Anti-shah protests continue in Tehran

Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Hundreds of thousands of Iranians chanting "Down with the shah!" flooded the streets of Tehran today in the second mass demonstration in two days. No violence was reported here but protesters reportedly pulled down statues of the shah in other Iranian cities.

In the northeastern city of Mashhad, anti-shah rioters stormed the U.S.-owned Hyatt Hotel on Sunday, wrecked the ground floor and made an abortive attempt to set the hotel's nightclub on fire, reliable sources said. No casualties were reported.

There was no official estimate of the size of today's demonstration in Tehran, but it was at least as big as Sunday's. The government said 400,000 but the opposition said as many as 2 million participated.

Today's marchers carried huge portraits of Moslem religious leader Ayatullah Khomaini, exiled head of the antishah movement, and anti-Western banners reading, "Criminal Americans Go Home" or "Iran Will Become Another Vietnam" - a reference to U.S. support for Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in his struggle for survival. The demonstrators, thrusting clenched fists upward, demanded a new Islamic government under Khomaini, some vowing. "The campaign will continue until victory is won!" Today's march was more fiery and volatile than Sunday's procession, which was led by Moslem priests. But there were no reports of violence here to-

Youths get fines, jail

Six Pampa youths charged with vandalism at the home of Pampa High School assistant principal Robert C. Andrew have pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of criminal mischief.

The plea was entered as a Class-A misdemeanor last week in 223rd District Court.

Fred Lewis, Doug Baird, Doug Skaggs, Chad Darce, Kent Davis, and Mark Hungerford, all Pampa High School students, were fined $350 each by Judge Don Cain and placed on six months probation.

Criminal mischief, which under Texas law is a third-degree felony, can be reduced to a misdemeanor in the case of youthful, first-time offenders.

The reduction of the charge was made on the recommendation of District Attorney Harold Comer after he consulted with the defendants' attorneys. Comer said that the six had made complete restitution to Andrews totalling about $2,000. In addition, it was hours each in the County Jail. Baird and Skaggs reportedly served their sentences last weekend. The vandalism took place about 9:30 p.m. Oct. 30 and included the breaking of four front windows and two garage windows. There was also extensive damage to the Andrew pickup truck and firecrackers were set off on the front porch. Bricks, a two-by-four, and a golf club were reportedly used. Andrew and his family were home at the time of the incident, which was apparently witnessed by neighbors. Under Texas law, the defendants could have been sentenced to up to five years in prison and fined up to $10,000.

Fluoride and choice

The Assoicate Press says fluoridation of public water supplies is gaining in the United States despite nationwide efforts to combat it.

Closer inspection reveals the AP report was a piece from the bureaucrat in charge of the tax-financed national government's Center for Disease Control. The statements quoted Dr. William Bock, chief of dental

With that title, a great many persons are inclined to give the advocate credit for being all-wise in his field. But we urge all persons to use their own good judgment in evaluating statements from whatever source, and particularly from the government bureaucracy.

It certainly must be accepted as true that a great many political entities have forced the addition of the chemical into water supplies, based on the theory that it will prevent dental cavities. It also is true that in a great many cases, the learned doctors who make claims for the vears. effectiveness of fluoride have refused to consider whether they have a right to compel others to adopt their ideas of what is good for them.

We refuse to enter arguments about the chemicals's effectiveness. We have thought it ironic that the same government officials who prohibit a product which may trigger cancer when fed in large quantities to rats would require ingestion by all persons of a product which they admit is harmful to animal life when consumed in large quantities.

We have never worried about whether fluoride is a Communist plot. We object because requiring poeple to use something they do not want, or which they may even fear, is a violation of their individual right to

We suggest that if dentists believe fluoride is good to prevent dental problems, they should devote their time to persuading people to use it. If it proves as effective as claimed, we believe most people would accept it. And there are far more efficient ways to administering proper and adequate dos ages than to spread it willy-nilly into the water system used by everyone, like it or not.

It's pretty inefficient to flood one's body and laundry with something that is useful only around one's teeth.

Lack of confidence

In 1972, only two U.S. senators voted against the first Soviet - American strategic arms limitation agreements. Today, it is widely believed that nearly half the Senate might oppose the prospective new SALT agreement the Carter administration hopes to conclude with the Soviet Union by year's end.

This remarkable turnabout reflects more than just a lack of confidence in the ability of the president and his chief aides to negotiate effectively withthe Soviets. Nor is it merely a symptom of the general disenchantment with "detente" as the Soviets have practiced it over the last six

The Senate has begun to grasp what Harvard's Smauel P. Huntington calls "the preeminent feature in (contemporary) nternational politics," the relative decline in American military power as compared to that of the Soviet Union. And specifically, the Senate has begun to entertain grave doubts about the prospects for negotiating any arms limitation agreements with the Soviet Union that could, in themselves, stabilize the military balance now shifting ominously and unmistakably toward Moscow.

The lessons of nine years of strategic arms negotiations with the Soviets fully justify the Senate's reservations.

From their inception in 1969, Washington intended the strategic arms limitation talks to foster progress toward three primary goals: (1) An end to the costly competition in strategic nuclear weapons; (2) the enhancement of mutual security through balanced reductions in the nucler threat to each country; and (3) a general diminution of the chances for nuclear war.

Judged on these criteria, SALT has been an unambiguous failure. While few expected SALT to achieve all these objectives in a single decade, the dismal truth is that all three are more distant today than when the SALT process began nine years ago.

Salt's central failure, and the one that has unhinged progress toward each of Washington's three policy objectives, has been its inability to curb the Soviet Union's drive for global military supremacy. Thus the nuclear arms race continues, although the United States may be said to be moving at little more than a walk while the Soviets sprint ahead.

The 1972 and 1974 agreements on the limitation of anti - ballistic missile (ABM) defenses and numerical ceilings on missile launchers served only to save the Soviets from an ABM competiton in which they were already behind while channeling their drive for superiority into the replacement of older, obsolescent missiles with newer, more lethal models.

Soviet military spending, including that for strategic nuclear weapons, continued to rise year by year, seemingly unaffected by SALT. The United States stood pat.

The resulting imbalance in Soviet American nuclear strength heightens the threat to the United States and leaves the world less secure from nuclear war. Nearly all analysts agree that the momentum of Soviet strategic programs will enable Moscow to pose a credible first - strike threat against the United States by the

At best, it might compel Moscow to shift spending into programs for weapons exempt or only partially covered by a SALT II agreement.

Nine years of SALT have demonstrated that the current Soviet leadership does not share Washington's desire for a foolproof nuclear checkmate. So if the preservation of American security must still depend almost exclusively on unilateral efforts to maintain an acceptable balance of power, what justification is left for a SALT process that continues to lull our citizens into believing they need pay only minimal heed to their defenses?

GOP Senator

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Although the 96th Congress won't convene until mid -January, Senate Republicans are already locked in furious skirmishes over minority leadership posts for the next session.

Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. R-Tenn., has no challenger at this point and claims to have sewed up commitments from enough of the 41 GOP member to assure his re - election to the top job.

But heated contests for five other leadership positions appear to be shaping up between senators occupying opposite wings of the GOP ideological specturm, with moderates caught in the middle

Ordinarily, the stakes wouldn't seem worth the struggle. Apart from the minority leader, who does have a modicum of power. GOP leaders get little for their titles except the chance to attend bipartisan meetings at the White House. The majority Democrats, who seem quite content with their current leadership, control the real power in the Senate.

But Republicans smell blood. For the first time in more than 20 years, they see an opportunity to seize control of the Senate in the near future. A net gain of 10 seats would do the trick, and over the next two elections the Democrats will have to defend 45 seats to 22 for the GOP.

Ergo, ambitious GOP senators are scrambling to get aboard the leadership ladder in hopes that it will count for something two to four years from now. The contestants, as of today, are likely to be:

Conservative Harrison Schmitt, New Mexico, challenging incumbent GOP Whip Ted Stevens of Alaska; liberal John C. Danforth of Missouri challenging conservative Policy Committee Chairman John Tower of Texas; tiberal Robert Packwood of Oregon versus conservative James McClure of Idaho for Conference Chairman: liberal John H. Chafee of Rhode Island versus conservative Jake Garn of Utah for Conference Secretary; and liberal John Heinz III of Pennsylvania versus conservative Orrin Hatch of Utah for GOP Senatorial Campaign Committee. Baker hangs fire

Minority Leader Baker, incidentally, will make his first trip to New Hampshire on Dec. 1 to help newly elected GOP Sen. Gordon Humphrey raise funds to pay off a campaign debt. Ronald Reagan and Gerald Ford were both invited, but declined the opportunity.

Baker is openly weighing a 1980 presidential bid, but could not undertake any extensive base - building in New Hampshire or elsewhere until he won re election to the Senate this year. He still plans to stick close to Washington

Attorneys defending Davis on murder conspiracy charges would like the jury to believe that "D.M.R." might have been David McCrory, the millionaire defendant's chief accuser.

They are endeavoring to show that McCrory and karate instructor Pat Burleson conspired with the defendant's wife, Priscilla, to frame Davis in a plot to kill his divorce · The defense team maintains that FBI ineffectiveness in the extortion case contributed to the defendants' distrust of the federal agency and other law enforcement groups.

The thinly veiled implication suggests why Davis, suspecting he was being framed, might bypass authorities and try to expose the scheme on his own.

The end result would be a partial explanation as to why Davis met last August with McGrory and discussed the contract killing of the judge and

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago you ran an article about a woman who never cooked her own Thanksgiving or Christmas dinner. Instead, she went to her mother's or her mother-in-law's. She wrote to say that she wishes now that she had done her own holiday dinners.

That letter was terrific. If you could publish it again, it would be a great help to a lot of people.

I am a grandmother who wishes my married children would cook their own holiday dinners and invite me as a

PAID MY DUES

DEAR PAID: It wasn't hard to find, and here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, and around holiday time someone always asks, "Should we go to his mother's or to my mother's for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner?" Your answer has always been: "Why not alternate?"

Abby, my husband and I struggled with that problem for years. We resolved it according to your suggestion. Both sets of parents lived nearby, and it seemed the only fair thing to do. So, for 22 years, we spent Thanksgiving and Christmas in their homes instead of our own.

It never dawned on us until this year-now that our children are ready to strike out on their own-that we never developed our own holiday traditions. We always went to Grandma's for the holidays. She insisted on doing all the cooking herself, then complained for months about how much work it was and how tired she got. When we, her daughters and daughers-in-law, asked if we could bring something for dinner, she wouldn't hear of it. When we brought food without asking her, she refused to serve it, so we finally gave up.

I realize now what a high price I've paid over the years for peace in the family. I wish I hadn't.

Abby, please urge young marrieds to dare to have their own holiday celebrations in their own homes. Suggest that they invite their parents and grandparents, who might even be relieved to be finally free of the burden of entertaining three generations.

DOING MY OWN THING

DEAR DOING: Thank you for an excellent letter. Perhaps it will inspire others to do their own thing, too. It makes a lot of sense.

DEAR ABBY: With Christmas nearing, I have a question that has puzzled me for years. In signing Christmas cards, whose name comes first? The husband's or the wife's? I've always signed our cards, "Fred and Mary." Last year someone said they should have been signed, "Mary and Fred." What do you say?

STILL PUZZLED

DEAR STILL: At the risk of being labeled a sexist, I say ladies first.

Ask Dr. Lamb By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - It is my misfortune to have a degenerative bone disease called osteoporosis. I am losing height as the result of this. My full height was 4 feet 11 but I have lost three inches already, so I am now only 4 feet 8. I would like to know if there is anything I could do to slow the process or to stop it altogether.

DEAR READER - I hope e seeing your doctor Your disease is very common, particularly in women as they get older. It starts usually after the menopause. It means porous bones and it's caused by a loss of calcium and loss of bone cells. The vertebrae simply get smaller and, be-cause they lose calcium, some of them may fracture or crumble away. This is what causes the person to get shorter. The disease is most likely to affect small women. Large women with large skeletons and lots of bone seem to be less likely to have it.

The softening of the spine creates a dowager's hump that you see in some women. All you need to do is look around in public to see a lot of these.

Women who are on calcium deficient diets are five times as likely to develop this disorder as are women who have a normal amount of calcium in the diet.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-10, Osteoporosis, Bone Softening, to give you more information about this disease. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

As The Health Letter I am sending you explains, there are several different ways of treating this problem. Your diet is very important and you should be certain to get enough calcium. I would like to see you get at least oneand-a-half grams of calcium a day; this is about the same amount you would find in one quart of fortified skim

Some doctors have reported good results in using hormones in women who are deficient in hormones. The change in hormone production after the menopause seems to be one of factors in causing this dis-

Other doctors have reported good results from a combination of calcium, vitamin D and fluoride. In any case, the disease can cause guite a bit of trouble because as the bones degenerate and deform the chest, they affect the way the ribs move. Eventually this limits the ability of the person to breathe. The disease is usually painless except during the fractures of vertebrae. Then the pain can be quite severe because of pressure on nerves. In any case, I think the disease is serious enough that anyone who has it should be under regular medical care. It is important to learn what you can do in terms of regular exercises, which ones are useful to help build up your body strength and how to avoid injuring yourself with lifting or anything of that nature.

Because the disease varies so much from rather mild to very severe, any exercise program to help prevent deformity has to be individualized. Meanwhile, as a general preventive measure to avoid or mini-mize this disease, I think middle-aged women should all be certain that they are getting enough calcium and all should have a regular exercise program that is suitable on an individualized basis for them. Polly's Pointers By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY - My son gave me a short shag rug that was in a house he bought from people who had cats and dogs. The rug had a terrible smell. I tried using ammonia on it but that did not help so I tried putting dark vinegar on it with a brush. After the vinegar evaporated the smell was gone. (Polly's Note - Do test the effect of dark vinegar on the color of your rug before proceeding.) — MRS. A.H. DEAR POLLY — I have a remedy for cat odor in carpets. Add baking soda to white cat litter, wet a little and sprinkle it over the carpet. Leave overnight and sweep it up the next morning. There should be no more cat odors. — ALBERTA

DEAR POLLY - I have discovered a simple way to take decals out of a bathtub. I turn my blow dryer on high and hold it on the object or to the side of it just long enough for it to loosen the glue. It will then peel right off. I use a paper towel to wipe the glue and it rolls right up. This has worked most successfully for me. Also removes plastic picture hangers that stick to the wall. — GERALDINE

DEAR POLLY — Mine is pie pastry making Pointer. After mixing the flour, lard, etc., for the pastry I put it all in-a heavy plastic bag and with my fingertips work through the bag until the pastry has the right consistency. No more messy hands. The pastry can then be stored in the refrigerator in the same bag. This also works well for cookie dough. - BETH Traveling with a cat or dog is not always easy. But with some advance planning, the trip can be reasonably comfortable for both you and your pet.

Bus and train travel is most difficult. That is simply because animals are not allowed on most public buses and trains. Of course, these rules usually do not apply to dog guides for the Dogs and cats can travel by air But they must remain in a cage in the plane's cargo section.

According to federal regulations, a pet cannot travel by plane until it is at least eight weeks old and has been weaned for five days or longer. The animal must be accompanied by a current certificate of rabies immun-

Before putting your pet on a plane or traveling with it for a long distance in a car, make sure the animal is wearing a collar with license and identification tags. That advice comes from the American Veterinary Medical Association, which offers other tips for traveling with pets as well. Animals going by air need cages large enough to permit them to stand, turn around and lie down with ease. No objects that might harm the animal should protrude into the cage. The bottom of the cage should be leak-proof and covered with an absorbent material. The cage should have cross-ventilation. Attach a label to the outside stating "Live Animal" along with your name, address and telephone number.

The AVMA recommends making arrangements for your pet's travel with the airline well in advance. Book the most direct flight with the least stops.

In hot weather, choose a flight in the early morning or cool of the evening. Make sure there will be nothing in the cargo compartment that might harm your pet. (Consult your veterinarian if you have any questions.)

If you are taking a cat or dog on a long auto trip, pack a few of its favorite toys. Take along enough food - a dry variety, if possible and a jug of cool water

A haven for wolves

By BOB INGLE Associated Press Writer

GARDINER, Wash. (AP) Civilization pushed the buffalo wolf to virtual extinction in the wild. Now it threatens the existence of a band of those that remain, some of whom have had to move once already. Survivors of the otherwise extinct subspecies that once roamed the plains preying on the American bison are gathered here on the Olympic Peninsula under the loving, watchful eye of Jack Lynch.

Their ancestors ran into trouble when the bison were killed off and they turned to cattle for food. The buffalo wolves then went the way of their namesake as the traps and poison and bounty hunters took their toll. A few were saved by Dr. E.

H. McCleery of Pennsylvania. Their descendants and about six other subspecies live here in the Pacific Wolf Preserve.

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) The playground director was 23. Friendly. And pret-

Mark was 17. Attracted. And stoned.

It was the summer of 1975, and his older sister had introduced him to marijuana. "If you're going to keep bugging me to smoke it. she said, "I don't want you to start on the street."

Mark spent his days at the playground in his neighborhood, playing basketball, getting high, playing big shot for the little kids. He was almost 6 feet, 4 inches tall. And, to the playground director, menacing

He interfered with her program. The clubhouse windows were broken. When she tried to curb him by calling his parents, he called her a "whore" and threw pennies in her face. The police ar-rested Mark on charges of battery and disturbing the peace

"While the citation was being filled out," reads the police report, "Mark became very enraged and had to be forcibly handcuffed to stop a possible altercation where he was going to attack the police officers.

They stood him up against a wall, cuffed him around and carted him off to the Youth Guidance Center, a euphemism for jail. He spent the night there, a new and scaring experience.

Mark was put on probation for two years. "You never defy a cop," his lawyer scolded him. "If they tell you to kiss the dirt, you kiss the dirt. That's the system."

Sports, particularly basketball, had given him what little self-esteem he had in this world. He wanted desperately to succeed because he felt it would lead to acceptance of him as a person. He was the tallest player on the high school varsity squad, but the coach white-haired, crew cut and rigid - never gave him a chance to play. Mark showed up stoned for practice and finally quit altogeth-

In track, he won the city championship at 880 yards for sophomores and received a varsity letter in cross country. But he lacked the discipline to keep running, and quit that, too.

His classroom behavior was erratic. At times, he was abusive and profane to his teachers, making obscene gestures; and once he threatened a school guard in the corridors. He was also disarmingly shy, humorous and co-operative. A direct correlation was noted between his belligerence and smoking marijuana. Mark spent his lunch money to buy pot. Often he got high before his first class. "I like the feeling I get from it," he shrugged.

His senior year in high school was a nightmare. The normal problems of adolescence were compounded by his failures - in schoolwork, in athletics, in social relations. He couldn't get a girl-

He was steadily descending into a state of chronic depression. He was worried about himself, his future, his inability to cope with the stresses of normal living. He kept getting high on marijuana every other day, dur-ing school hours, and virtually stopped going to class. He was unable now to sleep at night. At 3 o'clock in the morning, he would pace the floor, burst into his parents' room, threaten to jump through a window, and ask in anguish, "What's the matter with me? Why can't I be like everyone else?"

He'd close his door, sit on the side of the bed, head buried in hands, and talk to himself. Sometimes shout.

His weekly visits to the psychiatrist offered no solutions. For $40 an hour, the man listened but had no answers or suggestions. Mark stopped going to him, or missed visits, for which payment was still demanded. But it was obvious the boy needed help.

"It is estimated that 10 percent of the population have mental or emotional disturbance at any point in time," says Dr. Richard Redick, acting chief of the survey and reports branch of the Division of Biomedics and Epidemiology at the National Institute for Mental

"Fifteen percent, or 32 million peoole, have emotional or mental disturbance that requires some care over a one-year period.

Mark was just another pinprick of a statistic, but that didn't diminish the terribly disruptive effect his anguish had on himself and the lives of the people around him.

There is a Crisis Clinic at Mt. Zion Hospital in San Francisco which anyone in a manic state can visit or call for professional assistance. Mark became a regular caller and visitor, at all hours of the day and night.

The clinic referred him to a psychologist for private therapy, and she recommended that Mark go into the hospital's adolescent clinic for a long rehabilitation period, at least of several months

Mark had never been hospitalized for his mental problems, and he fought the idea. But his depression didn't abate. Due to graduate from high school in June 1977, he was flunking all his courses. In May, after waiting four months for a vacancy, he was admitted to Mt. Zion. He arrived, took one look at the fifth floor ward where he would be restricted, and bolted for the door.

The Pope Who Smiled

Today the Vatican issues a new series of stamps honoring the 34-day reign of Pope John Paul I. Roman Catholic cardinals elected the 65-year-old Cardinal Albino Luciani the 263rd pope in a single day of balloting last August. It was the shortest conclave of the 20th century. His reign of a little more than a month was the shortest for any pope since the 17th century. But it was time enough for the papacy to reflect John Paul's own warm, personal style. As French Cardinal Francois Marty said, "The pope had a message to give our world. He gave us the smile of SEATTLE (AP) - It's not easy to overcome a field-goal shooting disadvantage of 49 percent to 38 percent unless you control the ball enough to take many more shots.

It was offensive rebounds Sunday night which provided the second-shot opportunities that made the difference for Seattle as the SuperSonics dumped the San Antonio Spurs 112-99 in a National Basketball Association game

The Sonics leaped and jostled their way to a 29-5 advantage in offensive rebounds, easily offsetting San Antonio edge in defensive boards. As a result. Seattle's poor shooting performance - 45 of 118 compared with 39 of 79 for the Spurs - became a mere statistical oddity rather than a crippling liability on the court.

We had an awful game on the boards," said San Antonio Coach Doug Moe.

"We had very poor passing." Moe said. "Our defense gets criticized, but it's our rebounding that is worse than ever. Our rebounding gets us in trouble.

"If someone wants to intimidate us, it's very easy. All they have to do is push us around once or twice.

"Seattle really got pumped up with the offensive boards, and we really let them get loose because of it.

With one week remaining in the National Football League season, five teams still are in contention for three playoff berths... but the New England Patriots. Denver Broncos. Miami Dolphins and Houston Oilers are not among them.

The Patriots won the American Football Conference East championship - their first divisional title since 1963 - edging the Buffalo Bills 26-24 Sunday on David Posey's 21-yard field goal with eight seconds remain-

The Broncos captured the AFC West crown for the second year in a row, trouncing the Kansas City Chiefs 24-3 behind the brilliant passing of oftenmaligned quarterback Craig Morton, who completed 19 of 22 aerials, including 16 in a row, for 283 yards and three touch-

The Dolphins assured themselves of an AFC wild card berth - their first playoff spot in four years - with a 23-6 victory over Oakland, eliminating the Raiders from playoff contention for the first time in six years

And the Oilers claimed the other AFC wild card spot, holding off the New Orleans Saints 17-12 on a heads-up play by rookie sensation Earl Camp-

But, for the Green Bay Packers, Minnesota Vikings, Atlanta Falcons, Washington Redskins and Philadelphia Eagles, things are not that simple.

The Packers and Vikings both lost over the weekend -Green Bay dropping a 14-0 decision to the Chicago Bears and Minnesota getting blitzed by the Detroit Lions 45-14. They remained tied for the National Football Conference Central Division lead with 8-6-1 records.

Atlanta, 9-6, improved its chance for an NFC wild card berth and hurt Washington's. shading the Redskins 20-17 on Tim Mazzetti's 32-vard "second chance" field goal on the final play of the game, while Philadelphia was battered 31-13 by the Dallas Cowboys. The Redskins and Eagles have 8-7

On the final weekend, the schedule for the five contending teams is Minnesota at Oakland Green Bay at Los Angeles, Atlanta at St. Louis, Chicago al Washington, and the New York Giants at Philadelphia.

If Minnesota beats Oakland, it qualifies for the playoffs as the NFC Central champion by virtue of a better head-to-head record against Green Bay (1-0-1 vs. 0-1-1). The possibilties for the two wild berths are numer-

Davis Cup back in U.S.

Associated Press Writer

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) - John McEnroe, after leading the United States to its first Davis Cup victory since 1972, could afford to be modest when speculating about the No. 1 male tennis player in the

After all, the 19-year-old New Yorker had just devastated the best singles players in Great Britain and provided two of the victories that went into the 4-1 romp by the U.S. in the championship round that ended Sunday at Mission Hills Country

Thus, the inevitable question: Can John Patrick McEnroe beat Jimmy Connors?

"Connors is No. 1 right now. He's the best player in the world," opined McEnroe, who has come out on the short end in all four matches between the two southpaws. "I don't know if I'll ever beat Connors, but I'll follow him to the ends of the

The question of who's No. 1 was reopened dramatically last month when McEnroe defeated Biorn Borg in straight sets in a tournament in Sweden

For his part, the coach of Britain's team - victims of McEnroe's fullcourt game of sizzling services, precision vollevs, varied ground strokes and dazzling speed — was certain he had just seen a new No. 1. Paul Hutchins, the coach, called McEnroe "the world's No. 1 player" at the moment. Buster Mottram, who lost to McEnroe Sunday, thought McEnroe was No. 2 and pronounced Connors the best player. Connors has shunned Davis Cup play.

The rating game was being played briskly after McEnroe clinched the Cup in the fourth match, demolishing Mottram 6-2. 6-2. 6-1. Brian Gottfried then polished off John Lloyd 6-1, 6-2. 6-4 in the final match.

McEnroe's 6-1, 6-2, 6-2 whipping of Lloyd in the first match Friday set the theme of American domination of the British The veteran U.S. doubles team of Stan Smith and Bob Lutz scored an easy 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 victory Saturday over Mark Cox and David Lloyd.

Only Mottram prevented a clean sweep by the Yanks when he overcame a match point in the third-set against Gottfried Friday and went on to win 4-6, 2-6, 10-8, 6-4, 6-3 in a 412 hour contest. The U.S. victory in the Davis Cup gives the Americans the lead in overall competition for the Cup since it was established in 1900. The United States has won the cup 25 times. Australia 24 and Great Britain 9.

Notre Dame gets its Irish up

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer Whenever Notre Dame's basketball players see Pauley Pavilion, they seem to get their Irish up.

The UCLA Bruins are usually odds-on favorites in their intimidating arena in Los Angeles, but when Notre Dame comes to town, you can throw out all the odds

The Fighting Irish continued to ignore UCLA's homecourt advantage Saturday night when they beat the second-ranked Bruins 81-78 for the third straight year at Pauley and the fifth time in the last six meetings between these college baskeball superpowers.

This is the mecca, this is Yankee Stadium," said a jubilant Digger Phelps, coach of the third-ranked Irish. "Nobody's ever won three games

Kelly Tripucka and Rich Branning led the big Irish victory, each scoring 21 points. Tripucka had five straight points for Notre Dame in the last six minutes to provide the Irish with a 67-62 lead and their eventual winning point.

Kentucky staged a miracle finish, scoring seven points in the last 21 seconds to beat Kansas. The winning point was virtually handed to the Wildcats by Kansas Coach Ted Owens when he was called for a technical foul for exceeding his allotted timeouts at the end. Kyle Macy converted the technical with three seconds left.

Owens blamed not only himself but the officials for the stunning loss

Harvester swimmers snap school records

SAN ANGELO - Pampa High Coach Mike Eckhart said he couldn't have been happier with the performance of his Harvester swimming team here

Graham wins Mexico Cup

MEXICO CITY (AP) -'The 10th hole may have been turning point.' Australia's David Graham said after winning the $210,000 Mexico Cup golf tournament. "I made an excellent save at 10 with a chip shot within four feet, and then I went on to birdie

Graham carded a blistering 5-under-par 67 Sunday for a 72-hole score of 273 and a one-stroke victory over 49-year-old veteran Don January. Graham picked up $40,000 for his first victory since the 1977 Australian Open, and January received

January had started the day with a three-stroke lead over the 32-year-old Australian. But Graham started his final round with two birdies and then shot into the lead on the seventh hole after he birdied and January bogied.

January's bogey on the 18th hole after hitting into a sandtrap ended the neckand-neck battle he had waged with Graham. The score was tied seven times before Janaury faltered on the final green, missing a 5foot putt to save par after a brillant shot out of the trap. Bobby Wadkins turned in a strong 4-under-par 68 for a 276, 12 under par, and good for third place prize money of $10,000.

"I played as well as I could." Wadkins said, "but just had too many close calls all day long in fact."

Tsuneyuki Nakajima, 24, of Japan, carded a 3-underpar 69 and wound up the tournament in fourth with a 10-under 278. He won $8,500 for his efforts.

Leonard Thompson also shot 3-under-par 69 to take fifth place at 279 and a $7,000
