 million unemployed, a third of them under the age of 25. If the dollar continues at its present low, or drops further, European unemployment is likely to rise.

This is because a cheap dollar makes American goods more attractive and takes business away from Europeans, who depend much more heavily on exports than the United States does.

Joergensen told reporters the Common Market leaders would discuss the possibility of bringing West European currencies closer together. A unified European currency could be a rival to the dollar in world trade. There would be no immediate effect on business and employment in Europe since no immediate action is expected.

But a stable West European currency, embracing the major countries in the area, would give business some of the confidence it needs to build more plants, buy more machinery and thus get more Europeans back to work.

The issue of nuclear fuel deliveries began coming to a head a month ago when Carter signed a new law to halt the spread of material that can be made into bombs. This law has no direct relation to the issue of building and deploying neutron weapons.

Philippines protest election today

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Opponents of President Ferdinand E. Marcos cried foul today less than two hours after the polls opened for the country's first National Assembly elections in 5½ years.

"They're not allowing our poll watchers into the booths in parts of Makati," said Corazon Aquino, wife of imprisoned former Sen. Benigno S. Aquino Jr. Makati is a fashionable Manila suburb.

"This is really too much. I thought it would take a lot longer than this for something like this to happen."

Aquino was arrested shortly after declaration of martial law in September 1972. He was convicted of murder in November and sentenced to death, but Marcos ordered the case reopened to hear defense evidence.

The ex-senator is heading an opposition ticket in metropolitan Manila against a slate led by Imelda Marcos, wife of the president.

Twenty-one of the 165 interim National Assembly seats up for election are in the capital. The assembly, under Marcos as prime minister, will have 200 members. The others will be appointed or chosen later by unspecified means. Marcos is assured of a heavy majority since the opposition has fielded only 21 candidates.

Under martial law rules, voting is mandatory, but there have been no reports of punishment for those who failed to vote in five earlier referendums that have given the martial law government overwhelming votes of confidence.

An estimated 24 million to 25 million voters were expected to cast ballots nationwide. Manila's registration is more than 3.5 million.

Mrs. Aquino, who with her family has carried the brunt of her husband's campaign, went to the polling places where the opposition allegedly was barred. She said if she didn't get satisfaction, she would file an official complaint with the election commission.

Rep charged in bribes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. Otto Passman, once a congressional power over foreign aid, is being arraigned on charges of taking $213,000 to help Tongson Park sell U.S. rice to South Korea.

The 77-year-old Louisiana Democrat faced arraignment in U.S. District Court today on three counts of taking bribes, three of taking illegal payments and one of defrauding the government.

The maximum penalty is 56 years in jail and a fine of more than three times the $213,000.

The former chairman of the House foreign operations appropriations subcommittee has repeatedly said he "never got a dime" from Park.

Passman is accused of using his position in Congress to pressure both U.S. and South Korean officials to help Park sell rice in return for the $213,000.

A federal grand jury indictment charges Passman of pressuring U.S. officials to allocate money for U.S. Food for Peace rice sales to South Korea.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Evel Knievel says his time in jail has cut so deeply into his earning capacity that he's down to his last yacht.

"Last year at this time I had 16 boats, three of them yachts, with a value of about $5 million," Knievel said in a letter to his press agent, Stan Rosenfield. "I've had to sell them all with the exception of three speed boats and one 80-foot yacht."

Rosenfield released the letter to the media Thursday.

"I have only two houses left," Knievel complained, and he added that he had sold all but the largest of his jeweled rings.

Knievel, sentenced to a six-month jail term for beating a television executive with a baseball bat, will be freed from county jail next Wednesday.

"Things are tough, but I think I can make it," Knievel wrote.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actor Eddie Albert, 69 but muscular, says he's in good shape because "my body is my merchandise."

Appearing at a Senate hearing to support a federal nutritional program for infants and expectant mothers, Albert said Thursday, "like most actors and actresses, I believe in good nutrition and exercise."

Sen. Muriel Humphrey, D-Minn., has introduced a bill authorizing $650 million to extend the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children.

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Attorney General John Mitchell, who was furloughed from prison for surgery on his abdomen, has been admitted to the hospital again for replacement of his arthritic right hip.

Mitchell has been on furlough from the prison camp at Maxwell Air Force Base since Christmas. He underwent abdominal surgery in January, and has been granted 30-day extensions of his furlough since then.

Mitchell reported to the Alabama prison camp last June to begin serving a 2½- to 8-year sentence for obstructing justice and lying under oath in connection with the Watergate scandal.

Court reviews hamper child abuse casework

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' child abuse caseworkers face a "real problem situation" while the U.S. Supreme Court reviews a decision striking down parts of the Texas Family Code, says a state official.

"We're telling them that if they don't have a solid or effective order, they can't hold a child regardless of whether the child needs protection from a life-threatening situation," said Assistant Attorney General Colin Carl.

A three-judge federal court in Houston recently held unconstitutional parts of the Texas law dealing with custody hearings and computerized records of child abuse.

Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell last week refused to postpone effects of the Houston decision.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Sims of Houston challenged the child abuse law in federal court after their children were taken from them in 1976.

Teachers began to suspect the oldest child, 9-year-old Paul Sims, was a victim of severe child abuse and beatings.

A caseworker for the Harris County Child Welfare Unit investigated, took custody of all three children and filed a complaint against the parents in juvenile court.

Judge Robert L. Lowry signed an order removing the children from their parents' custody for 10 days. Under state law, a judge must return children to their parents after 10 days or order additional court proceedings on permanent custody.

The Sims couple sued the state, charging that state procedures for alleged child abuse cases violate parental rights. The federal court agreed.

"We're going to appeal portions of the decision to the Supreme Court," Carl said.

He said he doubted the high court would reach the case until this fall.

The federal court said a hearing should be held within 24 hours after a child is taken from his parents.

"We're not going to appeal the necessity of having the 24-hour period, but the court apparently said the hearing has to be within 24 hours, not excluding weekends," Carl said.

"We've talked to prosecuting attorneys and judges and they either can't or won't do that on weekends. The next scheduled work day seems appropriate."

Only court-handled cases may be filed in the Texas Department of Human Resources computer system, the court said.

Until the decision was handed down, the department put all caseworker reports of child abuse into its computer bank, regardless of whether they received court action.

"Some cases may never have ended in judicial determination, but from the department's point of view there was some substance to them," Carl said. Having background on a case might help a caseworker choose which cases should get the highest priority, he added.

The 1979 Legislature will need to change the law, since the state already has agreed some portions of the code need revision, Carl said.

Police report

A series of coin-operated vending machine break-ins Thursday netted thieves an undetermined amount of money and caused considerable damage to the machines.

Vending machines located at the Coronado Inn, a car wash in the 1800 block of North Hobart and at a car wash in the 1400 block of Alcock were robbed.

Estimated loss and damage to the three machines was valued at nearly $100.

A 6:05 p.m. car-motorcycle accident at the intersection of Gwendolyn and Sumner resulted in minor injuries to David Gerik, 1602 Christine. Gerik, driver of the motorcycle was not treated.

Police reported that during March the department responded to 1,120 calls while driving 21,813 miles on patrol and call response.

Forty-five calls were answered by police during a 24-hour period which ended at 7 a.m.

Fire report

The Pampa Fire Department answered two city calls Thursday. The first was at 808 E. Craven, a grass and fence fire, probably started by children playing with matches. The owner of the property is Haddie Wright.

The second run was to 800 W. Kingsmill where a 1966 Dodge belonging to Mitchell Hodge caught fire from a flooded carburetor. Wiring was damaged.

Two county runs were made. One-half mile west on Hwy. 60, a grass, trash, and lumber fire burned, but no serious damage was reported. From 2-4 a.m. a grass fire was fought three miles east of Hoover. It was started by a Santa Fe train, officials said.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been divorced for 12 years. For business reasons, I have lived in another city, so my three sons have been raised by their mother. I have always provided more than the court required and have tried to maintain a good relationship with my sons over the years.

The problem is my oldest son. He graduated from high school two years ago and he is still sitting at home, watching television all day, sleeping late and staying up until all hours. He has no desire to do anything else; no need to get a job because I am required to pay him an allowance until he's 21. This provides cigarette and pocket money. His mother isn't concerned about his idleness because if and when he becomes financially independent, her child support payments will drop, and she doesn't want her income reduced.

I don't think I should support this 19-year-old as I did when he was 12. It encourages his inactivity, but I can't kick him out of his mother's house. Don't recommend psychological help. His mother wouldn't permit it. It would mean that she isn't perfect. I can't cut off the money and force him to get a job. He's not interested in college or trade school. All he wants to do is watch television. He knows every program that comes on between noon and sign-off time.

How can I wake this guy up to the fact that he can't sit on his can forever? Besides, it's a poor example for his two younger brothers, who are still in high school.

CONCERNED BUT HELPLESS

DEAR C AND H: You can't "force" him to do anything. Your only hope is to spend more time with him and inspire him to lead a more productive life. Otherwise he may watch television for another two years, then circumstances may force him to get off his can and be a man.

DEAR ABBY: Have you or any of your readers ever heard of tipping a waitress before she even takes your order?

I have a friend who invariably slips money into the waitress's hand when she first approaches our table.

I asked this friend where he got the idea of tipping first, and he said it was just common sense. A tip in advance usually insures good service.

I would appreciate any light you can shed on this subject.

CURIOS IN LOWELL, ARK.

DEAR CURIOUS: Tipping generously in advance seems more like a bribe than a tip, but it makes sense. The word "tips" (I am told) is an abbreviation for "to insure prompt service."

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I divorced my husband because he beat me up several times. He never showed any signs of being violent before we were married. There were times when he beat me so brutally I was afraid he would kill me.

I heard that he is going to be married again. I don't know the lady, but I know how to get in touch with her.

I am debating as to whether I should warn her. What do you say?

DEBATING

DEAR DEBATING: On the chance that she'll bring out the best in him while you brought out the best in him, let him be the word.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 77 years old. I suffer with daily constipation and it is a constant pain and drain on my whole system. The only somewhat meager relief I find is when I take Senokot, but it is taking Senokot daily to the point of dependency the answer? You are my last resort - any help at all will be more than appreciated.

DEAR READER - This is a common problem and it is worse in older people. Why? Because many older people don't eat enough bulk and often don't get enough exercise.

Senokot is a good gentle medicine and contains ingredients to stimulate colonic contractions as well as to soften the stool. However, it is much better if people can regulate their life style in such a way as to promote normal bowel function without taking medicines.

First you need to know that you don't need to have a bowel movement every day. That nonsense has caused many a person to take harmful laxatives. If you empty the colon prematurely there is not going to be a normal elimination the next day. The person who insists he must have a bowel movement then takes another laxative and empties prematurely again. The colon doesn't respond well to this constant whipping with chemicals to empty, empty, empty. It gets irritated and cramps. Then the irritable colon problem is in full swing.

Breaking the laxative habit is not easy for many. I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation to give you details on a program you can follow. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me

DEAR POLLY - I want to tell Johnnie that I remove stains left by marking ink by using toothpaste. Put a small amount on the marks and rub lightly with a soft cloth. Do this as soon as you see them. - MRS. E.M.T.

Toni and Chris deMarco stroll through Central Park with their children. Both self-described rebels, the two are not married. (NYT photo)

Marriage doesn't run in couples' families

By LESLIE BENNETTS
(c) 1978 N.Y. Times
News Service

In a roomy old apartment on Central Park West, late-afternoon sunlight streams through the windows and brightens the golden down on the baby's head. She gurgles with pleasure as her mother, smiling, cuddles the child on her lap. Soon the door will burst open and the baby's equally angelic-looking 4-year-old brother will charge in, full of tales about his afternoon at a friend's house. As the last light fades over the park, their father will come home and the family will sit down to dinner.

A typical American nuclear family? Almost - but with one important exception. Although Toni and Chris deMarco have lived together for six years and produced two children, they have never been legally married. "We did have one of those hippie wedding ceremonies on the beach at Malibu one April Fool's Day," recalled 37-year-old Toni. "We said, 'I now marry you,' to each other, and then went home and had a giant party. That was when I started using Chris's name."

Both self-described rebels, the deMarcos have each been married before: Toni once, for seven years, and Chris twice, briefly. At 30 he feels strongly that he never wants to wed again; marriage, he maintains, is "completely ludicrous" and has nothing to do with having children. Nor does Toni worry about such formalities.

"I'm a very independent person. I always made enough money to support myself, and my feeling was, if we ever did split up, what difference does it make whether we were married or not?" she said. "I can always earn a living. I think the old-fashioned dream for a woman to expect a man to support her is debasing anyway. And if a couple loves each other, they shouldn't be obligated by a contract; they should be obligated by the trust and commitment they feel toward each other."

Toni is a model and writer and Chris is a singer with a rock band, but choices like theirs are no longer restricted to the bohemian fringe. Vanessa Redgrave, Catherine Deneuve and other celebrities attracted most of the initial attention focused on deliberately out-of-wedlock births, but in their own quiet ways, a number of P.T.A.-pillar-of-the-community types are doing the same thing.

Their reasons vary. "We've lived together for four years. Jeff's divorce still hasn't come through, and I'm 38 years old," explained one New York professional woman. "We just decided to go ahead and do it. The baby is 6 months old now, we love each other and we love our child, and we have a very nice family life. I didn't have any reservations about it at all."

The social stigma traditionally attached to illegitimate children holds little significance for these parents, who often live as if they were married, refer to each other as "my husband" or "my wife," and claim that the question of official sanction simply doesn't arise in the circles they move in - and that they wouldn't care if it did.

Many have arrived at their present attitudes because of embittering prior experience with marriage. "The whole thing is a farce," declared a wealthy lawyer and real-estate developer who lives with a former schoolteacher and their 2-year-old child. "When I think of the tremendous heartache and hardships which I personally have had to endure, the procedures I was forced to go through even to get to see my children by my first marriage, and the cost of tens of thousands of dollars - what do I gain by getting married again? Joan and I are as married as anybody could be. And if we ever did split up, Joan's personality and my trust in her character would be more of a guarantee that I could see my baby than the law, because the law is largely ineffectual in this area anyway."

But while the mandates of church, state or society may seem irrelevant to the disillusioned, there can come a time when even they - not to mention their offspring - look to legal guarantees of their rights. Many of these parents appear ignorant of the possible legal ramifications of their decision, and even those who investigate beforehand discover that the situation is changing constantly.

"This is a new and emerging area of the law that is in a state of rapid development," according to Henry Foster, professor emeritus at New York University Law School as well as immediate past chairman of the Family Law Section of the American Bar Association. "Until recently, the mother of an illegitimate child had exclusive claim to it; the father had no rights whatsoever. Now the mother no longer has absolute veto power unless she can prove exposure to the father would be detrimental to the child. More and more, the father is coming to have almost equal claim to the child as the mother."

As for the mother's rights, such as child support, they are largely predicated on the father's prior acknowledgment of paternity. "The father of an illegitimate child is required to support the child until the age of 21, the same as for a legitimate child, but paternity must be established," said Henry Foster. "If he consents to the use of his name on the birth certificate, that is regarded as some evidence, but not conclusive evidence." The simplest and most reliable route, he added, is for the father, at the time of the child's birth, to sign an order of filiation, a statement of paternity that can be obtained through Family Court.

Failure to do so can cause the child problems later on. If the father dies unexpectedly, inheritance can be a major problem. "Illegitimate children inherit from the mother as natural children, but New York State laws quite clear that they don't inherit from the father unless paternity is established by court order during his lifetime," Foster reported.

That kind of realization can eventually sway even the most diehard it's-a-matter-of-principle idealist.

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK
Researchers have gone to a lot of trouble to figure out what makes a woman successful in the corporate world. They've come up with:

1. Don't wear sweaters unless you want to be a secretary the rest of your life.
2. Wear glasses even if you don't need them.
3. Paint your office a masculine color.
4. Don't have a flower on your desk.
5. Take your family's picture off your desk.
6. Have a small chair so you'll look larger.
7. Hang only neutral art.

Now they tell me. For the first six years of my writing career, I listed shower curtains and a new lid for the commode as office expenditures on my tax return. There are thousands of women who work from their homes who don't have time to play the corporate game. Our rules are a little different.

If you want to get ahead at home:

1. Don't schlepp around in bathrobe and scuffles unless you want to be a housewife the rest of your life. Be dressed by noon.
2. Paint your office black unless you want to spend your entire time scouring around the light switches and looking for dust.

3. Equip your phone with a 75-foot extension cord. This permits you to stir the potatoes, type, turn off the washer, and grab your prize-winning poolie before it mates with a St. Bernard.

4. Detonate your scissors, plastic tape, pens, rulers and matched stationery. Put a sign over your desk that reads, "THIS IS A HARD HAT AREA. ENTER AT YOUR OWN RISK."

5. Wear glasses. Especially when you can find them. They're authoritative and also keep you from shouting at a Boston Fern. "Comb your hair or cut it!"

6. Important phone messages should be posted at all times on the refrigerator door. No fair leaving off last number of digit or etching them out in the latty litter.

7. Have only neutered dogs. As everyone files out of your kitchen leaving you with dishes, the garbage and the chores because they've "worked all day," remember, it's lonely at the top.

Murder says he feels no guilt, no caring

EDITOR'S NOTE: Allen Leroy Anderson is a self-confessed killer. Already convicted of murder in four states, and sentenced to death in one, he was interviewed in his Virginia jail cell this week by a reporter of the Charlottesville Daily Progress.

By BOB GIBSON
The Daily Progress
CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — When Allen Leroy Anderson drove into Albemarle County two summers ago, he had just killed one stranger and was about to kill several more.

The 34-year-old Austin, Minn., native displayed no emotion this week as he admitted killing eight people in his cross-country spree in the summer and fall of 1976.

"Whatever road looked like a fun road to go down, I turned and went down it," said the four-time convicted murderer. He received his third life sentence Monday in Albemarle County Circuit Court for the Aug. 24, 1976, shooting death of Stony Point storekeeper James Norford Jr.

"There are probably many people in this area who are probably lucky I just drove on by," he said. "Nothing was planned."

Norford, a father of six, was shot the morning Anderson walked into Bell's Store as it opened for business. The country store proprietor's fatal mistake was his reaction to Anderson's inadvertent display of a .22-caliber pistol.

"That gun was with me all the time," Anderson recalled. "When I attempted to pay for the stuff (breakfast), I was so unaware of the gun" it popped into sight and "he just stood there staring at it."

Anderson said he started to lock Norford in a back room, but something made him feel "he was going to slam the door in my face or throw boxes at me... If the man had not attempted to do what I thought was a threatening move, he would be here today."

"Anybody that has a gun in your face... don't provoke him. You don't know where he's coming from. You don't know what he's like... There is no amount of money, no amount of groceries, that's worth dying for."

"I knew that his life was in my hands, and I may have felt 25 feet high," Anderson continued.

Anderson said he felt no remorse over the Norford slaying or most of the rest of his undetermined number of murders. Police said he has been questioned about as many as 20 murders. Anderson admitted to eight and said any others would be revealed in an autobiography.

"Nothing can justify killing," he said. "I don't have a lot of guilt as to what I've done because any capacity I had for loving and caring for people has been taken away from me."

Interviewed for more than two hours, Anderson blamed the killing spree on himself, his parents and the attitude in American society toward homosexuals.

Rejection in May 1976 by a homosexual lover in Seattle "touched off a rage I've never known," Anderson said. "At that time, I hated society. I hated anybody. I just decided I was never going to be used again. If I could afford it,

I today would hire someone to find him (the lover) and kill him. That's how hurt I was... "When I left Seattle, I just intended to run, steal, travel, use people... and take back what was taken from me."

Termining himself shy, Anderson said he "never got 90 percent of the things I wanted." His relationships with people had deteriorated and he felt he could not meet people because "I would say, 'I'm not good enough, I'm not young enough, I'm not attractive enough.'"

"I blame most of it on myself for not being able to deal responsibly with situations," he said. "I had a lot of sexual hangups... Rejection was a big part of it."

"I don't trust people. I never want to be where I'm at. I love being on the highway by myself so I can be myself."

"I don't know what it is I want, so I get in my car... I don't want to work (although) I want to have money. I want someone to need me, but I don't want to need somebody. I want to be free."

"There were a lot of things I needed and I wanted from my father that I did not get," he said, "and I've always felt more comfortable around older men."

Last summer, Anderson was sentenced to death in the electric chair in Florida for the murder of an elderly fruit stand operator three days after he had killed Norford.

He is appealing the death sentence. He says he does not want to die, "although I might deserve to die for what I did... from coast to coast... Nothing I've done can justify killing (me)."

Anderson pleaded guilty to Norford's murder and said he plans to plead guilty to murder charges in at least two other courts. Within the next two weeks, he is to stand trial in northern Virginia for the August 1976 slaying of a 26-year-old civilian employee of the secretary of the Air Force.

"After all," he said, "there isn't any sentence they can give me that's going to make any difference."

Israel to begin withdrawal

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel will begin a two-stage partial withdrawal of its troops from southern Lebanon on Tuesday, affecting troops along the eastern half of the front, a U.N. spokesman said. Plans for the the phased withdrawal, to be completed next Friday, were presented to the chief of U.N. operations in the Middle East by Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur, Israeli's chief of staff, during a meeting in Jerusalem on Thursday.

The first stage of the pullout will affect an area east of Marjayoun, a Christian-held town three miles north of the Israeli border town of Metullah, the U.N. spokesman said. The Israeli troops also will withdraw from the Khardali bridge over the Litani River, he added.

About 700 Norwegian troops moved into the area in the past week.

Israel invaded southern Lebanon March 15 to establish a security belt and prevent guerrilla raids into Israel like the one four days earlier in which 35 Israelis died.

The Israelis captured a strip of land along the border north as far as the Litani, except for a small guerrilla enclave around the port city of Tyre, and declared a cease-fire March 21.

On Thursday, Israel reported its first casualties since it announced the truce. The military command said three soldiers were killed and two were missing after an unauthorized sight-seeing trip Wednesday.

The Palestine Liberation Organization in Beirut said four Israelis were killed and one captured, and the United Nations said its reports indicated five were killed.

An Israeli military spokesman said two soldiers entered Lebanon in a small truck looking for a tractor near Bint Jbeil.

Child returned to parents

DALLAS (AP) — Nineteen-month-old Tony Olivo will be returned to his parents, who were once declared "medically negligent" but have now completed special training to deal with Tony's rare disease.

The Dallas toddler will be given back to his parents by order of County Juvenile Judge Pat McClung, who told medical and child welfare authorities Thursday to return him today or Saturday.

Tony suffers from a rare disease and was removed from his parents' home Feb. 16 when authorities contended his parents had been "medically negligent" in his care. He has spent most of his life in hospitals, where he has undergone treatment for a blood disorder.

Tony had been scheduled for a bone marrow transplant in Boston last November, but doctors there postponed the operation indefinitely, saying it would be too dangerous at this time in the youngster's life.

Family attorney Charles Robertson said Tony's parents, Deborah Oliva and Gilbert Valdez, had worked hard and cooperated fully in obtaining medical training during the past three weeks. "They possess the requisite knowledge to take care of Tony," Robertson said.

"I've been waiting for this day," Mrs. Oliva said. "We plan to take him to a park or riding. We can do that."

An investment in Your Future
ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

America the Beautiful...

From the time that Columbus discovered America... men have thought of this country as something special. It was here that Ponce de Leon sought the Fountain of Youth, and men have long admired America's majestic mountains and beautiful valleys. However, the real beauty lies not in the land, but in the people. The people came... seeking a land where they could worship God in freedom, and under God developed a kind and loving spirit. This is what makes America beautiful.

Attend church regularly... help keep America beautiful.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Texan leads Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The string of four birdies that gave John Schlee a one-stroke lead in the opening round of the Masters Tournament started with a rope.

Schlee will need more than a rope to hold back the challengers that are within four strokes of him. The second round gets underway today at the sun-soaked windblown Augusta National Golf Club.

Schlee, a 38-year-old Texan who left the tour for a country club job last year, fired a 68 Thursday.

At 69 was Joe Inman, who, feeling weak because he forgot to bring his seeds and nuts, bogeyed the 17th hole to fall out of a tie for first. At 70 were Lee Trevino, who is experimenting with a hook for this tournament, and Bill Kratzert. Tom Kite, who tied for third here last year, was at 71 along with Jerry McGee and Steve Melnyk.

Many of the most dangerous shot-makers in the 80-man field were at even par. Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf, Gary Player, Hubert Green and Jerry Pate were among the 12 players at 72. And at 1 over par were defending champion Tom Watson, four-time Masters champion Arnold Palmer and Hale Irwin.

The lead belonged to Schlee, though, and it started on the dangerous 12th hole. Many players consider the par-3, 155-yard hole over water the most difficult on the course. Thirty-five scores of bogey or worse were recorded at the hole Thursday, including an 8 by Danny Edwards. Eight players birdied it, including Schlee.

And he had to use a rope. "The card says 155 but I've hit the wrong club so many times that I decided to find out how far the doggone thing was for sure," said Schlee, a self-proclaimed disciple of Ben Hogan. "So last year before the Masters I took a gallery rope and stretched it from the ball washer to the right-middle of the green.

"It is 155 yards, which is what they tell you, but doing it myself made me feel a lot more confident."

That confidence plus a strong 7-iron put him 12 feet from the hole. He sank that putt. Then he scored a birdie by 2-putting the par-5 13th and sank a 12-footer on 14 and a six-footer on 15.

Schlee has had his erratic career interrupted three times by injuries.

He was the tour's Rookie of the Year in 1966, then missed the top 60 money-winning list until 1971. He won the Hawaiian Open in 1973, but was forced off the tour by a back operation in 1975 and a knee operation in 1976.

Nicklaus and Watson, who battled until the 72nd hole last year before Watson could claim the victory, were disgruntled with their putting in the opening round.

"The conditions were rather difficult," said Nicklaus, a reference to the swirling winds and difficult pin placements.

Watson felt the same way. "It was a miserable day on the greens for me," he said. "I hit enough good shots to be a couple under par."

Weiskopf, a four-time runner-up at the Masters, preferred to talk about his playing partner, Severiano Ballesteros.

"The first time I saw him hit a ball was on the first tee, and he hit the nicest, firmest 300-yard drive into the wind that I've ever seen," Weiskopf said of the 20-year-old Spaniard who's dominated golf in Europe for two years.

"He plays with reckless abandon. He rips it, I want to tell you. He tries to cut all the corners and goes for every pin. He's got a lot to learn, but he's going to be a phenomenal player," Ballesteros shot 74, along with PGA champ Lanny Wadkins.

At 72 were Lynn Lot, Leonard Thompson, Wally Armstrong, Gene Littler, Don January, Dave Hill and Mac McLendon. Lee Elder was in the group at 73. Lou Graham and Ben Crenshaw were at 75, former Masters champion Ray Floyd at 76, and Johnny Miller at 77.

Netters head for Borger

Kurt Krause volleys across the net as his doubles partner John Grady looks on. The Pampa team plays a single elimination tournament today and Saturday in

Borger. Barry Ellis, coach of the tennis team, believes at least a third place finish in district is in line for the netters. District play will begin April 13, in Amarillo. (Pampa News photo by Ron Ennis)

Champ Yanks take on Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The sometimes turbulent World Champion New York Yankees arrive today and can take comfort that their opening day opponent, the Texas Rangers, have their morale problems, too.

Moody lefthander Roger Moret, who had a spat recently with several other members of the Ranger pitching staff, reiterated Thursday he wanted to be traded or released.

Why? Moret wasn't specific but said "I'm no troublemaker. It's a long season and I didn't come here to fight. I came here to play baseball."

Moret, a fireballing 28-year-old Puerto Rican, was sweet-talked by club official Eddie Robinson Thursday. It paid no dividends. "I'll be gone in 24 hours," said Moret.

Majority owner Brad Corbett said "I'll give Roger a big kiss. Everything will be OK."

But it wasn't. "I want to go," said Moret. Moret was scheduled to be a spot starter and long reliever for the Rangers. He said he had no quarrel with Ranger Manager Billy Hunter.

"I don't have any complaints with the way I've been used," said Moret.

Hunter said he thought everything had been smoothed over with Moret "for now."

"Roger said nobody likes him," said Hunter. "I told him, 'Roger, I like you.'"

Robinson said "I told Roger he had done real well. When you have 25 guys on a team, not everyone can get along."

Moret had a 3-3 record last year and has a buzzing fastball that's tough on lefthanded hitters—like the Yankees.

The Yankees work today but the Rangers were given the day off.

Ron Guidry of the Yankees will face Jon Matlack of the Rangers before what is expected to be a sellout crowd of 41,065 fans and a national television audience Saturday. Matlack came to the Rangers from the New York Mets and has sparkled during spring training.

"Matlack has been super," said Hunter.

If Moret leaves, it would leave the Rangers in a big hole. Lefty Paul Lindblad was recently put on the disabled list for 21 days.

But Hunter was typically unflappable.

"I believe we will survive," he said.

Campbell may go with Rams

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell of Texas has taken a Los Angeles Rams physical examination, and it's a strong possibility the running back will wind up with the Rams in the National Football League draft. Campbell's agent Mike Trope said Wednesday.

Tampa Bay has the first draft pick, but might deal that selection to the Rams for some quality players and multiple draft picks. Trope told the Los Angeles Times.

That's because Campbell wants to play with the Rams, Houston Oilers or Dallas Cowboys, Trope indicated.

Campbell, a 220-pounder who gained 4,443 yards in college, talked with Rams Owner Carroll Rosenbloom two weeks ago when he took the team physical. Trope added.

"It's a masterpiece of conjecture," was the brief comment by Rams' General Manager Don Klosterman, relayed through a team spokesman.

"It's baseless," Tampa Bay player personnel director Phil Krueger told the Times. "Sure we've been contacted by about a half-dozen clubs about our first pick. But we aren't close to a deal with any of them."

Dallas negotiated a similar deal with the Seattle Seahawks a year ago.

PAMPA NEWS Friday, April 7, 1978 9

Major events begin

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The main events of the 51st Texas Relays open Saturday although Coach Clyde Hart of Baylor says the weekend schedule may prevent church-going Baylor Baptists from seeing some races.

World-class performers in the discus and pole vault, as well as several NCAA individual champions, are entered in the meet, which was switched from Friday-Saturday to Saturday-Sunday to bolster attendance.

The featured race is a 100-meter dash, with two football rivals, Curtis Dickey of Texas A&M and Johnny "Lam" Jones of Texas, among nine sprinters invited to run in the Saturday finale.

Jones, an Olympic gold medal winner in the 1976 400-meter relay, was an all-Southwest Conference flanker for the Texas football team last year. Dickey rushed for nearly 1,000 yards as an A&M halfback. Both are sophomores.

Jones won the 100 meters last year with an amazing hand-clocked time of 9.85 seconds, but has not run in a meet this year following a muscle pull in Texas' Jan. 2 Cotton Bowl loss to Notre Dame.

Dickey won the 1978 NCAA indoor 60-meter race.

Also in the 100 is Bill Collins of the Philadelphia Pioneers track club, who ran on the 400-meter relay team that set a world record last year.

"I don't like it," Hart said of the new schedule. "It could knock a lot of our spectators from coming to the meet because of church or whatever."

Ken Stadel is ranked fifth in the world in the discus with a throw of 222 feet 9 inches. Larry Jesse, former vaulter for Texas-El Paso, has jumped 18-3, and 1976 Olympian Terry Porter has gone 18-2.

Sam Walker, formerly of Southern Methodist and a member of the Olympic weightlifting team, has the best mark of 66-9½ in the shot put.

The El Paso team won the NCAA indoor team champion and is rated the best of the 46 schools in the relays.

Morgan powers Cincinnati

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

A home run, two doubles and five RBI. How's that for openers?

"Everything just fell in place," said Joe Morgan after his hitting spree led the Cincinnati Reds to a wild 11-9 victory over the Houston Astros on the opening day of the National League baseball season Thursday.

The high-powered performance by the Cincinnati second baseman highlighted the traditional NL opener at Riverfront Stadium that also included a triple play by the Astros, three rain delays and an early knock-out of Reds pitching ace Tom Seaver.

"I did a lot of things correct today," Morgan understated after slamming a first-inning solo homer off J.R. Richard, a two-run double in a five-run fifth and a two-run double in the seventh.

Morgan's big day came on the heels of a dismal spring training performance during which the two-time Most Valuable Player could only manage three hits in 35 appearances. He said he regained his eye shortly before game time in the batting cage.

"I took 10 swings and I knew it was there," Morgan noted.

The triple play during the rain-plagued game came in the seventh inning, long after Seaver and Richard had been knocked from the box. The Astros pulled off the play when Dan Dreissen struck out as Morgan and George Foster were both cut down attempting to execute a double steal.

"I never realized it was a triple play," said Houston shortstop Roger Metzger. "This is my third triple play in the majors, but this was my strangest."

In the only other action in the major leagues Thursday night, the Minnesota Twins edged the Seattle Mariners 5-4 in an American League game. Rain postponed two American League openers—Baltimore at Milwaukee and Toronto at Detroit.

Morgan ignited a Cincinnati comeback after Houston staggered Seaver for five runs in four innings. Trailing 5-2 in the fifth, the Reds tagged Richard for five straight hits, three of them doubles, and took a 7-5 lead. They added two runs each in the sixth and seventh, with

Hayes arrested in drug bust

DALLAS (AP) — A national youth athletic program has severed its association with Bob Hayes following his arrest on drug charges.

The Olympic gold-medalist and former Dallas Cowboys wide receiver, once known as "the world's fastest human," was arrested with business associate Bob Adler in a north Dallas suburb Thursday on drug-related offenses.

Hayes, 35, a vice president of Dyon International, Inc., was charged with delivering cocaine and quantities to undercover officers. Adler, co-owner of the firm, was charged with delivery of cocaine.

Mitch Head, a spokesman for Hershey Foods Corporation in Pennsylvania, called Hayes' arrest unfortunate.

"Due to this incident, however, we do not feel that it is appropriate that he continue his association with our national track and field youth program," he said.

Hayes was released on $30,000 bond and Adler on $15,000 bond. Officers said the arrests followed three months of undercover investigations.

As he left the jail Thursday, Hayes called the incident "a mistake."

"I never dealt with it. I've never dealt with cocaine. I don't know what they found in my apartment," he added.

With his voice quivering, Hayes said, "I'll have a statement to make in the future, not today, but soon."

as "the world's fastest human."

US accuses Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Relations between Colombia and the United States have been hurt by American charges of Colombian laxity toward the drug traffic and corruption resulting from it.

"I think relations between the two countries are now at their lowest level in recent years," one diplomat said.

The Colombian government was infuriated last week when the U.S. General Accounting Office said government corruption has helped make Colombia the chief supplier of marijuana and cocaine to the United States.

Following the GAO charge, CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" alleged that a memorandum sent to President Carter linked three leading Colombian politicians to the drug traffic. They were Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala, candidate of the dominant Liberal Party who is favored to win the June 4 presidential election; Gen. Abraham Varon Valencia, the defense minister, and Labor Minister Oscar M. Montoya.

Turbay Ayala and Varon Valencia denied the charge. Montoya refused to comment, but President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen said any allegations about Montoya were unfounded.

Varon Valencia told U.S. Ambassador Diego Ascencio the charges were based on "false information which has caused notorious damage to the prestige of the country, its government and its armed forces."

The U.S. Embassy in reply said its government has no evidence that any high-ranking official is involved in drug trafficking.

To show that it is doing something about narcotics, the government reported Wednesday that its agents seized 240 tons of marijuana in the first three months of the year, the same amount seized in all of 1977.

It also said that between June 25, 1974, and March 15 of this year, 422 Colombians and 67 foreigners were tried on drug charges.

However, narcotics-control experts say marijuana has a low priority for U.S. drug enforcement officials. Their main concern is cocaine, these sources said, because Colombia is believed to supply 70 percent of the drug smuggled into the United States.

The GAO study said U.S. retail sales of marijuana and cocaine grown or processed in Colombia total $6 billion annually, and that illegal drug trafficking returns $1 billion a year to the Colombian economy.

Drug to prevent Revenge

BOSTON (AP) — A seldom-used antibiotic will soon be routinely prescribed to prevent Montezuma's Revenge, the intestinal misery that afflicts legions of Americans traveling abroad, doctors say.

Baltimore researchers have found that the drug, called doxycycline, will give most people at least one month's protection against this illness. The malady has various names around the world and is also called Delhi Belly or simply traveler's diarrhea.

"This is the first drug that has really been shown to be highly effective," Dr. R. Bradley Sack, one of the researchers, said in an interview.

The researchers predicted that taking the antibiotic will become a routine precaution for Americans traveling to underdeveloped parts of the Middle East, South America, Africa and Asia.

The drug was tested on Peace Corps volunteers in Kenya by doctors from Baltimore City Hospitals. Their findings were published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Sack said Americans have a 50 percent to 60 percent chance of getting travelers' diarrhea if they go to countries where it is prevalent.

The doctors gave doxycycline to 18 American volunteers for three weeks, and only one of them contracted the illness. Twenty-one others got inactive pills, called placebos, and nine of them became sick.

The protection lasted for one week after the medication stopped, but then it wore off, they said.

The volunteers took one pill a day, and the researchers cautioned doctors against prescribing the drug for longer than three weeks until more tests are done.

Doxycycline is a form of tetracycline, a commonly used drug. It is sometimes used to treat cholera and Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

The doctors said the medicine fights a disease-causing variety of the common microscopic organism called Escherichia coli.

Bentsen pleads for study of Canadian River

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Senator Lloyd Bentsen has urged Congress to appropriate funding to continue a study of the North Canadian River and its tributaries in the Texas Panhandle.

Bentsen submitted testimony Tuesday to the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Public Works.

"The study was authorized in 1976 to examine ways to enhance the Canadian River's value as a source of water. $270,000 was appropriated for the study during fiscal years 1977 and 1978. However, no funding is included in the administration's budget request for fiscal 1979," Bentsen said.

"The Corps of Engineers advises me that $210,000 could be spent on this study during the coming year. If that amount is not appropriated the study will have to be started all over again, from the beginning, as some future date. Everything spent up to now will have been wasted," Bentsen said.

Park stays home now

WASHINGTON (AP) — Korean businessman Tongsun Park, whose lavish parties for members of Congress were part of an $850,000 influence buying campaign, keeps his party-going to a minimum these days.

When not testifying about giving envelopes stuffed with cash to dozens of congressmen, Park has spent his evenings at the movies, in favorite restaurants, and at two or three small dinner parties.

Park is accompanied everywhere by two U.S. marshals and a personal aide. His residence has been changed three times since he returned to Washington a month ago with a promise of immunity from prosecution in return for his testimony before the House Ethics Committee.

Park denies he was an agent for the South Korean government and says the gift-giving was to promote his business affairs.

Guests were not told the location of the party until the last moment, after first meeting at Mrs. Dickinson's Watergate apartment.

Judge says 'Get PR man'

GALVESTON (AP) — A federal judge hearing a 20-year-old school segregation suit here has suggested the Galveston Independent School District hire a public relations firm to attract white students to a new school in a predominately black neighborhood.

After studying the GISD's plan to offer programs at Morgan Elementary School designed to attract white pupils, U.S. District Court Judge Fins Cowan suggested a good public relations effort might be necessary to make the plan a success.

Who Are You?

You can be just a Christian, nothing more and nothing less. On the day of Pentecost after Peter completed the first gospel sermon, those that received his words were baptized: and there were added that day about three thousand souls. And the Lord added to them day by day those that were saved. (Acts 2:41,47)

These saved Christians belonged to no religious sect or party or denomination.

They Were Just Christians

We are striving to be Christians only by following the Scriptures as our sole guide in faith and practice. We are not members of any religious club or society and we recognize no ecclesiastical authority higher than the local congregation with its elders and deacons modeled after the New Testament pattern.

If you feel this way, come and study with us. You can be just a Christian—nothing more and nothing less.
