Flood damages are already half billion

By RON HARRIST Associated Press Writer

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) - Downstream residents looked for higher ground today as the rampaging Pearl River moved relentlessly toward the Gulf of Mexico after causing an estimated half billion dollars damage to the state's capital city and leaving some 17,000 persons homeless.

'We've still got a serious situation here,' Viva Polk, a spokeswoman for the city of Jackson, said Wednesday. "Our homes and businesses are still flooded, we've got thousands still out of their homes and we're having to conserve our drinking water and electricity because of damage to equipment.

Meanwhile, in Alabama, the bulging Alabama and Tombigee rivers sent many persons living near their banks packing to the homes of friends, relatives or Red Cross shelters. President Carter declared the state a major disaster area late Wednesday.

And in Southeast Texas, hundreds of residents chased from their homes in Conroe faced the prospect of more flooding. today after a stubborn thunderstorm poured more than 8 inches of rain on the area Wednesday, inundating schools, houses, businesses and highways.

Forty miles downstream from Jackson, tiny Georgetown lay deserted Wednesday as the Pearl advanced. A spokesman for Mississippi Power and Electric Co. said the flooding had cut electrical power to about 160 cutomers in the community, and telephone connections into the town were sporadic Wednesday night

Farther south in Columbia, Miss., Marion County Civil Defense Director Jim Thornhill said 1,500 persons had fled their homes in the face of record floodwaters.

'Everything is cool as a cucumber in Columbia. Now we're just waiting for it to happen," said Thornhill. "We're sitting back and waiting for the inevitable. A crest of 27.5 feet is expected Saturday at Columbia, and the river will probably peak at 34.5 feet at Monticello the same day.

The rising water - .it has stopped." Jackson Mayor Dale Danks said Wednesday after the Pearl began dropping from its record crest of 42.25 feet. By 9 p.m., it had fallen to 41.4 feet and was still, going down.

But hundreds of homeowners still were kept from their ruined houses in Jackson as the waters began slowly to recede. Downtown Jackson, where pumps whined behind sandbag levees to keep water out of the central telephone company building, remained off limits to all but persons providing essential services.

Interstate 55. the major north-south route between Memphis and New Orleans, remained closed as floodwater covered lanes in spots.

Some 200 persons were lodged at a Red Cross shelter in Selma, where the Alabama crested Wednesday at 55.34 feet.

Economy's growth slows

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's economy sputtered to its lowest growth rate in a year during the first three months of 1979, indicating the economy could be dipping toward a recession if the trend continues, government figures showed today.

The 0.7 percent increase in the gross national product in January through March was less than expected and was down sharply from a 6.9 percent rate of growth in the final guarter of 1978. The first-guarter rate was the lowest since a 0.1 percent decline in the same period last year

The sharp slowdown in growth seemed certain to support the argument of G. William Miller, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, that economic growth already is slowing and that further measures to dampen the economy could plunge the nation into a serious recession.

will rebound at least partly from the low first-quarter growth, thus avoiding a recession in the near future.

The unusually severe winter in many parts of the country was at least partly to blame for the slow conomic growth in the first quarter. But it probably also reflected efforts by the government to slow the economy through high interest rates and reduced federal spending.

The administration is aiming for overall economic growth this year of about 2.2 percent, down from 4 percent last year but at a level it believes is necessary to help combat inflation.

Commerce Department said in its GNP report in the final three months of 1978

"The decrease ... reflected decreases in consumer expenditures for goods, construction outlays, net exports and government purchases," the department said.

The figures on economic growth were computed at an annual rate, meaning it would be the total growth for a year if the first-quarter levels were continued for an entire 12-month period.

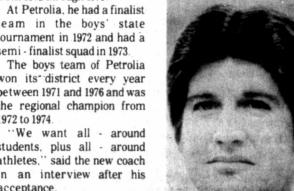

The Commerce Department said the GNP, which is the total value of goods and services produced in the economy, was at an annual rate of $1,413.3 billion in the first quarter.

that prices in the first quarter increased at an 8.7 percent annual rate, up from 8.2 percent in the fourth guarter of 1978

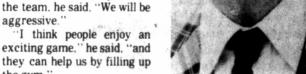

The department said the slower economic growth in January through March was caused by an 0.3 percent decline in sales throughout the economy, a sharp turnaround from a 7.2 percent annual rate of increase

The rapid rate of growth in the final three months of 1978 had caused concern among policy-makers because a rapidly expanding economy tends to put upward pressure on wages and prices and thus feed inflation.

Combatting inflation, now running in excess of 10 percent, has become the major concern of the administration and the Federal Reserve Board.

Soviets may have fewer regulations

A story by the Chicago Tribune with a Moscow dateline says: "With the help of a high powered magnet made at Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago, Soviet scientists are developing a technique for generating electricity that could cushion the coming energy crunch."

Development of this technique was started in the United States in a joint effort by U.S. and Soviet researchers working to adopt an 1831 discovery by Michael Faraday for generating electricity.

We made note of this when the first practical breakthrough was announced in connection with tests being made at the University of Tennessee's Space Institute (UTSI) in 1977. The scientific team had treated crushed coal with potassium, burned it at high temperatures (up to 5,000 degrees F.) then sent the expanding gas in a pipe through a magnetic field. This created electric energy which was picked up by conducting tubes.

This system is a means of producing electric energy without mechanical moving parts. The normal means is to use fuel to produce steam. The steam then operates turbines which turn the generators and produces electricity. The U.S. - Soviet team was successful in operating a model test project.

Using the UTSI process, the Soviets set up and operated a pilot plant for 250 consecutive hours producing 10 million watts of electricity. About a year later we noted that a huge magnet which was made in this nation was being shipped to Russia to further the development there with the goal of being able to supply all Moscow with this innovative use of the Faraday principle: a scientific discovery made in this nation by one of our great citizens 150 years

We hope this nation could do much better than the Soviets in a

Why Egypt signed the treaty

By OSCAR COOLEY

The treaty between Egypt and Israel is the culmination of talks that began with Anwar Sadat's peace-seeking visit to Israel in November, 1977. Little has been said about the economic reasons for this bold move by the Egyptian leader, but they were probably uppermost in his mind.

The Egyptians are a very poor people. And their economy is "going steadily downhill," according to Daniel Pipes, University of Chicago scholar who lived in Egypt during 1976-77. The people, 40 million strong, find it difficult to maintain their already low per capita income, about $250 a year. Egypt simply could not afford to continue the state of belligerency between itself and Israel which had prevailed for nearly 30 years.

In Egypt, as in many poor countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America, the most bountiful crop is people. Their number of mouths to feed multiplies more rapidly than the food they produce to put in them. Why do they persist in this seemingly insane behavior? Because, says Professor Carl Sagan of Cornell, child-bearing couples foresee old age when they will need more young people - boys, especially - to support them, and so they produce children as old-age insurance. But the more children, the more poverty for both old and

How can they break out of this vicious circle? There is no easy way. Obviously, refraining from the waste of war and making peace is a first step. The long-run solution is to increase income and reduce poverty. This can come only when people no longer live from hand to mouth but save. creating capital - buildings, equipment; tools. supplies - with which they produce more income per person. This requires a mind-change, a development of foresight. People must cease being mere consumers and become also savers and capitalists. This is how every wealthy country, including the United States, raised itself from primitivism to wealth. It is the only way and it has to be followed whether the nation involved thinks of itself as capitalist or socialist. Production, the student of economics learns, requires four factors: labor, land, capital and management. Labor equals the brain and brawn of people. Land includes all that is provided by nature. Capital is tools, financed by savers. Management is provided by the owner of the land and capital, who runs the show and takes the risk of success or failure

Egypt has abundant labor. Of its land, Pipes writes in the Wall Street Journal. "The Nile valley is one of the world's most splendid farming areas. Egypt should, like Lebanon, Israel and Morocco, take advantage of its climate and proximity to Europe to grow specialty items for the European market, such as winter fruits and cut flowers. Instead, the government neglects the land.

Some 50 percent of the Egyptian labor force is in agriculture, but observer Pipes thinks Egypt is not taking full advantage of its warm climate and fertile river-valley soil. At present, cotton, wheat, corn and rice are the chief crops. None of these require tropical heat. All are grown in other countries, extensively and efficiently, providing competition hard to meet.

More and more of the precious Nile valley arable land is being occupied by cities. "Egypt," says Pipes, "has lost over 10 percent of its precious cultivable land to creeping urbanization in recent years. More intensive farming would raise the per-acre value of the land, so that more acres would remain under tillage, fewer be taken over for building sites.

Pipes thinks that "labor-intensive, small-scale industries, producing simple necessities such as textiles and food products for a local market, should be encouraged to spread throughout the countryside, as in Mexico...Large-scale industry and urban consumers must be passed by in favor of agriculture and the countryside, the past and future source of Egyptian wealth.

Egypt has received many billions of dollars of aid money from Saudi Arabia as well as from the United States. She will receive more from us as a result of the treaty. In fact, without the assurance of increased aid from us, Sadat might not have come to terms with Israel.

How will that aid be used? Will it be consumed by the hungry millions of Cairo or will it be in the form of capital goods and tools which Egypt needs to increase her productivity? Only the latter will do any lasting good.

As to management. Egypt. like every other well populated but needy country. has many potential entrepreneurs. Education will develop them, but they must have freedom and incentive. To what extent these will be present is a question.

What is true of Egypt is essentially true of the other underdeveloped countries of the world. They possess natural resources - fertile soil, favorable climate, mineral deposits, forests, fisheries. All have labor. ample in numbers and improvable in quality. They need capital.

The theory has been that capital should be supplied by the developed countries. We have given billions, but much of it has gone down the drain. Capital accumulated through their own saving is far more likely to be put to work productively

Much as they need capital, the poorer peoples of the earth have more need of freedom to make full use of their resources and to enjoy the gains from their saved capital. No one can give them freedom: This they themselves have to establish.

Today in history

Today is Thursday, April 19, the 109th day of 1979. There are 256 days left in the year

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1775, the American Revolutionary War began with the battles between the British and Minutemen at Lexington and Concord in Massachusetts. On this date:

In 1782, Holland recognized the independence of the American colonies. In 1783, Congress announced the end of the Revolutionary War In 1865, Abraham Lincoln's funeral was held at the White House, with relatives, friends and government officials attending field right down our productive alley. We have assisted Russia in gains toward its goal by our principles and outstechnology, but what have we been able to do for ourselves?

The process is known as magnetohydrodynamics (MHD) and the Soviets have two experimental plants in operation and hope to have a 500 - megawatt commercial WHD facility by 1984. Alexander E. Sheyndlin, director of the project on the out skirts of Moscow, says, "We believe our most promising energy sources for the future are coal and nuclear energy. There are huge coal deposits in Siberia. We are now five to seven years ahead of you in the area. In the 1960s work in MHD in the United States was very poor."

The 40 - ton Argonne magnet shipped to Russia was one - fiftieth the size of its Soviet predecessor but generated six times as much electricity per amount of material used. It can generate a magnetic field more than 250,000 times greater than that of the earth

It is called a super - conducting magnet, because, when cooled to minus 234 degrees Centigrade, it loses most of its resistance to electricity and operates with minimal power consumption

The MHD system can use high sulphur coal since the introduction of potassium precipitates the sulphur in the coal and does not send sulphur compounds into the atmosphere.

There is now a $30 million research center opened in Butte, Mont., with a 250 megawatt prototype plant which is scheduled to open in 1990.

We believe the prime reason that the Soviets are running ahead of us on this one is simply that their projects are not harassed by a multiplicity of regulators stopping progress before it can even get off to a good start.

Already government officials here are saying that nitrogen oxides may form at a higher rate using the MHD and that this could be a factor in smog control.

If ever there was a time when we should accent the positive and stifle the negative, it is now in the field of new energy processes. Or will we let the bureaucracy keep us in second place forever?

Congress worst offenders

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

The Carter administration is having a political field day with the subject of rising hospital costs. It hopes to gain passage of legislation that would establish price controls on hospital costs.

This legislation ignores the market and governmental costs to which hospitals are subject. It also ignores the cost of improved medical services and innovation in medical technology. Advances in hospital care can't be provided without expense.

Certainly. hospital managers and physicians should do everything possible to contain costs. Unfortunately, few institutions are able to hold down costs in a significant way. Colleges can't do so. The federal government has shown no capability whatsoever in this area.

I recently came across the statement of a hospital administrator who addressed the problem of cost containment. His comments make sense

Robert Scott, executive vice president of the Florida Hospital in Orlando wrote to the Orlando Sentinel Star, noting that costs are on the increase for all segments of our economy

Mr. Scott pointed out that the Florida Hospital electric bill has gone from $22.000 in September, 1977 to $50,000 per month today.

Minimum wages went up in January 'This added $9 a day to every patient's bill." he said

Social security expenses have gone up 6.05 percent. Workmen's compensation has increased since 1974 by 78 percent Since Sept. 1, 1977, the Florida Hospital is over its dietary budget by $75.000. Every housewife who purchases groceries can understand this increase in the hospital budget.

In most communities, prominent citizens sit on hospital boards. They endeavor to aid hospital managers and bring their business expertise to bear. These trustees serve without pay. Their institutions are non - profit. They have a vital interest in reducing costs and operating with efficiency

Congress shouldn't try to second - guess hospital trustees and administrators. The effort would be absurd, for Congress is one of the worst offenders in terms of inflationary spending. The cost of supporting congressmen in the style to which they have become accustomed is soaring. Economy is a word that Congress doesn't recognize.

Congress, therefore, would do well to leave hospital management to the professionals and abandon efforts to impose political price control.

Jimmy Carter might have remained in the Navy.

It was his Navy superior, Adm. H.G. Rickover. who detected a greater potential and advised, "Why not be the best? Subsequently, Carter wrote a book under that title: "Why Not The Best?"

The latest foreign trade figures hold good news, sort of, for a change The Commerce Department reports we went into the red by only $1.3 billion during February, the lowest deficit since May of 1977

Surprisingly, much of the improvement can be credited to the biggest problem area - oil. A drop in imports, with the cutoff of Iranian production a major contributor, accounted for much of the savings. Considering the OPEC's price-hiking passion, however, there's not much chance we'll be making this a habit. Fortunes on the hoof

These inflationary times are bringing back a bit of the Old West which today's Western cattlemen could do without rustling.

Premium market prices for beef are believed to be behind a sharp increase in missing cattle -- lost. strayed but more and more likely stolen. Texas officials report a 75 percent jump in cattle theft over a year ago. Similar reports come from other major producing states.

Professionals, moving animals to distant markets, are deeply involved but much of the rustling is believed the work of amateurs, even teen-agers. Calves, the easiest prey, in some cases are reported to be butchered on the spot and sold to unsuspecting local customers.

It's not petty theft, adding up to thousands of head in the major cattle states and potentially millions of dollars. When consumers complain that the high has any previous President. About 25 judges retire or resign each year. Add to these the carry - over vacancies plus the 152 new judgeships and President Carter will appoint more than half as many judges as were in place when he became president.

> Why is this so important? Most decisions are made in these lower cases. Eleven Courts of Appeal will decide some 18.000 cases. The Supreme Court can hear only about 175 cases - about one case in 700.

crime, they don't know how right they are. What a waste

If high food costs are a crime, it's a case of at least part of the bad deed beginning at home, according to researchers at Michigan State University.

By their calculation, Americans do themselves out of about 137 million tons of the nation's total food supply every year. The food is lost or destroyed in various ways, but in most cases simply thrown away. It works out to a budget-breaking $31 billion at today's prices. Call it the high price of wasting.

The economics of drinking Still on high prices, there's some good and bad news about beverages.

Coffee rose in price 280 percent during the period 1967-78, according to the Consumer Price Index review of the American Council of Life Insurance.

That's the bad news. And if it's enought to drive you to drink, here's the good news. During the same period, whisky prices went up only 23 percent.

Swiss switch Switzerland is about to make history. It is preparing to apply for membership in the United Nations. This may mean one of two things: Either the Alpine nation is departing from the policy of strict neutrality, which for almost two centuries has barred it from joining any intenational political association, or the United Nations has come to count for so little in international politics that membership doesn't matter.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Yet the record shows that each of Carter's three predecessors, Gerald Ford, Richard Nixon and Lyndon Johnson, appointd a higher percentage of judges from the opposition party.

Of Carter's district judge appointments so far. only 4.4 percent have gone to Republicans: Court of Appeals appointments, no Republicans.

Indeed, though this President promised 'no politics'' in the judiciary. 75 percent of his Court of Appeals nominees were political activists!

A Americans can thank God for the American Bar Assn.'s Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary. For 35 years this committee has fought sporadic efforts by Presidents and senators to seat on the bench incompetents, alcoholics, unethical political hacks.

As a result, in our federal judiciary, scandal is almost nonexistent, dishonesty almost unknown

This committee ranks most Carter appointees so far was well - qualified, but about one - third rank no higher than simply "qualified."

Miami School Board elects new president

MIAMI - Three new members were sworn in recently to the Miami Independent School Board during its regular monthly meeting.

Bill Breeding, Murl Benge and John Smith received the oath of office and Trustees Commission from Judge Newton Cox in ceremonies before the regular meeting

Breeding, received a second honor during the meeting by being elected as president of the school baord in a 4-2 vote by fellow members. Murl Benge was nominated along with Breeding for the position vacated by outgoing president Vernon Cook. The new president submitted a list of bills and financial statements to the board for approval and payment. The board passed a motion by Jim Bean for payment of the bills.

The main issue taken up by the board during its monthly meeting was the request to replace one of the buses owned by the school system. Information was presented to the board by School Superintendent Jess Daugherty on buses number four and five so a comparison could be made to decide which bus should be replaced. One bus is replaced each year by the board.

A motion presented to the board by Jim Bean to advertise for bids on a 35-passenger bus was approved by the board.

The board accepted the resignations of Mrs. C. Odom and Mrs. Pam Thompson during the meeting and approved the contract renewal of Robert Robinson as science teacher and

Mr. C. Odom as band director. Members of the board approved a resolution to rehire Debbie Stribling as tax assessor - collector and increase the pay for the position by seven perecnt.

Eggs, issues scheduled for Country Club

State Sen. Bob Price and Rep Foster Whaley will discuss key issues facing the Texas Legislature at an "Eggs and Issues" breakfast tomorrow morning at the Pampa Country Club.

Cost of the breakfast is $4.25, with buffet lines scheduled to open at 6:45. Reservations were still being taken at the Pampa Chamber of Commerce (669-3241) Thursday afternoon.

Persons attending the breakfast will have a chance to ask questions of Whaley and Price. Price is vice chairman of the Texas Senate Subcommittee on Water and serves on several other committees.

Whaley is a member of the Agriculture and Livestock Committee and the Government Organization Committee of the House of Representatives.

The public is invited to attend the breakfast, sponsored by the chamber's Legislative Affairs Committee.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A black legislator's display of the buying power of a $32.58 monthly child welfare check has won a House vote to add $20 million to the 1980-81 state budget

House members went into their second day of debate on the $20.2 billion general appropriation bill this morning. The bill would leave about $350 million for tax cuts, school finance improvements or other spending.

Wednesday's floor session raised several emotional issues government-financed abortions, big pay raises for judges, the plight of welfare children.

In Love Canal Those left behind, alone

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) - From her living-room window, Marie Pozniak gazes out at rows of abandoned houses just a stone's throw away. For her and hundreds of others, the sight is a daily and haunting reminder of the grim reality nearby - the chemical disaster known as Love Canal

Mrs. Pozniak and some 500 others were left behind in the modest neighborhood when the state evacuated their neighbors nearest the dump after it was decided their health was endangered by the chemicals. She and many of the others feel cheated and trapped.

Cheated, because they believe Gov. Hugh Carey's evacuation of 239 residents last summer was simply a campaign gesture - one that left them behind and their own and their loved ones' lives endangered.

Trapped, because no one will buy their homes - houses that have potentially dangerous chemicals leaching through basement walls.

"State officials warned us not to grow a garden," Mrs. Pozniak remarked recently. "We can grow our children here but we can't grow a garden here. That absolutely blows my mind. It's horrible."

For more than 10 years, the Hooker Plastics & Chemical Corp. dumped a total of more than 80 different chemicals into the site of the never-opened canal. The state's evacuation of the immediate area was prompted by studies that showed a high rate of miscarriage and birth defects in the area possibly linked to the leaching chemicals.

Mrs. Poziak's family is one of many in the periphery area with serious medical problems. And she, like many of the others, feels the chemicals are the cause.

Although the state is currently offering limited financial assistance to perhaps as many as 130 families in the periphery area to help them temporarily relocate (only those with children under 2 or pregnant women are eligible), the state's current stance is that studies thus far have not justified further evacuations.

But the homeowners say their own informal study shows a much higher rate of disease. A cancer researcher from Buffalo's Roswell Park Memorial Cancer Center agrees.

Dr. Beverly Paigen, who recently urged evacuating most of those left behind, contends that many of the homeowners were reluctant to state such things as neurological disorders or mental illness on the survey forms the state Health Department distributed.

"There was a definite elevation of certain diseases. And there was a definite pattern — the diseases were more concentrated along the old stream beds (or swales). I put forth the hypothesis that chemicals were migrating along paths of the old streambeds and getting into houses." she said in an interview.

'We found increased rates of miscarriages, increased risks of birth defects, increased urinary tract problems, an a striking effect on the central nervous system," she said.

The state, in offering temporary relocation to certain families in the area, agreed that the chemicals posed a potential health threat to fetuses and children under 2.

It also agreed that there have been higher rates of miscarriages and birth defects in the swale areas, but it said studies thus far indicate no threat to the general population.

Dr. David Axelrod, the state health commissioner, said the department understands the concern of the residents left behind. But he adds that he will recommend no further evacuations unless studies link the chemicals to certain diseases.

"We have to make certain that there is a scientific basis for our recommendations to the governor," he said in an interview.

While it may appear to the individual that his symptoms are clearly related to exposure, we can't make judgments on the basis of an individual ... The stakes are high here in terms of cost.

Jim Clark - an admittedly bitter man whose family has been plagued with medical problems and whose yard is littered with signs like one reading "Welcome to Chemical City" - is one resident who feels there's no need for scientific studies.

"My kidney just solidified and quit functioning." he said.

"My four kids all display hyperactivity. We have three members of the family now who have skin problems. My one son quit growing at 12, developed an ulcer at 15 and he's an acute diabetic. My wife has cardiovascular problems and just everybody feels generally rotten. "You can't prove any of this stuff." he concedes, but adds, "To me it's obvious it was the chemicals." Lois Gibbs, president of a homeowners group that oversaw Dr.

Paigen's survey, criticized the methods the state used in investigating health problems in the area.

"When we did our survey we sat down and talked to the individual resident on a one-to-one basis," she said. "What the Health Department did is they came out, knocked on the door, said Mr. Clark, here's your 22-page survey, fill it out. We'll be back after dinner to pick it up.'

Axelrod said care was taken to make sure the residents understood the forms. "We did leave the questionnaires off with instructions and asked if they had any problems with it they contact us." he said, adding that in the immediate area of the dump, "we did carry out face-to-face interviews but we don't have sufficient manpower to spend the required time with each individual family.

Dallas doctor arrested

DALLAS (AP) - Authorities have arrested a Dallas doctor on federal drug charges and a Terrell physician, indicted in an unrelated case, has pledged to surrender to a U.S. Marshal today.

State and federal agents arrested Dr. John Wyatt, 53, who was named in a 16-count sealed indictment, at his Dallas office. Wednesday. He was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate William F. Sanderson Jr. and released on a $20,000 unsecured bond. Dallas police found Dr. Seaton James Jackson of Terrell recovering from a stroke when they arrived at his house Wednesday afternoon. Jackson had been named in a 15-count federal grand jury indictment returned Wednesday.

Police Lt. Roger Duncan said Jackson made arrangements to surrender today.

Duncan said police were looking for two other persons. Hollis Bradford of Terrell and Simon Lee Pipkin of Dallas, indicted in connection with Jackson.

He said other Dallas area doctors are under investigation and he said. "We anticipate three more arrests in the next three to four weeks.

WHEELER - It has been a long time in coming according to some Wheeler residents but the end is in site for construction of a new gymnasium facility for Wheeler County students

"We are hoping with our fingers crossed to be finished by July 15." School Superintendent Bynum L. Smith said Wednesday. "The bad winter weather really hurt us on our time schedule and now with all this rain it has put us behind some.'

Smith said that one of the most inportant parts of the facility was completed enough to use in an emergency.

"They have finished the south wall of the structure now so we can use our basement," Smith added. "We designed the basement where it could be used as a tornado shelter in case of bad weather." Smith said the 4,500 square foot basement to the $597,000 structure will hold the entire student body of the combined schools.

When complete the gymnasium will hold 1,250 spectators with each person seating in a theater type seat.

S and T Construction Co., Inc. of Altus, Oklahoma are the contractors on the gymnasium which will be used for basketball, volleyball, gym class and other athletic type functions.

Cash funds helping outlook of market

NEW YORK (AP) - Ask a stockbroker these days why he or she is bullish on the market outlook, and chances are you will get something about "institutional cash reserves" for an answer.

The institutions in question are the nation's pension funds, bank trust departments, insurance companies, mutual funds and other such places where large pools of money tend to collect. In recent years, New York Stock Exchange figures show that institutions have accounted for more than half the total dollar value of stocks bought and sold on the Big Board.

Because of their very size, and because of legal constraints requiring them to be "prudent." most institutions operate under a different set of circumstances than those that typically confront the individual investor of modest means.

But it is considered a good idea for any follower of the stock market to keep an eye on these elephants of the investment jungle, if only to be standing in a safe place should they start a stampede.

One common measure of the mood of institutional money managers is the percentage of their assets they are keeping in "cash" - which in the jargon of the business refers not to nickels, dimes and quarters stored in a vault somewhere, but to short-term money-market securities such as Treasury bills.

Traditionally, the institutions have used these money-market securities as a sort of parking place for money, where it can earn interest while they decide when and where to invest it for the longer term.

In theory, the more cash they have in reserve at any given time, the greater the potential future demand for stocks.

Thus the Value Line-Investment Survey, the country's largest investment advisory service, argues, "The combination of the widely agreed-upon cheapness of stocks, coupled with the enormous cash reserves known to be awaiting the 'right moment' to begin to return to the equities market, puts pressure on the holders of cash reserves not to miss the boat.'

DEAR ABBY: I am a young clergyman, new in the community and eager to do the best job possible.

I am told that a few years back you had an excellent answer for someone who wrote in complaining that every time he turned around the church hit him for money.

The writer asked you what the church did with all the money.

If you can find that letter, I would be most grateful if you ran it again.

TENNESSEE PREACHER

DEAR PREACHER: I found it. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: We are not overly religious people, but we do like to go to church once in a while. It seems to me that every time we turn around in church we are hit for money. I thought religion was free. I realize that churches have to have some money, but I think it is getting to be a racket. Just what do churches do with all their money? CURIOUS

DEAR CURROUS: Even priests, ministers and rabbis must eat. Since they work full time at their tasks, the churches must support them. Staff, professional choir members and musicians must also be paid. Buildings must be maintained, heated, lighted and beautified. (And, of course, first they must be built!) Custodial staff must eat and feed their families. Most churches engage in philanthropic work (aid to needy, missions and education); hence, they have their financial obligations. Even orchids, contrary to folklore, do not live on air. Churches can't live on air, either. Religion, like water, may be free, but when they pipe it to you, you've got to help pay for the piping. And the piper!

DEAR ABBY: When my son, his wife and their baby come to my home for dinner I always put newspapers under the baby's high chair. My son told me that his wife will not allow him to place newspapers under the baby's high chair at home because it is "low-class." She claims that it's all right when feeding animals, but not children!

Abby, I certainly would never put my grandchildren in the same class with animals. I'm only trying to protect my dining room rug.

I have placed newspapers under high chairs with all my children and now my five grandchildren, and I've never had any complaints until now.

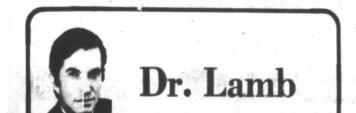

Am I out of line? Or is my daughter-in-law?

SOCORRO, N.M.

DEAR SOCORRO: She is. And you may place THIS under the baby's high chair.

DEAR ABBY: I got a big kick out of that etiquetteconscious couple who asked about the socially acceptable way to list their names on their mailbox. Since they have obviously chosen to thumb their noses at convention by living together without marriage, it seems a little ridiculous to fret about the "proper" way to do anything.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 55 years old and I think it was about 20 years ago I was hospitalized because of a hemorrhage from the rectum. I was diagnosed as having diverticulosis. I was told I must never eat roughage. I didn't know what that was but after looking it up, the only two vegetables that don't have roughage are carrots and beets. You can imagine what a hard time it is not to be constipated with this kind of diet. Prune juice was my only help. I also have been eating French style string beans on my own. Please let me know, has anything changed in this diet? I have been told it has.

DEAR READER: Twenty years is a long time and there certainly has been a change in thinking about diets for patients with diverticulosis. These little pockets of the colon are really hernias, and many authorities today think that spastic colon and constipation problems contribute to their development.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-6, Diverticulosis, to give you more detailed information on this problem. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

York, NY 10019. Those bland diets that used to be used in treating diverticulosis may have contributed to the problem in many people. They were so bland they didn't provide any bulk. As a good example, if you ate gelatin, you would absorb all the protein and nutrients in it and all that would be left would be water. If your body needed the water, that would be absorbed too. That doesn't leave very much for the colon to act on.

The English surgeon who first pointed this out showed

> DEAR POLLY — I was given some diapers for baby but they are yellow and soaking them overnight in bleach water has not helped. Can you tell me how to get these diapers white again? — MARY O. DEAR MARY — Put cream of tartar in water and

> DEAR MARY — Put cream of tartar in water and soak them in it overnight, then wash as usual. If this does not help you might buy a box of color remover, follow directions on the box and then thoroughly wash as usual. Do be sure anything used is completely removed as baby's skin is tender. — POLLY that on a worldwide basis, those cultures which were accustomed to eating refined foods with little bulk were the same cultures that had lots of bowel problems, including cancer of the colon. People who ate whole grain cereals and foods that contained lots of bulk didn't have these problems.

There has been lots of discussion and argument among authorities on the validity of all these claims, but it is abundantly clear that many people do far better by increasing the bulk in their diets.

I think one of the difficulties here, through the years, has been the misconception that foods that contain bulk were roughage and were irritating on the digestive system. That is true in some instances with some forms of roughage, but cereal fiber or bran really doesn't fall into that category. If it's soaked, it gets very soft rather quickly. That's why one of the investigators of this problem likes to use the term softage for cereal fiber as opposed to roughage.

There are times in the course of complications of diverticulosis when a person really needs to be on a very bland diet, or it may be necessary for the patient to be on a liquid diet or not take anything at all by mouth. But I'm talking about the very short term complications of the basic disease. These are such things as hemorrhage from one of the little pockets or when one of the little pockets is inflamed and behaves like appendicitis.

Otherwise, in most cases, if such acute complications are not present, a diet that includes more 'suitable forms of bulk seems to improve the situation for most people.

Prune juice contains a chemical that acts as a laxative. It is a popular do-ityourself laxative but there are far better ways to improve bowel function.

Mending mature marriage by louise pierce

If your marriage is monotonous as well as monogamous, don't retire it. REWIRE it. You can.

I'm a senior citizen, married 42 years. Every year, so authorities tell us, there are fewer youngsters and more oldsters in our country. By the year 2000, we may be running America. So what about the fate of the older marriage for the U.S. - and for us?

My husband, Otis, and I are frequently asked if we are really as happy as we seem to be when we eat out and dance, when we entertain guests and when we just plain walk and talk. The answer is yes. But it hasn't always been easy. Every so often, depending on the need, we rewire our marriage. We don't want to be part of the 52 percent increase in the divorce rate, in the last ten years, of couples married more than 26 years. The newlyweds don't leave each other too often these days. The older-weds do. One in every three (Some statisticians say one in two.)

The purpose of this column will be to see why this happens and what can be done to prevent it. I invite you to write me your problems and their solutions or dissolutions, care of this paper. I'll use the most provocative and helpful ones, giving your name or not"as you request. We'l help each other in our shared need to stay married.

In their younger years a husband and wife were co-workers in the ups and downs of the kids through high school and college and marriage and grandchildren. They grieved together over lost promotions, business reverses, severe illnesses, wartime separations and the thousand other things that keep a man and a woman holding hands in their need to solve their special problems.

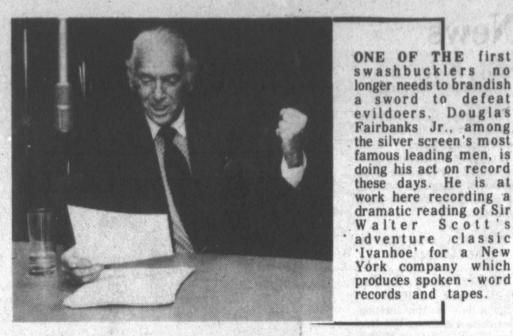

Then suddenly, so it seems, the two of you are left alone. The house is paid for the kids are on their own and there is a reasonable pension to pay the bills. Your longtime friends say you look as old as they feel. Nothing of import is happening. There is only the bleak prospect of facing each other over three uneventful meals a day, of routine sallies to the supermarket and the bland TV fare from the Today Show through Johnny Carson and the old - time reruns.

I polled 300 middle - aged couples in a special survey and found that 39 were divorced, 14 were in the process and another 11 were talking about it.

Typical of several was Dotty Y., who wrote: "I'm losing patience with Hank. He retired last year and said he was going to garden, But he hasn't planted one seed. He just sits and wihes he were young again. wishes he were back at work in the plant. I know he's scared of getting old, and so am I. But what can we do?'

Dotty and Hank can rewire their marriage. That means they can pull out the old circuits and install new ones. They can stop saying that present - day methods in school and business and communication and people in general are 'way below what they were when we were young. They can stop regreting the trips they never took, the vice - presidencies they never attained and the mansions they could never afford to build. There are more possibilities for a deeper happiness for our age than there have ever been before. There are new acquaintances for the knowing. There are gyms and golfing and jogging and running and home exercising. There are clubs and churches and centers geared to our wishes and desires. There are endless projects to be started, in sewing and woodworking and writing. And singing - and, best of all, in fresh careers that could bud and blossom

We can all do some of these things. First of all, we can listen, really listen, to our spouses for the first time since our honeymoons. Nothing is more exasperating than talking to an unresponsive audience of one. And there is always the chance that something exciting can pop up in a conversation.

The people's pharmacy by joe graedon

People are in love with vitamins. We Americans consume huge quantities of vitamin C, vitamin E and multiple vitamin supplements. As a rule, medical people tend to be critical of our fascination with vitamins. This is partly because there are a lot of inflated and unsubstantiated claims floating around. For example, vitamin E has been "X-rated" because it's supposed to liven up your love life, even though there is no evidence to support the claim.

Another reason health professionals are disapproving is that medical students have traditionally received little, if any, good nutrition training. One could argue that their negativism is borne out of inadequate information as much as anything else, especially since doctors are generally trained to concentrate on illness rather than disease prevention and health promotion.

Theoretically, the goal of nutritional supplementation is to maintain optimum health, something that is difficult to measure, at least medically. Unfortunately, by criticizing or ignoring their patients' consumption of vitamins, doctors may forget to mention that some prescription drugs, and even some non-prescription drugs, could present problems when administered after a person downs his morning vitamin combination.

Just as we have learned that many drugs do not mix - that some medications are incompatible with others - we now know also that some nutritional supplements may make certain medicines more dangerous, and conversely, many drugs deplete the body of crucial vitamins. Such a situation could require special vitamin addition to, or deletion from, the diet.

Take good old vitamin C (ascorbic acid), for example. In combination with large amounts of aspirin, ascorbic acid can produce aspirin toxicity in susceptible individuals by slowing the elimination of the painkiller from the body. Conversely, regular aspirin ingestion can dramatically deplete the body of vitamin C. So if you believe in Linus Pauling's vitamin C approach to good health, you better forgo the aspirin if you want your ascorbic acid to work.

Oral contraceptives and cigarette smoking also can reduce vitamin C levels, so smokers and women on the Pill should make sure to keep that vitamin C coming. Ascorbic acid can also make sulfa drugs dangerous by increasing the acidity of the urine, thereby producing conditions that could be dangerous to the kidney, including the formation of stones.

Some of the B vitamins can interact with drugs the doctor prescribes. Vitamin B-6 for example, may reduce the effectiveness of the drug L-Dopa, which is used for treating patients with Parkinson's Disease. Vitamin D may alter the results of some blood tests used to determine cholesterol, calcium, protein and phosphate levels

Medications used in the treatment of epilepsy, such as Dilantin and Phenobarbital, can deplete the normal levels of vitamin D and that could, under extreme conditions, lead to rickets. Even a simple aluminum-containing antacid such as Di-Gel, Amphojel, Mylanta or Maalox could, when taken in large quantities, reduce phosphate levels in the body, and that could lead to weakened bones through calcium loss.

Even something as simple as mineral oil, which is often used to prevent constipation, can have a profound effect on nutrition levels. Taken with food, the oil can interfere with the proper absorption of vitamins A, D, E, and K.

So the next time you casually consume your combination of vitamin supplements and medications with your morning juice, keep in mind that some drugs and vitamins or minerals don't mix. You may have to check with your doctor to make sure your prescription won't be incompatible with anything else you might be taking.

pain killers anyway

A. While it is unlikely that you will run into any problems if you follow your doctor's instructions, it is true that some experts are concerned about the safety and effectiveness of drugs like Darvon and Darvocet

Dr. Page Hudson, chief medical examiner for North Carolina, recently testified before a congressional committee. He had this to say about Darvon: "...we were among the first discoverers of a relatively obvious and moderately awesome phenomenon: a drug medication existed that was at the top in prescription popularity, one that had but a trace of benefit and that was reaching the point of causing more deaths than any drug, licit, or illicit, in this country.

Over 30 million prescriptions were written for Darvon products last year. It is the most widely used prescription pain killer in the country. It is also responsible for a growing concern among health professionals. According to the FDA, approximately "one to two thousand deaths a year are associated with propoxyphene alone or in combination with other drugs."

Most of these fatalities are suicides or result when drug abusers use high doses combined with booze. But the FDA has reported that "Other deaths, however, appear to have occurred among people who are not habitual drug abusers and who apparently took propoxyphene in conjunction with tranquilizers, alcohol, or sedatives without understanding the danger.

Darvon can cause both physical and psychological dependence when taken for long periods of time. If stopped abruptly, some people may experience withdrawal symptoms. But even though this "addictive" potential exists, some experts feel that the drug is not very effective in relieving pain.

Dr. Hudson says that "independent evaluations of analgesics generally rank proposyphene (Darvon) as equivalent to placebo (a sugar pill) and less efficient than aspirin." The FDA apparently agrees because a recent report admits that pure Darvon "is no more effective - and may be less effective - than the usual doses of aspirin or acetaminophen (Tylenol, Datril, etc.).

In order to be fair we contacted the maker of Darvon, the Eli Lilly Co., so we could hear their side of the story. A representative acknowledged that "physical and psychological dependence does occur from time to time but is relatively infrequent." He agreed that the regular dose Darvon product could be considered roughly equal to aspirin and the low dose drug is less effective. Lilly steadfastly maintains that the drug is only dangerous in massive amounts.

Q. I'm boiling mad! My doctor just prescribed an expensive antibiotic. I took it for one day and developed a terrible rash. When I called the physician he said, "We'll just have to try something else." The pharmacy wouldn't take back the original drug and I was stuck with a $20 bottle of useless medicine. Isn't there some way toprevent this sort of thing from happening?

A. You raise an important point. Although it's difficult to know in advance whether or not a particular patient will develop an adverse reaction to a drug, the doctor could reduce the initial quantity prescribed. If no unpleasant side effects occurred, the original prescription could easily be renewed for the regular amount. That way you wouldn't end up with an expensive bottle of unusable medicine.

LUBBOCK - There are many interesting and popular beliefs and legends surrounding the bobwhite quail in Texas and many of these cherished beliefs actually hamper an adequate harvest of the birds.

The mere mention of bobwhite quail at the barber shop, local meeting place of sportsmen of the cafe will begin a flurry of questions and stories concerning the welfare of this well-liked game bird.

A popular belief is that a pair of bobwhites will rear more than one brood in a year under ideal conditions. It is a rather common sight to see two ages of young quail with a pair of adults. This makes one think that the pair hatched two broods of young. Most of these young birds ages are normally less than three weeks apart, thus making it impossible for them to be offspring of the same pair of parents.

very slim as quail are gallinaceous birds. They scratch the ground for food, are rather long - legged for rapid mobility, and brood their young. This last characteristic is the key factor in discounting the second hatch of young.

Once a gallinaceous bird (bobwhite) has successfully incubated a clutch of eggs (they might re-nest several times if disturbed), their only objective is to teach their young, to furnish protection, and provide them with food. When this is accomplished, even for a single, chick, their instinctive desire has been fulfilled for the season and their attention reverts to other activities.

Many times, the sighting of what is believed to be covey with two age classes of young is the result of close association of more than one covey at places such as feeding and resting areas. A disturbance can cause young quail to mix with another covey for a period of time. sometimes permanently.

Since it is natural for quail to seek covey companions, it is not unusual for two sizes of birds to be found together.

It is ironic that many people should become so alarmed about predators such as house cats, skunks, snakes, hawks, and owls catching a few birds and so passive about complete brush clearing, over-grazing, indiscriminate use of herbicides, and other activities which literally annihilate quail through habitat destruction.

Everyone should remember that if the quails' habitat is adequate. they can thrive very well.

Even though the natural "turnover" of quail means that 70 to 80 percent of the birds die during theirfirst year after hatching, there are many causes which contribute to quail mortality and the quail hunter is among the least significant of these.

Bobwhite quail are an annual product of the land and the numbers of quail present each year are directly proportional to adequate food and cover requirements.

Pampa seeks first-half crown

The Pampa High baseball team faces its most important game of the year Friday afternoon to highlight this weekend's activities for PHS teams

A win Friday over defending District 3-AAAA champion Amarillo High would give the Harvesters the first-half title outright. However, a loss would make the Sandies and the Harvesters tied for the title after the first go-round. The Harvesters are 3-0 in district competition following Tuesday's 10-4 triumph over Palo Duro. Meanwhile, the Sandies are right on the heels of the leaders with a mark of 2-1. Amarillo High won its last outing 9-4 over Tascosa.

Game time Friday is set for 4 p.m. at Optimist Park. It is expected that Steve Stout will be on the mound for the Harvesters. He is currently undefeated with a record of 5-0.

However, that's not the only activity going on Friday as both the girls tennis and track teams will be in Lubbock in the regional tournament. Kris Douglass will represent Pampa in the tennis competition. It will be the first time that any player from Pampa has been in the regional tournament in the last 46 years. She qualified for regional by finishing second in the recent district tournament. There will be two girl tracksters in action Friday at the regional meet in Lubbock.

Those two are Carmela Cardwell in the shot put and Cindy Whitson in the long jump. Both finished second at the District 3-AAAA meet held in be in Amarillo and will start at Pampa. 10 a.m.

Cardwell took second in the ' shot put with a toss of 38-4. Getting first in that event was leader by 19 strokes over the Sandra Gilbreath of Amarillo second place Harvesters.' In High. She had a throw of 41-7. medalist play. Pampa's Barry

In the long jump, Whitson leaped 17-11/2 for a second place finish. Just ahead of Miss Whitson was Stephanie Freeman of Palo Duro. She had a 18-3.

7.43 OT 00381 First to sail into U.S. in 30 years Chinese cargo ship taking on corn

SEATTLE (AP) - The first Chinese cargo ship to sail into a U.S. port in 30 years is taking on corn from the Midwest while officials hold trade talks about the reopened shipping lane between the superpowers.

The 637-foot Liu Lin Hai docked in Seattle harbor Wednesday as an escort fire boat shot festive jets of water skyward and a Navy band blared tunes like "Jesus Christ Superstar" and "Put Your Hand In The Hand Of The Man Who Stilled The Water.

The red Chinese flag with its five gold stars flapped from the ship's stern, while the Stars and Stripes flew from the starboard yardarm, a place of honor.

Chinese crew members snapped photographs from The ship's railing of awaiting dignitaries and news media representatives clicked back.

After speeches, dignitaries mounted the steep. wobbly gangplank to the captain's suite for a feast of Chinese hors d'oeuvres, shrimp, beef, liquor and Tsingtao beer.

The vessel is the first ship flying a Chinese flag to berth in a U.S. port since 1949, when communist forces of Mao Tse-Tung defeated the nationalists of Chiang Kai-shek.

With a crew of 43, the merchant ship carried only seawater ballast on its 20-day voyage across the Pacific. About 30,000 tons of corn from Minnesota, Nebraska and Iowa will be loaded on the vessel before it leaves directly for Shanghai early next week, said Capt. Zhang Jie.

Further Chinese sailings to the United States "will depend on need." and none is scheduled right now, said Chai Zemin, Chinese ambassador to the United States. as he waited on the dock for the ship.

After the visiting ship's officers clambered down a gangplank to be swept to a reception line, Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., called the docking "the beginning of a long, significant step of good will and trade Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., a frequent visitor to China, called the ship's arrival a "special and festive occasion, which in the years ahead we expect to be a routine occasion.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams told the crew. "We hope the ship will carry not only grain but friendship from the hearts of our people back to China.

Relations between the two countries were normalized Jan. 1. Barriers to direct shipping between China and the United States were dropped March 2 when Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal reached agreement with China on the repayment of American assets frozen in China since 1949. Even before the Blumenthal trip, a private trade pact was reached between Lykes Bros. Steamship Co. of New Orleans and China Ocean Shipping, a government-owned company.

A Lykes ship, the Letitia Lykes, arrived March 19 at Shanghai.

Sasser wants to cut travel budget

OVER ATLANTA (AP) - Sen. Jim Sasser, a Democrat from Tennessee who would like to cut half a billion dollars from the Carter administration's request for $7.9 billion in travel expenses, says at any given time an average 22,000 federal bureaucrats are in the air

Well, I never would have guessed the figure, but I knew there were a lot of them up here.

Why, right now this wide-bodied jumbo flying down to Atlanta from New York is more than half full of civil servants heading some place.

You can always tell the male of the species. They all wear the standard three-piece busness suit with an American flag in the label, carry an imitation cowhide attache case with pop-out accordian file compartments and use their swizzle sticks to follow the fine print on whatever government publications they have spread out on the pull-down food tray.

The Ms. version comes in a slit-skirt two piece business suit. favors long yellow legal pads, drums her teeth with the swizzle stick while fingering a pocket calculator and wears her rhinestone rimmed tri-focals on a slender black cord.

Flying feds from the surgeon general's office and the Department of Health. Education and Welfare tend tomonopolize the non-smoking section. Those from the FBI are often handcuffed to another passenger and it is not always easy to tell which is which.

There was a hassle this morning at the check in counter when travellers from the Federal Railroad Administration, the Department of Transportation and Amtrak all insisted on having window seats. They said they wanted to get the overall view of roadbed conditions in the Northeast Corridor. But the window seats were all occupied by representatives from the National Park Service, the Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service all doing a survey of development potential in the New Jersey pine barrens.

Also aboard our flight this morning, besides the two Internal Revenue agents doing a spot check in the first-class section on travel deductions claimed by taxpaying passengers, is a rather dedicated auditor from the General Accounting Office.

It seems his job is to find out where all the other government employees are flying to and why and how long have they been in the air this month. The problem is he hasn't a chance to talk to the other passengers because his time has been monopolized by two congressional aides from Senator Sasser's office who are trying to find out where he's going and why.

Nice crowd, though, those flying feds. Not a white knuckle flyer among them until some snoop pops the question: "Is this trip necessary?"

Inside Washington today

WASHINGTON (AP) - Massachusetts and New Yok City are now the only two jurisdictions in the country where drivers are barred from making right turns at red lights.

The District of Columbia threw in the towel Wednesday and reluctantly agreed to allow motorists to make the turns, once it has a chance to post signs at the intersections where the turns will not be allowed. The district had been resisting, arguing that the city's unique street patterns and the large number of pedestrians. and tourists were not conducive to allowing the turns. A proposed Energy Department rule would require the turns as a condition for receiving federal money.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is being asked to make "a strong declaration of support" for a Cuban political prisoner in an effort to pressure the Cuban government into releasing him.

months after serving a 20-year term on treason charges, said Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y. He said Matos opposed the regime of Fulgenci Battista, in power before Fidel Castro's revolution, and later opposed Castro's methods. He was arrested when he tried to leave the revolutionary government in 1959, Moynihan said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Justice Department has no immediate plans to investigate allegations that the South African government kept a secret fund to promote its own interests among influential Americans, a spokesman says.

The charges were made by Eschel Rhoodie. South Africa's former information diector. before he vanished several weks ago. The claims sparked a political scandal over the alleged us of some $100 million to influence international public opinion in South Africa's favor. Justice Department spokesman Robert Stevenson said Wednesday that although there are no present plans for an investigation, the department

White House

SAPELO ISLAND, Ga. (AP) - President Carter's joint checking account with wife Rosalynn is out of balance by at least $297.

You see, the Carters have a problem that doesn't affect most of us: Some folks would rather display the first family's personal checks than cash them. A case in point: Sayde's, a fashionable dress shop on nearby St. Simons Island, keeps a $297 check signed by Mrs. Carter under glass where customers can see it

Meanwhile. the first lady has been wearing three dresses the uncashed $297 check bought when she went shopping during a 1977 holiday.

Carter, who is known to keep close tabs on his personal finances, has extended his interest in money matters to ones involving White House reporters.

This became evident Sunday when he. Mrs. Carter and daughter Amy attended Easter services at the tiny First African Baptist Church.

Mingling afterward with five reporters who had been allowed to worship with him. Carter jibed. "I didn't see y'all give any offering.

Carter thought he knew what he was talking about because members of the congregation had filed to the front of the church to drop their offerings on a plate - and no reporters joined in the march.

What the president did not know was that the five reporters had given their money to Susan Clough. Carter's personal secretary, who carried the collective offering to the plate.

At least the first part of the president's holiday was uneventful on a scale seldom seen since some of President Lyndon Johnson's lengthy stays at his Texas ranch.

In LBJ's time. Sid Davis, now Washington bureau chief for NBC News, sometimes informed colleagues he was going to seek excitement by walking around the corner to "watch some haircuts.

The Computer and the Carrier

The Pampa News

"We Count On Our Carriers"

Once upon a time there was an industry. It , produced newspapers for people to read. For many years it remained unchanged, clinging to the glories of its past. When other industries modernized to keep in pace with progress, the newspaper industry followed suit.

Computers were introduced in many areas of the newspaper production cycle. In the news room they were used for electronic editing and reporters threw out their pencils, paper and erasers.

In the composing room the computer was instrumental in producing type at a much faster pace, and type setters threw out their lead, their molds and saws.

In administration computers were used for storing information, preparing invoices, checks and statistics.

To make a long story short, the computer helped produce a better newspaper. But what did the industry do with the better newspaper? When they asked the computer to deliver it to the thousands of daily readers, it blinked, shook, sputtered and failed to come up with an answer.

Then the newspaper people realized that, with all that great technology, they still had to depend on their carriers to deliver their product.

"That makes the carrier just as important as our computer" said one of the newspaper people. All the others agreed and they lived happily ever after.

Corks pop, bubbly flows in celebration

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Corks popped and champagne flowed as Michelle Triola Marvin celebrated the $104,000 she won from Lee Marvin, while the actor claimed he won "on all counts" the suit his former lover filed against him.

Miss Marvin and her lawyer, Marvin Mitchelson, toasted at a party what they said was a triumph in her suit to win $1.8 million, an estimated half share of Marvin's earnings during the time she lived with the actor

A beaming Miss Marvin arrived at the party with her poodle, a present from Marvin during the time they lived together.

Miss Marvin's friends, other attorneys and members of the press were invited to Mitchelson's palatial office for the party.

Although the Superior Court award was only 6 per cent of what she had sought. Miss Marvin said a larger sum would surely have been appealed by the actor.

"If I had won allof Lee's worldly goods, I'd probably be in court until I was 80." Miss Marvin said several hours after Judge Arthur Marshall ruled Wednesday in the landmark case.

Citing the relatively minimal-award, attorneys for both sides said it was unlikely they would appeal.

"I think it's sensational," Marvin said of the decision. "I couldn't have hoped for more ... We won on all counts.'

As he left his Tucson, Ariz., home to visit his wife's family in New York. Marvin reflected on the trial's aftermath.

'All this has done for me is make me more famous than acting, which is a sad commentary because I want to be known as a fine actor." he said

Arriving at New York's Kennedy Airport. Marvin said, "On every one of their claims they were defeated. I don't know ow you can do that in any court under any circumstances."

He said the settlement Miss Marvin received was "the same thing I agreed to a long time ago" and was "a total defeat for them. Miss Marvin, 46, called the ruling a victory for women's rights and predicted others would benefit from her legal battle

ANNOUNCING THE association of Paul E. Emmans, D.O. with John L. Witt, D.O., in clinical and surgi cal practice beginning April 9 in Groom, Texas. AMF TUBOSCOPE. Starting salary, $800 per month, plus overtime and

She said she hesitated to become involved with any man during the trial because "I wouldn't want anyone to have to go through this with

She added. "I'm ready for marriage now."

But the former showgirl said she's learned to be cautious about love affairs. "I think if a man wants to leave a toothbrush at my house, he can bloody well marry me," she said. "Enough is enough."

Marshall ordered Marvin. 55, to pay his former lover the equivalent of the highest salary she earned during her days as a cabaret singer - $1,000 a week for two years.

With this help "for rehabilitation purposes," he said, she could find a new career and become a woman of independent means.

A return of plaintiff to a career as singer is doubtful," the judge noted Miss Marvin, who is collecting unemployment insurance, said she would like to work in TV-production at one of the major networks. "I'm going to try to put this behind me and go on living,"she said.

She spent seven years in court fighting for compensation for six years as Marvin's housekeeper, companion and cook from 1964 to 1970

The judge said she had been compensated with glamorous travel. clothes, fur and cars while she lived with Marvin and moved with Marvin in Hollywood's inner circle of "screen stars and stage aeries

And Marshall rejected the premise that a contract existed between the two to share property acquired during their liaison.

The court in equity awards plaintiff $104.000 for rehabilitation purposes so that she may have the economic means to re-educate herself and to learn new, employable skills ... and so that she may return from her status as companion of a motion picture star to a separate, independent but perhaps more prosaic existence.

Mitchelson said this first major award of alimony-like payments to an unmarried woman creates a healthy climate for similar lawsuits.

Mitchelson has three more celebrity cases waiting to be tried - the claims of former lovers of rock star Alice Cooper and actors Nick Nolte and Rod Steiger

'There are a thousand Marvin cases out there,'' he said of future litigation. "So fellas, beware."

Mitchelson conceded that he did not take Miss Marvin's case with an eye on dollars. "The precedent is what was important," he said.

He worked on contingency, meaning he is entitled to no more than a third of the award - about $35,000. He probably spent more than that on trial costs.

Marvin's lawyer, A. David Kagon, who was on retainer to the actor, conceded that Marvin could have saved money by settling the case out of court.

He said Miss Marvin had offered much earlier to settle for $60.000 The actor refused, saying. "You only settle if you're wrong."

Miss Marvin had tears in her eyes as she left the court for home

"Last night." she said. "I took down every momento of Lee, every picture. The shrine is gone. Every picture is locked in a trunk now.'

Carter wants cheap drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration asked Congress today to speed marketing approval for drugs that represent major breakthroughs and to encourage the sale of relatively inexpensive generic drugs

The requests are included in a bill proposing a major overhaul of the nation's prescription drug law. Virtually identical administration legislation failed to reach the floor in the last Congress, largely due to major drug manufacturers' opposition.

The prospects in this Congress also are uncertain, and some observers believe the measure was doomed when one if its principal advocates. Food and Drug Commissioner Donald Kennedy. announced his resignation Tuesday.

Health. Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. who is vacationing while Congress is in recess this week, sent the bill to Capitol Hill with a message invoking Carter's support of the measure and saying he looks forward "to working with the Congress again this year as it considers this major consumer legislation."

The measure is designed to speed up a now-lengthy administrative process that the industry and many experts claim impedes the marketing of new life-saving drugs.

Meat may soon be traded through computers

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department has told Congress that the nation's $37.5-billion-a-year wholesale meat business could be revolutionized by space-age computers that would put buyers and sellers into instantaneous touch with each other.

'Wholesale meat as a commodity appears well suited for electronic trading," the department says in a new report. "The technology is here.

The report was released Wednesday by Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, chairman of the House Small Business Committee.

Smith said he was "delighted that the report supports my own opinion" that electronic trading could be used.

"The report also confirms my view that electronic marketing will provide more accurate pricing information and woud bring a higher degree of confidence in meat trading practices," he said.

Smith's committee has been investigating wholesale meat pricing, particularly the beef trade, and the common practice of using "formula pricing" to set meat prices.

That involves transacting a price based on a market quotation for a date in the future, usually on the day a product is shipped or on the day before shipment.

For example, a buyer and seller on Monday may agree to settle on a price for beef that will be published by a market reporting service the following Friday, or whatever future date is agreed upon.

Formula pricing, critics charge, too often reflects a "thin" market in which relatively few transactions take place. Also, some say, market reporting services can depend too heavily on sales reports by a handful of brokers and packers.

The new USDA report, in discussing formula pricing, said that 'information tends to become so scattered, so fragmented, and so limited that it is difficult to say what happened in the market on a given day."

Smith contends - and the report bears him out - that a network of computerized machines could greatly expand the basis for negotiating and setting daily prices in the wholesale meat business.

Some have argued, Smith among them, that a broader pricing base would result in less opportunity for price gouging and manipulation. and would benefit both farmers and consumers.

Electronic trading already is in use by the securities industry, and it is a fact of life in some commodities, including the sale of cotton in Lubbock, Texas, and in the sale of eggs by Egg Cleari ghouse Inc.. an electronic system to create a national wholesale market, the report said.

Although the USDA report said the "technology is here" to begin electronic trading of wholesale meat, it added that whether it can become "operational on the basis of industry acceptance alone remains a question."

Many people in the industry would like the "availability of instant market intelligence" provided by an electronic system, the report said.

But the current system of formula pricing and having 'quasi-standing orders'' for meat "gives meat packers and retailers a sense of security," it said.

"They feel assured that under formula trading one's prices are about the same as those of competitors," the report said.

"These features are most comforting for business managers operating with the rapid turnover of a high-value product that characterizes the wholesale meat trade.

WASHINGTON (AP) - China has cancelled another order for U.S. wheat and the grain will be exported instead to the Soviet Union. according to the Agriculture Department.

No reason was provided for the switch, which was reported to the department by private exporters who handle foreign grain sales. The deal involved 118,374 metric tons of wheat.

One source close to the situation speculated that China may have cancelled the order because of price or possibly some problems in delivery schedules.

Your money's worth by sylvia porter

If you discover one of your credit cards is missing and has been used to buy goods in your name, you are liable for no more than $50. If someone forges one of your checks, you bear no liability.

But if the plastic debit or access card you use with an electronic banking machine is lost or stolen, you must act fast to be protected against abuse of the card. The longer you wait to report your loss, the more liability you assume.

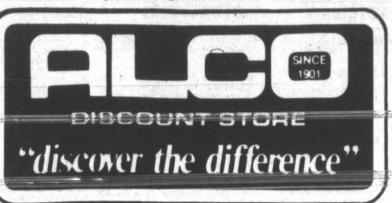

Under certain sections of the Electronic Funds Transfer Act which became effective this past February, you have two business days in which to report the loss of your card. If you notify the bank or other institution which issued the electronic banking card to you within that span of time, your loss is limited to no more than $50

But if you neglect to contact the issuing institution within two days of learning of your loss, you could be liable for as much as $500, reports my associate, Brooke Shearer. Even this $500 ceiling on your liability disappears if you wait longer than 60 days after the issuing institution mails you your monthly statement to report the unauthorized use of your debit card.

You'll save more at ALCO...where super car care is affordable.

If you fail to notify the institution within this time period, your liability is unlimited, and you may not get back any funds you might have lost

If an unusual circumstance -travel or hospitalization -prevents you from contacting the institution, these time periods may be extended. Before these federal regulations governing consumers' liability went into effect, most institutions offering electronic funds transfer (EFT) services determined a customer's liability for losses on a case-by-case basis, according to a 1978 survey by the American Bankers Assn. The new rules now set a minimum standard that all financial institutions which provide EFT services must meet

Nothing prevents institutions. however, from assuming more liability than the regulation requires, and they may do so in efforts to attract customers.

The EFT Act also allows institutions to issue unsolicited debit cards, but the cards cannot be used until you inform the issuer that you have received and accepted the card. The institution must also tell you:

-How to dispose of the unsolicited card if you don't want to accept and use it.

'-The telephone number and address which you should use to report that your card is lost or stolen.

-The sort of electronic transactions that you, as aconsumer. may make by using the card -- for instance. withdrawing money from your checking or savings account. moving funds from one type of account to another, making deposits. learning the balances in your accounts, similar functions.

-What charges. if any, you might incur for any of these electronic services, and the limits. if any, on how often you may use them or on the dollar size of your transaction.

The circumstances under which the issuing institution might reveal information about your account to such third parties as credit bureaus or government agencies.

Other consumer safeguards governing EFT services go into effect in May 1980.
