

Condemned man won't fight execution

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Condemned murderer William David Hovila's invitation reads, "I'd like 100,000 people to come and see me die."

The 30-year-old Texan has won a reprieve from his scheduled date with death Monday, but he said in a copyright story in Thursday editions of the Dallas Morning News that he won't fight an execution order if the state eventually decides he should die for his crime.

"I'll let the state decide what they want to do with my life," he said, claiming politicians and judges are using his life like a pawn on a chess board.

The clean-shaven, brown-haired convict said he's died in a few of his dreams and he's not afraid of death.

"A man has a right to die," he said. "I don't want anyone living my life. If they execute me it's all right; if not, it's all right."

"I could fight this thing another 10 years," Hovila said. "The death penalty is outrageous. They should kill a man in the county he's tried in, not behind closed walls. How're you going to use it as a deterrent if nobody sees the man die."

But Hovila says he's not seeking publicity for himself.

"I think Gary Gilmore was crazy. He was for publicity. I'm not."

Hovila would have been the first to be executed in Texas by drug injection, but Gov. Dolph Briscoe agreed by telephone Wednesday to grant a 30-day stay after he heard details of the case, according to Jay Floyd, director of the governor's clemency office. He is expected to sign the order today or Friday.

Texas governors traditionally have approved 30-day stays after all court appeals have failed. After the governor's reprieve, an unlimited number of stays can be granted upon recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Paroles with the governor's approval.

Hovila was convicted twice of the murder of Henry J. McCluskey Jr., a Dallas lawyer who was robbed and shot twice in the back in 1973 near a Dallas lake.

Hovila's mother Marion said she has hired an attorney but will not seek a writ of habeas corpus. She said "it will not be necessary," but refused further comment. Her son says he will fight the writ if she files it because "she's taking over my life."

Hovila said he dropped all appeals about a year ago when he decided Death Row was made for quiet killers who prefer life, no matter the circumstances, "and don't want to learn about life after death."

Since then, he has dismissed his attorney and refused all offers of legal assistance, including a recent offer from the American Civil Liberties Union.

Hovila referred to the offers as "sick."

They didn't come in at the beginning of my trial. They only came in when I was ready to die."

"Death doesn't bother me one bit," he said in the copyright story in the Dallas Morning News. "You're here on earth to be taught. If you have qualified teachers, you learn about life. We have no qualified teachers. There has to be more to life than going home at night, drinking a beer and watching T.V. The state says I did wrong, but I say I did wrong up to a certain point. Sure I regret what I did. I'll never do it again."

The state's last execution, almost 14 years ago, was by electrocution. Over a 40-year period, 361 persons died in the straight-backed oak electric chair built by convicts.

Since then, the Texas Legislature has changed the state's method of execution. Future executions will be by injections of sodium pentothal, a general anesthetic also known as "truth serum."

The injection will cause immediate loss of consciousness and then a progressive coma during which blood pressure and respiration will decrease until death occurs.

W. J. Estelle, director of the Texas Department of Corrections, can perform the execution himself or designate somebody, other than a doctor, to carry out the task. A doctor is prohibited by his oath from administering the injection.

The condemned prisoner is to be strapped to a hospital gurney, with a needle in his arm connected to a tube leading to another room where the executioner will insert the drug.

CETA funds switch bosses

BY CHRIS EDWARDS
Pampa News Staff

Gray County Comprehensive Employment Act (CETA) funds will be handled through the Texas Panhandle Community Action Corp., a state agency, rather than the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission under action taken today by Gray County commissioners.

Jim Wood, director for employment and training for the PRPC, told commissioners that the CETA program has been very hectic this year, and commissioners voted to eliminate the PRPC as a middleman for administering funds after hearing a report from Johnny Raymond, director of the manpower program for the Community Action Corp.

The action will make Gray County one of 19 "balance of state" counties for this year. Carson, Roberts and Hemphill counties voted to become balance of state counties Monday.

Commissioners now will have closer contact with those administering manpower programs. Gray County Judge Don Hinton said, and will be able to receive reports on the balance of funds at any time. The step will also eliminate administrative fees paid to the PRPC, Hinton said, and put more tax dollars into "what Raymond called 'the hands and the pockets of those for whom it was intended.'"

In other action, commissioners approved a bid of $18,925.85 from G.W. James Materials Co. for roadwork in precinct 2, Pampa, which will include patching and a seal coat overlay of Browning, Harvester and the Getty Road. Date to start the work was not set.

A request from Hood Abstract Co. of Canadian to microfilm Gray County records for the eventual opening of a new Pampa abstract office was approved. Hinton noted that since under law county records are open to the public the matter did not really fall into the court's jurisdiction. Wanda Carter, county clerk, suggested that commissioners consider buying copies of the microfilms from the company in the event records in the county clerk's office are destroyed.

Commissioners allocated $5,600 to the Gray County Salvation Army for emergencies related to the care of the elderly and indigent and specified that 10 percent of that amount will go for administrative costs. That amount will be transferred from the Gray County welfare office, which will close June 1.

In other action, commissioners:

- endorsed a resolution commending Mrs. Geraldine Shultz, county welfare agent who will retire May 31.
- convened as a Board of Equalization and set a date of July 18 for the industrial roll and July 19 for the local roll, with both to start at 9 a.m.
- approved a motion to advertise for bids for roadwork to about one-half mile of a county cahechi road on the south side of Celanese running west from farm and market road 2300.
- OK'd funding for a radio for the Gray County sheriff's office. Total cost of that radio, for new deputy Ken Mintree, will be about $1,400. A portion of the cost may be covered by a grant.
- approved the payment of April bills of $230,188.57, reviewed and approved the welfare and treasurer's reports and approved two time deposits of $60,000 and $40,000.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today rejected by an 8-8 tie vote a resolution to block President Carter's proposed sale of warplanes to three Middle East nations.

China reports Soviet invasion

TOKYO (AP) — China claimed today that 30 Soviet soldiers intruded more than two miles into northeast China Tuesday, shot and wounded a number of Chinese and roughed up 14 others.

"It was only due to the restraint of the Chinese side that the incident did not develop into an armed conflict," the official Hsinhua news agency said in a dispatch from Peking received here.

It said Vice Foreign Minister Yu Chan later handed a strong protest note to Soviet Ambassador V. S. Tolstikov in Peking.

Hsinhua said the note declared that the "atrocities of the Soviet troops constitute an organized military provocation against China occurring at a time when the Sino-Soviet boundary negotiations had just resumed. They are a serious infringement on China's sovereignty and territorial integrity as well as a grave, calculated step to create tension on the border and vitiate relations between the two countries."

For years the two countries have been engaged in a dispute over their common border. It erupted into armed clashes in 1969.

The note said a Soviet helicopter penetrated four kilometers — 2½ miles — over the Ussuri River into China's Heilongjiang Province, 18 military boats intruded into Chinese waters in the same region, and 30 Soviet soldiers then landed on the Chinese bank of the river, Hsinhua said.

"They chased and tried to round up Chinese inhabitants, shooting continually and wounding a number of them. Penetrating four kilometers into Chinese territory, they seized 14 Chinese inhabitants and dragged them all the way to the riverside, giving them kicks and blows. Under the repeated protests of the Chinese inhabitants the Soviet troops finally released them," it quoted the note as saying.

It was along the Ussuri that Chinese and Soviet troops fought in March 1969 over the ownership of Chengpaotao, a small island in the river. Japanese reports quoted Chinese officials as saying 86 Chinese and more than 240 Russians were killed or wounded in those clashes.

The area is in China's northeastern corner, 1,000 miles northeast of Peking.

Without giving details, the Chinese also have accused the Russians of many "provocations" along the long border.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Leonid Ilyichev, the Kremlin's chief negotiator in border talks with China, arrived back in Peking last month after a 14-month absence. No major progress has been reported in the talks on disputed border areas.

China's protest note on Tuesday's alleged raid demanded a Soviet apology, punishment for the Russians involved and a guarantee against a recurrence of such incidents.

"Otherwise, the Soviet side must bear full responsibility for the consequences arising therefrom," it said.

Giant oil companies diversify

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's giant oil companies, whose success soon might be measured by how quickly they deplete their supplies of oil and gas, are diversifying into everything from electric typewriters to life insurance.

And the oil firms also are represented heavily in other energy fields. They now own about 25 percent of the country's coal reserves, and 20 of the almost 100 firms involved in the mining or exploration of uranium—used as fuel for nuclear reactors—are oil companies.

This concerted effort to acquire huge holdings in energy-related fields and some non-energy companies is called horizontal diversification, and it is being watched by Congress and by federal regulatory agencies.

But, thanks in part to an aggressive lobbying campaign, no action appears imminent to prevent oil firms from acquiring more subsidiaries or force them to cut loose the ones they now own.

The reason oil firms such as Exxon, Texaco, Continental, Gulf and others are buying coal and/or uranium reserves is clear: Government officials appear determined to discourage oil and gas usage in coming years and to encourage the use of coal and nuclear power. While analysts disagree on how long reserves of oil and gas will last, there is no disagreement that sooner or later they will be depleted.

"When you look ahead to the eventual depletion of domestic oil and gas reserves, you realize how important diversification is to an oil company," said one oil-company source.

In addition, many oil firms are looking beyond energy-related industries for investment purposes because most analysts are predicting a reduction in the rate of energy growth during the next 10 to 15 years.

So, if an oil company wants to keep growing—and it is a basic tenet of capitalism that a healthy company must grow, it needs to diversify into other fields. There has been an accelerating trend recently in which oil companies are looking toward stable consumer-oriented industries and retailing firms as acquisition targets.

In recent years:

- Exxon, the world's largest oil firm, has acquired 8.4 billion tons of coal and huge holdings of uranium and copper. It also is developing new battery systems and solar-energy devices.

But, in addition, new subsidiaries are producing electric typewriters, golf clubs and other consumer products.

—Mobil bought Montgomery Ward & Co., a giant retailer, and Container Corp. of America.

The investment community felt for some time that too large a percentage of Mobil's earnings came from overseas and this was a way to get more earnings out of the U.S., said Ken Peterson, a Mobil spokesman.

—Sun Oil acquired the Stop-N-Go grocery chain, two industrial distributors, a trucking firm, a computer firm, a tape cassette manufacturer and an equipment distributor.

the nation's largest coal firm—Consolidation Coal—in 1966, has begun producing uranium as well.

Several years ago, there were numerous legislative and regulatory threats to force oil firms to stop diversifying and to force divestiture of subsidiaries they already owned.

But the oil firms fought back with newspaper and television advertisements, press releases, speeches by top executives and heavy lobbying in Washington.

Industry critics say the oil companies are so cash-rich they could buy almost any firm they desired. But industry officials say they need the additional income from subsidiaries to support the increasingly expensive world-wide search for oil.

And the industry's defenders also say that, with the oil firms' technological resources, they are the logical entities to develop alternate energy sources such as coal, nuclear and solar.

"It's clear that the horizontal issue is terribly complex," said Hank Banta, assistant counsel for the Senate anti-trust subcommittee.

The panel has been considering since last July a bill filed by subcommittee chairman Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., that would prevent major oil and gas companies from acquiring any more coal or uranium properties. In addition, the bill would require those firms to dispose of coal and uranium interests they now own within three years.

This type of divestiture is supported by people who believe the oil firms will not aggressively produce coal or uranium until they wring every dollar of profit out of oil and gas.

But industry defenders say that's not true. "Coal is not supply short; it's demand short," said a spokesman for Continental Oil. "There's excessive capacity in the coal industry."

There also is no shortage of uranium.

Kennedy bill's chances of early passage are considered slim, even by supporters such as Banta.

AP special report

U.S. getting older

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's population hit 216.8 million last July 1, an increase of 12.5 million or 6.1 percent compared with April 1, 1970, the Census Bureau says.

The bureau also said Wednesday the median age of the population has hit 29.4 for the first time since 1960. The figure means there are as many people above that age as below.

One explanation is that children born during the post-World War II baby boom are getting older.

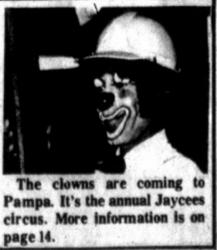

Children under 5 years old, the preschool population, dropped 11.2 percent of 1.9 million between 1970 and 1977, the report noted. Most women are having fewer children than during the high birth-rate years of the 1950s, the bureau explained.

The report included population estimates by age, sex and race.

Looter's mentality

When did it begin? Can you go back in time and lay your finger on the year when American voters began to lose confidence in their government?

Was it during the Nixon era? Johnson's administration? Kennedy's?

Does it go back as far as Eisenhower or Truman or even Roosevelt?

Or had confidence begun to erode back during the days of Woodrow Wilson or even Herbert Hoover?

Perhaps a machine will be invented one day, full of computers and fancy lights, that will brood through the ages of time and come upon the answer to the above question. Then, we can point a finger and say, "Ah, ha! Lyndon was the culprit. Or Tricky Dick. Or FDR."

Perhaps it doesn't matter when it began. Perhaps what matters now is that it continues, picking up speed as it goes, like a sled on a downhill slope. Ten years ago, there was less confidence in government than the year before; and the year after that even less, and the year after that even less.

Talk with the dentist or the truck driver or the bringer of the mail. Ask them what it is that worries them these days. Many of them will admit that they wonder about the government's ability to deal effectively with the economy. Inflation. They worry about their paycheck today, and they wonder about their savings tomorrow.

Because there is such concern about inflation, unemployment, etc., and because there is a growing lack of confidence in our system of government, there seems to be a tendency among individuals and groups to get "theirs" while the getting is good, while there still is time.

Meg Greenfield, writing in a recent issue of Newsweek, said it succinctly when she wrote: "It's almost as if we had developed — all of us — a looter's mentality in the presence of the shattered storefronts of so many administrations' economic policies."

Time after time, the voters of this country send to Washington people who say they have the answer. But they don't. They fling off on one giant training program — at taxpayer expense — have a ball while they are there, flunk completely, cost everybody a lot of money, and then return home fat, rich and happy. Meanwhile the cost of living has gone up 10 kilometers and the taxpayer's confidence is shot through once again with holes.

The looter's mentality takes hold. Unions make exorbitant demands. Teachers, plumbers, doctors, taxidrivers, garbage collectors push each succeeding year's expectations higher. The entire nation is given the bum's rush. Get it while it's there, tomorrow might be too late.

Hold the phone, please. There's someone at the door who wants your vote.

Industry cleans itself

All over this nation, industry is finding new ways to conserve energy. Hardly a week goes by without stories of successes reaching our attention. Often the effort brings with it a side benefit of lowering emissions. For increased manufacturing efficiency and fewer emitted losses often go hand in hand.

Just lately we noticed a report of a small division of a large corporation which found it worthwhile to spend $4 million to utilize waste heat to take the place of most of its present natural gas usage.

The Formoke plant of the FMC Corp., in Kemmerer, Wyo., makes coke used in the processes of the corporation's other plants. The wasted heat will soon be used to generate steam and improve air quality.

Officials believe they will be able to save around 70 percent of the natural gas now being used. Heat generated by the burning of waste gas and hydrocarbon byproducts from the coking process will be used to make steam. The steam will be used in the process and will also be used to heat offices and other support buildings.

Added scrubbing equipment will gather other waste which will be incinerated to provide additional energy.

The history of industry cleaning itself did not start with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), nor with our present-day vociferous environmentalist.

In the beginning, all industry is wasteful and mostly dirty. It is inefficient, but as it progresses and competes for customer favor, it gains efficiency and with that comes use of waste where waste itself cannot be lowered. Competition supplies the incentive to reduce waste and increase efficiency.

From the standpoint of wasted manpower and energy the old-time blacksmith with his bellows-blown open fire is a prime example of beginning industry. His waste - to - produce quantity factor would be hundreds of times more than any modern industry could tolerate.

Just in the past fifty years our steel industry has continually brought the waste - to - product quantity down as quality was raised. The spin-off benefit resulted in great reductions of emissions in both air and water. Just one change (about 55 years ago) from Bessemer Converters to Open Hearth furnaces, probably cut air emissions by at least 70 percent. The resultant steel was of far better quality.

It is competition in private enterprise operating in a free market which will bring about our greatest gains. Not only will the gains be in the economic health of the nation but will be to continue to make use of the wastes, first lost through inefficient beginnings.

We cannot have the end results of an ever-higher economic level without those beginnings. The better cure for all our ills will continue to rest with individual enterprise and not with unyielding government regulation.

A totalitarian device

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

The ultimate in anti-business legislation — short of nationalization of industry — is the "reparations" bill introduced in the Ohio state senate last year.

This is Ohio Senate bill 337 requiring reparations payments by businesses that close down or curtail operations in the state. It has been described as the piece de resistance against free enterprise in Ohio. It's really an incredible piece of legislation.

According to the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, the bill would require employers to give two-year notice and face severe economic penalties for most "factory, plant, office, or other facility" closings.

As introduced, SB 337 would require employers to make lump sum payments to each affected employee equal to his average weekly wage times the number of years he has been employed. An employer who closed a "facility" also would be compelled to pay a penalty in lieu of taxes equal to 10 percent of the total annual wages of all employees losing jobs. In addition, the employer would be required to file a broad-based economic impact statement within 90 days after initial two-year notice is given. Employees would be encouraged to file civil suits to prevent an employer from carrying out a plant closing.

In every respect, this bill smacks of unconstitutionality. It would make factory owners captives of communities where they have no desire to operate. Owners would be deprived of the value of their property without due process of law.

One businessman, in a protest against the legislation, wrote the Senate Commerce and Labor Committee saying: "The bill says right out to businessmen and investors in Ohio: no matter how awful conditions get in your struggle to compete with business enterprises in other states, we will punish you if you cannot succeed in that competition."

The cast of mind that produces this legislation is not restricted to Ohio. Similar legislation to prevent plant closings and relocations has been introduced in the U.S. Congress. Those who want to destroy free enterprise and replace it with a regimented economy see such "reparation" legislation as a strong punitive device to use against business.

Whatever way it is considered, the Ohio "reparations" legislation represents an alien concept that has no place in American law or society.

Your money's worth

Have you forgotten money you own?

Sylvia Porter

In New York state alone in 1977, $123 million was in the category of "unclaimed or abandoned property" — most of it money forgotten by its owners (maybe you?) and left in savings and checking accounts.

But some of it also included credit balances left with department stores, uncashed gift certificates, uncashed payroll checks and dividends, uncashed airline tickets, travelers checks, money orders, forgotten insurance benefits, utility company deposits and bonds, jewelry, coins and cash left in long abandoned safety deposit boxes.

In California, the total came to $15 million; in Illinois, to $11 million. Florida collects about $750,000 a year in unclaimed property; Wisconsin, close to $650,000; Alabama, about $1 million. Minnesota expects to receive almost $3 million in unclaimed property in fiscal '78.

For many states, if not most, unclaimed property represents the largest source of revenue, next to taxes!

About 45 states have laws requiring banks, retail stores and other businesses to turn over unclaimed property to the state after a certain number of years, usually seven but sometimes as long as 20 years. The state then holds the property in perpetuity for the owners. But since most owners or their heirs never claim their property, the individual state gets the funds.

Now, a drive is underway in many states to step up enforcement of unclaimed property laws.

As an illustration of California's more vigorous enforcement program, the state's controller, Kenneth Cory, recently sued the Bank of America on the charge that the nation's largest bank is holding $9.4 million in unclaimed funds that should have been turned over to the state. The courts already have ordered Bank of America to turn over $2.1 million of uncashed travelers checks 15 years or older. Included in this total was $600,000 of interest which California would have been able to earn had the money been in its possession.

The states deny that their more aggressive compliance and collection effort is a revenue-raising device, insist it's an important service to you, the consumer.

"We're returning 30 to 40 percent of the property we collect to its rightful owners," Robert Shuman, counsel for controller Cory, told my Washington associate, Brooke Shewer.

But returning abandoned property to its owner (you?) isn't easy. Officials send notices to the owners' last-known addresses and regularly publish ads in newspapers, listing owners' names. Businesses, banks and insurance companies often do the same before they turn over the property to the state. But most owners of the unclaimed property never learn about it. The ads are too thick with names and Americans move so often to so many far-apart areas.

In Minnesota, the state treasurer James Lord travels to different parts of his state two to four times a month, bringing with him a list of abandoned property owners whose last-known address was in that particular county. Local reporters frequently end their stories or broadcasts with lists of 100 or so names of people with unclaimed property worth $100 or more.

Up to 75 percent of the individuals whose names are so displayed ultimately reclaim their goods or money. The return rate from another list in Minnesota TV magazine, "Hidden Treasure," has been running close to 50 percent.

A legal but distasteful fringe development of Lord's information campaign has been the emergence of operators who scan the state's unclaimed property files (open to the public), copy down names, locate the owners, then demand a fee for reminding the owner that he or she owns an abandoned savings account or, say, payroll check. The operators can't be stopped but they are strongly opposed by Lord.

The biggest volume of unclaimed property, though, remains in the hands of the federal, not your state, government. No one knows precisely the value of the property — uncollected tax refunds, bonds, farm subsidy payments — but state officials want it turned over to their treasuries for eventual distribution to its proper owners.

Legislation is being proposed to require such a federal-state transfer — or at the very least, to require the U.S. government to try to inform citizens it is holding their property.

Think hard. Can it be that I'm writing about you? I once saw in an abandoned property ad by a New York savings bank the name of the bank's own president!

Russia's hot sweaters

Another of those occasional cracks has appeared in the Soviet Union's monolithic defenses against the profit motive. It is further evidence that the yen to get a bit ahead of the game through private enterprise still thrives, no matter how sternly authorities inveigh against this decadent capitalist sentiment.

The word from Moscow is that folks who live in the foothills of the northern Caucasus — everyone from teachers and their pupils to mountain men who used to scorn this as women's work — are knitting like mad to make a buck for themselves. Lots of bucks, in some cases: one man and his wife reportedly earned $13,000 in their spare time over a three-month period. The caps, shawls, sweaters and such produced by this needle-plying fetch good prices in the far north.

There's one problem: wool. The knitters have gotten it, investigators found, by tending more sheep than the law allows — and, when that didn't suffice, by slyly setting aside wool from state and collective farm shearings.

The government frowns on such manifestations of initiative, but isn't sure it wants to crack down. The state economy has failed to provide enough warm knitted goods to meet demand in Murnansk and other far north communities, and the Caucasians are merely filling the gap. Which presents the Moscow bureaucrats with a touchy supply and demand question.

Another 'holocaust'?

In Italy 15 wealthy persons have been kidnapped in 15 weeks. Is there another kind of "holocaust" creeping over the world?

Are today's terrorists not like in many ways the pre-Hitler hoodlums of Germany — have-nots taking from the haves?

First they use robbery and intimidation, then beatings and kidnapping and killing. And eventually political power.

It is as old as Genghis Khan and as recent as Castro.

Indeed, it is already closer to home than that.

The have-nots taking what the haves have — by whatever means.

In Britain the Marquess of Northampton is selling the contents of his ancestral home, Castle Ashby, to pay taxes.

Already Lord Northampton has sold antique books; next go the paintings, the silver and the china.

He has opened the 16th-century house to visitors at $1 each, keeps most of the house unheated and most of the garden untended — but the taxes are irreducible.

In many American cities the big houses of yesteryear are now rooming houses or are in decay or both.

This is revolution by evolution as government buys the votes of the have-nots with the money of the haves — as long as it lasts.

If it is difficult for most to feel compassion or pity for the dispossessed owners of the big houses, yet that confiscation by taxation is but a first symptom of what's to come.

What's the American middle-class — hard-working, tax-paying Americans — are becoming so aware of the increasing tax take that this April heard more bitter rumblings of resentment than

Allergies: your personal poisons

Home holds big allergy potential

BY JOHN BARBOUR
The Associated Press
CHAPTER EIGHT

Dust is the bane of the housekeeper, but most especially it is the bane of allergy victims.

And the place where they encounter it most persistently is the home. They can see it in the air through the bands of sunlight coming in his window. They can see it collecting on the bookshelves. But most of all, they can feel it deep down inside, and it brings on sneezing, wheezing, runny noses and tearing eyes.

There is practically no place and no thing in the house that doesn't shed dust or other particles into the air we breathe. The carpet sheds, the painted walls shed, the furniture sheds, the bed clothes shed. Everything hangs in the air of the home, from cigarette smoke to cooking odors, from mildew to the horsehair stuffing of the easy chair, from the cheery fire in the fireplace to the car in the attached garage.

To most people, none of these things is a problem. But to the allergy sufferer, it can mean persistent allergic rhinitis or asthma, sinus trouble or bronchitis. When an allergy is with you all year around, the doctor is going to suspect house dust first of all, and those will be the first skin tests he tries.

But even if he finds out that house dust is the answer, there is virtually no way to avoid it, any more than you can avoid the air you breathe. A lot can be done, however, to reduce the dust and other allergens in the house, at some expense and a lot of work.

If an allergic person is occupying the bedroom, it should be clear-up of all unnecessary dust-catchers, upholstered chairs and other stuffed furniture, knick-knacks, venetian blinds, bookcases and pictures. If a child is the occupant, keep toys elsewhere. The bedroom should be reduced to sleeping quarters. Rugs and curtains should be washed often, and they should be of non-allergenic plastics, synthetics or glass fibers. Keep cosmetics, plants, flowers elsewhere.

Floors should be kept cleaned and waxed. Ceilings and walls should be dusted frequently. Radiators should be cleaned, and even the bedsprings, the bedspread and slats should be washed or wiped with a damp rag.

Clothes that aren't used often, or are used outside, should be kept in another closet. Bathrooms used by the allergic patient should be kept clear of everything but essentials.

The rules for the rest of the house are just as severe. Don't leave a bed of ashes in the fireplace, avoid furniture stuffed with horsehair or down or other animal products. The carpets, the drapes all contribute to the household inventory of dust. So does the kitchen. Cooking oils float through the entire house. So do spices and herbs, potential allergens.

The basement is a thing unto itself. It not only yields and collects dust, but also fungus—one type of which, mold, is a potential allergen.

The National Institutes of Health lists certain "hot spots" for mold cultures—basements, refrigerator drip trays, air conditioners and humidifiers, compost heaps, heavily shaded areas.

There is a ubiquitous creature called a mite, a spidery insect whose size matches its name. It is found almost all over the world, at least in those areas where man lives. Well, the mite's worn out body is a large part of house dust—and either the remnants of the mite's body or secretions it may emit are allergenic. Mattresses, the bed you sleep on, may have a higher degree of mite dust than of any other numerous kinds. At least some researchers have found this.

So, for a number of reasons, it is wise to look at the bed you make, because you will have to sleep in it. Avoid feather pillows and some foam materials which disintegrate. A pillow should be washable and covered with a dust proof casing. That can be covered with an ordinary pillow slip. Woolen or fuzzy blankets or comforters should be zipped up in a washable blanket cover. The cover should be non-allergenic and tightly woven to keep dust inside. Chenille or quilted bedspreads can be a problem. So can silk.

Having taken care of all these things, we can now deal with the air we breathe. It is useless to clean a room, and then have the forced hot air furnace circulate all of the dust in the house through that room. If you have one, use a good air filter in the furnace and clean it frequently, at least once a month. You may also use a fiberglass filter on the register in the "clean" room. Space heaters are difficult to clean, and accumulate dust. The best heating system is hot water forced through heating pipes or radiators.

Actually, most of the rules for air and home cleanliness cited for the allergic patient will likely benefit other members of his family as well. The most important of these is the quality of the home air everyone breathes. It's a lot easier on your nose and eyes if there is less dust around whether you are allergic to it or not.

It is also better for the lungs and the entire respiratory tract if room temperatures are kept down to about 65 in winter and air temperatures are not lowered too much in summer by air conditioning. Excessive cooling of summer air also decreases humidity, and for the individual who insists on keeping the air conditioner at 70 all summer long, there can be persistent nasal stuffiness and sneezing. There is more to pay than your energy bill.

Italy fails to catch kidnappers

ROME (AP) — Terrorists wounded an Italian bank manager today as the Christian Democratic government's allies in Parliament demanded stronger police policies because of the government's failure to catch Aldo Moro's kidnappers and prevent his murder.

Moro's family buried him at private village rites Wednesday, one day after his bullet-riddled body was found in a car in downtown Rome. But the government planned a state funeral without a body Saturday in defiance of the family's demand that there be no official rites. The family is angry because of the refusal of the Christian Democrats to negotiate with the terrorists of the Red Brigades for Moro's release.

Police in Milan said a man and a woman shot Marzio Astorita, the 37-year-old manager of a branch of the Chemical Bank of New York, as he left home for his office. Three bullets hit his legs, the target of "kneecapping" attacks by the Red Brigades, but one shot hit him in the stomach, and his condition was believed serious.

It was the sixth such attack in six days. Police said the terrorists escaped in a waiting car driven by an accomplice.

Interior Minister Francesco Cossiga, whose ministry controls the police, resigned Wednesday because of the government's failure to save the former premier, and legislators from several political parties said Justice Minister Paolo Bonifacio should also quit.

Cossiga said he stepped down to create the proper climate for a government review of the handling of the Moro investigation.

The Republicans and the Democratic Socialists, two of the five parties supporting the Christian Democratic government, demanded that Premier Giulio Andreotti call a meeting of the five parties' leaders to discuss Cossiga's resignation and to plan more effective measures against terrorism.

The Democratic Socialists denounced the "serious deficiencies of the security services" in the Moro investigation. The small but influential Republican Party called for "necessary and severe measures to fight terrorism."

The police seemed as baffled as ever. "Investigations are back to zero point," said a front-page headline in the conservative Rome newspaper Il Tempo.

Some 50,000 police were mobilized for the hunt for Moro and his kidnappers after he was grabbed and his five police bodyguards were killed March 16 on a Rome street. But all their efforts were futile. Twenty-four of 26 suspects arrested early this week were released for lack of evidence.

The police said they were giving more protection to prominent politicians and other likely terrorist targets. But five bodyguards were not enough protection for Moro.

The Communists, Italy's second largest party, hoped the emergency would give them a stronger voice in the five-party alliance — forged by Moro — on which the government rests. But members of the Christian Democrats' conservative wing who are still not reconciled to alliances with the left accused the Communists of helping to foster leftist violence and said a "political clarification" is needed of their role in the government.

Moro was buried in a small hilltop cemetery in the village of Torrita Tiberina, 30 miles north of Rome, where he and his family had a country home. At the family's insistence, no government or party leaders were among the 400 persons who attended the simple Mass and the graveside rites.

Mr. Cooper was born on Aug. 5, 1901, at Manford, Okla. He was a former long-time resident of Reno, Nevada, and had lived in Pampa for the past two years. He had served in the Merchant Marines during World War II. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. G.D. Robbins of Pampa.

Unborn child stabbed

POTTSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Four hours after Richard Greist was seen standing outside his house with his arm around his pregnant wife, he dashed from the home, his bare chest and trousers splashed with blood.

State police say Greist, 27, a training aide at a state hospital for the retarded, had mutilated and killed his wife and her unborn child, blinded his 6-year-old daughter in one eye and stabbed his grandmother.

State police said the wounds may have been inflicted with a screwdriver. They did not know what triggered the quarrel Wednesday.

Greist was arraigned Wednesday night on one count of criminal homicide and two counts of attempted criminal homicide and jailed without bail.

Chester County District Attorney William Lamb said Pennsylvania law makes no provision for charging Greist in connection with the death of the 7-month-old fetus.

Greist was subdued by police in a field after charging from the house where police said he had held the victims about two hours. He was led to a police car sobbing.

Police said his wife, Janice, 26, was found dead in a second-floor bedroom. Before Greist abandoned the house his daughter, Beth Ann, 6, had run out of the house into the arms of a policeman, blood streaming from her left eye. And Greist's grandmother, Anna Grewko, 71, was found on the front lawn with several stab wounds of the throat and chest.

Police were first alerted by a call at 1:25 p.m. from Joseph Greist, a younger brother who shared the home with the family, who fled the house with his

Engineer questioned scaffold before deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal safety engineer warned 13 months ago that "disastrous consequences" could result from questionable repairs to a West Virginia scaffold that collapsed April 27, plunging 51 men to their deaths.

But the warning apparently was lost in the bureaucracy of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration until only recently.

In it, Wilson wrote that the scaffolding was badly in need of repairs when first shipped to the Monongahela Power Co.'s Pleasants Station site at Willow Island two years earlier.

Since then, he added, repairs were made by field mechanics without the knowledge of qualified engineers.

"This situation should be promptly rectified," Wilson wrote. "This special scaffolding is engineered to perform a specific function in a given manner utilizing specific parts; unauthorized substitutions could result in disastrous consequences."

Basil Whiting, deputy OSHA administrator, said the agency's investigation so far indicates that the design, condition and maintenance of the scaffolding "had absolutely nothing to do with this disaster."

Whiting said that until the investigation is completed, probably in a few weeks, the agency could not discuss what caused the scaffold to fall away from a partially built, 428-foot-high cooling tower, sending the 51 workers to their deaths.

Frank Greer, an aide to OSHA administrator Eulah Bingham, said a memo warning of possible disaster at the Willow Island, W.Va., site came to the attention of OSHA officials in Washington only this week.

"Some people here are madder than hell," Greer said. The memo was written by Walter Wilson, an OSHA safety engineer who conducted what superiors described as a "detailed inspection" of the ill-fated scaffolding at Willow Island in March 1977.

Wilson's memo was made public Wednesday by Health Research Group, a Ralph Nader-affiliated organization which obtained it under the Freedom of Information Act.

Police said he and his wife, they were both outside. They both seemed to be in good spirits. He put his arm around her, and they walked back into the house," said Michael Parvenski, 70, a relative who lives across the street.

"We were pretty close," said Parvenski. "We'd go over there. They'd come over here. They'd leave their kids with us."

"The last time I saw him there was no idea anything like this was going to happen. The way they were together all the time, it just doesn't make sense," Parvenski said.

Beth Ann Greist was reported in poor condition at the Reading Memorial Hospital with wounds to the face and head. A hospital spokesman said the child had lost her left eye.

The grandmother was reported in serious condition at the Pottstown Hospital.

"I talked to them this morning, both he and his wife. They were both outside. They both seemed to be in good spirits. He put his arm around her, and they walked back into the house," said Michael Parvenski, 70, a relative who lives across the street.

Margaret doesn't plan wedding bells again

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret doesn't plan to marry Roddy Llewellyn or anyone else after her divorce from the Earl of Snowdon, a spokesman says, and her estranged husband has appealed to the British public to take a sympathetic view of her marital troubles.

Buckingham Palace said Wednesday, after the announcement that Margaret was divorcing the photographer she married 18 years ago, that they "naturally will continue to see each other on the same friendly basis as they have maintained with each other over the past two years" during which they have been legally separated.

Margaret, 47, is in a London hospital recuperating from suspected gastroenteritis, an ailment of the digestive tract. Her close association with brewery heir Llewellyn, 17 years her junior, has caused much adverse public comment. But a spokesman for the princess, who is sixth in line for the British throne, said: "Princess Margaret has no plans for remarriage."

Texas weather

By The Associated Press

Possible flash flooding was forecast in the San Antonio area early today as thunderstorms dumped heavy rainfall in San Antonio and scattered heavy thunderstorms erupted over South Texas.

Heavy rainfall was also reported in Southeast Texas from between Houston and Livingston to points eastward towards the Louisiana border. The heaviest rainfall in Southeast Texas was located just east of Cleveland where forecasters estimated the rainfall rate at near two inches per hour.

The early morning storms came in the wake of heavy thunderstorms that dumped marble size hail in the Eagle Pass area and about 75 of an inch of rainfall in the Austin area during the night. Other points in South Texas also reported rain.

Forecasters said thunderstorms, including some reaching possibly severe levels, could be expected to continue in South Texas and said more thunderstorms were expected in West Texas.

High temperatures were expected to be mostly in the 80s statewide although readings in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas were expected to flirt with the 100-degree mark.

Early today clear skies were reported in western sections of the Panhandle and in the El Paso area. The remainder of the state had mostly cloudy skies and some fog was reported in southern sections of the state.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s and 70s. Some readings included 64 at Amarillo, 70 at Wichita Falls, 71 at Texarkana and Dallas-Fort Worth, 67 at Austin and Lufkin, 70 at Houston, 78 at Corpus Christi, 76 at McAllen, 70 at Del Rio, 71 at San Angelo, 63 at El Paso and 68 at Lubbock.

Town tributes Benedict Arnold

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The day began chilly and wet, generally rotten, which some thought generally apt.

Soon enough, though, the sun broke through, and under a bright spring sky, with pomp and pageantry, with bugles and banners, with fifes and drums and marching feet, with bands and booming cannon, this town paid honor to a long-remembered son, Benedict Arnold.

Honest. They do it every year.

"Of course Benedict Arnold was a traitor," Capt. Bob Hunter said. "What we honor is what happened here on this green in 1775 and the man who did it, who was Benedict Arnold."

Capt. Hunter is a member of Benedict Arnold's old outfit, the Governor's Foot Guard of Connecticut.

As other members here gathered for the celebration, the captain was all gotten up in white knee britches, black leggings, scarlet coat, sword, fur hat, a figure in a London travel poster.

The celebration was not, however, held on the anniversary of Benedict Arnold's 1775 exploit on the New Haven green. That happened April 22. What with April's unpredictable weather, the Foot Guard picks a weekend in May for its annual observance, in this case May 5.

(May 5, incidentally, is the anniversary of the Sack of Rome, rarely celebrated, as in the Sack of New London. New London, Conn., just up the road, was Benedict Arnold's birthplace. In 1781, Arnold led the British sackers.

(Last Saturday, May 5, was also the day the Veterans of Foreign Wars in neighboring New York picked as Loyalty Day, but one festivity at a time. Back to Benedict Arnold.)

"What Benedict Arnold did late in the Revolution were acts of treason," Capt. Hunter said. "He was a traitor. There is no denying it, and we don't."

"What he did here, though, was an act of patriotism and there's no denying that either. It might be difficult for some to separate the two, but we have no trouble. Powder House Day is a time-honored celebration in New Haven."

That's what it is called, Powder House Day, and here's why.

When Arnold, who was captain of the Foot Guard, the local militia, got news of the Battle of Lexington three days after the event, he asked for the keys to the town's powder house so he could arm his men and rush to the Massachusetts patriots' aid.

The town fathers, however, had voted to stay neutral and refused to give up the keys.

Arnold marched his 65 men up and down the green menacingly, demanded the keys and said he would break in the door unless he got them. The town fathers gave up the keys. Arnold took the powder and shot and marched off to Lexington.

The Governor's Foot Guard has been in continuous service ever since, each year re-enacting that drama on the green. Except that instead of marching to Lexington they march to their armory for a big bash.

Bike-a-thon rescheduled

PANHANDLE — A bike-a-thon slated for May 6 has been rescheduled for 9:30 a.m. May 20 at the Carson County Precinct Barn, White Deer.

Riders will bike to Skellytown and back to benefit the Carson Unit of the American Cancer Society.

Entry forms are available at principals' offices in the county.

billion, $1.7 billion less than Carter's estimate, largely because of higher anticipated revenues. The Senate deficit estimate is $2.3 billion below Carter's.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., chairman of the House Budget Committee, told reporters the conference may be difficult, "but nothing is as tough as getting a budget resolution through the House."

House Republicans, only three of whom voted for the budget resolution, had fought for a substitute with much lower spending figures and a bigger tax cut.

Rep. John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., the minority leader, said "the majority has demonstrated its program of higher taxes, higher spending and huge deficits."

He told the Democrats "your votes today (Wednesday) on this issue will speak far louder to the American people than any speech — or excuse — you could possibly make."

Democrats prepared for the final test on the resolution by wanting a reversal of an earlier vote that had stripped $3.15 billion from Department of Health, Education and Welfare on the ground that certain programs had been shown to be riddled with waste and fraud.

Budget, tax cut studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional negotiators are beginning the process of reconciling tentative budgets adopted by the Senate and House with the result certain to contain a smaller tax cut than President Carter wants.

Late Wednesday the House adopted by a cliff-hanging 201-197 roll call a tentative fiscal plan for the year beginning Oct. 1. Its plan calls for spending $500.9 billion. The version approved earlier by the Senate carries a $498.9 billion price tag.

Both versions agree, however, in setting the net tax reduction at $19.4 billion compared with Carter's proposal of $25 billion that later was recalculated at $24 billion. The House measure would put the tax cut in effect Oct. 1, three months earlier than the Senate wants.

A major difference to be settled by the conference is in the defense budget. The House earmarked $115.7 billion, the Senate $116.6 billion, while Carter recommended $117.8 billion.

A bigger, but possibly less controversial spread is in the agriculture item — $10.5 billion in the House version, $7.8 billion in the Senate's.

The House budget resolution contemplates a deficit of $57.9

billion, $1.7 billion less than Carter's estimate, largely because of higher anticipated revenues. The Senate deficit estimate is $2.3 billion below Carter's.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., chairman of the House Budget Committee, told reporters the conference may be difficult, "but nothing is as tough as getting a budget resolution through the House."

House Republicans, only three of whom voted for the budget resolution, had fought for a substitute with much lower spending figures and a bigger tax cut.

Rep. John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., the minority leader, said "the majority has demonstrated its program of higher taxes, higher spending and huge deficits."

He told the Democrats "your votes today (Wednesday) on this issue will speak far louder to the American people than any speech — or excuse — you could possibly make."

Democrats prepared for the final test on the resolution by wanting a reversal of an earlier vote that had stripped $3.15 billion from Department of Health, Education and Welfare on the ground that certain programs had been shown to be riddled with waste and fraud.

Names in the news

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tom Tipton's wedding May 20 will have an all-star cast — Vice President Walter Mondale, singer Roberta Flack, a former Brooklyn Dodger and three Minnesota Vikings.

Tipton, who founded the first black-owned ad agency in Minnesota, asked Mondale to be his best man. Tipton, a close friend of the late Sen. Hubert Humphrey and a soloist at his funeral, said Mondale is standing in for Humphrey, who had always said he wanted to be his best man.

Miss Flack, a high school classmate of Tipton's, will sing at the wedding, while former Dodger pitcher Joe Black will be a groomsman and football players Alan Page, Carl Eller and Jim Marshall, will be ushers.

"He doesn't really care who did it," said John Fairchild. "The point is the 'what' that did it."

Flynt, 35, was shot during a court recess in his trial for obscenity charges and is now undergoing treatment for paralysis.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The half-hour television commentary by Garner Ted Armstrong will be discontinued and the 48-year-old Worldwide Church of God evangelist will relinquish his executive titles in the church and its related Ambassador College, his father says.

Board chairman Herbert G. Armstrong also announced Wednesday that he has abandoned plans to move the College from Pasadena to Big Sandy, Texas, because the move would cost some $5 million dollars.

The four-year, liberal arts school is an arm of the Worldwide Church of God. The Big Sandy campus had closed last year, and students and faculty were moved to Pasadena.

The announcements came amid persistent rumors of a power struggle within the church and college. But Stanley Rader, the elder Armstrong's personal adviser, denied that there was a rift in the organization.

Rader said the younger Armstrong wanted relief from administrative duties in order to devote all of his time to radio evangelism.

"Mr. Armstrong wants his son to dedicate himself to that field and so, for the time being, we will drop out of television," Rader said.

ATLANTA (AP) — Betty Talmadge says she'll seek the Democratic nomination for the seat being vacated by retiring 6th District Congressman John Flynt.

The 54-year-old Mrs. Talmadge, who was divorced last year from Sen. Herman Talmadge, formally announced her candidacy Wednesday.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Actor and former pro football star Jim Brown could go to jail for six months after being convicted of slapping, punching and choking a golf partner.

Municipal Court Commissioner Wardell Moss found Brown guilty of a misdemeanor battery charge Wednesday. He set sentencing, which could be a maximum of six months in jail and a $1,000 fine, for June 28.

Prosecutor Mal Jordan said Brown, 42, assaulted Frank Snow, 33, after they argued over where a ball should be placed on the green during a golf match last fall.

During the two-day trial, Brown said he only shoved Snow away when Snow attacked him with an upraised golf club.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt, who has offered large cash awards for such things as information on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, is offering another one.

This time Flynt says he plans to offer a $100,000 reward for information about why he was shot March 6 in Georgia unless Georgia authorities have a suspect by the time he leaves a

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: It all started eight months ago when Ron and I started running around with Lynn and Dave. Dave and I would sit in the front and Lynn and Ron would sit in back. It was all in fun. We'd hold hands and hug and kiss once in a while. I sort of liked it at first, then I noticed Ron was overdoing it with Lynn.

I said I thought the whole idea was silly and suggested we get back with our own mates, but Ron and Lynn didn't want to quit. What do I do now. I am sure Lynn and Ron haven't gone any further than hugging and kissing, but I'm worried about where it might lead. I love my husband and I know he loves me. There are 5 preschool children between the two families. What should I do?

RON'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I don't have to tell you how foolish you were to have started this dangerous game—now the fat is in the fire. Tell Ron that if you are going to continue the friendship with Lynn and Dave, there will be no more switches. Then gradually see less and less of them, and more of other couples who are content to stick with the mates they married.

DEAR ABBY: Golf is a great sport, but why do so many people who play the game cheat?

I have had the same sad experience with both men and women. They lie through their teeth about their scores.

HONEST GOLFER

DEAR HONEST: People lie about their golf scores for the same reason they lie about anything else. They lack the self-confidence and security to tell the truth. And since golf is a game involving an exclusive and confidential relationship between the player and the ball, the cheating player can usually get away with it.

DEAR ABBY: Please answer this soon as Mom and Dad are planning a trip and we kids will be alone.

We are both young adults. My parents have asked our married brother to "look in on us" while they're out of town. Does that give my brother the right to barge in whenever he feels like it without giving us any warning? Do you think he should have a key to our house just like he did when he lived here? Doesn't the fact that he is now married with a house of his own make him somewhat of an outsider here?

This is causing a terrible fight. We would like your opinion. We are two girls, 18 and 19.

US KIDS IN NEW CANAAN

DEAR KIDS: What "rights" your brother has, can (and should) be clearly defined by your parents. And to avoid any misunderstanding, your parents should tell you in your brother's presence exactly what "looking in on" entails.

CONFIDENTIAL TO BLEW MY TOP IN HORNELL, N.Y.: You blew more than your top. You blew your chances. The test of a man's breeding is how he behaves in a quarrel.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I need your help and advice. Can a woman's health be affected by suppressing her sexual feelings and emotional desires? Because that is just what I have been doing and I am broken out all over my face, scalp and other areas. I also feel so nervous and depressed that I cry over the least little thing.

My husband and I have been married for four years. This is the second marriage for each of us. I am 39 and he is 43. He says he loves me but sex is nothing. He said he's getting too old for sex. Yet, he told me about all his sexual conquests before he married his ex-wife and all about his sexual relations with her.

When we do have sex it is just a two-minute bout and not a love affair which makes me feel left cold and stranded. I approach him 75 percent of the time or nothing would take place even the once or twice a week that we do have sex. Even then when I do approach him he'll say he has a headache or a backache or something, like he's too tired.

I saw a doctor six months ago. He said I was normal. His advice was to get a lover, take care of it myself or get a divorce. I don't like any of those solutions. What is your opinion?

DEAR READER — If the story is as you have represented it your husband has not seriously considered your needs. It is necessary in any deep lasting relationship between two people that each consider the other person's needs as well as his or her own needs.

It is not normal for a 43-year-old healthy male to have no interest or very little interest in sex. The level of desire and frequency may vary greatly but the feeling is there. Your husband's lack of interest may be caused by a fear of impotence which is a symptom in itself. I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-12, Impotence, to give you more information on this. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

None of the solutions you mentioned will solve his basic problem either. If you really love him you would want him to resolve whatever the difficulty is and enjoy a full normal life too. To do that he will need some professional guidance. He could be depressed. Depressions often appear as a loss of interest in sex. He could have a medical problem or he may have some psychological difficulties. Then the basic relationship between the two of you may not be good in other areas.

How do you find out what causes such a problem and how do you resolve it? I think both of you could profit from seeing a marriage counselor. If the situation is as you represent it, he might need to see a psychiatrist and obtain both a good medical evaluation and a review of problem areas in his emotional life that might be the underlying cause. Such a move could save your marriage and have a chance of providing some happiness for you both.

Yes, emotional tension of any kind can affect a person's health and even cause the skin to break out. Certainly unresolved sexual conflict is a potent source of emotional tension. Simple physical relief won't solve the emotional strain either. Sex in such a situation is simply part of the whole emotional picture. Your strong desire for it is probably increased because it becomes a symbol of the love you want and need. This is often more important than the physical act alone.

Turkey and barbecue sauce

To prepare the turkey on a rotisserie grill, first purchase a turkey that will fit on the spit. Thaw the bird in the refrigerator. Untuck the legs and remove the giblets. Do not stuff the bird; stuffing will have too smoky a flavor. Insert the spit through the turkey and clamp securely. Tie wings to the body. Place on the grill well balanced. Check for doneness after about 2 1/2 hours. Brush on barbecue sauce during last half hour of cooking. To make one cup of the sauce, mix in a heavy skillet one small chopped onion, one tablespoon vinegar, one tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1/2 teaspoon chili powder, 1/2 cup water, 1/2 cup catsup and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Cover and cook slowly for 15 minutes.

Jelly making no chore anymore

Use fresh berries when they are in season for less expensive jelly making and extra flavor. In many areas, you can save money by picking the fruit yourself at berry farms.

CHERRY-STRAWBERRY JELLY

- 1 1/2 cups prepared juice (about 1 1/2 lb. fully ripened sour cherries, 1/2 cup water and 1 qt. fully ripe strawberries)
- 5 cups (2 1/4 lb.) sugar
- 1 box (1 1/4 oz.) powdered fruit pectin

comes to a hard boil. Immediately add all sugar. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard one minute, stirring constantly.

Remove from heat, skim off foam with metal spoon and pour quickly into glasses. Cover jelly at once with 1/8 inch hot paraffin. Makes about 8 (6 fl. oz.) glasses.

BLUEBERRY-RHUBARB JELLY

- 3 1/2 cups prepared juice (about 1 qt. fully ripe blueberries and 2 lb. fresh or frozen rhubarb)
- 4 1/2 cups (2 lb.) sugar
- 1 box (1 1/4 oz.) powdered fruit pectin

Measure 3 1/2 cups into a large saucepan.

Then make the jelly. Measure sugar and set aside. Mix fruit pectin into juice in saucepan. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. Immediately add all sugar and stir. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly.

Remove from heat, skim off foam with metal spoon and pour quickly into glasses. Cover at once with 1/8 inch hot paraffin. Makes 5 1/2 cups or about 7 (6 fl. oz.) glasses.

First prepare the juice. Stem, pit and crush about 1 1/2 pounds sour cherries. Add 1/2 cup water. Bring to a boil and simmer, covered, 10 minutes. Crush thoroughly or grind about 1 quart fully ripe strawberries. Place fruits in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. Measure 3 1/2 cups juice into a large saucepan.

Then make the jelly. Measure sugar and set aside. Mix fruit pectin into juice in saucepan. Place over high heat and stir until mixture

First prepare the juice. Stem and thoroughly crush, one layer at a time, about 1 quart blueberries. Bring to a boil and simmer, covered, 5 minutes. Cut into 1-inch pieces. Grind (do not peel) about 2 pounds rhubarb. Place fruits in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice.

Vinegar complements chops

By PIERRE FRANEY (c) 1978 N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Much has been made of various manifestations involved in the nouvelle cuisine of French cookery. One of the dishes that has captured the public fancy is poulet au vinaigre, actually a saute of chicken with a trace of vinegar and, generally, tomato among the ingredients.

The use of vinegar as an important ingredient in serious cookery is not a new invention. The mildly acid taste of the liquid has long been part of the sauces used with certain foods, principally pork, and such sauces as Robert and charcuterie.

Vinegar, as a matter of fact, complements foods that have somewhat high fat contents, including pork chops.

Pork chops are best cooked either in a short span of time, to prevent them from drying out, or over a long period to time, to make them more tender.

In the dish here, the pork chops should be cooked rapidly, preferably five to six minutes to a side. The thickness of the chops is a factor: The thinner the chops, the faster they will be in and out of the skillet.

The total cooking time for this dish is approximately 20 minutes.

Sauteed Pork Chops
8 pork chops, each about half an inch in diameter

Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

2 tablespoons peanut, vegetable or corn oil

1/2 cup finely chopped onion

3 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon dry white wine

2 tablespoons red wine vinegar

1 cup chicken broth

1 tablespoon tomato paste

1 teaspoon cornstarch

1 tablespoon mustard such as Dijon or Dusseldorf

1. Sprinkle the chops with salt and pepper.

2. Heat the oil in a heavy skillet in which the chops will fit in one layer. Add the chops and cook about five minutes or until well browned on one side.

3. Turn the chops on the other side five to six minutes. The chops must be cooked rapidly over very high heat or they will toughen. Total cooking time should be from about 10 to 12 minutes.

4. Remove the chops to a warm serving platter and pour off most of the fat from the skillet. Add the onions and cook briefly, stirring. Add six tablespoons of the wine and the vinegar and stir with a wire whisk to dissolve the brown particles that cling to the bottom and sides of the pan.

5. Add the chicken broth and tomato paste and stir to blend. Cook about five minutes. Blend the cornstarch and remaining one teaspoon wine and stir it into the sauce.

6. Spoon and scrape the sauce into a saucepan and add the mustard. Add any juices that have accumulated around the chops, salt and a generous amount of black pepper. Heat the sauce without boiling and serve with the chops. Serve with pureed potatoes.

Yield: 4 servings.

Some old airmen can't get to first base

By RICK SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — When Adrian Atwater gazed across the mostly barren plains outside Childress, Texas, the first thing he wondered was: "Where the devil did all those trees come from?"

He jogged his memory backwards...10 years...20 years...30 years...stopping in 1943, when the Childress Army Air Field occupied the grassy fields now before him.

Atwater studied one of the many photographs he'd made while training at the airfield. In some of them were little 5-foot elm trees braced against the Texas wind.

The little trees had been planted when the base was under construction. Atwater hadn't given them much notice then. Now, big elms undulated in the afternoon breeze.

Childress, a town of 5,400 rooted at the edge of the Caprock that rises to become the High Plains, was one of dozens of towns across Texas where plowboys and city slickers earned their wings as pilots, gunners, navigators and bombardiers during World War II.

Today, as Atwater discovered on his odyssey back to Childress, many of the old military airstrips are hardly recognizable.

Some are nearly deserted and, like Childress Army Air Field, are being slowly reclaimed by nature as Johnson grass shoots through cracks in the old paved runways. Other air bases have found new life as city airports, industrial parks or job training centers.

In Laredo, on the Rio Grande border with Mexico, Laredo Air Force Base finally closed permanently in September 1973. But retired Col. Gaillard R. Peck, who was wing commander at the base from 1963 to 1965, now works as a civilian in the same office from which he issued orders more than a dozen years ago.

"I've even got the same desk and the same secretary as when I was wing commander," Peck said in a telephone interview recently. He is now aviation advisor for the city of Laredo and director of Laredo International Airport.

The Air Force turned the Laredo base over to the General Services Administration which turned it over to the city. Last year, the city completed the move of its airport facility to the old air base.

Vying with Laredo for biggest airport in a small city is Big Spring, which is taking over Webb Air Force Base later this year. Col. Harry Spannaus, who retired Jan. 1 this year as wing commander at Webb, is now the Big Spring airport manager.

Spannaus and his office already have attracted 10 companies to locate in vacant military buildings that are becoming part of an industrial park around the soon-to-be city airport.

Big Spring will close its Howard County Airport later this year when it moves to Webb, which only a few years ago still had 1,500 active military personnel on base. Now only a caretaker force is there and it will leave later this year. The companies now in the new industrial park will hire about 120 civilians.

When the Air Force said it would close the Laredo base, there was much worry over what it would do to the local economy. But Gaillard said the effect of the closing was offset by the discovery of oil and natural gas in the area. The petroleum find brought in new jobs and businesses that blunted the economic loss of the base closing.

Even Childress Army Air Field, changed as it is, still plays an active role in the local economy. The city took over the land after the war and in 1969, Lancer Homes opened a plant on the old base property and today employs about 325 workers to build mobile and modular homes. A few of the surviving buildings are still in use by the Federal Aviation Administration and the Rock Island Railroad.

But Childress itself is much the same today as it was during the heyday of its nearby air training field.

"It hasn't changed a bit. There were a few new buildings and old ones were there, some doing business and others vacant," observed Atwater, now chief photographer for the Nevada-State Highway Department in Carson City.

But Atwater needed an aerial photo of the Childress air field to find his way among the base's remains. He found only the foundations of his barracks, orderly room, day room and squadron latrine.

Atwater's old mess hall was reduced to a giant slab of broken cement and a pile of bricks that was the chimney. "Only a foundation existed where the base headquarters building once stood."

"It was a good base and served its purpose well," he said.

Atwater, who came to Childress from a farm outside Bennett, Colo., chuckled at some of his memories. The Eastern boys, he recalled, "complained bitterly about the flat desolate area and nothing in Texas would ever compare to one square inch of Brooklyn."

Childress, during those years, reaped the benefits of GI payments, when the soldiers hadn't already lost their earnings in one of the frequent latrine dice games.

Atwater and some of his buddies would hitchhike to nearby Quanah, Paducah, Wellington or Memphis. Or, they skipped across the border into Oklahoma, where they could buy beer. Much of Texas was "dry" then.

"There was no surplus of soldiers in those other towns and plenty of girls to go around," he remembered.

In early 1944, Atwater was transferred to gunnery school at Harlingen Air Field before being shipped to Calcutta, India, for the remainder of World War II.

The bases at Childress, Laredo, Big Spring — like others across Texas — were products of a massive effort to train air crews at the outset of the war.

In peacetime 1937, only 187 pilots were trained at two bases, Kelly Field and Randolph Field, both in San Antonio, and both still Air Force installations.

By 1942, five years later, the military strained to crank out 80,000 new pilots at 375 airfields across the nation, most in the South and Southwest, and many in Texas.

The late Gen. H.H. "Hap" Arnold, considered the father of the modern Air Force, recalled those frantic days:

"It was not unusual to find a training field with dozens of planes flying above it, bulldozers on the ground finishing earthwork, cement mixers turning out concrete for runways yet to be built and men in the open clearing brush off what had been grazing land."

To pastures and brush country across Texas, contractors hurried to build bases.

Records at Air Training Command headquarters at Randolph Air Force Base show that in 1943 there were training fields in or around nearly two dozen Texas towns. They included Sherman, Waco, Eagle Pass, Mission, Victoria, Houston, Amarillo, Lubbock, Pampa, Del Rio, Big Spring, Midland, San Angelo, Fort Worth, Harlingen, San Marcos and Sweetwater.

Some of the old bases have survived as military installations. Pilots still learn to fly B-52 bombers at Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth. Laughlin Air Force Base in Del Rio still gives pilot instruction, as does Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock. The Eagle Pass base is still used for instrument flight training.

Some airfields closed after World War II but were reactivated for the Korean War, and again for the Vietnam War. Laredo was one of these.

In Amarillo, the air base became part of the municipal airport which had adjoined it. The Midland field is now a regional airport for Midland and Odessa.

The Harlingen field is home for the Marine Military Academy. Gary Field at San Marcos is the site of the Gary Job Corps Center.

"Rattlesnake Air Base" was the nickname given Poyote Army Air Field west of Monahan by the pilots who learned to fly the big B-17 "Flying Fortress" bombers there during World War II. The nickname's source should be apparent. After the war, the Air Force mothballed some of its bomber fleet at Poyote, including the famous Enola Gay, the B-29 that dropped the first atomic bomb on Japan in 1945. But the bombers are gone today and the West Texas Children's Home occupies the base area.

Many old air bases haven't really died. Like caterpillars that become butterflies, they live on today in new ways.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — My son's teacher called last week to complain about his behavior in the cafeteria.

He is 7 years old and cannot sit at a table with other children and talk while he eats. Some days he eats in silence and other days he talks but seems to forget about his food.

I feel it's my fault because he and I have always watched television while we eat dinner. He probably doesn't know how to socialize during a meal.

I was afraid it would have a bad effect on him but the routine started years ago when my husband worked late every night and continued after our divorce.

However, I must admit it is not all my husband's fault. I do remember feeling relieved when he told me about his late working hours.

I think mealtime had always been terrible for me as a child and I was afraid our family would also start using the table as an arena for fighting. The television and only one adult seemed to guarantee no conflict.

My son and I don't fight. Of course, we don't talk much either except to comment on various programs. With my fears about fighting at meals, is there any way I can help my son act better in the cafeteria at school?

consistency. If you are particularly uneasy on any one evening, take your son to an inexpensive restaurant that does not have a TV.

3. Never choose dinner time to harp on your son's faults. He will be anxious to turn on the television again if he discovers it has been protecting him from a barrage of criticism.

This will be a difficult transition. But after a few weeks, you and your son may even find yourselves looking forward to dinner time as a respite from a chaotic day.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

My extensive experience in school cafeterias (as a class mother assigned to keep order) moves me to commend your son for managing to either talk or eat in such a chaotic atmosphere.

The noise level usually makes screaming the order of the day and screaming almost insures indigestion.

Why not visit the cafeteria during lunch before you decide to make big changes in your life based on the teacher's report?

However, even if you see no problems with your son's behavior at school, you may want to do something about the TV dinner problem. It will help both you and your son enjoy mealtimes in the future.

The only solution is to turn off the television during dinner. The following guidelines will help reduce the withdrawal symptoms:

1. Tell your son about the plan one or two nights before you put it into effect. Present it as a positive step toward becoming an adult.
2. Do not waver in your

News watch

BOSTON (AP) — A shy citizen will be $5,000 richer for returning a 19th Century painting that was missing for two weeks after apparently falling from the back of a truck. The FBI said the citizen, who requested anonymity, would get the reward from the owners, Lano Associates of New York.

Whoever he is, he found the 15-pound wooden case containing the $50,000 painting — Fitzhugh Lane's "Brace's Rock" — on a road in East Boston. The driver of the delivery truck first noticed the crate missing when he halted to pay a toll on the way from Logan Airport two weeks ago.

NEW YORK (AP) — Japan wants to borrow a 92-foot U.S. Atlas rocket, and is going to fix it up in return. The rocket is being sent from a park in Queens, where it's been since the 1964-65 World's Fair, to Tokyo for a space science exposition.

But the rocket has an 18-inch hole in the side, the result of an explosion set by a vandal. In exchange for the use of the rocket, the Japanese agreed to fix it.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Two measures aimed at blocking a march by neo-Nazis next month in the heavily Jewish Chicago suburb of Skokie, have been approved by the Illinois Senate.

A "group defamation" bill, which passed 44-10, would bar public demonstrations which defame groups' racial or religious characteristics or which could lead to riots. A measure that would bar public demonstrations by groups organized to use physical force for political ends passed 40-14.

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The collapse of the Teton Dam in Eastern Idaho two years ago was caused by negligence by the Bureau of Reclamation, three insurance companies claim in lawsuits. They want to recover about $2 million paid in claims to victims of the disaster.

The suits were filed in federal court in Boise. Teton Dam, which was being filled by the reclamation bureau for the first time in a farming area of Eastern Idaho, collapsed June 5, 1976, and the resulting flood devastated a widespread area of Eastern Idaho, claiming 11 lives. Damages were estimated at $400 million.

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — More than 1,000 construction workers who are laboring on the Seabrook nuclear plant rallied at the New Hampshire Statehouse to support continued construction.

The rally was organized by the state Building and Construction Trades Council to oppose a House-passed bill which would undercut financing for the plant. Gov. Meldrim Thomson received thunderous applause when he pledged to veto the bill, which would stop utilities from charging customers for the plant until it is finished.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department says there is no reason to open a new probe of the death of William C. Sullivan, a former assistant FBI director who was killed in a hunting accident last year.

An activist lawyer William Kunstler asked for the probe, saying there was "ample motive" to kill Sullivan because he was a key figure in several federal investigations. But Justice Department spokesman Terence Adamson says "the person responsible for the shooting has acknowledged it and the physical evidence substantiates his account."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Replacement parts are being shipped to hospitals that use heart pumps recalled by the Food and Drug Administration because they were defective.

The company that made the AVCO "intra-aortic Balloon Pump" model 10 says the problem may have been computer components "counterfeited" by other companies. Most of the defective machines in the United States have been fixed and replacement parts are being shipped to Europe and elsewhere.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayors around the country are signing up for a weeklong, $495 tour of Cuba.

The trip is being organized by the U.S. Conference of Mayors, which last sent a delegation of mayors to Cuba in 1969, before Fidel Castro came to power. So far, 42 persons have signed up for the tour, which will leave Atlanta on a chartered jetliner which can carry 100 passengers.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former South Korean Ambassador Kim Dong Jo apparently won't be forced to testify under oath before the House ethics committee.

The House rejected on Wednesday an appeal from special counsel Leon Jaworski that pressure be put on the South Korean government by threatening to reduce aid. Jaworski wants the former diplomat to discuss whether he gave any congressmen envelopes stuffed with $100 bills. But he says so far the former ambassador has only talked with committee members by telephone, and not under oath.

Fight on plane sales expected

WASHINGTON — Senior members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee say President Carter's promise to sell 20 extra warplanes to Israel will not stop a bruising floor fight by critics of his proposed Mideast jet plane sale.

On the eve of today's committee vote on the issue, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and others said a divisive fight now is inevitable, in part because the Carter compromise did not produce the consensus once expected.

Church also said that a close reading of arms sale law shows that opponents of the sales can kill the deal on the Senate floor even if the committee refuses to adopt a disapproval resolution.

To kill the deal — which also includes sales to Egypt and Saudi Arabia — both the House and the Senate must adopt rejection resolutions by May 28.

Church said the assumption that the sale would go forward if the committee failed to adopt a resolution is incorrect because the law permits members to call for rejection on the floor despite committee inaction.

Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis. and Robert Dole, R-Kan. say they are prepared to call for such resolutions.

In addition to the commitment to sell Israel the additional planes in the mid-1980s, the administration promised to give sympathetic consideration to future Israeli requests for planes.

It also issued a series of assurances to increase confidence that Saudi Arabia will never use the planes to attack Israel.

The original Carter proposal called for selling 15 F-15s and 75 F-16s to Israel, 60 F-15s to Saudi Arabia and 50 less advanced F-5Es to Egypt.

Selling Israel the 20 extra F-15s will bring the Israeli and Saudi Arabian F-15 fleets to 60 each.

Although administration officials described Carter's compromise as his last, some senators, including Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., said they hope more concessions are forthcoming.

He said he believes the administration should adjust the sales totals to match estimates of defense needs originally issued by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

That would mean adding 75 F-16s to the Israeli sale and subtracting 20 F-15s from the planes to be sold to Saudi Arabia.

Key House opponents of the Carter deal also said the compromise offer is insufficient to allay their fears of a possible Saudi threat to Israeli security.

But Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House International Relations Committee, said the real issue is the proposal arouses so many emotions that few members want to go on record as voting on it.

Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., the Republican leader, had been a principal negotiator in the process that saw the Carter compromise become a reality after it was suggested by former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"I think the last thing we need in the Senate right now is a knock-out, drag-out fight on this subject and I think there ought to be a way to avoid it," Baker said.

But he said he sees nothing that might serve as the basis of an acceptable compromise and consequently is stepping aside as a negotiator. "I tried to be a peacemaker and failed," Baker said.

One member who was convinced by the administration offer was Sen. Muriel Humphrey, D-Minn. "I'm going to go along with the administration," she said.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., called the Carter-Kissinger approach to compromise "fair and reasonable."

But Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., said that no number of additional planes for Israel can win his support for the sales plan because, "I do not believe added arms enhance peace."

Meanwhile, a new Associated Press-NBC News poll shows that 59 percent — nearly three out of five — Americans oppose the Mideast jet sale in particular and U.S. arms sales overseas in general. The poll, taken early this month, shows identical results on the Mideast package to a March survey while indicating the overall American objection to arms sales abroad has jumped from 47 percent in March to the current 59 percent.

Garage sale to help young accident victim

Sue Maxwell, 17-year-old car accident victim, needs donations.

Epsilon Psi, a new chapter of ESA, is helping Miss Maxwell and her family, 809 Bradley, with collections and a garage sale. The sale is set for June 2 and 3 at 312 S. Cuyler.

Bill hopes to draw aliens from hiding

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter Administration believes that millions of illegal aliens will come out of hiding and register with the government if the president's proposed Alien Adjustment and Employment Act becomes law.

Included in the controversial proposal is a provision that calls for establishment of a temporary resident alien status for any alien that entered the country illegally after 1976. The alien could remain "temporary" for a maximum of five years.

"While the bill does not specify what will happen to the temporary resident aliens after the five-year period, this is not intended merely as a postponement of a major decision; rather it is a part of a step-by-step approach to a major social problem," said Attorney General Griffin B. Bell during testimony Wednesday before the Senate committee considering the bill.

"The important underlying question that must be answered is whether, once the facts are presented, the undocumented aliens will decide that it is worthwhile to come out of hiding," Bell continued. "We believe that they will because the advantages of the temporary status so outweigh the disadvantages. The most important advantage is the right to live and work in the United States without fear of apprehension by the authorities and without being easy targets for exploitation by unscrupulous employers or landlords."

The attorney general also pointed out that the administration's plan also calls for adjustment of revenue sharing formulas to account for the impact of temporary alien residents on state and local governmental services.

Bell and Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher testified before a Senate Judiciary Committee session concerning the bill proposed by President Carter in August 1977.

The bill was introduced in the Senate by four Democrats, including Judiciary Committee Chairman James O. Eastland of Mississippi. At the conclusion of Bell's testimony, Eastland invited the attorney general to return to answer questions "when more members of the committee are present." Eastland and another sponsor of the bill, Dennis DeConcini of Arizona, were the only members of the 17-senator committee present during Bell's testimony.

Some of the bill's other controversial measures include sanctions against employers who hire undocumented workers and amnesty for illegals who entered the country prior to January 1977.

Bell stressed "the need to move forward now to come to grips with the difficult and complex social problems associated with massive illegal immigration."

"It is also argued that the problem of illegal immigration is too controversial, that we will never be able to agree as a government and as a people on what the proper solution should be," Bell added. "I disagree because I have great faith in the ability of Americans to achieve political and social progress through creative compromise. The administration's proposals have been offered as a means of opening the dialogue with the Congress and with the public."

"Some may say that not enough is known about illegal immigration to make policy decisions... and, while the exact dimensions of the (illegal alien) population are not known, it is clear what the impacts of this population are," he continued. "Thus, steps must be taken to do something about the problem of undocumented aliens irrespective of whether 2.5 million or 5.2 million are in the nation."

"The important fact is that the problem is significant and growing and the forces which cause it are not going to disappear in the foreseeable future."

In responding to the most common criticisms of the proposed bill, Bell said the temporary alien resident concept "is practicable and that the rationale behind it is sound. It is also necessary. I might add, because it is the only way to get the people (illegals) to come out and register."

Bell also said there is "no magic" in the Jan. 1, 1977 amnesty date. "It is an attempt to meet legitimate humanitarian and practical concerns without creating incentives for increased migration, which a complete amnesty most surely would do."

Christopher said the State Department had contacted officials in countries that contribute most to the illegal alien problem in the United States. He mentioned four specific meetings with officials in Mexico and, when asked by DeConcini if he believed Mexico was cooperating on a "reluctant basis," Christopher replied: "I take (Mexican President Luis) Portillo at his word when he says they want to export their products, not their workers."

Law would simplify language

WASHINGTON (AP) — A greatly simplified truth-in-lending law, which would tell borrowers in plain language what they're paying for a loan, faces an uncertain future in the House.

The bill passed the Senate Wednesday on a voice vote with only Jake Garn, R-Utah, voting against it.

Similar bills have been introduced in the House, but no hearings have been held, clouding chances for the legislation becoming law this year.

The measure would simplify requirements of the 1968 Truth in Lending Act, which required creditors to reveal exactly what their credit terms were.

But consumers said the disclosures, designed to help them shop around for the cheapest loan, were too long and difficult to understand. The disclosures now often are clothed in the legal language of a contract.

Meanwhile, creditors also were complaining about the law, saying they had trouble keeping up with administrative and judicial interpretations of the act. Small businesses often have to hire lawyers to draft disclosure statements under the current law.

Before passing on the latest bill, a Senate banking subcommittee heard testimony from psychologists who said the disclosure statements now given to consumers are ineffective because there is too much data.

As an example of the simplification that would be required under the bill, a car buyer would no longer be told the cash price, down payment and unpaid balance of the cash price. Instead, the buyer would be told only the "amount financed."

In addition, the bill would require that credit disclosures be separate from contract terms, making it easier to find them.

Another change would put descriptive phrases on the statements to explain them to consumers. For example, the "finance charge" would be accompanied by the explanation, "this is the amount the credit will cost you."

HOUSTON (AP) — Mayor Jim McConn granted broad emergency curfew powers from the city council, has vowed to get tough with demonstrators who cause disturbances.

McConn also said Wednesday he is planning widespread improvements for a northside Mexican-American community which was the site of disturbances earlier this week.

The mayor made the announcement after councilmen endorsed an ordinance insuring his authority to order streets and parks cleared for prevention of further violence.

Police officials said they have finished filing charges against persons arrested in connection with the incidents.

Of the 53 persons arrested during the violence Sunday, Monday and early Tuesday, 34 adults were charged with varying offenses, nine adults were released with no charges filed and 11 juveniles were referred to juvenile courts on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to arson.

Charges against adults included aggravated assault on a police officer, starting a riot, arson and disorderly conduct.

Several residents said the blame for the trouble should be placed on Travis Morales and his group called "People United to Fight Police Brutality."

Morales said he was not responsible for the violence and filed a million-dollar lawsuit Wednesday against State Rep. Ben Reyes, D-Houston, who was quoted as saying Morales was responsible for rampage that followed the outbreak of a fight in the park Sunday.

The $1,050,000 suit alleges Reyes made slanderous and defamatory remarks about Morales, including statements to the news-media, saying Morales had been in the neighborhood all day and used a public address system to urge members of the community to engage in unlawful acts.

The suit asks for actual damages of $350,000 and punitive damages of $700,000.

Reyes said he was not concerned with the suit, but added he had rather not comment until he had seen it.

At City Hall, Morales repeated his comments that police injured in the fracas received "what they deserved" but he refused to answer Councilman Jim Westmoreland's question about what role, if any, he played in the disturbance.

Morales called for the dismissal of all charges against anyone arrested in the disturbances and said police should stay out of the troubled area.

McConn said he and his staff are working to make the park safer with lighting and increased patrols. Also planned are renovations like ballfield improvements and drinking fountains.

About $70,000 may be available for security lighting in the Irvington Village housing project near the park.

Rioters protest Iran Shah

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Troops firing tear gas and bullets into the air routed thousands of demonstrators shouting "Down With The Shah!" on Tehran's main street today, the third day of anti-government protests in Iran.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi postponed his visit to Hungary and Bulgaria four days, and an informed source said he took personal command of a special headquarters set up to prevent "unnecessary bloodshed."

There were no reports of casualties in the latest demonstration. But at least nine persons have been killed in riots in the holy city of Qum, Tabriz and 32 other cities and towns since Tuesday, scores have been injured, and millions of dollars worth of public property has been damaged.

The troops opened fire today when the mob defied orders to halt and began marching toward the telecommunications building on Nasser-Khosrow Street. There also were reports of shooting on Cyrus Street, east of the Tehran bazaar.

The demonstrators had listened to two hours of anti-government speeches in the Jome Mosque in the heart of the troop-ringed bazaar before taking to the streets.

The official reason for the postponement of the departure of the Shah and Empress Farah for Hungary and Bulgaria was that the Shah had a "cold." They were to have left Friday.

The government also postponed the presentation today of credentials by the Venezuelan, New Zealand and North Korean ambassadors to the monarch.

Incited by ultra-conservative Moslem religious leaders, the mobs are demanding that the government return mosque lands leased to farmers under the Shah's land reform program, close liquor stores and movie theaters, and roll back reforms allowing women into colleges and to appear without veils in public.

The riots erupted in answer to a call by the religious leaders, or mullahs, for demonstrations in commemoration of persons killed in anti-government riots 40 days before. The 40th day after is a traditional day of mourning.

The action followed pleas from residents of the area for protection and services, and their condemnation of alleged organizers of the disruptions.

The mayor called the ordinance a safeguard and said it would be used only if authorities had reliable information that violence was planned or if future disturbances erupted.

He said his comments about lifting restraints on police officers did not mean they would become "uncontrolled" but would move in swiftly to prevent looting or vandalism

CATARINA, Texas (AP) — Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he will support Attorney General John Hill in the November general election against Republican Bill Clements of Dallas. The Dallas Times Herald reported today.

In a copyright story, Briscoe told the newspaper in an interview at his South Texas ranch here that he will support Hill because "I was born a Democrat and I'll die a Democrat."

Briscoe, who lost the Democratic Party's gubernatorial nomination in last Saturday's primary election to Hill, also said he will remain active in politics and may again run for governor someday.

There have been reports indicating that Clements wants to meet with Briscoe, reportedly to seek Briscoe's support against Hill.

Of his future plans concerning politics and another possible attempt to return to the governor's mansion, Briscoe said "I don't have any plans but I certainly don't want to close the door (on politics). I'm not going to foreclose on anything in the future."

Briscoe declined in the interview to discuss at length the election or to speculate on what caused his defeat.

Briscoe says he'll support Hill

Crawford fined $100

Brunetta Lynn Crawford, 20, pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor charge of credit card abuse and was placed on six months probation and fined $100 Tuesday in Judge Grainger McLihany's 31st District Court.

Kirvin Roper, investigator for district attorney Harold Comer, said she had been charged with a felony offense but that charge was dropped to a misdemeanor.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

May 12, 1978

The pace will pick up considerably this coming year, and you're apt to have a very active schedule to contend with. Many short jaunts purely for pleasure are likely.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20) Someone who enjoys taking pot shots at others may aim a few barbs your way today. The results will be as ineffective as a popgun trying to sink a battleship. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20) A friend who has a tough time opening his wallet may be embarrassed today when others compare your generous nature to his.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22) At social gatherings today, be very cautious about revealing secrets of your trade. Your words could get back to competitors.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22) Good deeds today should be kept between you and the person you help. Tooting your own horn tends to lessen your noble purpose.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) Even what might be considered a small investment in a new venture should be weighed carefully before you write the check. You're sharp today, but not at business.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 23) In joint ventures today, don't delegate the minor role to yourself. Modesty could do you and your partner a disservice.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22) You have a way of dealing with others today that will produce mutually beneficial results. You magnify their virtues and minimize their faults.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 21) Business situations look very promising for you today, provided you're prudent. Risky moves will lessen the possibilities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) Outside of your household you're hail-fellow-well-met and an enjoyable person to be around. At home you're a trifle hard to please.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) You're a solid producer today as long as you don't have anyone looking over your shoulder. Perform your tasks away from straw bosses.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - March 20) Accept graciously favors from others today. They want to help; they don't want to make you feel obligated.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) In inconsequential areas you're apt to bungle things a bit today. Where the stakes are significant you'll perform heroically.

Sixers dream, Bullets doze

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers talked about dreams and positive thinking and tempo and crowd encouragement, but they are still in the National Basketball Association playoffs today because of an unbending defense.

The 76ers, often referred to as the best team money can buy, stuck with their money players Wednesday night and it paid off with a 107-94 victory over the Washington Bullets.

Philadelphia got the job done with Julius "Dr. J." Erving, Doug Collins, Caldwell Jones and Henry Bibby, not only putting the ball in the hoop, but stripping the Bullets of their high-scoring offense.

The best-of-seven series is headed back to Landover, Md., for a sixth game Friday night with the Bullets leading 3-2, but the 76ers confidently are selling tickets for a seventh game here Sunday.

Washington Coach Dick Motta insists there won't be any seventh game, however.

"I still like our odds," said Motta. "I'd hate to be down 3-2 against them and coming up here for the sixth game. They ran us tonight, but I still think we're the better team."

Collins and Erving led the 76ers' fast-break offense in staving off elimination from the playoffs. And 7-foot-1 center Caldwell Jones and Erving did the defensive jobs on the Bullets' two big guns, Elvin Hayes and Bob Dandridge.

scored 24 points. Jones shut down Hayes, who had averaged 26.3 in the first four games, with just four field goals. Hayes got but 13 shots. And Erving turned on his all his court magic to bottle Dandridge with just 12 points. Dandridge had been averaging 24.3 in the series.

Coach Billy Cunningham of the 76ers said the name of the victory was defense. "We communicated beautifully on defense and that's where it all stems from," Cunningham said. The offense was generated by the defense. And we're going to do the same thing Friday.

Bibby handed out 10 assists, scored 10 points, and held Kevin Grevey in check. Grevey wound up with 17, but most of those came in the final period when the game already was out of hand.

Collins revealed the team had undergone a 15-minute lecture Wednesday on the theory of positive thinking.

The lecture was delivered by Bill Glass, a former end for the National Football League's Cleveland Browns.

"He (Glass) talked to us about... picturing ourselves being successful," Collins said. "In my case I walked around picturing myself making my shots. The key is to think positive. So, all day I was dreaming, just sat around and dreamed about the ball swishing, and it worked."

Borg, Gerulaitis in semifinals

DALLAS (AP) — Vitas Gerulaitis intends to beat Bjorn Borg if it's the last thing he ever does. And at the rate he's going — eight losses in eight matches — it might be.

"I'll never give up. If I've got to play the guy in the — damned seniors until I'm 80, I'm gonna beat this guy — if it's the last thing I ever do," Gerulaitis quipped Wednesday night after he dispatched Raul Ramirez to set up a semifinal showdown with the top-seeded Borg in the World Championship of Tennis Finals.

"If I have to invite him over to my house when I'm 95 and get him out of a wheelchair, I'm going to beat the guy. If someone asks me how long I'm going to play tennis — until I beat Borg."

Gerulaitis' hawking play at the net overcame 14 double faults Wednesday night for his easy 6-1, 2-6, 6-2, 6-1 victory over Ramirez.

Borg, meanwhile, won the last 12 games en route to reeling off a 4-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-0 quarter-final victory Tuesday night over Dick Stockton. Borg, seeking his second WCT title, meets Gerulaitis on Friday night.

The 23-year-old New Yorker was the point-leader this year among the WCT's elite eight finalists, but Borg was selected the tournament's No. 1 seed because of his higher world ranking.

Sonics boom

By TONY BAKER
AP Sports Writer
SEATTLE (AP) — Calm, cool, collected — and hungry. That's the Seattle Super-Sonics.

"This team shows it's a good team every time it gets out on the court," said a smiling Coach Lenny Wilkens after his Sonics rode the fourth-period shooting of Fred Brown and John Johnson and the intimidating defense of Marvin Webster to a 105-91 victory over the Denver Nuggets Wednesday night.

The triumph before a roaring Coliseum sellout crowd of 14,098 was the Sonics' second straight over the Nuggets and gave them a 2-1 lead in their National Basketball Association playoff series.

Game 4 of the best-of-seven Western Conference championship series is set for Friday night in Seattle.

The Sonics put a defensive collar on David Thompson, Denver's high-scoring guard, when the game was close in the third period, then easily shook off Nugget threats down the stretch for their 18th straight victory at home, including six in the playoffs.

"I felt we kept our poise very well," said Wilkens. "We lost it a couple of times, but we called time out and got it right back. Our poise comes from the whole season and every game having been a big game for us."

Denver, which trailed by as many as 13 points early in the third period, closed to 77-74 at the end of the quarter on a Mack Calvin jumper. But Johnson rammed home a 10-footer and Brown followed with a 25-footer for a seven-point Seattle lead.

Bobby Wilkerson and rookie Anthony Roberts countered with baskets for Denver to pull the Nuggets within three points again with 8:36 remaining. But that was as close as they got the rest of the way.

Brown pumped in 11 of his 17 points in the final period and Johnson scored 10 of his 20 points in the final 12 minutes.

"Freddie had a great game. He had some great shots," said Larry Brown, Denver's coach. "Seattle deserves credit for the win. They kept their poise and kept coming back."

Rangers' Cleveland stops Brewer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The last thing Billy Brewer needed was another Milwaukee Brewer's home run, so when the pressure mounted Wednesday night the Texas manager bypassed Ranger relief ace Len Barker in favor of rusting Reggie Cleveland.

The Brewers belted three more homers, boosting their American League-leading total to 39. However, all three were with the bases empty, and the Rangers parlayed a two-run homer by Bump Wills, a two-run double by Al Oliver and Cleveland's clutch relief pitching into a 4-3 victory, their 11th in 14 games.

Winner Doyle Alexander (3-1) gave up rookie Paul Molitor's third homer leading off the Brewer first, Sal Bando's fourth homer in the sixth and Sixto Lezcano's fifth homer with one out in the seventh.

Cleveland relieved after Gorman Thomas walked following Lezcano's homer. Pinch-hitter Jim Gantner singled with two out, but centerfielder Juan Beniquez threw out Thomas trying to advance to third, and Cleveland went on to earn his first save with 2 2-3 innings of two hit, four strikeout relief.

"Gorman just outstayed on that play," Brewer manager George Bamberger said. "I think he paused at second base and then made his move. You should never be thrown out at third with two outs."

Cleveland, normally a starter or long relief pitcher, said he was surprised Hunter had called on him in a tight short relief situation.

"Len Barker will usually get the call in that situation," Cleveland said. "I hadn't pitched in 12 days, and I think Billy was trying to get everyone in the ball game. You can't let a pitcher sit down for two or three weeks and have him sharp."

"It depends on the ball club he goes in against and the types of hitters he's going to face," Hunter said. "Barker can throw a hard fast ball, but Milwaukee is a good fast ball hitting club, and I didn't want them laying back looking for fast balls."

"They already had put three fast balls in the seats, and I didn't want that again," he said. "That's why I went to Reggie. Reggie is a good breaking ball pitcher. He has a good slider and curve."

Losers Lary Sorensen (3-3) allowed only five hits, but was hurt by two of his four walks.

He walked Mike Hargrove with two out in the third, and Wills lined his second homer just inside the right field line. A walk to Toby Harrah, a fielder's choice, a single by Wills and Oliver's two-run double off the right centerfield wall scored the Rangers' other runs in the fifth.

"Alexander gave up three good pitches and didn't hurt himself," Sorensen, 22, said. "Maybe that's experience."

Soviets falter

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Indiana's High School all-stars held off a last-minute surge behind Ted Kitchel's two free throws with 15 seconds left to defeat a visiting Soviet junior team 91-87.

The 3,000 fans at Lafayette Jefferson High School's gym saw the Hoosiers come back from a poor start to win the game played by intentional rules.

The Hoosiers quickly fell behind in the first half, 29-14, after 10 minutes of play. The Indiana second unit came in and battled back to within three points of the Russians, 48-45, at the half.

With 39 seconds left in the game, the Russians drew to within two points of the Hoosiers, 87-89. But Kitchel's free throws iced the game for Indiana.

Top golfers to play Colonial

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Ben Crenshaw returned to the scene of his most bizarre conquest today to defend his title in the $200,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

"I really feel pretty good about it," the slender little Texan grinned as he led a field of 102 on the first of a four-day siege across the treacherous Trinity River battleground.

"I'm playing much better than a year ago," he laughed, recalling the madcap 1977 adventure in which he scrambled riotously but relentlessly to a winning 8-under-par 72-hole total of 292.

"I was just telling Lee (Trevino) the way I won here last year was by hitting all the fairways and all the greens," Crenshaw deadpanned.

Gentle Ben hit on occasional fairways and even fewer greens en route to the 1977 crown and emerged from the woods to sheepishly announce: "I felt like someone grabbed me by the hand and led me from the wilderness."

Crenshaw, a non-winner this year, ranks 14th among the current money winners with $65,478 and collected much of that as runner-up to Tom Watson in the Crosby.

Watson and Gary Player, both triple winners this year, headline a Colonial field that also includes double winner Hubert Green and the 1976 Colonial kingpin, Trevino.

Secret ballots ruled illegal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The use of a secret ballot at a public meeting is against the law, Attorney General John Hill said today.

"The question was raised by Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena. Hill said Brooks had indicated that school trustees had met recently in an open session and elected one of its officers by secret ballot.

Hill did not say who the trustees were.

He said at least four states have "reached the conclusion that a secret ballot violates a statute requiring open meetings of governmental bodies."

"The (Texas) Open Meetings Act is designed to insure that decisions of public bodies are reached openly and that the public can observe the actions of their representatives," Hill said in an official opinion.

"The secret ballot, when used to protect citizens when choosing their representatives, is a hallmark of the democratic system of government; but, when it is used to conceal a public official's vote, it violates the fundamental tenet of an elected or appointed official's ultimate accountability to the electorate," Hill said.

"We believe," he added, "it is the antithesis of the requirements of the Texas Open Meetings Act. Thus, it is our opinion that the Open Meetings Act prohibits the use of secret ballots in meetings of governmental bodies."
