The arched window in Pampa's Post Office, together with the lavish metalwork grill, becomes a study in contrast and history to the curious. The arch was a monumental step in science when it was discovered by Roman mathematicians, altering man's architecture and perceptions. The style of the metalwork was from a more recent time, when artisans sought to glorify their work with designs considered pleasing to the eye.

Pioneer Natural seeks base rate price increase

Officials of 65 cities served by Pioneer Natural Gas Co., including Pampa and Panhandle, have been notified that the firm is applying for an increase in its base rate for gas service.

In his letter to the cities, K.B. Watson of Amarillo, company president, said, "As you are probably aware, Pioneer's last base rate increase became effective during 1970, based on recommendations of the company and a committee of city representatives."

Watson continued by noting, "Since that time, in spite of the increased cost of gas to the consumer, the company's rate of return has decreased substantially due to many factors and an increase in the base rate is now essential."

The Pioneer official pointed out that the increase in the customer's cost of gas during the past several years has come about by the "cost-of-gas adjustment, an adjustment that is designed to pass the increased cost of gas in the field directly through to the consumer."

Watson continued, "Pioneer does not retain any of the increased cost of gas and does, in fact, fail to recover much of the increase because of several items not recovered in the cost-of-gas adjustment."

Pioneer has not specified the new rates needed in this initial request to the cities and said the application will be supplemented later.

The gas firm has retained H. Zinder and Associates Inc., utility consultants. The gas firm has retained H. Zinder and Associates Inc., utility consultants, to assist in the study currently being made to determine the appropriate amount of the deficiency in gas service revenue at Pioneer.

Watson said that a preliminary draft of a report of the studies made by the consultants indicates the current value of the properties used to serve the West Texas distribution systems is in excess of $178 million, in addition to the value of properties used to serve irrigation and other rural customers.

Mondale's visit to Israel demonstrates commitment

Commissioners Court meeting Saturday

The Gray County Commissioners' Court will meet Saturday at 9 a.m. in the county court room.

The agenda for the meeting includes the approval of the Metropolitan Ambulance contract. The contract was approved earlier by the city and now needs only the approval of the county commission. The contract involves a subsidy rate increase from $1,600 to $1,900. This subsidy increase has already been approved by the city. Metropolitan Ambulance is also asking for a base rate increase of 50 percent.

The Blue Cross-Blue Shield rate increase will also be discussed at the meeting. Judge Don Hinton said that the rate increase will be for the county employees and their families. He said that during this past year there had been a large amount of illness and the pay-outs were becoming larger than the pay-ins.

During the eight years since the last base rate increase, cost of providing gas service has increased tremendously, Watson said.

Budget forms will also be passed out to the heads of the various departments. The departments will have a chance to work out their 1979 budgets and submit them to the board at a later date.

The final item on the agenda deals with the McLean Creek. Hinton said that some streams are classified as navigable, and other streams that don't have to be classified.

Ford, his comments applauded half a dozen times, said the African problem "will grow larger and larger in the years ahead and it is time we face that fact."

Security here was tight following a bomb explosion in a Jerusalem market Thursday that killed two persons and wounded 47. Mayor Teddy Kollek said he believed the bombing, which the Palestine Liberation Organization said it was responsible for, was linked to the vice president's visit.

U.S. pressure on Prime Minister Menachem Begin to make concessions to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Begin's refusal to make any significant retreat have brought official American-Israeli relations to a low point, Mondale was sent out to assure the Israelis and at the same time appease the American Jewish community.

Begin's trip to the United States in March resulted only in tough talks with President Carter, and their meeting was considered a failure.

The United States was disappointed this month when Begin fended off American pressure for him to modify his position that the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip are Israeli territory and Israel is going to keep them.

Hospital board learns nurse pay scale is low

By KATHY BURR
Pampa News Staff

The present wage scale at Highland General Hospital and the introduction of a new telephone system were the main topics discussed at a special meeting of the Board of Managers of Highland General Hospital and McLean Hospitals last night.

Guy Hazlett, hospital administrator, presented a salary survey to the Board of Managers. The survey compared the present salaries at the hospital with salaries across the state of Texas.

Hazlett said that according to the survey, the nursing service at the hospital, which has the most employees, is the farthest behind on the pay scale. Hazlett told the board that the hospital is beginning to lose its nursing services to other hospitals. "We can't get anyone to apply for positions," said Hazlett. He added that at the present time the nursing care is adequate.

Hazlett made the recommendation to the board that a change should be made in the nurses wages before the increase in minimum wage goes into effect on January 1.

Hazlett added that many of the smaller hospitals in this area are paying good wages for their nurses.

Dr. M. C. Overton Jr., a member of the board, said that the hospital is going to have to find a way to raise the nurses wages. Overton cited the example of a young nurse that had just started at a wage nine cents lower than a nurse that had been working there for 10 years.

Overton said, "We're in desperate shape for more personnel. If we get one girl out of a nursing class, we're doing great, because the pay is better elsewhere."

Other doctors and members of the board also cited their concern for the present situation.

Hazlett also told the board that a labor union for nurses had been formed in the panhandle area, and that there was already one instance of approximately 250 nurses walking out. Hazlett said that his office had already ordered information to tell the employees about the other side of the labor union.

The board decided to study the situation and the recommendations that had been made, and table the discussion until the next regular meeting.

A second item of interest on last night's agenda dealt with introduction of a new telephone system for Highland General Hospital. The proposed new system was introduced to the board by Eli Anzaldua, a representative of Southwestern Bell from Amarillo.

Anzaldua pointed out that not many telephones can be added to the present system. Another major area of concern is inadequate access to the lines. With the present system many doctors are unable to get a line in or out of the hospital.

The present system is also in frequent need of repairs. Presently 15 trunks are available, but the new proposal recommends 30 trunks to solve the problem of getting adequate access to the lines.

Anzaldua said that the proposed new system would be a more flexible system with many repair calls being eliminated. If this system is adopted Anzaldua proposes that labor costs will also be reduced by the elimination of one and possibly two operators. Hazlett said this could mean a maximum saving of $26,000 a year.

Under the present system the hospital has approximately 120 patient telephones plus the phones that are needed for the administration. The hospital is presently paying approximately $490 a month for the patient telephones and only about one half of them are being used according to Hazlett.

The present system is costing the hospital $3,036.38 a month. The proposed system will cost the hospital $2,560 a month which represents a savings of $476.38. Over a one-year period the hospital would save $4,966, and over a ten year period the savings would add up to $46,303.60. The new system would have a first time installation charge of $10,862 and Anzaldua said half the amount could be spread over the ten year contract.

Anzaldua said that after the ten year contract is completed the monthly charge will go down to $1,862.

After the presentation by Anzaldua, a considerable amount of discussion centered around the expense of the first time installation charge.

Several members of the board felt that the installation charge was too high, and that the board should look at some other type of system. Discussion also centered around the number of trunks being proposed. Several board members felt that this number of trunks was in excess of what the hospital actually needed.

Hazlett suggested that the hospital take a survey to find out how many patients wanted a phone in their room. At the present time many of the patient phones are going unused and with a reduction in the number of phones being used, the hospital would be able to save some money on the present phone system. He also added that they do a type of study to find out how many trunks are actually needed.

Anzaldua said that the system he presented could be cut to any size, and that it was possible to find a system more in line with the hospital's thinking.

R. W. Sidwell, chairman of the board, said, "We know what the problem is, we just have to solve it."

In other action, the board voted to approve the payment of approximately $5,000 to the First National Bank. Hazlett said that during the first and third quarters of this month the hospital had been averaging approximately $6,700 a day. He added that their collections were down to $871,000 and through yesterday the hospital had received $141,000 in Medicare reimbursements for this month.

The board also approved a capital expenditure of $323.50 for the purchase of a slide file for the laboratory.

Another item on the agenda dealt with a $1,542.43 bad debt for McLean Hospital. When asked why this debt was showing up so late in the month Hazlett attributed it to "poor communications."

The board approved a motion to turn the bad debts over to a collection agency with the exception of the people on the list that were known by members of the board. Those will be billed one final time, before they are turned over to a collection agency.

Hazlett also presented the board with $427.81 bad Medicaid debt at Highland hospital. He said that this debt can not be turned over to a collection agency, and made a motion that this be charged against the bad debt allowance in their budget. The board approved this motion.

Hazlett said that the reason for the bad debt was that Medicaid had not been billed within the 180 day time allowance. He said that Medicaid would have paid for these bills had they received them within the proper time period.

Ford says . . .

All of Africa is Soviet goal

HOUSTON (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford, speaking to a business seminar of American and South African industrial leaders, has warned that the Soviet Union "wants all of Africa. It is their principal target and they will take over every nation if given the opportunity."

Ford later appeared at a joint news conference with Dallas oilman Bill Clements, the Republican nominee for governor in this traditionally Democratic state.

The South Africans and American businessmen conducted a closed-door meeting at The Woodlands resort area about 30 miles from Houston. The public relations firm sponsoring the seminar demanded that all newsmen be banned from the meetings and that no notes or tape recordings be made of Ford's luncheon speech.

Ford, his comments applauded half a dozen times, said the African problem "will grow larger and larger in the years ahead and it is time we face that fact."

"I don't think the thousands of Cubans and the Soviet aides in Africa indicate no interest in that continent. It appears our president and our secretary of state are trying to play both sides and that is not the way."

Ford said the Carter administration had weakened the position of the United States by junking the B-1 bomber and extending the B-52s.

Inflation continued at rapid pace in May

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation continued at a rapid pace in May as the cost of food, housing and transportation drove consumer prices up 0.9 percent, the Labor Department said today.

The increase matched the 0.9 percent rise in April, which had been the largest jump in more than a year. In the past three months, consumer prices have gone up at a rate that would average 11.3 percent if spread out over the entire year.

Food and beverages rose 1.5 percent in May, after climbing

1.8 percent in April and about 1.2 percent in each of the three previous months.

In a companion report, the Labor Department said the average worker's purchasing power declined 1.3 percent in May, the first drop since January. Employees increased their hourly earnings by 0.4 percent, but that was less than half of the 0.9 percent increase in prices.

More than one-third of the May food increase was attributed to a 6.3 percent rise in the price of fresh fruits and a 7.5 percent jump in the cost of fresh vegetables. Beef prices, which have moved up steadily since last August, increased 2.5 percent, well below the 6.6 percent gain in April.

Consumers spent 1 percent more in May on housing costs, about the same increase as in the previous two months. Charges for electricity rose 1.9 percent and natural-gas costs were up 1.5 percent.

The combined costs of homeowner taxes, financing and insurance rose 1.8 percent, slightly more than in previous months. The average tenant paid 0.7 percent more in rent.

Transportation costs climbed 0.7 percent after going up only 0.2 percent in each of the two previous months.

The Labor Department said the price of new automobiles went up 1.2 percent, the biggest rise this year. Many dealers increased their prices as the decline of the dollar made imported vehicles more expensive.

The cost of clothing rose 0.6 percent, a smaller increase than the 1 percent gains in March and April.

Medical care costs went up 0.6 percent in May, comparable to increases in other months. Entertainment costs rose 0.2 percent, an improvement over the 0.6 percent rise in April.

The back-to-back 0.9 percent increases were the largest since a 1 percent increase in February 1977 during severe winter weather. The inflation rate improved quickly later in 1977 but has continued at a high level into the summer this year.

In the past three months, food prices have gone up at an annual rate of 19.8 percent, while housing costs have climbed by 12 percent and transportation expenses have climbed by 4 percent.

Hogan's Hero star murdered

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Loud voices were heard sometime Thursday morning coming from actor Bob Crane's apartment, where the star of the television series "Hogan's Heroes" was later found bludgeoned to death. A piece of electrical cord was wrapped around his neck.

Police said although one neighbor reported hearing the voices, no one was seen leaving the apartment.

Investigators continued today to question neighbors, Crane's local acquaintances and people who worked with him in the play, "Beginner's Luck," which he had been appearing in at the Windmill Dinner Theater here since June 6.

The body of the 49-year-old Crane, clad in shorts and undershirt, was found curled beneath a sheet in the master bedroom of his ground-floor apartment, which he had been using while appearing in the play. He had been dead several hours, authorities said.

"Nothing seems to be missing, there was no forced entry," Lt. Ron Dean, who is heading the police investigation, told a news conference late Thursday. "So far no motive has been determined."

Police were checking to determine whether more keys to the apartment were available or whether Crane slept with the door unlocked.

Dean said Crane was struck twice with a blunt instrument. Dean said it appeared that one person committed the murder. "We have speculated that the killer either knew him or surprised him."

Dean said some fingerprints had been found in the room, but have not yet been identified.

"He was a popular person and had been frequently seen in night spots around town," Dean said. He said Crane was quite often approached for autographs, which he readily provided.

"It just looks like somebody walked in on him while he was in bed and smacked him in the head a couple of times," said Eloy Ysasi, investigator for the Maricopa County medical examiner's office. "He was covered up in a sheet, as though you would retire, with his knees drawn up in the position like people sleep."

A piece of electrical cord has been tied around Crane's neck, but "it didn't strangle him," Ysasi said. "It was put on after he was dead, but was put on tight."

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

The fishing war

Resort owners in Canada are upset over the recent fishing flap between Canadian and United States officials. They say that American fishermen are canceling vacations because they think there is a sport fishing ban.

Sports fishing is a billion dollar industry in Canada, and more than a million Canadians yearly on lakes, streams and rivers.

These sportsmen spent $900 million on goods and services and about one billion dollars on lodging, boats and other equipment. The anglers catch over 200 million fish per year.

Canadian and U.S. officials closed their waters to each other's commercial fishing boats in a dispute over an interim fishing treaty. But, the U.S. ban went further and included Canadian sports fishermen. Canada is trying to keep from involving the sports fishing.

If left to the people of both nations, it is doubtful there would ever have been a hassle over the issue. There are probably some in each country who would favor protectionism between the two neighbors. We believe the vast majority of North American people would favor uncomplicated trade between the people on both sides of the border.

There is little economic reason for barriers of any kind. In fact both nations are better served under trade without any political restrictions. Once started, trade regulations have a way of proliferating to the disadvantage of both parties.

We have so much in common with our neighbors to the north that it is a shame to let political restrictions start to hamper any commerce, social or economic, between us.

The people of both Canada and the United States have more reason to drop all barriers than to increase any now in force. If people and commerce could move as freely between the two nations as it does between our states and their provinces we would both gain far more than we would lose.

Our Coast Guard and their enforcement agencies have always cooperated in many ways to help each other in search and rescue missions. It would be a great shame to pit them now against each other over this fishing flap.

People in commerce have always been able to solve problems with each other to the advantage of both. It is only when the political regulators enter the picture that the witches' brew of argumentative anger begins to boil over.

Good neighbors do not need high fences erected between them. Why not begin to be the best of neighbors and do away with all unnecessary fences?

Consumer hotline

TWO FEDERAL agencies have combined efforts with a state agency in Colorado to establish a consumer hotline for reporting suspected antitrust activities. The Federal Trade Commission, the Justice Department and the state attorney general have formed a control trouka to encourage informers. It is patterned after one in Pittsburgh.

In addition to the hotline number (free to the informer) a pamphlet has been made available to explain antitrust laws. The chairman of the Federal Trade Commission said "We want to remind people that these laws are there as a part of the basic fabric of protection for consumers. When businesses agree to control the market or price fix or rig bids, the consumer suffers."

Take a look at the Postal Service. No competition is tolerated in the handling of first class mail. So its customers are captive and the government does its own price fixing and decides the kind and amount of service it will give for the price fix.

Sex and the tube

IF YOU are allowing your young children to watch an abundance of tv. chances are they are getting an abundance of sex.

Two researchers found in a recent study that television is presenting sexual intimacy 30 to 40 times a week.

The Nation Inquirer reported that the researchers found that while explicit or implied sexual intercourse was depicted most frequently on prime-time shows, sexual encounters were shown in all program periods except Sunday morning.

Sex acts between unmarried partners were portrayed seven times as often as intercourse between married couples.

Scenes of sexual intimacy were shown 1.7 times per hour.

What you see is what you get.

Nation's press

Encouraging free market

We read with delight the latest reports from Paris that Prime Minister Paul Barre is really going through with his plan to begin freeing the French economy from price controls and at the same time end government subsidies to inefficient enterprises both public and private.

Having skinned through the national elections in March, Mr. Barre announced his intentions to try free-market policies with more determination than at any time since 1945. In April, he freed up prices of goods produced by public enterprises. This week he has begun a three-month phasing out of controls on the private sector.

The political parties of the left are shrilly protesting this "social injustice" and everyone braces for unleashed "inflation." But the entire economy, left and right, will benefit as these government barriers to commerce are lifted. The only prices that will "rise" will be on those goods that were uneconomic to produce at controlled prices. Production, not inflation, is contained by price controls.

Just as impressive was Mr. Barre's willingness to let the Boussac textile empire go into bankruptcy rather than continue shoveling tax francs into that subsidy pit. "The era of unrestrained spending of public funds on enterprises whose management is unable to run them profitably is over," he says. The decision gives credibility to his earlier policy pronouncements that the government will indeed resist the passionate appeals of management and labor to finance operations that cannot compete on their own. Draining efficient enterprises of resources to subsidize the obsolete is a losing game for the entire economy, left and right.

It is nice to be able to commend Mr. Barre for these steps, especially since we have been critics of some of his earlier initiatives. But then, we had been criticizing him for doing just the opposite of what he now is doing. The Plan Barre, remember, was an austerity scheme to end inflation through higher taxes and price controls. At one point, in protesting taxes on capital gains, and we sided with what opinion polls showed to be the position of the French left.

The news from Paris then, is good. And, as the new approach develops, we trust, Mr. Barre will eliminate the taxes he imposed under his old plan.

INCENTIVE in a tax plan

MARTHA ANGLE AND ROBERT WASHINGTON (NEA) — Conventional economists shudder at the mention of his name, but Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N. Y. is onto something.

At a time when most practitioners of the "dismal science" are fretting about the federal deficit and the inflationary potential of President Carter's modest tax cut, the former Buffalo Bills quarterback is going for the long bomb.

Jack Kemp wants to cut taxes. Not just a smidgen, as Jimmy Carter has proposed, but a whole lot. With Sen. William Roth R-Del., he is pushing for a 30 percent slash in personal income tax rates over the next three years.

Although it hasn't a prayer of passing, the Kemp-Roth tax bill is driving congressional Democrats up the wall — not because they are sure it's ridiculous but because it just might work.

As Kemp reminds them at every opportunity, his plan is patterned after the enormously successful tax cuts that President John F. Kennedy initiated in 1963.

Those across-the-board cuts, which reduced personal income tax rates nearly 20 percent, produced the highest real investment growth in modern history, the fastest growth of real disposable income.

the biggest spurt in real industrial output — and the lowest inflation rate of recent times.

The Treasury Department expected the Kennedy tax cuts to mean a revenue loss of $89 billion for the years 1963-68. Instead, they produced a $54 billion increase in revenue for that period as a result of accelerated economic activity.

Economists can and do argue incessantly about the applicability of the Kennedy tax cut experience to today's conditions. But what is compelling about Kemp's approach is not the fiscal impact so much as the psychology involved.

"I am not an economist," the four-term congressman says, "but I understand human behavior and I'm an expert on incentives."

Ah yes — incentives. There lies the crux of the matter. Jack Kemp believes the existing tax structure insidiously penalizes traditional virtues of thrift, hard work and investment while rewarding consumption, debt and leisure.

Why work harder to gain more nominal income when you merely wind up in a higher tax bracket and the government gobbles up a larger share of your hard-earned salary? Why put money into a saving account at 5.5 percent interest when inflation of 7 percent leaves you with a net loss of purchasing power?

Why buy stocks and bonds when you can invest in real estate on borrowed money, deducting the mortgage interest? "People don't work for pre-tax income, they work for take-home pay. Investors don't look for pre-tax profit, they worry about the net," Kemp says.

"Unless tax rates are slashed significantly, inflation will continue to push wage-earners into even-higher tax brackets, he argues. "Even if nominal income keeps pace with inflation, the government gets more than its share of the extra dollars."

Most audiences Kemp addresses have no trouble at all understanding his point, even if they find his arithmetic difficult to follow. Even workers who have received steady pay increases over the past few years, increases at least commensurate with the inflation rate, are discovering they have less money in terms of actual purchasing power than they started with.

That is why the Kemp-Roth bill is not likely to go away. Republicans have already embraced it warmly, and it is gaining democratic adherents as well. Economists may argue forever about its fiscal feasibility, but it is the only tax plan on the table that addresses the incentive issue.

"You'll never get away with this, Mr. Christian!"

Your money's worth

How to be a wise dental consumer

Sylvia Porter

(Last of four columns)

If you are a typical American you probably will need the services of a dentist more frequently than those of a physician during your lifetime. For that reason, waiting to find a dentist until you are hit by a painful emergency can be an expensive stopgap and a poor substitute for regular checkups and a thorough program of preventive home care.

How, then, can you choose a good dentist?

Ask friends, neighbors, or co-workers for referral to dentists with whom they are pleased. Advise Dr. Hal Gronlund of the American Dental Ass'n's Council on Dental Health and Health Planning. Or call your local physician, pharmacist or hospital with accredited dental services, for suggestions.

If you cannot get a personal referral, look in the yellow pages under "dentists" or "associations" for your own local dental society which will name qualified dentists near you. Or write the American Dental Ass'n, 211 E. Chicago Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611, for information.

Weigh carefully: convenience of location, the dentist's appointment schedule, general appearance of office, dentist and staff, availability or provisional arrangements in case of emergency.

Note whether the dentist takes — in the absence of recent, usable X-rays from your former dentist — a set of X-rays, one of dentistry's most valuable diagnostic tools, gets a record of your medical and dental history, including allergies and past illnesses, thoroughly examines your teeth and supporting structures before initiating treatment.

Check for these indicators: (a) a good dentist will always show concern for your personal comfort; (b) if you are of reproductive age, you will be given a lead apron to wear while X-rays are being taken; (c) prescribed medications and drugs will be carefully explained; (d) alternate methods of treatment will be explained; (e) provisions for emergency care will be available; (f) you will be told how you will feel after a treatment session so you can plan your appointments (no romantic date on the day of oral surgery).

Check when and what you may eat. Don't be alarmed if your dentist refers you to a specialist for some phase of treatment — orthodontic care, root canal therapy, periodontal treatment, children's very special problems.

Be sure your dentist's personality makes you feel comfortable and secure. You should be able to communicate with ease.

Never hesitate to discuss fees, both for immediate work and future treatment. Many dentists want you to open the discussion of fees and payment plans in advance of treatment, and will be cooperative in structuring payment schedules you can meet. Ask about the cost of treatment before you begin. Have your dentist explain treatment options open to you.

Buying a piece of the U.S.

By Don Graff

The U.S. economy may be having its problems with inflation, weak showings in some industrial sectors and now talk of a possible recession around some not too distant corner. But somebody out there obviously still rates it very highly.

Numbers — there's no way of getting even a rough fix on how many — of Europeans, Japanese, Mideasterners and assorted other currently flush outsiders have been buying in, with increasing enthusiasm.

The decline of the dollar, which has made things American a bargain for practically everyone except Americans, is a partial explanation. But it's not the full story.

Many citizens of countries such as Italy, where everyday violence is becoming the lifestyle, are seeking a safe place for their wealth and sometimes themselves. For others, such as the new oil rich, the United States represents the most promising investment market around and often the only one large enough to absorb the quantities of disposable funds at hand.

The Commerce Department puts investments of foreign assets during the first quarter of this year at $14.8 billion. That followed total investment for 1977 of $35.4 billion.

Some of this represents central bank purchases of dollars to stabilize skittish international exchange markets.

But far from all of it.

Considerable amounts of outside money are going into Treasury securities and into stocks and bonds. It is a factor in the current market upturn. In the longer run, there has been increasing foreign interest in banking — a magnet in particular for Arab money — and commercial properties. A Dutch-based group with Arab resources is bidding $50 million for a trio of top New York City hotels.

But in what could turn out to be a development of special significance, foreign money is increasingly buying parts of the U.S. itself.

According to one estimate by a realtor in California, an area of prime interest for land purchases, as much as 20 percent of all farmland currently changing hands may be going to foreign buyers.

The precise level cannot be determined because the new ownership in many cases is concealed, purchases having been arranged through trusts, banks, offshore companies and other intermediaries. But one such agent, a Belgian company cited in a New York Times survey of the situation, put European investment in U.S. farmland at $800 million last year alone.

And a Midwestern brokerage and land management firm admits having sold some $70 million in real estate to non-Americans during the past four years.

New money is usually welcome in an economy, but there can be misgivings when it involves actual physical possession by foreigners — as U.S. interests learned repeatedly in years past when internationalization of business usually meant buying in by Americans.

At present 20 states have laws either barring or restricting ownership of land by nonresident aliens. Such laws can be gotten around, however, and there could be a question as to their constitutionality.

While the trend may be disquieting, it is not likely to reach the point where Americans are threatened with having their entire country bought out from under them.

It does have an immediate disadvantage in that the money non-Americans are willing to drop into U.S. real estate is driving prices in some areas beyond the reach of the home folks.

CAN YOU COPE?

Coping with daily problems: Now it's up to you

By Science Research Associates
The SRA Coping Skills Test is over.

Only you know the score you made. But your score doesn't really matter, because the test wasn't designed to tell you whether you are a winner or a loser or somewhere in between. It was designed to help you become more aware of ways you can cope more successfully with your own life.

In developing the SRA Coping Skills Test, the SRA development staff spent time discussing what is meant by the term, "coping." We came up with several related definitions:
1. A recognition that one has choices in dealing with most life situations.
2. Taking responsibility for what happens to one's self.
3. An ability to handle whatever situation arises in one's life.
4. Overcoming problems and difficulties.

5. A feeling of personal competency and well being.
No matter how you define the term, coping with life requires specific kinds of skills and knowledge to deal with problems, for virtually all of life involves problem solving. People seem to have been born to be problem-creating and problem-solving creatures. Difficulties in living, no matter how mundane, can be seen as problems to be identified and solved.

From the time they are born—some say even earlier—people begin learning to cope with life. They continue to learn through everyday living and growing. In learning to ride a bicycle, a child falls, gets bumped, and is bruised, yet he or she keeps on trying.

Sometimes people may be taught in subtle ways that happiness stems from a world in which all our needs are met, a world in which one is never challenged. But there is a more likely possibility that part of the zest of living—the joy of living—comes from meeting challenges, from solving problems, and in the quest for more information about how to solve even greater problems and meet even greater challenges.

Good reading and math skills are basic to coping because they enable one to obtain adequate information about specific problems and the various options that one has in dealing with the problems. But these skills are only a foundation. Your attitude toward problem solving also makes a difference between taking control of your life or simply warding off disaster.

When you know what the options are when a problem exists—or if you know where to find or create the options—you then know how to cope. And this knowledge increases your independence, your self-reliance, and your confidence.

In taking greater responsibility for your life, you need to be able to distinguish between things that can be changed and things that cannot be changed. You can change a lot about yourself—you can lose weight, quit smoking, move to a new place, or change jobs. You also can change some of the conditions in the world about you. But you can't change the fact that the world about you will change—that friends and relatives will die, move away, grow up. Institutions also will change as people change.

Coping also requires the ability to be realistic—to see things as they are, not as you think they should be. For example, many marital conflicts stem from one partner's idealistic view of what he or she thinks marriage should be—or what the other spouse should be. Many of these conflicts could be resolved if each partner would listen to the other, try to find out who the other person is, and decide jointly how each person's needs can best be met. This is equally true of other interpersonal relationships.

When you say "I can't cope," what you may really mean is "I won't cope." For you do have the capacity to learn how to cope with problems whether they deal with finances, family, work, the household, or any of a number of problems that deal with people relationships.

We hope the SRA Coping Skills Test has provided an instrument through which you can improve your ability to deal with these kinds of problems. But the test can be nothing more than a beginning. Now, coping is up to you.

Constitution violations could result in lawsuits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials may be sued for damages in civil cases if they deliberately and knowingly violate the Constitution, the Supreme Court ruled today.

In a 5-4 decision, the court said, "We see no substantial basis for holding... that executive officers generally may with impunity discharge their duties in a way that is known to them to violate the United States Constitution."

The precedent-setting decision limits immunity for federal officials in a way that parallels immunity granted to state officials.

The majority opinion by Justice Byron R. White said, however: "Federal officials will not be liable for mere mistakes in judgment, whether the mistake is one of fact or one of law."

The court rejected the Justice Department's argument that officials should be absolutely immune from civil suits for damages. Attorney General Griffin B. Bell has contended that the threat of civil suits is an unfair burden for federal officials in the exercise of their official responsibilities.

The Supreme Court sent the case back to lower courts to set the ground rules for the trial of the claims against Butz and the others.

Jaworski says plea bargaining helped get truth of Watergate

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski says that if it weren't for plea bargaining, the country would never have learned the full truth of Watergate.

"The American public has demanded that the story of Watergate be known, and through the process of justice under law it has been made known," he told a group of Texas lawyers meeting here Wednesday. "And I can assure you that had it not been for perfectly fair and just plea discussions, the full story of the break-in and the cover-up would never have been known."

Jaworski touched on his role as special prosecutor in the Watergate affair in defending the concept and effectiveness of plea bargaining.

"After Herbert Kalmbach, President Nixon's personal counsel, offered to plead guilty to a felony and go before the grand jury to reveal the full facts of his involvement and his knowledge of activities in the collection and distribution of hush money to the Watergate burglars, as well as other illegal conduct involving primarily illicit campaign contributions and the improper acquisition of ambassadorships, the White House became quite nervous at the thought of the revelations he was in a position to make," Jaworski said.

The silver-haired Houston attorney also attacked the integrity of a New York Times columnist Wednesday and accused "political opportunists" of obstructing the Koreagate investigation.

He called "completely erroneous" allegations by syndicated columnist William Safire that the probe of the South Korean bribery scandal is a "charade" and a "cover-up."

He said Safire is waging a "personal vendetta," a conflict which he contended dates back to Watergate and Safire's former role as a speech writer for President Richard Nixon.

"He does not have regard for honor or integrity," the lawyer asserted.

Jaworski did concede that attempts to obtain testimony from former Korean Ambassador Kim Dong Jo may be hopeless.

"We're struggling to get his testimony...but if we hear nothing in the next 10 days or two weeks, it probably will be a lost cause," he said.

He said the ambassador's testimony could be "very, very important," in determining that former and current members of Congress allegedly received cash payments from the South Korean government.

"The White House also became quite apprehensive over the success the special prosecutor was having in obtaining inculpatory evidence from first one and then the other of the targets and especially concerned that still others would decide to join the chorus."

"I have not told that before and I have not written that before."

Jaworski said William Saxbe was then attorney general and "It should be said that undoubtedly Saxbe had been pressured by the then-president publicly to raise questions about the plea bargaining we were conducting."

In his comments on Koreagate Jaworski said: "The investigation has been marred by the action of political opportunists who have greatly misrepresented some phases of the investigation and distorted its objectivity."

"Some, in the interest of political self-preference, have planted fabrications in news stories and one of their number (Safire) resorted to the use of a rather widely-read syndicated column to present unjust charges."

"It is a tragedy that this unfortunate event has been and is being used as a political football instead of constituting a non-partisan effort to bring to light the true facts — even though they lack the sensationalism earlier predicted by some and hoped for by others."

'Miss Ripe Tomato' named in Conroe contest

CONROE, Tex. (AP) — Darlene Knappenberger pushed her rhinestone studded sunglasses onto the bridge of her nose and tucked a sweat soaked strand of gray-white hair under her straw sunhat.

Mrs. Knappenberger, 72, didn't usually make the short automobile trip from Conroe out to her garden plot in Friendship Gardens while the blistering Texas sun was at its peak.

But this was a special day. Mrs. Knappenberger had a chance of being named Miss Ripe Tomato of 1978.

She walked over to a wooden table, carefully rearranged her tomatoes, stepped back and tugged at the jacket of her beige knit pantsuit.

The blasting of an automobile horn and a trail of dust along the dirt road leading into the gardens announced the arrival of Ruby Ray, Miss Ripe Tomato 1976.

"Here comes Ruby," Reva Gilmer, coordinator for the Montgomery County Committee on Aging, said. "She's always late and she always makes a grand entrance."

However rank had no privilege, and the former title holder was told she must back down the road and park along the highway just like everyone else. Ms. Ray complied, but nearly backed over contest judge Geoffrey Wakefield in the process.

With all previous royalty assembled, Wakefield took his place at the judging table.

"I'll be judging the tomatoes on ripeness, size, appearance, shape and quality," Wakefield said with a heavy British accent. He is a landscape design architect who emigrated from the United Kingdom several years ago. His wife "volunteered" him to judge the event, he said.

"However there is one question I would like to ask Mr. Colsten," Wakefield said, scanning the crowd for Alden Colsten, the spry 79-year-old who started Friendship Gardens. "Do I get to kiss Miss Ripe Tomato?"

"It all depends on who wins!" Colsten said.

Wakefield picked up a paper plate which held three tomatoes.

"These are full-grown and ready to eat, but they were ripened in a window sill," he said and slapped down the plate.

He picked up another plate. "This one has a blemish on it," he said, pointing to a small spot on the tomato's skin.

Wakefield picked up the next plate. "Now these are absolutely fresh picked," he said. "I'd have to say these are the winners." He turned the paper plate over and revealed the winner's name.

"Darlene Knappenberger!" Mrs. Knappenberger squealed, took off her sunhat and walked up to the judging table.

Edna Swanson, Miss Ripe Tomato 1977, picked up the red and white cardboard crown and placed it on Mrs. Knappenberger's head.

"Miss Ripe Tomato, I select you as my queen for a year," she said.

Wakefield claimed his kiss. Mrs. Knappenberger blushed and everyone headed over to the back end of a pickup for refreshments. No one waited for the queen to be served first.

"Here, have one of these," Colsten said, handing a bystander a sandwich. "It's peanut butter and my very own wild mustang grape jelly. You know, I have to make the jelly to boost the sale of my homemade bread. They all love my jelly, but they've got to have something to put it on!"

Colsten came up with the idea of the gardens about seven years ago. Conroe's Friendship Center, a social club for persons who have reached their "maturity" as Colsten likes to say, received a $9,300 grant from Montgomery County Commissioners' Court and Conroe City Council. Approximately $2,000 of this grant was accepted by the Montgomery County Committee on Aging for use on the gardens.

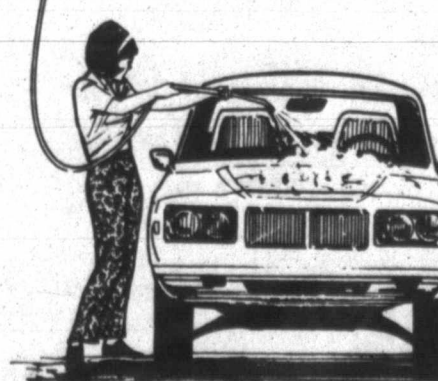

While many senior citizens suffer from malnutrition, Friendship Gardens participants are not only well-fed, but also raise enough surplus for cash crops of beans in the summer and turnip greens in the fall. Except for the cash crops, participants keep everything they grow.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press.
 National Weather Service forecasters issued a special marine warning early today as heavy thunderstorms approached the gulf coast off Jefferson County in Southeast Texas.

Forecasters warned boaters along the coast off Jefferson County that they should immediately head for shore. The thunderstorms were moving at about 25 mph.

Some thunderstorm activity remained early today in portions of West Texas where thunderstorm activity erupted during the night. Heavy rainfall was reported in portions of the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas during the late evening and night.

Forecasters predicted more thunderstorm activity in many sections of the state late in the day today. Afternoon highs were expected to be mostly in the 90s with a few areas of North Central Texas and Southwest Texas expected to reach the 100-degree mark.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s and 70s with extremes ranging from 64 at El Paso to 80 at Texarkana and Galveston.

Some early morning readings included 66 at Amarillo, 78 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 72 at Austin, Lufkin and Houston, 78 at Corpus Christi, 77 at McAllen, 78 at Del Rio, 77 at San Angelo and 69 at Lubbock.

National weather

By The Associated Press.
 Heavy rain fell on the Dakotas and surrounding areas early today, while the Southeast remained in the grips of an early summer heat wave.

Thunderstorms stretched from Colorado and Wyoming through the Dakotas and into the upper Mississippi Valley. As much as half a foot of rain was reported in parts of North Dakota. In the southeastern part of the state, roads are reported washed out in the White-stone battlefield area.

Flash flood watches were issued for portions of North Dakota, Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico.

Showers and thundershowers also fell over parts of New Mexico, Texas and Oregon. More of the same is in store for the northern Rockies, as well as the eastern Gulf of Mexico and parts of Florida. Widely scattered showers dot the upper half of the Atlantic Coast.

Thunderstorms predicted for the Southeast today were expected to have little effect on the 100-degree temperatures that have baked the region for the last few days.

Flight attendants to picket airports

By The Associated Press.
 Flight attendants for Braniff International say they will picket airlines today in Dallas, Houston and San Antonio to protest the salary they receive.

Denver and Minneapolis airports also will be picketed, according to a spokesman for the Association of Flight Attendants, which represents Braniff and 15 other airlines.

"We just want to get public support and, frankly, to put some public pressure on the company," said Ken Crowley, a spokesman for the Washington-based union.

He said the picket lines would be manned from about 10:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. today through Sunday, but would not disrupt Braniff's service.

Braniff's 2,000 stewardesses and stewardesses receive a starting salary of $615 a month for 63 hours' work, a Braniff spokesman said Thursday.

Braniff's Jere Cox of Dallas conceded that is lower than most other airlines, but only because Braniff attendants are still being paid on a contract which ended last year.

The Association of Flight Attendants has been negotiating with Braniff for a new labor contract since the previous contract expired last Aug. 1. A federal mediator has been called in to assist the discussions.

Cox said Braniff flight attendants get incentive pay for work beyond 63 hours.

"They can get up to $700 a month for flying 80 hours a month, and that's just at the lowest scale," he said. Cox said the airline is confident a contract settlement will be reached without a strike.

"Many of our members are eligible for food stamps, and others are forced to take part-time jobs to support their families. In an airline with the highest-paid chairman of the board in the industry, we don't think that's right," Crowley said.

Braniff's chairman of the board has a salary of more than $300,000 a year, including incentive compensation.

Lawyers dumped proposals

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—The 1,500 lawyers attending the convention of the State Bar of Texas were to have voted today on a series of resolutions recommending the repeal of laws against prostitution, marijuana and homosexuality.

One hitch came up.

The resolutions committee shot down all eight resolutions brought before it Thursday, during its meeting at the Tarrant County Convention Center.

Among them was a resolution that would have asked the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals to "reprimand, censure and remove from office" U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling.

Sterling is the judge who presided at the trial of three policemen charged with violating the civil rights of Jose Campos Torres, who drowned in a bayou while in police custody. They could have been imprisoned for life, but Sterling gave them one year in prison.

Despite the scrubbing of the morning's resolution package, the attorneys still were scheduled to hear today from Margo St. James, the founder of COYOTE—a group of prostitutes, former prostitutes and others who feel prostitution should not be illegal.

For the third year in a row, the resolutions committee decided against a resolution affirming ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Other proposals would have repealed the death penalty, placed a moratorium on prison construction and repealed statutes that allowed the use of "deadly force" to protect property.

All eight resolutions were defeated methodically and with little discussion.

Shatwell testifies at his perjury trial

PURCELL, Okla. (AP)—Osage County District Attorney Bill Hill was to begin cross-examining state Sen. Bob Shatwell at Shatwell's perjury trial today.

Shatwell's chief defense attorney, state Sen. Gene Stipe, said he will call one final witness today, Creek County District Attorney David Young.

Young's office is seeking to prosecute Judith Marie Owen, 23, and her boyfriend, John Gary III, 27, on charges of kidnapping Shatwell.

Shatwell, 37, a Tulsa Democrat, is accused by Hill of lying under oath when he testified he was kidnapped and forcibly taken to the Tulsa apartment of Miss Owen, a self-described prostitute, on Jan. 28, 1977.

The prosecution maintains Shatwell went voluntarily to Miss Owen's apartment to purchase sex, as the prosecution alleges he had done several times before.

Shatwell testified Thursday he has never lied under oath and swore his story of being kidnapped when his car was run off a Tulsa street is true.

Shatwell said he was kidnapped by a black man "and a very fat white woman." The senator said the woman was Miss Owen and said he believes the black man was Gary.

"I could be mistaken on Gary, but I know it was Owen," Shatwell testified.

Shatwell on Thursday denied having sex with Miss Owen and denied visiting the woman's apartment and said he had never even met Miss Owen before the day he says the woman kidnapped him.

Miss Owen and Gary have pleaded guilty to robbing Shatwell on the day of his alleged abduction, but both have denied kidnapping him, insisting he came to the Owen apartment for sex.

Cook guilty of murder

TYLER, Texas (AP)—Kerry Max Cook, "a living portrait of human tragedy," has been condemned to die by legal injection for the June 1977 stabbing mutilation death of a Tyler secretary.

An eight-man, four-woman jury deliberated about one hour Thursday and answers on three issues submitted them by State District Judge Glenn S. Phillips, thus choosing death for Cook rather than life in prison.

A six-day jury trial ended Wednesday with the jury deliberating four hours and returning a guilty verdict against the Jacksonville, Texas man on capital murder charges.

The indictment against Cook said he broke into the south Tyler apartment of Linda Jo Edwards about midnight a year ago while her roommate was gone. The state said Cook raped Miss Edwards and sexually mutilated her brutally.

Testimony in the trial disclosed that Cook's fingerprints were found on the victim's apartment door.

It took two weeks to select a jury in the trial.

Hill issues budget spending ultimatum to agencies

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—Attorney General John Hill has issued an ultimatum to the various agencies which look to the Texas Legislature for their appropriations.

"I must urge you to consider all possible options for control of your department's progress," Hill wrote the chairman of the Texas Board of Human Resources.

Hill, assuming he will be elected Texas governor in November, wrote the letter in response to the board's request for a 68 percent budget increase for the 1980-81 biennium.

He left no doubt Thursday, in a news conference during the State Bar of Texas convention at Fort Worth, that his administration goes for everybody.

"One of the reasons I'm working so hard on budget matters is to show the people of Texas that under my administration, we're going to look closely at every tax dollar spent," he said.

"And we will try to see that it is spent effectively."

North Yemen says neighbors killed prexy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Conservative North Yemen formally accused the Marxist government of South Yemen of assassinating North Yemen President Ahmed al Ghashmi "with unprecedented brutality," Saudi Arabia's official radio station reported today.

The broadcast said a committee headed by Justice Minister Qadi Ali al Samman investigated the murder last Saturday in San'a, the capital of North Yemen. Its report will be submitted to an emergency meeting of the Arab League in Cairo Saturday.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I and our four children (ages 7 to 13) were invited to a relative's home for supper recently. She had one large table set for the adults and another one for the children.

My daughter, age 13, came to me and said she wasn't going to sit with the "babies." (Two of her 12-year-old cousins were sitting at that table and they didn't complain.) I told her not to make a fuss and to go sit down and be quiet. Being a very headstrong child, she raised her voice a bit and said she would rather go home.

Well, I wasn't about to take her home, and I couldn't let her walk home alone at night, so in order to avoid a scene I told her to go get her chair and to sit by me, which she did.

I dislike scenes in public and I still think I did the right thing. My husband said I should have told the spoiled little stinker to either sit where she was put or to go into the bedroom and sulk. What is your opinion?

NAMELESS IN JERSEY

DEAR NAMELESS: With such a smart husband, why are you writing to Dear Abby?

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those who has accepted many invitations but never reciprocates. I, too, have talked of having a party, but it never materializes. Would you like to know why?

I'm frightened to death of having people in because when the conversation lags, I'm tongue-tied. I can never think of anything clever to say. I am not sure that what I cook will be good enough, and I'm not sure I'll serve it right.

In school I was the quiet type who earned the reputation of being "stuck up" because I was so shy. I know I should have people over, and I really want to, but I'm scared. How does one overcome such fears? I am almost 35.

INEPT IN INGLEWOOD

DEAR INEPT: Many people don't entertain because they're afraid they won't do it to perfection. Nonsense! Perfection isn't expected of anyone. There are any number of good cookbooks with suggested menus and full instructions on serving.

And get over the idea that everyone in the room is waiting for pearls of wisdom to drop from your mouth. Say anything. If it's audible, kind and honest, you'll get by. The longest march in the world started with one step. Forward—march!

DEAR ABBY: I need your opinion on something. My mother tells me it is not right for a girl to go to her boyfriend's apartment when there are just the two of them there alone. She says it will ruin the girl's reputation for good, even if nothing happens.

Mom says that even nice girls can get into trouble by going to their boyfriends' apartments—that being together all alone too much is just tempting fate and pressing your luck.

Miss Abby, I've been brought up to obey my parents, but lately I'm confused. My friends at college say "everybody does it," and they laugh at me for my old-fashioned ideas. Can you help me?

LISTENS TO MOM AT 18

DEAR LISTENS: I don't know who's luckier, you or your mother. You, to have a mother who cares enough to warn you against the seemingly harmless temptations to which so many girls yield. Or your mother, who has a sensible 18-year-old daughter who still listens. Keep listening. You'll never regret it.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I had a heart attack a year and a half ago and the doctor said I didn't need any surgery but I have weight problems and lung congestion. I weigh 186 pounds and am 66 years old. I don't smoke or drink. I take Slow K, Lasix and Lanoxin. Will I ever be able to recover completely? How come my heart controls the fluids coming out of my body? My ankles swell up and I get short of breath also.

DEAR READER: Often the weight gain a person has with heart failure is associated with the accumulation of fluid. And it does accumulate in the ankles and can accumulate in the abdomen, or it can accumulate in the lungs and chest cavity. The mechanism of fluid retention and swelling is relatively complex but when a person has heart failure he tends to retain salt in the body. That's why you are taking Lasix to help to eliminate the excess sodium salt. With salt an excess amount of water is retained, which increases the amount of water in the circulatory system. This causes water to literally leak out of the circulation into the tissue spaces.

To explain this in somewhat more detail, I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-6, Swelling: Causes and Managements. This issue will also give you information on the type of swelling that occurs with injuries and sprains and how they should be treated, as well as the basic concepts of how fluid accumulates in the body. Other readers who are interested in information about swellings can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for this issue to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292. When the fluid accumulation is due to heart failure the best approach is to try to correct the heart condition if at all possible. That's also why you are getting Lanoxin, which is a digitalis preparation to strengthen the contractions of the heart muscle.

It's difficult to say what you can expect from your future condition but whatever you can do to help gradually reduce your weight will probably help you. That means limiting your total calorie intake and limiting particularly your fat and cholesterol intake.

I suspect your doctors have already asked you to limit foods that contain sodium salt. Anybody taking diuretics or water medications such as Lasix often needs to replace potassium. That's why you're getting Slow K. To give you more information on the importance of the balance between sodium and potassium I am also sending you The Health Letter number 10-12, Salt: Your Vital Sodium and Potassium Balance.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Is non-fat dry milk powder really non-fat and is the cholesterol removed with the fat in skimming?

DEAR READER: Yes, non-fat dry milk powder is non-fat and it contains very little cholesterol. It is an excellent substance to use in cooking as you can make milk gravies, puddings and use it in baking products and be using a milk product that is non-fat and very low in cholesterol. Not only that, you can increase the amount of non-fat dry milk powder called for in the recipe and enrich the amount of protein and calcium in any foods that you prepare with it.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY: When making spaghetti sauce I make a few slashes in the bottom of a foil pie pan and put this over the sauce pan. The slits let the steam out and keeps the sauce from splashing all over the stove. Also I put a pinch of baking soda in the sauce to cut down on the acid.

DEAR POLLY: Several years ago I was crocheting a navy blue cape for a Christmas gift and the color would come off the yarn onto my hands. The manager of a yarn shop gave me the solution: wash it in my automatic washer with one quart of white vinegar added to the water. This permanently sets the color. The friend I made the cape for is still wearing it and I have repeated this method on fabrics from synthetics to cotton. It has always worked for me.

High fashion items

By Joanne Schreiber

Everyone knows you can save money just by sewing your own fashions. But did you know you can save up to a thousand dollars or so on a single garment if you want to recreate a high fashion item?

Of course, you can't save that kind of money on a polyester pants suit. You have to whip up a designer pattern, thereby saving the cost of the Paris original. For example, the Singer Company recently offered dramatic proof of the sew-and-save potential of high style in a star-studded fashion show highlighting the reopening of their flagship store in New York's glittering Rockefeller Center just off Fifth Avenue. A parade of celebrities modeled original fashions from such designers as Nina Ricci, Givenchy, Christian Dior and Yves St. Laurent, each with its line-for-line copy made from an American pattern.

Actress Lynn Redgrave appeared in a black wool flannel "Gigi" suit with a white crepe de chine blouse. The ensemble, by Christian Dior, is priced at $1,067. The copy cost $71. An Yves St. Laurent original in ivory silk jacquard cost $1,102; its copy in taupe polyester crepe de chine cost $30. Carroll Baker modeled a bright red silk jacquard dress by Nina Ricci, costing $36; her daughter, Blanche Baker, wore the $73 copy.

Socialite Cornelia Sharpe showed off a graceful dress in floral silk crepe de chine by Emanuel Ungaro, priced at $650. The copy cost $64. A Givenchy pants and blouse set worn by Tammy Grimes cost a whopping $1,144; the copy came in for $38.50.

How come designer fashions are so costly? First, there's the designer name. Then there's the cost of fine fabrics. And finally, there's the labor — lots and lots of handwork, long fitting sessions and meticulous detail. It adds up.

A Paris original pattern costs only a few dollars — $7.50 tops — but delivers a tremendous amount of fashion. Pattern company representatives attend the twice-yearly Paris showings. They purchase the garments which will be made into American patterns. They also buy the toile, or muslin, and the paper pattern. The original is photographed for the pattern envelope. The paper pattern is re-sized to fit the contours of the American woman and conform to established pattern measurements. The patterns are exact duplicates of the original. If some small change is made, such as an extra dart, permission must be obtained from the couturier.

When you sew a designer fashion, you pay only for your materials. The high priced designer name is included in your pattern; you can put any price you like on your own time and effort. You can buy the finest fabrics you can find, and still save a small fortune every time you sew a designer pattern. By putting on a fashion show like this one, the Singer Company casts a vote of confidence for the skill and fashion savvy of the woman who sews.

4-H revue to be held

The Gray County 4-H dress revue will be held July 6, at 2:30 p.m. in the First Christian Church Fellowship Hall.

The dress revue is open to all Gray County 4-H'ers who have completed a clothing project. The revue is highlighted with a style show and awards presentation.

The awards presentation will be conducted by the County 4-H Council officers. Betty Cochran, chairman of the 4-H Dress Revue Committee will recognize 4-H clothing leaders.

The winners of the revue will advance to the district competition in Amarillo on July 25. The entrants are judged on overall appearance, garment construction and modeling. The public is invited to attend.

In the United States, up to 30,000 persons a year undergo anti-rabies shots, usually after being bitten by bats or by wild animals such as raccoons.

When a recipe calls for cocoa, use the unsweetened kind. Do not use an instant cocoa mix (unless it is called for), because it is usually a blend of cocoa, sugar, flavoring and sometimes nonfat dry milk.

Recipes sometimes direct you to grease and flour the pan when you are baking chocolate cake. One good cook we know greases the pan and then dusts it with cocoa instead of flour.

Plains Baptist church begins to heal wounds

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

When the world peered into the tiny town of Plains, Ga.; its close, intertwined but strained fabric frayed and broke. "A wall went up," says the Rev. Fred Collins. "Plains was fragmented."

That breach in the little, southern hometown of President Carter, population 680, seems gradually to be starting to mend, ministers there say, but only slowly and marks of the division remain.

"It takes time for the wounds to heal, but something like that is beginning to happen," says the Rev. Don Wilson, pastor of the Plains Baptist Church, to which Carter's family had belonged and which split because of antagonisms brought to a head over racial policies.

"It takes a long time to get over it completely," Wilson adds. "But things are moving along pretty good. Some of the folks left and founded another church. We're plugging along, too."

Those who left in late 1976 formed the Maranatha Baptist Church, and after meeting for more than a year in a Lutheran church four miles away, it this week began constructing its own building in Plains.

The structure, to be finished in four or five months, will be of brick, colonial-style architecture.

"Some progress has been made in respect to the differences, but it's a deep thing," says Collins, the new church's pastor for the last year. "Some hurt feelings and bitterness remain, but it's getting better as time goes by. Compared to a year ago, you wouldn't believe how deep the hurt was then."

What caused that rupture in church and community? Both pastors in telephone interviews maintained that the question of admitting blacks was not the fundamental cause, but only a surface catalyst that triggered other long-time frictions and jealousies.

"It was like a dead stick of dynamite just waiting for a cap to detonate it," Collins said, with the race issue being the firing cap. "It was not the big thing that divided the church. It only provided the tangible thing over which to take sides."

Wilson saw it similarly. He took the vacant Plains Church pulpit only six months ago, replacing the Rev. Bruce Edwards who had left for a pastorate in Hawaii. "I hate even to try to explain it," Wilson said. "Race wasn't the primary thing." He generalized that "personality clashes" over a long period were behind it.

Neither church has yet admitted a black to membership, and both say none has applied since the break, which came after a black minister, Clennon King, who lives 40 miles away in Albany, Ga., was refused admission to the Plains Church in the fall of 1976.

It now has a "watch care" committee to determine eligibility for membership. Would being black be an obstacle? "I'd hope not," Wilson said. "It's something the church hasn't had to face."

At the new Maranatha church, Collins said race definitely was no barrier. "The doors are open to any person," he said, pointing out that the congregation has formally affirmed that "open door" policy.

Concert given

The Gospelites will be giving a concert at the Hi-Land Christian Church, 1615 N. Banks, on Wednesday July 5, at 7:30 p.m.

The Gospelites have been singing gospel music professionally since 1970 and have traveled an average of 100,000 miles a year throughout the United States and Canada. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

O'Shoney

Pastor Glenn O'Shoney was elected president of the Texas District of the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod in the opening session of the district's convention held June 23-25 in Ft. Worth. The Reverend O'Shoney has held the position of Executive Director of Mission Administration in the Texas District since 1974.

Attending the convention from Pampa were Pastor Timothy Koenig, and Ernie Grady, lay delegate.

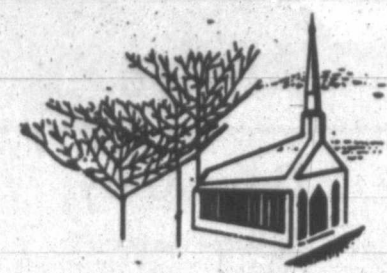

First Presbyterian

Rev. Joe Turner, Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will speak on "Sharing the Burden" Sunday.

The Junior High Fellowship will meet Sunday afternoon at 5:30. The church offices will be closed Monday and Tuesday, and on Wednesday the Worship and Sacrament Committee will meet at 7:30 p.m.

An investment in Your Future

...ATTEND CHURCH

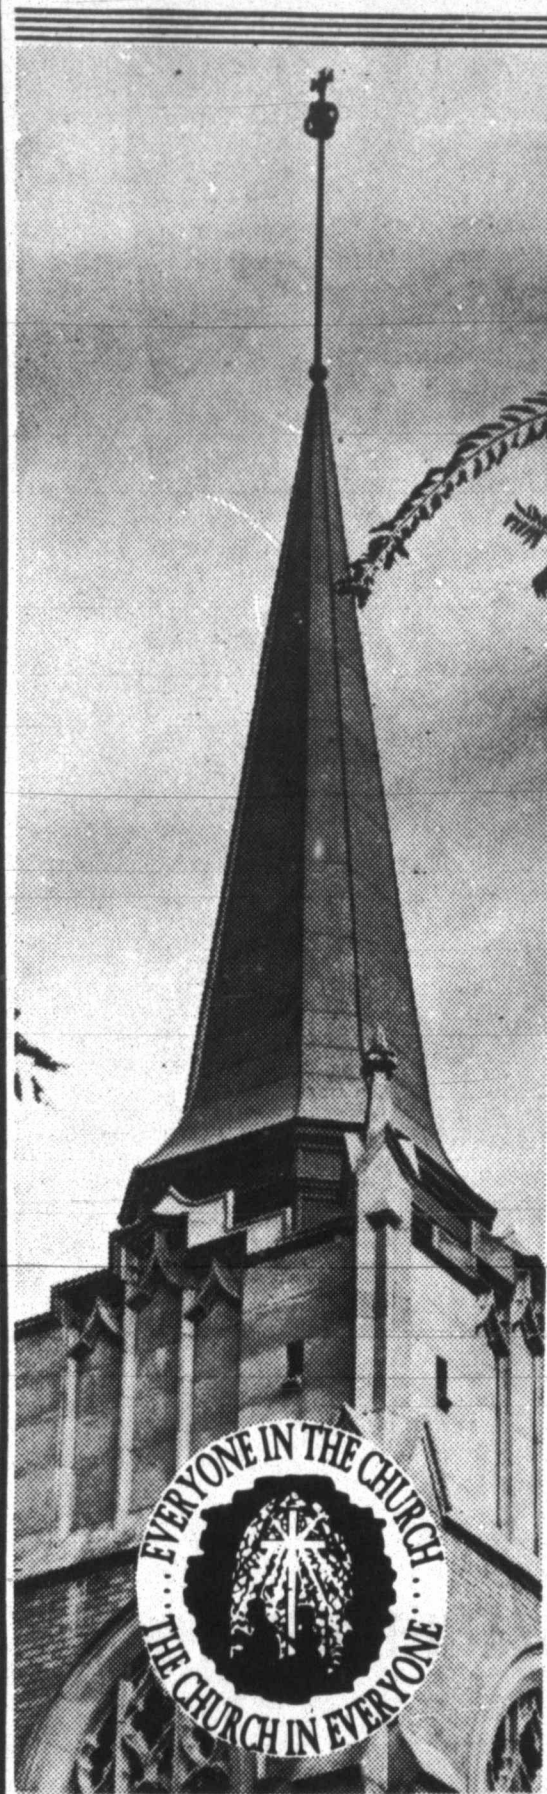

"In 400, you know it, there will your heart be."

A PLACE TO PRAY

Man can, and should, pray anywhere. God has placed no limitations on his communing with him.

Our Lord has said, "... Ask and ye shall receive." God listens when we seek him, no matter where, however he desires that we gather together in prayer too. "... mine house shall be called an house of prayer for all people."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Astro-Graph
 By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday
 July 1, 1978
 This may be a year when more opportunities than you think you can handle will be dumped in your lap. Isolate those that are interesting to you. Concentrate exclusively on them.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Avoid pals today who always expect you to pay their share of the tab. Instead, spend your time with friends equally as generous as yourself. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 Disappointments are possible today if you're overly insistent that others adhere to your wishes. Let the majority rule and everyone will have fun.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 A problem may arise today that can't be handled in one fell swoop. Chip away at it and you'll soon cut it down to size.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
 Your goals today could go by the boards if you fail to keep your priorities in order. Put business before pleasure.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
 Poor communications could lead to you and your mate pulling in two different directions today. Keep each other apprised of your purposes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
 Unless coworkers share equally in the returns from your collective efforts today they're apt to put some roadblocks in your path.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 Just because you got up on the wrong side of the bed today doesn't mean you have to be cranky all day. Think about having fun and you'll have it.

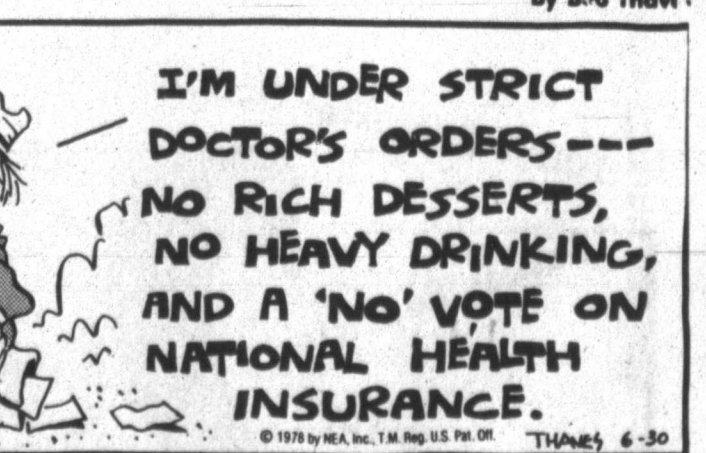

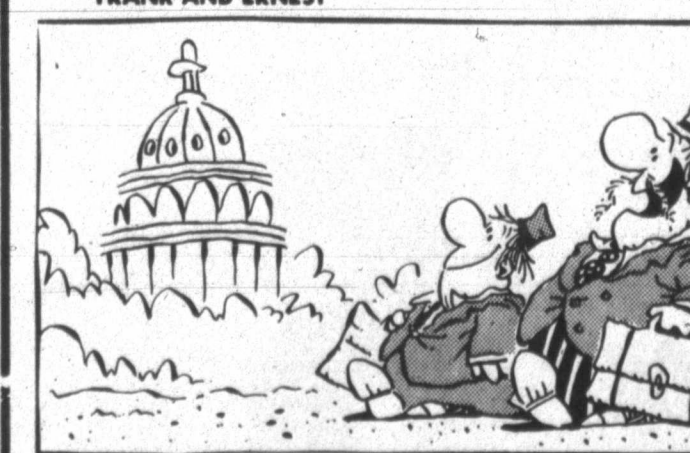

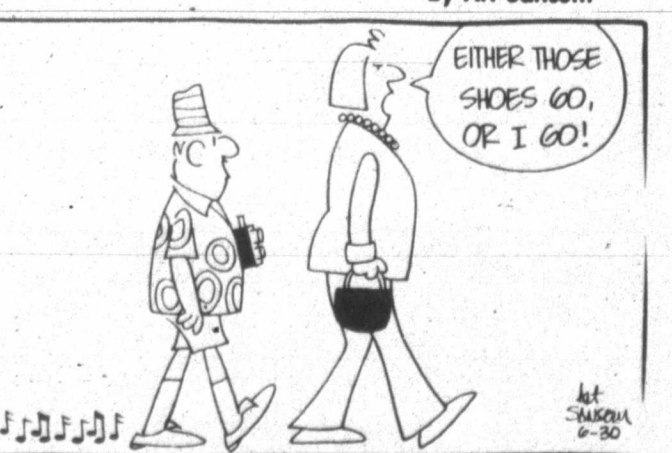

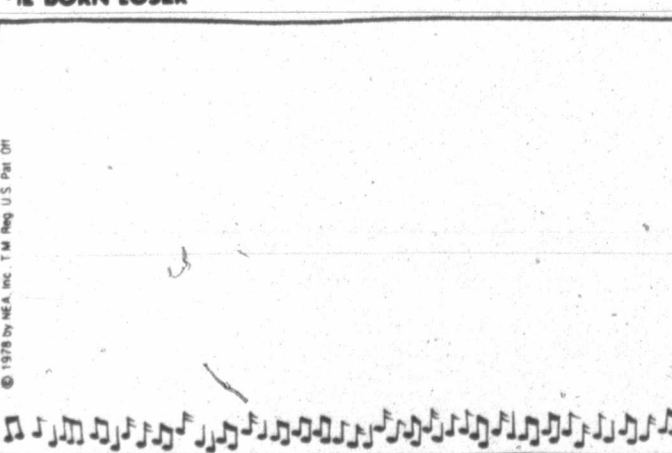

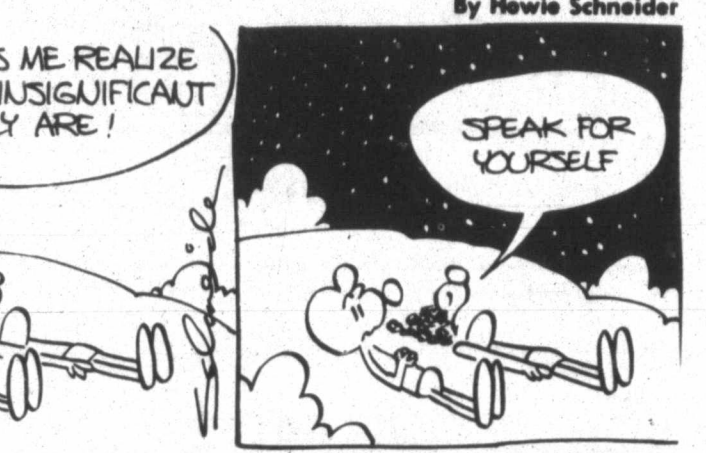

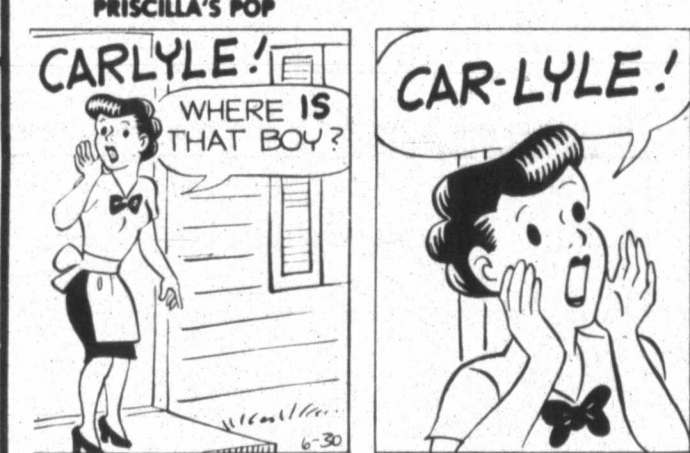

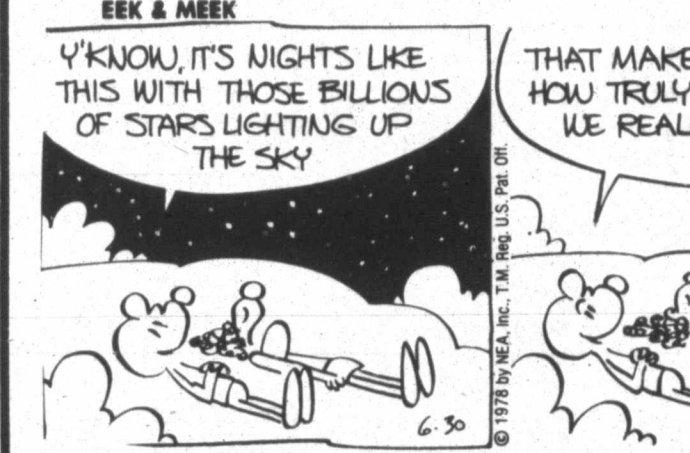

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
 Take it in good stride if your mate is a little hard to please today and she'll soon come around. You'll only make matters worse if you're tactless.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
 Unless you get those difficult tags out of the way early today they could monopolize your entire day. Spend the morning doing, instead of procrastinating.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 Pleasurable pursuits that are expensive will be the least amount of fun today. An old-fashioned family get-together could be a ball, however.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Early in the day you may not be as tolerant as you should be of others who disrupt your routine. Once you loosen up you'll discover their ideas aren't so bad after all.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Leaving control of matters pertinent to your interests in the hands of others today could produce undesirable results. You run the show.

Second Astro shutout

Bannister bombs Reds, 5-0

HOUSTON (AP) — After toiling in the bullpen during the first few weeks of the season and missing several starts because of rainouts and nagging injuries, Floyd Bannister says shutting out Cincinnati is like a shot in the arm.

"It's a real big boost for me," said Bannister, after firing a four-hitter in Houston's 5-0 triumph over the Reds Thursday night.

"I felt as strong in the ninth inning as I did in the first. I had some great plays behind me and I tried to stay with my game." Jose Cruz drove in a pair of runs with two singles and pinch-hitter Jesus Alou added a two-run eighth inning base hit as the Astros recorded the first back to back shutouts over Cincinnati since Philadelphia accomplished the feat on May 13-14, 1975.

Bannister, 33, survived a shaky first inning as he surrendered back to back doubles to Pete Rose and Ken Griffey to open the game. Rose stopped at third on Griffey's hit, which skimmed off the top of the glove of Houston shortstop Mike Fischlin into shallow left field. Bannister then came back to retire Joe Morgan on a foul pop before striking out both George Foster and Dave Concepcion to end the inning. Houston used singles by Dennis Walling and Enos Cabell and RBI base hits by Cruz and Bob Watson to score a pair of first-inning runs off losing pitcher Tom Hume.

A third-inning walk to Cabell, a balk by Hume and Cruz' second run-scoring single of the game led to another Houston run as the Astros tagged Hume with his eighth consecutive loss.

"I can't remember the last time we were shut out twice in one week, let alone back to back," said Joe Morgan.

As usual, it was a combination of good pitching and untimely hitting. The Reds, who were tagged with their fourth shutout in their last ten games, put only one runner as far as third base after the first inning against Bannister as the 23-year-old left-hander notched his second shutout of the season.

"The blister that I had on my left hand is gone now," said Bannister of an ailment that had kept him out of the starting rotation earlier this month. "It got a little tender again tonight, but there's no blister there now. I think it'll be OK."

Houston, which took its third consecutive victory following a five-game losing streak, sent Cincinnati down to its fifth loss in its last seven games.

Rain at Wimbledon leaves players idle

By WINSOR DOBBIN
Associated Press Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Wimbledon, the world's premier tennis tournament, usually runs like well-oiled machinery.

The tournament is famed for its disciplined operation and any deviation from the normal run of things is most unusual. But not even the All-England Lawn Tennis Club can do anything about the English weather.

On Monday, only 19 matches were completed when 64 had been scheduled. And although things were back to normal Tuesday and Wednesday, no play was possible Thursday.

That meant a great number of players were one or two days behind schedule. Defending champion Bjorn Borg, originally scheduled to play Wednesday evening but forced to wait because of a long-lasting women's match, will have waited three days to play — that is, if it doesn't rain again today.

So the players will have shorter rests between matches — and fewer rest days during the last week of the tournament.

"It will put more strain on the players from now on," tournament referee Fred Hoyles said. "Some of the free days the singles players would have had will be gone, but that is the way we have to catch up."

The backlog of matches might also mean a deviation from the usual starting time of 2 p.m.

"If we don't get a good day tomorrow," Hoyles said Thursday, "we shall have to think seriously of starting at 12 instead of 2. Occasionally in the past we have brought the start forward to 1, but one extra hour doesn't make enough difference. Two extra hours would have a substantial effect."

For the players, the waiting around was annoying. All day Thursday, before a decision was made, players waited around with nothing to do — and that can be damaging to concentration.

But even worse is that they face an overcrowded program. Players, for instance in the men's singles, would have had a rest day Monday before the quarter-finals.

Now they have to forego that. Among the players who waited fruitlessly Thursday at the All-England club were Borg, third seed Vitas Gerulaitis and fourth seed Guillermo Vilas.

Borg is to play Australian Peter McNamara. Vilas could have a tough clash with the experienced Dutchman, Tom Okker, while Gerulaitis plays fellow American Sherwood Stewart.

Several top women also spent an idle Thursday. Defending champion Virginia Wade should get to play Lesley Bowrey of Australia and Martina Navratilova is to meet Pam Whytcross of Australia.

Rangers repeat loss

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's are right back in the American League West pennant race, thanks to timely hitting by Mitchell Page.

Page gave the A's an 8-7 victory over the Texas Rangers in 10 innings Thursday afternoon to move Oakland to within three games of the lead in the West. Page hit a sacrifice fly that scored pinch-runner Del Alton with the winning run.

"We've got a lot of young players who will benefit from the experience," Manager Jack McKeon of the A's said. "The way the race is going in the West, we have as good a chance as anyone if we get the hits when we need them."

The victory was the second straight for the A's in extra innings. Wednesday night they beat the Rangers 2-1 in 15 innings and then Thursday came back from a 6-3 deficit after three innings to win.

"I was looking for a pitch I could hit far enough to get the run home," Page said. He came to bat in the 10th inning with the bases loaded and one out.

Jeff Newman opened the 10th inning with a triple off losing pitcher Paul Lindblad, 1-1. Manager Billy Hunter of the Rangers ordered the next two batters to be walked intentionally to set up a force play at base base.

The strategy worked as Tito Fuentes forced pinch-runner Miguel Dilone at the plate for the first out. But Page then ended the game with a line drive to right field that scored Alton. "We gave them too many chances to come back," Hunter said. "When you get a lead like we had, you have to wrap up the game."

Ferguson Jenkins, the Rangers' best pitcher, took a 6-3 lead into the fourth inning, but an error by right-fielder Bobby Bonds opened the gates for four unearned Oakland runs.

Joe Wallis was the big hitter in the inning with a double to drive in one run, and then he scored on a single by Page.

Golfers find Open course easier

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Many of the big names on the professional golf tour regularly pass the Western Open because of the tough Butler National golf course.

But the way some of the lesser-known members of the tour handled the 7,063-yard, par-72 links in the first round of the $225,000 Western on Thursday may prompt some of the game's big money winners to five playing the tournament extra consideration in the future.

In all, 28 golfers, led by Cesar Sanudo's 5-under 67, broke par on the course while 18 others were at even-par after 36 holes.

"There's no doubt the course isn't playing as difficult," said Allen Miller, who recorded a 4-under 68 to finish one stroke behind Sanudo. "I discovered it in practice and it gave me a little more confidence starting out."

Bob Gilder, whose only victory on the tour was in the 1976 Phoenix Open, joined Miller with a 68 while Rod Curl, Jonn Schroeder and Craig Stadler were all two shots behind with 3-under 69s.

"I haven't been here in a few years because the course has just been too tough," said Curl, a 10-year veteran of the tour. "But the way it's set up now, it's a much more enjoyable course. Nobody wants to come to a tournament and see the golfers bogey every hole. They want to see birdies."

Sanudo, who is playing the tour regularly for the first time since 1975, was 1-over for the first five holes but went on to birdie six of the next 10 to go 5-under. He bogied the par-4 17th after landing in a bunker and finished with a birdie on the 18th where he used an eight-iron out of the rough to drop to within a foot of the hole.

"I was just looking for par on the 18th, but I hit the eight-iron just right and there I was," said Sanudo, who played in only eight tour tournaments in 1976 and four in 1977.

The 34-year-old native of Mexico said his failure to find a sponsor kept him off the tour for a prolonged time. He launched his comeback as a regular by paying his way to his first eight tournaments this year before finding a group of sponsors in San Diego.

So far, he has finished in the money in only two of his 13 tour appearances, winning just $189.38 for his 33rd-place tie in the Magnolia Classic and earned $320 for a 39th-place tie in the Tallahassee Open.

Seven golfers, among them Andy Bean, winner of the Kemper Open and Memphis Classic, finished with 2-under 70s. Bean was 6-under after 10 holes but bogied the next four.

"I played the first 10 holes about as well as they can be played," said Bean. "I made some mistakes on 11, 12 and 13 and I paid for them. That was enough to take me back to the field."

"But I can't be dissatisfied. If I get four 70s, I'd say I stand a good chance to win the tournament."

Tied with Bean were Bill Rogers, Tom Purtzer, Dan January, Jim Jamieson, Phil Hancock, Marty Fleckman, Lon Nielsen and John Adams.

Defending champion Tom Watson shot a 71 and U.S. Open champion Andy North was well back at 76.

NBA to vote on trade

By JOHN NADEL
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — All that apparently stands between the Buffalo Braves moving to San Diego and the Boston Celtics beginning an attempt to return to past glories is a vote of the National Basketball Association's Board of Governors — and that endorsement appears imminent.

"I've talked with individual members of the Board of Governors who think this is an excellent move," said Irving Levin, who agreed Thursday to swap his Celtics for the Braves and plans to shift the Buffalo franchise to San Diego.

John Y. Brown, managing partner of the Braves who agreed to trade the team for the Celtics, said, "As far as I'm concerned, we have a final deal subject to a Board of Governors' approval."

The NBA group is expected to vote on the trade, an outright swap with no cash involved, at a meeting in Chicago next Saturday.

If the vote goes as expected, the shift of the Braves to San Diego will be effective immediately, marking the NBA's return to that city. The Houston Rockets played in San Diego for four seasons before moving to Houston in 1971.

Both Levin and Brown seemed extremely pleased with the swap.

"We've made a very fair agreement with the Sports Arena in San Diego," said Levin, whose partner is Harold Lipton.

"That city is growing by leaps and bounds and the enthusiasm is just tremendous."

Brown has said he wants to become the first owner to win championships in two basketball leagues. He and his former wife, Ellie, ran the American Basketball Association champion Kentucky Colonels.

"I think it's an exciting prospect, certainly a challenging one," said Brown, anticipating taking over at Boston. "You'd like to think you can turn the Celtics back into instant winners in the tradition of the franchise."

Brown built a fortune by running the Kentucky Fried Chicken chain and now owns the Louisville-based Lum's International restaurant chain. He purchased the Braves from Buffalo businessman Paul Snyder in early 1977, seven years after the NBA expansion put a team there.

Snyder tried to move the club to Hollywood, Fla., two years ago, but the City of Buffalo blocked the attempt in court. Last winter, he sold half-interest in the Braves to Harry Mangurian of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., but retained control of the club.

The Braves exercised an escape clause in their Buffalo lease at the end of the 1977-78 season. The clause allowed the club to break the lease if season ticket sales fell below 4,500, and just 2,300 were sold last winter.

Americans love Regatta

By JEFF BRADLEY
AP Sports Writer

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP) — Generations of American rowing men know and love the Henley Royal Regatta and its unique 1-mile, 550-yard course along a picturesque stretch of the River Thames.

Despite chilly, wet weather for the start of the 1978 crew classic, Henley is working its magic yet again.

There are 25 American crews here, from the East and West coasts, crammed into hotels, dormitories and private homes around this usually quiet town of 12,000 which every year comes to life during Regatta week.

"I love it here," said Rick Schmidt of Arlington, Va., a recent Rutgers University graduate here for the first time with the Potomac Boat Club of Washington, D.C., one of eight 8-man coxed crews from the United States to win their opening-round heats on Thursday.

"It's so quaint here and we're enjoying the English beer," he said.

Only two U.S. eights lost on opening day — the Harvard University junior varsity lightweight crew were beaten by 2 1/2 lengths in an all-American clash with Florida Institute of Technology, and the University of Washington's J.V. heaves lost by a length to the Neptune Rowing Club of Ireland.

The most controversial victory belonged to the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, here for the first time. Their opponents, a London University crew called the Tyrian Boat Club, was disqualified after repeated warnings from the race umpire for veering into the Cadets' path.

AAU contract code violations lead to indefinite suspensions

By TOM CANAVAN
AP Sports Writer

Former high jump record holder Dwight Stones, Kate Schmidt, Francie Larrieu and Jane Frederick may never compete again as amateurs.

Schmidt, a javelin thrower; Larrieu, a middle distance runner; Frederick, a pentathlon competitor, and Stones were suspended indefinitely from amateur competition for accepting prize money, the Amateur Athletic Union announced Thursday.

In making the announcement, the Southern Pacific Association of the AAU said the four violated the national AAU code of contracts in accepting a total of $58,000 in prize money for their participation in the ABC television Superstars show. Seven members of the association's nine-man registration committee voted June 23 to suspend the four athletes.

"We sent the athletes and TWI contracts prior to the competition," said Ken Worthen, chairman of the SPA's Registration Committee. "However, TWI and the athletes altered the contacts by adding an amendment which said they maintained the power to give the money they won to the organization of their choice."

Worthen said the athletes then signed the contracts but failed to return them to the AAU for approval of the added amendment. The registration committee said $33,400 of the prize money went to Stones' Desert Oasis Track Club, an organization with four officers — Stones' mother, sister, grandmother and attorney — and two members — Stones and another high jumper.

The other $24,600 went to the Pacific Coast Club, of which Schmidt and Larrieu are members. Frederick, who competes for the Los Angeles Naturites Track Club, asked that her prize money be paid to the Pacific Coast Club.

Worthen maintained that the payment of funds directly to the athlete's club is a clear violation of amateur rules.

Stones, 24, and Schmidt, 24, both two-time Olympic bronze medalists, appeared before the association's committee before the suspension and admitted receiving money, the AAU said. Larrieu, 25, American record holder in the mile, was on vacation while Frederick, 26, American record holder in the pentathlon, was in Europe at the time of the hearing.

None of the athletes were available for comment.

Educators unhappy with federal withholding decision

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Education Agency is unhappy about the federal government's decision to withhold federal money from 50 Texas school districts for "non-compliance" with regulations on bilingual education, desegregation and hiring practices.

The agency said TEA officials had been negotiating for two years with the Office of Civil Rights concerning Texas' bilingual program, but got little cooperation. He said Texas submitted a bilingual plan last October and was told the plan would be fine, with some minor modifications.

He said the revised plan was ruled deficient. The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced Thursday that the 50 Texas schools had fallen short of federal requirements and that money earmarked for them under the Emergency School Aid Act will be placed in legal hold until the schools meet the regulation.

Baling wire supply critical in Texas

AUSTIN — Baling wire is one of those things farmers and ranchers take for granted — until a shortage arrives, and the current supply in Texas is critically low. Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has reported.

In 1974 severe shortages occurred because most wire was imported and shipping was held up because of the oil cutbacks. It was then that American manufacturers went back into production. The demand for baling wire has been weak for the past three years, and manufacturers have produced only enough to meet the annual demand.

This year, however, the coal strike slowed down the production of wire rods. No wire is being imported because prices are not high enough to interest foreign traders at the present time. Brown explained that additional acreage was turned into hay crops, and more grain stands in the severe drought areas are being harvested for hay. The cold winter exhausted the supply of stored feed.

Musician workshops scheduled

Music workshops in elementary music, concert band and trumpet will be offered at the regular registration for the second summer term classes of West Texas State University on July 13 in the WTSU Activities Center.

If a workshop is the only WTSU second summer term class taken, a student may register at the first class meeting.

Dr. Robert Lee Kidd, a general music teacher in the Norman Okla. public schools, will teach the elementary music workshop, which will meet from 12:45 to 3:45 p.m. July 10-14.

The West Texas Concert Band workshop will be July 17-27 from 1 to 5 p.m. with Dr. Gary Garner, WTSU band director, as instructor.

A New York trumpet player, Alan Vizutti, will instruct the trumpet workshop from 2 to 3 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. between July 24 and 28.

Telephone the WTSU music department at 656-2016 for more workshop information and the WTSU registrar at 656-3331 for registration information.

Celebration at Meredith

Festivities at Lake Meredith Recreation Area for the Fourth of July celebration will end in a display of giant fireworks. The activities, sponsored by the communities of Dumas, Stinnett, Borger, Fritch, along with Sears Roebuck and Western Plaza of Amarillo, will include swimming races from 10-12 p.m. at the Spring Canyon Swimming Area, a parade of decorated boats at 5 p.m., and a square dance from 8-9:30 p.m., followed by fireworks.

The West Texas Concert Band workshop will be July 17-27 from 1 to 5 p.m. with Dr. Gary Garner, WTSU band director, as instructor.

A New York trumpet player, Alan Vizutti, will instruct the trumpet workshop from 2 to 3 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. between July 24 and 28.

Telephone the WTSU music department at 656-2016 for more workshop information and the WTSU registrar at 656-3331 for registration information.

Help arrives for Charlie

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Smiles are again creasing the wrinkled, vacant faces of the patients at the Southern Manor Nursing Home here. Eighty-eight-year-old Charlie Lawson is going to be able to stay around awhile.

Dozens of persons from across the nation — including a stooped, shabbily-dressed, elderly black man who gave a dollar and the head of a giant corporation who gave $1,200 — have contributed enough for Lawson to remain at the nursing home for several months.

Lawson is blind in one eye, nearly deaf and has hardening of the arteries. But state Medicaid officials ruled that since he was not receiving daily medication, he was too healthy to receive the $462 monthly payments that financed his 15-month stay at the nursing home.

The popular Lawson was to have been evicted by Father's Day and would have been forced to live alone on only $160 per month in Social Security payments. His son and grandchildren weren't able to support him and are appealing the decision.

"We have enough money now for Charlie to stay for seven months. If all of the pledges come in, we'll have enough for him to stay from now on, or until the pledges stop," Marsha Jones, a registered nurse consultant at the home, said Wednesday.

The Northside Lions Club and Ronald Freed, owner of the nursing home, donated enough money for Lawson to avoid eviction by June 18. When The Associated Press sent the story nationwide, donations began pouring in.

"I think this is just wonderful," said Lawson. "I'm ashamed of it. I'm ashamed for them to have to help me, but I tell you right now, they sure have helped me. I knew there were more good people in the world yet. They couldn't have been any nicer.

"I'm so happy I can stay here. I sure do appreciate it." The smiling, friendly Lawson helps nurses care for some of his fellow patients and boosts morale among both patients and staff members, said Ms. Jones. The fragile mood of the patients darkened, she said, when it appeared Lawson would have to leave.

The elderly man who donated a wadded dollar bill simply shuffled in last week, handed Lawson the bill and left before anyone could find out his name. Lawson said the man introduced himself as "Mr. West."

Meanwhile, Oscar Wyatt Jr., head of Coastal States Gas Corp. of Houston, gave $300 per month for four months. A Waco, Texas, bail bondsman donated $100 and the crew of the USS Coral Sea vowed to take up a collection for Lawson. A Pikesville, Md., salesman sent $150.

Along with his $100, the black bondsman in Waco included a touching note to nursing home officials about Lawson, a white man.

In broken grammar, the bondsman wrote: "I am a Black Man, after all Charlie is a Man and I am a man. Regardless of race, Creed or Color, God want us to help those that need help — and he said he will return our blessings in Double Folds. If at anytime I can be of further service to Charlie, you, or anyone, or any Nursing Home, do not hesitate to call upon me. I assure you it will be a Pleasure."

Dispute jeopardizes Texas school funds

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — About 45 Texas school districts may lose approximately $20 million in federal grants because of a dispute between state and federal agencies over bilingual education.

The money would be used for training teachers and developing language testing programs.

The Austin American-Statesman Thursday quoted William Bednar Jr., legal counselor to the Texas Education Agency, as saying specific reasons for the money holdup are unclear. He said he understood federal officials are citing discrimination against bilingual students as the reason for withholding the funds.

Bednar was in Fort Worth today for the State Bar convention and could not be reached for comment.

Other TEA officials said they could not comment.

"We've been doing the same thing for the past four or five years and all of a sudden they decide we are not in compliance with the law. I can't believe it," Bednar told the American-Statesman.

"We only found out about it by a chance phone call. They say we failed to comply with a 1975 Supreme Court decision which resulted in a set of guidelines for bilingual education."

Bednar said the TEA had been negotiating with the Office of Civil Rights for two years on Texas' bilingual program "and they have continually delayed or not gotten back to us on our proposals. Now they turn around and say we are not in compliance."

Bednar said the state first turned in a bilingual plan in October 1977 and received word that it was fine with some minor changes. However, in March the revised plan was ruled deficient.

The attorney said he thought the money holdup was "an arm-twisting game" by federal education officials. "They want school districts to admit they have discriminated and get better position in the suit against the state which is scheduled in November," he said.

In the suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Tyler, by the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund in 1975, alleges that thousands of pupils are not getting bilingual programs they are entitled to.

Bednar said school districts that will lose money include Austin, Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Houston and Corpus Christi. He said Houston would be the big loser since it asked for $3.5 million.

He said the TEA itself has been asked to furnish records to federal officials and may lose about $600,000 in federal money earmarked for bilingual education.

Lake Wallenpaupack, the largest manmade lake in Pennsylvania, has 52 miles of shoreline, and has a total area of 9 square miles.
