By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — With Israeli-Egyptian peace talks stalled, and Israel insisting Egypt must make the next move, the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahran today published what it said was the text of a U.S. draft peace treaty.

There was no immediate State Department comment on the draft, but some American officials were reported baffled at Egypt's motives in releasing the text at this time. It was believed the government was behind publication of the draft in the semi-official daily.

Israel and Egypt have agreed in general terms to the U.S. draft, but their negotiations in Washington have deadlocked over Egypt's insistence that the treaty be linked to a solution of the Palestinian problem and include a timetable for Palestinian self-rule on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip.

Israel has rejected any such linkage and fears a timetable will allow Egypt to back out of the peace treaty if negotiations cannot work out a Palestinian settlement within a given time.

The treaty published in Al Ahran, drafted to be a copy of the draft accepted Tuesday by the Israeli cabinet, made no direct mention of linkage between the two pacts. The newspaper quoted the preamble of the purported text saying the treaty is to be an "important step toward a comprehensive Mideast settlement and resolving all aspects of the Arab-Israeli conflict."

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, declaring there is nothing left to negotiate, said Thursday, "I don't see any point or any need to return to Washington to conduct or renew negotiations. . . . (The agreement) can be signed or not signed, approved or not approved. It's up to President Sadat now."

Israel, waiting for the outcome of Sadat's meetings with his top negotiators, hopes Carter will persuade Egypt to accept the draft.

Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said a committee was studying Egypt's options and would report to Sadat this weekend.

Sadat told reporters in Cairo Thursday he would "exchange reassessments" of the negotiations next week with Carter.

One National Democratic Party member said Sadat told party leaders there were "clauses (in the draft treaty) which can get us out of this impasse." The informant did not elaborate.

Khalil told reporters in Cairo Thursday that Israel was "obstructing the road to peace," but he invited the Jerusalem government to resume negotiations and said, "Agreement is still possible."

Egypt has been pressing for a four-phase timetable setting up Palestinian authority within nine months as part of a treaty package.

Briscoe indicates budget will include reductions

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe indicated today his lame-duck budget will recommend further tax reductions along lines proposed by Republican Gov.-elect Bill Clements.

Clements said Wednesday he will ask the Legislature for tax cuts totaling $1 billion over the 1980-81 biennium.

Briscoe talked with reporters after taking part in a partial canvass of returns of the Nov. 7 election.

No statewide returns were canvassed because of recounts going on in seven counties. This also caused the canvassing board, of which Briscoe is a member, to skip several district races involving the recount counties.

Bob Lemens, head of the secretary of state's elections division, said another session of the three-member canvassing board has tentatively been scheduled for Dec. 7.

"From the preliminary figures we have together on the budget, I hope we have a proposed tax cut in the range of $1 billion in the budget I recommend," Briscoe said.

He said he saw "a great deal of appeal" in a proposal to use one-fourth of the state sales tax revenue — or about $500 million a year — to replace property taxes now used to finance public schools.

Clements said he also is thinking about a simple, across-the-board reduction of the sales tax rate from 4 percent to 3 percent.

Briscoe said he prefers to use state sales tax revenues to enable cuts in local school taxes because the property tax is where Texans are suffering the most.

"The ad valorem tax itself is basically an unfair tax," Briscoe said.

He disagreed with Clements proposal to impose a state tax on Texas natural gas sold in the interstate market.

Briscoe called it "a great idea" in principle, but said every time the Legislature tried it in the 1950s and early 1960s, it was declared to be an unconstitutional burden on interstate commerce.

The only way to tax gas sold across state lines, he said, would be to raise the production tax, which hits Texans and out-of-staters alike.

FBI positively identify body of Rev. Jim Jones

By PATRICK BRESLIN
Associated Press Writer
DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. (AP) — The body of the Rev. Jim Jones — positively identified by the FBI — lay side by side with those of a growing number of his followers today in the chill of a military morgue.

The decomposing corpses of more than half of the 408 Peoples Temple followers who died in a mass cult suicide in Guyana were returned to the United States by early today, but the grisly task of identifying and cleaning the bodies remained.

The C-141 Air Force cargo planes carrying the bodies were scheduled to arrive throughout the day. By early morning, four planes bearing 270 bodies had landed at the base, which military spokesmen said was the only morgue in the country equipped to handle the large number of casualties.

Air Force spokesmen said two more flights would be required to complete the airlift.

Maj. Brigham Shuler, chief press officer for the base, said Jones' adopted daughter had been notified of the identification. He said the State Department had raised the issue of an autopsy of Jones' remains with the woman, who was not identified.

However, Charles Carson, mortuary officer at the base, said no autopsies would be performed here.

Former Peoples Temple members had said the body might not be Jones' because he sometimes had lookalikes to stand in for him in dangerous situations.

But three hours after the second plane arrived, carrying a body in an aluminum case labeled "13B" and "Rev. Jimmie Jones," the FBI announced the identification was official.

FBI Director William Webster, in a statement, said the FBI disaster squad had positively identified the body as that of James Warren Jones, based on fingerprints supplied by Los Angeles police.

The bodies were taken from the aluminum cases used for the flight and lined up in their plastic bags to await identification. The cases were being steamed, disinfected and returned to Guyana because the Air Force did not have enough for all 408 bodies. Shuler said.

Of mass suicide U.S. flying home Jonestown victims

American military teams have found many more bodies at the Peoples Temple commune in Guyana than had been expected, and the number could reach 600 to 800, administration officials said today.

The previous total of those who either committed suicide or were slain at the commune was listed at 409, based on an official body count.

But U.S. Army Graves Registration specialists have reported to the State Department here that they have found many other bodies, in some cases lying under the remains of those previously found and counted.

BY LEW WHEATON
Associated Press Writer
GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — U.S. forces were flying home the last of 408 mass suicide victims from the Peoples Temple commune at Jonestown and were trying to figure out how many cultists may be missing in the dense jungles around the camp.

U.S. Air Force Capt. John Moscatelli said he expects to be ordered to conduct helicopter searches of the jungle after the body evacuation is complete.

Thirty-two survivors have been located so far. Most of them were believed to have fled the Jonestown commune during the bizarre suicide rite six days ago.

The Rev. Jim Jones led his Peoples Temple followers in the suicide after a squad from the commune allegedly gunned down a U.S. congressman, three newsmen and a defuncting cultist. Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., was in Guyana investigating the commune.

Three of the surviving cultists have been arrested by authorities in Guyana in connection with the killings of Ryan and his party. One was charged with murder.

Officials and survivors have variously estimated that from 100 to 800 members of the Jonestown commune are not yet accounted for.

There has been some speculation that many cultists are hiding out in the jungle fearing reprisals for having escaped the suicide rite, but other sources say only a handful of Jonestown residents may have fled because estimates of the camp's population were put too high.

Gerald Parks, 45, a Springfield, Ohio, native who came to Jonestown with his mother, wife and three children last year, said he thought at least 100 survivors were wandering in the jungle. His son, Dale, 27, estimated there could be as many as 200. Both men were attempting to leave Jonestown with Ryan and survived the airport ambush in which the congressman was killed.

Odell Rhodes, 36, a teacher who survived the poison-drinking suicide rite, told reporters he had information that could lead to murder charges in connection with the Ryan slayings, but said he wanted to tell his story to Guyanese police.

Hyacinth Thrush, a 76-year-old San Francisco woman crippled by arthritis, told a reporter she slept through the mass suicide and later dragged herself to the scene. She said she found "everyone was still. Some were sitting up with their eyes closed. Others were lying down. I saw my sister. I walked over and touched her to wake her up. She was very cold."

Military officials said today there still are 138 bodies lying on the ground around the open pavilion where the death rite was performed in Jonestown, about 150 miles northwest of Georgetown.

Man, women refuse to waive extradition

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A man and two women from Oklahoma City, accused in the robbery-drugging of the wife and stepdaughter of a Dallas oilman, have declined to waive extradition to Texas.

A hearing is scheduled to approve their return to Dallas to face charges in the Nov. 12 robbery at the home of Michael C. Clark, whose family once lived in Oklahoma City.

Clark returned from a hunting trip to find his wife, Lavetta, and her 16-year-old daughter, Denise, bound with tape and lying unconscious in the living room of the Clark home in Highland Park.

Aggravated-robbery charges were filed in Dallas against Robert Cecil Goddard, 30; Shirley Mae Fennel, 26; and Deborah Ann Maupin, 27. Bond of $100,000 each was set after Highland Park detectives traveled to Oklahoma City to verify information linking the three to the robbery.

Goddard had been arrested in Oklahoma City in connection with a robbery there, and Oklahoma City police learned of the Highland Park robbery from informants who had heard about two women in the Dallas area being drugged, Dallas authorities said.

Mrs. Clark and her daughter picked the two Oklahoma City women from a lineup earlier this week in Oklahoma City. Police said Goddard was not put in a lineup, since the man involved in the Dallas robbery kept his face concealed from Mrs. Clark and her daughter.

Police said Mrs. Clark and her daughter identified several items, including weapons, recovered after the trio's arrest in Oklahoma City, as having been taken from their home.

Mrs. Clark said she and her daughter were forced to the floor and then handcuffed until a roll of tape was later found in the house.

Bolivian army announces end of Pereda control

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The Bolivian army announced at dawn today it has seized control of this Latin American nation in an apparently bloodless coup that ended the four-month-old government of Gen. Juan Pereda.

"We take over command of the country temporarily with the purpose of creating the Bolivia that was dreamed by generations of Bolivians," an army communique said. It was delivered to the offices of news organizations by armed men in civilian clothes.

The communique, signed by army commander Gen. David Padilla Arancibia, promised to hold national elections and transfer power to a civilian government by August of next year.

It was Pereda's refusal to hold elections before 1980, that apparently set the stage for the coup, the fifth in this central American nation in the last 14 years.

"It seems they (the army) have control of the situation," said Walter Rios Gamba, an Interior Ministry under-secretary. He spoke to a reporter as he left his office after the army surrounded the ministry.

A spokesman at the palace told the Associated Press that Pereda resigned before at 4 a.m. (EST).

MCLEAN-A McLean man was listed in good condition today at McLean General Hospital after being assaulted in his Standard Oil Service Station at 119 E. First St.

According to Sherrif Rufe Jordan and Deputy Ken Keith, Odell Mantooh, 68, was attacked by two men in their early twenties driving an old-model green automobile. The crime reportedly occurred shortly after 3 p.m. Thursday.

Keith said he believes the assailants left the station traveling west on I-40.

According to Jordan, the two men purchased about 13 dollars of gas and then followed Mantooh into the station Jordan said that while Mantooh was placing the money in the cash register he was struck from behind in the side of the head with a heavy object. He then sustained knife cuts to his face, neck and hand.

Deputy Keith said that no money was taken and that if robbery was the motive the assailants apparently "had second thoughts about it."

Strike subsidy

Why work when it's easier to goof off?

We all know that one and some of us have dallied with the thought of getting "paid" not to work. Wouldn't that be nice? Except normally sane people tend to find that if there is no work in their life, not only do they dry up, but the rewards of being a part of humanity are greatly diminished. Some people work outside the home; some inside.

The New York newspaper strike, for 88 days, hurt the papers to the tune of $442 million, deprived advertisers of the visual — and durable — print media display, deprived readers of reading about what was going on, the funnies, the columns, or whatever it is they like in the New York Times, The New York Post or the famous — and justly so — New York Daily News, the paper with the world's largest daily circulation.

Simply because the guys who deliver the papers — key people in getting the news out — would not cross the picket line set up by the pressmen, the paper could not get out. Everybody else was ready. (This "by-sympathy" thing is addressed with scathings by Billy Buckley on this page.)

Bear in mind that what the pressmen were essentially striking for was perpetuation of their tasks — but not "their" jobs. No pressman existing was going to be out of work for as long as he held the job or until he died. But improved techniques and automation makes it possible to run the huge, big city papers with less men. Obviously, there is nothing inherently wrong with that. Otherwise Blacksmiths would have struck in justice, and the automobile would still be locked up in Henry Ford's garage.

The newspaper simply wanted the "right" not to have to hire a replacement when someone left, whether by choice or fate, up to an operational number.

But the pressmen said no. (What did they get?)

And, they had plenty of reason to lay out those sweet 88 days not working, just taking it easy. How? Here's a list to consider:

- As strikers, they got food stamps, (the government's way of subsidizing strikes.)

- Each pressman also got from his union $70 a week in strike benefits.

- Not to be outdone, the government goes yet one better (some union!) by giving each striker — a man not out of a job but refusing to work — $125 a week in "unemployment compensation."

Not bad. Is it no wonder the ripoff is so popular?

Anyway, one pressman, apparently listless, ended up charged with second-degree murder during the end of the strike. Robert Cupples, 41, was charged with homicide and robbery after police arrived to find him backing out of the apartment of the victim. Police said Cupples was holding a cane and that the 68-year-old man victim had been struck on the head.

Cupples worked for the News for 18 years. Editor & Publisher magazine reported that "Fellow pressmen said... that he had not complained of serious financial problems."

That's easy to understand; though perhaps we humble taxpayers who financed his and the other pressmen's sojourn at leisure is not.

Working, doing, making the world a better place; doing one's part. Who was it who said, "Idle hands are the devil's workshop."

Berry's World

"OH YEAH! Well, MY family is eating lower on the food chain than YOUR family!"

Raymond Cyrus Hoiles, the founder of Freedom Newspapers, was born 100 years ago today on a farm in Ohio. He was 63 when I came to know him. Nobody who met R.C. Hoiles ever forgot him. I never will. This is what I mean:

R.C. was about 75 when we took a trip together from Houston, Texas, to Dothan, Ala. I did the driving, and R.C. did the two things that pleased him most — he read a book and he needed me. About fifty-fifty.

One of his complaints, as we wound through narrow, rut-pocked Mississippi roads, was the car I'd rented. It didn't go fast enough to suit R.C. (I think at one time he held the record for the most speeding tickets in Santa Ana.) I urged the thing up to 80 miles an hour and he'd surface from his book periodically to inquire, "Wan't this got-danged thing go any faster?" When he wasn't complaining about our snail's pace, he was giving me Ayn Rand's views on the tariff or Rose Wilder Lane's theory on altruism (there is no such thing). When we hit Pensacola, Fla., he could stand it no longer. He made me trade our rent car for another one that would go faster.

Now, this is not such a remarkable story except for his extraordinary rationale for driving at break-neck speeds: "If you go slow it's not fair to a man in back of you who can't pass on these narrow roads."

I'd never thought of that.

I'd never thought of a lot of things until R.C. Hoiles. I had never realized, for example, that I was a socialist; that I was not a close-reasoner; that Immanuel Kant, one of the best "close-reasoners" in history, had never traveled more than 20 miles from home (R.C. was not much on traveling at the time); that the public school system was "tyranny naked"; that people who had empty whiskey bottles in their trash generally didn't pay their paper bill; that our enemy is the state; and that the state had no authority to do anything that I didn't have a right to do myself.

R.C. believed all of these things passionately. He was 95 pounds of TNT, perpetually detonated. His passion was freedom. While the Hearsts, Scripps, Knights, Gannetts and others named their newspaper groups after themselves, R.C. Hoiles named his business Freedom Newspapers because, as he explained it, "nobody cares about Hoiles but everybody cares about Freedom."

In R.C. Hoiles' view, any contract not voluntarily arrived at was immoral. Almost anybody could agree with that. But then he took that idea and skewered you with it. Taxes are not a voluntary contract, so they must be immoral. It's robbery for you to take your neighbor's purse by force, it's robbery for the government to do it. Because, after all, "government" is a bunch of people acting together; and if none of them has the right to rob you, how can a whole bunch of them assume that right?

Hey, wait a minute? How did we get here?

Tariffs, immigration quotas — anything that put a forced element into human transactions — was immoral to R.C. Hoiles. Either you were free or you weren't. And you weren't free if you couldn't import or export at will, hire whom you wished and for whatever wage

Public Opinion

Dear Editor: The people of Pampa continue to amaze the newcomer! I refer specifically to the amazing United Way effort!

This is my third year to live and work in the Pampa area — and each year has revealed to me reasons why this community is such a pleasant place.

Friendly people. Caring church families. Business and working people with such obvious pride. Good Schools. Hard working service clubs and professional groups — and some of the best climate in the world!

It is my pleasure to work with several hundred Pampa youth through nearly 200 adults who represent 23 Pampa area churches, clubs and groups using the Boy Scouting program. What a real delight!

Thank you Pampa and happy holidays!

was mutually agreeable. And how in the world could it be anything but robbery to seize your neighbor's bank account to pay for a school he didn't want, couldn't attend or thought was rotten?

These were some of the inflammatory ideas of R.C. Hoiles and he expounded them to anyone within sound of his voice or range of his newspapers. He was denounced from pulpits, his newspapers were boycotted, his home was bombed. He loved every minute of it. His enthusiasm was so enormous his small frame couldn't properly contain it. He literally exploded as he spoke. His enthusiasm infected everyone he touched. Strangely enough, he had the respect and even the affection of many of the people who denounced him most vociferously. He was a highly skilled, successful and lucky businessman who made his newspaper group grow. But so did others. What made Freedom Newspapers unique was the spirit that radiated from his little firebrand and made all of his "associates" (he didn't like the word employees) proud of him and their newspapers something special. His was the genius of leadership. He had the gift of raising the pulse of whomever he met. It was a rare good time, a romp, being part of Freedom Newspapers. You might be fighting city hall and tilting windmills, but by God it was fun!

R.C. wrote a column — or, rather, he dictated or hollered it to his secretary as if to transmit its urgency to the reader by the pitch of his voice. He called the column Better Jobs because, he said, that's what it's all about, what everybody wants. And we'd all have better jobs if we quit monkeying around with the free exchange of goods, services and ideas, and abandoned the lunacy of penalizing success and subsidizing robbery. He stuffed his pockets with tracts and pamphlets which he urged on anyone he caught in the halls or walking out of the men's room. The unions picketed R.C.'s office once but after the first few days the pickets quit and refused to come back. They said R.C. walked with them, lecturing to them, handing out pamphlets and obviously having the time of his life with a captive audience. They said the hell with it and called off the picket line.

In retrospect, it is difficult to assess the almost hysterical reaction to R.C. Hoiles' abstract essays on human behavior. People found them shocking. But this was in an era before we had endured the high-voltage shock of hippies, yuppies, flower children, the drug culture, open marriages, kiddie porn. How could any political philosophy — such as one as inherently dull as a theory on tariffs — inspire intense hatred, mass protest meetings, and attacks on carrier boys? It somehow seems, today, to have been impossible. But it happened. More than once.

In part the virulence of the reaction came from people who felt that R.C. Hoiles was out to break their rice bowl, an improbable accomplishment. How could one man with a few newspapers deal serious harm to the political entity of the public school system? How was he going to "shut down our schools," as several PTA's said in their bulletins? How, indeed, was he going to abolish all the wonderful government programs that most people obviously wanted? How much of an actual threat did this one slight man pose to all the special interests?

On the face of it, none. Those of us who went through those tumultuous years look back in wonder. The answer, of course, is that it is almost impossible to shock anyone any more, but there is another facet to the answer: Millions of Americans are coming to agree with R.C.'s ideas, and history has borne out their validity. It is no longer a sign of criminal nuttiness to speculate whether education would not be done more efficiently with private financing; whether restrictive tariffs and immigration quotas have not curbed our real growth; whether more money for less production, and government spending, will not throw us into panic inflation. He said all of these things and he was characterized as a mildly deranged zealot.

One of the things that nettled R.C.'s enemies was his continued and continuing success. How could a certifiable nut be building a big, strong business organization now made even greater by his sons C.H. and Harry Hoiles? If his ideas were so wrong, why were the results so right? The national media investigated this nasty contadiction and invariably wrote him off as someone who could survive only in Orange County, California, which they explained as a sort of enclave of "ultra right" loonies. Then how to explain his success in a Texas oil town, an Ohio industrial center, a Colorado tourist community? They skipped lightly over that.

Being an editor or publisher in R.C.'s day was an adventure, a challenge and an unforgettable experience. Controversy was soup on his paddle, the elixir of his life. It kept him humming for all the days of his 90-year life. It rubbed off on everybody who knew him. Even when he made you sore, you went away saying, "Wow, that one's a real stow!"

Actually, he was more like the entire James Gang riding into town.

R.C. and I got along fine. We argued a lot (he liked that) and agreed most of the time. Both of us were contentious and a little ornery. We wrote back and forth but he had a secretary and I figured that gave him an unfair advantage. Besides, he'd send me eight or 10 pounds of pamphlets to straighten out my thinking and I had to choose between reading all of them or trying to put out a newspaper. There wasn't time for both.

He once said, "You know, you and I have never had a real falling-out," and I said that was because I was always half scared to death of him. He thought about that a minute then grinned: "I wish I'd known that," he said. "People who are scared don't reason well." Maybe if he'd known he'd have fired me.

Today's "associates" who never knew R.C. will never entirely understand and savor the wonder of Freedom Newspapers. He had the spark, and he showed us how. Like I said, a pistol.

Thus endeth the memoir or memorial, if you will, from a friend and admirer. Here, for your consideration, is the man speaking for himself. Here is what he said he believed.

Why do millions act as they do?

relationships that exist among human beings. It is considered "romantic" to believe that tens of millions of humans can live and work together without the supervision and direction and control of some omniscient agency (i.e., the political State) to coordinate individual action into a harmonious order. This is the religion of our secular age. The gods have been sent down from the heavens and installed at the Federal Reserve Board, the Environmental Protection Agency, and the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is not just that the politicians and bureaucrats presume to be god-like; most of us are willing to acknowledge this role for them.

But if we believe social order is the product of external supervision, those who are to provide this coordination must be able to demonstrate their omniscience. Few would be willing to put their trust in persons pure guess-work or hunches. The controllers must appear to be in touch with all the factors associated with a given act. Including understanding all of the consequences that will flow from such an act. That no one has such knowledge — in fact, few of us have very complete knowledge about anything — does not slow down the propagation of this myth. If anything, our own ignorance of all factors associated with our own lives is often advanced as the reason for our projecting omniscience onto the politicians, who are more than willing to respond with explanations for everything.

If stock market analysts are able to explain the behavior of investors, then this serves to reinforce our faith in institutional omniscience. It is always amazing though, that these same people who offer their anonymous explanations for how 75,000 investors behaved on Oct. 16, 1978, are never heard to predict what these same investors will do the next day. In other words, the impression sought to be created of expert analysts in touch with the economic psychological factors that underlie the decisions of thousands of individual investors, is a sham. It is not unlike the fraud who tells us — after a plane crash or a disastrous earthquake — "I predicted that would happen." It is very easy to convert an explanation for what HAS happened — whether it be right or wrong — into belief that one is so in touch with information that others are justified in ascribing omniscience to that person. The illusion of omniscience is a basic requirement — especially in an age of science — for the exercise of institutional control over people.

Why do thousands of investors behave as they do from day to day? I haven't the slightest idea... and neither do you. Nor does your favorite broker, television commentators, the SEC, nor those faceless "authorities generally referred to as "I have faith in principles, in truth, in sequence, in order, in cause, in action and reaction, in the Commandments, in the Golden Rule, in Natural Law, or God."

"I have faith that the Commandments and the Golden Rule will promote good will and peace to the degree they are obeyed."

"I have faith that whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap."

"I have faith that to the degree we have free trade and no immigration quotas will we have peace and good will amongst men."

"I have faith that our country would be better protected by voluntary soldiers rather than by drafted soldiers."

"I have faith that our government would better protect every person's inalienable rights if it was supported on a voluntary basis rather than by taxes."

"I have faith that there is both a spiritual and material profit or loss in every voluntary transaction."

"I have faith in the immortality of influence and the immortality of the race."

"I have faith that material profit when accompanied by spiritual profit is a blessing to all mankind."

Authorities look for kidnapper

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A Fort Worth bank teller who took $17,000 from the bank to pay ransom for his family ate Thanksgiving dinner Thursday under police protection while FBI agents and local authorities searched for a masked suspect in the case.

David Eason took the money from the bank where he works Wednesday, then told bank officers what he'd done. He said he took the money to pay a ransom demanded by a masked gunman who kept him, his parents and his 16-year-old brother hostage overnight in their house.

The 44-year-old Eason, his wife and two sons asked police to hold off giving out information in the case because they said the gunman told them he would return and kill them if they told police what he looked like.

FBI Special Agent James Abbott said Eason did not violate any laws by taking the money from the bank.

Rural working women paid less than others

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rural women who work outside their homes generally are paid much less than their city counterparts, partly because they are willing to take lower-paying jobs, according to an Agriculture Department report.

Moreover, women in both rural and city areas earned far less than men during the year examined in the study. And wages were much higher for both women and men who worked in cities than those who worked in rural areas.

The report was included in a new publication, Rural Development Perspectives, issued this week by the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service.

Based on 1974 information, women in rural or "nonmetro" areas of the United States, earned an average of $3,952 a year. That compared with an average of $8,912 a year for rural males.

Women in cities or "metro" areas averaged $5,034 a year, compared to $11,164 for city men.

"Limited job training and experience among women new to the labor force, their willingness to accept part-time jobs, and the labor force needs of employers locating in rural areas contributed to the lower wage levels among nonmetro women," the report said.

Another reason, the report said, is that a smaller proportion of rural women are heads of households, meaning that they are "less often the sole or primary wage-earner" for the family.

"In view of the renewed population growth in nonmetro areas and changing attitudes toward employment of women outside the home, women constitute an increasingly important labor resource in nonmetro America," the report said.

"As women gain in both experience and training, opportunities for managerial and professional employment are likely to increase."

But the report, written by Jeanne M. O'Leary of the agency, cautioned that this favorable outlook might be darkened by the labor needs of firms that choose to locate in rural communities.

"A large pool of relatively low-skilled and low-paid female labor may in fact have been among the inducements that attracted many firms to nonmetro areas in the first place," it said.

As used in the report, nonmetro areas are counties that lack an urban center of at least 50,000 inhabitants and whose people are not in the "commuting zone of a metropolitan area."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of hired workers on the nation's farms during a survey week this fall was down from a year ago, according to the Agriculture Department.

The quarterly survey showed that 1,306,000 hired workers were on farms in the week of Oct. 8-14, compared to 1,316,800 a year earlier.

Americans happy with turkey day

By The Associated Press

It wasn't a turkey of a day for most Americans. November's fourth Thursday was traditional: parades, football games and feasts of turkey and all the trimmings.

However, folks in Eads, Colo., almost went without, and the dishes are still stacking up there.

An ice storm Monday knocked out power lines and the town of 900 residents had no electricity until just before midnight Wednesday. However, the water supply was still out today.

In Plymouth, Mass., site of the first Thanksgiving, nearly 2,000 spectators watched 51 townfolk dressed as Pilgrims march from Plymouth Rock to a nearby church.

The marchers, ushered through the town by a drummer, represented the survivors of the Pilgrims' first winter in the New World.

About 700 people took part in an ecumenical worship service and about 1,000 more showed up for a traditional Thanksgiving dinner sponsored by the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce.

American military families in West Germany, hit hard with the fall of the dollar, got Thanksgiving help from the U.S. government.

The military allowed dependents to eat in mess halls where a full course meal for civilians costs about $2. There are 180,000 American soldiers stationed in the country.

Other military families feasted on U.S. turkeys bought from government-subsidized commissaries.

Some German children got a taste of a traditional American Thanksgiving dinner at Weierhof, an Army base just west of Worms. American first graders, clad as Pilgrims, invited German first graders from nearby Bolanden elementary school to join them at their feast clad as Indians.

Kathy Vollbrecht of Hicksville, N.Y., a first-grade teacher and organizer of the dinner, was quoted as saying, "We, as Americans, are pilgrims in this land, and they (the Germans) are the Indians, so we invited them to their first Thanksgiving dinner."

President Carter and family gathered at Camp David, Md. More than two dozen relatives were invited, including Carter's mother, Lillian Carter, and Rosalynn Carter's mother, Allie Smith.

The weatherman gave the annual Macy's parade a cold reception as it snaked through the streets of New York City.

American Airlines angered by boycott

NEW YORK (AP) — American Airlines chief Albert V. Casey says he will move even more jobs, personnel and business from New York City if threats of boycotts against the carrier continue because of American's plan to relocate its headquarters in Texas.

"We spend $400 million in New York," Casey claimed in an interview published in today's editions of the Daily News. "There are other jobs we can move out. We have a lot of flexibility."

The executive said he was angry after Warner Communications said it would cancel its annual $1 million worth of travel business with the airline and after unions representing police officers, firefighters and state civil service workers called for a boycott of American.

The planned boycotts are to protest the proposed move of American's headquarters and 900 jobs from New York City to the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Some 10,000 jobs will remain in New York City.

Casey, an original member of the city's Emergency Financial Control Board which helped pulled the city from the brink of fiscal ruin, said he was "shocked" by the Warner boycott. "But I'm still going to show Warner Brothers (a subsidiary of Warner Communications) films on my planes," he said.

Casey said the relocation was based on economic and productivity benefits to the airline. The carrier's headquarters also will be more centrally located he said.

The airline already has facilities at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and its most profitable runs are from New York to Los Angeles, Chicago and San Juan.

A Daily News survey indicated the headquarters relocation stemmed from what it called a "Sun Belt power play" and not economic considerations. A coalition of banking and political interests out-muscled New York counterparts after a six-month campaign for the relocation.

FOCUS

Muckraker

In 1905, a young writer named Upton Sinclair published a novel called "The Jungle," about the filthy conditions which were common then in the nation's meat-packing industry. The book made so many people angry that Congress reacted by passing the country's first pure food laws. "I aimed at the public's heart," Sinclair said, "and by accident I hit it in the stomach." President Theodore Roosevelt called Sinclair a "muckraker," because he called attention to things which were evil and unpleasant. Sinclair went on to write almost 100 books, which were translated into 60 languages. Upton Sinclair died ten years ago today, on November 24, 1968.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Dense fog caused hazardous driving conditions over a vast area of the state, early today as Texans returned to work after the Thanksgiving Day holiday.
Forecasters said the dense fog was in an area extending southward from the Dallas-Fort Worth area to Brownsville at the southern tip of Texas. Some fog was also reported in southern sections of West Texas.

The fog burned away during the mid-morning hours, leaving most of the state with a low cloud cover and continued mild temperatures. Highs ranged from the middle 50s in North-west Texas to the 60s and 70s over most of the remainder of the state.
Outside the area with fog early today, skies were mostly cloudy. Early morning temperatures ranged from the lower 40s in the Panhandle and in the mountains of Southwest Texas to the middle and upper 60s along lower sections of the Texas gulf coast. Extremes ranged from 44 at Dalhart to 69 at McAllen.

Some early morning temperatures included 46 at Amarillo and Wichita Falls, 54 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 63 at Austin, 62 at Lufkin and Houston, 67 at Corpus Christi, 61 at Del Rio, 56 at San Angelo and 47 at El Paso and Lubbock.
Fog was reported at Abilene, Beaumont, Alice, Brownsville, College Station, Corpus Christi, Cotulla, Dallas-Fort Worth, Galveston, Houston, Midland, Tyler, Victoria and Wink. Amarillo reported light rain.

Roloff to buy university

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Evangelist Lester Roloff announced plans Thursday night to purchase the campus of Ambassador College in Big Sandy for $10.6 million.
Roloff said he will move the headquarters of Roloff Evangelistic Enterprises from near Corpus Christi to the Upshur County town of 1,200 in East Texas.
Also, Roloff said, girls from the Rebekah and Help-Hers homes near Corpus Christi will move.
The City of Refuge in Culloden, Ga., and the Anchor Home for Boys in Zapata will be sold, Roloff said. The boys will be taken to Corpus Christi to live in the Rebekah home.
Roloff announced the moves to a packed, cheering house Thursday night at his People's Church in Corpus Christi. Ambassador College was operated by the Worldwide Church of God, the former organization of Garner Ted Armstrong.
The church shut down the Big Sandy campus in 1977. The campus will be purchased from Herbert W. Armstrong through a friend of Roloff's in Virginia.

Two persons arrested in fire bombing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two persons were arrested inside the Egyptian consulate early today after shots were fired and an incendiary device burned the front door, police said.

An armed man believed to be a security guard was inside the consulate, police said. There were no reports of injuries.
Police say those arrested claimed to be consulate employees. It was not immediately known if the fire at the door of the consulate had been extinguished.

It also was not known who fired the shots.
A man identifying himself as a spokesman for the Jewish Defense League told the Associated Press by telephone that the group was responsible for "a firebombing" at the consulate.
The call was received minutes before shots were reported inside the consulate and police were called to the scene. A three-block area was cordoned off by police.

Grandma's garage

By NANCY SHULINS Associated Press Writer
WOODBURY, Vt. (AP) — In a small shed tucked away in the northern Vermont hills, a 70-year-old great-grandmother scoots across the floor on a hydraulic auto jack.
Florence Edgerly, former cook and hunting guide, says she's finally found her niche.
"Some men have said, 'How do you do it? How do you fix cars?' I tell 'em to come over here and find out," she says.
Mrs. Edgerly spends her days as a mechanic and auto body worker, knee deep in tools and splattered with paint. "Generally my hair's green. Sometimes it's red, and now and then, it's purple," she says, primly patting her white curls.

But overhauling engines is not new to Mrs. Edgerly, who spent much of her life married to an auto mechanic. When her husband died, she decided it was time to go back to work.

"I do the mechanics and body work and hitch 'em together so they look like new — good enough to pass inspection, anyway," she says.
Her advertising is a hand-lettered sign displayed at the grocery store in nearby Woodbury. At the top is the crayoned likeness of a rust-eaten Volkswagen; below, the car restored to its former glory.
"When I first started out, I wanted to be a nurse, but there was no way of going to school," she recalls.

Instead, she cooked at an Adirondack hunting lodge. Sometimes she threw off her apron and donned a red checkered jacket to guide hunters through the woods.
"Some of 'em were pretty scared of me and my gun at first. But my boss told 'em to worry about themselves and never mind me," she says.
"I've always been a tomboy. I guess you could say. When I was growin' up in Worcester (Mass.), I'd climb trees and try to get out of doin' the dishes."

"I started off the day in a dress, but as soon as I got home from school, I'd change to overalls."

Mrs. Edgerly says she still feels more at home in a T-shirt and blue work pants than she does in a dress. Hunting and fishing are her passions, and she spends part of each fall hauling three cords of wood home to feed the stove, an oil drum in a previous life.

Just past the woodpile stands her 20-year-old house, a snug, cement-block building.
"I helped build this house," she says proudly. "I lugged these cement blocks in here myself, and I did most of the finishin'."

Mrs. Edgerly, who learned to drive on a Model T, motors along the dirt roads of Woodbury, population 399, in a pickup truck of indeterminate age.
"I like the work. It's not the same thing over and over again. It don't get too exciting in the kitchen, but out here, it's always different," she says, patting a nearby engine.
"I say, you feel better if you can keep goin'. If you stop movin', all your aches and pains pop up."

Alliance to accept referendum

By GORDON D. MOTT Associated Press writer
MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua's opposition alliance is expected to accept a proposed national referendum for President Anastasio Somoza's continued rule, provided the dictator leave the country during the vote, a source close to the alliance said.
Somoza was sure to reject the proposal, said the source, who declined to be identified, but he added, "We cannot refuse the alternative presented by the mediators. We cannot afford to be the intransigent party in this situation."
A source close to the international mediating panel that developed the referendum plan said the Somoza government had no immediate reaction and he could not predict its response.

The plan, submitted by the United States, Guatemala and the Dominican Republic, reportedly calls for an international authority to observe the election that would determine whether Somoza remain in power.
The opposition informant said his alliance of political parties and labor unions will vote on the plan today.

Meanwhile, Nicaragua's relations with neighboring Costa Rica have been strained by a reported shootout Thursday between the Nicaraguan national guard and guerrillas of the leftist Sandinista National Liberation Front, who are fighting to overthrow Somoza.

A police spokesman in San Jose, Costa Rica said three guardsmen were killed, but the guard denied there was a clash.
President Rodrigo Carazo, of Costa Rica, had asked the Organization of American States Thursday to investigate the death of two Costa Rican border patrolmen in an alleged clash with guardsmen earlier this week.

Costa Rica broke relations with its northern neighbor over the incident Tuesday although traffic was allowed to resume across the border Thursday.
Sandinista guerrillas, who led the bloody fighting against Somoza for two weeks in September, are training in Costa Rica. They use San Jose as a headquarters with the tacit approval of the Costa Rican government.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: For years I have suffered from an inferiority complex because of my height. It has ruined my whole life. I am a woman, 5 feet 9. I love to dance, but I'm taller than the average man and I feel like a fool when a man looks up at me.

I am uncomfortable unless I wear flats. I won't even walk to the coffee machine at work because I feel so conspicuous. I became so desperate I even asked my doctor if he knew of some kind of operation to shorten the bones in my legs, but he said no one has ever attempted such an operation. I told him I would be more than willing to be the first.

Abby, you can't imagine what a miserable feeling it is to walk into a room and pray to God that there is someone there taller than you are. Would you believe that I have even considered taking my life? I'm sure there are other girls who feel the same way.

Any advice you can give me will be appreciated. Don't tell me to see a psychiatrist because that is where my problem has already landed me.

TALL IN CANADA

DEAR TALL: Since you've already wisely consulted a psychiatrist, you must surely know that it's your attitude—not your altitude—that needs changing.

You are much too self-centered in assuming all eyes are constantly focused on you. Not true!

Instead of those negative feelings you have about your height, stand tall, throw your shoulders back, chin up, and come on proud, confident and alive! If you have two good arms, legs, eyes, a voice and a mind, thank God in your prayers!

Get rid of those flats (they make you shuffle); wear heels. It will improve your figure. Practice walking with grace and dignity. You get no sympathy from here, dear. Now get going, and remember those prayers of gratitude.

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to the woman from Joliet, Ill. about obscene phone calls. I also was bothered by a man who called periodically for this reason. It made me very nervous and upset so I contacted the police, and you wouldn't believe their suggestion.

They told me to make a date with the caller, let them know where he was meeting me, and they would be there to arrest him. I refused to endanger my life this way.

Then by chance I mentioned my problem to the minister's wife who gave me the best tip of all—one she had used. She said, "The next time he calls, say hello as usual, listen for a moment, then while he's still talking, say, 'Are you there, operator?' This is the call I asked you to trace... he's on the phone now!"

I did as she suggested, and the caller got rattled and hung up. And that's the last obscene phone call I ever received.

N. HALEDON, N.J.

DEAR N.J.: Thanks for the tip.

DEAR ABBY: I am a waitress and I'm writing to say that I am sick and tired of hearing this job put down.

I just heard the following commercial on TV. "If I hadn't gone to such a school for something or other, I'd still be just a waitress." Well, just imagine that! A fate worse than death!

Abby, I've been a waitress for 18 years, and I'm not ashamed of it. I own my own home, a car, and I'm raising two children alone. We take a vacation every summer. I've never had one penny from welfare, and I don't owe a dime.

My work is honorable and rewarding, and I resent the insinuation that waitress work is something to be ashamed of. Please print this for all the waitresses who share my feelings.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a male, 54, and have been told that I have an obstruction in my femoral artery. I just had a thorough physical in the hospital. My physical condition is good. I had a check up initially because of back pain and pain in my hip and leg when walking.

My doctor said I may need an operation for the obstruction in the artery. First he said I should stop smoking for three months and he would check me again. He said no doctor would operate on me because of my heavy smoking.

I have stopped smoking. My question is, "How much risk is involved in this type of operation and was he on the level about not smoking?" I am going to retire at 55 and then will not have medical insurance. Wouldn't it be better to have this taken care of as soon as possible?

DEAR READER—First, from the economical considerations, I would hope that you would be able to have your medical problems settled while you have medical insurance.

Such procedures are usually expensive, not because of the doctor's bills so much, but because of the hospital costs, the operating room costs and all the other things which seem to run up the cost of medical bills to astronomical levels these days.

Smoking can be an important factor in obstruction of the arteries to the legs and I wholeheartedly approve of your doctor's insistence that you stop. It might also relieve some of the problems that you have as far as circulation to the leg is concerned.

I also think you should try to limit your fats and cholesterol in your diet to stop the formation of fatty-cholesterol deposits if at all possible. For that reason, I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-3, Diet Pre-

Polly's Pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY—When using enamel cookware release stuck or burned foods by soaking in a baking soda and water solution. Loosen with a rubber spatula. When such pans are stained put in some bleach, several drops of detergent and water and find this bleaches the stains out perfectly. Scouring powders scratch the surface. If all food particles have been removed and the pan is clean dish cloths can be bleached in the same solution for double duty results.—G.H.U.

Parents are a child's first playmates.

Fun goes a long, long way

(Fifth of six parts)

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) - Parents are a child's first playmates. Children learn first from their parents and those close to them.

Careful selection and proper use of toys is important to assure children's positive play and healthful development. But the influence of the toys themselves is always secondary to the behavioral examples shown by parents and others and in the way they play with children. Toys become most significant and useful when parents establish a close companionship with their child.

According to Dr. Brian Sutton-Smith, research psychologist and specialist in children's play, "It's only when children are sure of parents' love that they can be sufficiently independent to enjoy and develop through their toys."

"Modern adults," says Sutton-Smith, "are taught to give up childish things, to be grown up and responsible. Parents who are able to keep in touch with feelings about their own childhood will be able to communicate better with their children and make a more significant contribution to their development."

Research has shown that children who play a lot often become more creative and imaginative than those whose exposure to play and toys is more limited. Children who play regularly with their parents and others are most likely to achieve the highest level of creativity as adults. Parental involvement in children's play, at the right time, is vital to the full extent of the children's emotional, intellectual, social and physical development.

Parents must be truly playful, however, to produce the greatest effect on their children. Merely imitating or even ignoring a child's play may not be enough. Through active play with their children, parents can encourage playfulness, introduce new toys and play concepts and thus assure progress of the play curriculum. They can encourage imitation by children and help them become more comfortable with new things and situations.

As partners in play with children, parents are best advised to do what they enjoy most and to introduce variety into play. This may mean physical play, like rolling on the floor with children; verbal play, such as telling stories or jokes; game play as with checkers, marbles or hide-and-seek, or play with toys and other playthings.

Dr. Sutton-Smith offers a few simple rules of play to help parents know when, and when not, to play with their children:

Observe. Determine through close observation a child's skill levels and play interests.

Play along. Enter and play at the child's level. Be careful not to impose a play level that is too sophisticated and adult, for this may cause disenchantment for both parent and child.

Play a little above. After playing for a while at the child's level, parents can then introduce a slightly newer, more complex play level. A conversation between two dolls, for example, can be demonstrated by a parent after the child has mastered playing with one doll.

Back away and observe again. After demonstrating a new concept and arousing a child's response, leave the child alone to practice and learn. After the new skill is mastered (it will take months in some instances, minutes or hours in others), the parent can playfully demonstrate another, more advanced concept.

Both parent and child must approach play sessions in a spirit of fun. While play does have serious importance in a child's development, play that is not fun is useless.

PRISCILLA'S SKATEBOARD SAFETY POINTERS

When you first get your skateboard, place it on a flat surface, such as a carpet or lawn. Stand on the board to get the feel of it.

Once you are ready to ride, push off slowly and carefully. Don't let the skateboard slip out from under you.

Don't skate faster than you can run—at least, not until you become an expert. And watch out for traffic.

Keep an eye out for debris, bumps or cracks on your path. Remember, you won't have Priscilla's Pop around to catch you if you fall.

VIEWS ON CHILDREN

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Loss of freedom was the most often mentioned disadvantage of having children, while most frequently listed advantages in a University of Michigan survey were "love and affection and the feeling of being a family," "stimulation and fun," "expansion of self" and "having someone to carry on after you have gone."

The findings were reported by Lois Hoffman and Jean Manis, researchers with Survey Research Center, a unit of the U-M Institute for Social Research. They interviewed more than 1,500 married women between the ages of 15 and 39 and the husbands of about a third of the women.

Religious today

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Episcopalians, Lutherans, Baptists and Jews won a bigger share of the new Congress this time. Roman Catholics and Presbyterians held their own, while United Methodists and the United Church of Christ registered losses.

Among governors, the number of Roman Catholics edged downward slightly, while Protestants gained more of the top statehouse posts.

The post-election figures were compiled by the evangelical fortnightly, Christianity Today, which every two years researches and reports religious affiliations of members of Congress and governors.

Among the denominations, the country's largest religious body, Roman Catholicism, continued to have the highest representation on Capitol Hill — a total of 129, of whom 116 are in the House and 13 in the Senate.

That is the same total that Catholics had in the previous Congress. The number of Protestants slipped slightly from 371 to 364, while the Jewish count increased to a record 30, up from 27 before, with 23 now in the House and seven in the Senate.

Jewish representation has grown rapidly since the 1972 election, when there were only 14 Jews in Congress.

Additionally, there are seven Eastern Orthodox in Congress, up three, and six unaffiliated with any religion, one less than previously.

Among governors, 12 are Roman Catholics, down three from previously; eight Episcopalians, up four or twice as many as before; seven Baptists, up two; eight Presbyterians, up one; four Lutherans, up one; four United Church of Christ members, up one; two Methodists, down three; two Mormons, up one; and one each of the Disciples of Christ and Unitarian-Universalist churches, both the same.

In the new Congress, including House and Senate, Episcopalians increased from 65 to 70. Baptists from 55 to 57. Lutherans from 16 to 19. Unitarian-Universalists from 11 to 12 and Disciples from five to six.

The biggest loss came for the United Church of Christ, whose numbers fell from 22 to 16, while Mormons dropped from 12 to 10 and the Churches of Christ fell from six to four.

Presbyterians, who lost 18 seats in the previous two elections, this time managed to hold their own at 60. Others keeping the same numbers were three Christian Scientists, two Quakers and five Greek Orthodox members, but two other Eastern Orthodox branches elected one each.

Thirteen other smaller denominations sent one member each to Congress. Also, 19 members of Congress listed themselves as Protestants without specifying a denomination, two less than last time.

Religious roundup

CHICAGO (AP) — The president of the National Federation of Priests' Councils has called for the ordination of married men into the Roman Catholic priesthood.

The Rev. James Ratigan, writing in the federation's periodical, Priests USA, said the church "must seriously consider the necessity of ordaining married men in order to respond to the pastoral needs of the people."

He said that "there are no theological arguments opposed to married men being ordained."

However, Pope John Paul II has said clerical celibacy is essential.

CHICAGO (AP) — The general synod of the Polish National Catholic Church has voted to end inter-communion with the Episcopal Church in the United States and the Anglican Church of Canada because of their ordination of women.

Inter-communion with the Episcopal Church had been established in 1946.

The Polish Catholic synod voted 312 to 106 to terminate that relationship. However, Prime Bishop Thaddeus F. Zielinski said "friendly relations" would continue.

GENEVA, Switz. (AP) — The Lutheran World Federation says it has received word that the Rev. Gudina Tumsa, the Lutheran general secretary of the Evangelical Church Mekane Yesus in Ethiopia, has been released from detention after being held incommunicado for more than three weeks, with no explanation given for his arrest.

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — For the second time in a month, Roman Catholic Bishop Edward W. O'Rourke has criticized Planned Parenthood, saying the local United Way should stop financing it because it fosters promiscuity, abortion and birth control.

NEW YORK (AP) — A 40-volume set of early Christian writers, such as Tertullian, Origen and Augustine, has been published by Paulist Press.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baptist church membership in South America has nearly doubled in the last decade, rising from 297,048 to the current total of 551,439, the Baptist World Alliance reports.

DENVER (AP) — Affirmation, the homosexual caucus in the United Methodist Church, has started a move to petition the church's 1980 governing conference to delete "derogatory language about gay people" from the church's social principles.

A Look at the Cross on THANKSGIVING

"Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted."

"But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed."

"All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all." Isaiah 53:4-6

Our prayer this Thanksgiving Season is that everyone will attend the house of God, giving thanks unto him for his great gift, which is eternal life through his son.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Hearing drags on Nazi guards stand trial

LUBLIN, Poland (AP) — Gas chambers, crematory ovens and mounds of human ashes at Majdanek death camp are sickening reminders of the Holocaust. Some 600 miles to the West, the trial of 14 Nazi camp guards for World War II atrocities here drags into its fourth year.

"It's a phantom trial, a classic case of stalling," Professor Czeslaw Pilichowski, chief of Poland's war-crimes investigation commission, told The Associated Press.

Pilichowski reflected the anger and frustration of a number of Polish officials over defense delaying tactics at the Majdanek trial in Duesseldorf, West Germany.

Former New York housewife Hermine Braunsteiner Ryan, extradited to West Germany to stand trial after surrendering her U.S. citizenship, is one of the five women and nine men charged with the murders.

The trial passes its third anniversary Sunday, and court officials say the verdict is at least another year away.

Polish officials say 360,000 men, women and children were gassed, shot, hanged, drowned, beaten or starved to death at Majdanek between 1941 and 1944. Victims came from 28 countries, but the majority were rounded up in the Nazi occupation of Poland.

Pilichowski said the German prosecutors have conducted an excellent case against the 14 defendants, who face maximum sentences of life imprisonment. "But," he said, "the defense lawyers have delayed the trial with a variety of time-consuming protest motions. The case is certain to drag on into 1980."

The controversial West German statute of limitations, which would expire Dec. 31, 1979, for war crimes unless it's extended, has no effect on the Duesseldorf trial. It applies to German war-crime suspects not under investigation or indictment by the deadline.

Pilichowski was bitterly critical of the defense lawyers' tactics of badgering Polish witnesses who survived Majdanek.

"A Polish woman physician testified that she was forced by Nazi guards to carry canisters of poison gas," said the lawyer. "Everybody knows she didn't act voluntarily. But a defense lawyer accused her of cooperating in murder and demanded she be arrested."

The harassment of Polish witnesses in the courtroom has gotten so bad, 84-year-old Pilichowski said, that many survivors have refused to appear in person and instead gave written depositions.

He said 20 Poles have gone to Duesseldorf, 10 others are slated to go and 770 have given the court written statements.

The court has had five sessions in Poland, including visits to the camp site near Lublin, an industrial city of 250,000 residents. A sixth session is scheduled here. Pilichowski said, but several defense lawyers have been barred from entering the country to attend. "We don't give them visas because of their behavior," he said. "One of them was even coming to Poland to try to bribe witnesses."

Pilichowski and other Polish officials are also pressing West Germany to abolish its statute of limitations on war crime murders.

"The statute is a violation of international law and principles of human morality," Pilichowski said. "We could never accept a limitation on crimes of this immensity."

About 5.5 million Poles, including many Jews, were among the estimated 10 million persons killed by the Nazis in World War II camps and reprisal shootings. Another 540,000 were killed in battle. The 6 million total was the highest death rate for a European nation.

Since 1959 Pilichowski's commission has sent more than 130,000 microfilms, 30,000 witnesses' statements and 25,000 documents on Nazi atrocities to West Germany.

The results of this cooperation have been disappointing, he said, with West Germany having the worst record in punishing Nazi war criminals. "Of 84,000 suspects investigated in West Germany, only 6,425, or 7.6 percent, have actually been convicted," he said.

The West Germans maintain they are hindered by the difficulty of finding witnesses, especially as survivors grow older.

Pilichowski estimated that European courts have sentenced 50,000 Nazi war criminals, or only one-tenth of the total.

"It is a well-known fact that most of the major criminals are hidden in South America," Law and Life, the newspaper of the Polish lawyers association, said in its latest edition. "But there are also many former Gestapo and SS members living well in West Germany."

After the amnesty, they will make themselves heroes of the fight for 'Deutschland, Deutschland ueber alles'."

Majdanek, the second-largest Nazi extermination camp after Auschwitz, has been attracting thousands of foreign visitors in recent years, officials said. It has been preserved as a memorial.

The visit to Majdanek begins with a horrifying film of the camp on the day it was liberated by Soviet troops, July 23, 1944. Pathetic mementos of the dead are on display: Blood-stained, blue-and-white prisoners' garb hang on clothes lines. Shoes, eye glasses, dentures and other articles stripped from corpses are piled on the floors.

"Let our fate be a warning to you," says an inscription over the tons of human ashes burned in the mausoleum built to honor victims.

Camp guide Wieslaw Pielecha said many German visitors still have difficulty believing the evidence of genocide.

"Older Germans, those of the war generation, find it hard to accept," said the 31-year-old graduate student. "Most of them look and say nothing. Some ask, 'How much of this is propaganda?'"

Watchdog changing some rules

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's watchdog of workplace safety is flushing away a lot of picky rules that drove employers crazy — like how to design the proper toilet seat or how to choose a tool belt.

In all, 928 regulations of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration meet a timely death today.

But don't look for any mourners.

OSHA is glad to see the rules go. They never saved any lives or warded off any injuries or illnesses, as far as agency officials could tell.

And the 5 million businesses affected by agency rules will be tickled pink. After all, they used to get fined by OSHA inspectors for failing to comply with the rules.

Some of the former rules were just plain silly, like the one that said, "Piping located inside or outside of buildings may be placed above or below ground." That covered just about every possibility.

Others went a little too far in the area of product design. For instance:

"Every water closet (toilet) shall have a hinged seat made of substantial material, having a non-absorbent finish. Seats installed or replaced shall be of the open front type."

Then there were rules that pioneered protective remedies for health threats that don't exist.

"A covered receptacle shall be kept in all toilet rooms used by women" for the disposal of sanitary napkins, said one.

But Jerry Purswell, OSHA's safety standard director and chief rule scratcher, says the agency was unable to find a single case "in which a woman became ill because of exposure to a sanitary napkin."

Another batch of ex-rules set records for providing incomprehensible and unnecessary gobbledeegook.

The telephone company, for example, could only provide linemen:

"Belts that have pocket tabs that extend at least 1 1/2 inches down and 3 inches back of the inside of the circle of each D-ring for riveting on plier or tool pockets... There may be no more than 4 tool loops on any body belt."

And was it really helpful for a company that uses wood ladders to know that:

"Black streaks in Western Hemlock shall not be considered an irregularity, except that chambers associated with black streaks when present in the part, shall be limited as specified for pitch and bark pockets?"

The rules accumulated over nearly four decades. But it took just short of a year for OSHA to review its books and comply with President Carter's order that regulatory agencies drop "nuisance" standards.

Fear not, though, that OSHA may un-regulate itself out of business. The defunct regulations eliminate only some 30 pages of fine-print rules. Another 280 pages remain alive, well and intact.

OSHA Administrator Eula Bingham says the agency now can "concentrate on reducing or eliminating the more serious and significant workplace safety and health standards."

In old Siam it was considered bad luck if the king could not stand on one foot during a special three-hour ceremony.

No change seen in rate policy

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time, the money-managing Federal Reserve Board will soon have appointees of President Carter in the majority, but it is unlikely to bring any change in the board's high interest rate policy.

The seven-member Federal Reserve Board has been carrying most of the load lately in trying to control inflation — by pushing interest rates to record and near-record levels. The goal is to slow the economy and take pressure off prices.

It's a calculated risk, because if there is a serious recession next year, the board will get much of the blame, as will Carter.

But it's also a load the board can't easily rid itself of because there isn't anybody else who can carry it right now. There's little confidence either among the public or even within the administration that Carter's voluntary wage and price guidelines will succeed in slowing inflation.

Carter has also made clear he agrees the board has no other real option at this point except to keep interest rates high. His administration has encouraged some of the most recent increases.

Although Carter nominates members of the board, subject to Senate confirmation, the board is independent of the administration and is responsible to Congress. Members are named for 14-year terms although few actually serve that long.

Although policy probably will remain the same, there still will be comfort to Carter in having the board controlled by people he has appointed.

Carter has filled two vacancies so far this year and two more have occurred in recent weeks, one with the resignation for personal reasons of Philip C. Jackson and the second with the death Sunday by cancer of Stephen S. Gardner, 59, the board's vice chairman.

Not since 1936 has a president had an opportunity to name four members in a single year. At the beginning of this year, the board was made up entirely of members appointed by Republican presidents, including the chairman, Arthur Burns.

Carter's first appointment was G. William Miller, named to succeed Burns, who resigned. While Miller is independent of the administration, he has worked closely with Carter and his advisers in coordinating Fed policy with administration actions and objectives.

Carter's second appointment came in August when he named Nancy Teeters, the first woman ever on the board, to fill another resignation.

It is understood Carter has not made a decision on who to nominate to the vacant posts, although North Carolina banker Luther H. Hodge Jr. and Lyle C. Gramley, a member of Carter's Council of Economic Advisers, have been mentioned as possible candidates for Jackson's seat.

Miller told reporters the other day he would like to see somebody other than an economist named to the board, since four of the five remaining members are economists.

Cowboys lay down law to Washington

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Like a good jockey, coaching the whip to the vital moment on the backstretch, Dallas Coach Tom Landry has applied the quart to his defending World Champion Cowboys.
They flew past Washington like a thoroughbred Thanksgiving Day in a 37-10 rout that gave the cowboys a game lead over the Redskins in the National Conference Eastern Division with three games to play.

"We were ready to play — this is the best we've played," said Landry whose teams characteristically flatten out in the middle of the season then breathe fire when it counts.
Landry added "We were just going so strong it would have been difficult for any team to stop us today regardless of who we played."
Washington quarterback Joe Theismann concluded "All you can say is the Cowboys kicked the hell out of us. I know they kicked the hell out of me."

Asked if he liked Dallas' position, Landry said "Yes I do, we have jelled and it could carry us into the playoffs. This type of game stands out in the back of your mind and you think you can do it again... it gives you a lot of confidence."
Dallas is 9-4 to Washington's 8-5. The Cowboys, should the teams again fall into a tie, have an insurmountable tiebreaker edge over the Redskins.
"Dallas is certainly in an advantageous position," said

Washington Coach Jack Pardee. "They would have to lose two out of three not to make the playoffs."
Washington, of course, is still very much alive in the wild card scramble. Two teams from each conference get a wild card berth this year.
Dallas jumped on Washington with 13 first quarter points — the most for the Cowboys in the opening 15 minutes this year — then pounded the scrambling Redskins in revenge for an earlier 9-5 loss to Washington.

"It was a big plus to move the ball early and get some points on the board," said Cowboy wide receiver Drew Pearson, who combined with quarterback Roger Staubach on a 57-yard pass-and-run touchdown. "We have been having trouble in the first quarter. We got it all together today. We were really sky high. We were at our emotional peak."
"We were hitting and sticking. When you get 488 yards against the 'Skins I'd say your offense is in good shape."

Rafael Septien kicked three field goals and reserve fullback Scott Laidlaw rushed for 122 yards on 16 carries, scoring twice, as the Cowboy offense purred.
Mark Moseley's 44-yard field goal and Theismann's late 16-yard touchdown pass to tight end Jean Fugett was all Washington could muster.
The Dallas defense, which sacked Theismann four times, didn't allow Washington a first down until Cliff Harris was flagged for interference late in the second quarter.

Dallas led 20-0 at halftime as Staubach, who scrambled seven times when he didn't find a receiver, came up with some big third down plays.
But it was his bomb to Pearson that put the game away. Pearson sneaked behind Joe Lavender and caught the radar-guided spiral at the Redskins nine and just loafed into the end zone in the game's most spectacular play.
When it didn't count, third-string fullback Larry Brinson bolted 39 yards for Dallas' final touchdown.

"It was just a rotten day," said Theismann. "When you get 20 points down, there is no mystery what you have to do — you have to throw the football. And those guys just tee off and when those four guys up front want to play football, there is nobody like them in the NFL. There is no two ways about it. You kid yourself if you don't realize that."
Pardee was asked about reports of dissension on his team and he said "We have a chance as long as everyone is trying, and everyone is. Oh, there may be one exception, or two."
"I don't think we'd have any dissension if you people (the media) would quit asking about it."
Staubach said he was a little surprised how the Redskins faded.
"We came out ready to go. I'm surprised we won like we did," said Staubach. "I expected it to be a tight game. I was surprised at the score."
Staubach added "We're hungry. I'm not saying we are there (the playoffs) but we showed a lot of good signs."

Harvesters open season against Perryton tonight

By JOE BLOBAUM
Pampa News Sports Editor
Pampa opens its basketball season, tonight at Harvester Field House against a strong Perryton squad, and Coach Gary Abercrombie may have to make do without one of his starters.
Cedrick Parker, a 6-2 junior forward, has a sprained ankle and is listed as "extremely doubtful" for both Harvester games this weekend. Hereford invades Pampa territory Saturday night to complete a home-and-home opening for the Harvesters, who were 19-8 last year.
Parker's injury was just the kind of news Abercrombie didn't want to hear this early in the season. The Harvesters, already thin in their ranks, need every man healthy and may suit up as few as eight players for the varsity games.

"We'll be all right if we don't get into foul trouble," Abercrombie said Wednesday. "We'll play a lot of zone, or at least a lot more than we did last year, to try to avoid getting in foul trouble."
While Abercrombie admitted he's "not much of a zone coach," the Harvesters may not have much choice in some aspects of the way they play.
"Our personnel's going to dictate what we do," he said, adding that Pampa might try pressing its opponents into errors. "It might be difficult for us to run early in the year. We may not be in good enough condition, and then there's the depth problem."

Still, Pampa should put a pretty fair starting five on the floor. Steve Duke, a 5-7 guard and the only full-time starter back from last year's squad, will team with 5-11 junior Joe Jeffers to form Pampa's backcourt.
Senior center Steve Stout, the tallest man on the team at 6-6, will handle the pivot, while Ronnie Faggins, a 6-3 sophomore, and Darryl Hughes, a 6-2 senior, is Parker's replacement in the starting lineup.
If Parker is not available, Pampa's bench will probably consist of Steve Glover (5-10 junior), Darrell Narron (6-2 senior) and Vic Wallace (5-9 junior).

Abercrombie noted Perryton and Hereford would have at least one game under their belts before coming to Pampa, and said that will be a definite advantage for the Harvester opponents. In its preseason scrimmages, Pampa showed a pattern of starting slowly and catching fire as the games wore on.
"Hopefully we can hang in close and come back late to win," Abercrombie said. "But I don't think we can get behind by 10 or 15 points and expect to win. We just don't have the personnel to do it."
"I don't anticipate coming out and blowing anyone out early," he added.
While admitting he didn't know "anything at all" about Hereford, Abercrombie listed Perryton as the stronger of the two Harvester opponents.
"They're one of the better teams in the area, regardless of class," he said. "I'm sure Reynolds (6-6 senior David) will be a first-team all-stater."
The Rangers are "more of a pattern team," according to Abercrombie. "They don't run a lot, but they will run if it's available."
Robert Graves and Jackie Mercer are the only members of Hereford's Herd to return from last year's 18-13 team. But despite less height and rebounding power, Coach Bobby Decker pointed to team quickness, speed and shooting ability as strong assets.
Junior varsity games will start at 6 both nights, with the varsity contests slated to begin at 7:45.

Spurs end losing streak

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Larry Kenon and George "Ice" Gervin poured in baskets during the third quarter to power San Antonio from an 11-point deficit to a five-point lead, then helped on defense and from the free-throw line in the final period as the Spurs ended a three-game losing streak and gained some confidence.
"I was really struggling before this game. I thought after my last two games that I had lost my rhythm," said Gervin, the leading scorer in the National Basketball Association with a 29.4 point average, after the Spurs beat the Milwaukee Bucks 116-114 Thursday night.

"Now I think we've got our concentration back. I know I got my rhythm back. Maybe now we can start rolling," Gervin said.

Steinbrenner's pocketbook still open

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Spend, spend, spend... win, win, win. This paraphrase of a philosophy attributed to Franklin D.

Roosevelt's New Deal in the 1930s — "spend, spend, spend... elect, elect, elect" — has become the trademark of the gold-plated New York Yankees.

But the image is not entirely fair to the man who controls the loose purse strings of baseball's most successful franchise, George Steinbrenner III. Another million-dollar arm was added to the Yankees' pitching staff this week — making a total of four — with the signing of free agent Tommy John, late of the Los Angeles Dodgers, for a reported $1.4 million.

"Don't you think there is danger that the Yankees' free-spending policy will upset the balance of power in baseball?" the suave, 35-year-old veteran, was asked at the signing ceremonies at Yankee Stadium.
"Not at all," the articulate pitcher replied. "Baseball attendance this past season was the greatest ever and we had four interesting races throughout the year. I don't think that shows any imbalance."
Meanwhile, Steinbrenner, the ship-building tycoon of Cleveland and Tampa, Fla., who dedicated himself to restoration of the Yankees' diamond dynasty, makes no apologies for his open-pocketbook policy.

When Steinbrenner formed a syndicate to purchase the New York club from the Columbia Broadcasting System in January, 1973, the Yankees, once the game's most powerful force, hadn't won an American League pennant since 1964 or a world championship since 1962.
Within three years, the Yankees had won the American League pennant. Within four, they had begun a skein of World Series championships which has already reached two and is pointing toward the strings put together in the 1920s and 1950s.
When the courts opened the door to the free agent market, Steinbrenner grabbed Catfish Hunter for $3.5 million. Then he added Reggie Jackson ($2.9 million), following with Don Gullett ($2.09 million) and last year Rich Gossage ($2.7 million).
Into the million-dollar pitching staff of Hunter, Gullett and Gossage were woven ailing

Andy Messersmith ($1 million) and Rawly Eastwick ($1.1 million), both later discarded.
Ron Guidry, meanwhile, turned into a surprise $600,000 jewel, and the Yankees added mound insurance by signing Boston's aging Luis Tiant ($600,000).
For the second year, the Yankees drew more than 2 million fans both at home and on the road. Their receipts from ticket sales and concessions were put at $13 million with $3 million added from TV. The Yankees probably cleared $3 million.
It's ludicrous to accuse Steinbrenner of threatening the structure of the game with his financial gymnastics. Montreal owner Charles Bronfman makes enough booze to float all of George's ships. San Diego's Ray Kroc could drown them in hamburgers and the Chicago Cubs' Bill Wrigley could beach them with chewing gum.
It's not that George spends so much, he just spends it better.

Detroit eats up Broncos

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer
PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — English settlers celebrated the first Thanksgiving 357 years ago. Thursday at the Pontiac Silverdome it was Doug English doing most of the celebrating.
He led the Plymouth Rock-hard Detroit defensive line that sacked Denver quarterback Craig Morton six times as the Lions defeated the Broncos, 17-14, in their nationally televised National Football League game.
English, a fifth-year tackle from Texas, where he was an All-American, tackled Morton four times behind the line of scrimmage. He and his linemates — rookie Al "Bubba" Baker, John Woodcock and Dave Purefoy — harrassed Morton continually to key the upset over the defending American Conference champion.

The loss dropped Denver to 8-5 and out of a first-place tie with Oakland in the AFC west. The Broncos next game is at Oakland.
Detroit, at least until Sunday, climbed out of a tie with Chicago for the cellar of the central division of the National Conference. The Lions, who have won four of their last six, lifted their record to 5-8.
"Doug English got a game ball," said Detroit Coach Monte Clark. "He was captain today, indicating what I think of him."
The sacks lifted Detroit's league-leading total to 48.
Denver gained 128 yards rushing and 105 passing. It was the first time in seven games the Broncos didn't go over 300 yards.
Denver Coach Red Miller was upset.
"We knew we had to win this game," he said. "Now our title chances hinge on what we do against Oakland. The Lions didn't surprise us defensively. We knew what they could do up front and they did it."

Rick Kane and Horace King scored Detroit's touchdowns on plunges in the first and fourth quarters to conclude drives of 90 and 77 yards. Benny Ricardo booted a 19-yard field goal in the third period after a Morton fumble.
Denver's scoring came on a 10-yard pass from Morton to tight end Riley Odoms to tie the game in the first period and a 2-yard run in the third quarter by Wisconsin rookie Larry Canada that gave the Broncos their only lead, 14-10. The Ricardo field goal came on fourth and one at the goal line after Purefoy jarred the ball from Morton and Woodcock recovered at the 19.

Oilers have rematch Sunday

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston, impressive against the top-ranked National Football League clubs but depressive against the lower echelon, has a rematch with the Cincinnati Bengals Sunday amid reports of strife within the Oilers management.
Cincinnati has won only one of 12 games this season, that a solid victory over Houston.
The Oilers have looked like playoff contenders the past two weeks, with victories over strong New England and Miami.
In recent days, however, there have been rumbles of discontent from Coach Bum Phillips because he has not been offered a new contract. His two-year contract expires Jan. 31.
Phillips said recently, "I guess I'm coaching out my option. I don't want to be, but I am."
"I would like to know something. It's not fair to my coaches. If they don't know my situation, they can't make plans of their own," he said.

K.S. "Bud" Adams, owner of the Oilers, answered. "There is no problem between him and me. It is just too early for this to have come up. We have never talked contract until after the season is over. We shouldn't even be discussing it."
The Oilers are now 8-4 for this season and have been solid during the past six games, after a shaky start.

Monday night before a national television audience, Houston dropped the Miami Dolphins, 35-30, as rookie Earl Campbell ran for 199 yards and scored four touchdowns.
The Oilers are expected to be in good physical shape, although offensive guard George Reihner will be sidelined for at least two weeks. Reihner suffered strained knee ligaments in the Miami game.

Magazine writer pans Sooner football

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — It's a pretty sure bet that a lot of Oklahomans are going to be pretty unhappy about an article in the Dec. 5 issue of Esquire magazine.

In fact, the two principles named in the article already have had their say.

The six-page article is entitled "Oklahoma Football: A Powerhouse That Barry Built." It was written by Philip Taubman, identified as a "roving reporter," and outlines the tradition of Oklahoma football as "a college football program grossly out of control, a team and a head coach running away with a university."

Head Coach Barry Switzer was offered a pre-press copy of the story but declined to read it, saying someone already had read him excerpts over the telephone.

"I don't intend to read the rest of it," Switzer said. "Just say that I don't take Esquire."

Dr. William Banowsky, the newly installed president at the university, was even more blunt. "I can only believe the young man who wrote the Esquire article came to Oklahoma to do a job with his mind already made up," Banowsky said. "At least, he spent less than five minutes with me and went away to report that I was cowed."

"It is football madness, with vengeance... an academic institution warped by an athletic team," Taubman's article says. "It is the story of how a football program, when unchecked, can grow into a corrupt and corrupting empire. "It is mainly the story of a head football coach — Barry Switzer — who has become king, not only of his campus but of his state, overshadowing everyone from the university president to the governor."

Although Taubman mentions that Oklahoma is a "reflection of excesses and abuses at other schools," his main thrust centers on Switzer — his personality, recruiting tactics and off-the-field behavior.

"The notion of a balance between academics and athletics has been completely abandoned and these professional football bureaucrats do what they please to enhance their reputation."

Taubman wrote. "They've got a lot of nerve calling it college football."

Taubman spent a week in Oklahoma, traveling with the team to its usual Friday night hideaway in Oklahoma City before a home game and flying with Switzer to several small Texas towns in search of high school football talent.

Switzer is described as "loose, gregarious... engaging, amusing and extremely articulate" in his office and with the media.

The story also touches on Switzer's alleged personal problems last spring with then assistant coach Larry Lacewell, who now is head coach at Arkansas State, and says, "Whether winning or sinning, Barry Switzer is the talk and toast of the state. He is king of Oklahoma."

"When he walks into restaurants, people give up their table for him. When he sets foot in stores, shopkeepers refuse to take payment."

Asked whether he contemplates any legal action over the article, Switzer said, "I haven't even thought about lawsuits or anything at this point. "When they called me, they asked if they could come and write a story about Oklahoma's winning tradition. That's what I thought they were going to write about."

Taubman says that tradition "has always had certain trademarks. A powerful running attack for Oklahoma has produced star backs like Greg Pruitt, Steve Owens, Joe Washington, Horace Ivory, Ellis Peacock and, this year, Billy Sims."

"The Sooners also play tough defense year after year. They always have great depth. Two, sometimes three top players at every position. The kicking game is generally consistent."

"Plus, Oklahoma does one other thing well — it cheats."

Taubman then refers to the three NCAA probation Oklahoma has received since 1955.

As for Banowsky, the article says the university president is "a realist and accepts his fate."

No one in Oklahoma is going to stop Barry Switzer, President Banowsky is cowed, the faculty powerless, and the Board of Regents loves to have the No. 1 football team in the nation."

After reading the article, Banowsky issued a statement saying in part:

"One of the first things I did after becoming president was to talk personally with Mr. Chuck Neinas, commissioner of the Big Eight Conference, regarding the football program.

Evansville tackles demanding schedule

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — After nearly a year without basketball, a year lived under the pall of the air crash that killed the entire University of Evansville basketball squad and coach, Dick Walters says it's time to bury the sorrow.

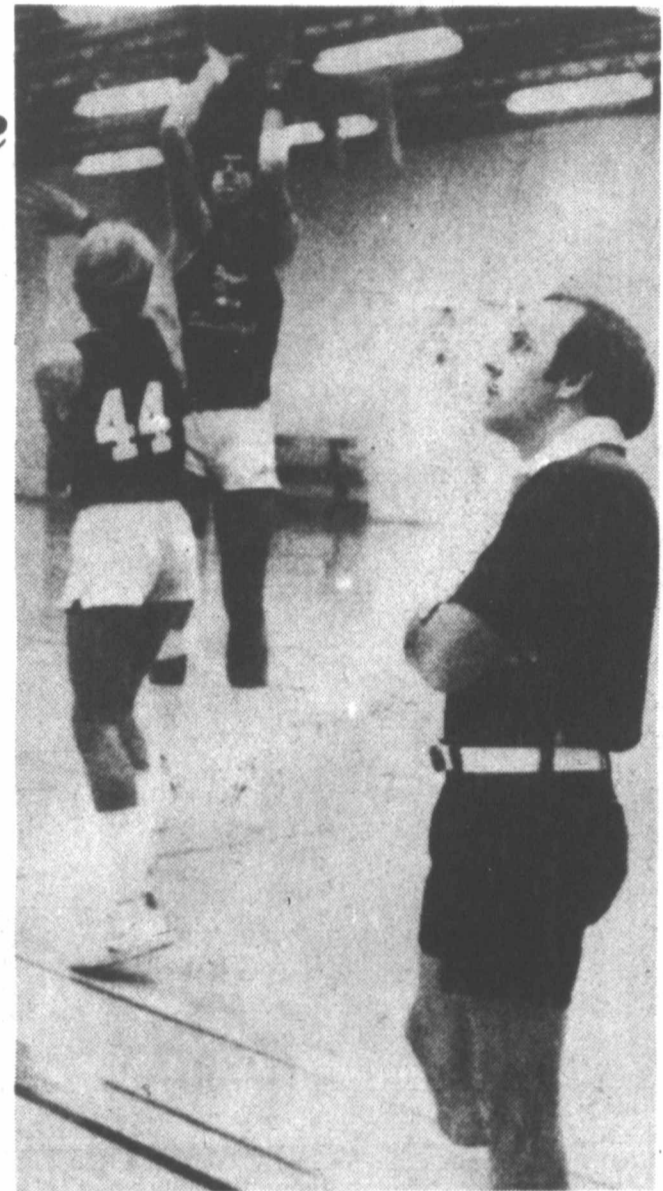

The new coach and a new team begin that mission with a dose of hard work Saturday when they visit Southern Illinois University, a powerhouse in the Missouri Valley Conference.

"We'll never forget what happened here," said Walters, the coach named to rebuild the program. "But, we can't allow ourselves to be buried with it. Life goes on and the greatest tribute we can give to last year's team is to build our program back up as quickly as possible."

The trip to Southern Illinois is the opener of a rugged schedule that is a part of Evansville's effort to build itself as an NCAA Division I team after many years as a Division II power which sent players like Don Buse and Jerry Sloan to the National Basketball Association.

The program began last year, but was halted when the team was destroyed in the crash of a DC-3 just four games into the season. Twenty-nine persons died in the crash.

STAFFORD STEPHENSON, assistant basketball coach at the University of Evansville, watches practice recently. Stephenson missed the Dec. 13 plane crash last year that ended in 29 killed and the entire team and coach lost. Stephenson decided to stay and help coach Dick Walters rebuild after he was denied the top spot. (AP Laserphoto)

Trojans ready to fight Irish

By The Associated Press Southern Cal Coach John Robinson has had no trouble getting his third-ranked Trojans psyched up for Saturday's game against eighth-rated Notre Dame.

"We were embarrassed in South Bend last year and we still have vivid memories of that," said Robinson, referring to the 49-19 pasting the Irish inflicted on the Trojans a year ago. "The tradition of this game is also second to none. Then there's the fact it's on national television."

"There are enough reasons for us to try like heck to play our best game of the year."

The Trojans are 9-1 and will represent the Pacific-10 in the Rose Bowl. They still harbor hopes for a national championship, pointing to a 24-14 decision over second-ranked Alabama earlier this season.

Top-rated Penn State put its unbeaten streak on the line today against 15th-ranked Pittsburgh, 8-2. Penn State is headed for the Sugar Bowl, Pitt for the Tangerine Bowl.

Alabama, off this weekend, closes out its regular season against Southeastern Conference rival Auburn on Dec. 2. A victory will send the Crimson Tide into the Sugar Bowl against Penn State.

UCLA opens tonight

By The Associated Press UCLA, rated No. 2 among the nation's college basketball teams, warms up for its Pacific-10 Conference battles against lightly-regarded Boise State tonight.

Other season openers tonight include No. 6 ranked Texas at Long Beach State, Washington State against Seattle Pacific, San Diego State at Oregon, Cal Poly-Pomona at California, and new Pac-10 members Arizona and Arizona State meeting in a game at Tempe.

The Bruins, 25-3 last year, are rated second in the nation in The Associated Press preseason poll, largely because of four returning starters led by 6-foot-9 David Greenwood and 6-2 Roy Hamilton.

Boise State was 13-14 last year. Coach Bus Connor said he's willing to take his team into forbidding odds at Pauley Pavilion to face UCLA because "our idea is that we want to play a good basketball team to see what we can do."

Saturday night the Bruins should get more competition when they face DePaul at Pauley, where UCLA has a 201-6 record. DePaul was 27-3 last winter but star center Dave Corzine has graduated.

"This is the third time we've opened against UCLA in six years," DePaul Coach Ray Meyer said. "We try to tie it in because a lot of Chicago people go out for the USC-Notre Dame football game and then they can go to our game with UCLA that night."

Texas Coach Abe Lemons' team won the National Invitational Tournament last year and finished 26-5. The Longhorns open against a Long Beach team with a new coach, former Kansas State and Northwestern Coach Tex Winter.

"We're not that good," Lemons said. "How can you be sixth with nobody mentioned on the All-American teams?"

Texas was ambushed in an early season loss at Southern Cal last year. Lemons was asked how he goes about scouting teams like Long Beach State, and he replied: "What difference would it make? It wouldn't change the way we're gonna play them."

Lemons then was asked why most coaches have their opponents scouted.

"Because their daddies did," Lemons said. San Francisco, 17th rated, opens at Cal-Santa Barbara Saturday night. Independent Nevada-Las Vegas, rated 20th, is home against Stetson and San Diego State opens at Oregon State in another Saturday night game.

Nevada-Reno, expected to challenge San Francisco in the West Coast Athletic Conference, plays its opener at Houston Monday. Seattle opens at Washington on Tuesday.

Southern Cal, ranked 13th in the preseason poll, waits until Thursday to begin its season at home against Houston.

Cougars favored to earn host spot in Cotton Bowl

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

The Houston Cougars are 11-point favorites to earn the host role in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day with a victory over the Texas Tech Red Raiders Saturday and the underdog role certainly isn't anything new with Coach Rex Dockery.

"We've been in that position most of the year," said the freshman Red Raider coach who has taken what was expected to be a second division team in the Southwest Conference football chase and made the Red Raiders uncomfortably competitive.

Tech is 6-3 overall and 4-2 in the SWC. Those numbers should serve a warning to Houston, which is fifth-ranked in the nation in The Associated Press poll.

The Red Raiders boast the leading rusher in the nation, former tight end James Hadnot who has rumbled for 1,189 yards—an average of 132 steps per game.

The Cougars are looking for their second Cotton Bowl trip in three years. Notre Dame will be the guest team.

In other games Saturday, Texas was a 13-point pick over Baylor at Waco, Texas A&M was a prohibitive favorite over Texas Christian at College Station, and Arkansas was a 7-point nod over Southern Methodist in Dallas.

Houston has had two weeks to get ready for the Red Raiders and Coach Bill Yeaman pronounces the team in perhaps the best shape of the season.

Senior quarterback Danny Davis, who led the Cougars to their first Cotton Bowl in 1976, is again the catalyst for Houston after sitting out a year with an injury.

"This game is what we have worked for starting in August," says Davis. "I don't think we'll be overconfident."

Texas, which has lost only to Houston, is waiting in the wings should the Cougars stumble at Lubbock.

Coach Fred Akers and the Longhorns have already accepted a Sun Bowl bid to play Maryland but pointed out: "This race isn't over yet."

Rice, which will have an off week to prepare for Houston in the final game of the season, shocked Baylor 24-10 last Saturday, showing the Owls cannot be disregarded.

Houston can earn at least a tie for the SWC title with a win over Tech.

Houston's first year in the SWC playing for the championship was 1976 after long years as an independent.

Best acting done during football

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Isn't it high time the people who select the Emmy awards woke up to the fact that some of the finest acting on TV these days takes place during the Sunday afternoon and Monday night pro football games?

For sheer emotional impact, few performances can match the Lear-like rage of a 280-pound linebacker accused by a kerchief-tossing official of having mugged the kicker, or the look of utter despair, anguish and torment that transfixed the features of a wide receiver who has just dropped a pass in the end zone.

John Gielgud's "Hamlet," they say, was a theatrical landmark in portraying the pathos of indecision. His "to be or not to be" was everyman coping with the moral dilemma of choice while suffering the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune.

But that was before tragedian John McVay emoted before an audience of millions his weekly weepy classic of trying to decide whether to go with Joe Pizarcik or Jerry Golsteyn at quarterback for the New York Giants.

McVay's "Hamlet," almost schizoid in its indecisiveness and constant plot turn-arounds, could also qualify for best story line in the soap opera category, although the Washington Redskins offer competition with a plot that calls on soap addicts to choose between the aging Billy Kilmer and the slumping superstar Joe Theismann as quarterback.

Since the "Forsythe Saga" and the "Pallisers" at long last reached their final tear-stained episodes, no continuing drama series can match the dramatic effects on display week after week when the pigskin pros are dominating the tube.

If you thought Jolyon Forsythe could suffer, you should have seen Colt quarterback Bert Jones playing with a separated shoulder while throwing bullets into the end zone past the hypnotized Washington defense.

Love scenes, with parental guidance recommended, are torridly enacted in the end zones by consenting adults in an orgy of fondling, embracing and bussing everytime a touchdown is scored. In the case of a pass, these are usually preceded by the quintessentially macho gesture of downing the ball, slamming it into the turf with a cool look of soulful arrogance, or, if the receiver is as surprised as the fans, a toothless grin of unalloyed joy.

Emmy selectors, however, should be on the lookout for a gridiron Gielgud like the imitable and still irreplaceable Broadway Joe Namath or the unforgettable Gene "Big Daddy" Lipscomb or, among current performers, Ed "Too-Tall" Jones, all versatile entertainers who can fake an injury, feign innocence at a clipping penalty, weep for a squashed opponent, laugh at a fumble or other adversity, rage at an official, intimidate a linesman, sneer at an ungrateful crowd, project humility amid adulation, valor amidst violence, grace among grossness, and perform any histrionic feat within the gamut of a professional wrestler without surrendering credibility.

Carter runs mile in eight minutes

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Attention, joggers! President Carter is an eight-minute-mile man.

For those unfamiliar with the jargon of jogging — and there are still a few, despite ambulatory contrary evidence along streets and byways — being able to routinely jog one mile in eight minutes is considered a very creditable performance.

The more so when the runner is 54 years old, as is Carter.

The president, who adopted this popular form of exercise quite recently, is taking it very seriously.

For example, he had federal workers measure the circumference of the oval driveway around the South Lawn of the White House.

It proved to be a quarter-mile circuit, which simplifies his self-timing. Four times around and he's jogged a mile.

Carter, who customarily jogs at least eight laps, finds it takes him about 16 minutes to complete two miles. Or eight minutes a mile.

The president likes to run on the grass around the lawn but uses the pavement after dark lest he sprain his ankle on a hummock of grass.

Carter's personal physician, Rear Adm. William M. L'Abbe, apparently would be happier if the president stayed away from the grass.

"It's much safer to jog on the pavement," said L'Abbe.

The doctor is a jogger himself. He runs at midday around the Ellipse, just south of the White House.

Carter jogs about three times a week at the White House, his schedule preventing a daily stint. On his many weekend visits to Camp David, Md., however, he runs each day along the paths and nature trails that crisscross his mountaintop hideaway.

Stuart Eizenstat, the president's domestic policy assistant, may be the first member of Carter's senior staff to join the ranks of regular joggers.

Mrs. Eizenstat has been jogging for two or three months — and she's urging her husband to do likewise.

One thing is certain: Eizenstat doesn't need the exercise as part of a weight-reduction program; he's close to rail thin.

The Carters may be the closest thing America has to reigning royalty — but, oh, what a difference from more formal types of royalty.

Take the two young sons of Morocco's King Hassan, who accompanied their father to Washington on a state visit earlier this month.

When Amy Carter invited the 8-year-old prince to play with her, the king intervened with a decree that the child must stick to the announced schedule for the visit and reject the invitation.

The president himself confided privately, and with a note of wonderment in his voice, that Hassan insisted his older son, who is 15, sit in on "even the most sensitive" discussions.

Names in the news

DETROIT (AP) — Leon Spinks seems to dent fenders as frequently as opponents' chins.

The former heavyweight boxing champion was ticketed for improper use of a lane, a misdemeanor, Tuesday night after his auto was involved in a minor, two-car smash-up on a Detroit freeway.

State police at the scene said Spinks did not have a valid driver's license in his possession. No one was injured in the crash and Spinks, although ticketed, was not arrested.

Witnesses told authorities Spinks' car, a 1978 Mercury Cougar, bumped a Lincoln-Continental headed in the same direction. Spinks is a Detroit resident.

Spinks has been arrested three times for driving without a license, records show.

OTTAWA (AP) — Guitarist Keith Richards' legal woes roll on.

The Rolling Stones star received one year's probation in October after a heroin possession conviction, but Justice Minister Otto Lang announced Tuesday he will seek court permission to appeal the light sentence.

When Richards' probation was announced Oct. 24, Judge Lloyd Graburn ordered the rock star to give a benefit concert for the blind in Toronto.

Lang said his decision to appeal followed a request by Attorney-General Roy McMurtry of Ontario, who said there was public concern the sentence was not sufficient to help deter young Canadians from using heroin.

Foreign briefs

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Thousands of conductors, signalmen and ticket agents seeking higher wages defied the military government's anti-strike law Tuesday and shut down three commuter lines of the government railway.

A million commuters had to find other transportation.

A telephone call to the newspaper La Nacion claimed leftist Montonero guerrillas affiliated with the strikers exploded a bomb that did extensive damage to parked cars and windows of homes near Constitution Station during the night. No injuries were reported.

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Foreign Minister R. F. Botha goes to New York this weekend to clarify South Africa's position on the independence of South-West Africa in talks with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

Waldheim is to report to the Security Council by Saturday on progress toward a U.N. plan for the independence of the mineral-rich territory, including elections supervised by the United Nations.

South Africa is going ahead with plans to hold its own election in the territory Dec. 4-8 but agreed to regard it as somewhat of a non-binding referendum and to prepare for a U.N. election next year. But the Security Council rejected this compromise.

ROME (AP) — World Food Program officials appealed for 250,000 tons of food aid for Vietnam after an inspection of the southern provinces found more than a million acres of the best rice land still under water seven weeks after a typhoon caused the Mekong River to flood its banks.

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt is to receive $180 million in aid from the United States to finance sewage and housing projects in Cairo and the industrial center of Helwan, the newspaper Al-Ahram reported today.

The governor of Cairo, Saad Mamoun, said $100 million will be spent on sewage projects in Cairo and Giza, and $80 million will be spent for housing units in Helwan, 10 miles northeast of Cairo.

Mexico City (AP) — King Juan Carlos of Spain and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo have signed agreements on extradition, air transport and cooperation in the fields of industry, energy and mining.

The king and Queen Sofia have been in Mexico since Friday.

Houses serve as savings account

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A house is to live in, but, an economic analyst points out, it also serves as a savings account and a line of credit as well.

In numerous instances, he notes, families are making use of inflated equities by refinancing their homes to obtain money for other goods and services, thus vastly extending their borrowing power.

And simultaneously, perhaps, frustrating efforts of the Federal Reserve to cool the economy.

As a consequence of mortgage refinancing, rising interest rates have lost some of their effectiveness in cooling inflation, says Arnold Moskowitz of Dean Witter Reynolds, the securities firm.

The practice of tapping home equity had been rather rare until the 1970s, partly because of fears lingering from the Great Depression of the 1930s. But homeowners have become more daring, as have lenders.

Thus, says Moskowitz, housing joins credit cards as a new saving-spending medium against which one can conveniently borrow, in the process causing an enormous expansion of the domestic credit base.

Home equity is not the only reason for credit ease. The urge to borrow has also been stimulated by savings accounts that function as checking accounts. But housing equity is huge: it may be as high as $1 trillion.

More and more, says Moskowitz, mortgage debt is assuming the traits of short-term installment debt, which includes credit cards. He explains:

"Installment debt differs from long-term mortgage debt in that it is viewed as a short-term obligation to be paid down at least in part during recessions, whereas mortgage debt is relatively permanent."

But, he says, the lines separating them are becoming indistinct, especially with the advent of open-end mortgaging, which almost automatically permits a homeowner to borrow on accumulated equity.

Says Moskowitz: "Consumer spending may not be robust in 1979 but it should expand moderately, with mortgage debt continuing to substitute for consumer installment debt."

He also observes that the consumer is probably in a stronger buying position than might be realized from looking at the savings, which in 1977 had fallen to 5.1 percent from 7.5 percent in 1967.

Because of the rapid buildup in home equity — increases in market value have exceeded inflation — the "new adjusted savings rate" proposed by Moskowitz would be 8 percent.

So long as those enormous increases in home equity can be drawn on, they too are savings, he maintains.

For You, who, when given a choice, always select the best.
