

4 killed in Iran as rioting starts

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Sporadic rioting broke out in Tehran today as Iran observed a second day of mourning for the hundreds killed in the past year of demonstrations against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Four persons were reported killed Sunday, the first day of the two-day mourning period, in riots in Tehran and six other cities. One man was reported wounded by police gunfire in Tehran today.

Hundreds of demonstrators roamed through downtown Tehran in small groups, shouting "Down with the shah!" Mobile troops with riot gear moved quickly to disperse the groups as soon as they formed.

Thousands of mourners gathered at Tehran's main cemetery, and the military kept out of sight there.

In the holy city of Qom, 98 miles south of the capital, 100,000 persons marched through the streets, but no violence was reported.

Commerce, disrupted by strikes and a nationwide fuel shortage, was at a standstill for the second straight day.

Hundreds of protesters demanding the shah's abdication set fires and smashed windows Sunday in Tehran. Military police scattered the mobs with tear gas and gunfire, and one person was killed. The capital had enjoyed comparative calm for the previous four days while Prime Minister Shapour Bakhtiar's new government was installed.

Youths in Tehran shouted a new slogan today, "Bakhtiar strike," apparently a call for a strike to protest the new prime minister's three-day-old government.

The mourning period was called to commemorate the estimated 1,500 persons who have died in the past year of violent opposition to the shah's authoritarian rule and his Westernization program which religious leaders charge undermines the country's Islamic traditions.

The new prime minister and his cabinet of civilians was installed by the shah Saturday, replacing a two-month-old military government.

The state radio said today Bakhtiar's new Cabinet would be presented to Parliament on Thursday, two days behind schedule, and sources said the shah was unlikely to begin his planned vacation until the parliamentary process was complete.

Riots also were reported in Qom, Tabriz, Hamadan, Baneh, Abadan and Khorramshahr.

The new prime minister and his cabinet of civilians was installed by the shah Saturday, replacing a 2-month-old military government.

The 59-year-old ruler hopes that the return to civilian government, the transfer of some of his royal powers to it and the prospect of his leaving the country temporarily will bring an end to the anti-shah violence. But Ayatullah Khomeini, the exiled Shiite Moslem religious leader who is the shah's chief foe, termed the new government "usurping and illegal" and called on his followers to "continue your struggle" until the shah was overthrown.

Oil production was reported to have risen to about 260,000 barrels Sunday, nearly a third of the 900,000 barrels that is needed daily for the country's domestic needs.

The country's oil workers have been on strike for five weeks in support of the demands for the shah's abdication. The strike has caused shortages of gasoline and kerosene in Tehran and other centers and cut off the daily export of 5.5 million barrels of crude oil that is the financial mainstay of the shah's ambitious development program.

Some of the workers are returning to their jobs in response to appeals from Khomeini to resume production for domestic needs. But there is no suggestion of resuming production for export.

Rebels reportedly control Cambodia

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam's Cambodian rebel proteges claim complete control of Cambodia after reportedly capturing the capital of Phnom Penh and driving Premier Pol Pot's government into the countryside, but analysts here said today the government was trying to organize a force to fight the insurgents.

The analysts said the Cambodian leaders were trying to set up a line of resistance near Siem Reap in northwestern Cambodia. The rebels claimed they were in control of the area, about 320 miles northwest of Phnom Penh.

The rebels, led by Heng Samrin, a defector from the Pol Pot government, claimed the local population aided their offensive, but most analysts say Vietnamese troops did most if not all of the fighting.

A communique broadcast by the month-old rebel movement, the United Front for National Salvation, said the "revolutionary armed forces" by noon Sunday "completely liberated" Phnom Penh, and "the dictatorial and militarist regime of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary clique has completely collapsed."

A Chinese government official in Peking said the fall of Phnom Penh had been anticipated by China, the Cambodian government's chief ally, but "Cambodia is fighting on."

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the former Cambodian chief of state who fled from Phnom Penh to Peking Saturday, told a news conference in the Chinese capital that Pol Pot and his government were alive and fighting somewhere in Cambodia. He said the Chinese are in radio contact with them.

President Carter, on the Caribbean island of Guadeloupe after a four-power Western summit, said he had heard Phnom Penh had fallen, but refused to discuss the situation. White House aides said privately that the invasion supported predictions by national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski that the Soviet Union and China would fight a "proxy war" using the armies of their Vietnamese and Cambodian allies.

Oil strike threat still termed real

By JOHN MOSSMAN
Associated Press Writer
DENVER (AP) — The nation's oil workers were told to report to work today, but the threat of a nationwide walkout by the 60,000 refinery workers remained "very real," the union president said.

A. F. Grosipon, president of the Denver-based Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, delayed calling a strike to give further study to a proposal from Amoco, a company trademark of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana).

Grosipon said he and the union's 12-member bargaining policy committee would resume discussion of the Amoco offer today.

If accepted, the Amoco proposal — which reportedly calls for an hourly increase of 73 cents — would represent a wage increase of 8.3 percent.

The increase, if accepted, would violate President Carter's 7 percent wage-fringe benefit guideline. The guideline has been the focus of the contract dispute, with the negotiations marking the first major showdown over it.

Traditionally, an agreement with a major oil company is used as a pattern for settling with the rest of the industry. Some 411 contracts were being negotiated locally with 100 companies, and the national union has final approval over those offers.

Despite the order to return to work, picket lines went up after midnight at a Gulf Oil Corp. refinery in Port Arthur, Texas, and others were anticipated.

No charges filed

CHICAGO (AP) — A 19-year-old Chicago man says he told police that contractor John Wayne Gacy Jr. had bragged of killing people, but he said authorities took no action, saying Gacy was "a solid citizen."

Police investigated the suburban contractor several times between 1975 and 1978, it was reported Sunday, but no felony charges were filed by authorities until bodies were found in Gacy's home.

The burly contractor also was placed under 24-hour surveillance for two weeks in 1976 after a 9-year-old Chicago boy was reported missing. Nothing came of the stakeout, police said.

Gacy allegedly was accused twice of kidnapping and rape — by a 19-year-old Chicago man in December, 1977, and by a 27-year-old Chicago man in March 1978.

"They (the police) would only say there was insufficient evidence. Both the cops and an assistant state's attorney said that he (Gacy) was a solid citizen," the 19-year-old told the Chicago Tribune. At the youth's request, he was not identified.

Assistant State's Attorney Jerry Latherow, who made the decision not to prosecute, said he couldn't explain why no charges were filed because a judge has ordered officials not to discuss the case.

Gacy faces a misdemeanor battery count that was filed in March 1978 by Jeff Rignall, 27, who charged that Gacy abducted him and assaulted him sexually.

Gacy was charged with murder in the death of 15-year-old Robert Piest of Des Plaines on Dec. 22.

News in brief

The forecast for Pampa calls for partly cloudy skies and slightly warmer temperatures today, with the high in the low 30s and the low tonight in the upper teens. Winds will be light and variable today and tonight.

Gas price hike hearing Tuesday

A public hearing on the rate increase proposed by Pioneer Natural Gas Co. will lead off the regular city commission meeting at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in City Hall.

The commission will hear the report of consultants retained to study the increase, and then will consider an additional 30-day suspension of the new rates, which were postponed Oct. 10 for 90 days.

The commission will also conduct a public hearing on amendment of Pampa's cable television franchise.

and transfer of ownership from Merrill Cable TV to Saunons Communications Inc. An ordinance amending the franchise will be considered on first reading.

In addition, a five-person committee to study the recreational needs of the city will be appointed by the commission. Commissioners will also consider the adoption of a plan, submitted to the city by the Pampa Environmental Beautification Foundation, for the development of Inez Carter Park.

Building permits break record

Total building permit fees of $9,994,989 were received by the city in 1978, making it a record year, according to city officials.

"This was probably the biggest single year" for permits, said City Engineer Charles Smith.

The revenue, resulting from 245 permits, is almost triple the $3,906,968 received from 224 permits in 1977. Most of the 1978 revenue — $6,068,789 — resulted from 52 permits for new businesses, 40 of which are associated with the Pampa Mall.

Texas issues abound

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Hairy "Bandidos" will mingle with fundamentalist preachers and pin-striped savings and loan lobbyists in the crowd of Texans trying to sway legislators in the next five months.

True, the 66th Legislature will spend much time in the stratosphere of multi-billion dollar budget, school finance and tax relief questions.

But there will be plenty of issues that are grounded in the flesh-and-blood reality of consumer life, crime, driving a car or motorcycle, renting an apartment, child care, buying an insurance policy, borrowing money or even smoking a cigarette.

Look also for some readily understandable fights over the structure of government, presidential primaries and amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

Motorcyclists already are writing letters to editors opposing the push for restoration of the law requiring them to wear crash helmets.

Since the 1977 Legislature repealed the law for persons 18 and older, the number of motorcyclists killed in traffic accidents has risen sharply, the Department of Public Safety says.

"There's undoubtedly a correlation," said DPS spokesman Jim Robinson.

Bandidos and other cyclists flocked to the Capitol in 1977 to urge repeal of the helmet law, and a rerun is expected now that Rep. Henry Allee, D-Houston, has a bill to mandate helmets again.

Another repeat performance from last session is likely on the issue of child care licensing.

Fundamentalist ministers — led by evangelist Lester Roloff — are expected to push again for a bill dropping the requirement that child care institutions operated in the name of religion be licensed by the Texas Department of Human Resources.

They eked out a tiny margin in the House last session but the bill died in the Senate.

This time, they claim support from Gov.-elect Bill Clements, but Clements contends he made no promise other than to hear them out and consider their case.

Savings and loan associations, claiming Texas' 10 percent ceiling on interest lags behind national trends on real estate loans, will seek an increase to 12 percent.

Mortgage rates nationally are expected to reach 11 percent, they say, arguing that they will be hard-pressed to compete for lendable funds if the Texas rate does not rise also.

Some businessmen will attempt revision of the 1973 Texas Consumer Protection Act, which provides triple damages for victims of deceptive trade practices.

"The business community is very anxious to do something about the treble damages part of the act," said House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Gene Fondren, chief lobbyist for Texas auto dealers, said the law should be changed to penalize only businessmen who deliberately deceive customers. In addition, he said, only those who actually suffer economic harm should receive damages.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said he expects an "assault" on the consumer protection law and, "I'll be working to minimize the damage."

Another attempt likely will be made to rescind the Legislature's ratification of the U.S. Equal Rights Amendment.

"If it is re-introduced, we will do everything we can to see it (a rescission resolution) is passed," said Richard Harvey of Tyler, chairman of the Texas Conservative Union.

He said his organization also would fight ratification of a U.S. constitutional amendment giving Washington, D.C., representation in Congress.

Another major fight likely will be over a presidential primary, something ardently sought by Republicans but to which conservative Democrats have been lukewarm.

Other "people issues" likely to occupy the lawmakers after they convene Tuesday include legislation that would:

— Repeal the 1961 "blue law" that forbids sale of more than 40 categories of merchandise on both Saturdays and Sundays.

THE FRENCH tanker Betelgeuse, which exploded earlier today at the Whiddy Island storage terminal, lies with her back broken while flames and smoke still pour from the ship's central portion. Flaming oil was spilled across the water and police reported 49 persons feared dead. The 121,430-ton ship was moored at a Gulf Oil facility when the explosion tore its side with a blast heard 20 miles.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

A savings isn't a savings

The lead paragraph in a story out of Washington read, "In a move to save taxpayers $3 billion a year, President Carter announced a plan to simplify eligibility requirements for welfare recipients."

Nothing in the story revealed that any programs were to be cut, but the indication was that three billion dollars could be saved through cutting red tape, reducing inefficiencies and obvious fraud.

If there is that much waste and fraud in the single area of welfare, just what might be found in the entire bureaucracy? Granted, the welfare agencies account for a lion's share of funds dispensed by the federal government; but $3 billion going down the drain for no purpose boggles the mind.

We doubt that fraud is the major source of the loss. We would guess that waste and the attempts to prevent fraud take up most of the loss to taxpayers.

Carter told a Health, Education and Welfare conference on fraud, abuse and error in federal programs that cutting red tape will make it easier for needy Americans to receive welfare and easier for government watchdogs to control waste. He ordered those concerned to "head a major effort to streamline the hundreds of complex eligibility requirements."

"We will move to simplify these procedures where it really counts; at the state and local level," Carter said. "Today, the welfare system of one state eats up three billion pieces of paper each year and a thousand different forms. A woman seeking aid in another state had to spend 300 hours in one year filling out paperwork documenting her need."

Georgia Gov. George Busbee said that the basic problem in government aid is not so much thievery by poor benefactors and white collar administrators of federal programs. "The great problem lies in layer upon layer of bureaucracy," he said.

The governor termed the federally supported student loan program as the worst of all complexities, saying, "The Federal government now provides some form of financial support to seven different loan programs." He asked for more leeway for states in administering such programs.

Busbee's stand is well taken but it is not in the best interest of careerists in federal agencies. They thrive on duplication between agencies and overlapping activities within an agency. This is where the potential for growth in bureaucracy resides. The Congress sows the seeds for much of this overlapping by tacking amendments on bills for more functions. These amendments become law with little or no real support from the members of Congress.

In fact, most of these "minor" amendments go through without debate and little or no notice. But here is the seedbed for future growth and expansion of federal agencies. Many of the most costly and useless measures today were planted years ago in these "minor" amendments which went through Congress without notice.

We cannot put all the blame for a bumper crop on the harvesters, if the seeds of unneeded legislation have been planted by our so-called representatives.

Given the seed and the climate to nurture agency growth, the resultant proliferation can only be expected.

Even as we write of this, we can be assured that the ever-ready pressure groups are grinding out much more of the same sort of seed for future bureaucratic expansion.

A boycott is a boycott

At a news conference President Carter said, "I don't personally favor any organized boycotts." This emphatic statement came after Alfred Kahn, new chief inflation fighter, had suggested the idea of a boycott as an anti-inflation tool.

Right after the flat statement, the president then added that he hopes consumers and state and local governments will be "prudent purchasers" and know which businesses are complying with guidelines.

Well a boycott is a boycott and it takes a leader to get one organized. We take it that President Carter is considered by enough people to be their leader to produce the same results, whether it be called organized or not.

The two statements become just another chain in the approach to wage and price controls. The president says he is not in favor of such controls but has been a party to indirect controls which are presently termed "sanctions" by the administration.

By getting local governments into the act these coercive "sanctions" could become a greater means of doing out penalties to non-conformers than any direct laws which could be invoked.

If consumers follow through with the nonboycott "suggestions" there will be created a boycott whip of great magnitude. It is obvious that the president was not rejecting the suggestion of his chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability. He was only trying to make it more palatable to the many Americans who detest the idea of a boycott.

Kahn has some other ideas which would get at the crux of the inflation problem. But these are not popular with most of the government officials for they have to do with cutting the power and the size of the bureaucracy.

He already has embarrassed his peers in the administration by suggesting that less interference by federal regulators might be a constructive help in the inflation fight. He is right on target here and if he could prevail and get something started in the direction of unbloating the bureaucracy he might become a mighty popular fellow with thinking Americans.

However, we do not expect that he will be able to swim against the tide of all-powerful Washington. We guess that he will be kept on the useless track of wage-price "guidelines."

Although it is still claimed that the guidelines are voluntary, they cannot be this and still be coupled with threats of sanctions. Loss of business through governmental sanctions can be a greater threat than anything that would be coupled as penalties to direct laws involving wage-price controls.

The longer the government messes with private enterprise and tries to regulate it, the more inflation we expect. There is no shortcut in undoing the harm of interference already accomplished by the bureaucracy. Inflation is the creature of the government. It will not be cured by its creator.

By OSCAR COOLEY
A not-so-pleasant event of the New Year will be the increase in the price of petroleum decreed by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which supplies 37 percent of the oil consumed in the United States. The rise will be 14.5 percent, which will go into effect in four steps between Jan. 1 and Oct. 1.

This means that a year from now the price of gasoline at the pump will be at least 5 or 6 cents a gallon more than at present. Oil for heating presumably will rise in proportion, as will lubricating oil and that oil which is used as a raw material in making plastics and other products.

This is a substantial increase though not nearly as great as that which was made in 1973. It comes as no surprise. After the 1973 hike, we bought even more oil from the OPEC suppliers than we had been buying. Selling us more barrels of oil, at a sharply higher price per barrel, they profited greatly, so it is only natural that they raise their price again.

Actually, is the OPEC raising the price? Or is our demand for oil pulling the price up? As long as the rising price of a produce does not appreciably discourage the buyers from buying, the price we may be sure will continue to rise.

However, the price of a product never rises infinitely. At some point, the buyers begin to think twice before they take more. They use less. They turn to substitutes. The increase in total purchases slows to a stop.

In the case of oil, this will surely happen, though no one knows at just what price level. The oil companies will quicken their exploration of other sources, such as the Atlantic shelf, the Arctic, China and partially exhausted fields in the U.S. The use of other fuels, such as grain alcohol, will be investigated. Substitutes that up to now have been too remote and costly to be practical suddenly become attractive as the price of petroleum rises.

President Carter and Energy Secretary Schlesinger complain that the OPEC price hike will exacerbate our inflation. Strickly speaking, it won't. A rise in the price of one commodity, due to excess of demand in relation to supply, is not inflation. It is an entirely different breed of cats. Ifflation is an excess of money, that is, of purchasing power for all goods and services. The OPEC has not increased, and cannot increase, our dollars. Its action has nothing to do, directly, with our money supply. Let's not mix the breeds.

However, the OPEC price action will depress—in fact, has already depressed—the value of the dollar in terms of foreign currencies, for it will take more dollars to buy the same amount of OPEC oil. Thus, assuming that we continue to buy the same amount, more dollars will flow abroad and the increased glut of dollars abroad will reduce the value of each dollar. But these dollars will still buy just as much American goods as before. Hence, there will be a tendency for our exports to increase.

Rather than complaining about the action of OPEC, our leaders would do better to facilitate the finding of substitutes for OPEC oil. For example, on Dec. 19, the Department of the Interior auctioned leases to drill on various tracts in the Gulf of Mexico off our southern coast. However, several of the choicest tracts were withheld, much to the disgust of the oil men who are eager to buy them and put their drilling rigs to work.

The government also has been slow to authorize drilling on the Atlantic shelf. Nobody knows whether there are oil and gas there but our biggest oil companies are so confident there is they are ready to risk their capital in drilling for it.

There is much talk of decontrolling the selling price of natural gas so that it will be free to rise, impelling consumers to economize and producers to look for more, but Congress has postponed decontrol until 1985. Why wait?

Recently it was reported that fabulous deposits of oil and gas have been discovered in the Yucatan to Tampico region of Mexico. The United States is the logical market for this oil. And Mexico very much needs our dollars to finance the industry and agriculture which her people sorely lack. What is Washington doing to cooperate with our neighbor to the south in the exploitation of this natural resource?

To protect the environment, Carter's government has imposed restraints on the burning of coal and the development of nuclear energy. We want clean air but not at infinite cost. Our lag in building nuclear power plants has without doubt been one of the encouragements to the OPEC to raise the price of its oil.

These suggest a few of the practical steps that Washington could take to help the American consumer deal with the hard-nosed foreign oil monopoly. The OPEC knows but one rule: Charge all the traffic will bear. Fair enough. But "the traffic," if free to act, has many alternatives. Freedom-increasing policies by our government would be worth far more than official indignation.

Today in history

Today is Monday, Jan. 8, the eighth day of 1979. There are 357 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1815, the last engagement of the War of 1812 was fought as U.S. forces under General Andrew Jackson defeated the British in the Battle of New Orleans.

On this date: In 1679, the French explorer, La Salle, reached Niagara Falls.

In 1918, President Woodrow Wilson outlined 14 points for peace after World War I.

In 1923, France began the military occupation of the Ruhr Valley in Germany.

In 1959, Premier Charles de Gaulle became President of France.

In 1961, two trains collided near Woerden in the Netherlands, killing 91 people.

In 1964, the Star of India sapphire and 23 other gems stolen from the American Museum of Natural History were returned to New York after being recovered from a bus station locker in Miami.

Ten years ago: It was announced that the U.S. unemployment rate was down to 6.3 percent, the lowest since the Korean War.

Five years ago: It was disclosed that high food and fuel costs had pushed U.S. wholesale prices sharply upward in December.

One year ago: A meeting of international bankers at Basel, Switzerland, produced very little confidence that the United States could halt the dollar's steep decline.

Today's birthdays: Former White House aide Sherman Adams is 80 years old. British entertainer David Bowie is 32. Business executive Thomas Watson, Jr. is 65.

What the oil price hike means

Pure poppycock

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Happy New Year, and welcome to a bright and shiny 1979. It may not look like much at the outset, but at least it's still five away from 1984.

Not that anyone should flinch at the approach of that ominous numeral on the calendar. After all, who's afraid of George Orwell in this day and age?

"Big Brother Is Watching You" may have sounded pretty scary 30 years ago when "1984" was first published, but it's obvious by this time that Orwell's dyspeptic vision of the future was pure poppycock.

Here we are, just five years shy of 1984, and nobody is watching us. Unless, of course, you count all those hidden television cameras at the bank, the airport, the department store, and apartment lobby... Our society bears no mass-produced food, vulgar entertainment for the proletarians, constant shortages of essentials like energy and declining standard of living.

Why, hardly a month goes by when the government doesn't report a rise in the personal income of Americans. And if "real" wages are actually falling, because of inflation and taxes, surely that is just a fleeting aberration.

There's no way that "more" could mean "less" in our society; we don't engage in "double-think" or "Newspeak." No lexicographer in 1979 would tolerate the kind of fiddling with the language that "Newspeak" involves... replacing "good" and "bad" with "good" and "ungood," for example.

(Would someone kindly reach in the fridge and get us a soft drink — the Uncola?)

Americans certainly do not all dress alike "in a uniform which was at one time peculiar to manual workers." No manual worker ever wore jeans quite like those on the streets today.

And nobody goes in for the sort of "Physical Jerks" which were expected of the populace in "1984." Can you imagine the snickers that would greet anyone who "mechanically shot his arms back and forth, wearing on his face the look of grim enjoyment which was considered proper during the Physical Jerks..."

(Dear, on your next jog around the block would you stop by the store for some milk?)

The power structure of our society is likewise totally different from the Party oligarchy which ruled Oceania in "1984." In Orwell's book, "the new aristocracy was made up for the most part of bureaucrats, scientists, technicians, trade-union organizers, publicity experts, sociologists, teachers, journalists and professional politicians."

All of those people "had been shaped and brought together by the barren world of monopoly industry and centralized government," a world obviously alien to our own.

Oceania, in "1984" was just one of three world superpowers (the others being Eurasia and Eastasia) that were locked in perpetual warfare which none could ever win, since none dared use atomic weapons.

"None of the three superstates ever attempts any maneuver which involves the risk of serious defeat." Indeed, they spend most of their time shifting alliances among themselves, so that Oceania may one year be at war with Eastasia and aligned with Eurasia, while the next year fighting its erstwhile ally with the aid of the former enemy.

This peculiar lineup, like the rest of "1984," is difficult to imagine in 1979, when "once an enemy, always an enemy" is the prevailing rule. (Mr. President, must you play the China card quite so forcefully?)

All in all, it's a great comfort to reread Prwell's preposterous novel now that 1984 is actually within hailing distance. Big Brother recommends it highly.

Algerian succession

By DON GRAFF

Now it is Algeria's turn.

With the death of President Houari Boumediene, the North African country faces a challenge that has defeated many another revolutionary state: an orderly transfer of power.

Boumediene, the austere soldier-son of a poor farmer, held unquestioned power through 13 of the 16 years since Algeria wrenched its independence from France. What Algeria is today is largely his shaping. And that is:

A firmly Moslem society committed to the building of an indigenous variety of socialism.

A hardliner in the Arab cause against Israel whose effective military efforts are directed westward, against neighboring Arab Morocco.

The possessor of an army equipped by the Soviet Union in which commands are given in the language of the former colonial power, France.

A frequent supporter of the Soviet line in world affairs and standard-bearer for Third World independence from all forms of colonialism, political and economic, which is energetically expanding its own economic ties with the West.

In short, a paradox of a country in many respects, but one in which pragmatism tends to be the chief policy determinant and which has been for the last decade in its domestic politics an exceptionally stable element of the developing world, where such stability is not the rule.

Who is to replace Boumediene is only the first of several questions in the challenge now facing Algeria. There is a national constitution. And there is an official political party—the National Liberation Front, which the constitution empowers to name a president.

But the actual choice almost certainly will be made where real power lies, in the Council of Revolution, comprised of the surviving members of the group of 25 officers who engineered the 1965 coup in which Boumediene came to power. There are only eight members now and, other than Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika, they are not well known to the outside world or the Algerian public.

A larger question is whether Boumediene's successor can fill the Boumediene role. The late occupant created a presidency tailored to his personality and strengths. That power in the hands of a different personality could have very different consequences. In the Soviet Union, for one revolutionary example, a leadership role shaped to a Lenin had particularly gruesome consequences when assumed by a Stalin.

All this is of interest beyond Algeria. The country has economic and geographic significance. It occupies a chunk of North and West Africa, the Saharan heartland, and a strategic stretch of the Mediterranean coast to which NATO commanders are particularly sensitive. The post-Boumediene leadership, by choice or to divert attention from troubles at home, could be tempted to inflame the 3-year-old desert war with Morocco, an additional aggravation of which the world has absolutely no need.

Although not in the same league as Saudi Arabia, Algeria is a major oil producer. The United States is its most important trading partner, importing both oil and increasing quantities of natural gas.

Others than Algerians, thus, have considerable at stake in the Algerian succession. There are some encouraging examples of revolutionary regimes transferring power smoothly. Egypt managed its power transfer from Gamal Nasser to Anwar Sadat with minimal complications. Currently, Kenya in East Africa seems to be keeping its semi-democratic balance following the passing of Jomo Kenyatta.

On the other hand, the venerable revolutionary Soviet Union has yet to demonstrate that it can pull off a power shift without crisis in some degree. And in the People's Republic of China, the succession struggles that began years ago, while Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai were still on the scene, may not yet be settled.

Seizing power and consolidating it in a revolutionary state are one thing. Establishing a system for transferring that power effectively to succeeding generations of leaders without disrupting the state is altogether another.

The history of much of the rest of the world in that respect makes the achievements of the United States two centuries ago look all the more impressive.

Students should be involved in many activities at school without resorting to vandalism, says Mark Lehnick, a Pampa High School senior.

Lehnick is president of the Key Club, a swimmer and a member of both the National Honor Society and concert choir.

"Sometimes I spread myself too thin with my schedule. I'm gone all day but if I wasn't busy, I'd go nuts."

Lehnick also attends church regularly, something that he said has given him strength and confidence.

However, he has no respect for those students who vandalized the house of an assistant principal late last year.

"You know all that stuff that happened to Andrews' Assistant Principal Andy Andrews' house makes me sick.

"I don't understand why they did it, they probably don't know either."

"I could just have died when they pegged it on the senior class," he added, referring to the painted message Class of '79 that appeared near the damage.

But for Lehnick the class goes beyond those actions since he said most members are loyal to the high school.

"I've grown up in Pampa and all I've ever known is that you want to be a Harvester and you die blood and guts to be one. When we lost, it's just like cutting your wrist."

Lehnick gave high marks to the school's new administration which he said has improved things "110 percent." He said Andrews has improved discipline at the school.

Lehnick plans to major in business at Texas Tech at Lubbock next year.

But, he said he wouldn't mind returning to Pampa someday.

He is the son of Ed Lehnick, athletic director at the high school and Enmarie Lehnick, an English teacher at Pampa Middle School.

"My parents are great. I've been blessed to have them. I think that anything that you are is a reflection of your home life."

His sister Debbie, who is majoring in music at West Texas State University, is his only sibling. Lehnick said his sister has given him inspiration to be active in high school because she was like that.

And if Lehnick doesn't say it out loud, he makes it clear that he will miss high school. "You wait to be a senior so long and it goes by so fast."

Fuel could change weather

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Our voracious appetite for fossil fuels could change the world's climate so drastically an overgrown ocean might one day send waves crashing against the steps of the U.S. Capitol in Washington, D.C., scientists suggest.

And while some climate researchers described man-made impacts that could raise temperatures, melt polar icecaps and inundate coastal cities, others warned that nature itself is pushing the world slowly but inexorably toward a new ice age.

The panel outlined some possible weather problems in the world's future at a news conference Sunday during the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"We've had 10,000 or 11,000 years of warmth, and judging from the geologic record, we've just about had our ration," said

John Mercer of Ohio State University. "In the natural course of events we would probably sink gradually into the next ice age."

"But," he said, "the advent of man and his proclivity for fossil fuels may alter the picture somewhat."

He said man may force the climate artificially into the other extreme.

The threat is called the "greenhouse effect," a subject of growing debate over the past two decades. Some scientists warn that the atmosphere is being dangerously overloaded with carbon dioxide, an inevitable byproduct of burning oil, coal and natural gas.

Carbon dioxide acts a bit like the glass walls of a greenhouse — it allows sun's heat to reach the earth, then keeps much of it from being reflected back into space.

Roger Revelle of the University of California at San Diego said some experts predict world energy consumption could within 75 years double the amount of carbon dioxide normally found in the atmosphere. He said that could raise global temperatures an average of more than five degrees (Fahrenheit).

Revelle said that's enough extra heat to melt perhaps 10 percent of the gigantic ice sheets of Antarctica and add incredible amounts of water to the oceans.

The people's pharmacy

Diethylstilbestrol, a tongue twister otherwise known as DES, is a drug that has caused more than its share of suffering. When the final chapter is written in the sad saga of Diethylstilbestrol, the Thalidomide tragedy could be dwarfed in comparison. DES was one of the first synthetic estrogens used clinically. During the 1940s and 50s and even well into the 60s and early 70s doctors prescribed this hormone to pregnant women in the hope of preventing miscarriages. While it was only supposed to be given to women who had already lost a child in pregnancy, it was sometimes employed as a precaution even when the woman had not suffered a previous miscarriage.

By now, most people are well aware of the tale of a research surrounding the prescribing of DES to at least two million women. Between two and four million children of mothers who received this drug have experienced the equivalent of delayed birth defects in the form of genital tract abnormalities and in some cases cancer. Young women who have started reaching maturity have developed vaginal and cervical cancer as a result of a drug their mothers received 20 or 30 years ago. While the number of women who have actually developed cancer is "only" in the hundreds, as many as 80 percent have developed abnormal cellular growth. No one knows what will happen when these women move into middle age.

Female children aren't the only ones at risk. Research recently completed indicates that even the sons of DES mothers may suffer complications including a higher incidence of sterility and unpleasant changes within the genital tract.

The real paradox in this tragic story is that there is little if any evidence to indicate that DES helped prevent miscarriages. That's right, millions of young men and women are suffering the fear of side effects from a drug that may well have no benefit in the first place.

Unfortunately, the story has not reached its sad end. New research has forced investigators to start worrying about a possible cancer risk in the mothers who received the drug. So not only are the offspring at risk but quite possibly two million mothers will have to have regular breast and gynecologic examinations to check for precancerous changes.

The DES horror story still goes on. This drug is being fed to cattle in order to increase their weight through added fat and retained water. It is also used to treat some symptoms of menopause and to suppress lactation in new mothers who do not choose to breast feed their babies. Even worse, young women are still being exposed to this drug as a so-called morning-after contraceptive pill — morning-after pill. A nightmare might be a more appropriate title. It is conceivable that a DES daughter might be given DES again as a morning-after pill. A Health Education and Welfare task force has warned women who were exposed to this drug to try and avoid additional exposure to DES or any other estrogens. That means that birth control pills are out as well as estrogen replacement therapy for menopausal symptoms.

It is time to call a halt to the DES horror show. If DES is a dangerous drug then we certainly don't need it fed to cattle. The drug should be eliminated and the drug companies that made their profits from this medication should pay the costs of following up on the investigation of side effects. They should also help defray the costs for periodic check-ups that between four and six million people will have to undergo regularly for the rest of their lives. We can't undo the damage that has already been done but we can stop it from getting worse.

"Losing Hair? Try This At No Risk"

HOUSTON, Texas—If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss...and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done." But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women that is not only stopping hair loss...but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days...at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in the family," it is certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair, now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days—at their risk—if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail. ADV.

Man faces piracy charges

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — William Bruce Johnson, 29, of St. Paul, Ark., was ordered to appear before a federal magistrate today to face charges of attempted air piracy.

Authorities accused Johnson, unarmed at the time, of trying to hijack a Continental Airlines Boeing 727 Saturday night as it was about to take off for Austin and Houston. The flight had originated in Los Angeles.

An airline official said Johnson boarded the flight in El Paso and was removed after he demanding to be flown to Washington to see President Carter.

The defendant was ordered to stand before U.S. Magistrate Harry Lee Hudspeth for arraignment.

"No weapon was utilized and no weapon was found on Johnson," said FBI Special Agent O. Leon Dobbs.

Wayne Curto, Continental's operations manager in El Paso said Flight 68 continued east after Johnson was removed.

Decoration awarded

AUSTIN (AP) — It was a long wait, but Zollicoffer Rochelle has finally been decorated for "his military service along the Rio Grande when Americans were trying to capture Pancho Villa and in Europe during World War I.

Rochelle, 85, a former second lieutenant, said although he earned the medals, he never got around to applying for them until after he suffered a minor stroke and felt "time was running short."

Texas National Guard officials "said my records had been destroyed in a fire. They kept asking me for more information and more information. Finally, when I decided they had enough, I told them to either give me my medals or forget the whole thing," Rochelle said.

But on Saturday, Maj. Gen. Tomas Thomas S. Bishop, Texas adjutant general, pinned the Mexican Border Campaign Service Medal on Rochelle's suit jacket. Then he added the World War I Victory Medal with three battle clasps.

Fame for the Say Hey Kid

When he broke into major league baseball back in 1951, Willie Mays was known as the Say Hey Kid. When he retired 22 years later, he closed the door on one of the most impressive careers in the history of his sport. Only Hank Aaron and Babe Ruth hit more career home runs than Mays. Later this month, Mays is almost certain to win election to baseball's Hall of Fame. Players must be retired at least five years to be elected into the Hall. If Mays makes it this year, he'll become only the ninth player to be elected in his first year of eligibility.

DO YOU KNOW — With what team did Willie Mays play most of his career?

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have tried for six years to have a child. We've seen many fertility experts, and my husband's urologist now recommends artificial insemination.

We intend to go through with it and have decided to tell absolutely no one, with one exception—my husband's brother, Gene, who was told for a very special reason.

Instead of using sperm obtained at the regular sperm bank, we came up with the idea of using sperm donated by Gene. That way our child will inherit the physical features of my husband's family.

Gene has agreed to cooperate only if his wife approves. Abby, we don't want Gene to tell his wife because we're afraid if she knows that her husband is the biological father of my child it might cause problems later on.

We say it's Gene's sperm and he can do anything he wants with it.

Are we wrong? Or is Gene?

ALL IN THE FAMILY

DEAR ALL: It may be Gene's sperm, but if he wants his wife to know what he's doing with it, it's his right. And unless Gene's wife gives her unconditional approval I advise you to use an unknown donor.

DEAR ABBY: Does a friend have the right to ask for a ride home just when you are getting warmed up at a party? They ask you to drive them to the party and then they spoil it for you by cutting it short.

What do you say when you're having a good time and you'd like to stay a little longer?

FLAMENCO

DEAR FLAMENCO: You say, "I'd like to stay a little longer." (P.S. And the next time a friend begs a ride to a party tell that friend to be prepared to stay until you're ready to leave.)

DEAR ABBY: When you advised that family whose kids were being called atheists on how to defend themselves against the accusation, you seemed to be implying that there was something wrong with being an atheist. Well, I'm an atheist—with no apologies. I happen not to believe that God exists.

But contrary to what many religious people think, I have no desire to impose my disbelief on others or to hinder them from worshipping whatever god or gods they choose. Nor do I think that not believing in God frees me from responsibility to my fellow human beings. I consider myself as moral a person as most believers—and more moral than some I can think of! I'm certainly not a saint, but you don't find many of those in or out of church.

To me, denouncing people as atheists is as offensive and un-American as calling them papists or hebes. What people believe about God—or don't believe—is their own business. My advice to that family would be to tell their neighbors: "Judge us by what we do—not by what you think we believe." Or, in the words of a man whom some think was God and others, including you and me, consider merely a wise and good human being. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

THE MORAL ATHEIST

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ask Dr. Lamb
By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about diverticulitis. Now, I, too, have what the doctors call the American diet disease. But beyond checking me every six months or so and requiring barium tests, my doctor hasn't really given me any advice in regard to diet. Your column mentioned a Health Letter on diverticulosis and I would greatly appreciate your sending it to me. Also, do you have any advice in reference to diet or what I should do about my condition?

DEAR READER — First, for those who may not know what diverticulosis is, it's those pockets of the colon that are so frequent in middle age and in older people. These are really little herniations through the wall of the colon. Each one looks like a small appendix. In fact, when one of these little pockets gets inflamed, since most of them are on the left side, it's often referred to as left-sided appendicitis.

Today most doctors believe that many people with diverticulosis developed the pockets because of increased pressure inside the colon. This, in turn, is caused by poor bowel habits, specifically spastic colon and constipation.

When the colon goes into a spasm, its contents above the area that is clamped off by the spasm stretches like a balloon. It's this constant stretching and pressure which may be a factor in causing diverticulosis.

Now many people do have these little pockets and have no symptoms at all from the diverticula. The symptoms they have are usually related to the underlying spastic colon.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-6, Diverticulosis, that you requested. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

DEAR POLLY — If you have a lame back or stiff knees and have to clean the bathtub take a new string mop, wet it and scrub away after you have sprinkled cleanser in the tub. When the tub is clean rinse with the mop and clear water, drain it out and rinse once more. I even wash walls and woodwork with such a mop. — A.J.

Beauty improvement plan

Lose Weight Through Eight-Week Beauty Plan

(This is the first in a series of 15 articles in which Josephine Lowman, author of "Why Grow Old?" and leading authority on health and beauty, tells you exactly what to do to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks. You may want to save these menus and exercises to refer back to during the eight-week period.)
Goodbye 1978! Hello 1979! Goodbye past! Hello future! It gives us such a special feeling when the bells ring out former disappointments and mistakes and ring in hope and enthusiasm and another chance to reach our goals!

We make great plans for ourselves but time passes so swiftly that we often are spun dizzily toward a new year without having accomplished any of the things we had in mind. That is why we make New Year's resolutions. We say to ourselves, "This year will be different." And it can be different!

One of the most common resolutions women make is to lose overweight. Therefore I bring you my eight-week Beauty Improvement Plan (BIP for short) at this time in order to help you activate that determination. By following the course you can lose from 15 to 20 pounds in eight weeks. In just eight weeks you can feel and look 10 years younger than you do now.

This is how it works. For the next nine days I will bring you slimming menus with the calories already counted for you. I also will print the grocery lists ahead of time so that you can have the necessary foods on hand. The menus will appear a day ahead of time. During these two weeks I will help you discover how much you should lose, what measurements should be adjusted and bring you much more information to launch you successfully on your reducing trek. After that I will join you each Monday for the following six weeks with lots of encouragement and direction.

GROCERY LIST FOR TUESDAY JAN. 9 AND WEDNESDAY JAN. 10.

MEAT AND FISH: 4 ounces sirloin beef, 1/2 package bacon (store unused portion in freezer), 3 ounces thinly sliced lean roast beef (deli), 8-ounce fish fillet or fish steak (may be half of 1 pound frozen).

DAIRY: Small container small curd cottage cheese, 1 quart skim milk.

FRESH VEGETABLES OR FRUITS: One each cucumber, onion, lemon, bunch of parsley and watercress; 2 medium-sized potatoes, 8 large mushrooms, 1 medium tomato.

FROZEN VEGETABLES OR FRUITS: One package each melon balls, chopped spinach, chopped broccoli, asparagus spears.

DRY GOODS: 4 ounces canned salmon, low calorie mayonnaise, small can crushed pineapple packed in its own juice, dill pickles, prepared mustard.

SEASONINGS: Dried basil, small jar pickled capers, ground ginger, soy sauce, paprika.

OTHER: Farina cereal, small loaf thinly sliced fiber or whole wheat bread, wheat pancake mix.

MENU FOR TUESDAY BREAKFAST

Melon balls: 1/2 cup (frozen).
Farina: 1 cup cooked (with artificial sweetener if desired).
Skim milk: One 8-ounce glass.
Black coffee or tea with lemon.

LUNCH

Salmon salad sandwich: Mix 2 ounces canned salmon with 1 tablespoon small curd cottage cheese, 1/4 teaspoon dried basil leaves and a dash of pepper. Cover one thin slice of bread with thin cucumber slices. Top with salmon mixture. Top with 3 or 4 very thin onion rings and 1 tablespoon capers. Squeeze a bit of fresh lemon juice over it. Cover with second slice of bread spread with 1 teaspoon mayonnaise.

DINNER

Teriyaki steak: Marinate for two hours a 4-ounce slice of beef sirloin in the following mixture — 2 tablespoons soy sauce, 2 tablespoons water, 1/2 teaspoon sugar, one-third teaspoon ground ginger. Turn frequently. Broil (9 minutes on each side for medium doneness; a 3/4-inch cut).

Boiled potato: One medium, seasoned with parsley.

Broccoli and spinach: 1/2 cup each chopped broccoli and spinach, mixed. Add a touch of tarragon vinegar.

Skim milk: One 8-ounce glass.

One reason this program is so popular is because women have a definite goal to shoot for and know what they can achieve in a certain length of time. Also, they have the company of thousands of others who have accepted the challenge of self-improvement.

Tomorrow I will help you adjust the menus to your individual situation.

If you would like to have the BIP kit which gives you two weeks of new and delicious reducing menus, exercises, a calorie chart and a wall chart on which you can plot your progress and watch your beauty line rise as your weight line drops, send $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the BIP kit to Josephine Lowman, in care of this newspaper.

NEXT: BEAT INFLATED HIPS

Improve your arms, bust and back

Stand facing a desk, table, dresser or counter with your feet far enough away so that your arms are straight when you place your hands on it. Lean in a straight line as you bend your elbows and bring it as close to the counter as you can. Straighten elbows as you push away from the object. Continue slowly for six times at first. This exercise is excellent for your arms and bustline. It also stretches the back-leg muscles.

When you purchase a vacuum cleaner, take advantage of the labor-saving tools that come with it. In addition to preserving your rugs and carpets, tools can help keep draperies, lampshades and furniture free of dust and thoroughly clean such things as radiators, venetian blinds and dust-collecting crevices.

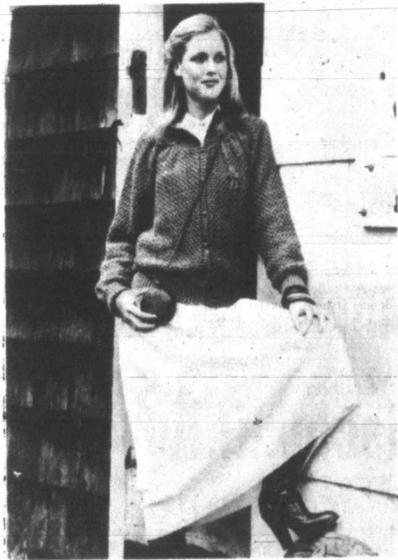

Here's an answer to the ball-point ink problem: Apply hairspray to the stain and let dry before laundering. For better results, first scrape off any surface ink from the fabric. If any stain still remains, repeat the process.

Scratches on dark wood furniture can often be masked with the meat of a freshly shelled walnut. Rub it on the scratch until the oil of the nut permeates the wood.

Heed these safety tips from the Eureka vacuum cleaner people: To avoid the chance of fire, don't pick up fireplace ashes with your vacuum's attachments; exercise caution when vacuuming indoor-outdoor carpeting on bathroom or kitchen floors. Using a vac on a damp surface can produce shocks.

If your windows need a winter spruce-up, use a one-half alcohol, one-half water solution. Your windows will sparkle without freezing up.

The type of floor covering you select for your new home should influence your vacuum cleaner purchase. A home with low nap area rugs and lots of bare floor space will be well served by a canister. An upright or a Power Team with a beater bar brush head is best for shags, thick pile rugs and large expanses of wall-to-wall carpeting.

THE CARDIGAN goes to work as part of the career woman's wardrobe. Crochet-stitch cardigan, made in 100 percent Creslen acrylic fiber, is shown with a slim skirt to complete the look. When you want to dress it up for an evening out, exchange the brief case for a little lizard shoulder bag and you're ready to go.

Fashion and Beauty Tips

Night nails

Don't be afraid of purple iridescent nail polish. It's what goes at night this spring with iridescent cottons.

Slit limits

A skirt slit up to here is fine for evening, but be sure you can sit well in one during the day, without pulling at it.

Prudent protection

Cushioned insoles are a good idea in jogging shoes, to protect feet from short, quick stops.

Hosiery hint

Make sure there's no skin showing between a short boot and a skirt. Hide it under textured hose.

New with narrow

Over a narrow skirt, try a short, chunky jacket for new interest.

Better blended

To avoid foundation smears on collars, stop applying it just below the jaw line and blend well.

Better belt bet

A dressy cord belt looks fine with a dress but won't work with jeans. Try a leather or canvas belt instead.

Antique treat

That antique blouse your grandmother left you is just the thing for a tailored suit by day, and a side-slit skirt at night.

Recession postponed

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Well here we are, in the second week of the new year, and the big recession hasn't even shown up on the radar screen. One of the big-name forecasters, Data Resources, has just announced a postponement: its forecast now calls for the downturn to begin no sooner than summer, instead of a full quarter earlier. But it's out there in the future, we are told. A big national bank advises clients in its newsletter that "just because something has not yet occurred does not mean that it will not happen." Meanwhile, the seers are compelled to tell their followers that "housing (or cars, or department store sales, or incomes or industrial production) defies the forecasters." What really has happened, and it should be pointed out unmercifully, is that a good many of the forecasters simply miscalculated, pouring into their computers a bagful of assumptions that just weren't real. You can't bake a good cake unless you estimate the ingredients properly before mixing and putting it in the oven. Once you've gone that far you have to trust to the oven and your recipe. The factors that have postponed it — primarily consumer insistence on buying despite rising prices and interest rates — are viewed as adding to the imbalances that must eventually be resolved by a downturn.

Candidates need rules

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Before long, Ronald Reagan and other likely contenders for the Republican presidential nomination will have to face the question of when is a politician a candidate. The Federal Election Commission, which makes the rules that govern such decisions, isn't quite sure. The answers are critical, because federal law places strict limits on presidential campaign financing. The rules, however, are much more lax for the political activities of a private citizen.

The amount a candidate can spend in each primary state is limited. The size and source of each donation is restricted. But a prominent public figure may be paid for speaking engagements and have his expenses picked up with only the tax collector to answer to. The law defines a candidate clearly enough. The problem is separating the candidate's campaign activity from his role as an important person in his own right speaking on current issues. Reagan, for example, is chairman of Citizens for the Republic, a political action committee formed with leftover money from his 1976 presidential campaign. As chairman and as a nationally recognized conservative spokesman, he travels almost constantly speaking on behalf of conservative causes and candidates. The committee pays all his expenses. Rep. Philip Crane, R-Ill., an announced candidate, is chairman of the American Conservative Union, and the FEC has ruled he can continue in that role as long as he keeps it separate from his campaign. Crane has agreed to stop taking ACU compensation for appearances on its behalf, but whoever invites him may still pay his expenses. The speaking invitations Crane receives as the organization's chairman undoubtedly are helpful for a relatively unknown candidate seeking public recognition. But as long as they are not called campaign speeches, they are not counted against his campaign spending limits. Several other potential candidates have formed political committees to support their activity as they speak on behalf of the Republican Party and its candidates.

Computer system wanted for state budgeting

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Legislators have dreamed for two years of possessing the kind of computer magic that could reveal in a split second how much money bureaucrats spend on, say, pencils.

But lawmakers will have to do without their Legislative Information System of Texas (LIST) during the 1979 session. Coopers and Lybrand, an international accounting firm, says it has spent over $340,000 trying to make the dream come true but won't go a step farther until it is paid.

House Speaker Bill Clayton says the state won't pay a dime until it gets some results.

Paradoxically, Clayton is a strong believer in some sort of computer system to store vast quantities of data about state agency spending and regulate them at a legislator's touch of a button.

The state of Washington has such a system, he said, adding: "They love it. It does wonders with their budget process."

A major benefit of such a system, former Clayton aide Jack Gullahorn says, is its ability to adapt data to a model, to answer "what if" questions.

Legislators who deal closely with the budget process — in the House, all 150 members — usually labor with only the foggiest idea of where the money goes.

Major categories of spending are blended together into lump sums that legislators find hard to relate to the realities — so many secretaries, so many reams of paper, so many sheets of postage stamps.

Past spending can provide a clue as to what legislators should allow in the future.

Despite the problems with Coopers and Lybrand, a House appropriations subcommittee concluded this fall that the "Interactive Budget and Monitoring System" should be pursued.

"The IBMS system proposed will provide an easily utilized information system of budgets, revenues, expenditures and non-fiscal information data bases, accessed directly by members and committees" and most critically — "by-passing agency interpretation," the subcommittee report said.

A legislative resolution in 1977 made the Senate and House partners in the study of such a system, but Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby pulled out.

"The most diplomatic way to put it is that in the time constraints we are working in, we are not sure of the value in relationship to the cost," said Don Rives, Hobby's executive assistant.

The state auditor's office and Hobby researcher Lynn Moak also were critical of the project in reports filed early last year.

Coopers and Lybrand had informed the Legislature in July 1977 that it had completed preparations and could have the IBMS in place before the 1979 legislative session began.

But last spring, Clayton told the firm to stop work pending a review of what it had accomplished — a review that has yet to be completed.

On May 31, 1978, Coopers and Lybrand presented the House a new proposal, saying it was 70 percent finished with "Phase

A" — creation of a data bank on five of the largest state agencies.

The accounting firm said it would finish Phase A only when it had received "the outstanding balance due Coopers and Lybrand for work already done in Phase A," plus a "perpetual software license agreement between the state of Texas and Coopers and Lybrand."

Coopers and Lybrand said the state owed $291,400 plus a "restart cost" of $52,250, or a total of $343,650.

It said its proposed system could perform dozens of functions, including:

— Encrypt data to render it non-intelligible to unauthorized users.

— Sort 96 categories of expenditure data and display desired information on legislative computer terminals. Expenditure data would include employee overtime, postage, state contributions to insurance and retirement plans, drugs and chemicals for state labs and hospitals, professional services and grants to schools.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

January 9, 1978
 You may not choose the easiest of courses to follow this coming year, but you'll enjoy every minute of the challenge you set for yourself. What's more, the self-discipline you learn will help you achieve bigger and better things.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 Coworkers will find ways to keep their skirts clean and place the blame of things going wrong on you today, if you assume a dictatorial position. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you in 1979? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing $1 for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
 Others may find you difficult to understand today because of your reluctance to go along with them as usual. Don't be surprised if they don't like it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
 All issues on the domestic scene should be handled as diplomatically as possible today. If adjustments are needed, try to go along with the majority.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 Exercise tolerance if coworkers feel their interests should take priority over yours. You can often get ahead quicker by keeping out of everyone's way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Be careful you don't delegate responsibilities to those who cannot be relied upon. Their laxity will rob you of something you badly wanted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 This is the wrong day to be shy and retiring. A competitor eagerly awaits the chance to take over something that's rightfully yours the minute you relax.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 There's a strong possibility you'll have to contend with one who is asserting himself in righteous indignation today. It's best to keep quiet and say nothing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 Don't expect others to give more of themselves than you're prepared to give. You'll have to set the example if you want them to follow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 It might surprise you how far you can make things stretch if you'll just try to make the most of what you have today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
 Although it's not like you, you might not have the courage of your convictions today. Thoughts you normally feel strongly about won't be voiced.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
 Don't do anything today against your better judgment or principles to even an old score. It will only further complicate the issue.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
 Don't be materialistic with friends today, and avoid those who are. Unpleasantness you'd long regret could result.

Dallas to meet Steelers in Super Bowl

Cowboys crush Los Angeles

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Breunig, the 225-pound middle linebacker for the Dallas Cowboys, readily admits his defensive cohorts played great against the Los Angeles Rams, but he says they'll have to be better in the Super Bowl.

The defending National Football League champions qualified for Super Bowl XIII on Sunday by whipping the Rams 28-0 with four touchdowns in the second half, the first two coming after interceptions by safety Charlie Waters.

The Cowboys will face American Football Conference champion Pittsburgh, a 34-5 winner over Houston Sunday, at Miami on Jan. 21.

"The defense did it," said quarterback Roger Staubach, who threw two touchdown passes. "Their defense did an excellent job and so did ours."

"It was a good, alert, tough and aggressive game on our defense," said Breunig, an All-America from Arizona State. "I think it was our best defensive effort of the season."

"They didn't do anything we hadn't expected. Los Angeles has been that way. Pittsburgh is kind of that way and Pittsburgh is awesome. We'll have to put up at least the same defense performance and more to play with the Steelers."

Dallas put a tremendous pass rush on Rams quarterback Pat Haden, who left the game late in the third quarter with a broken right thumb.

He was hurt when hit by defensive tackle Randy White, who had put fullback John Cappelletti out of the game in the first quarter with a shoulder injury.

The halftime score was 0-0, a tribute to the defenses.

Then, early in the third period, Charlie Waters picked off a Haden pass at the Rams' 30 and returned to the 9. Aided by a penalty, the Cowboys scored in five plays. Tony Dorsett circling right end from four yards out for the score.

Later in the period, on the play in which Haden was injured, Waters intercepted at the Los Angeles 49 and returned 29 yards to the 20. A Staubach-to-Preston Pearson pass gained 17 and the touchdown came on a 4-yard pass from Staubach to fullback Scott Laidlaw.

Then the Rams seemed to come alive with a 65-yard pass play from Vince Ferragamo to Willie Miller carrying to the Dallas 10. On the next play, however, Cullen Bryant fumbled and Harvey Martin recovered for the Cowboys.

Dorsett promptly broke loose for 53 yards and six plays later Staubach found Billy Joe DuPree with an 11-yard touchdown pass.

The Cowboys' final touchdown came on a 68-yard return of an intercepted pass by Thomas Henderson.

All told, the Rams had seven turnovers, five on pass interceptions and two on fumbles and the Cowboys scored following four of them.

Coach Tom Landry, aiming for a second straight Super Bowl title, commented, "I was a little anxious after the first half. I thought turnovers would make the difference and that someone would take charge in the third quarter. It was a great defensive battle."

"Defense sparked the game. Charlie Waters reflected our defense. He was that good. We had the good rush and intensity. I thought the receivers were open on each play. Charlie made the great play on both."

Waters still remembers five years ago when Harold Jackson, then with Los Angeles, burned him for four touchdowns in a half and said that made him a better player.

He described his interceptions this time.

"Haden had thrown a sideline pass to Terry Nelson earlier and had confidence in the play. They lined up with two wide receivers on one side and the tight end (Nelson) on the other. I broke underneath to get the ball."

"On the second, we faked a maximum blitz and I broke in front of the receiver."

"I think the biggest thing we had going for us was the two missed Los Angeles field goals."

Rookie Frank Corral, the leading scorer in the NFL this season, had missed three-point tries of 39 and 45 yards.

Coach Ray Malavasi of the Rams said, "When we lost John Cappelletti, that really slowed down our running game."

The coach took the blame for a fourth-and-one gamble that failed in the third quarter with the Cowboys leading 7-0.

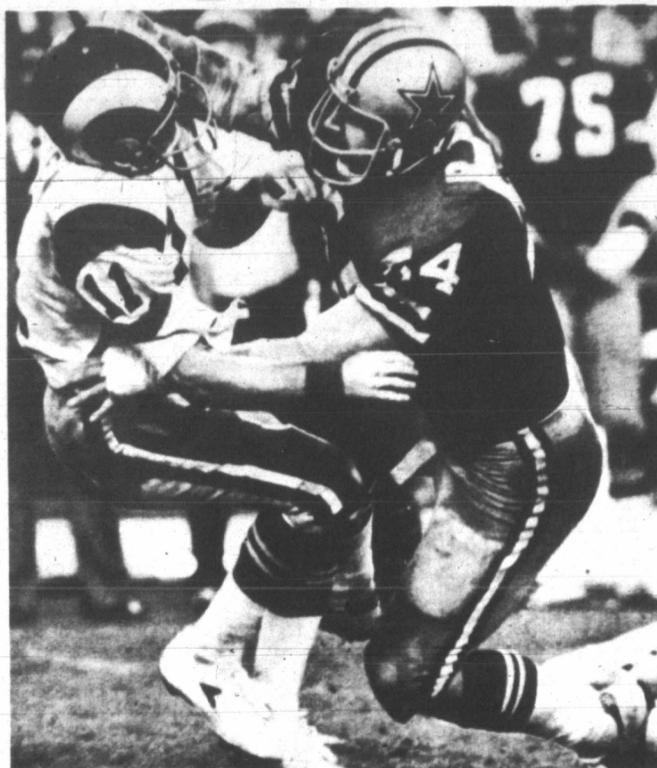

Los Angeles had the ball at the Dallas 14 when Jim Jøht was stopped by Larry Bethea for no gain and the Cowboys took possession.

"We went for it because I wanted a touchdown," Malavasi said. "I had told the team the night before that we would go for it if we got in that situation. We had a shot to make it, but our back did not hit the right hole. The hole was to the left, but he ran up the middle."

Malavasi added, "It hurt us to lose our quarterback although Pat was not having one of his better days. It is tough for a player like Vince Ferragamo to go in there cold."

"At times we threw the ball well and had some good plays, but we just didn't play well in the second half."

Both the Cowboys and Rams finished the regular season with 12-4 records, and Dallas now has won its last eight games, having downed Atlanta in its playoff opener last week.

Pittsburgh downs Oilers, 34-5

By GARY MIHOCS
AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The field got wet, and it got slicker. The ball got slick, and it got slicker.

"We got behind — and we got behind." Coach Bum Phillips said Sunday after his Houston Oilers lost 34-5 to the Pittsburgh Steelers in an American Football Conference title game marked by continuous, cold rain and torrential turnovers.

There were 12 fumbles, six by each side. That's more than any two teams have ever had in an AFC or an NFC championship game, before or after the merger.

Yet the Steelers are bound for a Jan. 21 Super Bowl rematch with the Dallas Cowboys because the water, the Oilers and an intestinal virus failed to stop Terry Bradshaw, who fittingly spent the days before the game on a liquid diet.

"Once I went out to warm up I got so pumped up you never would have known I was sick," said Bradshaw, who fired two touchdown passes in a 17-point outburst in the last 52 seconds of the first half that gave the Steelers a 31-3 intermission lead.

"The field was a mess, and the ball was totally saturated. I guess I just got real lucky," said Bradshaw, who hit 11 of 19 passes for 200 yards to raise his career postseason passing total to 2,432 yards, an NFL record. The old mark of 2,398 was held by Ken Stabler of Oakland.

Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini, who again wore a flak jacket to protect his cracked ribs, might have worn a life jacket. He threw five interceptions and was sacked four times.

"Pittsburgh beat us, not the weather," Pastorini said.

Houston, a wild-card playoff entry after finishing runnerup to Pittsburgh in the AFC Central, ran rookie sledgehammer Earl Campbell off the right side to open the game. Linebacker Jack Ham slammed Campbell for a 3-yard loss, and right there Steelers tackle Joe Greene smiled inside.

"That's been a big play for Houston all season. When Jack stopped it like that, I thought, 'Well, this is the way the game is gonna be,'" said Greene.

On the first Steelers series, Bradshaw's 34-yard toss to Lynn Swann set up a 7-yard Franco Harris touchdown run for another record. Harris now has 13 touchdowns in NFL playoff games, extending his own record.

Campbell later lost a fumble that set up a 15-yard touchdown run by Rocky Bleier that put Pittsburgh on top 14-0 with 1:09 left in the first quarter.

"All my life I've tried to be a champion, but today it wasn't to be," said Campbell, who recovered two more of his own fumbles while netting 62 yards on 22 rushes.

Toni Fritsch's 19-yard field goal, set up by Harris' fumble, cut the Pittsburgh lead to 14-3 in the second quarter, and Houston intercepted two Bradshaw passes in the end zone to keep it close most of the first half.

Then it happened.

"It was almost like a basketball game where you have turnovers and one team gets a lot of points in a hurry," said Houston cornerback Willie Alexander.

Houston's Ron Coleman fumbled and Pittsburgh drove 69 yards for a touchdown that came on a 29-yard pass to Swann with 52 seconds left before halftime.

"I could not feel the ball. My hands were numb," said Swann. "On the touchdown pass, I looked the ball in, but I never felt it."

That put the Steelers ahead 21-3. Pittsburgh fans celebrated by twirling their soggy "Terrible Towels."

Moments later, Houston's Johnnie Dirden fumbled away the kickoff. Bradshaw threw 17 yards to John Stallworth for another touchdown. There were still 33 seconds left in the half.

The Oilers held the ensuing kickoff, but on the next play from scrimmage Coleman fumbled again, setting up Roy Greer's 37-yard field goal four seconds before halftime to make it 31-3.

Insolo sets record

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Jimmy Insolo of Mission Hills, Calif., set a track record for stock cars Sunday as he qualified on the pole for next Saturday's Stock Car Products 300 NASCAR Grand American race at Riverside International Raceway.

Insolo's average speed was 117.585 miles per hour.

Angry Barber threatens Wagner

PITTSBURGH (AP) — He later got tight-lipped, but Houston Oilers tight end Mike Barber made some angry threats after being cut down by a knee injury in a playoff loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The target of the threats, made on the field and in the locker room, was the man who hit him, Steelers safety Mike Wagner.

"I'm gonna get him ... He won't play in the Super Bowl," Barber yelled as he limped into the Oilers' locker room.

"What's he gonna do, wait for me in the driveway?" Wagner calmly responded later after saying the hit was done only in self-protection and purely part of the game.

The threat wasn't made personally to Wagner. Barber, shouted it to Steeler captain Joe Greene, who was outside the Oiler locker room offering handshakes after Houston's 34-5 loss here Sunday in the American Football Conference title game.

Barber was so angry he mistakenly referred to Wagner as "Webster."

"You tell that Webster that he's a cheap shot ..." said Barber, continuing the sentence with a string of unprintables.

"I'm gonna get him," he told Greene.

Barber was hurt on the first play of the second quarter on a long, incomplete pass over the middle. He and Wagner both raced for the ball. It sailed over Barber's head, then Wagner lowered his shoulder and chopped Barber down at the knee.

Barber did not return to the game.

"I'll get him back," Barber repeated inside the Oiler locker room. "And when I do, he won't play a game again."

About a half hour later, Barber was approached again by other reporters.

"I don't want to say anything," he said. "I'm so filled with anger right now that anything I say wouldn't be the real me."

After he was helped off the field, Barber pointed a finger at Wagner and yelled at him. He also yelled at him several times during the game.

"That's really smart. If that's his mentality, fine," said Wagner. "I can't worry about that."

Harvies to open district race Friday

Junior high basketball kicks off the sports activity for Pampa teams in the second week of 1979. All three teams are in action this afternoon.

The eighth and ninth grade girls teams will travel to Stanton this afternoon for their only action of the week, while the boys Blue teams will journey to Plainview. The boys Red teams will host Stanton at the Middle School this afternoon at four.

Pampa's girls varsity cagers will host Borger and Hereford this week, while the Hustling Harvesters travel to Borger Tuesday and begin their district competition at Caprock Friday night.

Pampa's swimming team will end nearly a month's layoff when it hosts Lubbock Monterey and Coronado in a 10:30 meet Saturday morning at the Pampa Youth and Community Center.

This week's sports calendar:

Gustafson dead at 75

MIAMI (AP) — Andy Gustafson, the colorful University of Miami football coach associated with some of the sport's most legendary heroes, is dead at age 75.

Gustafson died Sunday, a month after he suffered a stroke following kidney stone surgery. He entered Doctors Hospital Dec. 4 for the routine surgery, but suffered a stroke and developed pneumonia.

Gustafson coached the Hurricanes from 1948 through 1963, compiling a record of 93-65-3. He took Miami to four bowl games and coached the only Hurricane team ever to go unbeaten in 1950. That team lost to Clemson in the Orange Bowl.

He coached the famed Army backfield of Doc Blanchard, Glenn Davis and Arnold Tucker while serving as offensive backfield coach for Red Blaik in the 1940s. He played fullback at the University of Pittsburgh under the legendary Glenn "Pop" Warner and then Jack Sutherland in the mid-1920s.

After his playing days ended, Gustafson became head coach at Virginia Tech, where he compiled a four-year record of 22-13-1. He then returned to Pitt as an assistant coach, and in 1934 became an assistant to Blaik at Dartmouth. He joined Blaik at Army in 1941.

Gustafson was a close friend of professional football's Paul Brown, and recruited Brown's son, Robin, as a quarterback for Miami.

During his Miami tenure, the Hurricanes became a national power and began playing one of the nation's toughest schedules. In 1963, he became athletic director and served through 1968 when he retired.

Winter has bad weekend

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Tex Winter had a bad weekend in Raleigh, N.C. First he was upset. Then he was embarrassed.

The coach of the 15th-ranked Long Beach State basketball team was simmering Friday night after an offensive foul called against his team in the closing seconds resulted in a 79-78 loss to No. 5 Duke.

Then Saturday night, he was just plain humble after a 100-73 pasting by No. 8 North Carolina State.

"North Carolina State is the best basketball team we've played to date," Winter said. "They are especially tough on their home court. They do so many things well. They're maybe not as physical as Duke, but they're quicker."

The 49ers won nine straight games before losing their first two of the season in Raleigh. Duke won the other half of Saturday night's double-header at the Wolfpack's arena, beating Tulane 74-64.

Three Top Twenty teams were upset in weekend action — No. 13 Michigan losing to Iowa 85-79, No. 18 Mississippi State suffering a 69-67 defeat at the hands of Georgia, and No. 20 Maryland dropping a 66-60 decision to Wake Forest.

Elsewhere, top-ranked Michigan State defeated Minnesota 69-62, No. 2 Notre Dame stopped Villanova 75-64, No. 3 North Carolina tripped Virginia 86-74 in two overtimes, No. 4 Illinois swept past Northwestern 74-56, No. 6 UCLA whipped Rutgers 79-57, No. 7 Louisiana State trimmed No. 9 Kentucky 93-89, No. 11 Indiana State beat West Texas State 98-77, No. 12 Georgetown hammered Samford 73-50, No. 14 Arkansas nipped Houston 62-61, and No. 16 Louisville turned back Southwestern Louisiana 73-60.

Kendal Pinder and Clyde Austin combined for 38 points to lead North Carolina State's attack against Long Beach State. The Spartans held a 54-39 halftime lead.

Mike Gminski and Gene Banks each scored 22 points to lead Duke past Tulane.

Ronnie Lester scored 29 points, including six straight free throws in the final 90 seconds, to lead Iowa's upset of Michigan. Mark Slonaker's controversial tip-in at the last second led Georgia over Mississippi State. Mississippi State claimed the shot came after time ran out.

Frank Johnson and Mark

Dale combined for 41 points to help Wake Forest upset Maryland, ending an eight-game win streak for the Terps.

Ron Charles scored 19 points to lead Michigan State over Minnesota. The Spartans came back from a 13-point deficit behind their leading man, out-scoring the Gophers 27-8 at one stretch in the second half.

Kelly Tripucka scored 26 points to lead Notre Dame past Villanova. Mike O'Koren's 22 points helped North Carolina beat Virginia. The regulation game was tied at 62-62 and the first overtime at 69-69 before the Tar Heels outscored their Atlantic Coast Conference colleagues 11-1 over the final 2:11 to record their 10th victory in 11 games.

Mark Smith's 16 points led undefeated Illinois over Northwestern for its 14th straight victory.

Brad Holland and Kiki Vandeweghe combined for 33 points, leading UCLA's conquest of Rutgers. The Scarlet Knights scored only 17 points in the first half.

DeWayne Scales scored 25 points as LSU beat Kentucky for the first time in history at Lexington. Larry Bird's 32 points and 20 rebounds led Indiana State over West Texas State. John Duren scored 23 points and Eric Floyd added 19 as Georgetown whipped Samford.

Oilers met by mob of 40,000

HOUSTON (AP) — More than 40,000 cheering fans greeted the Houston Oilers football team Sunday night, despite the fact the Oilers had just returned from a one-sided loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers in the American Conference championship game.

"I really can't believe it," said tackle Greg Sampson as he entered the Astrodome where the crowd had gathered, responding to a local radio station's call for a pep rally for the Oilers when they return whether they win or not.

Actually the crowd had been waiting for two and a half hours in the domed stadium, because the Oilers' flight back to Texas was delayed.

THE FOOTBALL splashes loose from Houston Oiler Johnnie Dirden (81) and Pittsburgh's Rick Moser (39) lunges for the ball during the kickoff Sunday in the AFC championship game in Pittsburgh. Pittsburgh won 34-5 and will face Dallas in the Super Bowl Jan. 21.

Miracles sting Cougars

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

The Houston Cougars have seen just about all the miracles they can stand.

A week ago in the Cotton Bowl Notre Dame stormed from behind 34-12 to nip the Cougar football team 35-34 in the Cotton Bowl.

And Saturday night, trailing 21 points in the first half, Arkansas rallied for an incredible 62-61 victory over Houston in a Southwest Conference basketball opener for both teams.

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton said "I don't believe I've had such a great thrill. I've coached a long time and don't believe I ever had a team give 49 points in the first half before. And I told them about it at halftime."

"In the last half, I don't believe I ever had a team perform better. This is how championships are won. We told the kids to be patient and to play hard. They did that and came back."

But it wasn't a "kid" who led Arkansas back. It was salty senior Sidney Moncrief who scored 25 points, including 11 straight free throws, and pulled down 13 rebounds. He scored five points in the last 41 seconds.

Arkansas scored 19 straight second half points. And center Steve Shall hit eight of nine shots from the field and scored 14 of his 16 points in the second half.

Arkansas, Baylor, and surprising Texas Tech held the early lead atop the SWC standings.

The Texas Aggies get into the fray tonight by hosting Baylor while Texas is at Houston and SMU is at Rice.

Texas Tech ripped Texas 92-74 Saturday while Baylor downed Rice 64-52. The TCU-SMU game was postponed.

Paced by three recruits of Coach Gerald Myers, the Red Raiders crushed Texas.

The Red Raiders shot a sizing 62 per cent for the game to scorch the Longhorns.

Myers said "I think we played the best 40 minutes that we've played this season. We've had a bunch of great halves, but today's game was the best we've played in both halves of any game."

Texas Coach Abe Lemons concurred, saying "they have the best young talent I've seen... they are hungry, good players... the best group of players I've seen together in a long time. They did a great recruiting job."

Such newcomers as Ben Hill, Jeff Taylor and David Little proved too much for the veteran Longhorns who have four of their five starters back from last year's 21-6 team.

Little kept the Red Raiders in the game early and Hill and Taylor took over in the second half. Hill and Taylor combined for 15 straight points. Hill scored 14 for the game and Taylor had 12.

Horner close to signing

ATLANTA (AP) — Bucky Woy, the agent for Bob Horner in his negotiations with the Atlanta Braves, told the Atlanta Journal-Constitution Sunday that the National League club has moved closer to signing the 1978 Rookie of the Year.

Woy met with Braves' General Manager Bill Lucas in Dallas last Friday, and said afterwards, "I'm really pleased. Maybe we're not too far from signing."

The newspaper said both Woy and Lucas indicated a contract could be signed this week.

"The meeting was a good one," said Lucas. "We made a lot of progress. I expect we'll be able to get something signed soon."

Last November, Woy asked for a three-year, $1 million contract for his client, who went straight from the Arizona State campus into major league baseball to hit 23 home runs for the Braves in 89 games last summer.

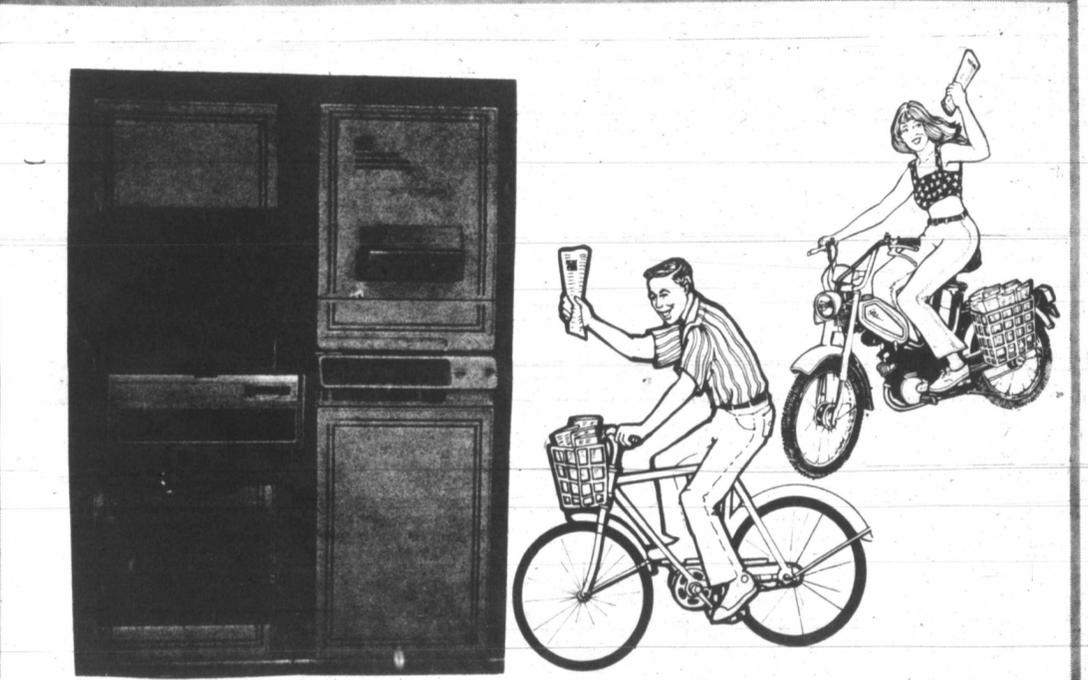

At that time, the Braves were offering a one-year contract for $100,000, including incentive bonuses.

WHAT'S TIMING?
TO MY MIND IT'S THE PRODUCT OF TEMPO AND RHYTHM. TEMPO IS THE OVERALL SPEED OF YOUR SWING. RHYTHM IS THE VARIATIONS OF PACE WITHIN YOUR SWING.

The Computer and the Carrier

Once upon a time there was an industry. It produced newspapers for people to read. For many years it remained unchanged, clinging to the glories of its past. When other industries modernized to keep in pace with progress, the newspaper industry followed suit.

Computers were introduced in many areas of the newspaper production cycle. In the news room they were used for electronic editing and reporters threw out their pencils, paper and erasers.

In the composing room the computer was instrumental in producing type at a much faster pace, and type setters threw out their lead; their molds and saws.

In administration computers were used for storing information, preparing invoices, checks and statistics.

To make a long story short, the computer helped produce a better newspaper. But what did the industry do with the better newspaper? When they asked the computer to deliver it to the thousands of daily readers, it blinked, shook, sputtered and failed to come up with an answer.

Then the newspaper people realized that, with all that great technology, they still had to depend on their carriers to deliver their product.

"That makes the carrier just as important as our computer" said one of the newspaper people. All the others agreed and they lived happily ever after.

The Pampa News

"We Count On Our Carriers"

Budget requests possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter reportedly will ask Congress later this month for nearly $1 billion to push development of a new long-range mobile missile system designed to be safe from a surprise Soviet attack.

Administration sources said the budget requests will be made in anticipation of probable decisions by April on moving into full-scale development of such a missile and on methods of basing it. Some defense officials appear to favor an air-launched concept.

Although final U.S.-Soviet agreement has not been reached on limiting strategic nuclear weapons in the future, defense officials say they are confident they can proceed with development and testing of an advanced mobile missile regardless of the SALT negotiations outcome.

There is general agreement in the Pentagon that some kind of elusive new mobile missile system, either land- or air-launched, will be essential by the mid-1980s. That is when the present force of 1,000 Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles, stationed in fixed underground bases, are expected to become vulnerable to possible destruction if Russia should launch a surprise attack with its increasingly accurate missiles.

Uncertainties and disputes over how to base the new missile have twice caused the administration to delay advancing the project into full-scale development.

The effect of this has been to delay the earliest deployment date until about 1986. Defense specialists argue the United States can not afford further delay.

Administration sources, who asked not to be named, said Carter will ask Congress for about $270 million as a supplementary appropriation that could be used to move ahead with the missile project this fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

Carter also will request nearly $720 million to continue work on the missile and its basing system in fiscal 1980, the sources said.

All the systems under consideration would deploy about 200 long-range mobile missiles and the project, counting basing, would cost $25 billion to $30 billion, according to current estimates.

Exercise participant

CLOVIS, N.M. — Airman First Class John F. Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cox of 1309 Mary Ellen, Pampa, recently participated in "Red Flag," a continuing Tactical Air Command training exercise conducted at Nellis Air Force Base in Nevada.

Airman Cox is an aircraft maintenance specialist in New Mexico with the 27th Tactical Fighter Wing.

An Air Force-wide exercise, "Red Flag" provides pilots and crews with realistic training under simulated combat conditions.

The airman is a 1975 graduate of Pampa High School. His wife, Cheryl, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack E. Hilton of 2109 Lynn, Pampa.
