Assassination film adds 'new evidence'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A film technician contends a seven-second strip of color film taken minutes before the John F. Kennedy assassination is "important new evidence" showing more than one person was responsible for the president's death.

Technical Robert Groden of Hope Lawn, N.J., who performed "photo-enhancement" on the film, enlarging individual frames to more than 1,000 times their original size, was present Sunday when a group called the Assassination Information Bureau screened the film for representatives of the media.

The bureau consists of critics of the official Warren Commission, which concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone when he shot Kennedy from a sixth-floor window of the Texas School Book Depository in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

Groden said the film "is proof and important new evidence that someone else was on the sixth floor and that witnesses who said then (in 1963) they saw someone other than Oswald are not crazy."

The Dallas Morning News published a nine-frame sequence of copyright pictures in its Sunday editions. In each of the frames, a faint, light-colored area in the left side of the window changes shape from frame to frame, while a similar area in the right portion of the window remains nearly stationary.

"There is another person moving in the next set of windows," Groden told The Associated Press. "He (the figure) is wearing a bright red shirt."

Mideast peace talks

Egypt said offering new deal

JERUSALEM (AP) — Egypt is offering two concessions in exchange for Israeli acceptance of a timetable for Palestinian self-rule in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank of the Jordan River, the Jerusalem Post's Cairo correspondent reported today.

The report said Egypt is prepared to extend by three months the deadline for Israel's preliminary withdrawal from the Sinai and also is willing to join Israel in formulating a peace treaty provision that would "insure against any collapse of the treaty in case the autonomy plan for the West Bank proves objectively impossible to realize."

The paper said its information came from a "well-placed source who has access to President Anwar Sadat" and who was speaking "on the highest authority."

Israeli officials said the proposals had not been received by the government.

"Once such an idea will be put forward through official channels, it will be discussed," one official said.

Israel has vetoed Egypt's demand that the peace treaty include a timetable for Palestinian self-rule. It contends such a linkage would allow Egypt to back out of the treaty if the timetable is not fulfilled.

The Israeli Cabinet, in its regular Sunday meeting, reaffirmed its position that there is no need to send its negotiators back to Washington yet. Cabinet spokesman Arieh Naor said the government is waiting to hear Egypt's position on the U.S. draft peace treaty. The draft, accepted by Israel last week, does not include a specific timetable for implementing Palestinian self-rule.

China undergoes power struggle

By JOHN RODERICK
AP Special Correspondent
TOKYO (AP) — Teng Hsiao-ping, apparently riding a wave of public and Communist Party support, is expected to replace Hua Kuo-feng as China's premier, but it is not clear yet whether Hua will also lose the chairmanship of the Chinese Communist Party, the top job in the Chinese hierarchy.

The new power struggle among the top Chinese leaders was revealed last week in a barrage of pro-Teng wall posters in Peking that sharply attacked policies of the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung. The poster campaign was followed by a series of weekend demonstrations by Teng supporters which appeared to have party blessings.

Teng, twice resurrected from political exile after being purged by Communist Party radicals, acknowledged for the first time Sunday that Hua faced demotion.

Kyodo, the Japanese news agency, said he told Ryosaku Sasaki, leader of the Japanese Democratic Socialist Party, at a meeting Sunday that the party politburo was considering revising two of its decisions made in April 1976.

Carter asks cities to fight inflation

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
AP Urban Affairs Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — President Carter appealed to city officials from the 50 states today to join the battle against inflation, warning that next year's federal budget will contain "little money for new initiatives" in urban areas and elsewhere.

The president was also scheduled to fly to Salt Lake City later to receive a family unity presentation from the Mormon Church before returning to the White House tonight.

In his text for an appearance at the annual meeting of the National League of Cities, Carter argued that "the future of our cities is at stake" in the inflation fight.

To emphasize his point, he said inflation by next year will have eaten away one-third of the purchasing power of the $6.2 billion in general revenue sharing money that has been sent to cities by the federal government since 1972.

Anonymous graves may await Jones' followers

By CHRIS CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. (AP) — Anonymous graves or cremation may await many of the more than 900 Americans who followed the Rev. Jim Jones to their deaths in Guyana, government officials say.

The Air Force finished bringing all the decomposed bodies back to their homeland Sunday, but after four days of work, the FBI and military experts had positively identified only 25 of the 512 bodies they had fingerprinted.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Jeff Deterich said the government has not decided whether to cremate unclaimed bodies, but he added, "Eventually, if a large number of unclaimed bodies remain in Dover, it may well be we will be forced to consider that possibility."

This Air Force base, site of the largest mortuary on the East Coast, does not have a crematorium.

The body of Jones, the leader of the Peoples Temple, who led his followers into a grisly, suicidal death rite at the cult's commune in Guyana, was one of the first identified by FBI fingerprint experts. In Richmond, Ind., a funeral director said Jones' in-laws wanted his body cremated along with his wife and two of their children and their ashes scattered into the Atlantic Ocean.

The State Department said no arrangements had been made for disposing of Jones' body.

Meanwhile, the FBI said it planned to closely examine to day a letter that an airman found on Jones' body here Friday. FBI spokesman Tom Coll said agents already had read the letter, but were not yet certain the handwriting was that of Jones. He refused to divulge the contents.

Violence reported in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — More scattered violence was reported from provincial towns in Iran as employees of the central bank and other government agencies returned to work after a 24-hour general strike called by foes of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

Pars, the official Iranian news agency, reported at least nine persons killed and 30 wounded Sunday in Gorgan, 185 miles east of Tehran; eight branch banks burned in Isfahan, 240 miles south of the capital; tear gas used to break up an anti-government demonstration in Rezaizayeh, and a march by thousands in the holy city of Mashhad, near the Soviet border, protesting the shooting of seven persons last week.

The strike Sunday was called by Moslem religious leaders to keep pressure on the shah, and opposition politicians supported their call. But it appeared to have little effect on the nation's economy and did not cause major disruptions in public services.

Bakeries and food stores were open despite the strike call.

Clements marks debut with 'a little crow'

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Bill Clements could afford to relax and engage in some gentle ribbing during the opening day of the 10th annual Republican Governors' Association Conference.

"I brought a little crow with me," he jokingly told a national political columnist who had predicted a Clements' defeat at the hands of Democrat John Hill earlier this month. Clements' victory dramatically ended a 104-year-old Democratic stay in the governor's mansion.

Clements and his wife, Rita, made their formal debut as Texas' governor-elect and first lady-to-be during a Sunday night reception that was also attended by two of her famous Virginia neighbors — Sen.-elect John Warner and his wife, actress Elizabeth Taylor, plump but still alluring.

Clements' Virginia estate, Wexford, which was built for John F. Kennedy in the early 1960s, is bordered on three sides by the Warner country home.

Clements used this historic setting of colonial Williamsburg to continue his attack on President Carter.

"I made an issue of Mr. Carter during my election and I plan to continue making an issue of him," said Clements. "His policies are clearly not in the best interest of Texas."

Clements joined 16 other governors or governors-elect in Williamsburg for three days of conferences on subjects ranging from taxes and finances to staff and office organization.

But as the conference's host, Virginia Gov. John Dalton, noted: "I'm sure the 1980 presidential race will come up in some of the conversations."

Among those being mentioned as possible GOP presidential prospects in attendance are Illinois Gov. Jim Thompson and Howard Baker of Tennessee.

Another Czar

"Inflation-fighters plan to bolster their effort with a high-caliber 'Czar.'" This was the lead line in a short article in the Wall Street Journal. It revealed that Carter's planners seek a prestigious non-government figure to administer the voluntary wage-price standards coming soon.

An administration official was quoted as saying, "We need someone who can cajole, encourage, engage in moral persuasion and do arm-twisting. It's an awful job."

If these "inflation-fighters" were related to an army in action, we would see their efforts directed to attacking their own supply lines. It is difficult to believe that if administration officials are competent and have done any research, they would not know where the inflation enemy resides.

When they talk about price and wage standards for the private sector, they must be using a ploy to draw attention away from the real source of the inflation problem: government itself. If the problem were assessed correctly they would be saying, "We have met the enemy and it is us."

We will agree with one part of the above quote, but not its objective: It would be an awful job to cut government and its expenditures down to the size needed to bring about fiscal responsibility. If the decline of the dollar is to be stopped and inflation halted, that is the only area where arm-twisting will bring any real results.

Anything less is just so much political window dressing. The Journal article stated that optimists about anti-inflation success are scarce. This also leads us to believe that administration officials are aware that they are moving in the wrong direction.

It was mentioned that two ways of applying pressure (on business) was being considered. One was to certify companies as anti-inflation compliers before bidding on a contract. The other was to check on big winners. Officials expect court suits in either case.

This was the extent of the report on the idea of bringing in a "czar" to oversee the arm-twisting in the private sector.

It all boils down to the fact that political expediency will continue to rule and, although we know the source of the inflation disease, only the symptoms will be dealt with.

The wage-price reaction to the substance of inflation will not be curtailed by "voluntary" compliance after a "proper" amount of arm-twisting takes place. The rises will not be halted even if actual controls are brought in as a "last resort."

As long as printing press money is floated around the nation and the world and government spending is not curtailed, inflation will continue to escalate.

We are in an economic slide toward oblivion and yet political expediency still rules the nation.

More than arm-twisting is needed even though it be done by the people, for the people and to the political establishment. Waiting for more than rhetoric from politicians is only an exercise in futility.

The predatory EPA

Like a cat playing with mice before the actual kill, the Environmental Protection Agency roughs up industry, lets it alone for a bit, then grabs again.

The petroleum industry was forced to produce lead-free gasoline in order to keep from destroying the EPA-mandated pollution control devices now on many cars.

Prior to the advent of the Clean Air Act, lead was used in all gasoline to boost the octane and to reduce abnormal "knocking." It is still used in the regular gasoline used by older cars.

In order to boost the octane rating of the lead-free gasoline, the Ethyl Corp. has been selling an additive known as MMT. This was not considered a perfect substitute for the lead additives but it was an assist.

The EPA has now turned down a request by Ethyl to continue to sell the additive. The federal agency said that the company has "failed to demonstrate that the additive would not cause cars to exceed emissions standards."

We note here the device so often used by the authoritarian state: forcing a victim to prove the negative. Generally this is all but impossible. Before the EPA is allowed to damage this industry why not let it prove that MMT is actually adding anything to the atmosphere which is damaging the health of the public, or the removal of MMT would be cost-effective in battling pollution.

This action by the EPA can do several things to damage automobile owners. It can increase the price - spread between regular and lead-free gas. It could cause a greater scarcity. It will have an adverse effect on auto engine performance. This last could add to car emissions and thus be self-defeating.

By increasing the present price spread between regular much more incentive for drivers to modify their cars so that they can burn regular gas. Even though using regular gas destroys an expensive pollution control device, many consumers are flaunting the law and are unconcerned over destruction of this piece of equipment. There will be much more of this illegal use.

The Ethyl Corp., which also makes the lead additive being phased out under federal orders, says, "The move has impaired the ability of the petroleum industry to provide sufficient quantities of adequate quality gasoline, has required the use of additional imported crude oil and has penalized the driving public."

Ethyl claims that its MMT additive "has no significant effect on the ability of vehicles to meet prescribed emission standards."

The nation's largest maker of unleaded gas said it was "disappointed that the EPA has elected to ban its (MMT) use on the basis of inconclusive evidence." The oil company expressed confidence that a cost-benefit analysis would show that banning MMT is not in the best interest of the economy or the environment.

Will the EPA listen to reason? Just about as quickly as the cat will let the mouse get clear out of its clutches.

Labor in a free society

By TIMOTHY ESHLEMAN

Life is full of desires and wants. From birth until death one strives to satisfy many needs and desires. Labor is the process by which a worker obtains the goods and service needed for survival and desired for enjoyment.

In a free society, an individual is free to labor as he wishes. The essence of the free society is to leave everybody totally free to act creatively as he pleases to let anyone and everyone exchange their goods and services with whomever they choose on whatever terms can be mutually agreed upon, to let the fruits of one's labor be one's own, and to limit government - society's agent of force - to the protection of everyone equally in these freedoms.

As a worker is free to labor according to his talents and wishes, his interests and those of others are advanced. Who in society - the individual or the state - can better determine what is in the best interest of a worker? Naturally, each individual alone can determine what his best interests are and should be free to act accordingly.

A worker, free from restraints against his productive energies, may develop new skills. One person's ability may make possible for him accomplishments not equally attainable by others. Each person may develop an area of expertise or specialization for which he is best suited.

The division of labor, resulting from expertise and specialization requires cooperation and joint effort on many tasks. The cooperative action of those with varying proficiencies is more efficient and productive than the isolated action of self-sufficient individuals. Just as a myriad of tasks to be performed exists, there are workers with varying skills to perform them.

Furthermore, the division of labor makes possible technological improvement. As the division of labor becomes more advanced, observant and inventive men notice that certain identical, repetitive tasks may be performed by precision machines. Such machines allow these tasks to be completed more effectively and efficiently.

Everyone, in an unhampered market economy, is free to accept the best opportunity available. One seeking work may choose the job which provides the best return for the services he offers. A prospective employer may choose those workers who offer the best services for the wages he has to pay.

What a worker receives for his labor will be determined by what others are willing to exchange for it. Competition among workers ensures that no one is paid too much, while competition among employers makes sure that no one is paid too little.

Exploitation of one individual by another in a free system is impossible. No person or group could monopolize any activity so long as there is freedom for all to enter the market. Where there is free entry there is competition and this competition, among both those who demand labor and those who supply labor, would make exploitation impossible.

However, should an individual or group be granted legal monopolistic powers in the labor market, coercion and exploitation would then be possible. If the exploiters of labor - the workers - are granted monopolistic power i.e., through labor unions, they would be in a position to command benefits greater than those they would receive in free exchange. If the demanders of labor - employers - obtain monopolistic power then the workers could be exploited.

In a free society, involuntary unemployment is inconceivable. There is always more work to be done than workers are able to do. Full employment occurs when an employer is able to exchange the wage he has available to pay for the services offered by a worker. The terms must be mutually beneficial or no deal will be made. If no deal is made, unemployment will result; but this is voluntary unemployment in that one party has chosen not to accept the other's offer.

However, when the market is not permitted to function freely, unemployment must result. "Unemployment is a phenomenon of the partially rigged market." As governments and unions interfere with the market, artificially raising the cost of labor higher than the price normally set by the market i.e., higher than employers are able to pay, fewer workers will be hired, even though their services are still needed.

Even when technological advance makes possible increased production with less labor, workers will not be left idle. While initially displacing some workers, technology reduces the cost of goods. With their increased spending power, resulting from lower costs, consumers may demand other commodities which, previously, they had been unable to afford. The displaced workers, after readjustment, may find employment in the production of goods the demand for which has now expanded. The free economy provides work for all who want to work while providing a greater supply of goods and services.

But for this to occur, labor mobility is needed. If pressure groups or the state restricts workers' freedom of entry into labor markets, unemployment must again result. The workers displaced by technology are prohibited from entering new areas of work.

For the free society to endure, all individuals must be free to labor as they choose. All must be at liberty to creatively explore and perfect their abilities. Only as men are permitted to labor freely may they realize their greatest potentials.

Today in history

Today is Monday, Nov. 27, the 331st day of 1978. There are 34 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1942, during World War II, 10 French cruisers, 28 destroyers and 14 submarines to prevent them from falling into the hands of the Nazis.

On this date: In the year 610, the Roman emperor, Maurice, and his five sons were beheaded at Calcedon in Asia Minor.

In 1703, a coastal storm in England took an estimated 8,000 lives.

In 1910, the world's largest railway terminal up to that time, Pennsylvania Station in New York, was opened.

In 1940, during World War II, Germany annexed the French province of Lorraine.

In 1945, Gen. George Marshall was named a special U.S. envoy to China to try to end hostilities between the Nationalists and the Communists.

Congress rises again

By DON GRAFF

It has or will have, when and if completed according to plan-16-foot ceilings, elaborate restaurant and recreation facilities and a pricetag of $85 million. Or maybe $113 million. Or possibly $135 million.

It is the new Senate office building, construction of which promises to set a new high for federal government spending on its own housing.

It is an issue in Washington-even the Senate prefers putting off $54 million in next-step construction funds until after the November elections. It is also a symbol, a particularly flamboyant one, of a significant shift in the balance of federal government powers.

The building is needed, Capitol Hill leaders argue, to accommodate the burgeoning congressional infrastructure. Whether staff, or even senators, need be accommodated in quite such Caracallan splendor is a point for argument. But there's no arguing the fact of staff growth.

In the current decade, congressional employment has increased by two-thirds - from some 11,000 in 1970 to 18,370 by latest count. The increase includes personal aides for senators and representatives, greatly expanded committee staffs and personnel for such new congressional support services as the Congressional Budget Office.

There is more to it than routine empire building and the natural tendency of government to multiply, although a little of that is certainly involved. It is a consequence of congressional determination to equip itself to deal with the executive branch of government on an equal footing, developing its own sources of information and expertise independent of the executive bureaucracy.

And it is a major factor in the development of what commentators have taken to referring to as the "imperial" Congress, successor to the Johnson-Nixon "imperial" presidencies and source of much frustration for the down-home presidency of Jimmy Carter.

Congress, in effect, has seized power in Washington. Business Week magazine notes in a current analysis. This, rather than Carter's status as a Washington outsider, largely explains the president's difficulties in getting congressional action on his programs. As insider Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., observes, under prevailing circumstances a synthesis of Lincoln, Washington and the second Roosevelt taking the presidential oath in January 1977 would have had rough going with this Congress.

The balance in the American system of separation of powers has shifted before. In fact, it is constantly changing. Congress was dominant following the Civil War and, to a lesser degree, after World War I. The present congressional resurgence reverses a trend toward executive dominance going back to FDR's New Deal.

And it can be argued that it is actually a righting of the balance, beneficial for both the government and the governed. Congress for too many years was outmanned, outresearched, outcomputerized in dealing with the executive establishment.

Today, with its vastly expanded staff and facilities, Congress has its own resources. It is in a position to act in cooperation with rather than in reaction to the administration in charting national policy.

So far, however, that is not what has been happening. The problem is that while Congress may have seized power, it is not structured to exercise it effectively. Congress is essentially a collection of independent power centers which, without the strong controlling hand of a Lyndon Johnson, tend to head off in their own directions. It can thwart administration leadership, but it cannot provide cohesive leadership itself.

The consequence is the current state of government by stalemate-stalled energy, tax reform and government reorganization bills and confusion in foreign policy.

The new balance may eventually work out for the better, particularly if post-election reforms in congressional procedures now being discussed are carried through. But to make it really work, Congress is going to have to find its own balance.

A second opinion

By WILLIAM STEIF

On Jan. 22, 1977, Robert M. Sontag, 54, felt a sharp pain as he waited on a customer at his auto parts store in Torrance, Calif.

The pain, he recalls, was "in the middle of my chest, up high." He sat down, "felt the pain radiating out to my arms," and called his wife to his side.

"If this doesn't go away in three minutes," he told her, "I'm going to the hospital." It didn't and he did.

"I think I've had a heart attack," he announced at the admission desk of the Little Company of Mary Hospital.

Sontag's diagnosis was correct. After the acute stage was over and Sontag was home, his cardiologist gave him a treadmill test and then an angiogram, checking the condition of the main arteries carrying blood to his heart. In late March Sontag's cardiologist told him one artery was completely occluded - that is, closed - and that two others were 75 to 80 percent occluded.

"He scheduled me for heart bypass surgery in 48 hours," Sontag recalls.

That's an operation in which leg veins are patched into the heart to provide new blood channels. There's one chance in 50 of dying on the operating table; no one can say how long the new arteries will last; such an operation usually costs more than $10,000.

Sontag decided to get a second opinion from a cardiologist at Cedar - Sinai Hospital, Los Angeles. The second cardiologist doubted that Sontag's arterial disease had closed his arteries to the extent the first doctor thought. He recommended further tests. They upheld the second cardiologist and Sontag was put into a heart rehabilitation program and began dieting. Today he's back at work, feels marvelous, but adds: "I'm watching myself."

His is a classic case of the value of the second opinion in medicine.

The Health Care Financing

Administration, an arm of the Health, Education and Welfare Department, has embarked on a campaign to enlighten Americans facing non-emergency surgery on the worth of second opinions. In HCFA's view, this is a way to hold down medical costs, which are climbing at more than 12 percent yearly. But from your viewpoint, it also means better medicine.

The reason, HCFA says, is that medicine is not an exact science. Doctors, like all people, sometimes disagree. Most physicians know this, but - as Sontag says - "many people still think of their doctor as a god."

Doctors are not gods, says Dr. George Crile Jr., a surgeon at the Cleveland Clinic, in his new book, "Surgery: Your Choices, Your Alternatives."

Dr. Crile would outlaw the phrase, "unnecessary surgery." He thinks "inappropriate surgery" is better and cites its three major categories:

- Such operations as tonsillectomies, primarily a matter of medical fashion.

- Operations inappropriate for the patient. For example, a man, 75, who has rectal cancer and isn't in good condition "probably has a better chance with treatment other than radical surgery," Dr. Crile says.

- Operations for which the surgeon is not appropriately trained; he cites hospitals outside Boston that have mortality rates 10 times that of major Boston hospitals for the same kind of surgery.

A congressional subcommittee headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., has estimated that almost 2.4 million surgical procedures were "unnecessary" in 1974 and put a price tag of nearly $4 billion on those operations.

HCFA, working with dozens of medical societies, others professional groups and insurance firms, has set up 162 referral centers that will send patients to doctors for second opinions. Local Social Security and welfare offices also will direct patients to sources for second opinions.

Tax breaks approved for older homeowners

(First of 3 parts)
By John Barnes

Conscious of the spreading tax revolt and the special burden high taxes impose on older Americans, Congress gave homeowners 55 and older a break in the 1978 Revenue Act.

The new law exempts from taxes up to $100,000 in profits from the sale or exchange of a house that was the taxpayer's principal residence for at least three of the past five years. This tax break can be used only once in a lifetime.

The exemption applies to home sales on or after July 26 of this year.

People 65 or older may still qualify for tax breaks on homes sold before that date. But the following conditions must be met:

- You must have been at least 65 on the date of sale.
- For five of the preceding eight years, you must have owned the home and used it as your principal residence.

Neither you nor your spouse can have used the exclusion before.

If you sold your home for $35,000 or less, the entire gain is tax-free. If the home sold for more than $35,000, you can exclude a portion of the gain equal to the ratio of $35,000 to the actual sale price.

In other words, divide $35,000 by the price for which you sold your home. Then multiply that quotient by the profit you earned. The result is your tax-free profit.

Let's say you sold your home for $41,350 and earned a profit of $11,850. Divide $41,350 into $35,000 for a result of 84.6 percent. Multiplying 84.6 percent by $11,850 yields a tax-free profit of $10,025.

That leaves a taxable gain of $1,825, the difference between $11,850 and $10,025. On Schedule D (Form 1040), enter that amount on line six of part 11 in the last column to the right.

Find out more about special tax breaks for older Americans in the 1979 edition of "Cut Your Own Taxes and Save." Send $1.50 (tax deductible) plus 50 cents postage and handling to "Cut Your Own Taxes and Save" in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Dept. T, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

You may still be able to postpone the capital gains tax on any profit you earned from selling or exchanging your principal residence and buying or building another.

But you can do so only if you buy or begin construction on another home within 18 months before or after the sale. If building a home, you must occupy and use it within two years of the sale.

You don't escape the capital gains tax by this method; you simply defer it until you sell the new house. Of course, you can keep "trading up" until you are old enough to take advantage of the 55-and-over tax break. (NEXT: Capital gains)

Accused to defend himself

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An Amarillo man condemned to die for murdering a 19-year-old housewife will defend himself as jury selection begins today in his second capital murder trial.

Samuel Christopher Hawkins is accused of slaying 12-year-old Ronda Keys in February 1976. She was abducted from her Amarillo home and her body dumped in a culvert along the Potter-Randall county line.

Judge Jerry Shackelford, who will preside at the trial moved from Amarillo, agreed Hawkins could represent himself as long as an attorney is available for advice.

Seiden Hale of Amarillo will be present, but the judge said Hale cannot participate unless Hawkins requests his assistance.

The defendant had earlier fired two attorneys.

Hawkins was convicted earlier this year of the May 1977 murder of Abbe Hamilton of Borger, Texas.

Dreaming not essential-experts

AUSTIN, Texas (Sp1) — About 30 years ago, a sleep researcher at the University of Chicago discovered that our eyes move rapidly while we dream - as if we actually watch the action in our heads.

Today, scientists have proved that we do, and have gone on to describe in detail that part of our sleep called Rapid Eye Movement or REM sleep. Questions they are still asking, however, revolve around a central theme: How important is it for us to dream?

Dr. David Cohen, an associate professor of psychology at The University of Texas at Austin, is an authority on REM sleep. His book "Sleep and Dreaming: Origins, Nature and Functions" will be published by Pergamon Press (Oxford, England) next spring.

He can tell you what kinds of dreams most people have, what your body is doing while you dream, how your sleep differs while you dream and when you're not dreaming. He can even tell you what benefits you might gain from dreaming and that your dreams are significant. But, he, and all the other sleep researchers, can't say that dreaming is an essential psychological and physiological process.

At one time, sleep was vital to the species, Dr. Cohen said in an interview. It began as an evolutionary mechanism to help animals conserve energy and to keep them out of predators' ways.

Today, we are forced to sleep because of our instinct for it, he explained. Perhaps because we must sleep, dreaming developed to serve a psychological function during a time that appears to be otherwise wasted, he suggests.

It is clear that dreaming helps us process new or novel information, Dr. Cohen said. It is not clear, however, how necessary the dream function is to individuals or whether it isn't served just as well while we're awake.

During some experiments in the University sleep lab, Dr. Cohen allowed his subjects to have six minutes of REM sleep each time they entered that stage during the first six hours of sleep. After six hours, he let them complete their REM cycles.

Dr. Cohen assumed the subjects would show heightened drive for REM sleep during the final part of the night because he had permitted only a fraction of their normal amount of REM sleep. However, 80 percent of the subjects showed no signs of REM drive; they did not remain in REM sleep longer than usual as do subjects who have been totally deprived of REM sleep. Dr. Cohen believes that those results mean that the duration of REM sleep is at best imperfectly related to how important it is to us.

Murder-for-hire trial continues

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecutors in the murder-for-hire trial of industrialist Cullen Davis say they expect to present witnesses through the week.

FBI special agent Joseph Gray was to return to the stand today as the fourth week of testimony begins after a Thanksgiving break.

Defense attorneys have so far failed to break the testimony of star prosecution witness David McCrory, an FBI informant and former friend and employee of Davis.

Gray has sworn that tape recordings made of conversations between Davis and McCrory had not been doctored and were identical to the ones he first heard in late August.

Prosecutors scored heavily in the trial by submitting audio and visual tape recordings of the meeting, allegedly as they discussed killing Edson.

City on the River

President Carter is on the road again today, traveling west to make a speech at the meeting of the National League of Cities in St. Louis. Now recognized for such landmarks as Busch Memorial Stadium and the Gateway Arch, St. Louis was a French fur trading center as early as 1764. Today St. Louis extends 19 miles along the west bank of the Mississippi River, 10 miles south from where the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers connect. Its central location along the river helped it grow to one of the most important transportation and manufacturing centers in the United States, with a population of more than half a million people.

DO YOU KNOW — St. Louis is the largest city in what state?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Upton Sinclair's "King Coal" attacked conditions in coal mines.

'Tycoon' admitted to hospital center

ATLANTA (AP) — A self-described Pakistani business tycoon who recently made headlines by passing out checks totalling $2 million was hospitalized here for observation, officials said Sunday.
F. Masood Khan was admitted to Grady Memorial Hospital last Saturday and transferred to the Peachtree-Parkwood Mental Health Center and Hospital on Sunday, said W. H. Bearden, night administrator at Grady. Bearden said he did not know under what specific circumstances Khan was admitted to the hospital.
Khan was arrested Friday and charged with theft of services after he allegedly refused to pay a $174 bill at the Omni International Hotel. He was arrested a second time that same afternoon and charged with disorderly conduct and criminal trespass after he returned to the hotel and allegedly threatened to burn it down.

A spokesman for the Omni, Mary Alexander, said Sunday that Khan's wife came to Atlanta on Saturday and paid her husband's hotel bill.
Khan caused a stir in Dallas earlier this month when he handed out checks totalling $2 million during a visit to a nightclub.
Khan reportedly paid a $2,000 bar tab, but payment on the checks — including one for $1 million to his waitress — was stopped.
Khan said in an interview Friday that he decided to become "an international celebrity" because he wanted a public forum to express his opinions on political and social issues. He described himself as a "very powerful man," and said his actions were designed to "do one of the biggest media coups in the history of America."

D-day coming

NEW YORK (AP) — D-day for home mortgage lenders probably isn't going to be as big a deal as anticipated. It will come, as scheduled on Dec. 1, but it isn't likely to have the impact originally foreseen.

D-day is the time when many savings institutions will be deciding whether to continue offering savings certificates, at double-digit interest rates, or withdraw from the scramble for the saver's dollar.
Many of them were expected to choose the latter course rather than chase interest rates any higher. How, they asked, could they profit from buying money at 10 percent and relending it at the same rate?

Instead of relending the money they obtain from savers, they will probably invest it in large-denomination certificates of deposit at commercial banks.
The situation is without precedent for thrifts to remain in competition so far into a high-interest period. Normally they were shut out, unable to offer yields that would continue to attract savers.

The explanation lies in the nature of the thrifts:
Their job is to lend for housing; it is socially desirable that home-lending costs be held down; therefore, limitations were set on the amount of interest the thrifts could pay on savings, the hope being to discourage rate competition that would drive up mortgage costs.
As you might expect, it didn't work during periods of rising interest. Rather than stay with the low-paying thrifts, people withdrew funds and sought higher rates elsewhere.

Their reasoning was obvious: Why go through an intermediary, the thrift institution, when you could skip that step and go right to the source of higher funds? That is, buy U.S. Treasury bills?
Early morning temperatures ranged from 27 at Dalhart and Amarillo to 76 at Brownsville.
Except for water-logged Southeast Texas, the outlook for most of the state is cooler temperatures with gradually clearing skies.

Meanwhile, a storm system that dumped nearly a foot of snow on parts of the Midwest, sent cars and trucks skidding off highways and led to at least two traffic deaths, took aim at the East Coast today.

The storm plowed across Pennsylvania early today. Philadelphia, New York City and Boston were targeted for mixtures of snow, sleet and freezing rain throughout the day, threatening the kind of havoc seen Sunday on roads in Nebraska, Iowa and Wisconsin.
More than an inch of snow had fallen in western Pennsylvania and up to 5 inches were predicted to Philadelphia's suburbs, the National Weather Service predicted.

Washington, the nation's capital, received its first snowfall of the year and accumulations were expected to reach an inch in the suburbs.
But the Midwest took the brunt of the storm Sunday.
"East of North Platte, we have more cars off the road than on," said a state patrolman in Nebraska, where up to 10 inches of snow fell Sunday.

More than 70 traffic accidents were reported early Sunday in Omaha, Neb., and one policeman said bridges on Interstate 80 were so slick that officers could barely stand up to direct traffic. There were numerous reports of jackknifed trucks in ditches.
The National Weather Service said it did not expect any overnight accumulations in Nebraska, but warned of 1-to-3 inches of new snow today in eastern and southeastern Iowa and 4 inches across southern Michigan.
Two Duluth, Minn., residents were killed when their car went out of control on an icy Interstate 35 bridge four miles north of the Iowa-Missouri border.
Iowa state troopers said late Sunday that so many cars were in ditches they could not reach them all and that they were concentrating on treating the injured and tending to the elderly and infirm.
Many roads in Iowa were completely covered by either ice or snow, police said.

The story was the same in Wisconsin, where a half-inch of ice on Interstates 90 and 94 forced drivers to limit their speeds to about 35 mph.
"It's icy," said William Randy, a dispatcher for the Wisconsin State Police at Madison. "We're having them shoot off into ditches all over the place."

Longest human coma is over

HOLIDAY, Fla. (AP) — Every day for 37 years Lucy Esposito bathed her comatose daughter. She powdered, turned and fed her through a tube in her throat. She did it all herself. And every day she put a pretty ribbon or a clip in Elaine's hair.

"I always prayed God would let me live longer than she did," said Lucy Esposito. Her prayers were answered.
Elaine's death Sunday, at age 43, ended the long ordeal of a devoted mother.
It also ended what is believed to be the longest human coma ever: 37 years, three months and 20 days. The Guinness Book of World Records says it is the longest period of human unconsciousness ever recorded.

Elaine had slept since Aug. 6, 1941, when, at the age of 6, she underwent an appendectomy in a Chicago hospital. Doctors were closing her abdomen when her temperature shot to 107 and she began convulsing. Her doctors thought she would die that night.

Her parents never did learn exactly what had happened to their girl in the Chicago hospital.
"We never had time to worry about legal problems," Mrs. Esposito told the St. Petersburg Times. "Louie was working three jobs and I was with her day and night. I don't know how else we could have done it."

The family's money ran out in 10 months, and they took their only child home, where Mrs. Esposito learned to be a nurse — a job she would practice full-time for more than a third of a century.

When Esposito had a heart attack several years ago, the family moved from Chicago to Florida to make life easier.

Friends and doctors would urge the family, tactfully, to let a nursing home take Elaine. But the Espositos wouldn't do it. They did take her to Lourdes, France, once in search of a miracle.
When Medicare was established it helped a lot. Last year, however, bureaucrats in Washington threatened to cut off aid because Elaine wasn't in an institution. Mrs. Esposito complained bitterly, and an administrative law judge made an exception that let the monthly checks keep coming.

Esposito died last January of cancer. He was 68.
"I lost them both within 10 months," Mrs. Esposito said. "Lou and I always figured Elaine would go first and we'd have a few years for ourselves."

The end finally neared Friday. Elaine was gasping, groaning. Her mother called an ambulance and once more climbed in to ride with her.
"I woke up 4:30 Sunday morning and got dressed," Mrs. Esposito said. "I turned her over, rubbed her back, put baby powder on her. I put clips in her hair like I always do and I gave her a little kiss. I walked to the other side of the room and came back and gave her another kiss."
"And she died, just like Louie died, alone with me."

Tuberculosis said common in prisons

Dec. 1 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association

By C.G. McDANIEL, Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Prison tuberculosis epidemics "may exist without attracting medical attention for many years" and may be a factor in delaying the eradication of TB, an Arkansas physician says.

Dr. William Stead of the Arkansas Department of Public Health at Little Rock said TB occurs 65 times more frequently among prisoners than in the general population.

Stead said few state health departments take an active role in controlling tuberculosis within their prisons. He said he found in a survey of other state public health departments that at least 40 states with large prisons have problems similar to what he found in Arkansas.
"Indeed, most indicated that their efforts at participation were met with outright resistance. . . . Certainly this was my experience," Stead says in the

HEALTHFUL HINTS

Most often asked Questions On Nutrition BY: KATRINA BIGHAM

I hear that pantothenic acid is good for allergies. Is this true?
A. Adelle Davis, along with many other nutritionists, says "Yes". Pantothenic acid (sometimes sold as calcium pantothenate) is one of the B vitamins. It was discovered by Dr. Roger J. Williams and occurs in all living cells. A deficiency of pantothenic acid can result not only in allergies, but a low resistance to stress, some forms of arthritis, gout and a high level of uric acid, sore throat, quick temper, breathlessness, muscular weakness, overwhelming fatigue and a disturbed pulse rate. A deficiency may also lead to skin disorders, adrenal exhaustion and low blood sugar (hypoglycemia). Some tests have shown that this vitamin aids in reversing gray hair and baldness.
Individual needs for pantothenic acid vary according to periods of stress and daily food intake. The suggested dosage from several sources range from 30 to 50 milligrams daily for a healthy adult to 300 to 600 milligrams daily for persons with arthritis, infections, allergies and other severe stress. There are no known toxic effects of pantothenic acid.
Foods rich in this vitamin are peanuts, egg yolk, wheat germ, liver and yeast.

November 28, 1978
 This will be a year when many transitions will begin to occur. Some you'll want, others you might not, but they all can be happy and successful with diligent attention by you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll learn of something by accident today. You'll know how to put it to good use. The obvious might have eluded others, but not you. Find out more about yourself by sending for your 1979 copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A successful departure from your usual style of doing something might surprise others. Actually, it won't be rash behavior on your part — long hours of study went into it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Snap up an opportunity to team up with one who usually works alone. Your goals will be in complete accord. There'll be no problem with the association.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may be asked to make a serious decision today, but you won't be at a loss. Past experience and knowledge will aid you in making the right move.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Sudden changes or challenges requiring quick action won't faze you today. You're up to meeting and overcoming the most difficult problems.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An old pal who always seems to be around when you need her won't fail you today. She'll come into the picture right on cue.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Although you most often prefer being where the action is, today you'll be happiest by the fireside. Even domestic chores will be fun.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An unexpected opportunity will present itself to discuss with a friend something that's been on your mind for a long time. It should do you good to air the matter.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A family member (one you'd suspect) could make it possible today for you to obtain something you've wanted for a long time.

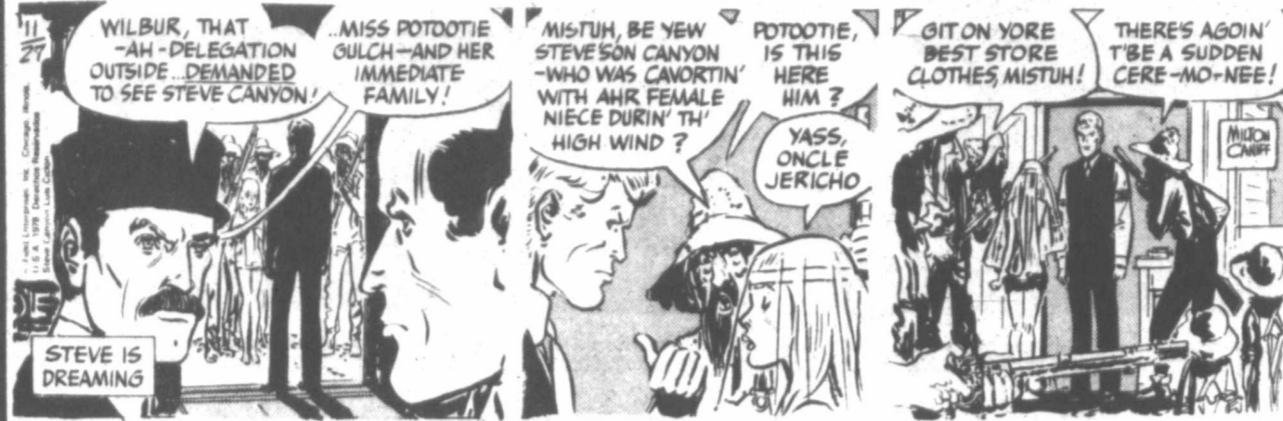

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Problem-solving is your cup of tea today. What you tackle you'll handle with the firmness and persistence necessary to effect a successful conclusion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, when you need them the most, the seeds you've planted bear fruit with a bountiful harvest. You may have long-since given up receiving a return.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your practical approach to a situation that has been bugging everyone else brings you to the fore today. It would be an honor well-earned.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you said it was all right for a girl to let a guy know she liked him and wanted to see him again. You said it would save time, and do away with a lot of game-playing.

My son disagrees with you. He is a flight attendant with a big airline and he says he's turned off by women who are forward. He claims that men still like to do the courting, but lately they don't have a chance because women's libbers have made women so aggressive.

I must say that I agree with my son, Abby. When I was a girl my mother never allowed me to call up a boy, and I always had more dates than I could handle.

I told my son how it was in the "olden days" when I was dating, and he said, "It's too bad it's not like that today. It would be much more romantic."

Just thought you'd like to hear about a young man who prefers an old-fashioned girl.

MOM

DEAR MOM: If it works for him, fine. But my mail indicates that most men prefer women who aren't ashamed to make the first move rather than those who use the old laid-back, catch-me-if-you-can technique. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for the terrific column suggesting how a decent woman can meet a decent man.

You're absolutely right about evening classes. They are usually loaded with single guys who want to get ahead and at the same time are trying to fill up some of their free time. But your final suggestion—that girls might make the first move if they really dig a guy—is probably the best advice you ever gave.

You'd be amazed at how many men are still smarting from a rejection they received six months ago. (Most men are reluctant to come on to a girl because they're afraid they'll be turned down.) I know from experience that the average man would be thrilled if a woman took the initiative and let him know she'd like to see him again.

Thanks, Abby, for telling girls that men appreciate honesty and that playing hard-to-get is passe.

Your letter was just what I needed to get me in the mood to start looking for a girl again. I had just about given up.

ERIK

DEAR ABBY: I have a question and I don't know where to find the answer. Could you ask your experts about it?

Is it true that many homosexuals become that way after being seduced by older adults when they were young and impressionable? (I'm not the only one who would like to know.)

J.L.

DEAR J.L.: My experts agree that homosexuals are born—not made.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like some information on a blocked artery to my heart on the left side. My doctor found that I had a blockage a few months ago when I had an electrocardiogram. I've never had any pain or sign of any heart problem.

I am 70 years old. I am 5 feet 5 and weigh 125 pounds. I feel fine.

I am now taking Persantine. My blood pressure has been real good so far, only 134/76. My doctor didn't say I should be on any strict diet but just to cut out the fats and avoid egg yolks and use low-fat milk. I have eaten an egg each morning as long as I can remember and my breakfast isn't complete without it. I wonder if I should have one of your Health Letters on what I should and shouldn't eat. I have been tested for cholesterol and its O.K.

lines. The Persantine that you are taking is an unusual medicine in that it helps to increase the oxygen supply to the heart muscle without increasing the circulation to the whole body or increasing the work that the heart does.

It's commonly used in patients that need increased oxygen to the heart muscle, for example, those who have chest pains from the heart associated with exercise.

Your very normal blood pressure is a good sign. I am also happy to hear that your blood cholesterol is normal. All of these things suggest that there is a limited amount of steps that should be taken in your case simply because of an electrocardiographic finding.

Another excellent reason to use beans now is that they are in plentiful supply. That means they are less expensive. Here is a basic recipe for cooked dry beans:

DEAR READER — It's pretty hard to be certain that a person has a blocked artery on the basis of changes in the electrocardiogram alone. Sometimes the wave patterns that doctors see on an electrocardiogram which resemble an old heart attack can be caused by other things as well.

This is always a difficult problem for the doctor when such a pattern shows up in a person like you, who has no history of any pain or, as you say, no sign of heart problems. I can tell you, though, that a third of the heart attacks that occur are painless or at least they have caused so few symptoms that a person doesn't even recognize that anything serious has happened to him.

In your age group, you undoubtedly do have some changes in your arteries and it is prudent of your doctor to manage you along those

Other readers who want this issue may send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. You can eat a good normal healthy diet this way and still avoid the excess fats.

Noting your liking for eggs, might I suggest you try one of the egg substitutes that you can buy which contain no cholesterol at all, if you still want the taste of eggs for breakfast and want to limit your cholesterol intake.

Other than the general guidelines that your doctor has given you, as long as you feel healthy and are able to be active, you should continue to do so without being too concerned over your health.

Polly's Pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — Do you have any suggestions for stretching the calves of leather boots? My legs are quite thin but my zip-up boots are still so tight they cut off my circulation. The shoe salesman assured me that they would stretch in time but they have not.

— MARY B.
DEAR MARY B. — Take those boots back to that fast-talking salesman and ask him what to do. Tight shoes can often be loosened by dampening on the inside and then running a very hot, dull knife around inside them. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I was interested in the problems of Louise and Lorena as both were concerned with yellowing ivory. I lived in central Africa for 15 years and of course people there are great collectors of tusks and carved artifacts. Everyone used to keep the ivory reasonably white by occasionally cleaning with a weak hydrogen peroxide solution. — JAY-JAY, a faithful male reader

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is that lecturers and writers and now you keep saying that mayonnaise jars are no good for home canning. I have been using them for 25 years and have rarely had a jar spoil for any reason. — HERMAN

DEAR POLLY — I have a Pet Peeve to pick with you. I read in your column that mayonnaise and peanut butter jars are one-trip jars when used for canning. You ought to have your head examined. I have used such jars for years in the pressure cooker and open kettle and they are just as good as any other. Please do not feed this bologna to people. I have a grape juice bottle in which I put homemade juice three years ago and it is still sealed. Such jars have rubber rings in the lids and seal perfectly. — MILKINA

VERSATILE FRITTATA stars as entree or appetizer

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

A frittata is a baked egg dish that can have a variety of ingredients depending upon your tastes.

It may be served as an entree or, during the holidays, cut into small squares to be served as appetizers.

A frittata makes a perfect buffet dish when cut into pie-shaped wedges and served with green salad and fresh fruit for dessert plus, of course, some delicious holiday cookies.

WHEAT GERM FRITTATA
2 cups chopped fresh spinach

- 1 medium chopped onion (about 1/2 cup)
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- 1/2 cup wheat germ, regular
- 1/2 teaspoon marjoram
- 1/4 teaspoon basil
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 6 eggs
- 1 cup grated romano cheese
- 1 (8 ounce) can tomato sauce

Saute spinach, onion and garlic in oil until spinach is limp and onions tender-crisp, 4 to 5 minutes. Remove from heat.

Mix in wheat germ, marjoram, basil, pepper, eggs and 3/4 cup cheese. Turn into greased 9-inch pie plate. Cover with 1/2 can tomato sauce.

Bake in a 350-degree oven 30 to 35 minutes or until table knife inserted in center comes out clean.

Meanwhile, heat remaining tomato sauce. Invert frittata onto serving plate. Top with hot tomato sauce and remaining 1/4 cup cheese. Cut into wedges. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

NOTE: Frittata may also be served as an appetizer. Turn mixture into 9-inch square baking pan. Top with all of the tomato sauce and sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup cheese. Bake as above. Cut into small squares. Makes 6 to 7 dozen appetizers.

Campbell soups up Houston offense

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Earl Campbell, who has been the Houston Oilers' savior this season, became their 220-pound alarm clock Sunday.

The Oilers were in the midst of a nightmare rerun after being held to a minus 13 yards in the first quarter when Campbell's wake up call came through.

Campbell rushed 58 yards in the second quarter and finished the game with 122 yards as the Oilers wiped out a 10-0 deficit and went on to a 17-10 victory over Cincinnati.

The victory gave the Oilers a 9-4 record, third best in the American Football Conference, and avenged a 28-13 loss to Cincinnati earlier this season when the Oilers never woke up.

The Oilers, who host AFC Central Division leader Pittsburgh Sunday, now rank ahead of Miami, Denver and Oakland, all with 8-5 records, in the race for two AFC wild card playoff berths.

Campbell's 122 yards on 27 carries gave him 1,265 yards for the season and broke the National Football League rookie rushing record of 1,162 set by San Diego's Don Woods in 1974.

Campbell, as usual, had little to say about his record-setting performance. "I'm too tired to even think about any records," Campbell said.

The Bengals, however, weren't shy in talking about Campbell.

"He gets up real slow like he's hurt but you know you'd better not feel sorry for him," said Bengal cornerback Ken Riley.

Archie Griffin, like Campbell a former Heisman Trophy winner, said "I thought he'd have a great season but he's developed a lot more than I expected."

The Oilers, who had to rally seven times in the second half to win their first eight games, fell behind Cincinnati 10-0 early in the second quarter on a seven-yard pass from Ken Anderson to Don Bass in the end zone and Chris Bahr's 34-yard field goal.

Houston then erupted. They drove to Cincinnati's 12, aided by Campbell runs of nine, 17 and 10 yards before Riley intercepted a pass at the Bengal eight to kill the drive.

The Oilers got the ball back and drove 63 yards with Campbell rushing 22 yards to set up Ronnie Coleman's four-yard touchdown run, his first of the season.

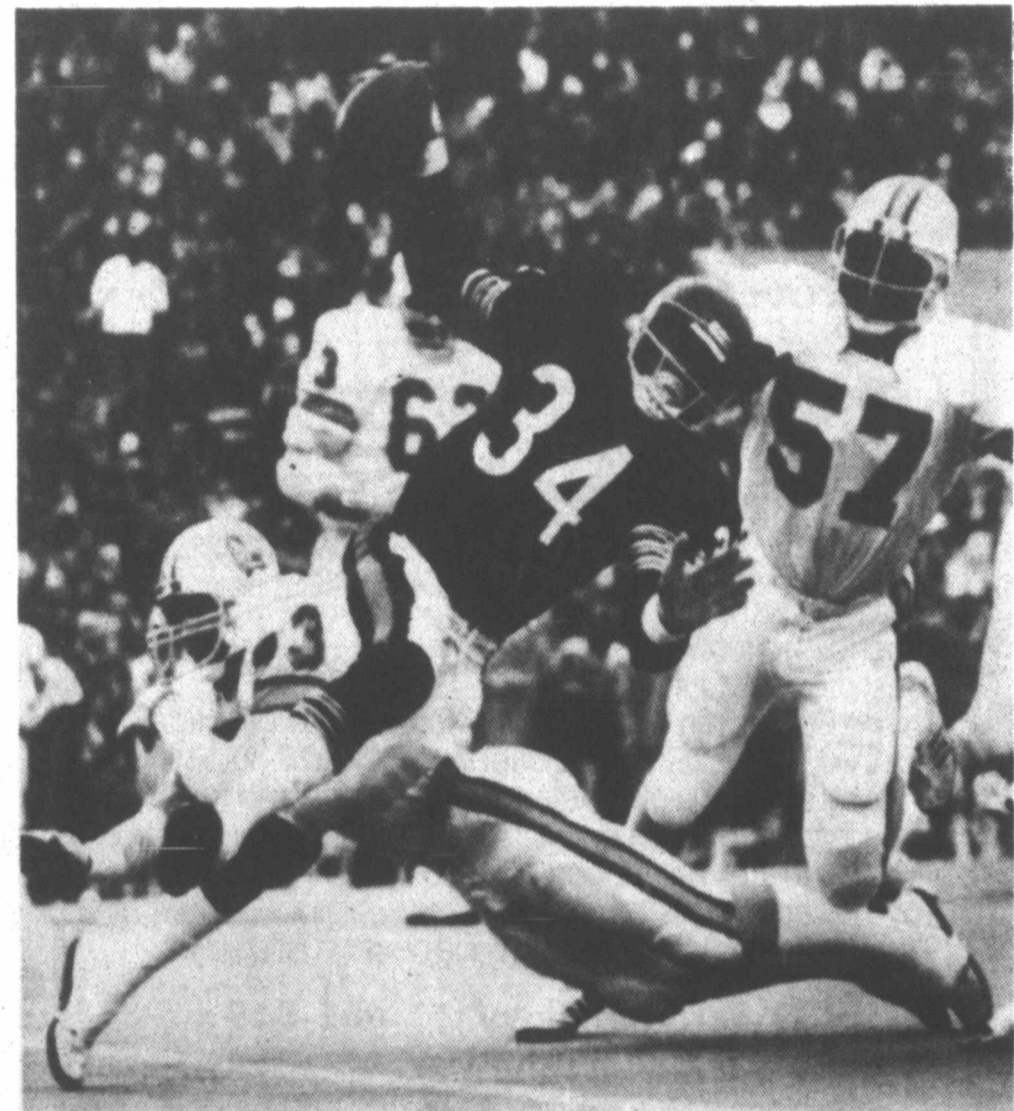

Moments later Guido Mergens returned a punt to the Cincinnati 47 and on the first play, Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini hit Rich Caster in the end zone with the go-ahead touchdown. Tony Fritsch had a 38-yard field goal for Houston in the third quarter.

"I pumped once to freeze the free safety and hit him on the play action," Pastorini said.

The Bengals, now 1-12, were in cold storage the rest of the game, spoiling a homecoming for Coach Homer Rice, a former head coach and athletic director at Rice University.

"The two key plays were the punt which they returned to midfield after we thought we had them bottled up and Pastorini's pass to Caster," Rice said. "We had two men hanging all over him."

WALTER PAYTON (34) of the Chicago Bears eludes Tampa Bay's Mark Cotney (33) as Buccaneer David Lewis (57) closes in during NFL action Sunday in Chicago. Cotney tackled Payton for a six-yard loss, but Chicago won the game 14-3.

Zorn rates comparisons

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

They're starting to compare Jim Zorn to Fran Tarkenton — and with good reason. They operate the same way and produce similar results.

Zorn, a third-year quarterback for Seattle, a third-year team, calmly directed the Seahawks from their 20-yard line to the Oakland 27 in the final 2½ minutes of play Sunday, then watched Efen Herrera's 46-yard field goal with three seconds remaining beat the Raiders 17-16. Earlier, Zorn had thrown touchdown passes covering 38 yards to Steve Raible and 27 yards to Steve Largent.

Tarkenton, Minnesota's 18-year pro, threw only one touchdown pass Sunday — but it came a timely 10 seconds from the end of regulation play. The 5-yard flip to Ahmad Rashad boosted the Vikings into a 10-10 tie with the Green Bay Packers and it stayed that way through a 15-minute overtime period.

Vikings 10, Packers 10
In the first three periods, Tarkenton completed only 5 of 15 passes for 35 yards. Two periods later, the numbers were 20 of 37 for 199 yards and, of course, the big TD pass. Just as big was the pass prior to the scoring strike. It was a 15-yarder to Sammy White at the Green Bay 5 from a fourth-and-7 situation at the 20.

Patriots 35, Colts 14
The Patriots knew Miami already had lost when they went out and ran roughshod over Baltimore, opening a two-game AFC East lead over the Dolphins. Stanley Morgan set up two TDs with a 37-yard punt return and a 38-yard reception, then caught a Steve Grogan pass and turned it into a 75-yard TD play.

Jets 24, Dolphins 13
The big news wasn't Matt Robinson's 3-yard TD pass to Wesley Walker or the short runs by Darnell Powell and Kevin Long for the other New York scores. It was Miami quarterback Bob Griese's three intercepted passes and one fumble. Two of the turnovers resulted in Jets' TDs.

Browns 30, Rams 19
Coach Ray Malavasi expressed a similar sentiment about his Rams. "I think it's difficult to keep a team up for 16 games. I just hope we're up for the right ones at the right time," Malavasi said after Brian Sipe's 31-yard scoring pass to Reggie Rucker and Greg Pruitt's 57-yard TD run helped Cleveland beat Los Angeles. The loss cut the Rams' NFC West lead over Atlanta to two games.

Falcons 20, Saints 17

Steve Bartkowski hit Atlanta's Jim Mitchell on a 1-yarder with five seconds to go, capping a seven-play, 72-yard drive that began with only 53 seconds left.

Bills 41, Giants 17
Terry Miller became the first runner this year to surpass 200 yards in a game, gaining 208 against the Giants. He scored touchdowns on runs of 39 and 13 yards, wrapping up a comeback that obliterated New York's 17-7 third-period lead.

Eagles 14, Cardinals 10
Philadelphia snapped St. Louis' four-game winning streak, getting touchdowns on Ron Jaworski's 22-yard TD pass to Charis Smith in the second period and Mike Hogan's 2-yard plunge in the fourth period.

Chiefs 23, Chargers 0
Mike Livingston's TD passes of 29 yards to Henry Marshall and 7 yards to Larry Dorsey, plus Jan Stenerud's three field goals, boosted Kansas City past the Chargers. It was the Chiefs' first shutout in five years.

Bears 14, Bucs 3
Roland Harper, with 144 yards rushing, and Walter Payton, with 105, chewed up Tampa Bay's defense, leading Chicago to victory, its second in a row after an eight-game tailspin. The Bears' defense had eight sacks of Bucs' quarterback Mike Rae.

Rose kids make choices known

By The Associated Press
CINCINNATI (AP) — While free agent baseball star Pete Rose considers offers to relocate in another baseball city, his two children have made their preference known.

Daughter Fawn, 13, is pulling for San Diego and son Pete, 9, has his heart set on Montreal, according to Rose's wife Karolyn.

"Fawn wants to go to San Diego because of the beaches. And Pete wants to go to Montreal because that's where Tony Perez' family is," she said Sunday.

"I've pointed out to Pete that Montreal didn't draft his father, but that doesn't matter to him."
