

Norman Rockwell dead at 84

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Artist Norman Rockwell, whose freckled-faced boys, pigtailed girls, kindly doctors and small town scenes mirrored Americana on Saturday Evening Post covers and Boy Scout calendars in a career spanning six decades, is dead at age 84.

The pale, lean-limbed, pipesmoking illustrator worked seven days a week — with a half-day off for Christmas — to produce a canvas mirror of the nation he loved, but once described himself as "a hack illustrator."

He should be remembered, his wife, Molly, said after his death late Wednesday at his Stockbridge home as "an artist and illustrator... well-known artist and illustrator."

Mrs. Rockwell said her husband's death was not unexpected, and that he "had been ill a long time."

Funeral arrangements were incomplete early today.

Rockwell's America was a nation of rough-hewn but gentle workmen, prim grandmothers and soldiers home from the great war. In the turbulent 1960s, it was a nation torn by Vietnam and divided by race.

It was an America of the Four Freedoms, a series of paintings for the Post taken from a speech by Congress by Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1941. The paintings became part of the nation's war effort and its rallying cry.

But always it was an America depicted with a passion for visual truth — he worked invariably from live models and props, even posing a chicken, which he said would "stand just as you've placed him for four or five minutes."

Perhaps the most popular artist in the United States, Rockwell died without attaining status in the world of "real art."

Critics found his work simplistic, corny and superficially photographic — however much he touched and delighted millions.

Rockwell never claimed to be anything more than an illustrator who made a lot of money. "I just do the things, and people pay me very high prices," he told The Associated Press in 1974.

His labors, which began when he left high school at 16, produced uncovers works — including more than 360 covers for the Post, which first bought his illustrations when he was 22. He later switched to Look magazine when the ownership of the Post changed hands.

Although much of his work was nostalgic, he was also an illustrator of his times: he spent 26 straight hours on a Post cover saluting the historic flight of Charles Lindbergh, and depicted Neil Armstrong's footprint on the dusty surface of the moon after the first moonwalk in 1969.

Late in his life, he was often ill and confined to a wheelchair. But in late 1977, he still made occasional journeys to his studio in a barn next to the white colonial home he shared with his third wife, Molly.

"It's hell to grow old," he said then.

Mrs. Rockwell, 82, a retired teacher who married the illustrator in 1961, said shortly after his death that her husband's "work was his passion." His "greatest delight," she said, were his Post covers.

"He was very happy and he was devoted to his work," she told the AP.

Clements aware of importance in job

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story has been compiled by the staff member John Price and writers of the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bill Clements walked under the vast rotunda of Texas' pink granite Capitol and it hit him for the first time that he would be the state's first Republican governor in 105 years.

"It brought home for the very first time that it really happened," the 61-year-old multi-millionaire who was once an oil field roughneck, told a Capitol news conference Wednesday. Clements, who had never made a political race before, was declared surprise winner over Democrat John Hill, attorney general and former secretary of state, by 16,000 votes.

The latest vote totals from all 254 counties, 245 complete, showed Clements with 1,181,562 and Hill 1,165,963.

"I will be governor for all Texans, including those who voted for Mr. Hill," he told the news conference. "The future of Texas needs all of us working together ...

My campaign isn't over. It's just beginning because now I have the duty to put into practice my ideas and your ideas for making our state even greater."

Clements repeated that "I am a Texan down to the toenails, and I suspect that is why I was elected."

Reaction in Pampa to Clements' upset victory was predictably mixed according to party lines.

"I'm just tickled to death," said Bobbie Nisbet, Gray County Republican chairman. "I think he'll be a good governor. "He'll be good from a public relations standpoint," Nisbet said, explaining that Clements will "give a good image to the nation."

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson was also pleased with the results of the gubernatorial race.

"As a member of a loose-knit organization of mayors for Clements, we were real happy to be able to participate in the election of the upcoming governor," Wilkerson remarked.

"We feel that, as representatives at the local level, we were able to transmit to Bill Clements the true feelings of the people of our area," he said.

Ruth Osborne, Democratic chairman for the county, expressed surprise at Clements' victory.

"I was surprised and I was disappointed," Osborne said. "I felt for quite some time that it was going to be a close race. I don't have a clue as to why it happened."

"I'm going to be like (Speaker of the House) Billy Clayton. I feel that as long as he (Clements) works with the elected officials we'll be alright. We'll have to wait and see how well he works with our Democratic House and Democratic Senate."

"It's a first for all of us oldtime Democrats."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, whose third-term plans were thwarted by Hill in the May primary, congratulated Clements and promised to work for "a smooth and orderly transition."

Clements visited Briscoe at the Governor's Mansion late Wednesday.

Davis almost scuttled surveillance operation

HOUSTON (AP) — An FBI agent says an unidentified man almost scuttled a surveillance operation critical to the state's murder-for-hire case against millionaire Cullen Davis.

That man, agent Jerry Hubbell later learned, was Davis.

The Fort Worth industrialist is on trial, accused of masterminding a scheme to kill the judge who presided over his high-stakes divorce case. The judge was not killed.

Hubbell, the state's second witness, faced a new round of defense cross-examination today. The silver-haired Dallas agent told Wednesday how Davis stumbled onto the FBI unit monitoring his pivotal meeting August 20th with David McCrory, his chief accuser.

"It scared them," prosecutor Tolly Wilson said of the four agents in the van. "They thought the whole deal was blown."

Hubbell testified that a man he could not identify approached the unmarked FBI van that morning and that it was packed with cameras and videotape equipment.

Unknown to Davis, McCrory, 40, was wired for sound.

The state contends Davis agreed to meet McCrory there to deliver $25,000 for a "hit man" hired to kill a Fort Worth judge.

Davis, 45, is on trial accused of soliciting the murder of Joe Eidsen, his divorce judge. It was a murder that never came off.

Agent Hubbell testified that he and three other agents had been at the parking lot only a short time when he heard a car drive up.

He said "blackout curtains" prevented him from identifying the driver, but that he could see his silhouette when he climbed from his car.

"I could hear the motor of the vehicle parked beside the van," he said. "I could see the shadow of an individual... from a rear window."

Asked by a prosecutor what happened next, Hubbell replied:

"I heard somebody outside knocking on the side of the van."

Q: Did you or the other agents make your presence known?

A: No, we did not.

Q: How long was the man there?

A: Less than a minute.

Although Hubbell did not identify the man as Davis, other principals in the case did so. And the videotape collected that morning is among the most incriminating evidence in the case.

The first comment on a transcript of the taped encounter between Davis and McCrory alluded to Davis' suspicions about the unmarked van.

"Just paranoid," he is quoted as telling McCrory at the outset of that critical meeting.

A second FBI agent testified earlier he was told by McCrory that Davis would pay up to $80,000 to have Judge Eidsen killed by the hit man. According to McCrory, the agent said, the Fort Worth industrialist was prepared to pay a contract killer hundreds of thousands of dollars to dispose of the judge and others.

Agent Ron Jannings testified McCrory provided him a number of price tags for the murders of Davis' "enemies."

TEXAS GOVERNOR-ELECT Bill Clements and wife, Rita, left, exchange parting words with Texas Governor Dolph Briscoe and wife, Janie, after visiting the governors mansion in Austin Wednesday. The Briscoes' gave the Clements a tour of the mansion after the Republican candidate was declared the winner of a tight race against John Hill for the Texas governorship. When inaugurated, Clements will become Texas' first Republican governor since 1874.

Carter signs diluted energy package

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today signed a diluted energy bill that is a far cry from the original plan he submitted to Congress 18 months ago as the "moral equivalent of war."

After signing the measure into law at a White House ceremony, Carter left for Kansas City, Mo., to address a Future Farmers convention and hold a news conference.

The 95th Congress completed work on the energy package just before adjourning Oct. 15.

Although it was a big domestic victory for the president, the compromise legislation omitted many of the tough proposals in his original package.

Among items scuttled along the way were stiff new taxes on gasoline, crude oil and industrial fuels.

While the bill provides tax credits to consumers for various energy conservation steps, it also is expected to increase costs for natural gas users.

Individuals who use gas for heating and cooking will be affected directly, and everyone is likely to feel indirect effects from higher costs passed on by industrial users, who will bear the brunt of the price increases.

Natural gas prices will be allowed to rise by about 10 percent annually until 1985 when price lids will be removed from most natural gas. In the meantime, price controls will be extended for the first time to intrastate gas — that used in the state where it is produced.

There has been no clear resolution of what the new pricing plan will cost consumers. Various opponents of deregulation have claimed it will transfer $200 billion from consumers to producers over the next seven years. That could mean increases averaging $100 to $200 a year for typical families who heat with natural gas.

Deregulation supporters concede gas prices will go up, but say the additional cost attributable to deregulation will be closer to $20 a year for the average family. And they say it will mean more gas in the long run.

Other features of the new law:

—Taxpayers can take a tax credit of 15 percent on the first $2,000 for home insulation, storm doors, storm windows and other energy-saving equipment, up to a total credit of $300. The credit applies to purchases made as far back as April 20, 1977, the day Carter submitted his energy proposals to Congress.

—A tax credit of 30 percent on the first $2,000 and 20 percent on the next $8,000 — up to a total credit of $2,200 — can be taken for solar, wind and geothermal energy equipment.

—New cars that get poor gasoline mileage will be taxed, beginning with 1980 models getting less than 15 miles per gallon. By 1986, the tax will apply to cars getting less than 23.5 miles per gallon and will range from $400 to $3,850.

—New energy efficiency standards will be set for home appliances. Utilities will have to offer consumers help in better insulating their homes and in arranging financing for such improvements, and home insulation grants will be available for low income families, schools and hospitals.

—Industries and power plants will be encouraged, and in some cases required, to switch from natural gas to coal. Residential ornamental gas lamps will be banned by 1982.

Dispute growing in Mideast talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top Egyptian negotiators were meeting today with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance amid indications of a growing dispute over linking a peace treaty with Israel to future talks involving the Palestinian issue.

Acting Foreign Minister Boutros Ghali and his deputy, Osama Al-Baz, were understood to be carrying instructions from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat that the treaty nearing completion must state clearly that the immediate, next goal is an overall Mideast settlement.

Israel is committed to dealing with the Palestinian issue in the next round of negotiations. But Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, newly returned from Jerusalem, and Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan informed Vance on Wednesday that hardliners in their government want to delete a treaty provision linking the two sets of negotiations.

The provision appears in a preamble to the treaty. Israel's attempt at deletion — which the United States likely would join Egypt in resisting — complicates efforts to complete the treaty.

Israel's stance raised an objection to the language two weeks ago. Differences appeared to be narrowing, since the issue flared up again when Weizman went home for consultations.

Israeli hardliners who are concerned that Israel would be conceding too much in advance of the second round of talks want the link softened or erased.

Sadat, on the other hand, is chary of appearing in the Arab world to be cutting a separate deal with Israel or of not protecting Palestinian interests.

There are known to be only two other major issues in dispute.

One concerns the details of Israel's transfer of Sinai oilfields to Egypt. The other involves the kind of aid Israel would receive from the United States.

American officials were reluctant to comment on the dispute over the treaty language and how it might affect negotiations over the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

However, George Sherman, a State Department spokesman, emphasized that "from the U.S. point of view we would like to move into these negotiations as quickly as possible."

He described the Israelis' 40-minute session with Vance as "a serious meeting."

In Israel, meanwhile, the Jerusalem Post quoted Washington sources today as saying Attorney General Griffin B. Bell canceled a trip to Israel to avoid a dispute over American policy toward Jerusalem.

The newspaper said the State Department canceled Bell's scheduled visit because Israeli Justice Minister Shmuel Tamir wanted to receive Bell at his office in East Jerusalem, whose annexation during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war is not recognized by the United States.

Officials at the U.S. consulate in Jerusalem, however, dismissed the reports and said Bell's plans had never been finalized.

The forecast for Pampa and vicinity is mostly fair today, tonight and Friday, becoming cooler on Friday.

Commissioners court to meet

The Gray County Commissioners Court will meet at 9 a.m. Friday in the county courtroom for a regular meeting.

Items on the agenda include a budget hearing on county and revenue sharing expenditures and the canvassing of election returns.

Flu season officially here

HOUSTON (AP) — Baylor College of Medicine researchers say the nation's first three Russian influenza cases of the 1978-79 season have been diagnosed here.

Dr. Robert B. Couch, director of Baylor's Influenza Research Center, earlier had forecast an outbreak of this type flu in the months ahead.

"But it is too early to predict the course the disease will take," Couch said Wednesday.

The three cases were said to involve preschoolers who have recovered.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

TV no boom to mankind

Some inventions — the safety pin, for one — have been unquestionably a boon to the human race, but what about television?

It brings moving pictures to the living room, not at a few scheduled hours but all the time. And to fill all the time, the programmers have diluted their offerings until they are pretty thin fare.

In the fierce competition for the televiewer's attention have become so strident they have the parents pretty much worked up. In the 1920s and 1930s when we had radio but no TV, there was no opposition to the former comparable to the present reaction against the latter.

Children like TV for the same reason they like picture books. Pictures convey concepts. They are easy to grasp, while concepts conveyed by language, either spoken or written, are harder for the child. There is something of the juvenile in all of us, and TV caters to it.

One reason I am so allergic to the tube is the artificial laughter that interlards every supposed comedy. I say artificial — presumably it is emitted by a machine, probably a record player, which is turned on and off at what are deemed the right moments. No human laughter is visible. I assume there are none.

If it were not for the laugh machine, often there would be little indication that we are witnessing a comedy. The director has to tell us when to laugh, otherwise we would seldom do so. Perhaps this explains the universal employment of artificial laughter.

The producers of TV comedy evidently are under the mistaken notion that viewers enjoy being prompted when to laugh. Each mechanical titter as much as says, "That was funny. Laugh, you ninny."

They say Abraham Lincoln indicated heartily at his own stories. That indicates he told them mainly for his own benefit for on the comedy stage, where jokes are told to make others laugh, the dead pan is the rule. When Fred Allen cracked wise, much of the humor of the thing lay in Fred's sobriety. This historic principle apparently has escaped the TV people.

If a line is really funny, the TV viewers will supply the laughter. If it is not, but just tries to be, there should be nothing to delay rapid progress to the next line or action.

The clown who himself laughs least is most laughed at. Offhand, I do not recall Charlie Chaplin ever indulging in mirth.

I wonder how many youngsters — and perhaps oldsters — assume there is a live but unseen audience which spontaneously bursts out laughing every now and then. That would be too undependable a laughing machine.

The theory of the TV producers who supply the mechanical laughter evidently is that it is needed to "prime the pump," so to speak, and move the viewers to laugh. When a show is funny, those witnessing it cannot help laughing.

Television caters to other emotions besides mirth. When a child dies on the screen, prompting the viewers to groan, why doesn't the producer supply a groan? And when the villain, threatening the helpless maiden, arouses anger in the viewer why aren't we greeted with a blast of imprecations from an anger machine? If we need to be told when to laugh, it seems we should receive a dig in the ribs when it is time to cry or to cuss.

Television has the advantage over radio that TV makes use of both sight and sound, while radio has only the latter. However, many programs are broadcast on TV which would be just as effective on radio: speeches, interviews, newscasts. Not every speaker's looks add to his credibility.

The greatest single service of both radio and television is the prompt dissemination of news of what is going on in the world. The airwaves do not take the place of the newspapers which can relate events in greater detail and which cannot only be read but reread but in an age when time is increasingly precious radio and TV excel in promptness.

An obvious advantage of radio over TV is that I can wash the dinner dishes and listen to a radio program simultaneously, while TV requires undivided attention. Wives, consider how many more husbands would be doing the dishes for their wives had TV never been invented.

When viewing "Roots" or "Centennial," one sees what powerful drama is possible on TV, one wishes that more of the many great books written by man were telecast.

All other criticisms are minor beside of the charge that this medium has failed thus far to bring to its huge audiences more of the great classics of all time.

Tonto Him wiser then Kemo Sabey

A man who pleaded guilty to murder by ambush outside Raleigh said in court this week that his accomplice, a 19-year-old man found guilty by a jury, shot and killed a West Virginia vacationing school teacher after the teacher begged him to "take anything he wanted, just don't hurt him."

The young teacher's parents sat in the courtroom. The mother cried. A young girl, 17, posed as a stranded motorist. When the "Good Samaritan" stopped to help, two armed men emerged from the bushes. The teacher, sadly, ended up dead.

People bent on crime will get guns one way or the other. But the citizen who is not allowed to own a gun will be defenseless.

For what seems too long a time, Supreme Court decisions have made it more difficult to convict vicious killers and others. Some convicted, get out months later on a "technicality."

Before we let Congress or the courts stir the people of guns, or before the people themselves vote their own constitutional right away, we recommend to them "Why Just Bad Guys Have Guns." It is a 1972 parody written by Edwin A. Roberts Jr. on how things might have been in the old West 100 years ago, if some of the so-called liberal views were in practice then as the Lone Ranger went after his man. We quote:

"They say, Tonto, we must change our approach in championing justice."

"Moon high now," Tonto observed. "We get going after Bart Slade gang?"

"Yes. We must find poor Slade and talk him into surrendering. Then we must consider how best to rehabilitate him."

"That not easy. Slade kill 126 men, women, and children in bloody march from Lincoln County to Kansas. His men kill 235 more. Women and girls all raped. Men tortured to death. Slade gang rob 14 banks; 31 general stores, 18 stagecoaches, and two trains. They shoot dogs and horses. They set fire to six cats. They tough cookies."

"You're right, Tonto. And that's why we must try all the harder to help Bart Slade and his friends see the error of their ways. Remember that Bart Slade is a victim of his environment. He is merely the product of a society that doesn't care. He was raised in a sod house not far from here, and he had few chances to find his true identity."

Tonto turned thoughtful. "But thousands of pioneers make new life in West by first living in sod houses. Slade family not richer or poorer than others. Most others don't turn out criminals. We catch Slade and Slade hang."

"No, no, Tonto. Capital punishment is cruel and unusual..."

"But, Bart Slade cruel and unusual."

"That doesn't matter, Tonto. Just a moment ago I was poring over a monograph on the death penalty by Mary Elizabeth Bonkers, a sociology major at Sarah Loveland College. Miss Bonkers has convinced me that capital punishment doesn't discourage murder."

"But it discourage murder."

"That's vengeful thinking, Indian companion. No, I want to catch Slade, not because I wish him ill, but because the sooner he is apprehended the sooner he will be back on the path of righteousness. I want to salvage him so that he will be a credit to the society that made him what he is."

"But Slade swear to kill you. He say he then chop off your head and stuff it so far down in your ribs you think you in jail."

"That is just criminal rhetoric," remarked the Lone Ranger. "Now saddle Silver and Scout and dont go on talking like a reactionary Indian. And you can leave the guns here. We won't be needing them. The fewer the guns around the fewer people will get hurt."

Organized labor - or organized arson

By REED LARSON

A recent article in the Denver Post serves to remind us once again of the violent measures union organizers will employ in their no-holds barred attempt to force compulsory unionism on unwilling workers.

Prison inmate Tony Mulligan, a former union official for 17 construction unions in Colorado, asked to be transferred to a community correctional facility in the Denver area. Mulligan is serving up to five years on crimes of arson and conspiracy. Alex Wilson, a top official of the Colorado Department of Corrections, admitted that the request would probably be denied. "The way I'm looking at it now, it looks very negative," Wilson admitted.

And well it might. Mulligan was the man behind what the Reader's Digest called "the most arrogant and costly onslaught of organized arson in American history."

From 1968 through 1974, 38 fires occurred in Colorado, costing an estimated $10 million in damages. All of the fires were at apartment and condominium construction sites which used non-union labor. Time after time, the following pattern was repeated: Union organizers would ask a builder to sign a contract binding him to hire only union members. The builder would refuse. The union men would leave. Just when a structure would be almost completed, it would be set on fire. A union organizer would then appear and builder if he didn't feel now that he should sign an "all-union" contract.

The ugly cycle of building and burning went on for years until the Colorado Bureau of Investigation (CBI) entered the case in 1971. After four years of hard investigative work, CBI got convictions of Mulligan and an associate who would arrogantly warn builders, "Jobs of this type that are non-union have been known to burn."

The success of CBI and its special prosecutors show what determined local authorities can do — even after federal agencies have given up or shied away from a controversial case.

But a key question remains: Could such a wave of arson over so long a period of time have occurred without the knowledge of union officials higher up? As the Reader's Digest asked, "Isn't it time to find out how far these conspiracies reach?"

At a time when Congressional committees are spending millions of dollars and months of their time investigating possible conspiracies behind the deaths of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King, it is reasonable to ask them to spend at least some time examining the connection between organized labor and deliberate violence of the kind practiced by a union organizer, Tony Mulligan.

(Larson is president of the National Right to Work Committee. His column appears in several hundred papers.)

Social security tax hikes

Sylvia Porter

A postponement of the stiff increases in Social Security taxes to be slapped on tens of millions of us — starting this January and scheduled to increase again in 1980, still again in 1981 — would be a major curb on the inflation spiral now cursing our nation.

A tax suspension — or more, a rollback — would be welcomed by every segment of our economy, employers, self-employed. It would be an undeniable step toward deceleration of the pace of inflation. On the other hand, if the Social Security tax hikes written into the law as it now stands are not revised, there is no doubt that much of the added Social Security tax burden on employers simply will be passed along to the consumers in the form of higher prices for goods and services we buy.

And the impact on the pocketbooks of all middle- upper income taxpayers will be felt immediately in lower take-home pay. The resentments will intensify: the "generation gap" between workers paying more and more in taxes to support the retired who are receiving more and more in benefits is certain to widen and become ever more explosive.

But President Carter could not alone postpone the tax hikes in the law — much less roll them back! Only Congress, which voted the Social Security tax increases last year, can change the law.

To be fair, Carter initially asked Congress to tap general revenues rather than rely entirely on huge increases in SS taxes to solve the system's deficit problem. He was strongly opposed to the tax actions Congress took. But he could not force Congress in 1977, and he cannot force the 1979 session to revise the ill-conceived Social Security tax financing plan either.

Yet, if the contributions employers and employees now make just to the disability and hospitalization portions of Social Security were to be replaced by funds from general tax revenues, Brookings Institution economist Robert Crandall estimates prices would fall by $14.6 billion or 0.7 percent! This alone, he told my Washington associate, Brooke Shearer, would roughly offset the pending employer tax increases scheduled for 1979-81.

A postponement of the rise in the minimum wages for all workers (regardless of their age) in January should be another anti-inflation move that is widely favored. And certainly a review of future minimum wage increases, now in the law, is in order.

"I don't agree that changes in policies (such as Social Security tax hikes and the minimum wage increases) are not politically possible now," said Federal Reserve Board chairman G. William Miller a while ago.

"Remember, the two-tier minimum wage (under which young workers would get a lower minimum than adults) lost by only one vote in the House last December at a time when no one saw the level of the inflation danger we have now. Couldn't we rectify that action?"

You don't have to put up with metric

You don't have to put up with metric measure.

I'm hearing from people who want to know why. When they prefer inches and feet and pounds and quarts and tons and miles, why do we have to let government force upon us the acceptance of millimeters and centimeters and liters and kilometers?

We don't have to. Public Law 94-168, the Metric Conversion Act, signed by former President Ford, is totally toothless.

Essentially, all it does is provide for a Metric Board of supervise any "voluntary changeover."

Adoption of the metric system is not mandatory. Indeed, the General Accounting Office is now questioning whether we want to make the switch.

The GAO says that "unless benefits are apparent, no nation or organization should convert."

Again, no official decision has been made by our President, our Congress, our Courts or anybody else as to whether our nation should switch to metrics or stay with the traditional measurement system.

We could indeed! But Carter can't do it on his own. It's Congress that writes the law.

And what about reducing sales taxes and replacing the revenue lost with a combination of higher federal, state and local income taxes? Because sales taxes, like Social Security taxes, bear heaviest on the earnings of lower-income than higher-income workers, this would be a shift approved by labor's representatives.

What's more, Crandall estimates that if both state sales and federal taxes on cigarettes, liquor, phone service and other items were cut, prices could fall as much as 2.7 percent! The one-shot dollar total reduction, he told Shearer, would be a hefty $44.8 billion.

None of these proposals could, by itself or even in combination, effectively end the price-wage spiral and the dangerous psychology of inflation in our nation. But adopting these options, plus others submitted so far in this series, and others to be outlined in the final two columns, would put us on the right track — at last.

The Social Security system never was supposed to be financed by SS taxes alone! From the very beginning, the creators of the system expected general revenues to be used, when the time came. Nor was the minimum wage ever designed to become so high a floor under earnings for the young and unskilled as well as the adult and untrained. It, too, is getting out of hand, becoming a tool for inflation more than a protection for the worker.

Tomorrow: Productivity — the key answer.

Misunderstanding this, some people have rushed on ahead to adopt metrics voluntarily.

The United States has been "inching its way toward centimetering" without realizing that it doesn't have to.

The cost of an all-out changeover would be astronomical. Every highway sign, every measuring tool, every water meter, every deed, insurance policy and tax description would have to be revised.

Just the changes in industrial manufacturing would escalate the already too-high prices of almost every manufactured thing. That we don't need!

The GAO surveyed individuals, businesses and building and construction associations and discovered that almost nobody wants to switch to metric and yet many or most think they have to.

Even 42 percent of small businesses think the changeover is mandatory.

Because the public is opposed, no politician from either party has sought to make metric a campaign issue.

Some federal agencies are changing over — and some multinational firms and some educators.

But it is the GAO's contention that we should not "back into" such a drastic change in national policy. That if we are to make the change the decision should be made by the Congress in response to the people.

The Congress is responding to the people; it is doing nothing about conversion to metric.

Foreign cars flooding the United States have spawned adoption of metric tools.

Some liquor and soft-drink people who market worldwide are switching to metric-size bottles.

But the fact that is generally misunderstood by the Americans who acquiesce to this inconvenience and expense is that we don't have to!

New stores sign lease for mall

Ainbinder Associates, the developer of the new Pampa Mall, has recently released announcements for two new additional chains to open in the mall in the Spring of 1979.

Regis, a hairstyling corporation, will open a salon to the services of both men and women.

The salon will be 926 - square feet and will employ about 12 persons.

Also to be opened at the same time will be Stuarts, a store specializing in a variety of women's apparel. The new store will employ from five to 10 people.

The two chains will join K-mart, J.C. Penny, Bealls, Revco Discount Drugs and a variety of other shops to be located in the new mall.

Persons interested in information regarding leasing space in the Pampa Mall should contact Alan Smith, Ainbinder Associates, 3461 West Alabama, Houston, Texas or call Smith at 713-961-0700.

County extension honors farm demonstration leaders

AMARILLO — A select group of farmers from the Texas Panhandle were honored here Tuesday, October 31, in observance of Farm Demonstration Month.

Honored from Gray County was Jim Allison, McLean stockfarmer and banker.

The program at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center here commemorated the 75th anniversary of the first successful farm demonstration in which a volunteer producer applied new scientific methods to improve local production.

The introduction of this teaching method in 1903 on the Walter C. Porter farm near Terrell, east of Dallas, led to the formation of the nation's Cooperative Extension Service. It has been credited with making America's agriculture the most bountiful in the world and has been adopted by countries around the globe.

Honored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service Tuesday were farmers in each of the 20 counties of Extension District 1. They have been leaders in conducting agricultural demonstrations to introduce new methods to their communities.

Allison was recognized for his assistance in conducting result demonstrations centered around weeping lovegrass establishment, management and increasing beef production per acre of pasture land.

Each honoree received a plaque. Presenting them were State Reps. Bob Simpson and Danny Hill.

Kenneth Holloway, Moore County Extension agent and director of the Texas County Agents Association, was master of ceremonies. The recipients and guests were welcomed by Gaines Franks, Potter County Extension agent and vice president of the TCAA.

District Extension Agent Paul Gross related the origin of the farm demonstration method and its history in the Texas Panhandle. A documentary film, "I Am Thinking of the Harvest," traced the history of the Porter farm demonstration and the organization of the Extension Service.

Reporting on research and demonstrations conducted in the Panhandle were area Extension specialists Dr. Frank Petr, agronomy; Dr. Ray Sammons, economist - farm management; Dr. Gene Cope, animal health; Dr. John McNeill, beef cattle; Dr. Carl Patrick, entomology, and Dr. Tommy Welch, range management. Gross and Holloway noted that the farmers being honored were representing the hundreds who had assisted Panhandle agriculture over the years.

"This is a two-way street," responded Carl Jahnel, honoree from Hemphill County. "There hasn't been a demonstration carried on at the Jahnel farm that we haven't gotten more from it than anyone." He also noted that it was an early Extension agent who had encouraged him to go to college.

Dallas DA looks into joke by big spender

DALLAS (AP) — The district attorney's office had some bad news Wednesday for a cocktail waitress who was tipped with a $1 million check from a mysterious visitor from the East.

The news was just as important for two dancers at a Dallas night spot who were awarded $500,000 each by the same man, identified as F. Masood Khan, a Pakistani who first bought $75-a-bottle champagne for everybody.

"It was all just a joke," the man's bodyguard-secretary told city prosecutors.

But Craig Stultz, the manager of "elan," the night club where the incident occurred Monday night, said Khan did pay the $2,365.30 champagne and dinner tab — and added a check for $10,000 as a tip, which Stultz said the restaurant would not cash. One of the recipients of the checks, Mike Christensen, said he had taken the check seriously and failed to see the point of the joke.

"I would like to talk with him ... even if it was just for the satisfaction of telling him what a chump he is," said Christensen, 26, a liquor salesman. He said Khan announced a "dance contest" and gave Christensen and his dance partner — a woman Christensen grabbed at random to enter the "contest" — the checks as "winners."

"I've got an attorney working on it and he claims that it was a breach of promise," Christensen said. "When the man puts down $2,300 for Dom Perignon (champagne) and tacks on a $10,000 tip, I wasn't even skeptical in the least."

Prices, taxes, markets to be aired at meeting

DALLAS — Parity prices, regulatory agencies, export markets, energy problems, and taxes are among the major issues facing farmers that will be aired at the Texas Farm Bureau's 45th annual meeting here Nov. 26-29, according to Carrol Chaloupka, TFB president.

The policy development process of the state's largest farm organization will climax with adoption of state policies for next year, Chaloupka explained. The expected 1,100 voting delegates from the 212 organized county units in Texas will also approve recommendations for national policies. These will be forwarded to the American Farm Bureau Federation annual meeting in January in Miami Beach.

Theme for this year's convention which will be held in the Dallas Hilton and Dallas Convention Center is "Farm Bureau for Freedom and Profit."

The state farm organization has made an intensive effort to get the thinking of its producer-members on policy positions, Chaloupka said. Some 50 multi-county meetings were held around the state in the summer months to plan for maximum participation in the policy development process, he added.

In addition to taking care of policy matters, the voting delegates will elect directors from six of the 13 TFB districts and a president. The TFB Board of Directors will meet immediately following adjournment of the convention to elect a vice president and secretary-treasurer from among their own number.

The business session of the convention will begin at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 28, and continue until all proposed resolutions have been disposed of. The last order of business is election of directors and the president.

Chaloupka and a guest speaker yet to be announced will address the convention on Monday morning, Nov. 27. S.M. True Jr., Plainview, TFB secretary-treasurer, will make his report that morning.

Conferences set for 1 p.m. Monday include Animal Health, Energy, Cotton, Wheat and Feed Grains, Rice, and Farm Bureau Services. Scheduled at 3:30 p.m. are conferences on Livestock, Peanuts and Oilseeds, Research and Education, Farm Labor, Water and Dairy.

A number of activities involving young people are scheduled during the convention. The Discussion

Meet and Talent Find competition will be Sunday evening in the Dallas Convention Center Theater, and the Queen Contest is set for the same theater on Monday evening.

Various recognition awards will be interspersed throughout the meeting. Awards are given each year to counties with outstanding achievements in membership, public relations, safety, and services. Individual awards include the Outstanding Young Farmer and Rancher Award and the Meritorious Service to Agriculture Award.

Other individuals who will appear on the program include Warren Newberry, Waco, TFB executive director, who will make his annual administrative report at the beginning of the business session. Rev. Richard Freeman, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, Waco, will be vesper speaker Sunday evening. Ms. Bobbie Wygant, KXAS Television, Fort Worth, will speak at the Ladies Luncheon on Monday.

Millard Shivers, Dallas, director of rural development for Blue Cross - Blue Shield, will emcee the Talent Find. Layton Black, Goldthwaite rancher, will be emcee for the Queen Contest.

Pampa youths arrested, arraigned

Warrants were issued for the arrest of six Pampa juveniles Wednesday morning, according to Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan.

The youths were arrested on the charge of criminal mischief when they reportedly had damaged the property of Pampa High School assistant principal Robert C. Andrew.

Jordan said the bond was set at $1,500 for each of the juveniles.

He added they were arrested, arraigned and fingerprinted with parents and friends posting bond.

"They were released awaiting the action of the grand jury," Jordan said.

Texas forecast

By The Associated Press
Dense fog reduced visibility and posed traffic problems early today in the Austin area, but forecasters predicted clear skies and mild temperatures for the entire state.

Austin police warned motorists of restricted visibility and urged drivers to be careful.

Forecasters called for partly cloudy skies and mild temperatures statewide. Highs were to be mostly in the 70s with a few readings expected to reach the 80s in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 40s with extremes ranging from a chilly 33 at Lufkin to 53 at Abilene.

Some early morning readings included 47 at Amarillo, 44 at Wichita Falls, 40 at Texarkana, 43 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 39 at Houston, 47 at Corpus Christi, Brownsville and San Angelo, 52 at El Paso and 51 at Lubbock.

4-H youth more active in 1977-78

COLLEGE STATION — Almost 34,000 more Texas youth were active in the 4-H program during 1977-78 than the previous year, according to the latest figures. Current 4-H enrollment stands at 137,500.

4-H for boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 19, is the youth development phase of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service established in 1915 to diffuse among the people practical information relating to agriculture and home economics. However, 4-H goes back further than that. It actually had its beginning in 1908 in Jack County when a boys' corn club was organized to help youth grow better corn. Shortly thereafter, girls got involved in such organized groups as tomato clubs, canning clubs and poultry clubs.

"4-H in Texas has grown from an organization for farm boys and girls to one that offers wide range of learning opportunities for all youth," points out Dr. John T. Pelham, state 4-H and youth leader with the Extension Service.

Girls now consistently outnumber boys. Current figures show 72,472 girls to 65,028 boys. More than 19,500 4-Hers come from towns and cities from 10,000 to 50,000 population. Almost 28,000 still live on farms and ranches while the remainder live in small towns under 10,000 population.

According to current figures the number of organized clubs and groups has also increased from 2,699 to 3,136.

Assisting professional Extension staff members is carrying out effective learning activities and programs at 22,552 volunteer leaders, 843 more than a year ago. Of these, 16,175 are adults and the remainder are junior and teenage leaders. "We rely heavily on our volunteer leaders to organize 4-H activities and to conduct worthwhile learning experiences for 4-H boys and girls," points out Pelham. "They are a vital cog in our total program, from recruitment to providing expertise in teaching various subject areas. Of course, we welcome any interested individuals to join the ranks of our volunteer leaders."

4-H continues to be a vibrant organization that is leading the way in helping youth learn practical skills and gain a knowledge of their environment that will make them better citizens and leaders of tomorrow. It is an organization worthy of public support, contends Pelham.

Carter can celebrate new Congress for now

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

President Carter can celebrate the prospect of two more years of large Democratic majorities in Congress, but results of the 1978 mid-term elections also could indicate trouble ahead for the White House.

Voters turned out five Democratic senators who were considered likely backers of the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty that Carter hopes to send the Senate for approval next year.

And the House of Representatives will have 75 new faces, continuing the youth movement that made the 95th Congress often unpredictable.

The election results also fed presidential ambitions of several potential Carter rivals in 1980.

With all but a handful of votes counted, the results showed the Republicans picked up three Senate seats and nine House seats and added six governors to their nationwide total.

But those GOP gains weren't nearly enough to reverse Democratic majorities on Capitol Hill and in statehouses around the nation.

The new Senate lineup apparently will be 58 Democrats, 41 Republicans and one Independent, Harry F. Byrd of Virginia. However, Democrat Andrew Miller has not conceded to Republican John Warner who led by a tiny margin in unofficial returns in their Virginia race.

With one House race undecided, the Democrats hold 277 seats to 157 for the Republicans. Still out was the result of a race in South Dakota between Democrat Tom Daschle and Republican Leo K. Thorsness for the seat vacated by GOP Rep. Larry Pressler, who was elected to the Senate.

The party lineup among the nation's governors stands at 32 Democrats and 18 Republicans.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell judged the vote's "very much inclined to support the president's efforts next year to hold the deficit down."

But he added, "I think it is very difficult to assess what the combined attitude of the next Congress will be as opposed to the combined attitude of the last one."

The overall victory sought by both parties was claimed by chairmen of both their national committees.

"It's safe to say the Republican Party is back," said GOP chairman Bill Brock. "We have re-established our momentum."

Brock pointed to Republican victories in governors' races in Tennessee, Texas, Nebraska and Wisconsin as signs the party has strengthened its traditional Midwestern base and resumed its growth in the South.

Republican Rep. Thad Cochran also gave the GOP its first popularly elected senator from Mississippi.

Brock also acknowledged "some very, very serious losses which hurt a great deal." High on that list would be the defeats of GOP Sens. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan and Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts.

Democratic Chairman John C. White said his party fared better than the majority usually does in mid-term elections and did it in the face of "unprecedented financial and organizational efforts" by the Republicans.

"The average loss for the president's party in mid-term elections has been 34 seats," said White.

Asked how he thought the new Congress would get along with Carter, White replied: "I wouldn't be a bit surprised to see this Congress more cooperative."

Brock said the key will be whether the president is willing to accept Republican solutions to the nation's economic problems.

The president is almost compelled to move toward the Republican position if he's going to save this economy," said the GOP chairman.

Before all the votes had been counted Tuesday night, Powell conceded the new Senate would be less hospitable to a SALT II agreement than was the last.

A look at the turnovers seemed to support that view.

Democratic Sens. Dick Clark of Iowa, Thomas McIntyre of New Hampshire and Floyd Haskell of Colorado, all of whom were likely supporters of a new U.S.-Soviet arms agreement, were beaten by Republicans certain to line up with opponents.

The victors were Roger Jepsen in Iowa, Gordon Humphrey in New Hampshire and Rep. William L. Armstrong in Colorado, all conservative Republicans.

In addition, Rep. William S. Cohen, R-Maine, who defeated Democratic Sen. William Hathaway, and Rudy Boschwitz, GOP winner over Sen. Wendell Anderson, D-Minn., would be considered uncertain on SALT while the men they defeated were regarded as sure supporters.

In governors' races, Edmund G. Brown Jr. easily won a second term in California and remained a potential Democratic challenger to Carter in 1980.

Republican Gov. James Thompson of Illinois also won easily enough to feed his White House hopes.

Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, another 1980 prospect, also was re-elected by a respectable margin.

Heart seminar to be held Monday

To better understand the risk factors of heart disease and preventative measures that can be followed, a heart seminar will be held Monday at 2:00 p.m. in the Courthouse Annex Meeting Room.

Speakers will be Mrs. Mary Sweeten, a food and nutrition specialist from Texas A&M University, and Dr. Carl Lang from Pantex.

Lang will discuss the overall process of heart disease and explain what happens within the body when you have heart diseases.

The relationship of diet to heart disease will be discussed by Sweeten; also, specific things on what to eat and how to avoid certain foods will be covered.

Heart disease is the number one health killer. Risk factors are determined by the levels of blood fat and blood pressure, cigarette smoking, lack of exercise, overweight, diabetes and stress.

Everyone is invited to attend the seminar which is free of charge. The program is being sponsored by the Gray County Family Living Committee and the Gray County Chapter of the American Heart Association.

More banks join prime rate hike

NEW YORK (AP) — More banks join in a prime rate rise to 10 1/2 percent. General Motors cuts its year-end dividend to $2.50 a share from $3.25. The founder of a medium-size Midwest business decides to renege.

All moves were revealed on the same day, Tuesday, and all are links in the same chain of thought: They foretell a possible business downturn. Recession? Nobody likes to say, but they're thinking.

As always, General Motors had been rather bullish about prospects for the next year and, as expected of an industry leader whose forecasts can be self-fulfilling, it broadcasts its confidence widely and loudly.

But numbers sometimes declare themselves more forcefully than rhetoric. The reduction leaves GM's shareholders about 1.25 million of them, with about $210 million less than they had expected.

Why did GM do it, especially after those bullish forecasts? Because, it said, "pressing demands of the business and uncertainties (which) require that the corporation maintain its strong capital position."

In other words, money is getting too costly to borrow. No amount of confidence or hopes can change that fact. To survive, a person or company adjusts. A little pain now saves more later.

The Midwest businessman, who hasn't yet told his employees and so asks for anonymity, had been quite bullish, as you would expect from a man who personally built a successful company from nothing in 15 years.

"Nothing the president can do is going to salvage the situation," he said. In his opinion, he continued, "we're going to have a recession that is deeper, more widespread and more prolonged than believed."

And so, after an almost steady expansion that included the acquisition of his chief local competitor just a few years ago, he said he would soon consolidate two factories into one, with resulting layoffs.

The company that is over-extended, particularly in the amount of money it owes, can be mortally wounded in the coming recession, he said. "I might lose a few pails of milk," he said, "but I'll save the cow."

And then? After a year or two the economy will be moving ahead again. "I'm positioning myself for that right now," he said.

While his retrenching might or might not be good business, depending upon the course of the economy, he contradicts himself in maintaining the president can do nothing to alter the course of events.

He, himself, is evidence of that: because of Washington's efforts to restrain inflation, if perhaps belatedly, he is cutting back when otherwise he might be planning further expansion.

If he and his counterparts continue to do so, then inflation might be reduced to what is now considered an acceptable 6 percent annual rate. The question then becomes: Can it be accomplished without recession?

Every economist and business person interviewed in the mid-section of the country during the past week conceded that the Washington decisions of last week increased the possibility of inflation.

Voters sent lawmakers message from polls

NEW YORK (AP) — Voters across the nation sent their lawmakers an unmistakable message on election day: Overhaul the federal budget, if necessary — but get inflation under control.

An Associated Press-NBC News poll indicates that voters are uneasy with the half-trillion dollar federal budget, and even in this era of Proposition 13 politics, the majority consider budget cutting far more important than tax reductions.

In addition, the voters are willing to see their favorite government programs and services cut, if that will help slow inflation's march.

The poll reveals that Democrats did better than Republicans in appealing to the austerity-minded electorate. Republicans have always campaigned for federal spending cuts, but this year the GOP also embraced a cross-country federal tax-cut effort that failed to spark wide defection from the Democratic Party.

The AP-NBC poll was conducted as voters left polling places in 1,200 locations throughout the nation. Nearly 35,000 persons were surveyed, the largest single-day public opinion survey in history.

Three out of four voters said they cast their congressional ballot without a thought toward President Carter, but 27 percent said the president's performance in office influenced their vote. Still, despite his energetic coast-to-coast campaigning effort, Carter had little impact overall. The number of people who voted for Democrats due to Carter's influence was matched by those who cited the Carter influence and then voted Republican.

Because candidates from both major parties had declared their allegiance to austerity and tax cutting along the campaign trail, the economic issues had little discernible impact on the overall balance between Democrats and Republicans in Congress.

Four years ago, in the Watergate-year election that swept many Democrats into office in previously GOP districts, the Democrats earned 58 percent of the nationwide vote. Incomplete vote totals indicate the Democrats will approach that figure again this year.

Asked what single issue they think the 96th Congress ought to tackle first, 35 percent of those surveyed cited inflation, while 24 percent said "cuts in federal spending." Tax cuts and crime problems were far down the priority scale, at 11 percent each.

And, asked to suggest the best blueprint for reining in inflation, spending cuts topped the list — preferred by 10 percent of voters surveyed — followed by imposition of wage and price controls, favored by 23 percent.

The public's economic restlessness reflects a widespread feeling that the economy is in trouble.

Forty-four percent of those interviewed said they expect the nation's economy to take a turn for the worse in 1979, while only 14 percent predicted better days ahead. Some 33 percent said they expect things to stay the same.

Finally, the poll says that apathy afflicts voters and non-voters alike. While millions of Americans avoided the polls all day Tuesday, the survey indicates that one of every three voters agrees with this dim view of the electoral process: "No matter who is elected today, this election, like most others, won't make my life any better or worse."

But 52 percent disagreed with the statement. Presumably, they're hopeful.

As with every sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News street poll can vary from the opinions of all voters because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls with about 35,000 interviews, the results should vary no more than 1 percentage point either way simply because of sample error.

That is, if one could talk to all voters in country, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results would vary from the findings of this poll by more than 1 percentage point.

Houston, Denver showing booms

HOUSTON (AP) — A study by a nationwide real estate firm indicates Houston and Denver have quite a bit in common.

The two cities, the report says, are experiencing a real estate bonanza as a result of expansion by domestic energy companies.

Richard A. Reneberg, resident manager of Coldwell Banker Commercial Brokerage Co., says both cities have benefited from one positive result of the energy crisis, the rapid rate of expansion by firms involved in exploration and production and the development of alternate forms of energy.

Reneberg and Mike Gregoire of the firm's Denver office said their study illustrates the parallels in economic growth of the two cities.

Houston, with 539, was said to be leading the nation in the number of energy-related firms occupying 1,000 square feet or more of office space. Denver was in a healthy second place at 302, followed by Dallas with 171 and Los Angeles with 89.

"Of Houston's approximately 50 million square feet of office space, 40 percent is occupied by energy and energy-related businesses," Reneberg said.

The 40 percent, he said, gives Houston a legitimate claim to being "Energy City USA" when compared with 15 percent in Denver, 8 percent in Dallas, and 6 percent in Los Angeles.

Denver was said to be currently leasing office space to energy firms at about the same pace Houston was during the early 1970s. Energy firm leases there last year approximated 500,000 square feet compared with more than 1.7 million in Houston.

"The main difference between the energy industries in the two cities is Houston is a headquarters town and Denver is the location of exploration and branch offices," Reneberg said.

Denver's energy industry profile also has the added dimension of coal and uranium reserves in the Rocky Mountains.

Reneberg said all non-energy businesses combined leased 2.1 million square feet of floor space in Houston last year and the city's total office space supply has more than doubled since 1970.

"Occupancy rates in most high-rise office buildings exceed 99 percent," he said. "Large, contiguous units of vacant office space are almost non-existent, making it difficult for many companies to expand as fast as they really would like to and causing pre-leasing to occur in new projects well before they have been completed."

Finance, insurance, and real estate firms were said to occupy 21 percent of the office space in Houston, 35 percent in Denver, 41 percent in Dallas, and 39 percent in Los Angeles.

'The Sting' highest rated show

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC brought the Oscar-winning film "The Sting" to television and could hardly have asked for more. The movie was the highest-rated prime-time program during the week ending Nov. 5, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

ABC, in fact, listed six of the week's 10 most-watched shows and chalked up its sixth week as No. 1 in the networks' ratings competition. The season is eight weeks old.

"The Sting," starring Paul Newman and Robert Redford, had a rating of 31.9. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 31.9 percent saw at least part of TV premiere of the box-office smash.

Two of ABC's top-rated regulars, "Three's Company" and "Laverne and Shirley," trailed "The Sting," although "Laverne and Shirley" had to share third place with CBS' "60 Minutes."

Indeed, CBS had four shows in the Top 10, and perhaps as significant as ABC's continuing grip on first place was CBS' second straight runnerup finish after five weeks in a row in last.

"Little House on the Prairie," tied for 10th with a CBS special, "Puff the Magic Dragon," was NBC's best show of the week.

ABC finished the week with a rating of 22.3, followed by CBS at 17.2 and NBC at 16.9. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute, 22.3 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to ABC.

NBC had three of the five lowest-rated shows, No. 57 "Lifeline," No. 60 "Project U.F.O." and No. 61 "Who's Watching the Kids." ABC's "Hardy Boys Mysteries" was 58th, CBS' "People" 59th.

Here are the week's top shows:

Sunday Movie: "The Sting," with a rating of 31.9 representing 23.7 million homes, and "Three's Company," 30.5 or 22.7 million, both ABC; "Laverne and Shirley," ABC, and "60 Minutes," CBS, both 27.6 or 20.6 million; "Mork and Mindy," 27.3 or 20.3 million.

efficient organization of people, programs and resources into an improved vocational education plan for Texas," said Brackette.

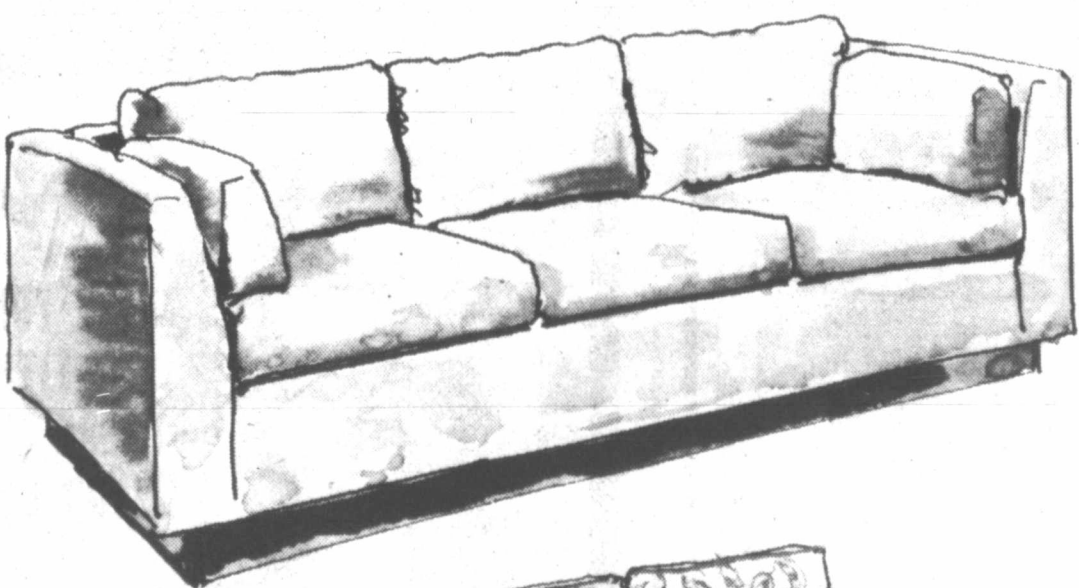

"Vocational education has developed into a highly complex structure over a period of years," Brackette adds.

"There is no single answer nor simple solution that can resolve all concerns. I think it will take our collective efforts to thoroughly inspect the structures and develop alternative long-term approaches for improving a sound basis for Texas to continue to strive to achieve exemplary vocational education programming."

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My daughter-in-law and I are separated by 3,000 miles. I never visit unless she invites me. She and my son have been married for 10 years and I'm invited for one week every year.

A half hour after my arrival, my daughter-in-law goes into her bedroom and leaves me with her two children, 7 and 8. Two hours later my son comes home and inform me that his wife has a headache.

I prepare the evening meal and my son takes his wife hers on a tray. This goes on every day until I leave. There is never any communication between us. She stays locked up in her room until I leave. She hardly says hello, and she never says goodbye. She doesn't even talk to her children. She acts as though they aren't there.

How can anyone be so hateful? She has a beautiful home, new car, money, clothes, jewelry—everything a woman could ask for.

This "sick" routine is a fake. If she doesn't want me to visit, why does she invite me? Her letters are so sweet. What is your opinion?

TEARS IN NEW MEXICO

DEAR TEARS: It's obvious that your daughter-in-law feels unable to handle any kind of communication with you, and she refuses to try. Before condemning her, ask your son what's going on. (She could be in therapy.) For you to have tolerated her disappearing act for 10 years without asking for an explanation seems strange. I can't blame you for shedding tears, but take comfort in the French philosophy: "To know all is to forgive all."

DEAR ABBY: Re the man who hired the four teenage boys to mow his lawn and clean his garage. Glad to hear that the boys did such a good job, but I wonder whether this man complied with all the federal and state laws regarding employment.

Did he get the Social Security number of all four boys? Did he pay them with four personal checks? He must have these records for Social Security reports on withholdings if he pays more than $50 per quarter for domestic help. In fact, he should be able to verify or prove that he did not pay more than $50 per quarter in wages.

Did he pay the four boys all at the same rate of $2.65 per hour to comply with the federal minimum wage law?

Then, too, I wonder whether he was adequately covered for accident liability with a private insurance policy or by a state-operated insurance plan. If the latter, this would involve more record keeping.

I am all in favor of employing teenagers. But it is not as simple as it sounds if you comply with all the laws, keep all the necessary records, and are adequately covered by liability insurance.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB— What has happened to my husband? He is 75 and for about 10 years he has been getting worse until he totters on his legs, looks 96 and is so hellish, brutally mean, insulting, self-centered, abusive, and generally senile that it has spoiled any enjoyment we could ever have. He is not happy unless he is making me miserable.

My nervous system can hardly take this beating. At times I think I cannot live through it, with all the responsibility falling upon me while he saps my strength by name-calling, sneers, verbal abuse and accusations. Even when I am sick he abuses me. He thinks I am trying to do something to him, am dishonest, big mouth and abusing him when he is the one doing it all.

I have a kind, good disposition and have tried to help him, but nothing ever pleases him. Isn't age "hell"? I am a few years younger than he. I am keen, capable, active and don't even have gray hair. Is there any help for him? I cannot get him to see anyone about it. He thinks everyone else is crazy.

DEAR READER— I included your letter in my column because it points up a basic problem that older people have and which is not often discussed. Sometimes there are horrendous personality changes when a person becomes senile.

Some of these changes are directly related to fundamental changes in the cells of the brain. Others are a direct result of poor circulation to the brain caused by disease of the arteries. In either case, the end result is a personality change. This change can really mean that a person is living with an individual who is entirely different from the person he or she had previously known.

You are absolutely right. It is hard sometimes to get people who suffer the consequences of these changes to seek medical attention. Fortunately, there are some medicines which help in these situations. But they don't help much if you can't get the person to see the doctor.

The nervousness, agitation, depression and anxiety that some older people feel because of these changes can sometimes be relieved, and this may, in some cases, result in a marked shift in personality back toward the person's original self. I am afraid that we have not really addressed ourselves as to what to do about these problems in our society.

It's hard to make even young people with good heads do things that they should do about their health. It's almost impossible to get people who have disturbances in their normal intellectual functions to seek the help they need.

It's hard to impose medical examinations and treatments on people because it's "good for them," when they don't want it. The unfortunate part is that they may be too ill to appreciate the point that they need help.

I wish that I did have a ready answer to your question. I don't, and neither will anyone else until society comes to grips with these kinds of problems so we can at least use the medical aids that have been developed at this point. Certainly, they won't help in all cases, but they can help in some.

On a happier note, you don't have to look forward to a bleak existence in your later years. To give you information on where we are on our knowledge of aging, I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-7, Perpetual Youth, Aging. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Diamonds prove good investment

Diamonds have proven to be the best investment over the past 27 years, showing a plus 2.45 return on each investment dollar compared to a minus .30 for stocks and plus 2.3 for gold, according to figures compiled by Dr. Michael Leyzorek, special consultant to the Diamond Guild of America, Ltd.

Dr. Leyzorek, former consultant for four years to the London-based DeBeers Consolidated Mines, Ltd., and professor of management and operations research techniques, released the above comparative chart.

Dr. Leyzorek explained, "Investors seeking refuge from the declining dollar would do well to consider diamonds as an investment. Governments do not own diamonds, therefore the prices of diamonds do not rise and fall with political winds or the unpredictable actions of politicians. Rather, diamond prices have historically continued to rise roughly in proportion to this nation's rate of inflation."

Dr. Leyzorek is noted in the diamond industry for his creation of the first model of diamond distribution channels in the U.S. and a national diamond monitoring system, a major four year project undertaken for the DeBeers Marketing Organization in London. He also has been on the faculties of the Rutgers University Graduate School of Business Administration, Case Institute of Technology, and The Johns Hopkins University.

"Diamond investing is not nearly as complicated as it sounds," Dr. Leyzorek stated. "However there are a few basics which every investor should know before making a purchase."

The diamond consultant added, "The value of a diamond is determined by what is known in the trade as the four C's: Color, Clarity, Cut and Carat weight. The Gemological Institute of America, a non-profit organization serving the diamond industry, has developed very specific guidelines with which to measure the four C's of any diamond."

"For this reason, if you buy an investment quality diamond it must always be accompanied by a gemological report prepared by a G.I.A. graduate gemologist which spells out exactly where your diamond falls according to the G.I.A. ratings for Color, Clarity, Cut and Carat weight."

Another tip on purchasing investment diamonds from Dr. Leyzorek is, "Knowledgeable diamond investors buy from diamond manufacturers - cutters and polishers - or from special diamond investment companies, avoiding the large markups by retail jewelers which make recovery of their purchase price, let alone any appreciation, a long and difficult process."

Dr. Leyzorek also warned potential diamond investors to deal only with credible diamond investment firms, those with a good reputation who offer a full 30-day unconditional money-back guarantee as well as a detailed certificate from a registered G.I.A. graduate gemologist.

More detailed information about diamond investing may be obtained by writing Diamond Guild of America, 521 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017, or by calling, toll free, outside of New York State, 800-221-4702, and within New York State, 212-986-6860.

Don't confuse hyperactive and active

COLLEGE STATION— Know the difference between activity and hyperactivity, a family life education specialist cautions parents and teachers.

Be careful not to use the phrase "hyperactive" to describe all active children, warns Patricia Lamson.

Ms. Lamson is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

SET REALISTIC GOALS

"Parents and teachers often can help any child do better by making realistic expectations for him, whether he is active or hyperactive," Ms. Lamson says. If a child cannot sit still for long periods of time, do not expect him to, she emphasizes.

MEET ACTIVE CHILDREN'S NEEDS

By nature, most children are active. They have a great deal of energy, the specialist explains.

They learn by doing, moving, touching and exploring.

For them, parents and teachers must allow for stimulation, activity and physical movement, she stresses.

HYPERACTIVE CHILDREN

A hyperactive child is continually in motion, cannot concentrate for more than a moment, acts and speaks on impulse, is impatient and is easily upset — in excess or beyond the normal range of his age and sex, Ms. Lamson says. This child needs special help, she advises.

Researchers recommend that schools and families remember these children's high level of movement may be due to their developmental level — which means they naturally explore and move around frequently.

Again, set realistic expectations for these children, the specialist urges.

NEW STUDY OF HYPERACTIVITY

Since as many as five percent of all elementary school students are described as "hyperactive," a recent study looked at children in preschool programs.

Goals for the study were to identify teachers' perceptions about hyperactivity and how these children were managed. Findings show that those teachers who were interviewed felt that "hyperactive" children do cause problems within the classroom.

However, only 44 percent of the so-called "hyperactive" children these teachers worked with actually had been diagnosed as hyperactive by medical personnel.

Connie Clemons, now with the Dallas Independent School District, conducted the study while she was a graduate teaching assistant at Oklahoma State University.

No 'fighting genes'

Early man's secrets revealed

By Dianna Sinovic

Killers aren't born, they're made.

Man has no "fighting genes," no biological makeup that makes him murder or maim.

This new view of man, held by anthropologist Richard E. Leakey, contrasts sharply with Robert Ardrey's and Konrad Lorenz's theory that man is born aggressive.

Leakey backs up his theory with 10 years of digging up our ancestors' bones.

Aggression is biologically inefficient, Leakey says: "Fighting is expensive business, expensive in time, energy and life itself."

Animals fight among themselves, but their fighting is a ritual that rarely causes death. When two bucks fight, for example, both will bluff their superiority, but the less powerful deer usually backs out before the battle turns deadly.

"One cannot equate animal aggression with organized warfare," Leakey says. Warfare is a political response to a political threat. And in a materialistic society, he adds, "war is a highly successful way of gaining a material advantage."

Clearly man is capable of waging war, Leakey says. But this "warring" isn't written into our genes; we can escape it — if we try.

If World War III comes, he says, it will be only because "we are intelligent enough to create the means of our own destruction, but not rational enough to ensure they are not used."

Leakey's anthropological research supports his radical theory. Although early man is usually pictured as a club-swinging caveman, Leakey now theorizes that he roamed the countryside in search of food and had little use for owning land. It is land that led to aggression, Leakey argues.

With the agricultural revolution, man began to settle in one spot long enough to raise crops. Towns and villages sprang up and cropland became valuable.

"A plentiful and reliable food source in one location was the key to development of villages, towns and material elaborations," Leakey says.

"A materially based world undoubtedly provides a favorable environment in which warfare can flourish. And it has flourished more and more with the steady rise in the complexity of social structure."

Leakey's concern with understanding ancient man's emotions typifies his modern approach to "fossil hunting." Anthropologists are often considered merely skeleton rebuilders. But Leakey goes beyond the skeleton, attempting to fill in emotions and social behaviors as well as flesh and blood.

In 10 years of sifting through East African dirt, Leakey has pushed back the record of man to nearly 3 million years — adding about a million years to our history. He has also painted a fairly complete portrait of this early man. But he can't prove beyond doubt his theories on early behavior, he says, because "behavior cannot be fossilized."

Leakey, who approaches anthropology as a whodunit detective, describes his deductions in his latest book, "People of the Lake" (Doubleday).

The laboratory serves as his "eyeglass." From the size and shape of the leg bones, for example, Leakey found that early man walked erect. From the molars, he deduced early man's diet: seeds, nuts, grasses and some meat. The skull size shows the rise in intelligence, with little change during the past 2 million years.

"We are exactly the same animal now as we were 50 millennia ago," he says. "We simply know more now."

The 32-year-old scientist's lifetime of work on the edge of Kenya's Lake Turkana, combined with the efforts of his anthropologist father Louis Leakey, has produced a fairly complete family tree of man.

The first true hominid (manlike creature), Ramapithecus, was a social creature that, for some unknown reason, stood upright and moved into the grasslands from the forest about 3 million years ago. Three other branches of Ramapithecus began at this point: The original Rama branch died out quickly; the Australopithecus africanus and boisei coexisted with our ancestor homo habilis. Homo habilis became more and more humanlike, while the remaining two branches died out.

Leakey's work has centered in Kenya because East Africa is the world's major site of human fossil remains. It was at Lake Turkana that Leakey found the oldest record of early man, a 2.8-million-year-old skull, the most complete specimen of its type, in 1972.

East Africa's Great Rift Valley is undergoing great geologic upheaval. Two huge crustal plates are slowly pulling apart, and the resulting faults, earthquakes and erosion all help to expose long-buried fossils. Leakey stresses that understanding how early man lived helps us better understand ourselves.

"Bones and stones themselves are boring, it's what they mean that sets our minds racing."

GRANTS GIVEN

NEW YORK (AP) — Peter Lawson-Johnston, president of the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation, says the National Endowment for the Arts has awarded the Guggenheim Museum a $1-million Challenge Grant.

The Guggenheim says it was awarded the money to "augment its endowment funds and to help meet increasing operating expenses, thus insuring the maintenance of its public programs."

To qualify for the NEA funds, the Guggenheim must raise at least three new dollars for each federal dollar over a three-year period ending Dec. 31, 1980.

The Guggenheim says it was also awarded a $150,000 grant by the Kresge Foundation to be used toward the renovation of its climate-control and security systems. It says the National Endowment for the Arts also has given it $100,000 toward this project.

DECA offers short courses of interest

The Pampa Chapter of DECA will be offering short courses to anyone who is interested in the school and community.

The courses are free of charge and are for the purpose of promoting DECA and free enterprise as well as a service to the school and community.

The courses will consist of basic sales, counting change, gift wrapping and job interview and will be offered from 7:00 - 9:00 p.m. Monday, November 13th in room 201 at Pampa High School. The courses are 30 minutes in length and are arranged so that a person may take all four short courses if he or she desires to do so.

Those enrolled in the courses will receive a short course certificate at the conclusion of each course.

SOFT WATER-SEPTICS

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Studies conducted by the University of Wisconsin soil science department and the National Sanitation Foundation indicate that effluent from water-softening appliances stimulates biological activity in septic tanks.

According to the Water Quality Research Council, which sponsored the studies, even septic-tank drain fields seem to benefit from the water-softener effluent.

It said the wastes contained calcium and magnesium, which improve soil permeability.

Russian's telephone bugged

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians' telephone at the White House is still bugged.

Among the dozen or so telephones mounted on a wall in the White House press room for news organizations which regularly cover the president is one for Tass, the Soviet news agency.

More than a year ago, a wagish radio reporter picked a dead cockroach from a loudspeaker in the press room — it had been caught on the speaker's fabric front for weeks — and placed it in the telephone mouthpiece.

His gag was widely reported at the time, but it apparently went unnoticed by his Soviet colleagues. With White House press secretary Jody Powell looking on, a recent check by reporters determined that the "bug" was still in place.

Beware of two Southern gentlemen bearing rooster pepper sausage.

That may sound like reasonable advice, given the name of the concoction. But two Southerners presented some to President Carter recently and the president proclaimed it the best sausage he ever tasted.

He may have been the butt of a bit of put-on.

It seems that his friends Griffin Bell, the attorney general, and Charles Kirbo, an Atlanta lawyer, called on Carter with something they called "rooster pepper sausage." Carter had it for breakfast one morning with homemade biscuits and grits.

Prior to sampling the Bell-Kirbo offering, Carter had said the sausage his father made on their south Georgia farm was the best he ever ate, according to Powell. But now, says Powell, the president has changed his tune and declared rooster pepper sausage No. 1.

Powell, however, expressed a bit of skepticism about the existence of rooster peppers, let alone rooster pepper sausage.

Beware of a Southern lady playing poker.

William Fitzgerald, a Michigan state senator, didn't take that advice and now he's sorry.

Fitzgerald and Miss Lillian were members of the U.S. delegation at the funeral in Rome of Pope John Paul I. On the flight home, someone started a friendly poker game and Miss Lillian joined in. So did Fitzgerald.

"He shouldn't have done it," Carter said. "As a result, his campaign finances have been reduced by my own mother."

Technical knowledge abounds

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — They didn't laugh in Fredericktown when bats from the church belfry began showing up in the sanctuary.

Those Show-Me State parishioners found it hard to appreciate the irony and went looking for a solution.

They, like hundreds of others throughout Missouri, got help from the state's Industrial and Technical Referral Center, situated here on the University of Missouri campus. ITRC, as it is known, is the most comprehensive of 16 facilities in the country trying to make technical advice and information more accessible.

The amount of technical information available in this country grows daily. But individuals often don't have time or facilities to keep abreast of it. That's where the referral centers try to help.

Have you ever wondered what the tab tops on beer cans are made of? Whether you're better off leasing a car rather than buying? What it would cost to start a weekly newspaper?

ITRC has answered all of those questions.

In the last 12 months it handled more than 1,500 requests for information. Some seemed silly, some desperate, but all came from persons who believed they needed an answer.

Those at the Church of God in Southeast Missouri knew there must be a simple way to cajole 150 flying mammals from the belfry. Wholesale slaughter, effective as it might be, was a solution they wanted to avoid.

The church contacted a local exterminator who called the referral center, which asked the school's Fisheries and Wildlife Department for help. One night, after the bats left on their nightly hunt for food, the church attic was sealed, and the bats were forced to find another place to roost. Only a few stragglers had to be killed.

The referral centers were established with federal money at universities and state information centers in 1966. As envisioned by President Lyndon Johnson, the centers would furnish lists, directories, research, analysis and experts to the business community.

When those businesses need help, they often contact a university extension specialist in their area who contacts the referral center. That's how the center heard about the Trusty Nursery in Moberly.

But the Trustys didn't have the $150,000 they figured would be needed to buy land and erect a new building. And Mark, whose formal education ended at high school, wasn't even sure the community of 13,000 could support a larger nursery.

University personnel helped the Trustys conduct a market study and secure a loan. And the Trusty Garden Center opened last month at a cost of $100,000 — $50,000 less than anticipated.

At the other end of the state in Lamar, Ron Wegener faced a dilemma at O'Sullivan Industries, which makes tables and wall units for portable stereos and television sets. Workers were complaining that fumes from an adhesive drying process burned their eyes and noses.

Wegener, the plant's manager of engineering, studied two possible remedies.

One called for installing a ventilation system in the floor. It would cost $100,000 and interrupt production for several weeks. The other would put a ventilation system in the roof. It was less expensive and would cause no production delays, but would it get rid of the fumes?

Wegener called for a local exterminator who called the referral center, which asked the school's Fisheries and Wildlife Department for help. One night, after the bats left on their nightly hunt for food, the church attic was sealed, and the bats were forced to find another place to roost. Only a few stragglers had to be killed.

No fear of cold, Winter

MANDAN, N.D. (AP) — Many people in this part of the country dread the onset of winter, but there are those who enjoy the inconveniences brought by the cold and snowy weather.

The 54-year marriage of Mathilda and Peter Gress has seen countless severe winters. Many times, they have been snowbound for weeks, sometimes months, on their 480-acre ranch north of Crown Butte Dam in the rugged, undulating terrain of west-central North Dakota.

The ferocity of winter doesn't phase the rugged, 81-year-old Gress, who grew up on the family homestead five miles from his home today.

"He believes in hibernating during the winter," Mrs. Gress said of her husband.

Gress said he's seen worse, but he conceded last winter was severe. He and his 73-year-old wife were snowbound for two months.

"We had two winters in one," he said with a hint of a German-Russian accent still detectable. "We had three pickup loads of coal of three tons each, but we still needed one more."

Mrs. Gress said she likes to knit, sew, read, bake and write to "bygone friends far away" while her husband enjoys reading and watching television.

"It got monotonous," admitted Gress. "The two months seemed like four."

Gress, who still rides horseback nearly every day, said he would add some conveniences if he were younger man.

"If I were 40, I would get a nice heated garage and a tractor with a plow, but at this age I don't know if I'll be around tomorrow."

The winter also was hard on the livestock.

"Lots of times I threw a hay bale out in the snow or I walked up a snowbank to feed the chickens," he said.

Gress said snow covered the chicken coop, but that none of the chickens died.

Mrs. Gress said she keeps a root cellar stocked with potatoes, vegetables and fruits.

New treaty grants rights back to Indian tribes

By CARL HILLIARD
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — On the first day of hunting season in 1972, Clifford Whyte, a Ute Mountain Ute Indian, killed a deer in southwestern Colorado's Montezuma County.

The four-point buck Whyte killed with his 30-06-caliber rifle was one of many that he had killed since he started hunting.

But this time it was different. Whyte was arrested and the buck was taken away. Whyte had a tribal hunting license. He had no state license. In years past, he never needed either.

Nearly six years later, Ute Mountain Tribe and the State of Colorado have reached an agreement that grants free and virtually year-round hunting rights to tribal members on 5,600 square miles of land in southwestern Colorado. It honors an 1874 treaty agreement called the Brunot Cession.

Responsible for the new compromise are a 30-year-old, Yale-educated Hidatsa-Mandan Sioux lawyer, Raymond Cross; his non-Indian partner with the Native American Rights Fund, Dan Israel, 38; and a former University of Colorado track star, William R. James, who represented the state Division of Wildlife.

The tribe is working with the Division of Wildlife to pass a tribal hunting ordinance and set up a tribal hunting commission to give tribe members permission to take game.

Under the agreement, tribal hunters may take game for religious, ceremonial or subsistence reasons with the permission of the tribal hunting commission instead of a Colorado hunting license.

Hunting, without bag limits, may be done on land within eight counties in southwestern Colorado, much of which is national forest land.

The Ute hunting rights are year-round. They prohibit hunting near campgrounds and recreational areas during regular hunting seasons.

Tribal hunters are prohibited at all times from hunting within one mile of any incorporated city or town, and during the summer no hunting is allowed near flowing streams or other bodies of water.

Landowner permission must be obtained to hunt on private property.

The agreement came after two years of negotiation between James and fund lawyers Israel and Cross.

"For western states it is a milestone," Cross said. "You can witness the salmon dispute in the State of Washington as a kind of opposite example."

James noted that under the treaty the Indians gave up all of their rights — except hunting rights — "as long as the game lasts and the Indians are at peace with white people."

But Clifford Whyte, the man who shot the deer, wonders.

"It's not what we had. The Southern Utes at Ignacio, and the Uintas of Utah, over at Fort Duchesne, they are not involved, and we were all one tribe when the original agreement was struck. They should be free to go hunting same as the Ute Mountain Utes. The way they got this out — only the Ute Mountain Utes can hunt," Whyte said.

"I think this is going to cause some hard feelings."

FLUSHED CALLS

YORK, England (AP) — Call David and Lorraine Hudson at the wrong time and you won't even get a busy signal.

When their telephone was installed, engineers took the wire through the lavatory cistern to ground it.

Now when the toilet is flushed, the phone won't ring until the cistern fills up again.

Murder victims often lost in time shuffle

EDITOR'S NOTE — Often after a murder, the victim is lost in the shuffle of time and legalities. Attention is focused on the person or persons struggling to avoid the pronounced sentence of death.

Almost without realizing it, the public often struggles along with the prisoner — even finds mercy when the prisoner expresses his desire for death.

Only when the crime is massively repugnant, as in the Manson slayings, will the public remember the victim.

This story, by Chris Sexton of the Beaumont Journal, concerns the Edward Nassars of Mobile, Ala. Eddie Nassar was shot in the back by self-admitted slayer John Evans III of Beaumont, Jan. 5, 1977 in Nassar's pawn shop.

Evans and his companion, Wayne Ritter, were sentenced to death.

Much publicity has been given to Evans' fight to change Alabama's execution method from electrocution to death by injection. He receives supportive mail daily.

Except for the initial story, little has been written about the victim. Whom did Evans kill that day?

MOBILE, Alabama (AP) — Harriet Nassar is withdrawn and intensely private. She seldom sees the friends she and her husband mutually shared.

Her two daughters, Ashley, 11, and Rachel, 9, go to school as usual, but soon after the murder, Rachel began talking incessantly about her daddy. An uncle, Richard, looks so much like his brother, Rachel would sometimes just stare at him. Nassar was special to those around him, helping those he could.

"I've been in his shop," says Gerald Fowler, now of Orange. "When someone would come in and say, 'I'm broke, I don't have a job and I'm hungry,' and Eddie would reach in his pocket and give them what he had."

Most people seemed to know they could go to Nassar for help. He was by no means wealthy but people knew somehow Nassar would help them.

says Jim Webster, a close family friend.

A tanned, dark haired man of 33, Nassar, of Lebanese background, was known by his friends as a Bible scholar, using most of his spare time to study.

The day he died, Nassar had been studying for a Wednesday class he was to teach that night at Pleasant Valley Church of Christ. The Bible was open on the counter where he had been preparing a lesson.

Nassar had left as minister of another congregation to open the pawn shop because a lesson he had prepared on racism was not met with acceptance or understanding.

"Eddie was deeply concerned about racism preventing the spread of the gospel," says Leslie Parks, youth minister at Pleasant Valley.

He had been trained in the pawn shop business by his father. In 1973, a tragedy occurred in the shop Nassar had taken over from his father. That tragedy affected the rest of his life.

Some men were holding guns to his head and the head of a co-worker during an attempted robbery when a deaf-mute walked in. The man, James Coxwell, could not understand the robbers' orders and they shot him.

Thereafter, Nassar carried a gun in the shop and tried to keep a second person with him to deter any possible robbery attempt.

"He was very nervous from then on," says Webster. "If anyone walked in with their hands in their pockets, or wearing a coat, Eddie would get jumpy. It was the main reason he was dreading going back into the business."

Webster said the only reason Nassar would pull his gun was if he was absolutely certain it was a matter of life and death.

"If Evans and Ritter," said a friend who does not want to be identified, "had asked for the money, Eddie would probably have given it to them. Things weren't important to him. Life was important to him."

Season long drought hurt farmers

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The season-long drought over most of the state has left many farmers with a below-normal harvest, says Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Pfannstiel said lack of rain still is hurting fall grains and pastures in some areas, but recent rains in parts of West and East Texas have helped grazing and small grains.

Harvesting of grain and cotton is generally confined to western areas, the High and Rolling Plains, and Northeast Texas, Pfannstiel said, while pecan harvesting is becoming active across the state. Soybean harvesting is under way in the South Plains, East Texas, the Gulf Coast area and Southwest Texas.

Peanut yields are generally good in Central Texas and the Cross Timbers area, but now the ground is so dry that irrigation is needed to enable harvesting, he said.

Cotton harvesting is increasing throughout the plains although some farmers are waiting on the first frost of the fall season to kill cotton plants before beginning harvest operations. Many are applying desiccants or defoliants to enable early harvesting because the crop is opening rapidly.

Harvesting of sugar crops continues, with sugar beets being harvested in the High Plains and the sugar cane harvest under way in the Rio Grande Valley. Early citrus harvesting is also under way in the Valley, noted Pfannstiel.

Some fall vegetables are moving to market in the Valley and Winter Garden, and sweet potato harvesting remains active in East Texas.

Grazing is short over much of the state and movement of cattle to market continues. However, prices have dropped off in many areas, and this has slowed marketing somewhat.

Reports from district Extension agents showed the following conditions.

PANHANDLE: Sorghum harvesting continues, with the corn harvest about complete. Cotton is opening rapidly, with some early harvesting. Rain is needed to boost wheat and fall grazing conditions. Large numbers of stocker cattle continue to move through markets in the area, but prices have softened.

SOUTH PLAINS: Good moisture over most of the area should give a boost to wheat and fall grazing. Harvesting continues, with corn virtually completed and sorghum and soybean harvesting in the final stages. Yields are down some from last year. Sugar beet harvesting is near the halfway point while the cotton harvest continues to increase. Cattle and ranges are in good shape.

ROLLING PLAINS: Sorghum harvesting remains active. Cotton is opening but most farmers are awaiting a frost before beginning full-scale harvesting. Rains last week boosted early planted small grains and will allow planting to be completed shortly. Cattle prices last week were down as much as $3 to $5 per hundredweight.

NORTH CENTRAL: Cotton and peanut harvesting continues active, with yields down due to the season-long drought.

Some say that whatever one is doing at first sight of the new moon, he will continue to do all month.

November 10, 1978

A little more drama could enter into your life this year. This might include a thrilling romantic episode, impressive friends and, perhaps, a sensational social calendar.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The obvious concern for the well-being and comfort of others that you display today endears you to them. Friendships will be deepened. Like to find out more about yourself? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The family and their needs take priority for your attention today. This is the way it should be.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Guard against becoming lost in your dreams today. You'll have a tendency to fantasize rather than face issues squarely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could easily be taken in by a sad tale today. Your heart and your purse are so wide open that you leave no doubt you're willing to give.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A leadership role becomes you today, but timidity does not.

You'll win respect of your peer group by being assertive and unafraid to take the helm.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may feel reclusive and a bit withdrawn today. There won't be anything wrong, you're just recharging your energies.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Being with friends is important to you today, but you'll need to pick pals who aren't loud or domineering. You won't be able to handle these types.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Ascend the ladder slowly and unobtrusively today. The less noise you make, the more apt you are to get what you want.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You won't let yourself be pressured today into decisions on things you'd like to dwell on a bit longer. You'll set your own pace and refuse to be flustered.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Getting to the bottom of things is your cup of tea today. You'll have an instinct for solving puzzles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Situation where you can bounce-off ideas with others today could be especially rewarding for you. This interrelationship of thoughts brings out your best.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll be able to produce a great deal today if you work only on creative, imaginative projects. The mundane will turn you off.

JOE LOUIS, one of the greatest names in boxing history, will be honored tonight at a black tie, $500 a plate dinner at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas. (AP Laserphoto)

Louis to be honored tonight

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
They're calling it "A Night With the Champ." It's a fancy soiree Thursday evening in the lavish ballroom of Caesars Palace in Las Vegas — black tie, dinner $500 a plate, celebrities up to your eyebrows and gorgeous women in slinky satin sashaying to the tune of ringing slot machines.

Nice. But even that is not sufficient tribute to Joe Louis. They ought to declare a national holiday.

As time passes, as heavyweight boxing champions come and go, as the nation's mores and social structure continue to undergo radical change, the image of the Brown Bomber grows in stature. He was one of the greatest — if not the greatest.

His life shall always stand as a beacon for those who come after him — a quiet, simple man who faced up to the severest pressures of an ugly era in American history, degraded by fans, betrayed by associates and ultimately abandoned by many of his friends.

The world's champion, he gained a fortune, then lost it through his own naivete and bad advice. He was harassed by the Internal Revenue Department. His once staunch heart began to give way under strain and his health deteriorated.

He never publicly complained. Throughout his trials and the turbulent civil rights uprisings of the 1960s, he never lost his national pride. "Don't do it, you ought to compete for your country," he told black athletes, threatening an Olympic boycott in 1968.

Joe Louis Barrow was born in a sharecropper's cabin in Lexington, Ala., May 1914. He was a strapping teen-ager when his mother, Lillie, and a second husband threw the family of 18 into an open-bedded truck and headed for a new life in the thriving auto capital of Detroit.

Young Joe fought as an amateur, winning the Golden Gloves light heavyweight title, and worked on the Ford assembly line to help keep bread on the table of the burgeoning Barrow brood. He turned pro in July, 1934.

This was not the most propitious time for a young black heavyweight with thunder and lightning in his fists to appear on the boxing scene.

As Gerald Aster, Louis' biographer, points out, the country still had a bitter taste in its mouth over the experiences of Jack Johnson, the black man who won the heavyweight title and married a white woman.

Booker T. Washington had said, "I have never seen the colored people so discouraged and bitter." President Wilson had segregated government agencies. A bill even had been introduced in Congress to ban mixed marriages.

Although these events occurred a couple of decades before, Louis was caught up in the backwash.

One of Joe's managers warned him: "For God's sake, after you beat a white man, don't smile!"

tall and 201 pounds with skin the color of coffee with plenty of cream, conducted himself impeccably. He never made waves. He shuffled from one fight to another — cold, phlegmatic, destructive with one of the most lethal punches the game has known.

In 1936 when he was stopped in the 12th round by Germany's Max Schmeling, a product of one of the world's most oppressive systems, people in the Jim Crow South rolled into the streets and celebrated wildly. Two years later Louis crushed the beetle-browed German in 2 minutes, 4 seconds of the opening round. Sentiment began to change.

Navy in contention for bowl bid

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Despite Saturday's loss to Notre Dame, Navy remains one of the most fascinating stories of the college football season.

Since Roger Staubach's 9-2 Cotton Bowl team of 1963, Navy has had only two winning campaigns — 5-4-1 in 1967 and 7-4 in 1975. But the Midshipmen are still ranked in the Top Twenty with a 7-1 record and are probably headed for a bowl game unless, (1) they fall flat on their faces against Syracuse and Florida State the next two weeks, or (2) the Secretary of the Navy turns thumbs down.

The fledgling Holiday Bowl in San Diego, site of a huge naval base, would love to have the Middies against the Western Athletic Conference champion. The Liberty Bowl also is casting covetous eyes at the Tars since Memphis is the site of the nation's largest inland naval base.

Navy has done most of its damage with a defense that has ranked No. 1 nationally over the past several weeks. Ironically, the defensive unit includes four walk-ons.

Junior end Charlie Thornton from Compton, Calif., weighed 185 pounds as a freshman after attending the Naval Academy Prep School. "No one knew about him," said Coach George Welsh. "He talked his way onto the team. Now, he's grown up to 205 pounds."

Senior cornerback Herb Wilson from Wheeling, W.Va., wasn't recruited, either, said Welsh. "No one wanted him. He just hung around."

Senior end Mark Stephens from Ozark, Ala., "wanted to come to the Naval Academy and wrote several letters," said Welsh. "All of a sudden he got faster and stronger."

nose guard A.B. Miller from Little Rock, Ark., who also attended the Naval Academy Prep School. "We didn't know if he was a football player or not," said Welsh, "but he could run so we made sure we got a look at him." Obviously, Welsh liked what he saw.

So much for extensive recruiting. Says Welsh, "A lot of the guys we recruited aren't playing."

Coach Tom Osborne is always happy to see Nebraska win, but he doesn't particularly care for scores like the 63-21 rout of Kansas last weekend. One problem is the Big Eight Conference's 55-man limit on traveling squads, so the Cornhuskers couldn't dip below their second unit.

It was much the same a few years back when Nebraska slaughtered Army 77-7 at West Point.

"They are saving dimes with that limit and losing thousands of dollars in players," said Osborne. "You try to hold the score down, but when you make 8 yards on a quarterback sneak, what are you going to do?"

"I suggested at the Big Eight meeting that we throw the lid off the limit, or at least expand it to 60, like in non-conference games, but they turned me down."

Fort Stockton moves up

By The Associated Press

Fort Stockton football coach John Blocker says his team isn't paying much attention to the fact that the defense hasn't been scored on in eight games this season.

The fact has been rather prominent, however, among opponents of the Panthers, who moved up another notch to third this week in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll.

Fort Stockton's record is even more noticeable after a look at the record book which shows only six teams in Texas schoolboy football history have completed unscored on regular seasons.

"We're more interested in what our side of the score is than theirs," said Blocker, whose Panthers have outscored the opposition 239-0. "We never even talk about it."

While the Panthers were moving up this week on the 3A list, Farmersville dropped from its No. 1 rank in Class A after a surprising 32-7 loss to Southlake Carroll.

DeLeon, ranked No. 2 last week, took over the Class A lead and joined Temple in 4A, Brownwood in 3A and Newton in 2A among the top ranked teams.

Fort Stockton has held off three serious scoring threats this season. The Panther defense held Kermit four straight games from the four-yard line, repelled El Paso Canutillo four downs from the one foot line and last week recovered a Pecos fumble at their one yard line.

"I've been in coaching 20 years now and I know somewhere, somehow, someone will score on us," Blocker said. "We don't have any secrets, we just play hard."

Midland Lee and Greenville, ranked No. 8 and No. 10 last week, suffered losses to higher ranked teams last week. Greenville dropped out of the top 10 after losing to defending state champion Plano and Midland Lee fell to 10th after losing to No. 6 Odessa Permian.

Angleton, 8-0, moved into the No. 10 position.

Pecos, No. 5 last week, and Kerrville Tivy, No. 7, dropped from the 3A list after losses. Pecos was decked by Fort Stockton 21-0 and Tivy lost to San Antonio Southwest 40-6. Belton and Gregory-Portland moved in as the Nos. 9 and 10 ranked teams.

Idalou, No. 9 in Class 2A last week, was replaced this week by Hondo following its first loss of the season.

Phillips wins MVC award

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Indiana State's quarterback had no doubt who the best defender in the Missouri Valley Conference was Saturday.

Southern Illinois defensive tackle James Phillips became closely acquainted with Indiana State quarterback Scott Bartel during Southern Illinois' 28-7 win over the Sycamores Saturday.

Phillips, a 6-2, 250-pound sophomore defensive tackle from Collierville, Tenn., led a Saluki defense that dropped Bartel for losses eight times. Phillips was directly involved in six of the sacks.

Wednesday he was named the league's defensive player of the week.

During the contest, Phillips had 11 tackles, nine of them unassisted. He is the team's defensive leader with 91 tackles, 10 for losses. He has also caused two fumbles and recovered three fumbles.

Southern Illinois Coach Rey Dempsey said Phillips' improvement can be partially attributed to his adding 30 pounds in the off-season.

"James just keeps getting better and better," said Dempsey. "It's really a pleasure to think of having him around for two more years. Right now he is our best defensive lineman, but he is going to get stronger and quicker through our weight program. He is starting to become a really good defensive lineman."

Tuesday, the league named Tulsa running back Sherman Johnson as the conference offensive player of the week. Johnson, a sophomore, had 213 yards and a touchdown in the Hurricane's 44-23 win over West Texas State.

Others nominated for the defensive award included New Mexico State linebacker Dusty Furr and Tulsa linebacker Reggie Epps.

Bobby Orr hanging up skates

By MICHAEL PATTERSON
 Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The surgically ravaged left knee that cost Bobby Orr so much playing time in recent seasons has claimed the career of the player many call the greatest defenseman in hockey history.
 Orr's attempted comeback from a sixth operation on the knee — the recovery period kept him off skates for more than a year — did not produce enough positive results to suit the high standards of the 30-year-old Chicago Black Hawks defenseman.

 So Wednesday, he told a news conference: "I'm officially retiring as a player. I will not make another comeback attempt."
 The postoperative pain would not go away, with no cartilage at all left in the joint, the stress of bone rubbing on bone was too much for Orr to bear. So after thinking the matter through, the soft-spoken superstar gave up in futility.
 Orr, who will remain with the club as an assistant to Coach General Manager Bob Pulford, said the decision was a difficult one.

 "But I don't feel that I've been cheated," he maintained. "I have one of those injuries that athletes sometimes get. If any athlete came to me with the problem I have, I would recommend he do the same thing I know I'm no longer able to play."
 He managed to play in six of Chicago's first 11 games, contributing two goals and three assists. "But the more I skate," he says, "the more trouble it gives me."

 In his 12-year National Hockey League career, Orr set or shared 12 individual NHL records. But because of injuries, mostly to the knee, he played every game in only two seasons.
 Obtained as a free agent in June, 1976 after 10 years with the Boston Bruins, Orr played in just 20 games for Chicago in 1976-77 and sat out the entire 1977-78 season. He signed a five-year, $3 million contract with the Hawks, but never cashed a check.

 Orr said the contract was for him to play hockey and he hasn't done that. The defenseman explained he is negotiating a new contract with the Hawks that will pay him less than his current pact.
 After his sixth and last operation, Orr stayed off skates, but worked to strengthen his knee while helping out in the front office.
 He hoped for a comeback. But on Oct. 28, the night he scored for the last time, he was on the ice for two Detroit Red Wings goals. This was an unusual occurrence for the once-speedy, agile Orr. "I played terrible," he said afterward.

 He played his last game Nov. 1. Orr said a hockey player must practice to play well and the knee condition wouldn't allow him to practice enough to get in shape.
 "It's a very sad occasion," said club President Bill Wirtz. "Every club in the NHL called to say how much Bobby meant to them."
 "Orr's ability is legendary," said Pulford. "It is a loss to hockey. He was a great hockey player. He made a valiant effort to come back."

with the Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks. Orr will remain with the Black Hawks as an assistant coach. At left is Black Hawks president Bill Wirtz.

Holmes to defend WBC title Friday

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "Anytime you get over $200,000 you can call it a main event," says Ken Norton.
 But Norton's scheduled 10-rounder against Randy Stevens Friday night at Caesars Palace is certainly not the main event. That honor, plus a purse of $1.5 million, belongs to Larry Holmes and Alfredo Evangelista, who is getting not only $150,000 but also a chance at the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship.
 Holmes gained that title by scoring a split decision over

Norton here June 9.
 Holmes did a little gloating over that accomplishment Wednesday at a news conference when he said: "I don't want to be like Ken Norton... to have the title for three months and lose it. He worked hard and it's a shame that in his first defense he had to fight me."
 "He has to say something," said Norton. "It doesn't bother me. I have nothing to say."
 A loss to Stevens, who has a 10-4-0 record, would probably make Norton an ex-fighter.

Frustrated Spurs destroy San Diego

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Message to the rest of the National Basketball Association: Don't rile the San Antonio Spurs.
 The Spurs, losers of three of their last four games by a total of seven points, came back with a vengeance Wednesday night as they blasted San Diego 163-125.
 The total was the highest in the NBA this season and set a new franchise record for the Spurs. The old mark was 160 when the team was known as the Dallas Chaparrals of the American Basketball Association.

"We knew we had lost games we should have won last week," said Billy Paultz, who scored a season high 28 points. "Tonight we came out running with our heads in the right direction."
 It was the Spurs' rebounding that set up their familiar fast break. For the first time in recent memory, San Antonio overwhelmed the opposition on the boards, 61-43.
 "This may have been the best rebounding game in my three years as coach of the Spurs," said Doug Moe.

Swim team to open year

Pampa High Swimming Coach Mike Eckhart will take just 16 boys and two girls to the season-opening Wichita Falls Invitational Friday and Saturday, but he expects about a dozen of the Harvester entries to place high enough to score points.
 "It's a good meet," he said as his swimmers warmed up for practice Wednesday afternoon. "The real powerhouses from the Dallas suburbs aren't there, but there's a lot of West Texas and central Texas schools there."
 The meet will draw from 15 to 20 teams, Eckhart said, including the Amarillo and Lubbock schools that provide most of Pampa's competition for the year.

Despite the fact that only two girls will make the trip, Eckhart says he expects good performances from sisters Lisa and Cindy Raymond. The former will be in the 200 individual medley and 100 butterfly and the latter in the 100 backstroke and 100 breast stroke.
 On the boys side of the ledger, Eckhart looks for a strong showing by his 200 medley relay team of Richard Steger, Chris Alexander, Mark Lehnick and Robbie Hill. Those four also hold most of the hopes for good placings in individual events, according to their coach.
 Lehnick is entered in the 200 free and 100 butterfly. Steger in the 200 individual medley and 100 backstroke. Hill in the 50 free and 100 breast stroke and Alexander in the 500 free and 100 breast stroke.

 Other boys making the trip to Wichita Falls include David McDonald, Steve Taylor, Scott Grayson, Eugene Thompson, Tim Wilson, Damon Cox, Doug Auwen, Phillip Trusty, Jerry Bond, Tyler Berry, Darrell Kyle and Mark Alexander.
 Here is a listing of the Pampa boys entries:
 200 free — Lehnick, McDonald, Taylor, Grayson.
 200 IM — Steger, Thompson.
 50 free — Hill, Wilson, Cox, Taylor, Auwen, Trusty, Bond, Berry, Kyle.
 100 butterfly — Lehnick.
 100 free — Wilson, Kyle, M.

Alexander, Bond.
 100 free — Grayson, Berry, Trusty.
 500 free — C. Alexander.
 100 back — Steger, McDonald, M. Alexander, Cox.
 100 breast — Hill, C. Alexander, Thompson.
 400 free relay — Kyle, Thompson, Wilson, Grayson (A team); Taylor, Auwen, M. Alexander, McDonald (B team).
 Pampa will host Amarillo in a dual Nov. 18 at 10 a.m. for its next meet. After that, the Harvesters will travel to the San Angelo Invitational Dec. 8-9 to Amarillo Dec. 15 for a dual meet and begin the new year by hosting Lubbock Monterey and Coronado Jan. 13.

Switzer hoping to extend streak

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — They ascended five years ago at Norman, Okla., and at Lincoln, both inheriting successful football programs, the offensive and defensive alignments their teams still use and fans with a voracious appetite for victory.
 Both won much more often than they lost.
 But there is a critical difference in the records of Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer and Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne, whose squads battle Saturday on national television for a share of the Big Eight Conference title and almost certainly an Orange Bowl bid.
 Switzer, the winningest active coach in bigtime collegiate football among those with at least five years experience, has not lost to an Osborne-coached team since each became head coach in 1973.

 Switzer, whose Sooners are undefeated and ranked No. 1 nationally, has a lifetime record of 60 wins, five losses and two ties.
 He pondered his record against the Cornhuskers and Osborne this week and said, "If those games had been reversed, he (Osborne) would have been the winningest coach in major college football."
 It's true. Osborne has a lifetime record of 54-14-2. If Nebraska had won all five games instead of losing them, the quiet Nebraska coach would be 59-9-2 and Switzer would be 55-10-2. Penn State's Joe Paterno would be somewhere between 121-24-1.
 "He's got the wins. I don't."

said Osborne, reacting to the statistical twist.
 Switzer reviewed those five years of head-to-head competition and the year before, 1972, when both were assistants at their schools and when Oklahoma started the streak. "It's simple. Of the six times I've beaten him, four of the times we were just better teams than they were, and two times, 1972 and 1976, we just lucked out in the fourth quarter."
 A successful coach can be sent to the doghouse by fans because of problems with a particular team, and Osborne reflected on possible pressure. "Sure. Some. There is not much you can do about that. It doesn't bother me any."
 Osborne's predecessor, the Nebraska athletic director and legend Bob Devaney, said, "He wants to win, but I don't think it is a burden he can't bear."

 Said Osborne, "We are 0-5 against Oklahoma but so are a lot of other good teams. There are not very many teams that have beaten them."
 Nebraska is 8-1 with a No. 4 national ranking and will be playing at home before a traditional Big Red capacity crowd. Neither coach would pinpoint a coaching key.
 Both will send in a 5-2 defense. Nebraska's defensive ends will have to live up to their reputation of mobility against Switzer's Wishbone offense. Osborne will stick to the I-formation. Lull around a hard blocking fullback and slippery I-back.

Blow by blow

By Joe Blobaum, sports editor

Well the first days are the hardest days, don't you worry any more. 'Cause when life looks like easy street there is danger at your door.

So go the lyrics to one of my favorite songs. When high school tennis and golf closed for the fall a few weeks back. I thought I'd get a chance to breathe easy. But the Pampa high swimming team opens its schedule at the Wichita Falls Invitational Friday and Saturday, the District Cross Country meet goes off at 10 Saturday morning in Pampa and the Optimist Club has its All-City Football Tournament running all day Saturday.

It might take a miracle, but I plan to catch at least one half of my alma mater's gridiron battle with Oklahoma Saturday afternoon. This is the best chance Nebraska's had in seven years — that's the last time they beat the Sooners — and I want to see Lincoln go up in flames if the Huskers win.

And even if Nebraska loses, at least it'll cure my gambling urge for another year. Just to show myself how pointless gambling is. I bet Nebraska to win every year. After they lose and I become indebted to the office bookies for the next six months, I don't feel like betting again until the next year.

Anyway, if Nebraska ever hopes to win this game, they'd better think about it this year, when they've got a good enough offense to offset Oklahoma's automatic four touchdowns.

And speaking of upsets, I have a suspicion Pampa will pull one before the season is over. Like it or not, they'll be underdogs to Palo Duro Friday and Amarillo High a week from tomorrow. And, if you'll follow the formula below, you'll see why it's the Dons who are most likely to fall.

Pampa opened its season with a loss, beat Dumas and lost two more games before upsetting Monterey in Lubbock. Since then, they've lost three straight. Following the 1-2-3 skein of losses, it's only logical to assume Pampa will take Palo Duro Friday night. Add the fact that PD can lose this game and still win the district by beating Caprock next week and it all begins to fall into place.

Blend in some Dougherty-to-McDougall aeriels, a long run by Rudy Roland and an inspired defense. Presto! You have the Upset of the Week! Pampa by six.

Last week's mark was 7-1, bringing a season's total of 34-17, or 66.7 percent. In other games this week:

Tasocosa vs. Amarillo High
This is kind of an interesting game, if only because it's being played Saturday afternoon. Otherwise, it wouldn't hold much interest for anyone. Amarillo High has got the most to gain from a win, since the Sandies are 1-1 in loop lay and Tasocosa's 1-2. Amarillo High still has an outside shot at the district crown, but not after this week Tasocosa by eight.

Dalhart at Canadian
The home field will help Canadian, which has improved quite a bit since the beginning of the season. The Wildcats also beat River Road a lot easier than Dalhart did, and River Road hasn't beaten anyone yet. Canadian by 14.

White Deer at Wellington
I had some of the best Polish sausage I've ever tasted at White Deer Sunday. Which has nothing to do with football, but it was so good I had to say something. Anyway, Wellington is tied with Memphis at 3-0 for the lead in District 2-A and I doubt the Rockets will let the Bucks stand in the way of a showdown at Memphis next week. Wellington by 17.

Miami at Booker
By the same token, I don't think the Kiowas will let Miami stand in the way of its confrontation with Wheeler Nov. 17. You could use the same kind of logic that predicted the Pampa upset to favor the Warriors, but I'm not Booker by 21.

Texline at Groom
Two teams playing out their seasons. But one of them is 0-8 on the year, the other 5-2 with a reputation for fierce hitting. I don't have to identify them for you, do I? Groom by 30.

Wheeler at McLean
Wheeler had an open date on its JV schedule before playing Follett two weeks ago. The second team played most of the second half in a game Wheeler won 49-18. The same situation prevails this week, which should keep the Tigers behind by 30 points or so.

Grimsley forecasts OU setback

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
It's a proud number to wear — No. 1 — but it's as deadly as a black cat tripping under a ladder and smashing a mirror into 13 pieces. It's like making the cover of a slick magazine. If you're No. 1, you worry about keeping it. If you're not, you play your innards out to get it.

Such are emotional factors

Saturday in the game between No. 1 Oklahoma (9-0) and No. 4 Nebraska (9-1), hungrier for revenge. Even if the Sooners have the muscle, the Cornhuskers should have an edge in desire. We'll see.

Last week's score: 45-12, 780. Season: 309-109, 739.

Thievery by Brink yields listing on AP Honor Roll

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

There's been another Brink's robbery in San Antonio but this one took place on a football field and was accomplished by a San Antonio Randolph player named, yes, Steve Brink.

Brink stole three Hays Consolidated passes, returning one 69 yards for a touchdown and started the winning touchdown drive with another theft in a 28-15 district showdown.

Brink also recovered a fumble and added six unassisted tackles to put the Ro-Hawks in line for their 12th district championship in 15 years.

Brink's feat earned him mention this week in The Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll along with jock-of-all-trades Bo Weldon, who helped Vidor score 22 fourth quarter points to nip Port Arthur Lincoln 30-20.

"It's probably the best single effort I've ever seen in a big game," Randolph Coach Bob Mickler said. "He made some big plays and they all came at critical times. He gave us four turnovers and that's got to make a difference."

"Any time you get four turnovers in a game, you should win and we did because of him."

Vidor also won its game because of Weldon, who started the game at safety, shifted to tailback because of an injury, and finished the game at quarterback when starter Tim Rainbolt also was injured.

In the final eight minutes of the game, with Vidor trailing 20-8, Weldon intercepted two passes, recovered a fumble, scored two touchdowns, ran over a two-point conversion and kicked an extra point en route to the startling comeback.

Possibly the key play in Vidor's turnaround came when Weldon threw an interception, took off to tackle the thief and when the ball was knocked loose, Weldon recovered it.

"All I want to know is when Bo had time to sell tickets and popcorn because he did everything else," Vidor coach Philip Brown said. "Obviously Bo is a talented athlete. You don't ask a kid to do that many things if he doesn't have the talent."

In other top performances last week:

—Granger's David Field rushed 353 yards on 35 carries in his second 300-yard performance of the year as Granger beat Troy 28-0. Field added 12 tackles as a middle linebacker.

—Waco University High's Jesse Henderson shifted from his starting cornerback position when the first and second team tailbacks were injured and picked up the slack with 167 yards rushing on 27 carries in a 24-0 victory over Coppas Cove.

—Iran tailback Martin Russell rushed 220 yards on 28 carries and scored two touchdowns on offense and intercepted a pass on defense in a 47-7 victory over Marfa.

—Quarterback Randy Schirck of Orangefield threw touchdown passes of 34, 99, 20 and 28 yards in a 35-28 victory over Hampshire-Fannett. Schirck's last TD pass won the game and his 99-yarder tied a state record.

—Corpus Christi Kind safety Ronnie Plowman recovered two fumbles and intercepted a pass to end Corpus Christi Ray's string of three straight last minute victories. One of Plow-man's fumble recoveries set up the winning field goal and his interception ended Ray's last drive with 1:11 left in the game.

—Dimmitt's Dennis Veales rushed 322 yards on 28 carries and scored four times in a 33-14 victory over Morton.

—Quarterback Donal Ray Schmidt hit 10 of 10 passes for 165 yards and two touchdowns in a 49-0 victory over Rockport Fulton. He completed seven of nine passes for 93 yards and three touchdowns last week in a 41-19 victory over Tuloso-Midway.

Georgetown to host NCAA district meet

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) — The District 6 NCAA cross country championship will be run here Saturday with 115 runners from 17 colleges participating.

The top three teams plus the top four individuals who are not on those teams will qualify for the national cross country championship Nov. 20 at Madison, Wis.

TOUGH TO CENTER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Kuziel, the center of the Washington Redskins, says the principal attribute needed for his job is quickness.

"The quicker you get off the ball, the better position you will be in to make your blocks," he said. "Center is really the most difficult position on the offensive line. You have to do so many more things with your body than the other positions and you have to snap the ball before you do them."
