

Moro found shot in head in parked car

ROME (AP) — The blood-smeared body of former Premier Aldo Moro, shot in the head and his hands and feet chained, was found in a parked car in the heart of Rome today, 55 days after he was kidnapped by the Red Brigades.

Police said they found five spent cartridges in the car, a red Renault bearing Rome licence plates and later determined to have been stolen. The 61-year-old Moro also had several wounds in the body, police sources said.

The body was clad in a blue overcoat, wrapped in a red blanket and dumped on the floor of the Renault's backseat. Firemen who saw it said the face was extremely pale and Moro's 5-foot-11 frame had lost considerable weight. The discovery ended tragically an ordeal that traumatized Italy and transfixed the attention of the world.

In Washington, the State Department condemned the killing as a "cowardly and contemptible act."

The body was found at 1:30 p.m. — 8:30 a.m. EDT — on Via Michelangelo Caetani, a narrow cobblestoned street of 15th and 16th century palaces running alongside Communist party headquarters and just a stone's throw from Christian Democrat headquarters. It was just two blocks from the busiest intersection in Rome.

Officers went to the area and discovered the body after police headquarters received an anonymous telephone call saying a bomb had been placed in a car parked on Via Funari, a street adjacent to the 200-yard-long Via Caetani.

They found nothing on Via Funari but then checked Via Caetani.

The car apparently had been parked on the street for several hours, police said.

The body was loaded into an ambulance and taken away. Police cordoned off the area. Crowds of weeping Romans congregated on the tiny street.

Police cars with sirens whining sped through the city, deserted as usual during the early afternoon lunch hours.

Police said they had received other tips before the discovery of the car and were throwing out dragnets across the city.

Franco Evangelisti, top aide to Premier Giulio Andreotti, made the first official identification of the body.

Via Caetani leads into Via Botteghe Oscure, site of Communist Party headquarters two blocks from the traffic-filled Piazza Venezia intersection.

The Italian Communist Party's directorate went into session immediately, and party official Giancarlo Pajetta said as he entered the meeting, "This is a crime of sadist ferocity."

Moro, president of the ruling Christian Democrat Party and five-time former premier, was kidnapped March 16 in a Rome street ambush that killed his five police bodyguards.

School board honors 12 retiring teachers

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

A dozen retiring employes of the Pampa Independent School District, with a combined total of 34 years of service, were honored Monday at a 5 p.m. meeting of the board of trustees at Carver Center.

Presented with certificates in the ceremony were A.R. Nooncaster, Frances Nooncaster, Martha Fischer, Ann DiCosimo, Lois Marsh, Cameron Marsh, Hazel Plaster, John F. Blanks, Mabel Torvie, Chrystie Attaway, Reba G. Wilson and Roberta Kincaid.

Board members heard from the mother of one of two high school boys recently suspended for three days in connection with an incident allegedly involving two cars that forced junior high school physical education students off the roadside where they were running.

The mother said her son had told her he was innocent of the charges and she believed him.

"I hope you will take the zeroes off his record and give him a chance to make up the work he missed while he was suspended for something I feel he didn't do," she said.

The mother told the board that Paul Payne, principal of Pampa High School, urged her to change her mind when he learned of her intentions to go before the school board. She said Payne told her that going to the school board would not "do any good" and since it is an "open forum, it will only embarrass you."

Also at the meeting were two junior high coaches who said they witnessed a portion of the alleged incident and reported to school authorities and Pampa police.

One coach quoted an eighth grader who first reported to them the situation: "There's some crazy guys trying to run us over," the coach quoted the student.

The coach described in detail the portion of the incident he observed and said he was able to get the license numbers of the two cars and he recognized the drivers.

He said the second car was not going as fast as the first, but "it looked like he was putting my kids in danger. We figured there was nothing else to do but call the police. We did and they said they would follow it up."

The coach said he called the police again "about a week ago" to ask why the police department had not contacted the parents of either of the boys.

"They said they were short of detectives," the coach said. After hearing from the different sides of the issue, Superintendent Bob Phillips said, "I concur with the administration's decision," and he complimented the coaches on the action they took. He also pointed out that the day of the incident was the sixth time the student had skipped class.

Al Smith, trustee, said, "It appears to me that we have followed the policy. I think we should back the people in the system. We've been saying we want stricter discipline... more control."

Trustee Buddy Epperson said, "I hope the boys will learn that is not a very good way to entertain themselves."

Trustee Curt Beck said he thought the penalty assessed in the case was "mild, considering the offense."

Bob Lyle, president of the board, said, "This is a very serious thing. It could have been a tragedy."

He thanked the boy's mother for coming to the board meeting and said the board would look into her request that parents be notified the first time students cut class rather than waiting until the third or fourth cut.

The board postponed until 7:30 a.m. Thursday a review of the architect's recommendations and bids for renovation projects.

Trustees voted to renew an arrangement with the Texas State Department of Human Resources Commodity Distribution Division whereby the school will pay an assessment fee of $878 and "receive many thousands of dollars in commodities in return," said James Trusty, assistant superintendent.

In other action the board approved an adjustment in the 1976 tax roll showing a net reduction of $41,536.99 and approved a budgetary amendment in the 1977-78 budget.

The budget was amended to show an increase of $321,457 with $260,000 placed in the construction account. The original $6,214,646 budget total became $6,536,103 with the increased revenue.

Expenditures were amended to show an increase of $314,448, changing the original budget total of $6,180,858 to $6,495,306.

School board members required only 35 minutes to complete the eight-item agenda. Each of them had been mailed a copy of the agenda along with exhibits totaling 30 pages in advance of the meeting. Dwain Walker, business manager, said that several of the trustees had called him prior to the meeting for clarification of points in the budget amendment.

PHS deals out student awards

Honors, awards, gifts, trophies, certificates, plaques and other forms of recognition flowed this morning at Pampa High School's annual awards assembly.

Paul Payne, principal, directed the program. Ana Losilla, an American Field Service exchange student from Costa Rica, presented the school with a souvenir from her country — a miniature car decorated with coffee beans.

Formal presentation was made of several sports and music trophies and awards won by those departments throughout the year. The girls basketball team presented two trophies; boys basketball, three; tennis, three; volleyball, five; baseball, two; golf, one; choir, seven trophies and plaques with three more on the way from Florida; the band, two trophies and a certificate.

The high school Learn and Live team presented four awards earned by participating in the Department of Public Safety's Learn and Live television quiz program.

The drama department presented a plaque. The cheerleaders presented a megaphone spirit award, four ribbons and a plaque.

Phil Lawson won the Celanese Award for math and science and the Bausch Loomb pharmaceutical award.

Brian McAddo, Lyn Quarles, John Nooncaster and Gary Meador won scholastic arts awards for photography and Paul Baldwin won one of art.

Academic awards were presented to Dale Ferris and Relinda Brewer for drama, Lisa Burrell for business, Dion Palmer for English, Diane Edwards for homemaking, D'Conway for newspaper, Margo Hoffer for yearbook, Leslie 'Sam' Hale for editing, Charles Copeland for advertising, Cheryl Birkes for publications, John Nooncaster for photography, Cheryl Birkes for Latin, Sam Gilbert for math, Martha Turner for science and physics, John Nooncaster for chemistry, Kem Kotara for social studies and Jim Morrison for vocational agriculture.

Judy Bridwell was presented the valedictorian award and salutatorian honors went to Cheryl Birkes.

Airline jet crashes into sea

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A National Airlines jet carrying 58 persons crashed into Escambia Bay while coming in for a landing, forcing stunned passengers to scramble out emergency doors into fog and a sea slicked with jet fuel. Three passengers were killed.

Most of the 52 passengers aboard the Boeing 727 were saved because a tugboat captain who saw the crash brought his barge to the rescue. The passengers had no warning that anything was wrong until the plane hit the water Monday night and came to rest about 500 yards from shore, settling in mud about 10 feet below the bay's surface.

"We were on our final approach," said Capt. Ronald Gift, a Navy pilot from Carmel, Calif., who was a passenger. "There was no warning, no violent maneuvering, no surging of the engines."

The airline initially listed 55 passengers, but later said three of those had never gotten aboard.

Three bodies were found floating near the plane. Divers sent into the partially submerged craft said everybody was out. But fog and haze hampered rescue efforts during the night, and a thunderstorm that moved over the bay early today churned up the seas as divers searched for the missing A head count was further confused because passengers were scattered among six hospitals and several rescue stations.

Many were injured in the crash, but dozens escaped safely when tugboat captain Glenn E. McDonald, 41, pulled his barge the Little Mac, to the plane, tied it up and helped men, women and children clamber aboard.

"If that barge hadn't been there, there's no telling how many would have drowned," Marine Patrol Sgt. William Clenny.

McDonald's wife Janet said her husband, a marine supply shop owner from Gulf Breeze, was in the vicinity of the plane because he himself was lost in the fog.

"He didn't know why he was there, but now he believes he was there for a reason," she said. "He thought it was about to crash down on top of him, but it came down about 300 yards away." After spending the night pulling survivors from the wreck, McDonald went home, slept for two hours and returned to work.

The plane, Flight 193 out of Mobile, Ala., crashed on the western tip of Florida's Panhandle, 20 miles from the Alabama border and 50 miles from Mobile, as it made a final landing approach at the Pensacola airport, disappearing from the radar screens three miles from the runway.

The downed airliner, its tail lights still shining hours after the crash, was mired in mud with at least a third of the fuselage above the water. A flotilla of rescue boats and helicopters rushed to the scene in calm seas.

"That plane skipped across the water like a rock on a pond and then settled into the bay. There were two loud reports 'blam, blam' as it skipped," a witness said.

Many passengers emerged from the water soaked with jet fuel which leaked from the plane when it went down with 2,700 gallons of kerosene left in its tanks. Spectators were ordered out of the area for fear a flame could touch off the fuel.

James Stockwell, first officer on the downed plane, was being examined by doctors when he said he felt the aircraft made its approach to the field too low.

"We were apparently below altitude. I can't believe we were that low, but apparently we were," said Stockwell, who was reported in good condition.

"There shouldn't have been any problem making that landing," said Jack Barker, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration. He said visibility was four miles despite the fog and that was

The flight originated in Miami at 5:20 p.m. EDT and made stops in Melbourne and Tampa in Florida, New Orleans and Mobile, Ala., before heading back to Florida.

Tug crew now heroes

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A tugboat captain said he was off course and virtually lost when he saw an airliner glide with thunderous hiss into the foggy bay.

His tug became a miraculous liferaft for survivors.

Glenn McDonald, 41, a cool, independent mariner, said it was only by chance that his tug, "Little Mac," was near enough to the downed National Airlines 727 jet so he could see it in the fog and reach the panic-stricken passengers.

"We were where the Lord put us," said McDonald, who along with his mate, Bill Kenney, a husky 28-year-old, pulled all 55 survivors onto their construction barge in Escambia Bay. Three passengers died.

"People were screaming, 'Help me! Save me!' when we came over. About half a dozen were atop the fuselage scambaling, crawling, sliding. The others were in the water," said McDonald.

He said most apparently had no time to prepare for the splashdown. "because they didn't have their lifejackets on, they were clutching them around their necks."

"There would be three people over here, 10 over there. I had to tell Bill to leave the three and get the 10. I had to glide the barge between people drifting in the bay and I worried that some had drifted away and would be missed when we came back around," he said.

While McDonald steered, Kenney threw ropes to the survivors, going into the water several times to help lift out victims traumatized by the ordeal.

"If we hadn't by chance been there, many people would have died. They couldn't have made it. When they got on the barge, I know it was an hour before the boats found us," said McDonald.

He said he was about 300 yards from the plane when it went down.

City pays $45,000 for water, sewer

The Pampa City Commission today allocated approximately $45,000 for construction and engineering costs incurred for the Overton Heights, Casa de Loma and Mesilla Park water and sewer improvements and city water tank renovation.

The allocation is part of the city's partial payments plan which is being spread over the time period required for the new improvements and renovation.

Also during today's regular meeting in City Hall, the commissioners conducted the second in a two-part public hearing concerning the city's application for a $1.5 million federal Community Development Block Grant.

The city hopes to use these funds to offset the repair costs for 2-inch water lines located predominantly in south and southwest Pampa.

One Pampa citizen, E.C. Sidwell, 1901 Charles, objected to the application stating it "will create a bad image for the city." Sidwell contended that the federal funds would be "welfarism" and said the city will be known for a "gimme" image.

However, Mayor R.D. "Jimmy" Wilkerson disagreed and said the federal funds represent "money which the city has already paid." The mayor said application for the funds is simply asking for the federal government to return some of the money the city has paid. He recommended, and the commission agreed, that the city should pursue its application and "try to get these funds to help pay for the water line improvements."

The commission also set June 13 as the date for a public hearing concerning the proposed annexation of 21 blocks located in the North Crest Addition and decided to give further study to an agreement with the Panhandle Planning Commission concerning acquisition of surplus property such as heavy equipment.

Green Berets still 'love their work'

EDITOR'S NOTE — Their official name is U.S. Army Special Forces, but they've been known as the Green Berets since President Kennedy authorized their distinctive headgear. Public recognition has faded since their exploits in Vietnam, but the Green Berets are still alive.

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — They are men of simple pleasures, these Green Berets. A sunny day, a helicopter, a rope to hang them at treetop level, and they are happy. In pairs, men of the Army's 7th Special Forces Group dangle from 50-foot ropes beneath helicopters buzzing over the thick pine woods and unyielding ground of Fort Bragg. It's here that all Special Forces troops are trained and most are based.

A group of Marines camped in the woods point up at the suspended figures and slowly shake their heads.

"If a man doesn't love his work, he isn't much good to you, is he?" asks Maj. John C. Johnson, a company commander in the 7th Group, as two of his men swing overhead like puppets.

"So we love our work. We just love stuff like this," he said. The mere mention of the Green Berets conjures up images of men who loved the danger and excitement of war in Southeast Asia; of the 1966 song which hailed Special Forces troops as "fighting soldiers from the sky, fearless men who jump and die."

There were many cliches for Green Berets during the war years — elite jungle killers, snake-eaters. And they were immortalized when John Wayne donned a green beret and made a movie about them.

Special Forces units are still active, green berets are still worn. But public recognition faded with memories of a dismal war.

"Shoot, I've been in airports and people see the beret and ask me what country's army I'm from," says Sgt. Clinton Metzger.

There have been changes in the elite Special Forces ranks since President John Kennedy authorized the headgear in 1961. Fewer green berets are being worn now than during the 1960s, younger men are wearing them, and there is no war to fight. These specially trained soldiers do their share of truck washing and trash picking.

But they also study foreign languages and train for high-risk missions behind enemy lines. The image from Vietnam, the legend of the green berets as super-soldiers, may have survived the war, but the troops say it was not true then or now. Lt. Col. Galen W. Radke, head of Special Forces training at the John F. Kennedy training center here, sees the groups' primary function as organizing civilian units to fight and survive on their own. Sometimes their job takes them behind enemy lines and other times it's where a government needs help.

"What we're trying to do is be school teachers in cases like that," says Radke, a Vietnam veteran whose jungle fatigues and sinewy physique are reminiscent of recruiting posters. "We're not paid killers per se — that's John Wayne stuff," he says. "But I'm not knocking John Wayne. He's a personal hero of mine."

Ten years ago, about 15,000 soldiers wore green berets. Today, because of cutbacks in the volunteer Army, that number is down to just more than 3,600 active duty troops.

Most of them are at Fort Bragg. There are smaller contingents based in Panama, West Germany and at Fort Devens, Mass.

Special Forces officers refuse to talk about recent news accounts that their units are involved in secret anti-terrorist training at Fort Bragg. Enlisted men won't talk about the reports, either, but one pointed out: "Look at our name — Special Forces."

Unconventional warfare in foreign lands is their specialty — anything from rescuing downed pilots to blowing up bridges, and it's often at the enemy's backside. Parachuting or swimming into the enemy's backyard, they would be left on their own. "It's something you don't talk about, the risk factor involved," said Spec. 4 Kevin Carl, a demolitions specialist. "There's no need to talk about it because it's there and you know it. It's part of the job."

They work in self-contained teams of 12 — two officers and 10 enlisted men. Each is trained in a specialty, like communications, medicine or weaponry.

Special Forces training breeds an attitude of elitism; of being the best in the Army at what they do. But it also produces one of the most relaxed relationships between officers and enlisted men. Officers and enlisted men within a team are on a first-name basis. It comes, the troops say, because a sergeant and a captain would be equally dependent on each other for survival behind enemy lines, and that rules out some military formality.

But outside their job, Special Forces troops often have little in common. Some are married career men. Others sign up searching for adventure and plan to get out when their hitch is up.

Green berets, Johnson says, are "triple volunteers." "First they volunteered for the Army. Then they volunteered for airborne training, which we require. Finally, they volunteered for us," said Johnson, who joined the Army after "not enough action" during three years in the Marine Corps.

Leasing: new way to shop

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
A growing number of Americans are leasing items they used to buy and consumers have to learn new ways of shopping to compare costs and contract terms.

According to Hong Dea of the Federal Trade Commission, automobiles are by far the biggest category of leased items, with furniture running "a poor second."

The FTC is one of several federal agencies responsible for administering the Consumer Leasing Act, which took effect last year and which requires leasing companies to provide certain detailed information to potential customers.

The law applies to personal property leased by an individual for four months or more for personal, family or household use. It covers such items as cars, furniture and appliances.

The law does not apply to short-term car rentals, apartment leases or furniture that comes with a rented apartment or month-to-month rentals that you can cancel, without penalty, at the end of the month. It also does not apply to property leased to companies or to individuals for business uses.

Federal Reserve Board rules implementing the Consumer Leasing Act require companies to provide a written statement of costs, including:

—The amount of any advance payment like a security deposit.

—The number, the amount and the due dates of regular payments as well as the total of those payments.

—The amount you must pay for license, registration and taxes, where applicable, and any other fees.

You must be told whether you need insurance and, if so, what kind; what sort of warranty there is on the property; what sort of standards are used to measure wear and tear; what penalties exist for default or late payment; the conditions under which the lease can be cancelled; and who is responsible for service.

There are two basic kinds of leases: closed-end and open-end.

With a closed-end lease, you are responsible for a given number of monthly payments of a specific amount. To figure out the total cost, add up the payments.

With an open-end lease, you run the risk of owing extra money when you return an item and, for this reason, the monthly payments usually are lower than they are in a closed-end arrangement.

The risk occurs because the total amount you pay depends, in part, on the value of the property when you return it. Suppose, for example, a company estimates that a car will be worth $2,000 at the end of a three-year lease. If, for any reason, the car is worth only $1,500, you will have to make what is known as a "balloon payment" to cover the difference.

The law limits a balloon payment on an open-end lease to no more than three times the average monthly payment, unless you agree to pay more or your usage of the property has been above normal (by driving more miles than average, for example). The company also may go to court to seek a higher payment.

Allergies: your personal poisons

Nine million suffer asthma

BY JOHN BARBOUR
The Associated Press
CHAPTER THREE

Anyone who has seen the tortured breathing of a child with asthma can never discount the wear and tear of that terrible disease.

The chest heaves with every breath, the wheeze seems to protest every attempt to draw in air. The stomach muscles seem to spasm to force out the used air. There is panic in the face, and the neck muscles are taut. Coughing doesn't seem to bring relief, and there is always that exhausting, frightening shortness of breath.

Although asthma can be the product of an infection, most often it is caused by an allergy, and while it is not fatal, many thousands die of the ravages of the disease that leads to permanent damage to the lungs and the bronchial system.

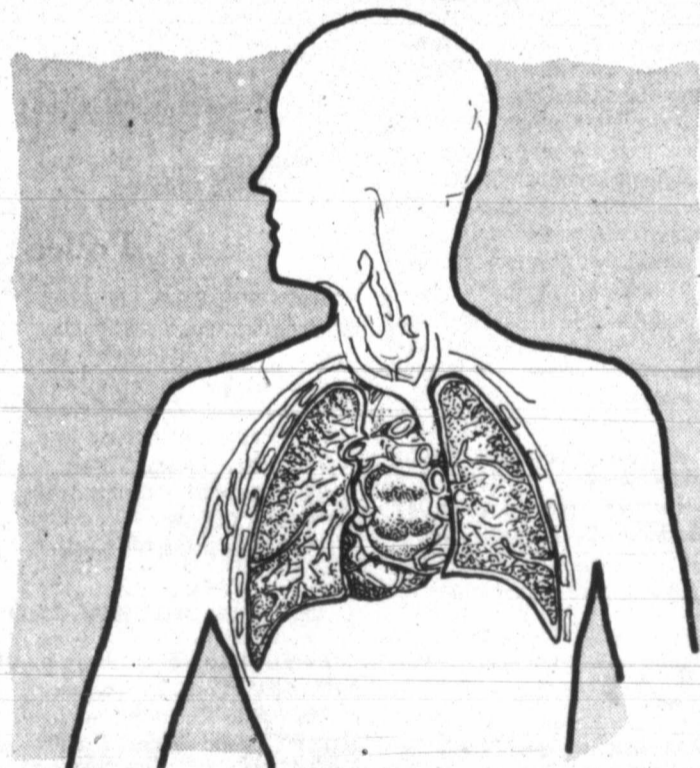

Many allergists say that asthma is the natural sequel to hay fever, or other untreated allergies. All too often it progresses, when left untreated, to lung damage.

The culprits responsible for asthma are as numerous as the causes of allergy and infection. Pollens, molds, foods, medicines, cosmetics, insecticides, the list goes on and on.

Some nine million Americans suffer from asthma attacks, some of them chronically. The disease hits most usually before the age of 20. By 40, the danger of developing asthma has diminished. About four of every 10 persons with nasal allergies develop asthma. There is also a much greater chance of developing asthma if there is a genetic predisposition, that is, if someone in your family past was allergic.

Asthma attacks are caused by many things, from exposure to cold or moist air to the dry atmosphere of a heated apartment to the smoke from heating plants. One doctor reported that visitors from Europe who had no allergies suddenly developed them when they arrived in the eastern United States. The reason: ragweed.

The asthmatic is treated just as the sufferer from hay fever or other allergies. Skin tests pinpoint the causative agent. Then, if possible, the patient avoids the allergen. If that isn't possible, the doctor may prescribe desensitization, small injections of the allergen until the patient builds up effective antibodies to the allergen.

The doctor may also prescribe drugs for the relief of the symptoms of asthma, to make breathing easier. There are a number of drugs that dilate the bronchial tubes, allowing more air to pass. Certainly the doctor will ask the patient to drink more fluids. Some hospitalized patients will be given fluids and glucose intravenously. Adrenalin helps stop the spasms of the bronchial tubes. Expectorants help clear the mucous, inducing coughing.

But most of the drugs used are potentially dangerous, and the instructions must be followed carefully. Several programs have shown that young asthmatics respond well to athletic activities, swimming, breathing exercises, and reductions in the copious amounts of pity that usually befall them.

But exercise must be coupled with expert medical care, and a doctor should be consulted on what kind of exercise and how much the asthmatic can take.

If pity damages the psyche of the asthmatic child, neglect can be a killer. Asthma can strike in infancy, and usually the parents are not ready for it. It may begin as only a cold.

But it moves rapidly. Soon the infant is struggling for its breath, rapid and shallow, gasping with the stomach heaving in its effort to expel air. The heart rate is extreme, and quick medical attention is necessary.

There is an emotional overlay to asthma too. But because the asthmatic child is pitiable, it doesn't mean he should be pitied. Parents tend to over-protect, but this may produce feelings in the young patient that only a drug stands between him and his terrible affliction. Doctors insist that young asthmatics be treated as children, not invalids.

A number of practical things can be done for any asthmatic patient. The room should be as dust free as it can be kept. Moderate air conditioning in the summer months will help. Encourage the taking of warm fluids, and keep the patient calm.

Avoid extremes of heat and cold, dampness and dryness. The best relative humidity for anyone's respiratory system is about 45 to 50 percent; the lungs and bronchial tubes work best at that moisture quotient.

Good medical care can provide a comfortable and productive life. Asthma can be controlled today, and the malingering damage left by neglecting the early disease can be avoided.

Corona to get new murder trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Accusing his lawyer of being more interested in selling a book than in defending his client, the state Court of Appeal has granted convicted mass killer Juan Corona a new trial.

It said Hawk acquired all literary rights to Corona's life story and trial in lieu of salary, hired writer Ed Cray to sit at the counsel table during the trial and wrote an afterword in Cray's book.

Corona, now 41, was convicted in 1973 and is serving a life sentence at Soledad State Prison. His current court-appointed lawyer, Alan Exelrod, said a counselor told Corona of the decision and said Corona was "very happy."

Hawk reached at home, denied the court's contention that he was negligent and described the decision as a personal attack on him. "If the question is, 'does it hurt me,' hell-yes it hurts," he said.

Police guard riot area

By SUSAN LINNEE Associated Press Writer HOUSTON (AP) - Police in riot gear kept watch at a housing project in the near Northside Mexican-American barrio here this morning after youths pelted a store with rocks and bottles late Monday on the second day of disturbances that have resulted in at least 16 injuries and over 30 arrests.

Leonard's Department Store apparently became frightened after youths began throwing bottles and bricks at the building and sounded the alarm around 10 p.m. that brought police to the scene.

age boys taunted police and threw bottles from the yard. A group of youths gathered at a carwash at one end of the blocked-off street shouted catcalls as police went into the courtyards.

its leader, Travis Morales, who he said had been attempting to stir up people all afternoon. Morales, who is considered the radical by many community spokesmen, told reporters late Monday the police should not have come to the park at all.

Costa Rico ousts Vesco

By TOM FENTON Associated Press Writer SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) - President Rodrigo Carazo fulfilled a major campaign promise following his inauguration Monday and barred fugitive American financier Robert Vesco from returning to Costa Rica.

other case, the legal basis for the ban was not announced. But officials said it cannot be appealed. A presidential spokesman said all ports of entry have received instructions to refuse Vesco re-entry if he attempts to return.

Government sources would not say what might be done about Vesco's holdings in Costa Rica, estimated at $60 million.

10-year term defeated Briscoe

By GARTH JONES Associated Press Writer AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Attorney General John Hill has a new work of art on his wall—a map showing last Saturday's election results.

if not the, major cause of Briscoe's defeat. "He underestimated the feelings of the people about a man serving as a governor for 10 years," said Hill, the Democratic primary winner.

which would have let him serve longer than any other Texas governor. Allan Shivers holds the record, having served three two-year terms plus part of another after becoming governor on the death of Gov. Beauford Jester in 1949.

AP news analysis

"I think it was the farm vote that hurt Briscoe," Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton said Monday, referring to Hill's near-sweep of the Panhandle and Plains areas.

Hill says the 10-year term may have been Briscoe's mistake but he considers the Hill family caravans as one of the best efforts of the Hill campaign.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When Mother's Day approaches and I see all those ads reminding us to "remember Mother on HER special day," I want to scream!

For 10 years I have been conducting arts and craft classes in one of the finest homes for the aged in this area. Lovely surroundings, a hospital on the premises, good food, attendants around the clock—but in each room two strangers who have nothing in common are cooped up for the rest of their lives in one room barely large enough for two beds, two easy chairs and two small chairs for "company." (I suppose the chairs for company are adequate because nobody stays more than 20 minutes.)

One of my pupils told me, "When my daughter finds time to visit me, she asks, 'How do you like it here, Mama?' " "Fine," I tell her. What am I going to say—that I cry myself to sleep every night?"

Happy Mother's Day to all the mothers who have been put away in homes by their children!

CONN.

DEAR CONN. All mothers in nursing homes are not necessarily there by their children's choice. Some older people need more care and attention than can be provided at home. And many homes, and the lifestyles of the families occupying them, make the addition of an aging parent impractical. I agree, it's sad. But it's also true.

DEAR ABBY: About four months ago I attended the wedding of a girl I work with. My husband and I had sent her a silver and crystal wine decanter that was not inexpensive.

Three months later, I realized that I had not received a thank-you note, so I wrote to her asking if she had ever received it.

A month passed, and still no word from the bride, so when I saw her, I asked her in person if she ever got the decanter.

She said she had, and she'd also sent me a thank-you note, and I had a lot of nerve nagging her about it. Then she said, "I'll return it to you tomorrow. I don't feel like keeping it now!"

I told her that I didn't mean to "nag" her, but since I had heard nothing, I just wanted to know if she had ever received it.

Abby, was I wrong to mention it to her? If I was, I will ask God—not her—to forgive me.

ALICE

DEAR ALICE: Save your apologies. I think your inquiry was justified.

DEAR ABBY: There is an older woman in our town who is a very strange character. She lives alone on some sort of pension. This weirdo likes to get all dressed and go where people are.

Well, she must think her church membership entitles her to attend all the social functions that take place in the social hall of her church, because she never misses one. The fact that she's not invited doesn't seem to bother her.

She attends all the teas and receptions, mingles with the guests, helps herself to all the refreshments, and has a good time.

Isn't it the minister's place to tell her she should stay away? He sees her at all the gatherings and surely knows she hasn't been invited.

SMALL TOWN

DEAR SMALL TOWN: If anyone is to discourage an uninvited guest, it should be the hostess. The poor woman is probably lonely. And if she causes no harm and enjoys herself, what's another glass of punch and a few cookies amid the socializing?

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB— What do you think about mineral oil for constipation? I use it, but with all the recent discussions about constipation I am wondering if it is perfectly safe to take.

DEAR READER— I don't recommend it. True, you can use it occasionally but it doesn't get at the basic problem, which is usually poor bowel function. Improving nutrition to increase the bulk intake, stopping chemical laxatives, drinking adequate amounts of water and training your bowel reflexes are usually much better ideas. Mineral oil is sometimes absorbed into the body and makes fatty deposits in other tissues. I would rather see you take a bulk expander if you do need something regularly.

To help you solve your problem I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation. It will give you a guide to follow to train your bowel. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB— Recently my wife and I had a divorce. The problem is that I'm oversexed. And it's caused quite a few problems for me over these past few years. I would like to know if there's a drug I could take to suppress my sexual desires. I'm in a very desperate situation—no wife and yet these urges. If there's no drug that could help me I'm sure there's an operation that would eliminate the problem. What type of operation would this be?

You don't have to suggest a psychiatrist because I've had counseling and for while it worked but then my problems start all over again. Without any outlet to release these urges I needed to eliminate them. All I'm interested in is clinical advice of what is available.

DEAR READER— About the only surgery that is available wouldn't please you either as you might have precious little sex drive left afterward.

The same applies to medicines. There is no medicine that will decrease a man's sex desire that does not have undesirable side-effects. You could be on female hormones but that wouldn't do as you would start becoming feminized. Medicines to decrease your alertness might help but again who wants to go through life zonked out.

I think you should continue professional counseling. There are many reasons for truly excessive sex drive. There may be some underlying reasons that cause you to have a compulsion along these lines.

Then you could be completely wrong and be entirely normal. Men and women both have different levels of sex drive and a frequent desire is not necessarily abnormal.

The other thing you can do that may help some is to gradually build up an active physical program. Sufficient physical activity does help to decrease interest. When you have spent your energy you don't concentrate all your attention on sex. Which leads to another suggestion—try to develop some other consuming interests that are not sexual.

In the last analysis if all else fails and you can channel your sex drive properly you could just enjoy it.

Pediatricians laud breast feeding

Mother's milk—nature's own medicine

By Larry Frederick

HAYWARD, Calif.—(NEA)—It's not a drug, vitamin or nostrum of any sort, and it doesn't cost a cent.

Yet it practically guarantees a baby won't come down with an intestinal infection and suffer the accompanying diarrhea, vomiting and weight loss that sometimes become so serious that hospitalization is required.

It's nature's own medicine for infants: breast milk.

Doctors have known for some time that mother's milk is better for baby than artificial or cow milk. But a new study here has turned up the most compelling evidence yet that every infant, if at all possible, should be breast-fed through the first year of life.

Over a three-year period, pediatricians Spencer A. Larsen Jr. and Daryl R. Homer flagged every infant under 12 months of age who entered the Kaiser Foundation Hospital for acute gastroenteritis. The total came to 107. All the sick infants had bad cases of diarrhea and were losing weight; some were vomiting persistently. The vast majority came from middle-income families.

When the doctors tabulated their findings, they discovered that only one of the 107 babies was on the breast when it entered the hospital. All the others had been on the bottle for at least a month and more than 70 percent had never been breast-fed.

Justifiably, the pediatricians called their findings dramatic. "They show that breast feeding plays a major role in protecting against intestinal infections," exclaims Dr. Larsen.

And that's not all breast feeding protects against. In another recent study, a pediatrician in upstate New York closely monitored 235 infants through the first year of life. He found that the 162 formula-fed babies were three times as likely to get sick as the 164 nursing babies. The rate of ear infections was twice as high in the formula-fed group, the rate of serious vomiting or diarrhea 2 1/2 times as high, and the rate of bronchitis and pneumonia 16 times as high. Moreover, only one of the breast-fed babies—but 30 of the others—became so ill that hospitalization was necessary.

Interestingly, none of the breast-fed babies died of sudden-infant death syndrome, that mysterious killer whose cause doctors have yet to determine. But one of the formula-fed babies in the New York study did die of the syndrome sometimes called crib death. Though this doesn't prove anything, it is in keeping with the fact that the incidence of the syndrome is known to be much higher in infants who aren't nursed.

Many doctors believe crib death is actually an acute infectious disease, which would explain why mother's milk helps prevent it. Doctors have recently discovered that breast milk contains blood cells whose sole function is to attack and kill invading germs. Human milk confers immunity to infectious disease, in other words, and becomes the baby's first line of defense against sickness.

"I wish every mother would breast feed her baby," says Dr. Larsen. "I realize many mothers work nowadays but there's a way around that. She can have the baby fed formula-fed during the day and continue breast feeding in the morning and evenings. Or she can collect her milk during the day, take it home and put it in a bottle for the baby's noon feeding the following day. Either way the baby continues to get the valuable protection her milk provides."

When it comes to feeding baby, nature knows best.

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK

What's it like to grow up with a mother (or father) who is also a schoolteacher?

Janet, a 23-year-old reader from Glendale, Ariz., contends it's less than a religious experience. She writes, "I went past puberty thinking all mothers put candles on birthday cakes with a 'tens' and a 'ones' column. I always got pencils in my Christmas stocking saying, 'Greetings From Your Teacher,' and once for Christmas, I got a six-inch plastic ruler with the name of some kid who moved away."

"I told myself teaching was the last thing I wanted to do, but somehow I find myself not only teaching school, but saving empty Pringles cans and little scraps of felt. I label margarine tubs using wide-tipped magic marker and color code things in my junk drawer.

"I even caught myself putting a frowning face on a letter to the gas company about an over-billing."

Now you know, Janet. Teaching is contagious. I married a teacher 28 years ago. Together, we spawned three children. The kids took a vow of silence at the end of each grading period. They sat through 21 commencement exercises. They never sent a letter from camp that wasn't corrected in the margins, graded, and returned.

It isn't easy living with a parent who can interpret your ACT scores... whois never convinced the library has no books on Trotsky... who can snap you awake with a piece of chalk at 60 paces.

Who knows when a holiday isn't... how many juniors REALLY drive to school... and who, when the chips are down, always sides with the administration.

When it came time for our first son to make a decision on his career, I asked him, "Do you want to spend the rest of your weekends for the rest of your life grading papers? Do you want to see everyone else's kids in the daylight—except your own? Do you want to go on a honeymoon and have a pair of little square scissors fall out of your pocket?"

"Do you want to build your social life around the football, basketball and track schedules? Do you want to sit through the 8th grade doing 'The Mikado' 12 years in a row? Do you want to stand around at proms going deaf?"

He handed me his paper. "True, true, true, false, true, true."

He inherited the disease all right.

Adoption to be focus

All persons interested in children in need of adoptive homes are invited to a workshop in Amarillo Thursday concerning problems relating to adoption of "hard to place" children.

The workshop will be conducted from 9:30 a.m. until noon in the Centennial Room of the First National Bank.

The workshop will be conducted by Barbara Chappell of Columbia, S.C., who is nationally known for her work and teaching about adoption.

A "hard to place" child is one with physical or mental handicaps, severe emotional problems, minority group or racially mixed, a child with continuing medical problems, or any child over five years of age.

COPPER KITCHEN

Defrost. Cook. Brown... Automatically

NOW a microwave oven that has EVERYTHING

O'Keefe & Merritt Plan-O-Matic Microwave Oven

AUTOMATIC TOUCH CONTROL

Most versatile microwave oven ever! Foods go from the freezer to the dinner table in a matter of minutes. If you want to eat a rib roast at 6:00 p.m., you can place the frozen roast in the oven and set the "stop time" for 6:00 p.m. Then program in the defrost time, the cooking time and the browning time. After you set the oven, you can leave the kitchen for other household duties. The Plan-O-Matic will compute the total time, subtract it from the 6:00 p.m. stop time, and handle each operation in the right sequence so your roast comes out beautifully browned at 6:00 on the dot.

Browning element at top of oven puts the finishing touch on foods that would cook too quickly to brown

MODEL 58-887

If you're planning on buying any microwave oven, you owe it to yourself to see this exciting new Plan-O-Matic model. Features reliable solid state controls that let you program any cooking sequence, even gives you a choice of power levels, too, so you can roast, bake, stew, simmer, keep warm or defrost foods automatically. Features smart black glass door, full-length piano-type hinge, wood grain decor to dress up your kitchen.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States apparently has no plans to intervene with financial aid to help Peru forestall a default on its $5.5 billion national debt.

After Peruvian Foreign Minister Jose de la Puente held what he described as "fruitful" talks on Monday with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, U.S. officials said privately there was little the United States would do until Peru adopts austerity measures prescribed by the International Monetary Fund.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Office of Education says it has tightened regulations to make sure bilingual education classes serve only students who are "significantly limited in their command of the English language."

The comment came after release of a $15 million study which said that only about one-third of the students in the classes were significantly limited in their ability to speak English.

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of three men charged in the bombing death of former Chilean diplomat Orlando Letelier is in jail in lieu of $250,000 bond.

Federal magistrate Lawrence S. Margolis ordered Ignacio Novo Sampol held on Monday. Two other men charged in the case, Jose Dionisio Suarez Esquivel, 39, and Virgilio Paz Romero, 26, both of New Jersey, are still being sought by the FBI.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Treasury Department official says it is "only fair" to raise the interest rate on government savings bonds.

Assistant Secretary Roger C. Altman told a House committee on Monday that the Treasury doesn't think an increase is needed now, but would like authority to raise the bond yield above 6 percent if warranted by money market conditions.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Next month's U.S.-Soviet negotiations on banning hunter-killer satellites are expected to be "short and preliminary in nature," the State Department says.

Department spokesman Hodding Carter III said negotiations will begin June 8 in Helsinki. The two countries agreed earlier this year to discuss banning the satellites, which the Soviets have tested and which the United States is still developing.

Brownie troop No. 51 from Austin Elementary School toured The Pampa News Monday with leader Freda Hagerman.

export of the sleepwear. The commission voted last year to ban domestic sales of the sleepwear after the chemical was found to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The Puerto Rican government is launching a six-week TV advertising campaign this week to improve the island's image.

Gov. Carlos Romero said the purpose of the $800,000 campaign is to counter negative news stories and promote Puerto Rico's culture and its business and vacation potential.

The commercials will be shown in Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles, New York and Philadelphia.

RED DEER, Alberta (AP) — Alberta's virtual rat-free status is being threatened by rodents that apparently arrived by train from the eastern United States.

Four have been reported at an industrial park and another was reported killed by a dog. A vigorous control program by the provincial department of agriculture has kept the province virtually free of rats for more than 20 years.

LONDON (AP) — The tabloid Sun claims it has become Britain's largest-selling daily newspaper with an average circulation of nearly 3.9 million over the six months since last October. Nine years ago its circulation was only 750,000.

The Audit Bureau of Circulations reported that the Sun's circulation was 95,000 more than that of the Daily Mirror, Britain's biggest-selling daily for many years.

TOKYO (AP) — The official Peking People's Daily says China must get the right people in the right jobs or the country's modernization drive could suffer.

It said some college graduates trained to do scientific and technical work have been assigned to be purchasers, salesmen, storehouse keepers, typists or cooks.

"Some people specialized in rocket launching, for example, were assigned to be doorknockers," it said. China is striving to join the ranks of the developed nations by the year 2000.

CLIFTONVILLE, England (AP) — Kim Wall, the director of the International Arts Center on the Isle of Thanet, is getting together 150 Britons who will tour the United States in September wearing Georgian, Victorian and Edwardian period costumes.

The tourists will pay $1,000 each for the trip and will visit Los Angeles, Hollywood, Las Vegas, Phoenix, Houston, Miami, Washington and New York City raising money for the arts center, which holds exhibitions of work by contemporary artists and industrial designers.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The state of Texas has asked the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to review air quality designations in 15 counties that have been dubbed "non-attainment areas" by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The state's petition, listing Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Attorney General John Hill and House Speaker Bill Clayton as parties, said the EPA's designations would hinder growth of new industry in most of the Texas' urban areas. Counties affected by the designations include El Paso, Nueces, Bexar, Travis, Tarrant, Dallas, Harris, Brazoria, Galveston, Jefferson, Orange, McLennan, Victoria, Ector and Gregg.

By MALCOLM N. CARTER Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Nelysa Moskowitz sat like a stone, eyes riveted on the back of the head of the man who killed her daughter in the last attack of the Son of Sam.

Michael Lauria kept nodding his head from side to side in bitter accord with the indictment that outlined how David Berkowitz killed his daughter, Donna, with a shot in the back. Hers was the death that began a year of terror by "the 44-caliber killer."

And a survivor, Donna DeMasi, who believes she can hear bone fragments still scraping in her head from the killer's attack, bent forward in her seat and plucked nervously at her lower lip.

Grim and anxious, they sat there Monday, drawing comfort from their friends and their families — and watching the baldish former postal clerk who calmly confessed to killing six persons, knowing it was wrong to do so.

"You bastard!" Rose Lauria sobbed through the handkerchief she pressed to her mouth as Berkowitz, 24, recounted how he killed 18-year-old Donna on July 19, 1976.

"This isn't the justice I want," her husband muttered afterward. "He's got to burn. He's got to die for all the heartaches that he's caused. What else can I tell you?"

Berkowitz is to be sentenced May 22. His lawyers say they'll appeal the judge's finding that Berkowitz was competent, a finding that enabled him to change his plea from insanity to guilty. If Berkowitz gets the maximum sentence of 25 years to life, he would be eligible for parole in 30 years. The families waited for justice, seething in the certainty that no penalty, not even the maximum of life imprisonment, could stay the agonies of murder and the nightmares of sudden attack.

"I would have liked more to have happened to him," Ms. DeMasi's mother declared amid a crush of reporters and photographers. "The electric chair, for instance. He destroyed a lot of lives."

"He knew what he was doing," said Ms. DeMasi, who wears a neck brace from the effects of the bullet that the Son of Sam sent smashing through her collarbone. Fragments, lead and bone, remain.

"She's frightened all the time," the mother said, adding that her 18-year-old daughter never goes out alone at night.

The noise of bone fragments is not real, the doctors say, according to her mother. They say it's only the memory of that gunshot in the night. Only the memory.

"I saw an animal. I saw the animal that killed my daughter and crippled a lot of kids," Mrs. Moskowitz said. "He didn't only murder a child, but he destroyed families — the families are the ones who are suffering today."

Her husband, Jerry, who was so overwhelmed during part of the court session that he turned toward the wall, finally broke down when telling reporters how he felt on seeing Berkowitz for the first time in the Brooklyn courtroom.

"My real reaction was, 'If I could only get to him, which I knew I couldn't,'" he said before the sobs engulfed him.

Berkowitz confesses to six

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP) — David Berkowitz confessed to the six Son of Sam killings because he dearly wanted people to like him and, anyway, "a good Christian can't plead insanity," he says.

The 24-year-old former postal clerk — who has told psychiatrists that he hopes to answer Berk's calling to be a minister while in prison — calmly pleaded guilty on Monday to six counts of second-degree murder and some two score other crimes committed during a 12-month reign of terror in three New York City boroughs.

Defense attorneys said that following sentencing on May 22 they would appeal a judge's finding of competency, which enabled Berkowitz to reject their insanity defense and plead guilty to the crimes.

It is expected Berkowitz, who will remain at Kings County Hospital until sentencing, will receive the maximum allowable concurrent terms, making him eligible for parole in 30 years at the earliest.

In a major surprise announced to the heavily guarded 260-seat courtroom, Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola disclosed that Berkowitz has claimed responsibility for 2,000 fires in a four-year period under the alias of "The Phantom of the Bronx."

It was revealed that a diary detailing some 1,411 of the fires was among the materials seized when police arrested Berkowitz at his Yonkers apartment last August. Authorities in the Bronx, where the overwhelming majority of the diary notations were from, promised a full investigation into whether Berkowitz was an arsonist or simply a fire buff.

As a result of the guilty pleas to the murder charges, state Supreme Court Justice Joseph Corso, one of three judges to accept the pleas, released the transcript of a closed competency hearing held in Brooklyn last month.

At that hearing, court-appointed psychiatrist Daniel Schwartz outlined 19 reasons why Berkowitz felt he had to plead guilty, including a desire to satisfy the revenge instincts of the victims' relatives.

But for many of the survivors, jail is no satisfaction. "He should go to the chair, like he's supposed to," said Michael Lauria, father of the Son of Sam's first victim.

Clear-cut ban ousted

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge William Wayne Justice's ban on clear-cutting in Texas' four national forests was knocked down Monday by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, but the New Orleans court cautioned that its ruling is not a "wholesale license to clear-cut" Texas timber.

The appellate court said Justice improperly intervened in a matter governed by Congress through the National Forest Management Act (NFMA). The case involves 662,000 acres and millions of dollars worth of timber in the Sam Houston, Angelina, Sabine and Davy Crockett national forests, all in East Texas.

Clear-cutting is a term that describes the practice of chopping down every tree within a specific area. The alternative timber-harvesting method is to cut only selected trees.

Supporters of clear-cutting say it is the most economical way to harvest timber; environmentalists complain that it leads to erosion and makes the land worthless for recreation. Justice, who declined comment on the 5th Circuit's ruling, said last year that the U.S. Forest Service could not clear-cut in the Texas forests unless it filed an environmental impact statement.

The 5th Circuit ruled that the district court "impermissibly substituted its judgment for that of Congress," which has endorsed limited clear-cutting in national forests.

The 5th Circuit said Congress tried to find a middle ground in the issue, weighing economics against environmental considerations, and struck "an extremely delicate balance" — allowing clear-cutting, with restrictions.

The 5th Circuit said Congress had passed the National Forest Management Act (NFMA), setting guidelines for clear-cutting, and that judges shouldn't try to substitute their own rules.

The NFMA requires the U.S. secretary of agriculture to establish permanent guidelines on clear-cutting by Oct. 22, but says that until then the Forest Service can continue to clear-cut — subject to limits set by Congress.

"The NFMA is a set of outer boundaries within which the Forest Service must work," the 5th Circuit said. "Within its parameters, the management decision belongs to the agency and should not be second-guessed by a court."

The 5th Circuit added: "We would emphasize that our decision today is not a wholesale license to clearcut in Texas forests. Rather, clearcutting must be used only where it is essential to accomplish the relevant forest management objectives.

"The development of those management objectives remains the province of the Forest Service, subject to the restrictions placed on it by Congress."

Bill Waters elected to Texas Bar

Bill Waters, Pampa attorney and former president of the Gray County Bar Association, has been elected to serve on the State Bar of Texas. He is one of 32 directors from 18 districts of Texas and will represent the Panhandle.

He was elected from a slate of three candidates and was nominated by the local group.

Bullets are for real

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Washington Bullets, one game away from winning their National Basketball Association semifinals, are beginning to convince people they are for real.

"I've said all along that we're the better team because we play better together," Coach Dick Motta said after the Bullets beat the Philadelphia 76ers 121-105 Sunday in their best-of-seven series. It resumes here Wednesday night.

"This isn't over yet. We respect their talent, but we play the game better as a unit," Motta insisted.

"We have totally taken away from them what they wanted to do," said forward Elvin Hayes.

Sunday's top performer with 35 points and 19 rebounds. "We're making them do what we want them to do."

"They came into this as the running, watch-my-flash and that trash team and we took all that away from them," Hayes continued. "We wanted to get them into a game where they walk up the floor. Now, we're the team that's running — and they're still walking."

The Sixers weren't walking in the first quarter Sunday, as star forward George McGinnis scored 11 of their first 15 points, guarded Hayes and dropped back to get defensive rebounds.

But McGinnis, who scored 22 points and had 10 rebounds, disappeared in the second quarter as the 76ers lost an 11-point lead.

"We just lost our composure," McGinnis said. "We had opportunities on the break. But we made errors. We had people open, but we lost the ball, threw it away."

The Bullets ran off 17 straight points to turn a 48-37 deficit to a 54-48 advantage for Washington at halftime. "I hated to see the half end," said Motta.

"I could see them talking back and forth — you know, bickering," said the Bullets' Mitch Kupchak, who got 19 points and eight rebounds as he again filled in for the ailing Wes Unseld. "I wouldn't like that if I was on their team."

"They have the superstars, the newspaper players, the big money players," said Hayes. "All we got here is good people who like each other — and a team that just keeps going out and playing the game."

Hayes said all the Bullets have to do is keep the pressure on and they are home free.

Meanwhile, McGinnis was not ready to give up.

"We're still a team that can beat them," he said. "We've got to believe that."

Asked if he thought the Bullets' bubble would burst Wednesday night, McGinnis replied: "I don't know if it's a bubble or not. I think at this point, they're for real."

'The Man' recalls

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Stan Musial ranks as one of the greatest performers in National League history, a seven-time batting champion and a Baseball Hall of Fame selection among other things.

Musial, now 57, pokes fun at himself today.

"One record of mine few people know about," said Musial at a speaking engagement. "I had 3,630 hits and batted 11,000 times, but I hold the record for making the most outs, 7,000. If anybody can make 7,000 outs and get into the Hall of Fame, everybody's got a chance."

Musial, who retired in 1963, credits fellow Hall of Famer Ty Cobb with giving him unusual advice on extending his career.

"Cobb told me he'd seen me play that day and said my legs looked pretty good. He asked me if I smoked or drank. I didn't smoke. But occasionally I enjoyed a couple of drinks before and after dinner."

Muhammad Ali: recapture title

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Muhammad Ali says his only real goal now is recapturing the heavyweight title he lost to Leon Spinks, but the former champ has made some retirement plans.

Ali announced at a press conference Monday that he will join a business venture that includes some Saudi Arabian royalty when he retires from the ring. He would not say, however, whether he plans to quit fighting after his September rematch with Spinks for the World Boxing Association heavyweight title.

"I've announced three times that I was retiring, then unretired the next day," he said. "I'm not going to commit myself now."

Ali did say that he had made a commitment to the First African Arabian Corp., an international marketing firm.

"I have been offered so many 'big' business deals that it got confusing," he said. "When these people approached me, I told them to show me some sheikhs."

Three Saudi Arabian princes, Khalid Al Saud, Abdullah Al Saud and Mohammed Al Saud, are involved in the corporation and attended the press conference.

Yaz powers Reds over Royals

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Jim Rice got plenty of respect from the Kansas City Royals, but it turned out they were worried about the wrong man.

It was Carl Yaztrzemski who did all the damage.

While the Royals pitched around Rice and even went so far as to use a four-man out-field against the Boston strong man, Yaztrzemski's bat caused the Kansas City plans to backfire Monday night.

The honored veteran of the Boston team knocked in four runs, three with a homer and another with a sacrifice fly, to power the Red Sox to an 8-4 victory at Fenway Park.

"Yaz did just what he's done against other pitchers," said Al Hrabosky, victim of Yaztrzemski's seventh-inning homer that put the game out of the Royals' reach. "I should have gotten him out and kept us in there, but I didn't. I could have thrown the ball in a little better, but he wanted to hit the ball — and he did."

Prior to Yaztrzemski's game-clinching blast, Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog had ordered an intentional walk to Rice, the American League leader in home runs and RBIs.

"It was the right percentage move to walk Rice," concurs Yaztrzemski. "They had one of the best left-handed reliefs in the bullpen in Hrabosky."

Earlier in the game, the Royals showed a rare amount of respect for Rice in the third inning, setting up a four-man out-field by sending third baseman Jerry Terrell to left and moving left fielder Tom Poquette to left-center. Ironically, Rice hit a pop fly that dropped for a single in the infield.

Rice shook his head when he saw the alignment.

"I just tried to hit the ball like any other time," he noted.

In the only other major league game Monday night, the New York Mets edged the Cincinnati Reds 3-2 in 10 innings in the National League.

Rain caused a wholesale washout of other contests. Four were rained out in the American League, including a doubleheader between Chicago and Baltimore and the Minnesota-New York and Oakland-Toronto contests. Two games were rained out in the National — Houston at Philadelphia and Montreal at Atlanta.

Boston was leading 5-4 on Fred Lynn's fourth homer of the year when right-hander Dennis Leonard intentionally walked Rice. Herzog then brought in Hrabosky, his reliever, who surrendered Yaztrzemski's second homer of the season.

Mets 3, Reds 2

Bruce Bozclair's 10th-inning pinch single off the glove of shortstop Dave Concepcion scored Lenny Randle from second, leading New York over Cincinnati.

After the Mets had rallied with a run in the ninth to tie at 2-2, Randle drew a leadoff walk in the 10th from reliever Pedro Borbon and went to second on Lee Mazzilli's sacrifice bunt, setting the stage for Boisclear.

Mike Bruhert, winner Skip Lockwood and Mardie Cornejo limited the Reds to four hits.

Nuggets holler foul Sonics take series home

SEATTLE (AP) — Denver Coach Larry Brown may regret the day he discovered Elaine Busse.

Because Mrs. Busse, a nationally known nutritionist and massage therapist, has turned into one of the Seattle Super-Sonics' secret weapons.

Her regime of large doses of vitamins and mineral supplements, loads of natural fruit juices and vegetables, correct breathing, massage and exercise is credited with helping Sonic Marvin Webster recover his playing strength after a bout with hepatitis.

Brown asked her to help Webster when the latter was with the Nuggets, but her loyalties followed Webster to the Seattle camp after he was traded a year ago.

"Because Marvin is with Seattle, they have to be my first love and Denver is second," the Denver resident said in a telephone interview.

Before Sunday's 121-111 Seattle victory over Denver evened the teams' best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series at 1-1, she also set to work on Dennis Johnson's dislocated finger, Fred Brown's flu and John Johnson's swollen arm.

Brown scored 26 points in Sunday's game, while Dennis Johnson had 22 and Webster blocked Denver shots when it counted.

The two teams move to Seattle on Wednesday night for Game 3 of the NBA semifinal playoff. Game 4 will be Friday night in Seattle.

The Nuggets will be trying to stay out of foul trouble in Wednesday's game. In both of the previous playoff games, played on their home court, the Nuggets were whistled for a rash of personal fouls.

In the series opener last Friday, Seattle went to the line 62 times and hit a record 47 free throws. Sunday the Sonics hit 35 of 49 to Denver's modest 21 of 26.

"It's been real strange the last two games," said Denver's David Thompson. "We seemed to have a disadvantage as soon as we took the floor. We had to play twice as hard."

Forward Anthony Roberts added, "We can't play the game with everyone fouling out. It was okay for the refs to let Marvin Webster block every shot but there should have been some fouls called. In Seattle, we need to stay out of foul trouble."

Sonic Coach Lenny Wilkens says his team won't ease up now that it has the home court advantage.

"They (the Sonics) know this is a good team so they'll be up for them," said Wilkens. "There are no weak teams left at this point of the season."

Red Raiders will meet

Texas Tech coaches will present a program this evening when the Top-O-Texas Red Raider Club hosts Red Raider Day.

Cocktails at 5:30 and dinner at 6:30 will proceed the coaches presentation. The dinner and program will cost $10.

The stag-only afternoon will kick-off with a handicap golf tournament at noon.

Contact Elmer Wilson at 669-2471 or at the Pampa County Club Pro shop for reservations.

Aussie wins International

By AL LANIER
Associated Press Writer

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Five pieces of toast with peanut butter and 5 strokes under par have worked wonders for Jan Stephenson.

The blonde Australian won the third annual Women's International Golf Tournament Monday and picked up $12,000 by coming in with a 72-hole total of 283. That was 4 strokes better than amateur Beth Daniel who was able to score over the Devil's Elbow course at Moss Creek Plantation.

Wearing a green T-shirt proclaiming, "I'm on a diet," the already-svelte Stephenson said she deliberately gave up a heavy breakfast in hopes that it would help her game. Maybe it did, but she still came perilously close to losing the tournament to Daniel, the current women's amateur champion from Charleston, S.C.

Daniel also had a 74, 2 over par, in the final round and ended up 4 strokes behind Stephenson. But Daniel was only one stroke away from catching up after Stephenson bogied three holes.

However, Daniel bogied the 12th hole and Stephenson sank a 15-foot putt for her first and only birdie on the 15th to move out of danger. Daniel had 4 bogeys and 2 birdies for a four-round total of 287.

Daniel, 21, a Furman University senior who will turn pro in the fall, said she thought she could have won the tournament and was more "disappointed than happy" that she came in second. Even so, hers was the best finish for an amateur since Nancy Lopez was runner-up for second place in the U.S. Open in 1975.

Stephenson won the Australian Open in March 1977 but had not won an American tourney since 1976. She was presented two cans of Australian beer by tournament officials after her victory Monday. Normally a non-drinker, she said she intended to tie one on to celebrate, "and I need something with the least amount of hangover."

She also gleefully received the latest bouquet of red and yellow roses which have been sent to her each day of the tournament by Atlanta Falcons quarterback Steve Bartkowski.

She backed off on her "I hate golf" statement made after the two previous days of play.

"Oh, I love golf," she said Monday. "When you win, you feel so good."

Tied for second among the pros with 288 total was Penny Pulz, Donna Caponi Young and Pam Higgins. Next were Jane Blacklock, Judy Rankin and Kathy Postleitner.

Finley's A's on top

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

For $100,000 and a manager he would have fired one day anyway, Charlie Finley got catcher Manny Sanguillen from the Pittsburgh Pirates. When the Pirates wanted Sanguillen back, Finley extracted three players who are now contributing to Oakland's surprising first place position in the American League West.

"If I felt any better, I'd get arrested, and it wouldn't be from stealing," said Finley. Then he chuckled like a man whose undetected crime had outlasted the statute of limitations. "On second thought, maybe it is from stealing."

Finley, Oakland's owner, general manager and chief bottle washer, is pulling a major miracle in the Bay Area. And he's doing it with a team that he was desperately trying to sell and one that has just four home-grown players on its 25-man roster.

His hornsogging of Pittsburgh is the best example of how Finley has built Oakland from the ashes of a free agency exodus that drove stars like Joe Rudi, Rollie Fingers, Bert Campaneris and Gene Tenace away from the club.

It's been said that Finley pulls a string and his manager's mouth flaps wide open. He's also had eight managers since 1968. "All managers are hired to be fired," he says. So when Pittsburgh wanted his 1976 field boss, Finley gladly made Tanier available for a price — Sanguillen.

Sanguillen played for the A's in 1977, but the Pirates wanted him back for 1978. Sure, said Finley, but for a price. This time, the ante was reliever Elias Sosa, second baseman Mike Edwards and outfielder Miguel Dilone.

Through Sunday's games, Sosa is Oakland's ace reliever with a 3-0 record, three saves and an ERA of .074. Edwards is playing a steady second base and batting .270 and Dilone, a fleet outfielder, has already swiped nine bases.

You could make a case for Pittsburgh being Oakland's top farm club. Last year, the A's gave the Pirates three players, including starting third baseman Phil Garner, in exchange for outfielders Mitchell Page and Tony Armas and pitchers Rick Langford, Doug Bair, Dave Giusti and Doc Medich.

Amarillo loses 12th

By The Associated Press

Mark Bradley accounted for five runs in an eight-run explosion by San Antonio in the ninth inning Monday night as the Dodgers came from behind to take a 10-8 Texas League baseball victory over El Paso.

Entering the inning with San Antonio trailing, 5-2, Bradley singled to lead off the inning and scored a run. His team batted around, giving him a golden opportunity on his second trip to the plate in the ninth inning. With the bases loaded, he slammed a home run to give San Antonio a 10-5 lead. El Paso scored three in the bottom of the ninth, but couldn't catch up, thanks to the homer by Bradley.

In other Texas League action, Tulsa and Jackson split a doubleheader with Tulsa taking the first, 7-6, and Jackson winning the nightcap, 4-3. In another twin bill, Shreveport and Arkansas split. Arkansas won the opener, 9-4, and Shreveport took the second, 3-2. In a single game, Midland defeated Amarillo, 7-4.

Two runs scored on an error late in the game provided the winning margin in Tulsa's 7-6 victory over Jackson. Bob Healy had a homer for Jackson. In the second game, Dan Duran homered for Tulsa, but it wasn't enough as Jackson took the 4-3 victory.

Pitcher Jim Smith's solo home run in the fifth inning provided the winning margin as Shreveport took Arkansas, 3-2, in the second game of a doubleheader. Mike Calise had his seventh homer of the season as Arkansas took the first game, 9-4.

Midland and Amarillo kept their streaks alive Monday night as Midland took a 7-4 victory. It was the seventh straight victory for Midland and it was the 12th straight loss for Amarillo. Lee Smith, now 3-2, took the victory. Gary Pickett was the losing pitcher.

Navy discharge now honorable

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government that slapped a 13-year-old boy with a dishonorable discharge in 1944, announced Monday that it had changed its mind.

A White House press release briefly stated that the Navy had "reviewed" the case of Calvin Graham and decided to give the Fort Worth man an honorable discharge.

Graham, now 47, was told of the move during a Monday afternoon telephone call from Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the Texas Democrat who had championed Graham's cause since September.

"I think it's about time," sighed Graham from his Fort Worth residence. "I've been fighting so long to get it. Thank God for the congressmen and news media we've got in this country."

Monday's announcement ends a 34-year bureaucratic battle for Graham whose efforts to obtain an honorable discharge had been smothered in governmental apathy and red tape. He has pleaded his case to two presidents, at least four congressmen and a horde of lower-ranking bureaucrats.

The White House announcement stipulated that Graham must document his World War II injuries before he can receive veterans' benefits for treatment.

"It's already cost me about $5,000 in dental bills," he said Monday.

But Graham claims he lost much more. Without the aid of veterans' benefits, "I couldn't go to college and no one really wanted me in their high school because they didn't want me going to school with their kids. I couldn't get a job because employers would find out my real age through my service record and fire me. It really changed my entire life."

"He served with honor," said Bentsen. "He was awarded the Asiatic Pacific Service Medal with two service stars, the World War II Victory Medal and the Navy Unit Commendation with one bronze star. I was pleased to learn from the White House today that his honorable discharge — some 34-years overdue — is finally being awarded.

"Calvin Graham deserves recognition for his World War II service and he deserves the benefits that should accrue to him from that service," Bentsen continued. "It is gratifying that such recognition has finally been granted."

While other youngsters his age were learning about the war from John Wayne movies, Graham was receiving a first-hand education as a seaman second class aboard the USS

South Dakota. He enlisted illegally at age 12 and a year later, fought in two World War II naval battles — Santa Cruz and Guadalcanal — before the Navy discovered his true age and sent him home after a brief stint in the brig.

During Guadalcanal, an enemy shell exploded near Graham sending the young warrior falling through three stories of superstructure.

When Graham hit the deck his two front teeth didn't.

Graham also claims he received 13 stitches in the head and suffered a concussion during his tumble. "I didn't say anything about it at the time because half the ship was dead," he said.

When the South Dakota returned to the Brooklyn Navy Yard for repairs, Graham was given a four-day pass and told to report to Houston. "I hitchhiked to Houston in three days...when I got there, the Navy told me then knew my true age and sent me to the brig in Corpus Christi."

Graham's efforts to right what he believed to be a monumental wrong began in 1944. "I went to Rep. Albert Thomas' office and talked with President Roosevelt on the phone," Graham said Monday afternoon. "Mr. Roosevelt had too many things to do back then, though. He was busy fighting the war."

"I felt pretty good about it that day and I've never given up hope."

"Well, I did give up for a few years until I found out they were giving honorable discharges to Vietnam deserters and draft dodgers. "That tore me up," growled Graham. "That's when I started my fight again."

Graham began anew by writing to then President-elect Carter. "I got a note back that said 'put your trust in me.' But it had a machine signature on it...it didn't look like a signature you'd writeout yourself."

Following Carter's inauguration, Graham said the Fort Worth Star-Telegram wrote to Press Secretary Jody

White supports crime division

By LEE JONES

Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Democratic nominee Mark White says he turned down advice to take a two-week vacation before resuming his campaign for attorney general.

"We started our campaign for November today," he told a news conference Monday. "We're going to be running hard every day — hard and

Election totals final; upheld earlies ratios

DALLAS (AP) — Final but incomplete figures from the Texas Election Bureau Monday night confirmed John Hill's Democratic primary defeat of Gov. Dolph Briscoe and for the most part upheld earlier, less complete figure ratios.

Hill polled 914,375 votes, or 51.23 per cent against Briscoe's 743,962 and 41.03 per cent. On the Republican side of that governor's race, Bill Clements' winning tally was 92,672 against Ray Hutchinson's 30,231.

The TEB figures were from all 254 of the state's counties, but only 239 were complete.

Bob Krueger's Democratic victory over Joe Christie in a Senate battle was confirmed by 844,638, or 54.9 per cent, to 692,665, or 45.06 per cent. Krueger will meet incumbent Republican John Tower in November. Tower was unopposed for the primary.

A referendum on pari-mutuel horse betting went down to defeat by Democrats, but gained narrow approval from Republicans. The Democratic margin against was 729,560 to 676,126. Republicans approved the issue by 56,893 to 53,883.

One question mark that remained was in the 6th Congressional District, where Rep. Olin scared. That's the way White, the underdog, ran his Democratic primary campaign against well-known former House Speaker Price Daniel Jr.

White, a former member of Gov. Dolph Briscoe's official family, made it clear he's ready for friendly relations in the interest of party harmony — with Attorney General John Hill. He said he visited Tiger Teague will give up control by retiring at the end of this year.

Teague had backed former aide Chet Edwards, but with 10 of the district's 11 counties reporting complete figures, the only thing certain was a runoff. Attorney and former television weatherman Ron Godbey took a slim lead over Texas A&M professor Phil Gramm, 22,743 to 22,327. Edwards was breathing down both their necks with 22,272.

Nelson Wolff maintained a steady lead in the Democratic battle for Krueger's 21st District and second-place candidate Woodrow Glasscock said it was over without a runoff as far as he was concerned. Wolff recorded 46,850 to Glasscock's 28,190. There were three other candidates in that race.

Mickey Leland came close to an outright victory in the Democratic race to replace retiring Rep. Barbara Jordan in the 18th Congressional District. Leland, a state representative, nailed down 47.69 per cent of the vote with 17,946 votes, but he was runoff-bound with Anthony Hall, another state representative who garnered 9,003 votes for 23.92 per cent.

with the Democratic gubernatorial nominee and talked with senatorial candidate Bob Krueger Monday.

"It looks like the Democratic party is going to be unified," he said.

White was careful not to offend supporters of Daniel or Hill.

Daniel issued a belated concession statement Monday afternoon.

White said he hoped Daniel supporters would vote for him against Republican Jim Baker, a well-financed candidate who was ex-President Ford's campaign manager.

"White said an issue that 'might be developed as the campaign goes on' is the fact that Baker's law firm represents the Howard Hughes estate in Texas' suit to have the late millionaire declared a resident of this state. The firm has given $25,000 to Baker's campaign, and he also has received donations from individual members of it.

The legal issue of Hughes' residency — which will determine where inheritance taxes are paid — likely will be alive when the next attorney general takes office in January.

White was Briscoe's secretary of state until last fall, but declined to go along with Briscoe's well-known antagonism toward the attorney general's organized crime division.

White said he would continue the division if elected. He said it "can be very effective" in improving cooperation among state, local and federal law enforcement officials.

"I think our current administration (Hill's) has done a good job of building a cooperative effort with the federal government," he said.

White said that if he is elected he would "have a small group of prosecutors on call" to help district attorneys and county attorneys speed up trials or handle heavy dockets.

Asked what he would do with the attorney general's consumer and environmental divisions, White said he would "continue the type of progress we've made in cleaning up the environment without killing business opportunity."

Following Carter's inauguration, Graham said the Fort Worth Star-Telegram wrote to Press Secretary Jody months. Morgan Charles Holder was fined $50 and received six months unsupervised probation for the same offense.

Pleading no contest to driving with a suspended license was Calvin Roy Cargil. He was fined $50 and given credit for three days in jail.

Court costs are added to all fines listed.

Five plead guilty, fined

Five persons pleaded guilty or no contest to misdemeanor offenses of driving while intoxicated or driving with a suspended license in Judge Don Hinton's county court recently. Five cases were dismissed.

Lyndeu Mike Anderson pleaded no contest to DWI, was fined $100 and received three days credit for jail time. Dale Junior Smotherman, who also pleaded guilty to DWI, was fined $100 and sentenced to 30 days in jail, probated to six months.

James L. Sloan also pleaded guilty to DWI. He was fined $200 and received 30 days in the county jail probated to six
