PEGGY COX and LaWayne Hogan go over pledge cards that were brought in at Thursdays United Way report meeting. A total of $147,988 was brought in in pledges. Vic Raymond, chairman of the 1978 campaign, said, "When all of the employee campaigns are completed and remaining prospects seen, I'm confident we will be over the top." The 1978 goal is $158,000 and the remainder of the funds should be in by next Thursday's victory meeting.

Unemployment drops

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unemployment rate dropped from 6 percent to 5.8 percent in October, as more adult women succeeded in finding jobs, the Labor Department said today.

The report indicated the job situation was a bright spot in an economy plagued by rising interest rates and inflation all year. October's jobless rate was the lowest since a 5.7 percent rate last June.

For adult women, the unemployment rate dropped from 6 percent to 5.6 percent, the lowest level since August 1974 when it was 5.4 percent.

About 35.7 million women over age 20 held jobs last month out of a population group of 76 million, the department said. About 2.1 million adult women were reported looking for work.

Strong activity in the airline, construction and service industries contributed to continued big increases in new jobs among all workers, the department said.

The number of persons holding jobs advanced by 325,000, about average for the year, to 95.2 million. Over the past year, strong economic growth has increased employment by 3.6 million.

However, some economists predict that the government's credit-tightening measures to protect the dollar will push unemployment upward next year.

Here are the unemployment rates for different categories in October:

—All workers 5.8 percent, down from 6 percent.

—Adult men 4 percent, unchanged.

—Adult women 5.6 percent, down from 6 percent.

—Teens 16.3 percent, down from 16.6 percent.

—Whites 5.1 percent, down from 5.3 percent.

—Blacks and other minorities

11.4 percent, up from 11.2 percent.

—Full-time workers 5.3 percent, down from 5.5 percent.

—Non-farm laborers 11.3 percent, up from 10.7 percent.

—Black teen-agers 34.3 percent, down from 34.6 percent.

The report said the average work week was 35.8 hours, unchanged from August and September.

Average hourly earnings of production workers increased 0.9 percent during October and 8.6 percent from a year ago, about the same as the rate of inflation.

Average hourly earnings were $5.86 and weekly earnings were $210.37.

Unemployment reached a peak of 9.1 percent in October 1974 before steadily declining to about 6 percent, where it stood last month.

A booming economy and government programs created thousands of jobs during that period, but some economists say the resulting higher buying power of the workers who got them contributed to inflation.

The government wants to see the economy grow slowly but steadily in an attempt to beat inflation and the dollar problem. The Federal Reserve is driving up interest rates, making it harder for businesses to borrow money.

Citibank raises prime rate

NEW YORK (AP) — Citibank, the nation's second largest bank, today raised its prime rate a half-percentage point to 10 1/2%, the first bank to do so.

The move was seen as stemming from action taken in Washington earlier this week to strengthen the dollar.

Most of the nation's major banks, responding to pressures from the Federal Reserve Board, raised their prime rates — the interest charged to preferred corporate customers — to 10 1/2 percent.

But analysts have been predicting a rise to 10 3/4 percent following the Fed's action Wednesday in raising the discount rate — charged to member banks for loans — from 8 1/2 percent to a record 9 1/2 percent.

The prime rate has no direct effect on consumer loan and mortgage rates, but is considered a good predictor of future moves in such rates.

Carter makes campaign swing

CHICAGO (AP) — President Carter, making a fast-paced campaign swing through six states, is talking as if he wants to turn Tuesday's election into a referendum on his administration's programs.

The president completes the hectic two-day tour today with appearances at Democratic rallies in Oregon, California and Minnesota before heading to Camp David, Md., for the weekend.

After three stops at "get-out-the-vote" rallies Thursday, Carter spent the night at the home of Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic, protégé of the late Mayor Richard J. Daley.

In nearby Skokie, Ill., in New York City and in Flint, Mich., the president repeatedly asked crowds Thursday if they "cared enough" about programs he has embarked upon — reducing unemployment, inflation and the federal deficit and maintaining peace — to vote.

"We have raised the banner of principle, of honesty, of decency, of protection for human rights," Carter said at a rally on Wall Street in New York City for Gov. Hugh L. Carey and other Democrats.

The same basic message was delivered at a Skokie rally for Rep. Abner Mikva. "I need all the help I can get," Carter said after receiving a loud, prolonged welcome. "Do you care enough about your country between now and next Tuesday to work hard to elect Abner Mikva to help me get inflation under control?"

Clements, oil firm named in lawsuit

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A Dallas oil drilling firm headed by Texas Republican gubernatorial candidate William Clements has been named in a $42 million lawsuit filed by an Iowa millionaire who claims he was swindled out of $16.9 million in a Persian Gulf oil deal.

A copyright story in today's San Diego Union says Iowa businessman Roy J. Carver's suit contends that in late 1975, acting on advice from an executive of Clements' SEDCO Inc. drilling firm, he paid a "commission" to Ali Jaidah, then oil minister of the Persian Gulf emirate of Qatar, for permission to drill for oil off the Qatar coast.

Clements, a former U.S. undersecretary of defense, is in a tight race with Texas Attorney General John Hill for Texas governor.

SEDCO lawyers, according to the Union story, sought and obtained a delay in the deadline for filing a reply to the suit until Nov. 15 — one week after Tuesday's election.

SEDCO President B. Gill Clements, son of the gubernatorial candidate, told the Union his father, then serving as undersecretary of defense in Washington, had no active involvement in SEDCO activities during the period of the Qatar project. The elder Clements, his son said, relinquished his corporate post when he went to Washington, although he retained ownership of $100 million in SEDCO stock.

B. Gill Clements denied that the firm played any part in the payment of Carver's alleged commission to Jaidah. Such commissions were not specifically outlawed by Congress until 1977.

Although Carver's suit does not specify the amount of the alleged bribe to Jaidah, the Union reports it was told it was $1.5 million, and that the money was deposited in the Swiss bank account of a Jaidah relative.

Efforts to reach Jaidah at OLEC headquarters in Vienna were unsuccessful as of late Thursday and a spokesman at the Qatar embassy in Washington, D.C., said Qatar officials would respond only to written inquiries about the alleged payment.

Carver's suit was filed July 20 in federal court in Davenport, Iowa. Details in it outline a complicated scheme by which Carver contends he was victimized.

Carver, who amassed a $250 million fortune with his Iowa-based Bandag tire recapping company, claims in the suit he was persuaded to become involved in the oil venture by former Georgia state Sen. Eugene Holley.

A PANHANDLE WOMAN was injured late Thursday in an accident on Highway 60 just east of Price road. Margaret Cook, 34, was taken to Highland General Hospital with possible back and neck injuries.

Dollar puts on more muscle

LONDON (AP) — The dollar put on more muscle on foreign exchanges today in continuing response to President Carter's rescue measures. The price of gold dropped.

The pound weakened in London to $1.9825, compared to $1.9860 Thursday, but was looking stronger against leading European currencies.

There was no trading in Tokyo because of a national holiday. But on Thursday the dollar closed at 186.025 yen, up from 178.80 Wednesday.

Early dollar rates in major European financial centers, compared to Thursday:

Frankfurt — 1.8725 marks, up from 1.8705.

Zurich — 1.6265 Swiss francs, up from 1.6009.

Paris — 4.3075 French francs, up from 4.2700.

Milan — 834.5 lire, up from 830.5.

Gold prices fell back in London to $219.55 per Troy ounce, compared to $221.75 Thursday. In Zurich, Europe's other major bullion market, the price was $220.00 an ounce, compared to $221.50 Thursday.

Despite the initial promising results of Carter's plan, world currency dealers are having second thoughts about the rescue moves.

"The measures were definitely a step in the right direction but I would still like to see some action on slowing inflation and reducing the U.S. trade deficit," a dealer in a Paris bank said Thursday.

The dollar's slump was caused largely by the United States buying much more abroad than it sells.

Candidates wrapping up campaigns

By The Associated Press
With less than a week of campaign time left, candidates are zeroing in on major metropolitan areas.

Republican John Tower, seeking re-election to the U.S. Senate, said Thursday in Austin that he has consistently opposed the imposition of wage and price controls.

"The record shows that in 1974 I led not one, but two, battles which successfully ended wage and price controls. The experience we gained with those controls illustrates the unworkable nature of these controls in combating the real economic sickness of excessive government spending," Tower said.

Tower's opponent, Democrat Bob Krueger, said Thursday in Midland-Odessa that Tower is a "DeSoto" that's been around a long time, but that he is a "Mustang" full of new ideas and life.

"At worst, the polls show us tied or significantly ahead in the race," Krueger said, exuding confidence.

John Hill, Democratic candidate for governor, said Thursday in Beaumont that he would have a six-point budget management program to reduce waste in state government, if elected governor. He said his program would include "a trade-off policy in state budget writing to require state agencies to identify low-priority programs they are willing to reduce or eliminate so the funds can be used to finance higher priority new programs."

Meanwhile, Hill's opponent, Republican Bill Clements, said he will start his own investigation of three-year-old charges of misuse of public funds in Webb County. Clements had said Wednesday that Hill was responsible for a story alleging the Clements campaign promised a Laredo man $200,000 in exchange for a deposition damaging to Hill.

Mark White, Democratic candidate for attorney general, announced his endorsement by three major Mexican-American organizations. He said the support came from the American GI Forum, the League of United Latin America Citizens and the Mexican-American Democrats.

White's Republican opponent, Jim Baker, appeared Thursday before the Political Association of Mexican-Americans. He listed newspaper endorsements by the Austin American-Statesman, El Paso Times, Marshall News Messenger, Sherman Democrat, Midland Reporter-Telegram, Austin Citizen and the Daily Texan.

In Austin, Secretary of State Steve Oaks predicted Thursday that heavy absentee voting in metropolitan areas — particularly in Republican strongholds — indicate some tight races Tuesday.

Jarvis talks, politicians listen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There's a new variation of an old joke: A short, old man in a rumpled suit is speaking with the pope on a Vatican balcony. Below, a young Italian boy looks up and asks his father:

"Who's that man in robes up there talking to Howard Jarvis?"

Not a true story, of course, but Howard Jarvis, author of California's Proposition 13, has become a celebrity since the victory of his property tax cutting measure in June.

Jarvis, though he was not a candidate, was the big winner in the last election and figures to be an important factor in Tuesday's election, too. All this has changed Howard Jarvis' life.

The victory of Proposition 13, which cut property taxes in California an average of 57 percent, put Jarvis on the cover of Time magazine and in the political spotlight. Candidates in every state seek his endorsement — "They line up like damned lemmings," said the blustery, often profane Jarvis.

Almost overnight Jarvis became a national hero to many Americans, and he says people cheer him all over. "Everywhere I go," he said, "Even in restaurants I've never been in before. We walked into one in New York the other night, and everybody in the place stood up and clapped before I even got to sit down.

"Damndest thing you ever saw."

And don't think the 75-year-old Jarvis isn't having the time of his life as he flits around the country at breakneck pace, spreading his gospel of tax reforms.

"I'm enjoying it," he said. "When one old guy can create this kind of stir, that is something. All over. I don't care whether it's Montana or Louisiana or where. I get on the plane and all the pilots come back and say hello and all the stewardesses come up and kiss me on the cheek.

"All the guys on the plane come up and introduce themselves. I'll have a hundred introductions between here and Chicago."

Jarvis no sooner climbed down from the Proposition 13 victory podium than he was off on a nationwide tour, generating similar measures in other states and calling for cuts in federal taxes.

He has been to 45 states, is going on a speaking tour in England next month and has done radio and television broadcasts in Italy, France, Belgium, Holland and West Germany.

Do they know him in all those places? "Oh hell, yes," he roared. "And in Canada, Argentina, Japan, Australia and New Zealand."

Wherever he goes, he said, people come to hear him speak.

"I was in Long Island the other night and drew 6,500 people. I was in a couple of college towns and drew 4,000. The politicians are running around drawing 45, and 40 of those are their relatives."

Jarvis has formed a new group called the American Tax Reduction Movement and has managed to get a bill introduced in the House of Representatives that would cut federal spending $100 billion over the next four years and federal income taxes $50 billion over the same period. It was co-sponsored by dozens of congressmen.

"Those two things will bring a balanced budget," Jarvis said.

Jarvis, who admits to being "half a millionaire," sold his business, which made aircraft and appliance parts, and retired 15 years ago — just about the time he became active in tax causes. About four years ago he took a job as director of an apartment owners' association, but since Proposition 13's win he has another source of income — the lecture circuit.

He signed with the William Morris Agency — which also represents former President Gerald Ford, actress Jane Fonda and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin among others.

OPINION PAGE

Outwitting energy bureaucrats

We have mentioned before the fallacy of governmental agencies mandating the type and amount of "protective" equipment an industry must purchase. Only recently the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) instructed the utilities industry that it must spend $10 billion for stack scrubbers to control emissions from new coal-fired plants.

The $10 billion figure seems to be a favorite for the federal bureaucracy. That was the same amount allocated to set up the Department of Energy (DOE). In the one case the money will come from consumers as the utility industry passes on the added costs. In the other the money is extracted directly from the same people as taxpayers.

The two expenditures have more than just their amount in common. The waste factor is tremendous for both.

We have gained nothing save confusion and no energy from the new DOE agency.

Even as the release from EPA reached our attention, at least one utility was installing a Bag House type control for a power plant which bids fair to do a better job than scrubbers.

And recently the Sundance Oil Co., of Denver has purchased a $4.7 million interest in a Hong Kong company whose technology may allow coal - fired plants to comply with air quality standards in sulfur dioxide and nitrous oxide emissions.

The firm is the Kintyre Enterprises Ltd., which has rights in new technology for cleaning, transporting and burning coal for use in generating electric power.

The Lower Colorado River Authority of Austin, Tex., said it will begin testing the processed fuel in its Sim Gideon Plant by the end of the year. The technology involves burning purified coal in a 15-megawatt composite burner designed and manufactured by the Kintyre company.

Another test, according to the Lower Colorado River Authority, would mean the complete conversion of one unit at a second plant and the purchase of specially processed clean fuel from Australia.

The processed coal can be imported from Australia for $1.75 per million British Thermal Units (BTU) compared with a cost of $2.15 per million BTUs for natural gas.

The cost of the project is about $819,000. An additional $900,000 would be spent converting the plant. The authority called the price. "An incredible bargain considering the estimated $100 million it would cost to convert all three units using conventional coal - conversion technology." The authority already has reserves of lignite coal, and, using the cleaning process on that coal, the clean lignite wouldn't require scrubbers for additional cleaning.

So, as usual, industry is way ahead of the Washington chair - borne "experts" whose snail - like pace and ineptitude may be the utility industry's best salvation.

We expect there will be other innovations in the area of efficient burning of fossil fuels. They will probably be tested and in use before too many new generating plants will be hamstrung by mandates of the EPA.

The 95th's record

In less than three months, the 96th Congress - most of which will be chosen in the Nov. 7 mid - term election - starts on a whole new workload.

Convening Jan. 15, it will face many of the issues the 95th did not complete - plus a probable U.S. - Soviet Salt II deal, and bills on national health insurance, welfare reform, and energy production.

At stake in the general election are 435 seats in the House of Representatives and 35 seats in the Senate.

As usual, most of the incumbents are running on records established during the 95th Congress - the first under President Carter, who ended an eight - year Republican hold on the White House.

Of course, Carter - fighting strong domestic criticism over inflation - has a big stake in the results of the voting for the House and Senate.

The heavily Democratic 95th Congress overcame initial friction with the Carter administration to produce major legislation - much during a marathon final session.

Carter triumphed when he finally got the Senate and House to give him an energy bill, jobs legislation and a tax cut, all of which cleared on the final day. And Congress upheld his vetoes of a "pork barrel" - style public works bill and funds for a nuclear - powered aircraft carrier.

But the 95th never became a rubber - stamp Congress.

It did not enact such legislation as Carter's four - part election reform package; creation of a separate education department; no - fault auto insurance; labor law reform; a proposal to hold down rising hospital costs; the Alaska land bill and major revision of the federal criminal code.

Some of the legislation Congress did approve:

- A five - part energy package - the president's top - priority issue. It includes a controversial provision phasing out U.S. regulations on the price of natural gas by 1985. Carter fought that.

- A treaty, ratified by the Senate, ceding the U.S. - built Panama Canal in the year 2000. It was the first issue on which Carter lobbied face - to - face.

- The Humphrey - Hawkins Bill setting a 4 percent unemployment goal by 1983, with the federal government as employer of last resort.

- An $18.7 billion tax cut, including $12.7 billion for individuals. The individual tax cut - except in the cases of the very poor or large families - will not offset congressional - approved hikes in January in Social Security.

- Reform of the Civil Service - a major revamping that could lead to Carter's key campaign goal: making the federal bureaucracy more efficient.

- An extension for three years and three months of the Equal Rights Amendment ratification deadline, giving backers a chance to win approval from the needed three more states.

Other key congressional achievements: creation of the energy department; an increase in the minimum wage; a constitutional amendment giving the District of Columbia voting representation in Congress; a government wide - ethics code; establishment of a national consumer bank; new loan guarantees to New York City; reduction of U.S. regulations on airlines and the nation's first inland waterway fees.

In the last days, the House reprimanded three of its members accused of involvement in the Korean scandal.

A final note: in 1977, Congress approved a raise from $44,600 to $57,500 for all its members and corresponding pay boosts for the top echelons of the federal government.

This year it voted to freeze those salaries.

By MARTHA ANGLE
and ROBERT WALTERS

DES MOINES (NEA) - In a year when the country is supposedly swinging to the right, Americans for Democratic Action rating as the most liberal member of the U.S. Senate is not exactly a political asset.

No one understands that better than Sen. Dick Clark, D - Iowa, holder of the dubious distinction. But he isn't about to change his spots simply because liberalism is out of fashion.

"I decided when I came to the Senate that I'd do what I felt was right and I'm not going to start flipping now," Clark said. "I'd rather not be here than to become a nothing."

Stubborn allegiance to principle is easy enough for a Ted Kennedy, who can be as liberal as he wants without risking his Senate seat, but it is a genuine gamble in a state where no Democrat has ever been re-elected to the Senate.

So far, the gamble seems to be paying off. The respected Iowa Poll of the Des Moines Register shows Clark clinging to an 11 - point lead over his conservative GOP challenger, former Lt. Gov. Roger Jepsen. The margin has remained essentially unchanged since July.

Jepsen is as conservative as Clark is liberal - maybe more so, since he is a darling of the "New Right" who focuses as much on inflammatory social issues like abortion as he does on traditional economic and foreign policy matters.

And it is those social issues - especially the emotional abortion controversy - that threaten Clark's re - election at this juncture. About 20 percent of Iowa voters are Roman Catholic, and the church is playing an active sub rosa role in the campaign. Clark's opposition to tuition tax credits for private and parochial pupils has further antagonized many Roman Catholics, who would normally vote Democratic.

When Clark and Kennedy, who was in Iowa this month to campaign for his Senate colleague, appeared at an airport rally in Dubuque, a Roman Catholic stronghold, they were all but drowned out by strident jeers from anti - abortion activists.

Jepsen, on the other hand, has problems within his own party. GOP regulars aligned with moderate Gov. Robert Ray, Iowa's most popular politician of either party, were dismayed when the "New Right" conservative upset one of their own in the primary. The wounds have not healed.

Between September and October, Clark lost 8 points among likely Democratic voters and 10 among likely Independent voters, although he is still the choice of a majority of both groups. During the same period, Jepsen dropped 13 points among likely Republican voters.

With Clark now holding a 50 - to - 39 percent lead among all voters, the key to the election probably rests with the undecideds - some of whom are Roman Catholic Democrats, others of whom are disenchanted Republican moderates.

Although Clark has made a national reputation for his leadership in government reform and his expertise in foreign affairs, (he chairs the Africa subcommittee of the Foreign Relations Committee), he has never ignored his fences back home.

He serves on the Agriculture Committee, which is vital to Iowa farmers, and has returned home more often than any member of the Senate over his six - year term. He won in 1972 by walking from one end of the state to the other and he has never quit hiking.

If he loses this year, it will not be because he beat himself. It will not even be because he is the most liberal member of the Senate, although that doesn't help right now.

If Dick Clark loses, it will be the single - issue voter who defeat him - the voters who care more about abortion than agriculture, more about gun control than government reform, more about tuition credits than tax reforms.

The politics of the "New Right" is the politics of single - issue anger. Nowhere in the nation will it be put to the test more directly than in Iowa this November 7.

Today in history

Today is Friday, Nov. 3, the 307th day of 1978. There are 56 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1903, Panama proclaimed its independence from Colombia, with support from the United States.

On this date:
In 1796, John Adams was elected the second president of the United States.

In 1814, European powers, seeking to resolve the problems left in the wake of the Napoleonic Wars, opened the Congress of Vienna.

The American members of this council fail to understand that, for the Soviets, trade is simply another weapon in the war against the West - a means of enhancing the strategic military capabilities of the Communist heartland.

Passiveness of the Western countries to the terrorist threats will lead to the downfall of free societies. Definite action against them is essential.

To allow terrorists to enjoy virtual immunity and the protection of radical host states, such as Libya and Iraq have proven to be, is to court disaster in the West.

In 1896, Idaho granted full suffrage to women by popular vote.

In 1936, President Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal got a vote of confidence at the polls as his Republican presidential rival, Alf Landon, carried only Maine and Vermont.

In 1964, President Lyndon Johnson swamped Republican Barry Goldwater in a presidential election.

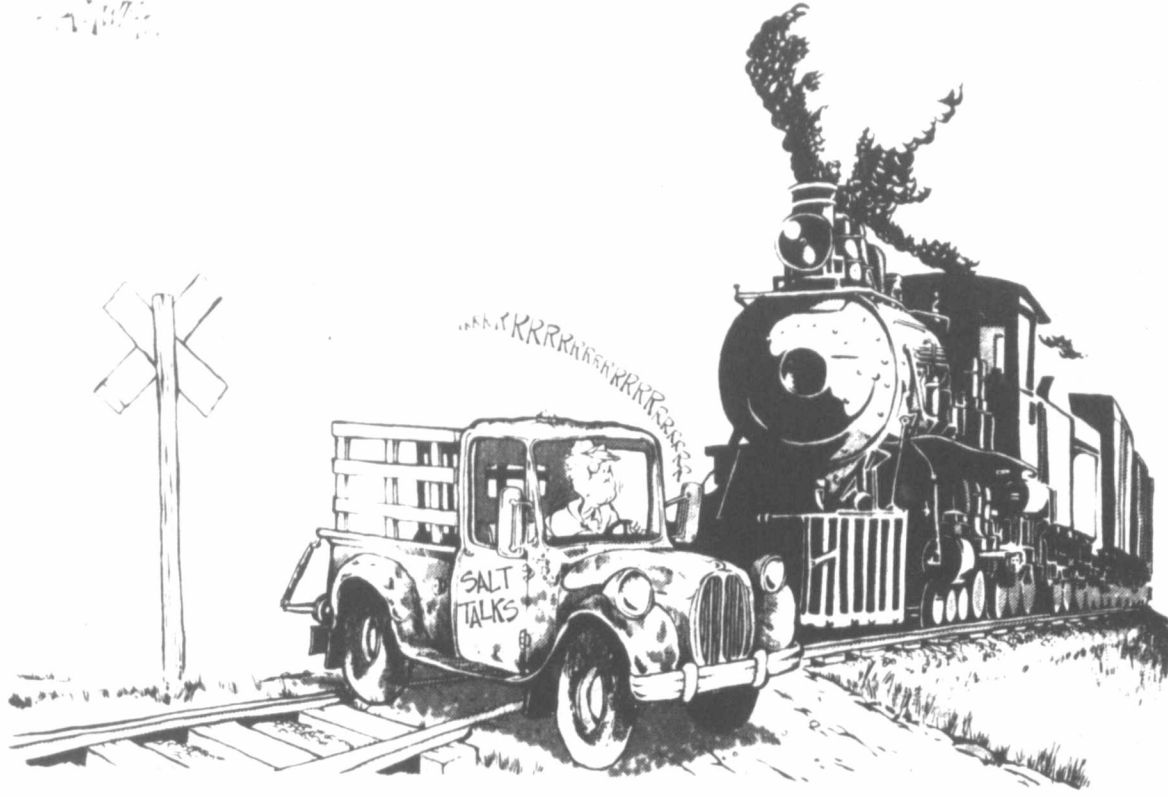

Ten years ago: The funeral in Greece of former Greek Premier George Papandreou turned into a mammoth rally against the military regime.

Five years ago: The U.N. Emergency Force trying to end Middle East hostilities said it had succeeded in easing tensions between Egyptian and Israeli troops west of the Suez Canal.

One year ago: It was announced that the Crown of St. Stephen and other ancient Polish relics that had been in U.S. custody since World War II would be returned to their homeland.

Today's birthdays: Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana is 60 years old. Actor Charles Bronson is 56. Columnist James Reston is 69. Former baseball star Bob Feller is 60.

Old dominos, new game

By DON GRAFF

Whatever became of the domino theory? There are some among us who very likely would prefer not to be reminded that it ever existed, let alone be provided with an updating.

The domino theory, it may be recalled, was much heard during the height of the Vietnam war as a primary justification for preventing at all costs a Communist takeover throughout the Indochina peninsula.

If Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia fell, the argument went, they in turn would topple Thailand, Malaysia and the other economically weak and politically shaky Southeast Asian lands beyond.

Indochina is now Communist, although far from harmoniously so. And the onetime potential dominos have become something called ASEAN - the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

ASEAN groups Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia and the Philippines in something that is short of a full-fledged alliance, but much more than a paper expression of regional solidarity such as the fractious Organization of African States.

The politics of most of the five members still leave considerable to be desired from a Western democratic point of view and problems are a common denominator of their economies. But in both respects they are looking much more robust today than in that dark period when Vietnam was about to go under and, it was feared, take them along.

Particularly interesting under the circumstances is that the United States is not a member nor, Communist denunciations to the contrary, is it calling the plays for the members. ASEAN is no SEATO - the defunct Southeast Asia Treaty Organization which had a significance for the State Department of John Foster Dulles but virtually nowhere else.

ASEAN certainly has the best wishes and assistance as required of the United States, but it is essentially a creation of the five Southeast Asian members for their mutual security and economic development.

It has had some interesting effects on the politics of the region. Within it, Malaysia, Singapore and Indonesia have managed to put aside squabbles that had made them vulnerable to outside manipulation, and the Philippines and Malaysia have turned off what had been a very low - voltage territorial dispute over northeast Borneo.

ASEAN's major current problem may well be its increasing popularity in the very quarters which once seemed to threaten it. All the major Communist powers in the area are showing it marked signs of favor.

Relations with China are generally cordial. The Soviet Union is making friendly overtures, including a proposed visit to several ASEAN capitals by a deputy foreign minister. And Vietnam, which this summer turned off its propaganda assault on the group as creatures of American policy, is now seeking a much closer association itself.

The Vietnamese may see in ASEAN, it is being suggested, both a source of assistance for their tattered economy and political support in the mounting conflict with their Chinese neighbors. An eventual bid for membership is not inconceivable, although not likely under the present circumstances to be favorably received.

ASEAN for the present is playing it very cool, responding cordially to all parties but avoiding involvement with any and in the inter - Communist feud.

So much for dominos. It's an entirely new game in Southeast Asia these days.

The terrorists... and the Soviets

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

(Editor's note: Mr. Harrigan is a nationally known writer and lecturer specializing in national defense, economic and American heritage subjects. His articles appear in over 100 leading magazines and newspapers.)

The success of European terrorist groups in escaping police dragnets is evidence of their superior organization, finances and equipment. They have powerful friends and allies to assist them in their brutal, destructive operations.

Valuable insights into the character of contemporary terrorism is presented in a recent issue of International Background, a new journal of political and social analysis published in Leichtenstein.

The journal notes that the present - day terrorist groups constitute "terrorism international, intent on undermining the present structure of bourgeois society."

The terrorists want to destroy the values in a free society. Therefore, they use a maximum of brutality. The consequences of their "kneecappings" and assassinations aren't of primary interest to them. They simply want to carry out massacres that demoralize society.

International Background cites the involvement of the Soviet Union, saying, "The Soviets are instrumental in seeing to it that the terrorist groups are not only well - trained but well - equipped. Officially, the Kremlin disassociates itself from individual terror, highjacking of airplanes, etc. In reality, the Soviets are known to control certain terror organizations and are on excellent terms with others. For naturally, these organizations can be useful - without, of course, involving the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

These are facts that need to be much better known in the United States. What's happening in Europe, insofar as terrorism is concerned, is not an exclusively European affair. It's something that concerns free men everywhere.

Unfortunately, influential circles in the West fail to grasp the overall threat from revolutionary ideas and action. In the business world, for example, an organization called the US - USSR Trade and Economic Council attempts to promote trade between the two countries.

The American members of this council fail to understand that, for the Soviets, trade is simply another weapon in the war against the West - a means of enhancing the strategic military capabilities of the Communist heartland.

Passiveness of the Western countries to the terrorist threats will lead to the downfall of free societies. Definite action against them is essential.

To allow terrorists to enjoy virtual immunity and the protection of radical host states, such as Libya and Iraq have proven to be, is to court disaster in the West.

Expectations: self-fulfilling prophecy

(Third of a series)

Perhaps the most insidious evil in the overall evil of the pernicious inflation now cursing our nation is the spreading expectation that inflation will become permanent - a "psychology of inflation" that is dangerously self - fulfilling.

For as millions of Americans become resigned to the prospect that the price spiral is a fact of life to be accepted for the indefinite future and as additional millions become convinced that this White House leadership cannot pull together a workable anti - inflation program, these unhealthy developments follow:

More and more workers demand wage hikes to keep up with past price increases and to get a jump ahead of future price increases - thereby adding to the current inflation rate.

More and more union leaders insist on cost of living adjustment clauses in their union contracts to give them automatic pay raises as the Consumer Price Index climbs. Right now, an estimated half of our total population - Social Security and welfare recipients as well as workers - are covered by "COLAs."

More and more businesses boost prices in anticipation of the wage dema - is and of the eventual imposition of wage - price controls (even though Congress would have to vote the controls).

More and more consumers try a buy big and small - ticket items "ahead" to beat the price increases they are sure will come. The whole sick pyramid collapses into a business slump, which leads to "reflation" policies and a new round of inflation.

There are signs everywhere that this psychology of inflation is becoming ever more powerful - not weaker. To illustrate:

(1) Only a few years ago, inflation - sensitive, "alternative" mortgages were being sharply denounced by consumer, labor and other groups - and bills to permit federally chartered savings and loan associations to offer new types of mortgages were heavily defeated in Congress. Now new types of home loans are being offered - and widely accepted by homeowners - in at least 17 states. Some of the mortgages have interest rates that vary with major money market rates.

Opposition to the alternative mortgages has dwindled, if not disappeared entirely, in Congress, reports my Washington associate Brooke Shearer. Even without formal congressional approval, federal S&Ls may soon get authority to offer the new variations in states where state - chartered S&Ls may now do so.

It will may be that the fixed - rate, level - payment mortgage is on the way to becoming the "alternative" and the new types - the rollover, graduated - payment, variable, reverse mortgages - are to become the "norm."

(2) When computer - assisted check - out systems began to appear in supermarkets and department stores several years ago, shoppers protested, feared that prices on products and shelves would disappear. In some areas, laws were passed to outlaw the removal of prices from individual items and - or shelves, and some merchants voluntarily agreed to continue marking goods with price tags.

Resistance to this labor - saving and inflation - inspired change has declined, too. Shoppers continue to patronize stores which don't price - mark each product - even though none of the predicted savings from the change has been passed on to consumers.

(3) The automatic fuel adjustment clause is an example of a now commonplace inflation - adjustment mechanism. It enables many utilities to pass along increased fuel costs to consumers in the form of higher rates - boosts which need no review by state regulators.

(4) And a tiny but most revealing sign of the inflation psychology was the issuance of the U.S. Postal Service some months ago of a series of postage stamps that carried no value marking. These stamps - showing an eagle carrying the letter "A" - actually were printed in 1975 and stored as a contingency measure until, as a postal official told Shearer, "we needed a stamp but didn't know what the rate would be." The Postal Service says it has no more unmarked stamps in storage. But that's not so reassuring in view of the fact that this in no way stops it from requesting another printing - just in case.

Only an all - out, courageous attack on inflation at its source and with weapons that are new and bold can break the psychology's grip. This attack with these weapons is still to come.

State's first hospice given ok by board

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The state's first hospice to provide medical and emotional support for dying patients and follow-up care for the bereaved has been approved by the Texas Health Facilities Commission.

Patients would be seen in their homes by a team including a cancer specialist, nurses, ministers and a medical social worker.

The commission voted 2-1 to override a recommendation of hearing examiner John Neel and grant a certificate of need to Southeast Texas Hospice, Inc. of Orange.

The certificate limits the hospice to patients with written prognoses of three months or less to live. It will provide in-home care in Jefferson, Orange, Hardin, Newton and Jasper Counties.

Dan McNery, the commission's general counsel, said the area has "one of the highest cancer death rates in the state" — 187 deaths per 100,000 population in 1976, compared with 154 statewide.

All five home health care agencies in the area protested the application. They have the right to appeal the commission's action to a district court.

His voice shaking, commission chairman Melvin Rowland announced that he had "after much study and thought" decided that the hospice should be approved, despite Neel's finding it was not needed.

"If someone knows of a method that the pain and suffering of a terminally ill cancer patient can be alleviated and life made more meaningful in their 'waning' days, then I am in favor of giving them every opportunity to do so," Rowland said.

Vice chairman Renal Rosson voted with Rowland. Commission member Bolin Mahaffey voted "no," saying the hospice was unneeded.

"While existing home health agencies care for terminally ill patients, no agency limits its services to only terminally ill cancer patients or specializes in the care of terminally ill cancer patients," the order prepared by Rowland said.

It noted that a primary objective of the hospice would be control of chronic pain and that the staff physician would be a cancer specialist trained in pain control.

The hospice would serve its patients in their homes, not in an institution, and would provide "outpatient medical, social, therapeutic, psychological and spiritual care, and bereavement follow-up," the commission order observed.

Michael Sharp of Austin, attorney for the hospice, said people neglect the needs of the terminally ill patient.

"I am talking about the one that is conscious and struggling to live out his life the richest he can. We are not dealing with this," Sharp said.

Baptist convention adjourns before attacking moral issue

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Messengers to the 93rd annual session of the Baptist General Convention of Texas have adjourned after avoiding debate of a Houston minister's resolution concerning oral sex between husband and wife.

In a basically issue-free convention, the oral sex resolution drafted by the Rev. Glynn Little of Langwood Baptist Church in Houston was about the only controversy to arise.

Little defused the issue Thursday by reading the messengers a letter he had sent newly re-elected convention president Milton Cunningham, pastor of Houston's Westbury Baptist Church.

Cunningham had told a news conference the oral sex matter was a "satellite concern."

He said the convention should be remembered not for the issue raised by Little but for its commitment to the "Bold Mission Thrust" goal of starting 830 new churches by 1982.

Little accepted a mildly worded resolution on human sexuality in lieu of his proposal outlining 15 biblical passages.

Republican office to open early

The Gray County Republican Headquarters, 205 E. Kingsmill, will open at 8 a.m. Nov. 7 for the election, and the staff will be available to answer questions or provide rides to the polls until 7 p.m., said Mrs. Scott Nisbet, Republican county chairman.

Those persons needing rides may call 665-1722.

Nisbet invited voters and volunteers to meet at the headquarters at 8 p.m. Nov. 7 for refreshments and to watch the election returns.

that he said condemned oral sex in marriage — something Little referred to as "heterosexual perversion."

The resolution was adopted unanimously.

"We tried to be heard through the proper channels of communication, and apparently there was lackadaisicalness expressed. At least that is the way I felt and interpreted the manner in which my concern was handled. I have never been a person who gives up easily. We have accomplished our goal at this point and we know that we have been heard in our matter of concern," Little said in his letter to Cunningham.

Still to be decided is whether the Rev. Charles Shedd, a Presbyterian minister and popular religious writer, will remain a speaker at the Baptists' family life conference in Dallas next March.

Little has contended that Shedd condoned oral sex within marriage in a series of marriage enrichment tapes that Little heard some three years ago.

Shedd was quoted by the Dallas Morning News on Thursday as saying Little's interpretation of scripture with regard to oral sex is "a perversion of the scripture."

"It's not a perversion to enjoy a nice part of love, if you like it," Shedd was quoted as saying.

Shedd, who lives in Georgia, is author of several books, including "Letters to Karen."

The "human sexuality" resolution adopted by the convention says married couples "have the right, under God's authority, of intimacy between themselves in the privacy of their own lives and shelter." It observes that "society today faces a constant barrage of perverted understanding of healthy sexuality."

The resolution calls on Texas Baptist agencies to "exercise caution to assure that the emphasis of speakers who address the issue of human sexuality is positive and biblically sound."

Convention business included adoption of a $31 million budget for Baptist institutions and mission activities and approval of new guidelines to discourage over-dependence of these institutions on government funds.

Tower at ease campaigning

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — It was a purely local question, one of a zillion Sen. John Tower has faced lately in his bitter re-election campaign against Democrat Bob Krueger.

But the reply was uncharacteristic of a London-educated U.S. senator.

"Senator, if you're re-elected, will you help Galveston keep its Naval Reserve training facility?" a local reporter asked Thursday during a 15-minute airport press conference.

"You bet your sweet poop-deck," a grinning Tower fired back.

Despite polls indicating he's literally running for his job, it's a relaxed, wise-cracking Tower who is making the frenzied final rounds of Texas' major media markets, before Tuesday's election.

"All we're doing now is hitting the media markets. That's the name of the game at this point," explained Tower, whose schedule takes him to all the state's 17 television markets in the six days before the election.

Prosecutor says money scandal drew yawn

By KEN HERMAN Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE, TEXAS (AP) — A prosecutor who spent hours looking into allegations of misuse of federal manpower funds here says the scandal was greeted with a resounding yawn from the public.

"I don't think anyone gives a damn about manpower or the money," said assistant Cameron County District Attorney Joe Henderly, adding that "anyone" was "the average man on the street."

Henderly represented the county at a January court of inquiry here that led to indictments against 20 men.

Of the 20, three have been convicted, one has been acquitted and charges have been dropped against all but one of the other defendants. Federal indictments are pending against some of the men.

"We don't know now and I don't know if we'll ever know how much money is gone," Henderly said.

Henderly said many of the indictments had to be dropped because of "hasty preparations." Prosecutors have said the cases were dismissed because of insufficient evidence to seek convictions.

But Henderly and State District Judge Darrell Hester agree that Hester's court of inquiry left a positive effect.

"I think it was good in that it exposed the wrongdoing and mismanagement of these programs," Henderly said.

Hester said the local program — aimed at providing job training for the poor — is now a well-run agency.

"They took the operation out of politics. There are no officials calling over there to get Joe Blow on the payroll," the judge said.

Hester also said he is not upset at the number of dismissals.

"It's gone very much like any set of indictments arising out of a series of transactions. You reasonably can expect some convictions, some acquittals and some dismissals," he said.

Hester is pleased that the local inquiry led to investigations elsewhere in Texas.

"This was just the tip of the iceberg. We're just country boys down here," Hester said.

The seldom-used court of inquiry process allows a judge wide powers. Hester has been criticized by some for the manner in which he conducted the inquiry.

"The court of inquiry can be abused very quickly. There are many who say I abused it," Hester said, adding that he felt the inquiry was handled properly.

Survivors mourn victims of gas pipeline explosion

By GORDON D. MOTT Associated Press Writer
COLONIA BENITO JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) - Sobbing survivors of a natural gas pipeline explosion that practically wiped out this tiny southern Mexican truck stop held a midnight requiem Mass in its church - one of the few buildings still standing. The resulting explosion was heard nine miles away and sent up a huge fireball that consumed most of the crossroad's flimsy wooden structures in seconds. Victims were so badly burned that officials had a hard time identifying them. Charred timbers and an occasional foundation were all that was discernible among the rubble, still smoldering many hours after the explosion. "There was a flash," said a survivor. "It spread like wildfire through the village." The national petroleum company PEMEX, which operated the pumping station, said the facility served four pipelines, two for natural gas, one for refined petroleum and one for unrefined oil. All were shut down, but Adolfo Arroyo Villaseñor, chief security officer for PEMEX, said service would be restored today or Saturday. About 200 men were working around the clock with bulldozers and cranes to restore service. Arroyo said the line that ruptured carried 15 million cubic feet of gas daily to Mexico City, 360 miles to the northeast of this petroleum district in Tabasco state. He said the flow was cut off at pumping stations along the line. Officials said another, larger line in the area was providing gas service to Mexico City. Tabasco state Police Chief Capt. Jose Serna Garcia said the flames destroyed about a dozen huts and some small restaurants and taco stands that served bus and truck drivers and the village residents. He estimated 100 persons worked or lived at the truck stop.

Texas forecast

By The Associated Press
An upper level disturbance over northern Arizona was moving eastward today, threatening most of Texas with rainfall by Saturday. Forecasters said the rainfall was to begin in the Panhandle late today and spread to most of the state Saturday.

Forecasters called for partly cloudy skies and continued warm temperatures today. Highs were to range from the 60s in the Panhandle to the 80s in Central and South Texas. Dense fog reduced visibility early today along the Texas coast, but most of the state had clear to partly cloudy skies. Early morning temperatures ranged from the upper 40s in the mountains of Southwest Texas to the middle 60s in South Texas. Extremes ranged from 48 at Texarkana to 66 at McAllen.

Some early morning readings included 55 at Amarillo, 62 at Wichita Falls, 59 at Dallas-Fort Worth and Austin, 51 at Lufkin, 52 at Houston, 62 at Corpus Christi, 64 at Del Rio, 56 at San Angelo and 55 at El Paso and Lubbock. Fog was reported at Corpus Christi, Cotulla, Brownsville, McAllen, Alice, Victoria and Palacios.

Police finish investigation

Police have cleared their investigation into acts of vandalism committed recently against the home of Robert G. Andrews, vice principal of Pampa High School. Police Chief Richard Mills said prosecution is pending against six suspects, several of whom are juveniles. Windows of Andrews' house, garage and car were broken during the incident, which took place Monday night.

Granger to seek new trial

HOUSTON (AP) - A lawyer for Faryl Granger, convicted on a capital murder charge and sentenced to death, said today he will seek a new trial on grounds the state's chief witness perjured herself. Sam Adamo said Mary Lou Anderson perjured herself Tuesday when she entered a plea of guilty to a lesser charge of murder after having been granted a new trial on a capital murder charge for which she also had received a death sentence. Ms. Anderson had been charged with hiring Granger to kill her father and stepmother. The bodies of Steve Anderson, 58, and Margie Anderson, 54, were found Jan. 3 in their Sugar Land home. On change of venue trials, Ms. Anderson drew her death sentence in Wharton, Granger in Bay City. Adamo said Ms. Anderson perjured herself Tuesday by pleading guilty to hiring Granger. During the Wharton and Bay City trials, he said, she testified she did not hire Granger but he forced her to accompany him to Sugar Land when he killed her parents. She said Granger did so after she told him she needed money and her father had a $5,000 double indemnity life insurance policy. After accepting her guilty plea to the lesser charge, District Judge Neil Caldwell sentenced Ms. Anderson to 450 years in prison.

Jury to be seated today

HOUSTON (AP) - Attorneys in Cullen Davis' murder-for-hire trial were expected today to complete the week-long process of selecting a jury to hear the much-publicized case. Late Thursday, only one person remained to be "qualified" to be added to a list of 32 persons from which the jury will be selected. When the 32nd is picked, both sides will strike 10 names to seat a 12-member jury.

However, Judge Wallace Moore has said that even if jury selection was completed by today, testimony would not begin before Monday.

Davis, 45, an heir to one of the state's great oil-related fortunes, is accused of soliciting a "hit man" to kill the presiding judge in his high-stakes, bitterly contested divorce suit.

Accident leaves one injured

A Pampa woman was injured in a two-car accident Thursday. Barbara N. Perdue, 514 N. Wells, was driving a 1972 Mustang and was reportedly struck from behind at Hobart and Kingsmill by a 1978 Chevrolet Corvette driven by Leonard Ray Hudson, 2131 Charles.

Perdue was taken by Metro Ambulance to Highland General Hospital, where she was treated and released.

Hudson was reportedly arrested for driving while intoxicated, and was placed in the city jail.

Fire report

The fire department responded to a grass fire at 1:15 p.m. Thursday on the Santa Fe railway west of Kingsmill. At 6:30 a.m. today the department responded to a car fire at 345 Crawford. The car belonged to Darrell Cash and there was heavy damage under the hood.

New drug may spot sickle cell

By KEVIN MCKEAN AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - An inherited blood defect that dooms one in 500 American black children to suffering and early death can now be spotted safely during pregnancy with help from the tools of DNA research, a doctor says.

The defect, sickle cell anemia, afflicts as many as 50 million people worldwide and an estimated 70,000 in the United States. Nearly all its victims are black. About half die before age 20, and few others live past age 45. Parents who are carriers of the recessive gene that causes sickle cell anemia are not affected by the disease, but can pass it on to their children.

No suspects in murder

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) - Police had no suspects early today in the brutal murder of a municipal court judge's wife who was found dead Thursday at the couple's home in an affluent section of Manhattan. A neighbor who came to the victim's home after she failed to appear for a luncheon engagement discovered the bloody body of Tracey Miller, 26, at the foot of a staircase. The couple's 15-month-old daughter, Emily, was found unharmed in an upstairs nursery.

"It was obvious that she had a violent death. It was not a fall or anything like that," said Les C. Bieler, assistant Riley County police director.

"She apparently lost a lot of blood. It appeared to be a more brutal attack than you normally encounter." Police declined to say exactly how Mrs. Miller died, saying they were waiting for the results of an autopsy being performed at a Merriam, Kan., hospital. Bieler said police did not know whether she had been sexually assaulted, but that possibility would be explored in the autopsy.

He said no murder weapon was found and no suspects had been arrested. Mrs. Miller, who formerly lived in Creve Coeur in St. Louis County, had worked as a teller at a Manhattan bank until the birth on the couple's child. Bieler said wounds found on Mrs. Miller's body, which he declined to describe, "resulted from an attack with an instrument of some kind." Police said the slaying occurred sometime between 8:30 a.m. and noon Thursday. It appeared there had been a struggle before Mrs. Miller was killed, which would suggest she was murdered by someone she did not know, Bieler said.

Paul Miller, 31, Riley County attorney in 1975 and 1976, was in court when he learned of his wife's death. Police rushed him to his home. Former Pampan gets seven years

Don Cain, judge of the 223rd District Court, revoked the probation of William Price Chapman, Amarillo, during a brief hearing Thursday. Chapman, a white male, had been convicted on Sept. 12, 1977 for delivering a controlled substance and was placed on probation for a period of ten years according to Harold Comer, district attorney. Comer said a motion was filed on Oct. 9 to revoke Chapmans probation. Chapman, 21, had allegedly sold cocaine to an undercover agent in Amarillo. Comer said Cain revoked the probation and sentenced him to seven years in the Texas Department of Corrections. Chapman is a former Pampa resident.

affected by the disease, but can pass it on to their children. Dr. Yuet Wai Kan, developer of the new sickle cell test, said it offers hope that similar techniques could be adapted to detect other inherited defects, such as hemophilia. The test, which is done on the amniotic fluid surrounding the fetus, replaces an earlier and more risky procedure requiring a blood sample from the fetus, Kan said. The new test can be done as early as the 13th week of pregnancy, when an early abortion is still possible. "Prenatal diagnosis will allow couples who otherwise wouldn't have wanted to risk having children to plan families," he said in a telephone interview from San Francisco Thursday night.

Sickle cell anemia gets its name from the characteristic C-shaped or sickle-like appearance of the red blood cells of its victims. Victims lack the proper genetic instructions in their cells to make hemoglobin, the iron-rich substance which carries oxygen in the blood. The result is that body tissues are slowly choked to death for lack of oxygen. Sickle cell children often are poorly developed and have a short trunk and elongated extremities and skull. Death is usually caused by tuberculosis, heart failure, stroke or other complications.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We don't go to church. Instead, my husband and I and our three children sit down to a hearty breakfast on Sunday morning and afterwards have a friendly discussion around the breakfast table.

We talk about school problems, family gripes and relations with relatives and friends. We support each other in overcoming bad habits and faults and come to an understanding about allowances, TV watching, homework and chores. Then we seek ways to improve family life and ways to contribute to our community and our nation.

We believe that God's spirit is within us (all) and that ours are helping hands which can be used to make this spirit evident here on earth.

Recently, some of the neighborhood children have been calling our children "atheists" because we don't go to church. They are shocked and upset and don't know what to answer. Do you in your wisdom have an appropriate answer?

AT A LOSS

DEAR AT: How is this: "We are NOT 'atheists.' We accept the existence and influence of God in our lives. But to us, God's spirit is within all of us, and we offer helping hands which can be used to make this spirit evident here on earth." (P.S. In my opinion, yours is a stronger religious commitment than many church-goers make. But that, too, is their business.)

DEAR ABBY: SHELDON'S WIFE couldn't understand why her husband came home with red smudges on his shirt and red hairs on his coat. Don't jump to conclusions, Abby. He may have been feeding strawberry jam to a cocker spaniel!

CHATTANOOGA DOG LOVER

DEAR LOVER: True. But there is always an outside chance that he had been feeding a line to a redhead.

DEAR ABBY: I have been invited to an evening wedding at 6 p.m. A friend of mine tells me that I must wear a long dress.

I do not own a long dress, and I have no intention of buying one. If I must buy one for this occasion, I cannot afford to buy a wedding gift.

Please tell me if you think I absolutely must get a long dress, or would a dressy short dress be acceptable?

NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Wear what you have, and don't give it a second thought. What's a few inches of fabric more or less?

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it a known fact that estrogen pills cause cancer, and what part of the body does it affect mostly? Also, when cancer is found in the human body by surgery, does it grow faster when it is exposed to air?

DEAR READER — There are an awful lot of people who take estrogen who never develop cancer. I might also point out that estrogen alone isn't a cancer causing agent, because both men and women normally produce estrogen. In fact, there are several different chemical kinds of estrogen.

At this writing, there has not been a careful separation of the different effects of the different types of estrogen in relation to any cancer effects they may have. This is a relatively pertinent point in determining the danger from taking estrogen.

With the regular administration of at least one type of estrogen, there does seem to be an increased rate of cancer of the uterus. This may not be important to the woman who takes estrogen intermittently, meaning for three weeks and stopping for one week. It certainly is not important to the woman who has already had a hysterectomy. It is difficult to develop cancer of the uterus if you don't have one.

Giving additional estrogen is also a poor idea in a woman who has lumpy breasts, or if a woman develops lumpy breasts while she is taking estrogen, usually she should stop it.

Cancer of the uterus and breast are the two main considerations about the relationship of estrogen to cancer. Otherwise, there is a great deal of evidence in the scientific literature that suggests the administration of estrogen protects a woman's health and prolongs her life. In fact, the statistics for the good features of estrogen far outweigh the statistics that

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — I have tried everything I know of to remove a blue line at the water level in the toilet bowl. It was evidently caused by the continual use of liquid blue toilet bowl cleaner. Can you suggest something? — DORIS

DEAR DORIS — You might try using a paste made with cream of tartar and peroxide. Apply by scrubbing with a small brush. Rinse thoroughly. — POLLY

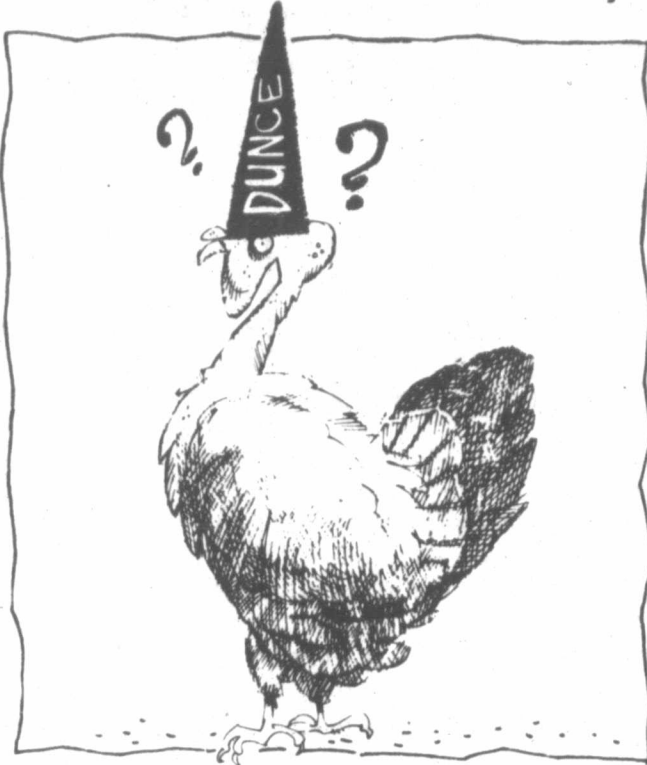

DEAR POLLY — If you have a brown ring in your toilet bowl that will not come off rub a piece of red brick on it. It will disappear. This has worked for me many times. (Polly's Note — I have heard of this but have never tried it. I would certainly be very careful so the finish is not damaged. Test in a somewhat hidden spot.) — EVELYN

DEAR POLLY — Every year my children used to come home from the first day of school asking for covers for their school books. It became quite expensive trying to keep them in paper and tape so I decided to make cloth ones out of scraps of material I had on hand. I choose fabrics that are long lasting and in colors that will not show dirt easily.

Measure each book from top to bottom and side to side and add an extra half-inch for hems all around. On the two longest ends leave from an inch to an inch and one-half to make pockets for the book cover to slip and fit in. Each cover lasts for the entire school year and the books look bright and cheerful. — JOAN

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is when a family visits and the "not so young" children make remarks like "I am not going to eat any of that" about one or more of the dishes that I am putting on the table. To me, that is more impolite than forgetting to say "please" or "thank you." — EMMA

'Bird-Brain' May Refer to Turkey

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — People who use the word "turkey" to describe the depths of stupidity may know what they're talking about. The bird's intelligence is among the foulest of fowl, according to Dr. Norman Magruder, a poultry nutritionist.

"To my knowledge, the turkey is the only bird dumber than Henny Penny," Magruder says. "If Henny Penny approached a turkey and told it the sky was falling, the most likely question from the turkey would be 'up or down?'"

Magruder, nutritionist for Cargill, a farm products company, cites the difference between the feeding instincts of a newborn chick and a newborn turkey poul.

A 1- or 2-day-old chick can be placed on the ground and will venture out to find something to eat or drink, he says. Not so with turkeys. Magruder says you virtually have to put turkey poults right on top of the feed so they'll know where and what it is.

Even that practice isn't always successful. But turkeys haven't completely lost their marbles, Magruder says.

Farmers sometimes teach young turkeys where to eat by placing bright objects in the feed bins to attract their attention. Marbles are commonly used to do the trick — but even when the birds find the feed bins they often eat the marbles instead of the feed, he adds.

A turkey's I.Q. may be sadly deficient, but the P.Q. — Protein Quotient — of its meat certainly is not, Magruder points out. Each 100 calories of turkey meat supplies about 15 grams of protein, while each 100 calories of lean pork or lean ground beef supplies about 12 grams of protein, he says.

Looking at it another way, 3½ ounces of turkey white meat supply only about 176 calories, while a like amount of hamburger supplies 286 calories; porterhouse steak, 455 calories; ham, 289 calories; lamb rib chops, 407 calories.

Dr. M.T. Scott, Cornell University researcher who directed recent studies on the comparative protein, fat and vitamin content of turkey and other meats, reports "our present high standard of living goes hand-in-hand with increased per capita consumption of lean, high-quality animal proteins — and turkey heads the list of lean meats in high-protein and low-fat content."

Cornell's nutritional study found that the breast meat of cooked turkey ranks highest in protein than any other prepared meat. The study also ranks turkey legs and thighs only slightly below turkey breasts in protein content.

Since 1960, per capita consumption of turkey meat has increased from 6.2 pounds to 9.2 pounds annually. Magruder gives credit to producers and processors of premium-quality, branded turkeys for the increase in consumption.

Money doesn't grow on trees

Protecting Your Landscape

Money doesn't grow on trees, but trees can make your money grow. Trees, shrubs, and plants are an investment that increases the value of your property.

According to a U.S. Forest Service study, a home with trees in the yard can be worth as much as 20 percent more than the same house without them. Other surveys indicate an up to 30 percent increase in value.

TREES AND SHRUBS markedly add to a house's market value.

Here are some tips on taking care of your growing investment from the American Association of Nurserymen, the national organization of professional plant experts.

1. Water plants properly; mulch them when the time is right; feed them when they're hungry; trim and prune when necessary.

2. Add more plants for beauty, energy savings, sight and sound screens, etc.

3. Seek professional help about landscaping and plant care.

4. Get an appraisal by a tree or nursery professional to make an insurance claim or claim a tax deduction if plants are damaged or destroyed.

Trees are like money in the bank.

Older people back in school

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Senior citizens who want to continue their education are becoming a growing market for colleges and universities, says an authority in the field of gerontology.

Glenn McKibbin of Syracuse University's Gerontology Center says older people are rapidly becoming an important consumer group in the field of education. McKibbin says a growing trend in higher education is to reach out to older people and include their needs in course offerings.

"In some ways, institutions of higher education have been forced to look to this segment of the population because of the shrinking younger adult population," McKibbin says. "On the other side of the population spectrum are a greater number of older persons reaching 65, 70 and further, who have an interest in pursuing education."

Week of special services

A week of special services will begin Monday night, November 6th at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1700 Alcock.

The services will continue nightly through November 11th. The services will begin at 7:30 p.m. each evening.

Rev. LeRoy Blankenship from Sunnyside, Washington is the guest evangelist. He has traveled as an evangelist and recording artist for the past twenty one years. He has recorded fourteen Gospel albums and has written many Gospel songs that are being sung by groups across the nation. He uses many instruments and also sound tracks in accompaniment. Here is a man who can sing and lift you to the mountain tops of God's wonderful grace and then preach better than he sings. He travels full-time in the ministry and is much in demand as speaker at youth camps and campmeetings.

Pastor Albert Maggard of the local church states, "It's a beautiful experience to enjoy the ministry of this God-called man."

We're thrilled to have him at our church, and invite everyone to attend these services."

Clarendon College seeking teachers

Clarendon College is seeking local residents that might be interested in teaching on a part-time basis at the Pampa Center this Spring and Summer.

Until the enrollment increases in a particular area or areas the college will need to fill the class offerings with faculty on a part-time basis. Faculty will be needed for day and evening classes.

Anyone interested in a teaching position should contact Loyd Waters, Dean of Pampa Center. Presently Waters is located at the Clarendon campus.

WORLD WIDE INTEREST

Many good organizations are working with our youngsters, developing an interest in other lands and the ones who dwell there. The church through God's word also teaches us about our neighbors and what our attitude should be toward them. The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

FOCUS

Looking to 1980

For most candidates, the goal in next Tuesday's midterm election is a victory. But one candidate for the U.S. Senate is campaigning for more than that. Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker, of Tennessee, is running for his third six-year term on Capitol Hill. Even Tennessee Democrats admit that Baker is all but unbeatable. What Baker wants is not just to defeat his Democratic opponent, Jane Eskind, but to win more than 60 percent of the vote. The reason: Baker wants to show other Republicans that he would be a strong candidate for president in 1980.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is the Democratic leader in the Senate?

NEW YORK (AP) — Can a pope make the best-seller list? Pope John Paul II is going to have three candidates.

Three books written by the former Cardinal Karol Wojtyla of Poland, two of which were previously distributed in Italy, are to be released worldwide early next year, it was announced Wednesday.

The "Sign of Contradiction," a Bible-based book that deals with spiritual renewal in the modern world, will be released in February by the Seabury Press.

Two other books — "Love and Responsibility" and "Joy and Hope" — also are being prepared for publication.

In addition, a biography of the pope, written by Mieczyslaw Malinski, chaplain at the University of Krakow in Poland and a lifelong friend of the pontiff, is to be released this spring.

Presley, who has suffered from heart problems and diabetes for several years, was admitted to Baptist Hospital last week after a fainting spell at Graceland Mansion.

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Television sportscaster Howard Cosell is at it again, training his verbal cannons on players, team owners and sports reporters: calling sports "the single most corrupting influence in American society."

Cosell told the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association here Wednesday that sportsmanship has been replaced by the pursuit of money.

"The people are saying the game is holy," Cosell said. "Winning is everything. Don't touch our Camelot. I tell the truth. If a game stinks, I say it stinks. That may be what the people don't like to hear."

And the lawyer-turned-broadcaster criticized the hiring of former players as sports commentators.

BIZ MAIL

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — With the cost of preparing and sending an average business letter hitting $4.77 this year, more attention should be paid to improving business mail-room operations, says the manager of Pitney Bowes' postal-education seminars.

The manager, Samuel J. Paul, says most businesses could easily reduce expenses by at least 10 percent.

"That's because there's far too much spending on mail," Paul says.

Centralizing decision-making on mailing practices and setting standards for those who use the mail are two of the best ways to offset the burden of rising costs, he explains.

After making political errors early

Carter showing concern for problems

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, who seemed to commit one political faux-pas after another in his early days in the White House, is now showing a keen sensitivity to some of the political problems Democrats are facing this year. He was on the road for Democratic candidates every weekend but one during October, carefully sizing up their difficulties and lending their campaigns the prestige of the presidency.

In two states, Minnesota and Maine, he was particularly adept.

Carter's aides say that the president was speaking off-the-cuff in both situations, working from his own sense of what was called for in each state.

Last Saturday, before Carter reached Portland, he stopped in Buffalo, N.Y.; Hartford, Conn.; and Lynn, Mass. In each city, the president's message was the same:

First, there was a pat on the back for each member of the Democratic ticket. Then there were a few minutes of patting his, the last stop on his one-day trip, the message changed. One overriding political problem brought Carter to Maine: Hathaway's battle.

According to Carter, Hathaway helped bring down the nation's unemployment rate and Hathaway won't be swayed by a powerful committee chairman.

It was all aimed at fending off the political strategy of Rep. William Cohen, the Republican fighting for Hathaway's seat. Cohen has attempted to portray Hathaway as an extreme liberal, out of touch with Maine, its needs, and what Cohen sees as its voters' moderate and conservative philosophy.

"The problem was different in Minnesota, although the bottom line was also the possibility that the Democrats could lose a Senate race.

The state's Democratic Party organization, the Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party, has been split in a liberal-conservative fight ever since businessman Robert Short won a Senate nomination in September, defeating Rep. Donald Fraser, a leader of House liberals.

Speaking at an airport rally in Rochester, Minn., Carter came face to face with the split and reminded his audience that it was just such deviousness that cost Hubert Humphrey the presidency in 1968.

"I would like to urge you, if I don't do anything else while I'm here, to remember Hubert Humphrey, to remember what happened to him when our party was divided, to remember what he stood for, to remember his friends and commit yourselves now to give the Democratic candidates a tremendous victory on Nov. 7," Carter said.

The president's speech was just what party campaigners in Minnesota thought was necessary, said an aide to Vice President Walter F. Mondale, who has been campaigning heavily in the state and is familiar with the Democrats' problems there.

Home lenders thinking of Christmas

By JOHN CUNIFF
 AP Business Analyst

DALLAS (AP) — Home lenders have December on their mind, and it's not because of the spirit will be absent, and they fear, so also may be some of their depositors.

Dec. 1 is D-day, meaning decision day, the day on which many savings and loan associations must decide whether to continue competing for ever more costly money, or drop out of the fight.

Their decisions could have an enormous impact on a housing market that until now has refused to slow down. If savings and loans cannot compete for funds, then they won't be able to lend to homebuyers.

The potential crunch had its beginnings June 1, when Washington decided to permit the S&Ls, the nation's primary home lenders, to issue six-month savings certificates at rates much higher than on pass-book accounts.

That rate now is effectively 9.8 percent, or more than 3 percentage points over what a saver could obtain on a regular savings account. It has had the effect of pulling billions of dollars into savings.

Because of this, the home-buying market has thrived in spite of myriad other problems, including high purchase costs. For the first time in their recent history, S&Ls have been able to attract money despite generally high interest rates.

In June alone, close to $6 billion poured into their vaults. And, as required by law, they then lent out much of it on home mortgages.

Career blossoms despite hardships

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — When she was 12 years old, Herta Taussig, an outgoing, precocious girl, made an entry in her diary: "I want to be a teacher of mathematics. I don't know whether I will be good enough."

Six years later she amended her dream: "I don't want just to be a teacher of mathematics. I want to be a good teacher of mathematics."

So she became. Ask any of the hundreds who sat in Herta Taussig Freitag's classes at Hollins College over a span of 23 years and knew her not just as a good teacher but also as a good person, a good friend, and who learned from her as much about courage and perseverance as they did about differential equations.

For much of her life — she is 70 now — fate seemed to conspire against her modest goal. The question never was whether she was good enough to teach but whether the gods would allow it.

"My first teaching job in America was in upstate New York at a school for poor children from broken homes," Mrs. Freitag said. "Naturally I was apprehensive. Would the kids accept me?"

"They accepted me once they discovered that I had been kicked around, too."

When young Herta confided her life's ambition to her diary, she was enjoying, as she recalls, "an extraordinarily happy childhood" in her native Vienna, Austria, a city of intellectual zest and ferment in those days, alive with music and art and laughter.

Her father was a newspaper editor, his views on Hitler and Nazism well known. Thus, in 1938, just as Herta was embarking on a teaching career, the Taussigs had to flee Austria.

"Hitler took over on Friday, March 13. I will never forget father's toneless voice when he said to me, 'There is no Austria anymore.' By the following Wednesday he was dismissed."

Fleeing was not easy. By sheer luck the Taussigs found an American sponsor, a doctor of the same name, but the waiting list was long.

After nine months of hiding and worrying they managed to make it to England by agreeing to work as domestics. Herta survived the Battle of Britain as a chambermaid, later a waitress.

Finally, her knowledge of English much improved after six years, her knowledge of wartime civics much improved after learning the rites of palm-greasing, she got passage to America on a freighter and applied for citizenship the day it docked.

"They were happy years after that. I got my doctorate at Columbia University. I got the teaching job in New York and met my husband. I became a citizen. Then, the years at Hollins were matchless."

Once again, though, Herta Freitag had to leave her beloved classroom. Seven years ago her husband became ill. She took early retirement to care for him. Last month he died.

Through it all, Herta Freitag never lost her love of teaching, or her love of living. She has a small apartment with a view of the Blue Ridge Mountains in a complex called Friendship Manor.

"It is a place for old fogeys," she said, "politely called a retirement home."

If Friendship Manor is for old fogeys, Herta Freitag is in the wrong place. She bought a tricycle and rides it 10 miles a day. She swims two hours a day. Her step has a lilt to match her eyes, especially when they suddenly brighten, as the other day.

"I have good news," she said. "I had a call from Hollins College. They asked me to come back next year, to teach."

"Will I? Of course I will."

National briefs

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Eighty Buffalo police officers who are fighting expanding waistlines as well as crime have been ordered by police officials to report to the department's gymnasium for a pep talk.

"We want the men to be familiar with facilities that are available for physical fitness," Police Commissioner James Cunningham said in explaining Wednesday's order. He said he had asked commanding officers to single out policemen who appeared to be "out of shape" and direct them to appear at the informational session. Cunningham appointed a full-time health instructor earlier in the year.

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — A power failure at the Idaho Capitol Mall closed some state offices, caused minor flooding and sent state workers scurrying for gas-fired lanterns, flashlights and workable electrical outlets in nearby buildings.

Gov. John Evans ordered state offices to remain open Wednesday and function the best they could without telephones, electric typewriters and other power-operated devices. Officials said there was some minor flooding when toilet pumps wouldn't work. Officials said it could take up to three days to completely repair the damage.

SOUTH GATE, Calif. (AP) — A psychic was largely responsible for the arrest of a South Gate man accused in the deaths of a three youths, police say.

Harold Memro, 33, was arrested after the unidentified Los Angeles psychic described a man to a police artist, who then drew a composite sketch, said Sgt. George Troxell of the South Gate Police Department. Detectives showed the sketch to the parents of 7-year-old Carl Carter Jr., a South Gate youngster missing since Oct. 22. The Carters identified the composite drawing as an acquaintance, Troxell said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Crawdad magazine, which started life nearly 13 years ago as a mimeographed review of rock music, will change its name to Feature starting with the January issue.

Peter Knobler, editor of the 200,000 circulation magazine, said the name was changed to reflect the diverse content of the publication, which no longer is devoted exclusively to music.

Farm exports set record

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm exports set another record in the last fiscal year and government experts say there is a good chance the string will continue in 1978-79.

The Agriculture Department announced Wednesday that the value of farm exports in the year ended Sept. 30 rose almost 14 percent to $27.3 billion from about $24 billion in 1976-77.

Officials have not projected a dollar figure for exports this year but have indicated that a "modest" increase may occur.

They caution that much will depend on 1978-79 crop prospects in other areas of the world, including the Soviet Union. The Soviets, a big buyer of U.S. wheat and corn last year, have not indicated how much they may purchase in 1978-79.

Meanwhile, USDA said it was the ninth straight year that the value of farm exports set a record. The surge began in 1969-70 when exports totaled $6.9 billion and climbed to $8.2 billion two years later.

The actual quantity of agricultural exports also set another record at 122.3 million metric tons, up almost 20 percent from 102.3 million metric tons in 1976-77, the previous high.

A metric ton is 2,205 pounds. The huge exports do not mean that the United States soon will run out of grain and other farm products. Officials estimate that by counting the larger shipments and domestic demand there will be around 80 million metric tons of grain left over next year, the most since 1964.

In 1972-73, fed by huge grain demand from the Soviet Union and other countries plus soaring commodity prices, the farm export value jumped to more than $14.9 billion. It rose further to $21.6 billion in 1973-74 and has continued to edge higher despite declines in some commodity prices.

The Carter administration has placed a high priority on exports as a way to help farmers. Congress, shortly before it adjourned, approved a trade expansion bill that enlarges credit programs so that foreign countries can buy more U.S. agricultural products.

One feature will allow China to buy U.S. farm products on short-term credit if it chooses. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland left this week for Peking, where he will meet with Chinese officials on expanding farm trade between the two countries.

Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman, in charge of the department while Bergland is away, said the value of agricultural products imported from other countries last fiscal year totaled $13.9 billion, a gain of about $500 million from 1976-77.

"That represents a $13.4 billion positive contribution to this nation's total balance of trade, which is vital to the strength of the dollar," she said.

Wheat, corn and other feeds accounted for $11.7 billion of last fiscal year's total export value of $27.3 billion. Other major items included: soybeans and oilseed products, $7.45 billion; livestock and livestock products, $2.35 billion; fruits and vegetables, $1.88 billion; tobacco, $1.13 billion; and cotton, $1.7 billion.

On the basis of quantity, wheat and flour, feed grains, rice and soybeans accounted for 110.1 million metric tons of last year's farm exports or 90 percent of the total of 122.3 million metric tons.

Wheat and flour shipments totaled about 32.8 million metric tons, up 32.8 percent; feed grains, 55.5 million, up 9.8 percent; rice, 2.1 million, down 5.4 percent; and soybeans, 19.7 million, up 29.9 percent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Annual surveys show that farm families continued to pay more this year for telephone service and electricity.

The Agriculture Department says that the average monthly farm telephone bill for local calls this year was $10.40 a month, up 8 percent from $9.62 in 1977. For electricity, the average monthly bill this year was $53.20, up 11 percent from the 1977 average of $48.10 a month.

The surveys are made annually during the summer months and usually cover charges for June and July.

When long-distance calls, service charges and extension phones were included, the telephone bills averaged $24.38 this year, a 13 percent increase from $21.58 a year earlier.

The basic charges for local calls averaged lowest at $8.20 a month in Pennsylvania and $8.30 in Kansas, the department said in a monthly price report issued this week. The highest rate was $15 a month in Arizona.

Costs of electricity varied widely in the country, with the highest at $5.70 per kilowatt-hour in New Jersey and the lowest at $1.60 in Washington state.

Washington briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air fare between the United States and West Germany could drop $100 under a new agreement signed by the two countries.

The United States signed an agreement Wednesday that allows the country from which a passenger leaves to determine the cost of the ticket. James R. Atwood, who negotiated the treaty for the United States, called it one of the most liberal that the United States now has. He said the result could be reduction in the cost of round trip from roughly $400 to approximately $300.

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's no immediate end in sight to a strike that has idled musicians at the Kennedy Center since Oct. 15.

The management of the performing arts center said Wednesday it was on the verge of an agreement with musicians until their union said it wanted job tenure for an additional nine persons. Meanwhile, the union said members of Actors Equity, stagehands and other technicians may soon decide not to cross picket lines, an action which could close all three auditoriums at the center.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say President Carter hasn't yet decided on whether to grant diplomatic recognition to communist Vietnam.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Wednesday that the United States has not made any decision about recognizing Vietnam. He denied a report that there would be diplomatic recognition within two months. WASHINGTON (AP) — Students from elementary school through college should benefit from two new bills signed into law by President Carter.

One of the bills Carter signed Wednesday will make more than one million students from middle-income families eligible for federal help to pay college tuition. The other authorizes more than $50 billion to extend by five years the federal program for elementary and secondary education.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal agency says three teenage girls died in a Pinto car in 1973 after the driver of the vehicle that struck it from behind looked away from the road momentarily.

The collision caused the Pinto's fuel tank to explode, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration reported. Such rear-end collisions involving Pintos resulted in the recall of all 1971 to 1976 Pinto and Mercury Bobcat sedans. Ford Motor Co. was later indicted by an Indiana grand jury in connection with the accident, which occurred near Dunlop, Ind.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A National Labor Relations Board judge says J.P. Stevens & Co. "has a history of unlawfully retaliating against union organizational efforts that has continued for some 14 years without respite or deviation."

The comment Claude R. Wolfe, an NLRB administrative judge, came in the case of a worker fired for allegedly engaging in union activity at the company's plants in Rocky Mount, Va. Wolfe ordered the company to reinstate with back pay Robert Montgomery, who was fired in April 1977.

MEAD FUND NEW YORK (AP) — The Margaret Mead Fund for the Advancement of Anthropology has raised more than $1.5 million toward a $5-million goal, sponsors have announced.

Establishment of the fund was announced Dec. 16, 1976. It was created to honor her long association with the American Museum of Natural History.

The fund will support a Margaret Mead Chair in Anthropology, as well as the redesign, renovation and relocation of the Hall of Pacific Peoples.

Shooting general -10 years later

NEW YORK (AP) — Ten years ago South Vietnamese Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan drew his snub-nosed revolver and executed a Viet Cong soldier in a picture that shocked the world. Today, Loan — a restaurant manager in Virginia — may be ejected from the United States because of his act.

Leaders of the Vietnamese exile community in the United States are labelling the government's attempt to remove Loan's American residency, and eventually deport him, as unfair and ridiculous.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service, arguing that the then-Vietnamese national police chief should have been tried in Vietnam for a possible war crime for the killing on a Saigon street during the 1968 Tet offensive, has advised Loan that his residency permit will be rescinded on grounds of "moral turpitude."

"He should not have been given a green card (permanent residency certificate) in the first place," spokesman Vern Jerbis told The Associated Press.

"Loan's case was amongst those that qualified under a law passed by Congress authorizing special handling for Indochina refugees, similar to that given previously to Cubans and Hungarians. Loan just slipped through our bureaucracy," Jerbis said.

The 48-year-old Loan, who lost his leg when seriously wounded in May 1968, has avoided reporters for years and declined to comment on the immigration service's move. But his former colleagues in combat have rallied to his defense.

"All the Vietnamese exiles are furious about this," declared former South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, who now runs a liquor store in Los Angeles. "We recognize Loan as one of the most staunch anti-communists that our country produced. Everything he did was for his country, and there were war crimes on both sides."

The Saigon government spokesman at the time, Nguyen Ngoc Linh, who runs several restaurants in Houston, said: "This is unfair to a man who spent his whole life in this war."

The American military commander during Loan's time, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, told the AP that the street execution "was an imprudent act, but an act performed under stress. This matter has legal implications that I can't pass judgment on. But there was great stress in Saigon at that time and great anger at the acts of the communist terrorists."

The immigration service declined to elaborate on its case against Loan, stating that a hearing date is yet to be set. But the main facts of the incident have never been disputed.

As recalled by Associated Press photographer Eddie Adams, whose picture of the incident won the Pulitzer Prize: "I was with several newsmen covering a battle on Feb. 1, 1968, near the An Quang pagoda in the Cholon section of Saigon."

"The Viet Cong were shooting it out with the police, and civilians were caught in the cross-fire. After the army and police stormed the pagoda, we were walking to our car when we saw a man in civilian clothes being led out of a doorway and down the street by marines. I started to make pictures along the way, and when we got to the corner, Gen. Loan suddenly appeared, walked over to the prisoner, drew his pistol, and shot him in the head. Then he turned to us and said quietly, 'They have killed many Americans and many of my people.'"

The dramatic sequence was also captured on television film by NBC News. Vietnamese police later said that the victim was a Viet Cong lieutenant who had been seen shooting and killing a policeman from the second floor of the building where he was captured. They said he had a revolver in his possession.

Loan's Washington lawyer, Robert Ackerman, said he will argue that the Vietnamese general was acting within his rights when he gunned down the suspect in the street.

"Vietnam was under martial law at the time, civilian rule had broken down, the law of the military commander prevailed," said Ackerman, a former U.S. Marine. "Loan will argue that he was directly ordered to summarily execute any civilian found with a gun. Warnings of this punishment were broadcast over Saigon radio."

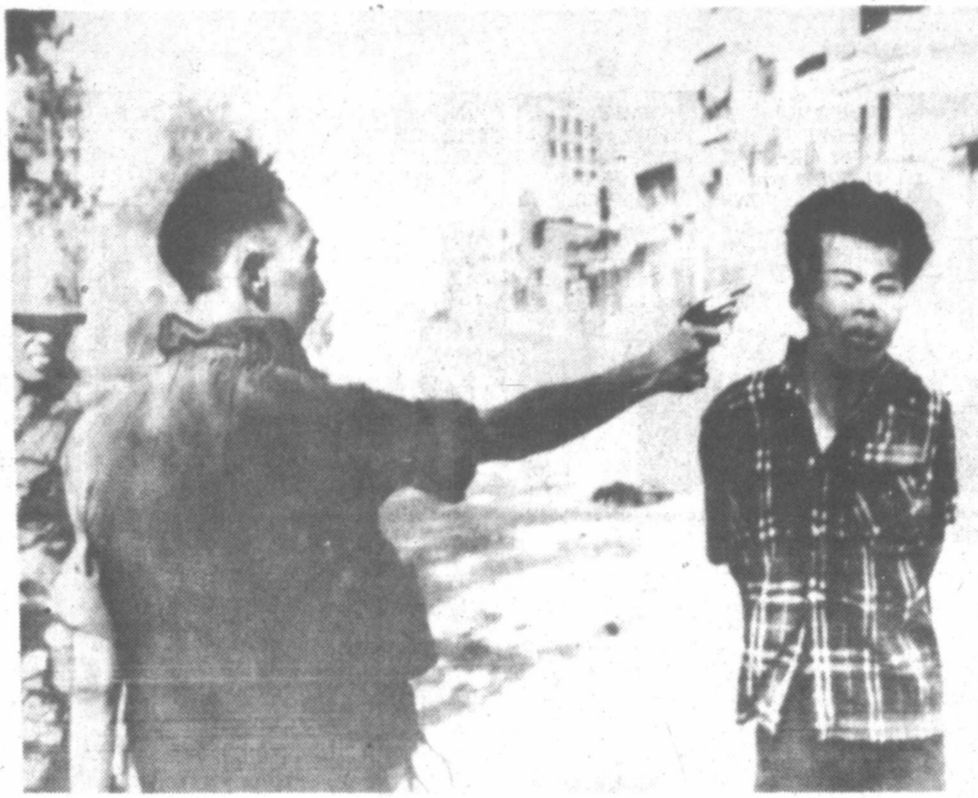

He argued that the incident did not require a trial under Vietnamese law "because it was a combat death, not a murder."

Ky said he will back Ackerman. "During the Tet offensive, guerrillas were all over the city, at the U.S. Embassy, at the presidential palace," Ky said. "We made it clear to all at the time that armed civilians would be executed. If it is thought necessary to persecute Loan, why not also persecute his superiors? I was one of his superiors."

The Vietnamese government made no attempt to discipline the police chief, and there was no inquiry. "It was just part of the bloody continuing war," Ky said, adding that "I was mad that the picture was taken at the time. It was bad publicity for us."

At war's end, he fled to the United States and established the modest "Le Trois Continents" restaurant in Burke, Va., on the outskirts of Washington. His wife cooked, and some of his five daughters helped tend tables. One daughter is in medical school.

Contacted at his restaurant Wednesday night, Loan declined to comment.

On the light side

GORHAM, N.Y. (AP) — Lee Airth returned home from a two-day business trip $100 richer — not counting "frills" — because an airline paid him not to fly.

Airth, a sales representative for a Cranbury, N.J., pharmaceutical firm, let himself be bumped twice on a single trip and delayed by more than five hours.

Minutes before his plane was to depart Pittsburgh for Rochester, N.Y., an Allegheny Airlines official announced that the flight had been overbooked. Airth volunteered to stay off the flight and the airline paid him $50, gave him a $6 meal and a reservation for the next flight.

Soon after Airth seated himself on the next flight, 3½ hours later, the airline discovered a second case of overbooking. The call for volunteer bumpers went out once more.

Airth again stepped forward — to the cheering and clapping of fellow travelers who had heard his story.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

CLEMENTS

Bill Clements:
Is a businessman and manager. He started with nothing and built a successful world-wide drilling company. Because of his outstanding management skills, he was appointed Deputy Secretary of Defense for four years and was responsible for a $125 billion a year budget and 3 million employees. He cut the civilian payroll of that bureaucracy by 85,000 people.

Bill Clements:
Is a conservative. He publicly stands for less government and less federal interference. And for more local control.

Bill Clements:
Is concerned about education. He was Chairman of SMU Board of Governors and head of Defense Dept. Committee on Excellence in Education. He's for "back to basics," competency testing and classroom discipline. He has made no promises to special interest groups.

Bill Clements:
Plans a "Taxpayers' Bill of Rights" to provide for citizen Initiative and Referendum; ban state income taxes, and require a record two-thirds vote of the legislature to pass any tax bill. It would also allow local taxpayers to ratify or reject tax increases by local governments. He will reduce taxes. Not just "freeze" them.

Bill Clements:
Is for complete and immediate natural gas deregulation. And for increased production of all energy sources. He favors expanded research into solar, fusion, biomass and other energy-producing forms. He is against Carter's energy plan which will give the federal government power to allocate Texas' resources.

HILL

John Hill:
Is a professional politician. He first ran for governor ten years ago and has been running ever since. He is a claims lawyer who was appointed to a government position. Later, after becoming State Attorney General, he used that office to further his political career.

John Hill:
Is a liberal. He stands for big government and federally controlled assistance. He supported a proposed new Constitution which would have centralized power in Austin. He has increased the State Attorney General's staff by 300% and its budget by 600% during his term of office.

John Hill:
Received a teachers' union endorsement in return for promising to raise all teachers' salaries regardless of performance. (At a taxpayers' cost of over $1 billion.) He has no education-related experience in his background.

John Hill:
Is for a billion dollar giveaway to increase state government and centralize bureaucracy. During the recent special session, he worked to defeat measures in the Taxpayers' Bill of Rights. He fought against tax relief so he could afford to finance his promised giveaway programs. He will freeze taxes, not reduce them.

John Hill:
Is closely tied to the policies of his national party and its liberal leaders and will support them. No matter what the cost to Texas taxpayers. Is responsible for a liberal takeover of the State Democratic Party in Texas.

Potent Plainview here tonight

By JOE BLOBAUM
 Pampa News Sports Editor

When a football team as awesome as the Plainview Bulldogs comes to town, it tends to spawn jokes about bus wrecks, biological warfare and power failures — anything to give the underdog a chance. All joking aside, a team Pampa Coach John Welborn considers to be one of the area's best ever will take on the Harvesters at 7:30 tonight at Harvester Field.

"Our chances are slim and none, and slim just left," he said Thursday, unable to resist one last joke before getting down to the serious business of stopping Plainview's potent offense.

"There may be times we might," he said in reference to questions about a wide-open show when the Harvesters have the ball.

Harvester Field. He's also scored 12 touchdowns, which is good enough for second place in District 4-AAAA's scoring race. The lead is held by Plainview halfback Ervin Davis, who has tallied 14 touchdowns and six PATs while amassing 599 yards on 71 carries, good for second place in the 4-AAAA rushing race.

Tailback Billy Williams, with 594 yards on 70 attempts, ranks third in 4-AAAA rushing and fourth in scoring with 42 points. But the recent success through the air — via the arm of quarterback and coach's son Scott Sherwood — is what has Plainview Coach Greg Sherwood ecstatic.

"We've thrown a lot more the last two weeks," he said. "We've had four touchdown passes in two district games and three of them were right off the bat in the third quarter against Hereford last week. We feel good about it, because now we know we can throw it."

Welborn, meanwhile, said an aerial attack wouldn't particularly surprise him. "They'll probably throw at us a lot just to prove they can do it," he said. But the Harvester coach realizes how much power there is in the Bulldog backfield. "If there's no hole there, the backs make it," Welborn said. But Plainview's line, which averages right around 200 pounds per man, has had little trouble opening holes for its stable of running backs.

Plainview's defense, which has given up an average of 274 yards per game, has been called suspect by some but Sherwood doesn't agree. "I think our defense has played well," he said. "We've had some points scored on us, but usually against the second and third defense."

The same holds true for about 100 of those yards given up every game, according to Sherwood. With a game plan of ball possession, Welborn obviously feels the Plainview defense is no patsy.

"Some people have scored early on them on fluke plays, really," he said. "But not many people have dove on 'em as have scored by turnovers or breaking a long run."

Pampa fans can forget the last joke about Plainview's bus getting lost on its way to the game. Sherwood, who spent five years at Spearman without losing a district game, is very familiar with Harvester Field. His Spearman teams played several playoff games here.

Despite Pampa's 2-5 record, Sherwood isn't about to let his 6-1 team be lulled to sleep. "Pampa's played as good as any team at times this year," he said. "They've had some problems with injuries, but they're about to get all of their back and so are we."

Naber says Americans need positive thinking

NEW YORK (AP) — The power of positive thinking is an important ingredient for an athlete, particularly one with Olympic aspirations, and American athletes need a dose of it, maintains 1976 swimming medalist John Naber.

"We must convince our athletes that they can be the best in the world," the towering Naber said Thursday at the first of a series of Olympic Reunion Breakfasts, scheduled throughout the country between now and the 1980 Games.

To help impart that confidence into American athletes and "prepare for the onslaught of Olympic competition," Naber suggested a four-point program.

"We need to have better athletic facilities," he said.

"We need to improve our sports medicine program."

"We need better coaching and training in sports psychology."

"And we need more international competition, so that young Americans will have the opportunity to compete against the best in the world more than once every four years."

At present, there are only two Olympic training sites in the United States — at Squaw Valley, Calif., and Colorado Springs, Colo.

Pampa area sports in brief

FROSH FOOTBALL
 Pampa's freshmen football teams took it on the chin here Thursday afternoon and evening as Bushland ambushed the B team 36-16 and the Dumas Imps bedeviled the A team 26-20.

The Pampa teams led at one time in both games. Bushland jumped out to a 6-0 lead on a long run by Kerry Pennington on the first play from scrimmage, but Pampa came back to take an 8-6 lead on a three-yard quarterback sneak by Ricky Edwards and a Mark Kotara run off a fake kick on the extra-point attempt.

But Bushland roared back on the running of John Robinson, who ripped off touchdown runs of 72 and 80 yards in the second quarter and added a 38-yard dash to paydirt in the second half. Todd Finley scored Bushland's other TD on a quarterback sneak to give the Blackhaws a 30-8 lead at halftime.

Devin Cash tallied from six yards out for Pampa's other touchdown. John Kadingo added the extra point run.

The A team, meanwhile, jumped out to a 14-0 lead in the first quarter, but the Imps from Dumas celebrated Halloween a few days late by scoring three times in the second quarter. A 51-yard punt return by James Black was the big blow for Dumas.

Pampa got its early lead on a pair of touchdown runs by Cavin Coleman and an extra-point dash by Mark Kotara. But a blocked punt and some good field position gave the visitors all the ammunition they needed to derail the host team.

Derek Bigham scored Pampa's last touchdown on a 13-yard keeper with just six seconds showing on the clock. The A team will host Berger next week, while the Bushland game closed out the B team schedule.

LEFORS JR. HIGH
 MIAMI — Cody Allison racked up 222 yards on 18 carries and scored touchdowns on runs of 14 and 24 yards to lead Lefors to a 22-6 junior high football victory over Miami here Thursday night.

Allison and Tracy Jennings, who had 82 yards on seven attempts and scored the Pirates' other TD on a 45-yard run, led the team in tackles with six each. Richard Kidwell, John Winegeart and Michael Jackson had five stops apiece and Chris McMinn was credited with four tackles in what Lefors Coach Don Parsons said was a hard hitting game.

"It was probably the best overall game we've had all year," he said. "I was glad I wasn't out there being hit some of the time."

Allison and Jennings both had extra-point runs for the young Pirates.

Lefors outgained Miami 355-50 yards in total offense as it raised its record to 4-3. Lefors will take a week off before hosting Skellytown Nov. 16 in its last game of the season.

Cougars need an encore

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
 AP Sports Writer

What do you do for an encore after you play a mistake-free football game?

That's the happy problem facing the University of Houston Saturday night in the Astro-dome against weak Texas Christian.

The Cougars didn't make an error last week in defeating the Arkansas Razorbacks 20-9 to jump into a first place tie with Texas.

Houston can take the lead in the Southwest Conference by a half game with a victory over the Horned Frogs. Texas is idle.

"I don't think this group will look one second past the next play," said Houston Coach Bill Yeoman when asked the prospect of his team being overconfident.

Yeoman said of TCU: "They'll come down here high and take a good broadside shot at us, so we had better be ready."

TCU Coach F.A. Dry said Houston is "one of the class football teams... I just don't see any great weakness... they are really dangerous when they get the ball around midfield. They seem to always drive it in."

Houston was a solid four-touchdown choice for the 7:30 p.m. game.

Elsewhere around the SWC it was a battle for third place with each club owning at least two losses behind Houston and Texas with 4-0 ledgers.

The Texas Aggies, 1-0 under new Coach Tom Wilson, were one and one-half point favorites over Southern Methodist in a regionally televised (3:10 p.m.) game in the Cotton Bowl.

Texas A&M, SMU and Baylor are each tied at 2-2 followed by Arkansas and Texas Tech at 1-2. Rice at 1-3 and TCU at 0-4.

Rice is at Arkansas and Baylor is at Texas Tech in other league games Saturday afternoon.

"Tech will be healthy and rested up after the open date," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff.

Pro picker can't buy a break

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Picking the pros has become no challenge this wacky National Football League season. All you have to do is study the past performance charts, examine the statistical matchups, take a long, careful look at the injury lists and then... flip a coin.

Stay with the favorites and you're likely to choke on chalk this season. So you pick the upsets and the wrong teams get upset. It all comes with the territory.

But if the Pro Picker has nothing else working for him, he can still call on his supply of tenaciousness. Week after week, he comes back, sticking out his chin and asking for more punishment.

Last week's 8-5 ran the season's mark to 72-53 and 576.

The picks:

Dallas 23, Miami 20
Those extra days of following last week's Thursday night game give the Cowboys the edge. Come to think of it, after that game, they need an edge.

Pittsburgh 31, New Orleans 14
The Steelers learned their lesson in last week's close call against Kansas City. They won't let up against the Saints.

New England 34, Buffalo 13
Everything went right for the Patriots against the Jets last week. It will be almost as easy against the Bills.

Green Bay 17, Philadelphia 14
Banged-up Eagles will make this one close but the Packers should prevail by the distance of a Chester Marcol field goal.

Denver 20, N.Y. Jets 13
The Jets have lost linebacker Greg Buttle for the season and that's good news for the Broncos attack, which can use good news.

Houston 24, Cleveland 21
One vote for the home field edge. There's little else separating these two in-and-out clubs.

Los Angeles 27, Tampa Bay 14
Isn't it time the Rams stopped kidding around? If they don't, those Tampa Bay kids could surprise them.

Minnesota 17, Detroit 7
There is great temptation to pick the Lions since the Vikings rarely do what you'd expect. We'll give form another chance here.

N.Y. Giants 20, St. Louis 14
The Cards have won their game. The Giants learned last week not to sit on a lead. Now if they can just get one.

Seattle 31, Chicago 21
The Bears are in a shambles and that condition can be compounded by the ambitious young Seahawks.

Oakland 24, Kansas City 17
Did you know that Ken Stabler has thrown 20 interceptions, the second highest total in the NFL? Did you know that the Chiefs' eight interceptions are the second fewest by any team in the league?

Atlanta 16, San Francisco 10
The new-coach trick won't work for the 49ers, who'll need more than Fred O'Connor to salvage this season.

San Diego 28, Cincinnati 20
Both teams are coming off victories, but Chargers get the edge here because they're at home.

Washington 21, Baltimore 10
Billy Kilmer's old eyes will light up when he gets a look at the NFL's 28th best defense.

Nittany Lions see life beyond game

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Some Penn State football players were sitting around the other night and talking. It was about Saturday's game with Maryland, right?

They had to be discussing the impending confrontation between the two unbeaten Eastern giants: Penn State, ranked second in the nation, and Maryland, fifth, each with eight victories.

The Penn State players had to be concerned with protecting the nation's longest major college football winning streak — 16 games.

Right?

No, said defensive tackle Matt Millen.

"We were discussing exorcism and religion and that stuff," said Millen, a 249-pound junior. "We were talking about the hereafter."

"Then, when it ended, I said,

"Let's everybody think about what the Maryland game means. Do you know what the answer was? It doesn't mean a thing."

Millen hastily explained that it wasn't that he and his teammates didn't want to beat Maryland, but he explained that they were just trying to keep things in their proper perspective.

"It reminded me of when I first left for college and I told my father my goals," Millen recalled.

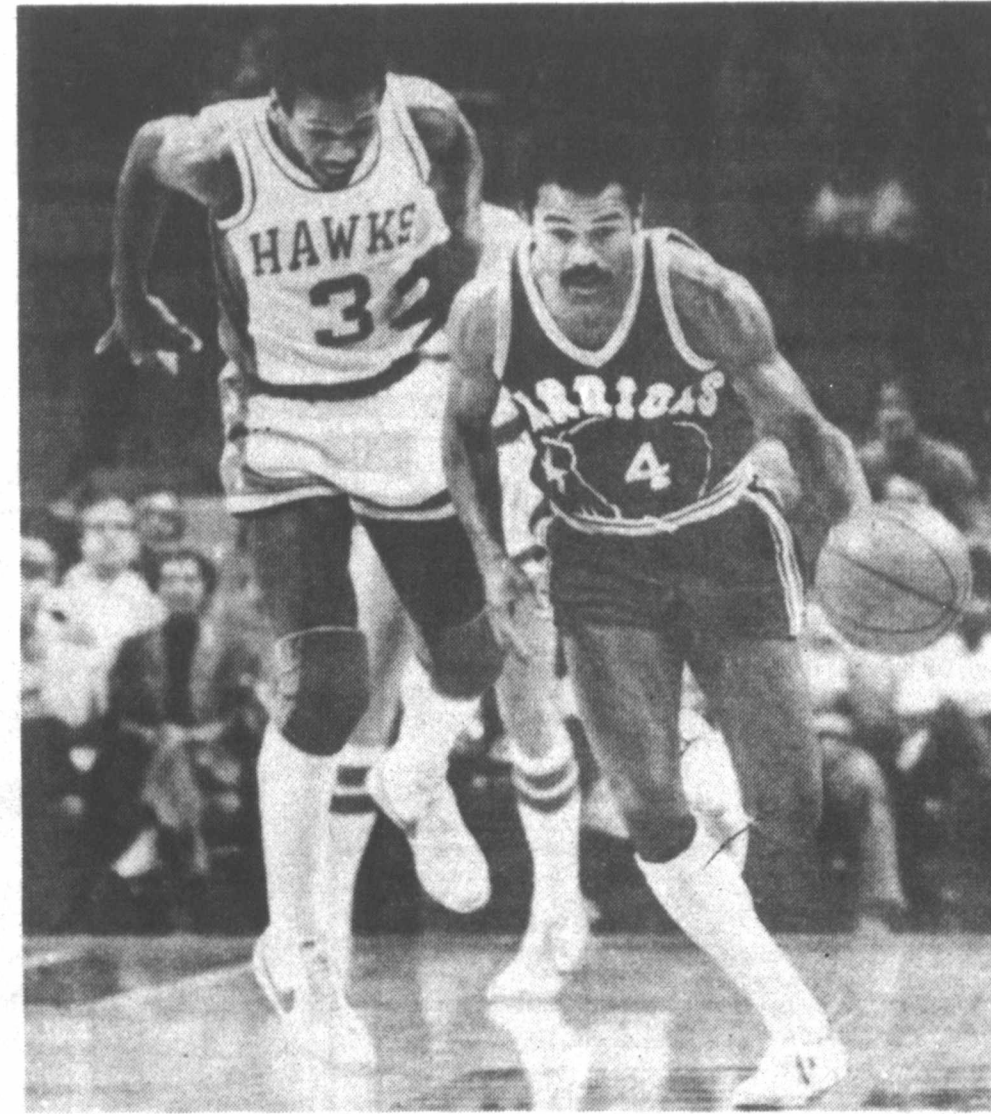

"My father said to me, 'Matt, who won the 1960 Heisman trophy?' Of course I didn't remember. It made me realize that things may be important to you, but who remembers? It gave me a different point of view than I had."

Al Johnson returns to Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston specialty teamer Al Johnson has retired from his babysitting job and returned to his former duties of knocking Oiler opponents good.

"I don't have to worry about him hitting people," Oiler specialty teams coach John Paul Young said. "The only way Al won't hit you is if you're dead or he's dead."

Johnson, captain of the Oiler special team last year and an inspirational rallying force, abruptly walked out of training camp before the first workout, saying he had lost interest in football.

Johnson tried to get a teaching job but that didn't work out and he ended up staying home and taking care of the baby.

That's all changed now, and thanks to a ruling earlier this week from National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle, Johnson will be in the lineup Sunday when the Oilers try to rebound against the Cleveland Browns.

Both teams go into the game with 5-4 records and tied for second place in the American Football Conference Central Division.

"I was tired today," Johnson said after his first workout this week. "but I feel a lot more comfortable here than I did at home babysitting."

Johnson, whose vicious tackles on kickoff and punts became an Oiler trademark, received a round of applause from his teammates when he showed up for his first meeting.

"After last season, I was determined to get in the best shape of my life," Johnson said. "I didn't stop running. I worked every day, from January through May. I ran so much I dropped to about 170 pounds and the harder I pushed myself, the harder it was to keep up the pace."

"I overworked, it's that simple," he said. "It caused me to slack off before camp and when I got there, I knew I wasn't mentally ready for the fight. I didn't feel I could be competitive. I thought if I stayed I wouldn't be fair to myself or to my teammates."

The competitive juices were flowing again by mid-September however and Johnson asked Oiler Coach O. A. "Bum" Phillips for a chance.

"Things weren't working out," Johnson said. "I needed to come back. But at the time Coach Phillips didn't have a place for me. No one was hurt. I understood his situation. So I tried to stay in shape and kept wishing and hoping something would happen."

It did. Linebacker Art Stringer suffered a hamstring injury last week against Cincinnati and was placed on injured reserve, making room for Johnson on the roster.

"Al can't do anything but help us," Oiler specialty teams coach John Paul Young said. "He's not in great shape, but he doesn't have to be. He'll play no more than 20 plays Sunday and he'll get to rest between them. He can work himself into shape."

Cards top McLean

The Cardinals of the Optimist Club's Tiger League football program got their first win of the season here Thursday night, grinding out an 18-6 decision over McLean at Optimist Park.

The victory should give the Cards some momentum going into the All-City Tournament, scheduled for Nov. 11 at Optimist Park. Teams from Stratford, Dumas and Perryton will join the five Pampa teams in the all-day affair.

Action will begin at 8 a.m. and continue until the championship is decided. The title game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., with the league's queen to be crowned at halftime of the championship tilt.

Volleyball squad wins

AMARILLO — Apparently headed for another District 3-AAAA showdown with Amarillo High, Pampa's volleyball team upped its second-round district mark to 2-0 here Thursday night with a 15-10, 11-9 victory over Palo Duro.

The Harvesters Spikers host Tascosa Tuesday night before traveling to take on the Sandies of AHS Thursday afternoon.

Pampa Coach Lynn Wolfe said her team worked better together than it had in a long time in fashioning its wins over the Dons. The victory upped Pampa's season mark to 19-3, while Palo Duro fell to 14-12 overall and 0-2 in the second half of district play.

Pampa's junior varsity added another mark to its victory column for 1978, scoring a 15-10, 10-14, 14-12 victory over the Palo Duro JV.

In other District 3-AAAA action Thursday night, Amarillo High squeaked by Tascosa 15-7, 15-12 in its first district match of the season's second round. Tascosa fell to 1-1 in league play.

Tuesday's games at Harvester Field House, the final home contest for the Harvesters, will begin with the junior varsity contest at 6:30. The varsity match will begin 20 minutes after the completion of the JV contest.

John Hill is attacking State Budget waste...

"I've already started my search for waste in the state budget. I want to be ready to tackle overspending the minute I take office as Governor in January. My budget office already is paring down big state agency budget requests, to keep spending within available revenues. We'll have to live within our means, because I'll veto any new taxes."

... because he knows our taxpayers need relief from inflation.

Foreign briefs

LONDON (AP) — The world's merchant marine fleets lost 334 ships in accidents in 1977. Lloyd's Register of Shipping reports.

The annual survey said Wednesday the losses totalled 1,073,127 gross tons and included 129 foundering, 112 wrecks, 57 fires and 32 lost through collisions.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (AP) — Six Basque guerrillas stopped the shows in two movie houses to read statements against the new Spanish constitution approved by Parliament.

They addressed the audiences with megaphones Wednesday after overpowering employees

Foundation sets meeting for tonight

The Fall quarterly meeting for the Pampa Environmental Beautification Foundation is scheduled for Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Flame Room at the Pioneer Gas Building.

The foundation has been supported by contributions from M.K. Brown and Gray - Pampa Foundations, business firms, citizens and through memorials.

The foundation was created as a vehicle for the beautification of parks, streets and public places in Pampa. The tax-exempt organization is five years old.

These funds have provided the landscaping for various areas in the community.

Over 70 citizens and business firms hold membership in the Foundation.

The annual membership drive is underway. Membership dues of $6 per person can be mailed to Mrs. Betty Henderson, secretary, P.O. box 316, Pampa.

in the two theaters, authorities said. A referendum on the constitutional proposal is expected Dec. 6.

The Basque guerrilla group ETA seeks independence for Spain's northern Basque provinces, a measure not included in the constitution.

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — A cholera outbreak in northern Zambia killed at least 17 persons and left 82 others seriously ill, health officials say.

Dr. Joseph Kasonde, Zambia's director of medical services, said the outbreak is centered in Mbala near the Tanzanian border and that extra medical personnel and vaccine have been sent to the area.

HONG KONG (AP) — China is building underground cities in Peking, Hong Kong Communist newspapers said today.

The papers said the cities include air raid shelters, hotels, restaurants and garages. Quoting Peking's official Hsinhua news agency, the papers said the cities can save lives in the event of air attacks and are less vulnerable to earthquakes.

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — A new national daily newspaper called The Star was published today with an initial press run of 1.3 million.

The owners, Express Newspapers of London, launched the 32-page tabloid to compete with the Daily Mirror and The Sun, rival tabloids which each sell more than 3 million copies daily. The Star costs 12 cents, slightly cheaper than its competition.

All three feature nude-to-the-waist girls, sports and crime news.

Fly On The Run

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — A human fly remains at large, but Missoula police at least have its wings as a clue.

A bartender told authorities early Sunday he was assaulted by the large fly. John Collins said he evicted a man in the insect costume from his bar, but the fly — apparently angry over being shooed away — returned and swatted Collins as he mixed a drink.

Police found the wings on a nearby corner, and weren't sure how their suspect got away.
