Court refuses appeal on TV-linked assault

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television violence will be standing trial soon in an unprecedented court case that may restrict the kinds of TV programs Americans will be able to view in the future.

NBC and station KRON-TV are the only named defendants, but all television could be affected when a state court jury in San Francisco decides whether televised violence causes imitations in real life.

The Supreme Court on Monday set the stage for the trial by refusing appeals by NBC and KRON, thus clearing the way for the jury's eventual consideration of an $11 million lawsuit against the two defendants.

The civil suit was filed for a 9-year-old girl who was sexually brutalized four days after a nationally televised NBC movie dramatically portrayed a similar crime.

If the jury decides against the network and station, Hollywood may sharply limit the violence content of future television programs.

In other matters Monday, the Supreme Court.

—Temporarily blocked State Department employees from studying secret telephone notes kept by Henry A. Kissinger when he was secretary of state. The material now will remain sealed while Kissinger battles in court to keep the notes from going public.

—Let stand Patricia Hearst's 1976 bank robbery conviction, action that may result in her being sent to prison soon.

In the television lawsuit, lawyers for the girl charge that the defendants were negligent and reckless in allowing the movie "Born Innocent" to be broadcast in the early evening when young people were sure to be in the viewing audience.

The two-hour movie, televised on Sept. 10, 1974, depicted the life of an unwanted teenage girl. In one scene, the girl is sexually assaulted with a wooden handle by older girls at a reformatory. Four days after the broadcast, a 9-year-old San Francisco girl was the victim of a similar attack by four older girls on a local beach.

In seeking to block the trial, now scheduled to begin June 26, NBC and KRON argued in their Supreme Court appeal that constitutional free-speech and free-press guarantees should bar such claims.

The mere possibility of the trial "poses substantial risks of inhibition across the entire spectrum of artistic and journalistic endeavor," their lawyers contended.

The young girl's lawyer, Marvin Lewis of San Francisco, countered: "We do not seek to impose any prior restraint on the media. We merely seek damages."

The issue may return to the nation's highest court. If NBC and KRON should not be satisfied by the jury's verdict, they presumably will again raise their First Amendment arguments in appeals.

City leaders ponder pool, tax ratio hike

By JIM WANN
Pampa News Staff

An increase in the city's ad valorem tax ratio - from 40 percent to a possible 60 percent - could come as soon as early May if city commissioners agree to the hike.

During today's regular meeting, the commission was told that "in order for the city to maintain a sound financial position, it would be wise (for the commissioners) to look into increasing the tax ratio this year."

City Manager Mack Wofford, who made the statement, said that raising the ratio is "planning ahead and being prepared for what may happen." He was referring to what he sees as a potential financial problem the city could face due primarily to inflation.

Basically, an ad valorem tax ratio increase would mean the city could continue generating operations capital without a ceiling. Right now, the City Charter stipulates that the base current operations base of $1.18 per $100 cannot exceed $1.50 per $100.

Wofford expressed concern that this legal ceiling "could present a fiscal problem in coming years when balancing the city budget."

"A higher ratio would be a way to generate higher tax revenue. The ratio increase in itself would not raise taxes. But, certainly the possibility exists of higher taxes with higher assessment base," the city manager said.

Mathematically, if the ad valorem ratio was hiked to 60 percent of assessor appraised value, it would take a $1.42 per $100 base to equal the current budget's $2.31 per $100 operations base at a 40 percent ratio. Of the $2.31 base, $1.18 is appropriated for current operations and 95 cents goes for retired bond debts.

Wofford pointed out to the commission that the current base "is only 32 cents away from the $1.50 ceiling." He said should the city increase the base by 32 cents, "it would provide roughly $190,000 in additional revenue."

However, he added, this year's city budget increased more than $300,000 over fiscal year 1976-77.

Wofford said that "the tax ratio, if it is to be changed, should be increased by early May to be ready for board of equalization hearings meetings."

No definite action was taken on the ad valorem tax ratio question.

The commission also considered a request concerning a new municipal swimming pool for the city. An ad hoc citizens committee was present to make its plea for a new facility.

One of the committee's spokespersons, Mrs. Ralph (Lillian) Esson said the present facility "is a disgrace to the community." She said the pool has been unsafe for 20 years and "that now is the time to do something about it."

Possible funding for a new pool was discussed. City Manager Wofford said his office is currently investigating possible state and federal revenue sharing grants.

One possibility, he said, would be a grant from the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife. Those funds, if available, could not exceed $200,000 or 50 percent of the pool's total cost - whichever comes first.

The committee stressed that a new pool would be an economic boost to the city through area swim meets. Now, the committee contended, no swimmers or instructors from out-of-town want to participate or compete in Pampa's municipal pool.

The ad hoc group also said it is encouraging "as much incorporated community funding as possible" for construction of a new municipal pool.

Mayor R.D. "Jimmy" Wilkerson told the group "that the city will be in further contact" with each individual.

An Olympic-size pool would be needed, the committee concluded.

The commission gave first and second reading approval to an ordinance change which would allow a 40-acre tract in North Pampa to be re-zoned from "agricultural" to "commercial." This is the first conclusive step toward a $5 million shopping center for that parcel of land.

The commission set Friday as the first hearing date to consider the city's application for federal funds to renovate some 16.3 miles of 2-inch water pipes. Estimated cost for the construction project was put at $17 per lineal foot.

Also, the commission agreed to let bids out for a new air compressor for the fire department. A ball park figure for the unit was estimated at $5,000.

City Manager Wofford said the compressor is "obsolete" and "repair parts can no longer be found." He said the compressor is needed badly to refill breathing packs used by firemen.

Gill vs. Worley trial starts

Jury selection started today and testimony was scheduled to begin in the case of Phyllis Gill versus Worley Hospital Inc. and others.

Mrs. Gill named Worley Hospital Inc., Dr. M.C. Overton and nurses Genelta Poole and Jean Helton Timmons as defendants in the suit that alleges damage was done to her bladder because of "negligence" on the part of one or more of the defendants.

The civil jury in Judge Don Cain's 23rd district court will decide if Mrs. Gill will be awarded damages for the alleged negligence.

'Life' begins anew

NEW YORK (AP) — "What's Life?" the old joke began. "A magazine," was the reply.

And a magazine it will be again. Time Inc. announced Monday that it would begin publishing Life again in October. The publication—in its old 13½-by-10½-inch page size with the familiar white-on-red title—is the latest step in the rebirth of American magazines.

Ninety-one magazines have announced so far this year that they will begin publication, according to Folio magazine, the trade publication of magazines. In all of 1974, there were 124 such announcements.

Figures from the Publishers Information Bureau put gross advertising revenue for 96 consumer magazines at $1,965,410,809 for last year. The year before the figure was $1,626,656,136.

As it was put by Chuck Tannen, editor of Folio: "The magazine business is booming."

And now there is Life. What's Life? A magazine. What's it cost? Ten cents. Haven't got ten cents. That's Life.

The very existence of the joke testifies to the part Life played in American life during its 36 years. From Nov. 23, 1936, until Dec. 29, 1972, it redefined photo journalism and showed America its own face.

Robert Capa photographed the Spanish Civil War and David Douglas Duncan the Korean War. In between came jitterbugging, students crammed in phone booths and photographs by Margaret Bourke-White, Carl Mydans, Yousuf Karsh, Alfred Eisenstadt and Henri Cartier-Bresson, to name just a few.

Sir Winston Churchill was published in Life. So were Omar Bradley, Harry Truman, Charles de Gaulle, James Michener and Norman Mailer. Hemingway's "The Old Man and the Sea" first appeared there.

Hedley Donovan, Time Inc. editor-in-chief, said Monday that the new Life will show "spectacular news events; people, famous and not, captured in memorable moments; the beauties and mysteries of nature, science and medicine; the world of arts, architecture, sport and fashion."

FTC accuses Coke, Pepsi

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soft drink prices may come down as a result of a Federal Trade Commission finding that long-standing practices of the Coca-Cola Co. and PepsiCo Inc. violate federal antitrust law.

The commission, in a 2-1 decision Monday, said the two giant soft drink companies violate antitrust law by restricting their bottlers to certain territories.

Since 1900, Coca-Cola has forbidden its bottlers from selling their soft drinks outside specified territories. PepsiCo has had similar restrictions since the 1930s.

However, both companies promised appeals through the federal courts, which would delay the effect of the decision.

Coca-Cola said, "Our bottler contracts for over 77 years have been on the basis of an economically efficient and socially desirable business system."

PepsiCo called the decision "another example of the government attempting to impose theoretical economic concepts and alter a structure which has been proven in the marketplace."

Both companies sell the syrup and concentrates used to make their soft drinks to independent bottlers. The companies have enforced contracts keeping the bottlers from competing with each other by giving each a specified territory.

The commission majority said this curtails "intra-brand competition," or that between the various Coca-Cola brands and between the PepsiCo brands. The Coca-Cola brands include Coca-Cola, Sprite, Fresca, Fanta, Tab and Mr. Pibb, and PepsiCo's brands include Pepsi Cola, Teem, Mountain Dew and Patio.

Rackets, unions linked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary Ray Marshall told skeptical senators today his department is fully committed to the fight against labor racketeering.

But Marshall said the problem won't be solved only by sending organized criminals to jail because others will take their places.

"We need to work out a program that strikes at the root causes" of organized crime's influence in the labor movement, Marshall told the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee.

The labor secretary conceded that antagonism between the Labor Department and the Justice Department has frustrated the government's anti-racketeering efforts in the past.

"There has been a history of a lack of cooperation, apparently, and suspicion," he said.

But Marshall testified that he and Attorney General Griffin Bell have an understanding about the assistance that the Labor Department will provide to the government's organized crime "strike forces."

Several federal prosecutors who testified Monday about the extent of labor racketeering around the country said there was a severe shortage of special labor Department investigators assigned to the effort.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., acting subcommittee chairman, today charged that the government's labor-management racketeering investigations seem "to be in a state of suspended animation."

Based on yesterday's record, the Labor Department's commitment to the strike forces — for whatever reason — has obviously been totally inadequate," Nunn asserted.

Marshall announced last week he is creating a new Office of Special Investigations, and giving the office chief responsibility for overseeing the department's racketeering investigators.

In his testimony, Marshall was more cautious in estimating the influence of racketeers than Justice Department prosecutors were Monday.

"I've not seen the evidence that is compelling to me that the problem is more pervasive than it was 20 years ago," he said.

Several prosecutors told the subcommittee Monday that racketeering is on the upswing 20 years after a Senate committee first exposed the situation to public view in widely publicized hearings.

Justice Department lawyer Thomas Puccio told the panel Monday that "many of the individuals whose names first surfaced during those hearings (in the late 1950s) are today principal figures in illegal labor activities now under investigation."

In testimony Monday, acting Deputy Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti said an estimated 300 union locals across the country are "severely influenced" by racketeers, with most of the locals affiliated with a handful of unnamed national and international organizations.

There are an estimated 75,000 union locals nationwide.

Civiletti told the subcommittee the federal government's organized crime strike force program "is alive and well, and... we have intensified our efforts in the area of labor-management racketeering."

He said investigators look into cases such as these:

— "Ghost" employees, frequently organized crime members, paid for doing no work.

— Kickbacks to trustees of pension funds in return for loans to shaky investment projects that in turn are looted.

— Payoffs to union officials in return for keeping an employer's labor costs to a minimum.

— Embezzlement from union treasuries.

Civiletti told the panel he was satisfied with an agreement recently reached by Justice and Labor department officials concerning the contribution the Labor Department will make to the organized crime strike force effort.

The department will assign 15 investigators full time to the strike forces and will ask the Office of Management and Budget for an additional 125 investigators who would be available as needed.

Eaglet dies in Waco zoo

WACO, Texas (AP) — Texas, a bald eagle who made national headlines when he hatched April 12, has died, the Centex Zoo has reported.

Zoo Curator Tim Jones said the eaglet died Sunday night after coughing up a small amount of food. Two veterinarians attended the baby bird but he did not respond to antibiotics.

Veterinarian and eagle specialist Dr. Ken Riddle said an autopsy revealed that Texas could have died from latent internal injuries suffered when he fell from his nest a few days after hatching.

Toxic poisoning from an intestinal problem may have also contributed, Riddle said. The autopsy also revealed Texas' sex as male.

Jones said he had received inquiries from around the world about the eaglet, only the second hatched in captivity in the United States this century. Shortly afterwards, an eaglet was hatched in a Columbus, Ohio, zoo.

"We're in shock," Jones said. "We had stayed at the zoo taking care of the eagle 24 hours a day. We're just sick he died."

Ed Richards' company must file 56 forms with Uncle Sam. And he's fed up. It's a New York Times story on page 8.

The great orange squeeze

Government regulation continues to adversely affect the cost of food reaching the table in several ways. The major way is through limits on production and through the farm program which pays tax dollars for land taken out of production.

In the 12 months ending March, 1978, the cost of food at home rose 6.8 percent, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. This was about 2 percentage points above the increase in the consumer cost index for all items.

The cost of medical care over the same period rose 9.5 percent, and fuel and utilities rose 10.2 percent.

In the 10 years from 1967 to 1977, the amount of the food dollar the farmer gets went down 3 percent, from 32 cents to 31 cents. The middleman's dollar amount went down 8 percent, from 39 to 36 cents. But the amount of the dollar going toward labor went up 4 cents, from 29 to 33 cents, an increase of 14 percent.

Government regulations and state laws prevent, in most states, a grocer from selling any items below cost as inducements. Of course, the government will sell wheat below cost to the Russians. But, that's different, say U.S. analysts, and would be like comparing apples to oranges.

Jacques Giddens of Orange Cove, Calif., knows all about selling oranges. Giddens is a retired Marine Corps officer who saved his money to fulfill a dream. He bought a small orange grove.

It has been rough going. Giddens found out he was losing a third of his crop each year. Not to frost or disease, but to the government.

You see, there is something called (you won't believe it!) the Naval Orange Administration Committee, whose job, it appears, is to keep the cost of oranges high.

It issues orders telling orange farmers how many of their oranges they can sell. Giddens is now fighting the Naval Orange Agency in the courts, where he is facing the "crime" of selling more oranges than the agency said he could. He is charged with deliberately selling 3,441 cartons of oranges, more than the regulations allowed for his size farm.

Unbelievable, but true... So, when the oranges reach the table, or when mom would like to buy them but laments how expensive they've gotten, she can remember who helped jack up the expense.

Many farmers and businessmen are finding out that one of the most expensive items they have to contend with each year is the high cost of taxes and federal regulations. In this way, things haven't changed much since the times when tribute had to be paid by all to the kings.

Some people are reluctant to favor deregulation of prices and the economy, saying it won't work. But if things are not deregulated, the prices for everything will continue to get higher and higher.

Meanwhile, the government will be putting out records saying X number of people in the United States aren't eating right or are starving. Yet it is the government's hand that is ultimately withholding the vittles.

Obstructionist antics

This nation has a tremendous energy fuel potential in the oil shale lands in Colorado and Utah. Progress toward development is being hampered by zealous environmentalists.

Speaking at a recent seminar, Max Eliason, senior vice president of Skyline Oil Co. of Salt Lake City, Utah, and former president of the Rocky Mountain Oil and Gas Association warned of regulatory harassment.

Eliason said, "There isn't going to be any oil shale development in this country unless the government relaxes air pollution standards. It has been four years since the prototype oil shale development program was started."

"Standard Oil of Ohio, Sunoco and Phillips Petroleum have spent more than $7 million on environmental studies in an area in which it takes 34 acres of land to support one sheep for a year. Even in that sparsely populated area, sometimes ambient air quality doesn't meet federal standards. And that is without any development at all."

"Unless the standards are modified," he added "not one shovel of dirt can move. We will be out of business for an oil shale program."

The speaker contended that no-growth advocates can use laws and regulations to drag out any project long enough to kill it. He said that no company can afford the interest on a billion dollar oil shale development, if it is to be subjected to delays that cannot even be contemplated.

At the present time nature is in violation of the federal standards for air purity. The oil shale itself is producing "pollutants" in excess of the standards. If the shale were processed, nature would not be in violation of air - standard regulations.

But, under restrictive federal regulations, even a passing shepherd lighting a cigarette would be in violation and could be hit with a heavy fine.

There is not much chance of this happening in this vast wasteland. There is some indication that once the oil is removed the shale residue might encourage grass and browse growth.

Eliason said it is his belief that the oil shale industry could become a cornerstone in the economies of both these Western states. He warned that time was running out and said, "It is sad that this country has one third of all the fossil fuel resources in the world, including oil shale, oil, gas and tar sands and it isn't developing them. If we don't use them, they are no more good than if they were on the moon."

If there ever was an era in this nation where development of a resource would be less noticed by anyone who has a justifiable concern, it is in the oil shale area.

Why must we be subjected to the antics of fanatical objectors to every new development project?

Fewer taxes, more production

By GENE WEKALL

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — If politicians pass a law moving the date for the start of spring to January, most of the population would laugh. Winter would still be winter.

When politicians pass laws that violate economic principles, few laugh.

Wage and price controls have been a favorite of politicians for centuries. These controls never worked, except for the favored few. But that has not hindered lawmakers.

For four decades Social Security has been touted as a "pension." The amounts contributed by the employer and employee were considered similar to annuities purchased from life insurance companies. But insurance company actuaries calculate the total amount of dollars needed for a certain amount of income which would be paid at a certain future date. The funds provided by the annuity purchasers to the insurance companies are invested and the earnings compounded. This provides the needed dollars for future use.

Social Security did not follow this design. It was a pay - as - you - go program, almost from the very start.

More people are reaching retirement age and the lengthening of the life span for the average person put tremendous financial pressure on the Social Security tax system.

The recent hike in Social Security taxes brought cries from thousands of wage earners. Politicians fearing a voters' backlash are moving to reverse the Social Security tax hike and to take the needed dollars from the general tax collection.

This doesn't solve the problem. It just defuses it.

The hue and cry in California coming from those dependent upon real estate taxes are another example of politicians' ignorance of economics.

For the past decade, real estate prices have been climbing faster than inflation. The assessed valuation of private property has also increased, keeping step with the higher market values.

During this decade, boards of supervisors, school board trustees and city councilmen loudly proclaimed that they had not increased the tax rate — or only increased it a few cents.

But because of the increase in the tax - appraised value on private property, the amount of real estate taxes climbed rapidly.

In some cases, the amount of taxes paid for a single - family residence doubled or tripled in the past several years.

More than a million taxpayers got tired of this increasing burden and signed the Jarvis - Gann property - tax initiative.

Suddenly politicians became worried. If Proposition 13 passes, they will have fewer tax dollars to dole out.

The politicians are wringing hands and calling us nasty names. They are threatening a disaster if Proposition 13 passes.

Wealth comes from producing things that others will purchase at a price above the cost of production. Taxes reduce a person's wealth and discourages production.

To increase the wealth of the population, it is only necessary to reduce the tax burden. This would encourage production, increase wealth and help everyone.

"I have a nagging suspicion that we're overlooking something important."

How to fool the IRS legally

By OSCAR W. COOLEY

Having wrestled long with the problem of investing your savings so you will receive a substantial income but pay a low rate of income tax, you cannot help being interested in a kind of income that is totally tax - exempt. I refer to psychic income.

It is not taxable, not even at the minimum rate, mainly for the reason that it is not measurable in dollars and cents. Nobody knows how much if it you make, nor can they prove that you have made any. Yet it is income and can be very enjoyable income, too.

Psychic income may be defined as the feeling of satisfaction one gains from the investment of a resource, be it the activity of his brain or brawn, or the land or property which he possesses. Psychic income is not cash. It is not tangible. But it is highly desirable, and people often choose to receive it in lieu of tangible coin.

One can invest $1,000 in a bond which will bring him perhaps $80 a year in money income. Or he can spend the $1,000 to take a trip which gives him pleasure and adds to his knowledge of the world. That is psychic income. The first is fully taxable. The second is not, yet it may yield just as much or more satisfaction.

When a person does a job, not for money wages but simply for the pleasure of doing it, he is working for psychic income. Everyone, on some occasion, has worked at a job that yielded a low money wage but a high psychic wage. Teachers have been known to teach, preachers to preach, farmers to farm — name your occupation — for varying periods, maybe a lifetime, chiefly for psychic income. It was all theirs, to savor at the time and to remember agreeable later.

"But one can't live on psychic income," someone is saying. True. But neither can one eat dollars. All you can do with dollar income is buy goods or services which sustain life — sustain it so you can enjoy the many satisfactions of life, which are not material but psychic in nature. Dollar income is only a stepping stone to true economy.

Though money affords no immediate, direct satisfaction, we prize it because it will purchase pleasures and comforts of many kinds. It is highly flexible. It provides a wide variety of choices. It is the choices, not the money, that we really want.

Some people exhaust their energies, indeed spend their lives, seeking money income, much of which they do not spend to enhance life but save and invest, as in the stock market, in order to get more money income. Their lifetime psychic income might add up to considerably more if they were to translate more of their current money income into satisfactions.

Andrew Carnegie spent the first 65 years of his life in making money and the last twenty in giving it away. He invested many millions in building libraries throughout America, in endowing colleges, and in promoting peace. Today he would be taxed heavily on the money he made, but not a dime on the satisfaction he gained from giving it away. Gifts are "investments" that yield large returns, all uncountable and non - taxable but highly satisfying.

Any stock investor who worries for fear his money income will boost him into a high tax bracket can easily get into a lower one by reinvesting less money in the Street and more in good causes. If he has a cause that really enthralls him, giving liberally to it may well yield him, so much psychic return that his total income, monetary plus psychic, will be increased, not diminished, by the gift. In addition, the money he gives will be tax - deductible.

As tax rates have risen, tax evasion and avoidance have become a national mania.

One way to evade income tax is to persuade your employer to pay your wages in currency, not a check, and to report nothing to the IRS.

So many more payments, normally made by check, are now being made with currency we are told that the ratio of folding money to checkbook money is increasing noticeably. In 1961, there was $249 of currency in circulation for each $1,000 of checks, but in 1977 the ratio had risen to $359 of currency per $1,000 of checks, according to Paul Gutmann, economist, City College of New York. He estimates that more than one - third of this increase in use of currency is for the purpose of evading income tax.

Is it safer and more convenient to pay bills by check than with cash, but to foil the IRS it seems people are doing business the hard way.

A better way — and a fully lawful one — is to reduce ones monetary income, which is taxable, and arrange to increase ones psychic income, which is not.

Psychic income should not be confused with fringe benefits, which when clearly measurable in dollars and cents are subject to tax.

'Eddie Cantor' retirement test

When Eddie Cantor was invited to the TV spectacular celebrating his 65th birthday in January 1957, he never dreamed that he would be giving his name to a provision of the Social Security retirement test which determines how much you, a Social Security beneficiary, can earn and still collect some or all of your monthly benefit checks.

The general retirement rule is that you give up $1 of your benefits for every $2 of earnings above the annual "exempt amount." The exempt amount this year is $4,000 for beneficiaries ages 65 to 72 (when the Retirement Test no longer applies) and $3,240 for beneficiaries who are under 65. In 1977, the exempt amount was $3,000 for beneficiaries of all ages. In 1957, when Eddie Cantor turned 65, it was $1,200.

But "the Eddie Cantor clause" of the Retirement Test is a giant exception to the general rule.

For this provision says that no matter how much you earn in a year, you will get your benefit check for any month in which you have wages that amount to no more than 1-12th of the exempt amount and you do not perform substantial services in self - employment.

Eddie Cantor received $2,000 for his appearance on the network broadcast in 1957, well over the exempt amount of $1,200. But since he did not plan to do any other work in '57, he was eligible to collect his benefits for the remaining months of that year.

Approached by an enterprising U.S. government public information specialist, Cantor agreed to help publicize the then all but unknown exception — and also to remind Americans that Social Security benefits are an earned right, not welfare. He turned over his benefits to a favorite charity, a boy's camp at Surprise Lake, N.Y.

Millions of Americans became aware of the Eddie Cantor clause as a result of that 1957 publicity and a select group in each successive generation of retirees has taken advantage of it. But congress did not design this exception to provide a bonanza for highly paid consultants, real estate salesmen, resort concession operators, technicians, and other specialists who upon reaching 65 can concentrate their work and earnings in one or two months and collect benefits for the balance of the year.

The exception was intended primarily for people who might retire in mid - year or later, after earning substantial amounts, and would otherwise be unable to collect any SS benefits until the following year, even though they were completely retired. It also took note of the retiree who might be able to get an occasional job at good pay. Nevertheless over the years, an elite group of SS beneficiaries has been able to collect more benefits than contemporaries with the same or less earnings who were working year - round.

NO MORE! Along with the drastic financing and other SS changes Congress enacted in '77, it slapped a limit on the use of the Eddie Cantor clause. From now on, you, an SS beneficiary, get the advantage of the exception only in your "initial year of retirement."

A problem emerged, though. As this column pointed out to you last January, because of the way the law is worded, there were two possible interpretations of "initial year of retirement." Under the strict interpretation, the use of the exception could be limited to those of you newly joining the benefit rolls. Or it could be interpreted to permit those of you already SS beneficiaries to count '78 as your initial year of retirement and thus give you a year of grace to adjust.

The strict interpretation has just been chosen by Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare Califano, with the endorsement of the Office of Management and Budget.

This strict interpretation will save the Social Security Trust Funds $159 million in fiscal year '78, another $224 million in fiscal year '79.

But more than three months of '78 have passed — and an estimated 250,000 — plus SS beneficiaries who have collected, or are expecting to collect, benefits may be stunned to find that they will not be entitled to benefit checks they've been counting on.

Although most of you will earn more than $10,000 in 1978, U.S. figures show, you will may feel that the U.S. government has broken faith with you or, at least, should have warned you.

If you think you may be among the 250,000 SS beneficiaries who have been or are likely to be overpaid because of Califano's decision, call your local SS office at once for advice on what to do before you sink deeper into the hole.

The sewer is backing up

This is mostly shop talk — about dirty words on the radio. The Department of Justice says the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) does not have the authority to prevent broadcast of seven bedroom and bathroom vulgarisms.

The sewer in your house is backing up and the FCC is powerless to prevent it.

Five or so years ago a gutter - mouth comic used a string of what we used to call "dirty words" on the radio in New York City. A listener objected to this air pollution and the FCC thereafter issued a specific prohibition against the broadcast of those seven words.

Now the FCC is told that it can't do that; that its ban violates the Constitution's First Amendment guarantee of free speech.

The Justice Department further argues — and this is significant — that "concern for young listeners must not limit adults to hearing only what is fit for children."

May I say this about that: We considered the generation of the 1960s to be "rebellious."

I wonder, though — is it not likely that you and I would have rebelled also?

Suppose you and I, in our formative years, had been told that if we would work hard and profit and prosper, we would be punished with disproportionate taxes, and our money used to subsidize laziness and lethargy and even illegitimacy. I wonder how ambitious we would have matured to be.

Suppose our government had sent us — as recent administrations sent this generation — to both sides of the world to fight pulled - punches wars, perhaps to die, to stop the advance of communism 6,000 miles from home.

Yet if they tried to do anything about the "advance of communism" 90 miles from Florida, they'd be thrown into jail.

So our young hurled a lot of vile and filthy words at the establishment in the Sixties, but the word that was more obscene than all the others was the word which came closest to describing us as we were — that word was "hypocrite."

Big spenders

It should come as no surprise to any adult with one in the house, but the teenager represents a big and growing market in today's economy.

According to a recent poll, teenage spending reached a record $28.7 billion in 1977, up $2.6 billion from the previous year. This wasn't all comic books and soft drinks. The trend, according to the Rand Youth Poll, is toward big-ticket items — TVs and cars.

CHOICES

Karen Blaker Ph.D.

A set up

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — Our 13-year-old son likes boys better than girls. Does that mean he has homosexual tendencies?

My husband is so upset about this possibility he has devised a plan he hopes will get Jimmy back on the right track. He is proposing we set Jimmy up with a kind, knowledgeable prostitute for an evening so he can see what he has been missing by not spending more time with girls.

I think my husband got this idea from his own youth, when his older brother arranged the same kind of experience for him. Evidently it worked out well and he wants to duplicate it for his son.

I am going along with the plan because my husband probably understands our son better than I do. What do you think?

DEAR READER — It is clear that your husband feels the need to provide Jimmy with a female sexual companion. However, it is not clear whether Jimmy needs this experience right now and, even more important, whether he needs it to be arranged by his father.

First things first: Jimmy is 13 years old. His interest in boys is not uncommon, nor is it a sign of impending homosexuality.

Companionship with the same sex always precedes relationships with the opposite sex. This is the progression of psychological tasks that must be accomplished for a normal adjustment to adulthood. However, just when this change in sexual orientation occurs is a matter of great individual variation.

When the time comes, Jimmy will arrange his own sexual initiation — probably with a little help from his friends. Or perhaps he is already sexually experienced. How could you really know? A teen-ager's sex life is usually a closed book to his parents.

Stop second-guessing about your son's sexuality. You cannot assume Jimmy needs a sexual experience at this time any more than you can assume he has not already had one.

Your husband is not alone in believing that a kind, understanding prostitute can introduce a teen-age boy to the world of sex with a minimum of trauma. Older boys have traditionally arranged these experiences for their younger friends. Harry Stack Sullivan, a prominent psychoanalyst, even suggested it is unfortunate there is no parallel experience for teen-age girls.

Although the value of an initiation by prostitute is open for debate, no one has ever advocated parental involvement in the planning of this first sexual experience. Why? Because sexual activity during the teen-age years is largely an act of rebellion AGAINST parental authority.

Condoning sex would eliminate some of its value as an arena where a young person can feel competitive with — yet separate from — his parents.

All avenues of reason point to one conclusion: Your husband should not arrange this experience for Jimmy.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Are international civil servants free?

By SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The recent defection of Arkady N. Shevchenko, a top Soviet U.N. employee, has brought to the surface a question that has troubled the world organization since its inception: Can members of the international civil service conduct themselves independently of their governments?

Shevchenko, the under-secretary-general for political and Security Council affairs, refused a Soviet order to return home and took an indefinite leave of absence. He cited "differences" with his government. Both Shevchenko's statement and the subsequent Soviet demand for his dismissal indicate that neither paid much attention to the neutral character of the U.N. Secretariat as laid down in the U.N. Charter.

Article 100 states that the U.N. staff "shall not seek or receive instructions from any government" or from any other outside authority.

AP News Analysis

It also requires each member state "to respect the exclusively international character of the responsibilities of the secretary-general and the staff and not to seek to influence them in the discharge of their responsibilities."

Although the charter principle applies to all U.N. civil servants, the question of whether U.N. employees can subordinate the special interests of their countries has primarily concerned top-echelon officials, especially the 77 men and women who are above the rank of assistant secretary-general. These top jobs, paying $76,000 to $120,000 a year, are parceled out according to national and political quotas. Shevchenko's post traditionally has been reserved for a Soviet diplomat chosen by Moscow.

U.N. contracts can be renewed, and there are high-ranking officials who have kept their jobs for more than 20 years. But in order to keep a sensitive U.N. job, the official needs his government's blessing.

Some officials make no secret of their close association with their governments. For example, China's Tang Ming-chao, undersecretary-general for political affairs and decolonization, lives in the Chinese Mission building where all Chinese diplomats stay in New York.

Shevchenko also called frequently at the Soviet Mission on his way to and from work and followed the Moscow policy line strictly.

An undersecretary-general from Western Europe, who prefers to remain anonymous, says there should be "some flexibility" in upholding the concept of an independent civil service for the 149-nation community.

"Given the diverse political situations in member countries, I don't think we can apply any hard-and-fast rule. We should try to deal with glaring violations only — like attempts by some government leaders to place relatives and friends in U.N. posts or the substitution of political favoritism for merit in promotions."

News watch

LONDON (AP) — Hundreds of portrait miniatures collected by the widow of a Pittsburgh steel magnate have been sold for a total of $721,784 in four auctions in Monaco, New York and London, Sotheby Park Bernet reported.

The final sale in the series took place Monday in London and brought $88,000 for the last 91 of the miniatures collected by Greta S. Heckett, who died in July 1976.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Vietnam news agency says the Vietnamese government has provided jobs in the past three years for 700,000 of the 1.2 million unemployed in Saigon.

The report said most of the jobs were in handicraft trades or in the 100 new economic zones the government has established in the countryside to reclaim farmlands devastated by the war.

HONG KONG (AP) — Twenty-one Americans led by educator Clark Kerr and former diplomat John Stewart Service entered China today for a three-week study of the relationship between work and education there.

Kerr, head of the Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education, told reporters: "We're concerned that in the United States we might have built Chinese Great Walls between education and work. So we are very interested in looking at the interaction of work and education in China."

PETERBOROUGH, England (AP) — Brickyard worker Thomas Hancock left seven sons and a gold wristwatch when he died at the age of 87. His will directed that his sons draw lots for the watch, a gift from his employer to mark 50 years of service.

"It was father's way of avoiding a family squabble over the watch," said Hancock's daughter, Doris. The winner of the draw was fourth son Malcolm, 55.

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's Eskimos won a federal court injunction temporarily blocking government plans to allow mining and related development in 30,000 square miles around their village at Baker Lake, in the Northwest Territories.

The Inuits, taking their first action against the federal government on the basis of aboriginal rights, claimed the proposed development would drive off the caribou herds on which they rely for food. They plan to seek a permanent injunction.

Names in the news

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Two quiet, "strictly private" ceremonies are planned for June 28 and 29 for Princess Caroline of Monaco and French financial adviser Philippe Junot.

The family-only wedding for the 21-year-old princess will be in contrast to the publicity-splashed entrance into royalty of her mother, former American movie star Grace Kelly of Philadelphia.

A palace statement said Monday the brunette beauty will marry Junot, 38, first in a civil ceremony, then in a Roman Catholic ceremony the next day.

The low-key wedding preparations apparently reflect the widely reported displeasure of Princess Grace and Prince Rainier III for the match because of Junot's age and reputation as a playboy.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Drummer Dennis Wilson of the Beach Boys rock group entered a plea of innocent and was released on $1,000 bond after he was arrested for investigation of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Wilson, 32, was arrested in his room at the Plaza International Hotel about 4 a.m. Monday after police said they found a 16-year-old girl with him. The unidentified girl was taken to the Pima County Juvenile Court Center for investigation of violating curfew.

Commissioner Lawrence K. Bret Harte set an arraignment for Friday and transferred the case from Justice of the Peace Court to Superior Court.

Wilson and other members of the Beach Boys performed before about 11,000 people Sunday night at the University of Arizona.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader, comparing "bodily rights" to civil rights, says a bill before the Connecticut Legislature would "deprive the people of their rights to health and safety."

On Monday, Nader urged defeat of a bill that would limit the types of product liability cases that could be brought and increase the defenses that industries may use against such suits. The insurance industry is lobbying heavily for the bill.

HOUSTON (AP) — The 85-ton space station Skylab, abandoned four years ago, has started recharging four of its solar-powered batteries in response to a command from flight controllers.

The command was sent Monday from the Johnson Space Center, and the returning data told controllers that the instructions had been accepted, officials said. Flight controllers are trying to slow Skylab's fall from orbit. Batteries have to be recharged before they can command gyroscopes to change Skylab's position.

BLUE RIDGE, Ga. (AP) — A self-proclaimed doctor who treated patients with water, lemon juice and carrot juice for arthritis and cancer has been fined $4,000 and placed on three years probation.

Carey A. Reams, who operated the now-closed Interfaith Christian Church in Hell's Hollow, pleaded guilty Monday before Superior Court Judge Richard Neville to a felony charge of practicing medicine without a license and three misdemeanor charges.

HOUSTON (AP) — The director of China's Cancer Institute says cancer is the second leading cause of death in his country. But Dr. Wu Juan-hsing of Peking said the Chinese people are living longer because serious infectious diseases and malnutrition have been eliminated.

"Before the present government, the average age in China was 35; now it is 65," Wu said Monday. He did not offer evidence to support his claim.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Thousands of Bible-toting, hymn-singing demonstrators protested at the Wake County courthouse against what they consider state interference in religious education.

The occasion Monday was a preliminary hearing on a suit by the state that would force 63 Christian private schools to file annual reports of information on enrollment, course offerings and teacher certification.

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, were not among the British team members listed for the World Three-Day Event equestrian championships at Lexington, Ky., in September.

The princess, who won the European title in 1971 and competed at the Montreal Olympics in 1976, gave a disappointing performance on her horse, Goodwill, at the recent Badminton Horse Trials, finishing 16th in a field of 27.

Phillips, a gold medalist in the team event in the 1972 Olympics at Munich, does not have a sound horse. His two regular mounts, George and Persian Holiday, both are considered unfit.

WAYNE, N.J. (AP) — Former Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., says he agreed to make a commercial for American Express cards because the government needs the money.

"You know, the government takes 53 1/2 percent of every dollar I make," Ervin told a news conference Monday before a speech at William Paterson College. "I knew the government needed the money. So I figured I'd make some more (from the commercial) so I could pay my income tax."

The 81-year-old Ervin, who chaired the Senate committee investigating the Watergate affair, said he did not object to the various Watergate figures writing books about the subject.

"The First Amendment gives anyone who wants to write a book the right to do so," he said. "They (Watergate figures) need money just like everyone else. They have a lot of legal fees due and as a retired lawyer, I'm all for the paying of legal fees."

Moro calls all hoaxes

ROME (AP) — A flurry of anonymous telephone calls announcing that former premier Aldo Moro had been executed by his Red Brigades kidnappers was received today by the Italian news agency ANSA. The agency said all had been proven hoaxes.

The calls were received by ANSA offices in Rome, Turin and Milan. One caller said a communicative was left in a trash basket and a "surprise" in the trunk of a car parked near the Italian television production center near the Vatican. But an ANSA reporter and police officers searched trash receptacles and cars on the street and found nothing unusual.

The calls came in after the government and the ruling Christian Democratic Party on Monday rejected an ultimatum from the Red Brigades to free 13 imprisoned terrorists to save Moro's life.

Last week, a communique attributed to the Brigades claiming the 61-year-old party president had been executed triggered a massive search of a frozen mountain lake northeast of Rome. Officials said that message may have been sent by Moro's kidnappers as a ruse to weaken the government's refusal to negotiate for his life.

Today, crowds of Italians marked the 33rd anniversary of the nation's liberation from fascism by visiting Via Mario Fani, the Rome street where Moro was kidnapped and his five guards slain March 16.

Premier Giulio Andreotti told journalists on arriving for a leadership meeting at Christian Democrat headquarters in downtown Rome that he had "nothing new" to report.

The premier on Monday reiterated the party's no-deal line after conferring with key cabinet ministers. He declared: "All requests for an exchange with detained persons were and are unacceptable because they are directed against the freedom of all, against the respect which is due to the victims of subversion and against the laws of the Republic."

Il Popolo, the Christian Democrats' newspaper, said a handwritten letter found by the newspaper Vita Monday night had been authenticated as Moro's. In it the 61-year-old party president of the Christian Democratic Party and five-time premier who was kidnapped March 16 begged the other leaders of his party to agree to an "exchange of war prisoners (war or guerrilla war, as you prefer), as is done where the war is on, as is done in highly civilized countries. "We are nearly at the zero hour. It is a matter of seconds rather than minutes. We are at massacre time," said the letter.

"With mine goes the cry of my mortally wounded family. For this reason, for an evident incompatibility, I request that no state authority or party official should participate at my funeral."

Il Popolo said the letter had "evidently been extorted." It gave the same explanation for the previous letters in which he asked the government to meet the kidnappers' demands.

The terrorists said last week they would kill Moro if the government failed to agree to a prisoner swap by Saturday, but the deadline came and went with the government standing firm and no word of his death. The second ultimatum set no time limit but said Moro would be killed if the government did not agree immediately to release Renato Curcio, a Red Brigades founder; two other members of the organization on trial with him in Turin, and 10 other imprisoned terrorists.

In another development, police arrested Mirella Varoni, a lawyer, and her fiancé, Giuseppe Galluzzi, after her father found a cache of arms and explosives in the family's home near Ardea, on the coast south of Rome.

The police said Miss Varoni and Galluzzi were members of an extremist group at Albano, near the summer residence of Pope Paul VI, and transferred 32 rifles, 320 pounds of dynamite, TNT and plastic explosive, and 15,000 bullets to her family's home because they feared it would be found by police searching for Moro.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Widely scattered thunderstorms were expected to rumble across Southeast Texas today following a night of violent weather in Northeast, North and Central Texas.

Early today, most of the thunderstorm activity was centered in the Hill Country of Central Texas. Elsewhere, skies were mostly fair in the western half of the state and mostly partly cloudy in the eastern half. Dense fog was reported in the Victoria area in Southeast Texas and other fog was reported along middle portions of the Texas coast. Early morning temperatures ranged from the 40s in Northwest Texas to the 60s and 70s in South Texas. Highs were expected to reach the 70s in North Texas, the 80s in South Texas and into the 90s in the Big Bend country of Southwest Texas.

Forecasts today called for fair skies in northern sections and partly cloudy in the southern half of the state.

Reports of golf ball size hail were common from Athens to the Copperas Cove area, east of Killeen.

Eagle witness killed

LEAKEY, Texas (AP) — Some five months after he testified as a prosecution witness at the trial of three Real County men who were convicted of killing golden eagles, ranch foreman Alfred Zimmerman is dead.

A Department of Public Safety spokesman said the case is "being investigated as a possible homicide."

Uvalde Texas Ranger Joaquin Jackson said Zimmerman, described as about 46-47, was found dead early Monday by his son, Cecil, in the foreman's quarters at the Eagle Ranch in rural Southwest Texas. Authorities said he had been hit by a shotgun blast.

After a preliminary investigation, Jackson said he doubts Zimmerman's testimony was a factor in his death. "That was the first thing that went through my mind," he said, "but I don't think so." He added that police do have a "suspect in mind" but refused further comment. Police said there was no sign of a struggle at the death scene.

Shortly after the shooting was reported, Real County Sheriff John Elliott asked for assistance from Jackson, Texas Ranger Capt. John Wood of San Antonio and a DPS crime lab team.

Zimmermann had said earlier he experienced some trouble with vandals shortly after he reported seeing an eagle shot down by a helicopter. It was that report to a state game warden Dec. 10, 1975, that touched off an official investigation into the airborne killing of the birds above ranches in rugged Real County.

Zimmermann's testimony was heard last December in San Antonio during the federal court trial of three men charged with conspiring to kill eagles. He testified he heard shots coming from a helicopter flying over the Eagle Ranch. He said he heard three shots and then the helicopter and eagle dropped from sight.

A followup investigation led to indictments against former government predator trapper Andrew Allen of Uvalde, Real County ranch foreman Norman M. Pape and Real County Commissioner Lanny Leinweber. All three were convicted at the trial of conspiring to kill golden eagles, a federally protected species. Pape and Allen were also found guilty of illegal airborne hunting and killing eagles.

They received fines ranging from $1,000 to $3,000.

Army backs Slovik pay

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Army Secretary Clifford Alexander says he supports special legislation that would provide benefits to Antoinette Slovik, widow of the only American soldier shot for desertion since the Civil War.

Last August, Alexander affirmed an Army ruling rejecting Mrs. Slovik's petition for $70,000 in military insurance benefits.

Alexander's letter to Rep. Peter Elliott, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, was released Monday by Mrs. Slovik's attorney, Bernard Edelson of Media, Pa.

The Army's Board for the Correction of Military Records (ACMR) last August upheld the legality of Slovik's World War II execution, thus denying Mrs. Slovik's petition for benefits.

However, President Carter in February announced his support of special legislation introduced by Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., to grant the $70,000 in relief to Mrs. Slovik, 62, who suffers from arthritis and is confined to a wheel chair.

A House judiciary subcommittee is considering Rangel's bill and had asked Alexander and the Veterans Administration for comment. The VA has yet to announce its position.

Alexander said he believed "the only realistic avenue for Mrs. Slovik lies in an act of Congress authorizing relief."

He said there was no question that Slovik's sentence was legally justified, but added that "say that it was appropriate is not, however, to ignore that the action taken by the government created special hardship for Mrs. Slovik."

Congressman rebels against dress code

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Indiana congressman who says he sometimes spends as much as $70 a year on clothes is out to liberate his male colleagues from the age-old custom that decrees they wear ties and coats on the floor of the House.

In a poll of both female and male members, Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr., D-Ind., is asking whether the House custom should be altered to let men use their common sense on what is suitable for legislative sessions.

All the returns aren't in yet on what Jacobs calls his "Harassed Poll," and from the replies one can see it isn't challenging taxes or energy policy for billing as the major issue of the day.

Of 435 members polled, there have been 37 agreeing with Jacobs and 25 against. But some of the replies show Jacobs has struck a nerve. Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., added a fervent note to his ballot: "God bless you, Jacobs, you are a true liberator of man."

"I personally dislike being cinched up with a tie," says Jacobs. Generally, he conforms to the House code. But Jacobs may prefer shirt sleeves at meetings of the House Ways and Means Committee while other male members are in jackets. Jacobs once tested the dress code by wearing a sweater and open-necked shirt to the floor.

One member shook his cane at Jacobs that day. But Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, who has the power to remove members wearing unacceptable attire, instead opted to take the matter up with Jacobs' wife, Rep. Martha Keys, D-Kan.

Mrs. Keys, who often wears pants suits to the floor, replied that she doesn't audit her husband's wardrobe.

Jacobs, who is quick to point out that he was active in the House fight for the Equal Rights amendment, notes that women members do not have a dress code. And neither sex is supposed to wear hats on the floor.

Oklahoma citizens fight Oral Roberts hospital

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A group calling itself Oklahoma's Deeply Concerned Citizens used a half-page advertisement in today's editions of the Daily Oklahoman to list a number of points in opposition to the construction of evangelist Oral Roberts' proposed City of Faith hospital in Tulsa.

Labeled an open letter to the three-member Oklahoma Health Planning Commission, the political campaign style advertisement's message begins with a bold print statement.

"It is not a question of what a promoter has done, or has not done but, whether Oklahoma should increase its already over-built hospital beds—our laws should be adhered to," the statement says.

Under the heading "Does Oklahoma need a new hospital?" the ad lists three "facts" the text claims are from an OHPC report.

The three passages deal with hospital occupancy rates and the cost effect of excess hospital beds.

The last section of the message to OHPC members carries the boldface heading "You can't ignore:" and lists "1. Your own staff report. 2. (U.S. Health, Education and Welfare Secretary) Califano's statements about the subject. 3. The laws controlling the construction of excess hospital beds."

The advertisement lists R.C. Pattison and Oklahoma's Deeply Concerned Citizens as its sponsors.

Tulsa hospital officials and a spokesman for Oral Roberts University differed Monday on the impact of the OHPC staff report suggesting ORU incorrectly estimated the effect of its proposed new hospital.

The report, which is quoted in today's advertisement, said ORU may have miscalculated patient origin by 2,000 percent in some cases and said the hospital could cost existing Tulsa hospitals up to $6.8 million in lost revenues in 1981.

Wednesday, OHPC commissioners will use the report as a guide when they meet in Oklahoma City to consider an application for a certificate of need to build the City of Faith hospital.

James Harvey, a Tulsa Hospital Council spokesman, said the report "gives great credence" to the council's opposition to the hospital project.

"The facts are still the same," he said, adding that the hospital "would mean unnecessary duplication of hospital services in the Tulsa area. It would cause a reduction in patient load which means a reduction in income which leads to higher costs for the patient."

But an ORU official said he does not put much stock in the report.

Dr. James Winslow, vice provost for health affairs at the university, said he does not doubt the drawing power of the hospital.

"They (patients) are going to spill over. We're a lot more worried about people coming in here in greater numbers than we can handle," he said.

"We have a lot of things to worry about, but that's not one of them. We haven't over-estimated anything. We have been conservative on every-

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A classmate of mine who lives down the block is slowly driving me up a wall. Here's how it all started:

A few months ago we both started taking an extension course in human behavior at a nearby university. When it came time to pick topics for term papers, this guy I know picked the subject of death. Ever since then I've had it up to my ears with questions like, "Shirley, would you rather die in a plane crash or in an auto accident?" Or, "Would you rather drown or burn to death?"

He's a nice guy, but he has become so preoccupied with death that he's driving me crazy. Every time I see him, he starts in with these depressing questions about death. I've tried avoiding him, but unless I drop the course (which is almost over), it's going to be impossible.

What should I do? I feel like telling him to leave a hearse and leave town.

SHIRLEY

DEAR SHIRLEY: Tell your friend that you'd rather die by drowning, accident or fire than be bored to death. And he is becoming a colossal bore.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, living on a fixed and very limited income. I have a neighbor who is always hounding me to buy raffle tickets, greeting cards, cosmetics, etc. I can't afford to buy things I neither want nor need, although I've bought a few things just to get rid of her.

Please help me. I am running out of excuses, and she is very persistent.

SUMMERVILLE, GA.

DEAR SUMMERVILLE: As long as you offer excuses instead of reasons, your neighbor will continue to hound you. Simply tell her that you can't afford it, and that will be the end of it.

DEAR ABBY: I know you hear from plenty of children who wish their parents wouldn't interfere in their lives so much, but what do you think of parents who expect their children who have left the nest to call and write, but who never phone their children or scribble a note to find out how the children are doing?

I am constantly in touch with my parents, as are my older brothers and sisters, yet we feel rather hurt that they don't, on occasion, contact us. It would be nice to think that maybe they wonder how we weathered the last crisis or how the new job is going. Just because we've grown up and out of their hair shouldn't mean that we've also gone out of their thoughts. I'm always hearing how they're doing when I call, but seldom do I get a thoughtful, "How's everything going with you?" I'd sure appreciate your thoughts on this.

SET ADRIFT

DEAR SET: Are you putting me on? Many more children who have flown the nest neglect their parents than the other way around. Stop sulking in silence. Speak up. To THEM—not to me!

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Hi! I am 15 years old. I'm writing because I would like to know whether or not there are special exercises I can do to help build up my bustline. If so can you please send me some instructions on how to go about it. Thank you very much. Hurry up!

DEAR READER—Don't be in such a big hurry. If you are that impatient you will not be patient enough to get the results you might get from a sensible exercise program. Some things in life take time as you will realize better as the years go by.

Regardless of what those advertisements tell you, exercises do not increase the size of the breast—yours may increase anyway at your age. The exercises simply enlarge the muscle the breast sits on and improve your posture.

The front of the chest wall is covered with muscles, the pectoralis major and pectoralis minor. To give you an idea of what you can do with these look at some of those chest muscles on the "Mr. America" types. Think of your breast on top of a muscle like Arnold Schwarzenegger has developed and you'll get the idea. The breast is not muscles but mostly fat but you have the same muscles he has under that breast.

Any exercise that causes the muscles over the front of the chest to contract against resistance will help develop these muscles. The forward motion as used in swimming the crawl is an example. You can lie down on the bed and hold a small weight in your hand—with your arm outstretched. Now holding the elbow straight, lift the weight up above you. This pulls on the muscles over your chest.

You can move the position of the outstretched arm from your side to above your head and all points in between. Since these muscles fan out over the chest wall this change helps work them all.

Another time-honored exercise is to put both hands together in front of you with the palms against each other and push. This too contracts the chest muscles against resistance.

For best results in building muscles over the front of the chest you may want to go to a health club and use some of their equipment.

Also don't neglect to strengthen the muscles between the shoulder blades. What does that have to do with the breasts? It helps prevent rounded shoulders. If you develop good posture with the shoulders back and don't slump, the breast line will be more prominent. And besides, a girl or boy looks better if he or she has good posture.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 53-year-old woman. I haven't menstruated for two and a half years. Is it possible to get pregnant now? I can get no satisfactory answers from my doctor.

DEAR READER—How doctors hate to answer that question. Why? Because it is often difficult to be absolutely sure. As a general rule, though, if a woman has gone through the menopause and has not menstruated for two years and is past 50, it is most unlikely that she will get pregnant. You should be safe from that worry.

For more information about the menopause, readers can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 5-12. Send your request to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Donna Axum thinks Gus innocent

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Donna Axum says the anger is gone, but she remains convinced her former husband Gus Mutscher was innocent of charges that toppled him from power as Texas House Speaker in the Sharpstown scandal.

"I don't think he did anything legally wrong," the blue-eyed Miss America of 1964 said. "I think he used poor judgment, and that certainly is a human fallacy."

In the six years since his conviction, she went through divorce and a difficult child custody decision and resumed life as a single, working woman.

Until now, she has said little about those years. In a book published recently, "The Outer You, The Inner You," she explains her side of Sharpstown.

Miss Axum, who has taken her maiden name, discussed Sharpstown, the disintegration of her marriage to Mutscher and her new book in an interview at KTBC-TV, where she hosts a noon television show.

Although she divorced Mutscher two years after his conviction on charges of conspiring to accept a bribe, she said the marriage would have crumbled even without the strain of Sharpstown.

"The basic problem within our marriage was communication. Lack of communication before the marriage as to what was expected of the other individual," she said.

"Gus was a 37-year-old bachelor when we met in September of 1968," she wrote. "Our dates that followed always took place in large social and political gatherings—seldom on a personal, one-to-one basis. We really never got to know one another as individuals."

Only six pages of the book deal with her life with Mutscher and later divorce. Personal grooming and personality development, subjects Miss Axum became familiar with during beauty pageants, take up most of the book.

"The point of the book was not a vehicle from which to talk about Sharpstown," she said. "But (without including Sharpstown) I could not tell the whole story, or use it as a point of reference in making a point."

"I could not have written this book, the part about Sharpstown just after I experienced it," she said. "One, because it was too painful. And secondly, because I could not be as objective about it at that point. You're not beaten, kicked and spit on, you know, for a year-and-a-half without feeling some anger. Time does a lot. It heals wounds."

She learned of her husband's involvement when the Securities and Exchange Commission announced an investigation of the Sharpstown State Bank, owned by Houston financier Frank Sharp.

"I learned that, without discussing it with me, he had borrowed these large sums of money (from Sharpstown State Bank) to buy the stock—a community liability," she wrote of a January 1971 conversation with Mutscher.

"I felt very frustrated because I found myself as an innocent party in all of this," she said of the discovery.

Mutscher later was indicted on charges of selling political influence in 1969 to assure passage of two controversial banking bills.

Media coverage of the Mutschers turned from stories of a glamorous courtship and marriage to hard questioning about the loans and Mutscher's relationship with Sharp.

Miss Axum writes of being "harassed from all sides on a daily basis." During Mutscher's trial, one reporter said she struck him with her purse, which she denies.

"They're (reporters) expected to get the story or else they won't be at their job too long. I can appreciate that," she said.

"However, I felt that both sides of the story, as it was coming out of the trial were not being told. Most of the stories were from a prosecution standpoint only," she said.

Mutscher received a five-year probation sentence. The family, including Donna's 6-year-old daughter Lisa, from a previous marriage, and 3-year-old Gus Hurley, moved to Mutscher's hometown of Brenham.

Gus ran for his old House seat, against his wife's advice, and lost in a runoff.

The year after that defeat, it became clear, she said, that basic differences between them began unraveling the marriage.

She moved back to Austin and in 1974 sued for divorce. They later agreed Gus would take custody of their son. The decision was the hardest Miss Axum said she had to go through.

She sees Mutscher, now a Washington County judge, "every week or two," and her son visits on weekends.

The future looks good, Miss Axum, 36, says.

Wetlands vital food chain link

By GLADWIN HILL
(c) 1978 N.Y. Times News Service
SAN FRANCISCO — A husband-and-wife scientific team has built a miniature treatment plant for public sewage in their backyard, and produced some new answers to the problem of preserving the nation's rapidly dwindling coastal marshlands and estuaries.

The principal conclusion of Alice and Arthur Jokela is that the nation could well learn some lessons from the "fish farmers" of Taiwan, who have been so successful producing aquatic foods in marshland that the Government has had to put brakes on intentional flooding of conventional agricultural land.

Coastal wetlands are a vital and prolific link in the marine food chain, providing sheltered breeding grounds with extensive vegetation and other nutrients and varying mixtures of fresh and salt water.

However, around the nation's edge these areas have undergone in recent years what conservationists consider alarming destruction and degradation, due to such activities as dredging and filling, and shoreline building and highway construction, that disrupt water flows and cause excessive sedimentation.

A particularly adverse influence, according to Mr. and

Caroline, 21, to marry Junot

MÓNTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Princess Caroline of Monaco will be married to French financial adviser Philippe Junot on June 28 in private ceremonies in the royal palace, a palace statement said today.

The civil marriage will be performed in one of the palace reception rooms and a religious ceremony will be held the following day in the palace chapel, the statement said. No journalists or photographers will be admitted to the ceremony but the palace will release photographs.

Princess Caroline, the 21-year-old daughter of Prince Rainier III and Princess Grace, former actress Grace Kelly of Philadelphia, met the 38-year-old Junot through mutual friends in Paris in December 1975 while she was a student in the French capital.

Mrs. Jokela, has been the revolution in management of fluidwastes in coastal states. Effluents that customarily flowed into marshlands are now dispersed onshore or discharged far out in the ocean. The result has been that marshlands are drying up and the flow of nutrient chemicals into such areas has been disrupted.

To save on attractive lagoon, the Jokelas told a recent Federal conference on coastal management here, the City of Del Mar in southern California went to the expensive extreme of replenishing the lagoon with drinking water "imported" 200 miles from the inland Colorado River.

Mrs. Jokela is a professor of microbiology at San Diego State University and her husband teaches at the California State Polytechnic University at Pomona.

To illustrate the ecological unsoundness of diverting nutrients as well as water from wetlands to the ocean, consider the contrasting conditions in Taiwan, they said. The amount of land in use there and the total population loads are comparable to coastal southern California's. But there are very extensive areas of productive brackish-water wetlands largely developed by artificial means for use as commercial fish farms, often parklike by our standards.

Experimenting in "economical waste-water reclamation," the Jokelas, at their home in Solana Beach, built four 1,400-gallon tanks of marine plywood under a plastic greenhouse roof. The installation was a joint project with Solar Aqua Systems, Inc. of Encinitas, Calif.

In the tanks they put water hyacinths, noted for their ability to purify water, and other vegetation, along with shrimps and other marine fauna. A compressor provided constant aeration of the tanks - another well-established method of water purification.

Part of the flow from a community trunk sewer was diverted into the system. It was pumped from one tank to another for a total treatment time of five days, which produced an acceptable residual effluent.

Only two drawbacks, developed, they said. One was that the sewage flow dropped too low at night. And there was some question as to whether that particular line represented typical community sewage.

So a bigger "pilot plant" was set up last year at a nearby county sewage treatment plant. It has showed, they reported, that the system "is capable of producing extremely high quality effluent," with 90 percent removal of suspended solids and oxygen-consuming ingredients, compared with a Federal requirement of only 70 percent of conventional two-stage sewage treatment.

The City of Del Mar has studied possible installation of the system as a means of saving its San Dieguito Lagoon from dehydration, short of the prohibitively expensive injection of drinking-quality water.

A detailed financial analysis indicated that the "managed ecological waste water treatment system" would cost the community $280,000 under current plans to hook up with a

San Diego County sewage treatment system, which would yield no reclaimable water for the lagoon.

Although California has recently adopted a far-reaching waste-water reclamation policy, and although the managed treatment system affluents meet state public health standards, the San Diego County branch of the State Water Resources Control Board has set what the Jokelas say are unrealistically stringent standards for surface water discharges.

These call for an affluent content of less than 0.5 parts per million of nitrogen and less than .05 parts per million of phosphorus - "concentrations far exceeded at the present time by almost all the existing natural surface waters in the region," the Jokelas reported.

The City of Del Mar is pursuing a formal appeal from these requirements.

I overheard my children arguing the other night over — of all things — my childhood.

The oldest said, "Mama told me they weren't rich, but they always had a little food on the table and a roof over their heads."

The middle child said, "That's funny. She told me they were dirt poor and would have given their eye teeth to have half of the food I wasted."

The baby said, "They were destitute. She told me they were so poor they had to buy parents — on time."

The oldest child said, "All I know is she had to walk eight blocks to school every day, rain or shine."

The middle child said, "It was three miles in a winter with three blizzards and a spring with two floods."

The baby said, "Would you believe she walked eight miles a day ... and came home for lunch

... with long underwear tucked under her feet for socks?"

The firstborn said, "Once when I told a lie she told me Grandma took a branch off a tree and switched her legs with it."

The second-born said, "I heard that story and it wasn't a tree limb, it was a tree trunk."

The baby said, "You got it wrong. She was tied to the tree trunk for three days to bleach in the sun."

The oldest said, "How long was she in labor with you? She told me I took 12 hours to be born."

"She told me three days," said the middle one.

The baby said, "She told me the other day she still gets cramps when she looks in my bedroom."

"All I know," said the oldest, "is she wasn't allowed to drive a car until she was 21."

"She told me 24."

"This is weird," said the oldest child. "Are we talking about the same Mom? The thin, bright-eyed, dark-haired girl who used to read me stories, bake cookies, paste my baby pictures in the album and giggle a lot?"

The middle child said, "The somber-looking blonde who used to put me to bed at 6:30 and bought me a dog to save on napkins?"

The baby said, "The grayish lady who falls asleep during the six-o'clock news and is going to show me my baby pictures when we finish shooting the roll at my graduation?"

Businesses sinking deeper in federal red tape

By MICHAEL C. JENSEN
(c) 1978 N.Y. Times
News Service

MAPLE HEIGHTS, Ohio — Ed Richard, president of Magnetics International Inc., a small manufacturer of motors, magnets and generators, glared at the mound of government forms on his desk. "It's become a nightmare," he said. "We're spending hundreds of thousands of dollars to keep the Washington bureaucrats happy."

With rising anger, the 41-year-old Richard ticked off 56 weekly, monthly, quarterly and annual forms his company must file: to the Internal Revenue Service; the Federal Trade Commission; the Commerce, Treasury and Labor Departments; the Securities and Exchange Commission; the Federal Reserve Board; the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

In spite of a pledge by President Carter to reduce government paperwork, two years of hearings and reports by the recently disbanded Commission on Federal Paperwork and intermittent efforts by the Washington bureaucracy to streamline reporting systems, it is widely contended that the nation's businesses are sinking ever deeper in a sea of federal forms.

"You take one step forward and go back two," said Rep. Frank Horton, the New York Republican who served as chairman of the Paperwork commission. "It keeps growing, like a disease." Conditions are worse than a year ago, he asserted in an interview.

Overall, private industry in the United States spends an estimated $25 billion to $32 billion a year filling out federal forms and questionnaires, many of them considered by corporate executives to be unnecessary or repetitious.

Government officials reply, however, that paperwork is a necessary if unpleasant byproduct of a complex society. They say that many companies fail to comply with the rules unless someone from the government sees that they do.

Further, they point out, the statistical reports that both business and government rely on in planning are based on data obtained from the nation's businesses.

Small companies such as Magnetics International are among the loudest complainers about federal paperwork, but are hardly alone. The Dow Chemical Co. recently reported that it spent over $186 million last year on federal "regulatory costs," an increase of 27 percent in a single year. Who bears the cost? The columnist according to Paul F. Orefice, president of Dow U.S.A.

Government reports, businessmen complain, are too often confusing and redundant. The civil servants who order and process the reports, they say, can be authoritarian, harassing, and hostile.

The Scottsdale Savings and Trust Co. of Scottsdale, Pa., said it once answered some questions on a government report with the word "none." The reports were returned, the bank said, with a request to insert "0" instead of "none."

Not that everyone is suffering. Warren Buhler, who was staff director of the Commission on Paperwork, has formed a consulting company called Management Design which specializes in solving paperwork problems. Buhler has already signed up such clients as the United States League for Savings, one of the big trade associations of the thrift institutions.

The paperwork problem is particularly severe at small companies like Magnetics International, where a 15-man, all-purpose office staff spends as much as half its time, by Richard's estimate, serving the government instead of the company. With sales of only $20 million a year and profits of $1.5 million, Magnetics International cannot afford the platoons of attorneys and accountants that giant multibillion-dollar corporations hire. Richard recounted with distaste his running battle with the Federal Trade Commission over a mandatory quarterly report form containing 39 questions about Magnetics International's sales, securities, assets and liabilities.

The fight started late in 1974, Richard said, when he received a letter from the FTC's division of financial statistics that began: "Your company has been introduced into the FTC financial reporting program..."

Then came this line: "The mandatory filing of the quarterly form enclosed is required by law (15 U.S.C. 46) without exception."

"I was upset for two reasons," said Richard. "First, it was another report. Second, it didn't even say 'please.'"

At first Richard resisted. But, he said, "They threatened court action if I didn't complete it, and even implied imprisonment." Finally, he gave in and now files the report routinely.

The government defends most existing paperwork as vital to individual programs and broader informational systems. According to William H. Sprunk, a certified public accountant and former corporate controller who now serves as assistant director of the FTC's bureau of economics, the form that Richard found so offensive is one of the mainstays of national economic analysis.

"It's been in existence since 1947," he said, and is the sole source of quarterly corporate profit data for gross national product calculations.

A dozen lawsuits are currently being prepared or pressed by the government to compel reluctant concerns to join the 15,000 companies already filing the report. "We've never lost one," said Sprunk.

Although Richard said the FTC report was particularly distasteful, he rated tax forms as his No. 1 paperwork nuisance. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States said its surveys showed that most other small businessmen felt the same way.

Berkowitz ruled sane

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge ruled today that David R. Berkowitz is mentally competent to stand trial for the murder of Stacy Moskowitz, the last of six homicide victims of the Son of Sam. The judge ordered the trial to begin May 8.

The ruling might not lead to a trial, however, since Berkowitz has said he wants to plead guilty. His lawyers still want to plead him innocent by reason of insanity, but since he has been ruled competent, Berkowitz is free to make his own choice, providing the judge finds the plea legally acceptable.

"The court finds that the people have established by a fair preponderance of the evidence that the defendant does not, as a result of mental disease or defect, lack capacity to understand the proceedings against him or to assist in his defense," Brooklyn Supreme Court Justice Joseph R. Corso said in a six-page memorandum of law.

Corso, who earlier this month held four days of closed hearings on the competency of the 24-year-old postal clerk from Yonkers, set May 8 for either the start of preliminary trial hearings or jury selection should the defense waive the hearings.

Berkowitz is accused of killing six persons and wounding seven others during a 12-month series of shootings in Brooklyn, the Bronx and Queens. The proceedings here addressed only the Brooklyn case.

Joe and Jim Bridwell placed third in the team roping competition.

HIGHWAYS FOR ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina will receive $106 million from the World Bank to build 840 miles of highway, reports a spokesman from the National Highway Systems.

The state-owned National Highway System currently has 243 contracts out to build some 3,700 miles of roads, according to the spokesman. As of January 1977, Argentina's road system totaled 30,000 miles, with about half paved.

Informant broke art ring

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Police say an informant's tip about a barron's boast of a "big theft" cracked one of Italy's most daring art robberies and led to recovery of a Rubens masterpiece and nine other Flemish works stolen from the Pitti Palace museum in Florence.

Police arrested three suspects, Franco Mefiti, 29 and Giovanni Manfredi, 31, the men who allegedly made off with the works via a museum skylight last Friday, and attorney Franco Brogi, 37, accused of masterminding the theft. They were jailed on charges of robbery and conspiracy, authorities said.

Rubens' "Three Graces" and the other paintings were found undamaged early Sunday in the trunk of Brogi's car and were returned to the museum. The works were valued at more than $1 million.

Police said the tipster put them on the trail of the thieves on the day of the robbery after he heard Mefiti boast about a "big theft" at the Pitti Palace. Manfredi was seen with Mefiti, police said.

A search of their apartments turned up undisclosed evidence that led police to the paintings in the car trunk. Authorities said Mefiti and Manfredi confessed Saturday evening, but Brogi denied involvement.

Police said the thieves used a ladder to scale the fortress-like wall of the 15th-century palace. Timing their invasion between rounds by museum guards, the thieves climbed down through a rope-ladder hung through a skylight.

The painting came from the Palatine Wing, where burglar alarms were being installed but were not yet operational. Their choice of the Flemish paintings when other more valuable works were in the museum led authorities to believe they were "filling an order."

The 23-by-14-inch Rubens was the most important work stolen. The painting on wood depicts the nude embrace of the mythological Greek goddesses of pleasure, charm and beauty — Aglaia, Euphrosyne and Thalia.

Hill claims he's winning race

By The Associated Press
Texas Attorney General John Hill says he is winning the race for the Democratic Party's gubernatorial nomination because "many Texans want a governor who will stand up and fight for property tax relief."

But several of the state's major daily newspapers, including the Houston Post, San Antonio Express-News and the Austin American-Statesman, have not made endorsements.

Speaking at San Antonio Monday, Hill said Gov. Dolph Briscoe did not fight for property tax relief and has "stood by an watched property taxes go up by $1 billion in the last five years."

Some newspapers have made endorsements in both the Democratic and Republican primaries.

Briscoe, appearing at a rally at Amarillo, said Hill has "failed to generate significant support from either business or labor because he puts big government ahead of economic expansion and new jobs."

Briscoe has nine daily newspaper endorsements while Hill has only six. In the GOP race, Bill Clements has endorsements from five daily newspapers, and Ray Hutchison from two.

While both of the two major candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination stayed on the campaign trail, Briscoe continues to lead Hill in daily newspaper endorsements.

Rep. Bob Krueger has 10 endorsements, while Joe Christie has two in the U.S. Senate race.

Astro - Graph

by Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

April 26, 1978

Your financial opportunities look extremely promising this year, provided you don't involve yourself in projects or schemes in which you lack expertise.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Putting your needs ahead of your family's is something that is normally foreign to you, but today things could get so confusing you'll do just that. Having trouble selecting a career? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Another's actions might anger you today, but instead of speaking out you may find yourself trying to cool down by going off on a spending spree.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A companion who has taken advantage of your generous nature in the past is going to try to lower the boom on you again. Be careful.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't push yourself beyond the limits of your energies. You'll only frustrate yourself if you take on too much now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something confidential regarding a family matter is best kept to yourself today. You'll be inviting gossip if you don't try to work it out alone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're likely to find your opinions represent the minority today on important family issues. Why fight city hall?

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Because you aren't listening today you may jump to conclusions and yield to the wishes of another against your better judgment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) One you'll team up with today is too independent to be a good coworker. Assert yourself or he'll try to be the boss and really foul things up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful in whom you place your trust today. Because you're so willing to share you could fall prey to one whose motives are purely selfish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sparks will fly at home if you expect others to pick up after you and do things that you should be doing for yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be extremely tactful today. One you may have to deal with has an old smoldering that's about to ignite.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In your determination to push a plan today, you could foolishly overstep. Listen to a wise friend who is trying to stop you.

Spurs fight for life tonight

By The Associated Press
The San Antonio Spurs are second-best in a two-team playoff series, but they may be trying harder.

The Spurs are one loss away from elimination by the Washington Bullets, who lead the best-of-seven quarter-final set 3-1 with Game 5 scheduled tonight at San Antonio.

"I know a lot of people have written us off," said San Antonio Coach Doug Moe, whose Spurs have lost their last three games. "While I'd much rather be up 3-1, there is an advantage in that you work harder."

They'll have to work hard to stay alive as the National Basketball Association playoff continues, and that includes getting balanced scoring from the rest of the Spurs shooters. George Gervin has been carrying the team offensively.

"No one else on the team wants to shoot the ball, so George ends up shooting every time," observes Washington's Elvin Hayes. Gervin, the NBA's scoring leader in the regular season, has averaged 37 points per game in the series against Washington.

He collected 35 on Sunday in the Spurs' 98-95 loss, but the next-highest San Antonio scorer was Billy Paultz with 17, and it was seven points back to Larry Kenon and Mike Gale.

So it's certain the Spurs will have to do something, but Moe won't say what.

"There's no telling what we'll do," he says. "We might use a combination of (things), although I'd rather not pin myself down right now."

"It doesn't matter to us what they do," said Bullets Coach Dick Motta. "We want them to run with us. We try to run with everyone."

The Denver Nuggets take their 2-1 lead over Milwaukee into Game 4 of their quarter-final with the Bucks in the other NBA playoff game tonight. Meanwhile, the Seattle SuperSonics must wait until Wednesday night before trying to enlarge their 2-1 lead over the defending champion Portland Trail Blazers.

The Philadelphia 76ers, who swept the New York Knicks out of the playoffs, await a semi-final opponent. They may not have to wait much longer, since a Washington victory tonight would send the Bullets against the Sixers.

The Bucks, drubbed at Denver in the first two games of the series, returned to Milwaukee and thrashed the Nuggets 143-112 while setting seven playoff records in the process.

In the second half Sunday, Milwaukee made 71.7 percent of its shots while amassing 87 points, 38 field goals, 28 assists, 11 blocked shots — all playoff records — along with single-game highs of 46 assists and 13 blocked shots.

"They played as well as any team has against us," said Nuggets Coach Larry Brown. "But we have to face facts: there are a lot of things we can do better. We can rebound better, play much better defense ... and play as a team. We didn't do that Sunday."

They also didn't control rookie Bucks forward Marques Johnson, who made 16 of 21 shots while piling up 35 points.

Racing crippled

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — As authorities continued the grim task of matching names with mutilated bodies, the U.S. Auto Club today started reorganizing its staff to replace seven top officials killed in the crash of a chartered airplane returning to Indianapolis.

The plane, bursting into flames, virtually disintegrated on impact, digging a crater eight feet deep and 10 feet in diameter. Wreckage was strewn over 100 yards around the crater, and burned pieces of the victims' mangled bodies were put in bags and taken to area funeral homes.

The seven USAC officials, a physician and pilot were returning from the Trenton 200 championship car race in New Jersey.

"It is so tragic I almost feel inadequate to discuss it," said Reynold C. MacDonald, USAC board chairman.

"Although never thinking that it might happen, USAC has prepared its organization for such an eventuality. We do have experienced men in all positions who will be able to fill the gaps in this emergency."

Pampa girls take fourth

The eighth and ninth grade girls' track teams each placed fourth in the zone meet held in Perryton, Saturday.

The eighth grade girls lodged 1 1/2 points as a team behind first place Dumas (216), Perryton (129 1/2) and Borger (112).

The ninth grade girls team combined for 67 points in the meet to finish behind first place Perryton (168), Dumas (139 1/2) and Borger (116 1/2).

Pampa eighth graders qualified in two events for the district meet to be held in Pampa, Saturday.

Shar Salisbury took top honors in the 880 yard dash with a time of 2:42.

The mile relay team of Salisbury, Martin, Golden and Chisum also qualified with a third place finish. The relay team turned in a time of 5:15.

Several ninth graders made the cut for the district meet.

A time of 2:48 won the 880 yard dash for Lynn Hernandez.

Mary Darby placed second in the 220 yard dash posting a 29.3 time. She also finished second in the 100 yard dash at 12.8.

In the distance events, Jo Lynn Ellis' time of 6:49 in the mile was the best of the afternoon. The mile relay team, featuring Polson, Porter, Darby and Hernandez, finished third with a 4:39.

Penny Summers cleared 4' 8" to take the third spot in the high jump.

Campbell to Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers have taken the drama out of next week's National Football League draft — it will be Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell donning the Oilier blue as the No. 1 pick.

The Oilers made it official Monday when they dealt tight end Jimmy Giles, along with their first and second round picks this year, to Tampa Bay in exchange for the Bucs' No. 1 pick next Tuesday. They also gave up their third and fifth selections next season.

There was little doubt in Oilier Coach O.A. "Bud" Phillips' mind about how long it will take Campbell to fit into the Oilier lineup.

Asked how soon Campbell could contribute, Phillips said, "Oh, about as soon as we can hand him the ball."

Campbell, who established career rushing records at the University of Texas, also was pleased with his selection.

"My first reaction was, it's great simply because all the speculation about where I was going to play is over," Campbell, a Tyler, Texas native, said. "A lot of people don't get the chance to play close to home their entire career. I feel real fortunate to do so."

Oilier owner K.S. "Bud" Adams Jr. announced the acquisition Monday and said the signing of Campbell would be an expensive proposition, but it signaled a commitment to excellence by the Oilers.

Ranger lead fades, Royals win

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Writer
ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Both Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog and Texas Ranger manager Billy Hunter are concerned about their pitching.

The only difference is that Herzog is in the American league Western Division penthouse while Hunter is graveling the same division's gravel pit, eight games behind the Royals.

"I'm worrying about my pitching. I'm searching for number three, four and five starters," said Herzog after the Royals had charged from behind to trip the Rangers, 8-6

Monday night.

Herzog had no complaints about reliever Doug Bird, who went five and two-thirds innings and yielded only four hits to the Rangers.

"Doug had been wild and I wanted to get him some work," said Herzog. "Then he just put the clamp on them."

Texas built a 6-2 lead of Kansas City starter Jim Colborn with a nine-hit attack including doubles by Al Oliver and Jim Sundberg and Bobby Thompson's triple.

The Royals chased Texas starter Dock Ellis and then decked reliever Reggie Cleveland with a six-run outburst in the sixth inning, capped by Tom Poquette's two-run homer. Bird gained his first victory of the year against no losses while Cleveland, recently obtained from Boston, was labeled with his second loss in as many decisions.

Poquette said "It's kind of surprising that the Rangers are down as far as they are, but I think we are winning because we are playing together as a team."

"It's a long season and the Rangers just have too good personnel to stay where they are," Poquette said.

"But it's kind of fun to beat a team with all of the free agent talent on it. California and New York are also loaded, but that doesn't mean much. We are just as good as they are. They are just worth more at the bank."

Gold Sox edge Midland

By The Associated Press
Tim Derryberry had a three-run homer earlier in the game, but it took a walk issued to him in the 12th inning Monday night to give Amarillo a 7-6 Texas League baseball victory over Midland.

In other Texas League action, Arkansas ripped Jackson, 10-2, Tulsa walloped Shreveport, 7-2, and San Antonio edged El Paso, 5-4. The same teams meet again tonight.

Derryberry's walk came with the bases loaded and sent Brian Greer, who also got on base on a walk, across home plate with the winning run. Earlier, Midland took a 1-0 lead in the first when Jim Bicker homered. Tom Tellman, now 1-0 was the winning pitcher. Bob Clark, the losing pitcher, is 1-0.

San Antonio jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Myron White hit a home run as they took the 5-4 victory over El Paso. Ted Power was the winning pitcher and Mark Wulfemeyer was the loser.

Marty Scott had a home run and Joe Stewart and Blair Stouffer contributed run-scoring doubles as Tulsa defeated Shreveport and moved out of the Texas League's Eastern Division cellar. Don Kainer, now 1-2 got the victory with relief help in the ninth from Steve Bianchi. Jim Smith took the loss, dropping his record to 0-3.

Terry Kennedy slammed a three-run home run for Arkansas in the first inning and they never trailed in moving to league Western Division penthouse while Hunter is graveling the same division's gravel pit, eight games behind the Royals.

ETSU wins title

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Pretty soon someone is going to get the idea that East Texas State University is a Lone Star Conference powerhouse on the tennis court.

When the dust settled here Monday, ETSU had earned its 12th LSC tennis crown in 15 seasons.

In today's single's title match, East Texas puts its best foot forward in the form of 6-foot-4, 200-pound Jeff Gibson. The undefeated Australian will meet Stephen F. Austin's Andres Dupre.

Gibson was also scheduled to join his younger brother, Bruce, in the doubles championship against Mark Rose and John Berryhill of Angelo State later in the day.

With 39 singles and doubles victories in LSC round robin and elimination tournament competition, ETSU had a six-match advantage over No. 2 Stephen F. Austin with 33 at the close of Monday's competition. SFA can score only one more point, and that is in the singles championship match.

Other LSC team totals as of Monday are Angelo State, 25; Abilene Christian, 20; Southwestern, Texas, 10; and Sam Houston, 3.

This is how FOSTER WHALEY and his wife, Lois, farmed over 1,800 acres of farm & ranch land last year by themselves.

"FOSTER WHALEY used this 16 hour day and conservative approach to be recognized as one of the top ten county agricultural agents in the nation in 1967. I knew him when he started from scratch in 1949. He has been the prime mover in the development of our two most important products in Northwest Texas. These two being our youth and our agriculture. He is an achiever in community affairs. He has the experience and background to give us the kind of legislator this area needs." So says Leo Forrest, retired Manager of the Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, Inc.

Foster & Lois have leased out much of their farming interests so they can devote the necessary time to the duties of State Representative.

FOSTER WHALEY will use this 16 hour day and conservative approach to become one of Texas best-legislators in representing this District.

Committee to rule on teacher tapes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two legislative supporters of Gov. Dolph Briscoe have bucked the battle of the teachers' tapes to a pair of House committees.

It's up to the committees on public education and administration whether to issue subpoenas forcing the Texas State Teachers Association's political arm to release the tapes.

Reps. Jim Nugent and Hamp Atkinson want the public to know — before election day — what Attorney General John Hill said in his interview with the TSTA's Texas Educators Political Action Committee.

The political committee endorsed Hill. Nugent says he thinks there was a "back room deal." Hill says it's OK with him to release the tapes, but the committee won't do it.

Sitting as a House subcommittee, Nugent and Atkinson voted Monday to ask the administration and public education committees to consider issuing subpoenas for the tapes.

Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, administration committee chairman, said he needed to get briefed on his authority to issue subpoenas as well as on the tape issue.

"I have not been keeping up with it. I've got my district to represent. . . I don't know enough about it to comment," said Laney, a Briscoe supporter.

The committees can't meet without posting five days' notice.

That would put any meeting to issue subpoenas in the week of the Democratic primary, and the teachers could be expected to resist a subpoena in court.

Nugent and Atkinson, D-Texarkana, not only raised the subpoena question but also called on the teachers association to make tapes of its interviews public if "there is nothing to hide."

They asked voluntary release of the tapes "so that everyone concerned can take whatever commitments were made, if any, into consideration before they are called on to select their candidate for governor."

Nugent, D-Kerrville, produced two witnesses — Raymon Bynum, associate state commissioner of education, and Garland Davis, superintendent of the Medina Independent School District — to show TSTA benefits from state, local and federal tax dollars and, therefore, has no right to keep the tapes secret.

Both testified about the one "in-service" day a year allowed teachers for meetings of TSTA and other professional organizations.

Bynum said if every teacher and administrator took the day, it would cost about $14 million a year. Local districts have the right to disallow the paid day off for such meetings.

"Not all teachers belong to the same associations," Davis said.

This means, he said, "that every time we let a group of teachers go, we are faced with the expense of additional in-service at home or hiring substitutes."

Davis also said, under questioning from Nugent, that it costs districts money to deduct dues from TSTA and other groups from teachers' paychecks.

Eckhardt claims Canada has edge on pipeline jobs

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — U.S. Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, says the United States is getting the short end of the stick concerning competitive bidding with Canada for projects involving construction of the Alaskan Natural Gas Pipeline.

U.S. Rep. Bob Gammage, D-Texas, adds the United States "is giving Canada the stick to hit us with."

Both congressmen are members of the subcommittee on energy and power of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce which met at city hall Monday. U.S. Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the subcommittee, also attended the hearing.

The congressmen were particularly critical of Canada's insistence that 54-inch or 56-inch pipe be used for a 1,100 section of the 4,800 mile pipeline to be constructed from Alaska through Canada to the lower 48 states.

Eckhardt said that move effectively prevented any U.S. manufacturer from bidding for the project since no U.S. firm produces pipe larger than 48 inches. The U.S. Steel Texas Works plant here is the only American facility capable of manufacturing 48-inch pipe.

"I would like for this committee to probe why a 48-inch pipe made at a steel plant in Baytown and found to require the lowest cost of service, was rejected by Canada in favor of a pipe manufactured there," Eckhardt said.

Construction is scheduled to begin in 1981 on the 4,800 mile pipeline at an estimated cost of $10 billion.

Gammage said Canada had set up an agency to assure that Canadian firms would get a large share of the projects connected with constructing the pipeline.

Gammage quoted Canadian Prime Minister Allas J. MacEachen as saying the Canadian government would try to assist the Canadian pipeline company's goal of having Canadian firms provide 90 per cent of the goods and services.

"We're not only taking it on the head, we're giving them the stick to hit us with," Gammage said. "We have failed to institute a set of safeguards for future competitive bidding. The Canadians are welding that stick very well."

Victor G. Glass Jr., general superintendent of U.S. Steel's Texas Works here, said the Texas facility was built to provide arctic grade steel pipe for use in transporting oil and gas from Alaska and Canada down to the lower 48 states.

Glass said employment opportunities at the Texas plant would be jeopardized if "we do not have the opportunity to participate in the projects for which our commitment was made."

Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Stephen W. Bosworth told the subcommittee the 56-inch pipe would be used on only 1,100 miles of the 4,800 mile pipeline.

"We fully expect American companies to compete to supply goods and services for all of the pipeline segments, and we will do all we can to ensure that competitive conditions prevail," Bosworth said.

US shoulders peace bid

HOUSTON (AP) — It is in the hand of the United States to bring peace to the Middle East, a spokesman for the General Union of Arab Chambers of Commerce said Monday in Houston.

Dr. Burham Dajani told a news conference the United States "holds 99 percent of the cards in the peace movement, and it all depends on how they deal them."

Dajani, of Jordan, was one of 25 Arab delegates in Houston to attend a trade mission, aimed at linking together the oil, gas, and mechanical technology of this energy-center of the nation to the oil-rich Arab nations. Dajani, chief of the General Union of the Arab Chambers of Commerce, Industry and Agriculture, said the Arab nations want nothing more "than an even-handed policy. There are encouraging signs that this type of policy will be seen under the administration of President Carter."

"But you must understand that peace in the Middle East does rest with the leadership of the United States. How can you trust a nation like Israel, after its recent invasion of southern Lebanon.

"When the United States did insist, Israel did withdraw from that territory. That action gave us all hope in the Arab world," Dajani said.

The major spokesman for the Arab delegation said, "Unless the United States takes an even-handed policy between Israel and the Arab nations, it could mean a great disaster for all of us, for all of the world."

Sheikh Abdel Aziz Al Sager of Kuwait told newsmen:

"All we want is neutral judgement. This has not been something we have known in the past. If the United States becomes neutral, a true neutral, chances of peace in the Middle East are greatly improved. A neutral stand by your nation could mean we escape a world disaster," he said.

Grandpa Walton will be buried, too

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Grandpa Walton, the crusty, beloved, white-haired patriarch of "The Waltons," will be buried with actor Will Geer and the television family will reflect on his death in the fall season, the show's creator said Monday.

Geer, 76, who played Grandpa Walton for six years after a stage and movie career spanning a half century, died Saturday of respiratory arrest at Midway Hospital. He had been hospitalized secretly since March 25.

"We have always been honest with the audience," said creator Earl Hamner, who based the series on his own youth during the Depression. "For instance, when Ellen Corby was ill, we said so on the show."

"There is no way we can replace Will. He was such a unique person, such a rare personality. We will reflect on his death in the show in the fall."

The last show Geer filmed in the series had Miss Corby, who played Grandma, returning home after her illness. Miss Corby had suffered a debilitating stroke a year ago and had been absent from the series.

Hamner said the role of Grandpa Walton originally was seen as "a rather feeble old man, whom life had passed by." But once Geer was cast, the role had to be changed to fit Geer's great energy.

Geer, described by series producer Andy White as "a great crusader," was blacklisted in Hollywood for 12 years after taking the Fifth Amendment before the House Un-American Activities Committee in 1951. Geer told the committee, which had asked him if he had been a Communist.

"The word 'communist' is an emotional word like the word 'witch' in Salem."

Five years ago, Geer, who had his own repertory company since 1924, founded Theatricum Botanicum. It reflected both his interest in the theater and in botany. Geer, who had a masters degree in botany, was well known for establishing gardens using plants mentioned in Shakespeare.

The theater, in rustic Topanga Canyon 25 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles, holds workshops on Saturdays and Sundays for young actors. Sunday's performance of "The Seagull" by Anton Chekhov went on as scheduled.

A funeral service will be held at the theater next Sunday.

If you've met Glenn during this campaign you noticed that you did most of the talking.

Glenn decided to run for the Statehouse more than a year ago. Since then he has been covering the 66th District to determine if his views are representative of the people. Now he knows that he can represent us with conviction and persuasion.

Glenn Conrad is the kind of man who takes the time to listen, and when he speaks, others listen.

When we select Glenn to represent us in Austin, we'll know that he will listen to us, and speak for us, powerfully and effectively in the Statehouse.
