San Antonio sniper took his own life

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Somewhere in the recesses of his mind, the police relentlessly stalked Ira Attebury.

His brother and an acquaintance say that might be why the 54-year-old man, hunched in a parked trailer, was armed with at least 15 guns, unleashed flurries of deadly gunfire Friday afternoon into thousands of festive parade spectators.

Two were killed and at least 50 injured as Attebury, reportedly yelling "Traitors! Traitors! Traitors!" cut up crowd. Six police officers were among the first wounded.

Attebury, a heavy-set, bald former independent trucker and lifelong bachelor who would have turned 65 Sunday, was found dead inside the small, bullet-riddled motor home in which he lived.

Police Chief Emil Peters said it appeared Attebury had shot himself in the right ear with a 38-caliber pistol. Bexar County Medical Examiner Dr. Ruben Santos ruled Saturday that Attebury killed himself, but said no other autopsy details would be available until Monday.

Peters said afterward, "It's obvious he came to the parade with a plan designed to do what he did."

"He felt the police were following him all the time, but it was all in his imagination," said Attebury's brother, Roy, contacted in Naylor, Mo. Police later said Ira Attebury had no police record.

"He was afraid of something all the time. He said police were always watching him and people always were stealing things," said Clayton Richards, who forced Attebury to move a year ago from his trailer park because Attebury was "always paranoid."

But Attebury had lived quietly at Kate Copeland's trailer park in southwest San Antonio, growing roses on a $40-per-month lot where he parked his green-and-white camper. Roy Attebury said his brother lived off disability checks and had several years of unemployment several years.

"He was such a loner and so very quiet," Mrs. Copeland said of the sniper. "He never caused any trouble here."

"He had sponges in his windows so no one could see in," recalled neighbor April Harper.

He washed his motor home on Wednesday and told Mrs. Copeland he was going to be gone awhile after the 84th Battle of Flowers Parade.

About a week earlier, Attebury had asked permission to park his camper in a tire store parking lot at the corner of Grayson St. and Broadway, the starting point of the huge parade.

"We told him sure, we usually let everybody park here during Fiesta," said John Phillips.

"He had parked here before. He was quiet and a real nice guy," said Mike Pacheco, the store manager. "But he was never watching the parade. He had his curtains drawn."

Attebury parked the camper there about 6 p.m. Thursday, 19 hours before the drama unfolded. Inside were a double-barreled shotgun, an AR-15 semi-automatic carbine, nine other rifles and four 38-caliber pistols.

"He had enough ammunition to start a war. He came prepared to stay awhile," Police Inspector Marion Talbert afterward.

In Southwest Music Festival Choirs take honors

By DEBBIE DUKE
Pampa News Staff

Two local choirs received "one" ratings and three others were awarded "two" ratings in competition Friday at the Greater Southwest Music Festival in Amarillo.

The Eighth Grade Girls Choir and the Freshman Chorale were given the "one" ratings at the annual music festival while the Seventh Grade Girls Choir, the Sophomore choir and the Seventh and Eighth Grade Boys Choirs were awarded "two" ratings.

Elena Donald is the director of the Junior High Choirs and John Woickowski directs the High School choirs. Approximately 1,400 students from several states were competing in the festival, which started Thursday and included competition for choirs, orchestras and ensembles.

The "Golden Voices" of the Pampa High School Concert Choir, who competed Saturday morning, received a rating "one" in concert and a "two" in sight-reading competition, while the Concert Women and Concert Men both received "one" ratings in both concert and sight-reading events.

Frank Pooler, orchestra leader for the pop duo "The Carpenters" and competition judge said the concert choir "really knows what they are doing."

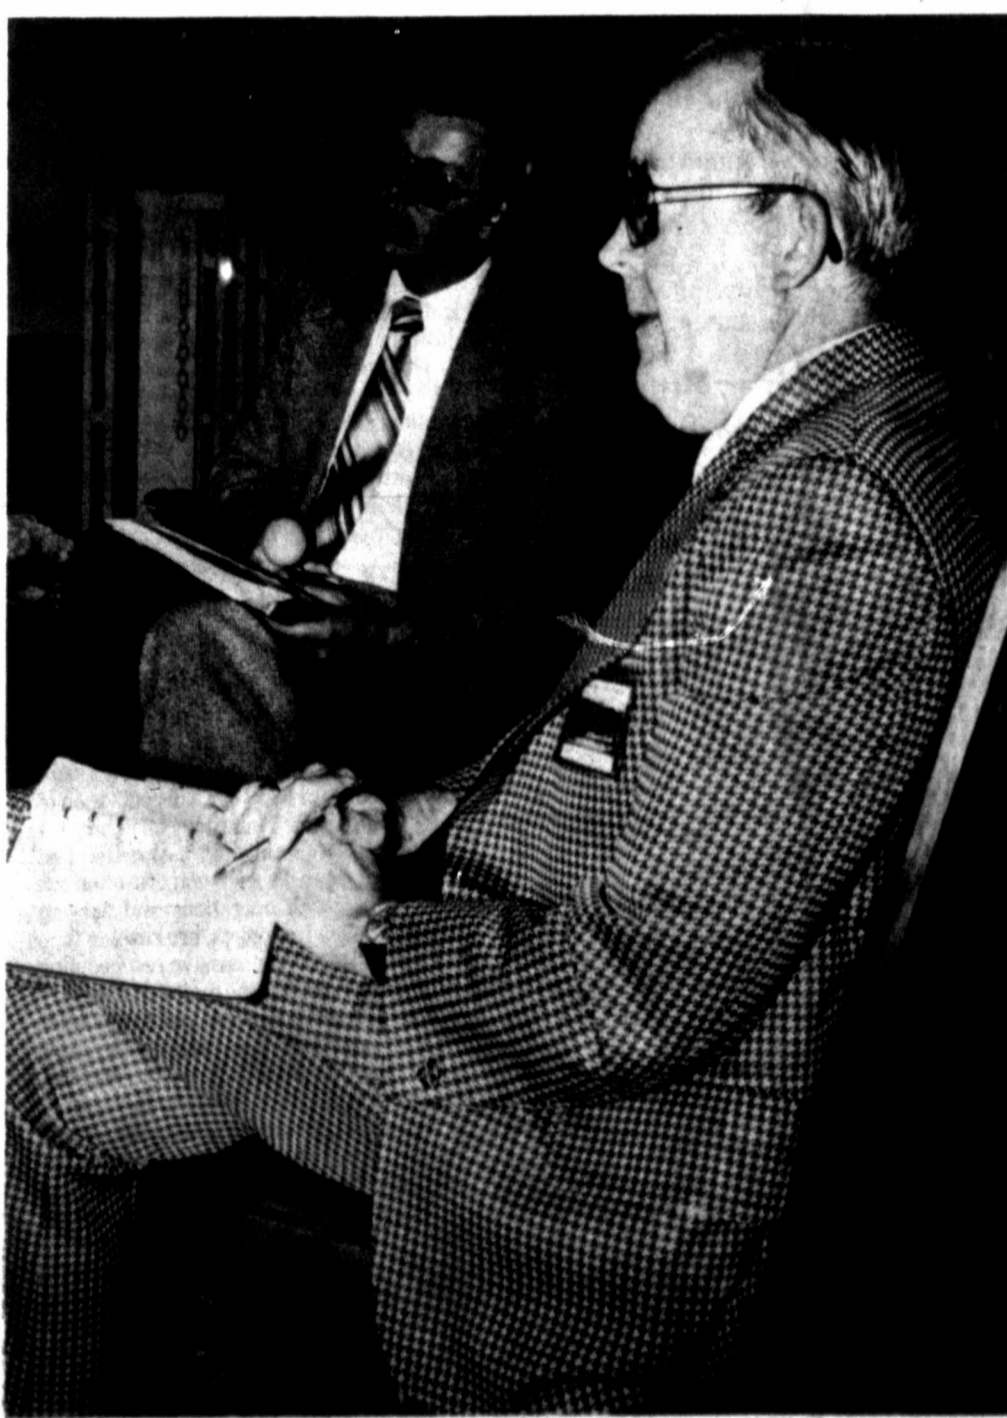

"John Woickowski is one of the finest choral directors in the country," said Pooler.

John Wainner, concert judge from Oklahoma State University, said the freshman chorale was "quite good." And added the concert choir had good tone and a warm full sound.

Another judge, Roland Shaw from Arkansas, said, "Marvelous! Why write when I can listen?"

The "Golden Voices" choir will depart Wednesday for St. Louis, Missouri to compete in the Six Flags International Contest. This will be their last contest of the year.

Woickowski said that the choir's main competition will be from Ponca City, Okla. and Permian High School from Odessa.

D.N. BENNETT, foreground, rehearses a group on the part "Pionerring as a Witness Shows Zeal for Fine Works", to be held today at 10 a.m. at M.K. Brown Auditorium, part of the two-day assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses. Bennett immigrated to the U.S. from England in June of 1949 and is now District Overseer of Jehovah's Witnesses in the tri-state area of Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas. In addition to overseeing rehearsals of various assembly parts, Bennett will address delegates on four different occasions. Attendance for Saturday morning's portion of the assembly topped 1300, with expected peak attendance of over 1500. Minister J. Logan sits in the background.

Soviet prison doors open

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has a history of sending its most troublesome dissidents out of the country, but never before have the prison doors opened as widely as during the past week.

Last Tuesday, five Jewish activists serving 10-year terms for trying to flee the country in a hijacked plane were released without warning or explanation. They promptly left for Israel.

On Friday, five of the country's best-known imprisoned dissidents were freed in an exchange for two convicted spies held in the United States. The releases and exchanges come at a time when the Russians want to complete a strategic arms limitation treaty, which has run into opposition in Congress. But Soviet officials deny any connection with the SALT treaty.

"When the Soviets want something, you can expect to see them boost emigration or release a major figure as a gesture. It often works," one Western diplomat said.

In 1962 U-2 spy pilot Francis Gary Powers was traded for Col. Rudolph Abel, a Soviet master spy operating in the United States. In 1976, the Russians released dissident Vladimir Bukovsky in a trade for Chilean communist leader Luis Corvalan.

Many activists are Jews who seek to leave the country. Others, like just-released dissident Alexander Ginzburg and physicist Andrei Sakharov, who is still in the Soviet Union, vowed they would never leave the country.

Buying homes may be difficult

DALLAS (AP) — Texans trying to buy or sell a home may have difficulty closing the deal after this weekend — even if all parties agree to the terms.

The problem is a clash between a Texas law that limits home mortgage rates to 10 percent and interest rates rising above that level.

Mortgage bankers complain that the Texas usury ceiling makes it unprofitable to do business in the state when they can sell their loans at higher rates outside Texas.

To make their point, two mortgage banking companies Friday halted all home loans in Texas.

But Gov. Bill Clements has voiced opposition to easing the Texas ceiling, and labor leaders say they suspect collusion between lending institutions and the Federal National Mortgage Association — "Fannie Mae" — which buys the mortgages from lending institutions and thus makes more funds available to lend.

In Houston, mortgage bankers meeting at their state convention unanimously passed a resolution asking Clements to reconsider his opposition to an increase in the Texas ceiling.

The resolution Friday came one day after Fannie Mae, the nation's largest purchaser of mortgages, announced it would no longer buy mortgages in Texas that exceed the 10 percent maximum.

There were different interpretations of the guidelines issued by Fannie Mae, but many mortgage bankers said a loan of 10 percent would, in effect, exceed the ceiling if "points" — loan fees paid when the loan is made — are considered part of the interest.

David G. Fox, president of Fox & Jacobs Inc., the biggest home-building company in Dallas, admitted "There is some confusion," but he added, "Texas needs to be brought into the 20th Century. That's what everyone is telling us."

Texas AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard called for an investigation into Fannie Mae. "There is a concerted effort on the part of the federal association to pressure the Legislature and politicians" to approve the 12 percent ceiling, he said.

Chairman Jess Hay of Lomas & Nettleton Financial Corp., the nation's biggest mortgage banker, said the Texas usury ceiling law was "completely unrealistic."

Hay's company and the Murray Investment Co., both based in Dallas, announced a freeze on home loans.

"Some of our state political leaders must finally come to grips with the fact that, for people desiring to buy homes, the unavailability of mortgage money is a more serious problem than an interest rate of 10 1/2 or 11 percent," said Hay, whose company operates in 34 states and has 330,000 home mortgages totaling $6.6 billion.

Carl Hearn, executive vice president of Murray Mortgage, said simply "We're not quoting. We are closed down."

A bill before the Texas Legislature would raise the ceiling to 12 percent, but 10 days ago Clements said he would veto such a bill. Since then, the federal government hiked the interest rate for VA and FHA loans to 10 percent, raising the question of exceeding the Texas ceiling when points are added as part of the interest.

LEOTA POLLARD (left), a Pampa police dispatcher since 1961, was honored Friday by the Kiwanis Club as Police Officer for the first quarter of 1979. Pollard, a grandmother, is treasurer of the Panhandle Police Communications Association. The award makes her a candidate for Officer of the Year. Presenting her plaque is H.J. Johnson of the Kiwanis. Thomasville.

Thomasville designers have researched the formal motifs of Early American furniture for a collection of faithful reproductions. Many of the pieces reflect the hallmarks of New England Queen Anne designs which were so popular in the finer colonial homes. Exceptional bedroom reproductions include the Queen Anne high boy, the shaving mirror, the vertical mirror with its flowing broken pediment, a substantial cannonball bed and a graceful canopy bed in queen and king sizes. An unusual adaptation of Early American design for 20th century storage requirements is the master's chest with drawer and door storage. These designs have graced the interiors of fine homes for more than 200 years. Thomasville makes them available now, scaled for today's rooms, in the Early American beauty and with the Thomasville quality your home deserves.

Pampan receives third chance from court

A Pampa man, whose probation for a 1976 convenience store robbery was revoked when he admitted to the theft and damage totaling an estimated $4000 at Heard and Jones Drugs last October, was given a third chance April 19th in 223rd District Court.
 Eddie Scothorn, 22, sentenced Dec. 11 to serve a five year prison term for the March 4, 1976 theft from a Pampa Minute Mart store, was granted "shock probation" by District Judge Don Cain.
 Scothorn had served 3 1/2 months of the sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections.
 The ruling was made under the provisions of a 1975 law which allows convicted offenders to apply for probation between 60 and 120 days after entering prison.

Scothorn admitted guilt for the Heard - Jones break - in at his probation revocation hearing in December. He also admitted break-ins at two local medical clinics but testified that he did not take anything. The theft from Heard and Jones had included several controlled substances.
 Scothorn was not charged with the robbery and break - ins at his December probation revocation hearings. He was sent to prison only on the 1976 conviction for the convenience store robbery.
 Assistant District Attorney Mark Buzzard argued against the defense motion for the shock probation, according to District Attorney Harold Comer.

Under the terms of the shock probation, Scothorn was ordered to make restitution for the theft and damages at Heard & Jones, consult the Family Service Center, and his pastor, in addition to the terms of regular probation, according to Judge Cain.
 Cain said this was the first time he had granted shock probation.
 Cain said the law for shock probation "was designed to apply to young people so that they could get a taste of the penitentiary, then hopefully, they won't want to go back."
 Scothorn had served a month of his sentence in the Gray County Jail before being transferred to the facilities in Huntsville.

NATURAL COVER BEST

WHEELER—Any soil disturbed either on purpose or by accident will grow weeds which can fill the food and cover requirements for upland game birds in Texas.

"These weeds are normally very high in protein and for that reason, livestock should be controlled or fenced out if the weed patch is intended for wildlife," said Richard DeArment, extension wildlife biologist.

"Weeds or cover in or near playa lakes in northwest Texas are also very important and they should also be ungrazed, unburned and cultivated to stimulate weed growth," DeArment continued.

If livestock is to graze on land intended for wildlife habitat, it is best to plant a variety of plant that cattle or deer won't eat such as the partridge pea. This plant is drought resistant and will reseed itself each spring.

If you are lucky enough to have a tree shelterbelt on your property, you already are furnishing wildlife with some cover. However, many mature treerows are being overgrazed and areas should be fenced to keep livestock out. Not only must the shelterbelts have trees but undercover also such as weeds or shrubs.

Cultivated crops such as wheat, sunflowers, maize, corn, or other grains are equally important to game birds. Their use by wildlife will increase many fold if they are planted near natural cover.

Upland birds are establishing their nesting areas now and cultivation of the remnants of cover left after the hard winter should be restricted during this period.

All chemical spraying, if necessary, should be done as far as possible from the wildlife nesting areas.

More assistance and information on improving your wildlife habitat is available by writing Richard DeArment, Extension Biologist, P&WD, Box 122, Wheeler, Tx. 79096.

GAME WARDENS ASSIST WITH DISASTER RELIEF

WICHITA FALLS—Several Texas game wardens were assigned to Wichita Falls area to assist in curfew patrol and search for potential storm victims following the disastrous tornado that struck there recently.

The Lubbock law enforcement region furnished 13 men over a weeks period as clean-up operations and nightly patrols continue in Wichita Falls.

Although the warden's prime duties are game, fish and water safety enforcement, they are trained in disaster relief wherever it occurs in Texas.

The wardens patrol vehicle and radio equipment were utilized to relay messages between the Wichita Falls police department, county sheriffs' officers and the Alcohol Beverage Commission personnel.

As life following a disaster of this type nears the daily routine of clean-up and rebuilding, the wardens will head back to their assigned districts.

MANAGEMENT AREAS PRODUCE GOBBLERS

LUBBOCK—The first weekend of a three weekend spring turkey hunt has netted six hunters with gobblers on the Gene Howe and Matador wildlife management areas in northwest Texas.

Each WMA had three gobblers bagged by permit holders as 17 sportsmen made the hunt on the Matador area and 10 sportsmen arrived for the hunt on the Gene Howe area.

A 20-pound gobbler was the largest bird bagged according to Vernon Morse, Howe area manager, and was harvested by E.B. Telford of Amarillo. One hunter traveled all the way from Point Blank, Texas, located near Conroe for the hunt.

The spring hunts will continue through May 5 for additional permit holders. Only shotguns are allowed for the hunt making it necessary for the hunters to either call or get the wise old gobblers to come within range.

Pace kept in wet

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Not even rain nor a slippery artificial surface could end Villanova's domination of the Penn Relays, as the Wildcats won four major races Saturday, setting a national collegiate record in the 6,000-meter event.

But the speed of Maryland sprinter Renaldo Nehemiah kept Villanova, the only team ever to win five relays during a Penn Relays weekend, from accomplishing the feat for the fifth time since they first appeared in the competition in 1955.

Coach Jumbo Jim Elliott's Wildcats won the distance medley Friday and the 6,000, 3,200 and sprint medley relays Saturday.

Villanova had a chance for its fifth triumph of the rain-swept day in the final event—the 1,600-meter relay. Elliott's team led on the final lap by at least 35 yards, but Nehemiah overtook Villanova anchorman Tim Dale in the stretch.

Nehemiah ran his 400-meter anchor leg of the 1,600 in 44.3 seconds, and gave Maryland its second victory of the meet.

Five-run burst spells victory

STEVE STOUT slides in safely despite the readiness of Tascosa's Martin Coyer (12). Stout was one of the six players to touch home plate to give the Harvester baseball team a 6-1 victory over the Tascosa Rebels Friday afternoon.

(Pampa News Photo by John Price)

By JERRY GUNTER
Pampa News Sports Editor

A big five-run burst in the late going by the Pampa Harvesters proved to be very crucial Friday afternoon at Optimist Park. That big sixth inning by the Green and Gold broke a tie as the Harvesters rolled on to a convincing 6-1 victory over the Tascosa Rebels. The win evens the Harvesters second-half record at 1-1. Tascosa is also 1-1. For the season, Pampa is now 17-4.

Until the fifth, the Harvesters were having a great deal of trouble in getting many hits as Tascosa pitcher Martin Coyer had given up only three. Joe Jeffers got the Harvesters untracked in the sixth as he got safely to first on a bunt down the third base line. An error on Tascosa shortstop Bob Slade put two PHS runners on (Jeffers and Greg Quarles). Then Steve McDougall came through in the clutch with a two-out double to left field to drive both base runners home for a 3-1 Harvester lead.

But that was not the end of the scoring spree as Richard Wuest slapped a single to right to chase McDougall home to up the score to 4-1. Mark Jennings was credited with the next RBI as he pounded out a one-base hit up the middle. Finally, a hard-hit double to left by Rick Dougherty brought home the final run as the Harvesters took the big lead.

In the seventh, winning pitcher Steve Stout (7-0) fanned two of the three Rebel batters to insure the win. For the day, Stout had a fine day as he struck out 12 Rebel opponents and scattered eight hits. Coupled with the 14 achieved in his last outing against Amarillo High a week ago, Stout has 26 strike outs in two games.

Tascosa pitcher Martin Coyer did not do badly at all as he held the Harvesters in check for the biggest part of the afternoon. He gave up eight hits, five of which came in the sixth frame. For the day, he fanned nine Harvester batters.

Neither team could get much going in the early going as the game was scoreless until the home-half of the third when the Harvesters finally pushed a run across to take the early edge.

Stout led off by getting on safely thanks to a Tascosa error. He later came in on wild pitch by Coyer to put the Harvesters out in front momentarily.

Tascosa was able to knot the count up in the fifth frame. After Stout had retired the first two batters of the inning in succession, Joey Hawkins singled to start the rally. Then a single to left by Andy Juett brought home Hawkins as the game was tied at 1-1.

Then in the sixth, the Rebels put another scare into the home folks as they threatened to take the lead. Coyer, who had got on by way of a single, was mowed down at the plate as he tried to score on a suicide squeeze. Later the Rebels had another base runner on third, but a clutch defensive effort spoiled the rally.

The Harvesters will now take the day off from district play next Tuesday and will not be in action again until next Friday. At that time, the PHS crew will host Palo Duro at Optimist Park in a 4 p.m. battle.

Local Crosses line first

BORGER — Jim Hogan of Pampa crossed the finish line ahead of all other competitors with a 34:17 time in the 24 - 35 age group division of the 6.6 mile Mini - Marathon here Saturday morning.

The Mini - Marathon and the 13 - mile Half Marathon are the events of the annual Coors North Country Marathon held during the spring.

In the high school division of the 6.6 mile run, Mike Wheeler of Pampa finished first with a time of 34:17, and another local, Don Braswell came in behind him for second place, showing 35:08 on the clock.

His father, Dr. Don Braswell placed second in the 40 - 50 year-old age group, clocked in at 43:59 while the ticker stopped at 44:31 for Pampa's Calvin Lacy who placed third in the same division.

Two local men responded to the challenge of the 13 - mile run for the 16 - 29 year - old bracket. Jackie Bromlow rolled in with a 87:45 time for fourth place, and Jim Hall made the distance in an undetermined amount of time.

Six foot-six too low

LUBBOCK — Pampa Harvester Trackster Kyle Bradford cleared the high jump bar at six foot - six, which was too little to keep him in the regional competition Saturday at Lubbock.

Bradford, the only Pampa competitor at regionals, was unable to stay clear of the bar up to the winning six foot - ten mark at the field at the Texas Tech Stadium.

"They had some pretty tough jumpers," said Pampa Track Coach Lou Allred.

"He's a junior, though," he said. "He'll have another chance."

Baseball's Bump Wills switches roles with father

BY JOE RESNICK
Associated-Press Writer
Bump Wills and his famous father, Maury, have switched roles after a dozen or so years. Bump is now on the road playing baseball and Maury is at home. And they now have a closer relationship than when it was the other way around.

The younger Wills, a 26-year-old second baseman with the Texas Rangers, virtually grew up without his father, who spent all of Bump's childhood playing shortstop and stealing bases with the Los Angeles Dodgers, Pittsburgh Pirates and Montreal Expos during his 14-year National League career.

But according to Bump, they have become exceedingly closer as father and son since 1972, especially in the last three years.

"He regretted not being there all the time. But it didn't do any harm to our relationship. I don't hold anything against him. That's water under the bridge."

Maury points to his family life as his No. 1 failure, with his one season as an original Expo the only other.

While the elder Wills, 46, was "playing the field" throughout the '60s, his wife, four daughters and two sons tried to manage without him most of the time. "It affected the girls more than me and my brother," Bump recalled.

Unlike his brother, Bump directed his energies toward becoming a professional athlete. He called himself a "fair" football player and was approached by Washington State and Montana. But he chose his father's profession and eventually went to Arizona State to play baseball.

"I never patterned myself after him," said Bump who, like Maury, is a switch-hitter. "I didn't bunt or anything like that."

While his son was in his junior year in high school, back in Spokane, Wash., Maury was moving from the Pirates to the Expos, who chose him in the 1969 expansion draft. He was quite upset about making the transition, and even more dismayed during his year in Montreal.

"I was a total flop there, even though I gave 100 percent effort and dedicated myself to playing well," Wills said. "I played so poorly they booed me out of Canada. They even booed me during batting practice."

One time he made a smart play and they still booed him, he said. The Expos were playing their expansion cousins from San Diego at home and the Padres had a runner on first with a man out. The next batter was the slow-footed Al Ferrara, who lifted a pop fly to shortstop.

Aware that Nate Colbert, a faster man, already was on base, Wills let the ball drop in front of him to create a force on Colbert at second and let Ferrara replace him on the bases. The boos from the bewildered Jarry Park crowd were long and loud, despite the fact that Wills executed the play as planned.

"It (the booing) got so bad that they had to explain on the scoreboard in French that it was a smart play," Wills remembered.

But that's all Maury chose to remember about his No. 2 failure. "I've been trying to forget about Montreal for the last six years," he said.

Bump, on the other hand, has never been to Montreal and didn't know then how miserable his father felt because he was just getting his feet wet in college. "I was very much into my athletic endeavors," the younger Wills said, "and he never talked about it."

They've talked a lot since, however. "We've caught up on a lot of time that was lost while I was growing up," said Bump, whose given name is Elliott Taylor.

Some of that time was utilized productively last season when Bump stayed at his father's house in Playa del Rey, Calif., when the Rangers went out west to play the California Angels. He doesn't stay there anymore because he says the drive to the ballpark in Anaheim is too long. They also spent a year together in Hermosillo, Mexico in 1974 when Maury asked his son to come down and play winter ball for him. "There were a few instances when he was a little harder on me than the other players," Bump recalled, adding that he'd love the opportunity to play for him in the majors. Bump is emphatic about his father's ability to manage a big-league club.

"I'd take it," Maury said about a future managing position.

Orellana takes single's title

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Gus Orellana of the University of Southwestern Louisiana took Olav Abrahamson of Lamar University 7-6, 7-5 Saturday to win the singles title at the 16th Annual Southland Conference Tennis Championships.

USL wrapped up the team title Friday with a score of 51, followed by Louisiana Tech with 37, Lamar with 35, McNeese State with 13 and Arkansas State with 0.

Going into the match Saturday, Orellana was top seeded in the tournament while Abrahamson was unseeded.

Down 5-4 in the set and 0-3 in the 10th game, Abrahamson took four straight points to tie the first set at 5-5. He then broke Orellana to go ahead 6-5.

Orellana came back on a 3-3 break point with a short bouncing shot to set up the tiebreaker. He then won five straight tiebreaker points to win the first set.

Orellana jumped to a quick 3-0 lead in the second set. Abrahamson came back to take a 5-4 advantage, however, before Orellana pulled out front for good.

"I thought the match would never end," Orellana said. "Olav played great today."

In the doubles final, the unseeded team of David Atkinson and Steve Hernandez of USL defeated defending conference champions Orellana and James Boustany of USL 6-7, 6-4, 7-6.

Trevino slips third

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Curtis Strange, a 24-year-old former amateur champ from Wake Forest, slipped past Lee Trevino with a solid 5-under-par 67 and took the third-round lead Saturday in the $250,000 New Orleans Open golf tournament.

"I'm just not wasting any shots, not making any mistakes," said Strange, who put together a 54-hole total of 203, 13 strokes under par on the 7,040-yard Lakewood Country Club course.

Strange, who joined the pro tour in 1977 and has yet to win, didn't make a bogey in his jaunt through bright, warm sunshine and took the lead with a pair of key birdies on putts of 20-25 feet on the 15th and 16th holes.

Trevino, the second-round leader by a shot, had a 69 and dropped back to a tie for second with Frank Conner at 204. Conner, who played open tennis before turning to golf, shot a 68. Trevino has not yet made a bogey in the tournament.

Hubert Green was alone at 205, two strokes off the pace, after a 69.

The group at 206 included Bob Gilder, Doug Tewell, Cal Peete, Australian Bob Shearer and Steve Melnyk.

'Fat farm' takes guilt away from being fat

POULTNEY, Vt. (AP) — Amid the chirps, murmurs and moos of a Vermont village waking up comes another sound — a faint patter that wafts through the maples like gentle applause.

It's the sound of sneakers. Out of the fog comes a rotund woman. Knees high and sweatpants flapping, she's out of breath but not out of step. She's midway through her morning "walk-jog," a mandatory part of the Green Mountain Weight Control Community program.

Later, there will be breakfast, followed by swimming, volleyball and bicycling. Lunch is a prelude to yoga, badminton and tennis. Green Mountain, founded six years ago by Thelma Wayer, a professor of nutrition, offers the usual doses of diet and exercise plus a chance to change eating habits. It is open to women between the ages of 18 and 55 who spend four weeks — and up to $3,950 — to learn the finer points of weight control.

Mrs. Wayer, on leave from Long Island University to direct the program, says no one at her camp is overweight. "I prefer the word

'overtat,' she says.

"Green Mountain women are take-charge women," she adds. "Executives, lawyers and bus drivers; professors, entertainers and housewives." They're also mostly white and middle to upper-middle class.

And although they are described as "take charge," many have suffered setbacks along previous roads to prominent hip bones.

"There are women here who've had their jaws wired shut to control their eating," Mrs. Wayer says. "They've been through intestinal bypasses, hypnosis and hormone shots."

"Most have tried between three and 20 other methods. They're here because those methods have failed."

In her effort to help her campers succeed, Mrs. Wayer uses the classroom as well as the calorie.

Her tactics include such one-liners as: "Go ahead, what harm can one cookie do?" and "if you're not on a formal diet, there's nothing for you to fall off of."

Mrs. Wayer contends that diets mean failure to millions.

"The problem is that diets mean deprivation — and nobody can be deprived for a lifetime. There are days when all the carrot sticks in the world just can't take the place of a brownie."

Mrs. Wayer says motivation — not food — is the villain. "Eating is okay — there are no 'good' foods and 'bad' foods. It's the feelings that force the food into the mouth that we have to deal with."

In the gymnasium, inhibitions as well as pounds are shed on the volleyball court, as physical activities director Laura Borsdorf puts participants through their paces.

"When they first get here, some of these women can't cross their legs, let alone play volleyball," says Miss Borsdorf, one of Green Mountain's three live-in staffers.

"At first, they hide in their rooms. They're so programmed to fail, they're afraid to try." In time, she says, the fear fades and enthusiasm takes over. On the court, the sound of palms slapping a ball is punctuated by boisterous laughter.

Lunch this day is shish kebab and rice, skim milk and an orange. "Theoretically, it's low-calorie gourmet cooking," says Mrs. Wayer. And baked potatoes, pizza and ice cream make occasional appearances on the menu.

But Green Mountain is not without rules. Mrs. Wayer's "Five No-No's For Women" are soda, chocolate, nuts, potato chips and two slices of bread for a sandwich.

Campers are told to eat slowly, watch portion sizes and include at least one citrus fruit a day. Dining while watching television is discouraged, as is eating standing up.

The daily calorie intake is limited to about 1,200. And although restaurants and a supermarket are within walking distance, Mrs. Wayer says few women sneak out under cover of darkness.

"We do encourage them to go out to dinner when their families come to visit on weekends," she says.

Haute cuisine hard to get in Soviet Union

MOSCOW (AP) — "Comrades, make your meals." With those words, Moscow's version of the Pillsbury Bake-Off was underway. But instead of housewives vying for a tastier Chicken Surprise, these were professionals vying for medals.

The idea is to upgrade Soviet restaurant cuisine and ambiance which, diners agree, can use all the help that can be mustered.

Eating out in the Soviet Union isn't exactly dining pleasure. Reservations often are rejected, food sometimes is inedible and waiters are usually somewhere between apathetic and hostile. The bill? About $40 per person for dinner with vodka and wine. Tipping officially is frowned on, but if you expect to encounter the waiter again, 10 percent is the norm.

At the recent First All-Union Competition Seminar of Young Cooks, Waiters, Headwaiters, Bartenders and Confectioners, chefs were in their best cooking form and waiters their most attentive, even jumping to light the judge's cigarettes.

The 91 contestants, pruned from more than 2,000 entries, were asked to prepare and serve a fixed menu of traditional Russian cuisine — mushroom soup for appetizers, fish stuffed with mushrooms as the entree, a dessert of "small snow" made with gelatin, dried fruit, nuts and cream.

The winning chef was Samson Shkireldze from Soviet Georgia's Tbilisi restaurant. The best all-round team was from Moscow, chosen for its dinner table decorated in honor of "Cosmonauts' Day."

At the All-Union contest, cooks had to bone up on food preparation, calories and foreign tastes.

According to them, the Japanese don't drink mineral water, the British don't eat soup, and forget french fries for the Finns.

Winners received medals in what could become an annual event — a good thing if it means any improvement in the quality of commissar cuisine.

Usually the best part of Soviet restaurant dining is the hors d'oeuvres. These range from chicken salad to scallions in sour cream, to red or black caviar. Plates of fresh tomatoes or cucumbers are rationed because of widespread shortages.

Some seasoned diners don't bother with an entree, Shish kebab is usually tough, and chicken is often served pin feathers and all.

Not all Soviet restaurants are bad, however. Generally the further from Moscow, the better the food.

In Lithuania, eating in the capital of Vilnius can be a real treat because of a network of caves that creates intimate atmosphere.

Soviet Central Asian cooking is spicy and rich.

And in the Soviet capital, visitors agree that two spots stand out. The Aragvi restaurant's Georgian food has been enjoyed by Sophia Loren and Winston Churchill, while the colorful Uzbekistan serves up tasty lamb dumpling, "lagman" soup made of meat and noodles.

Museum to be main attraction Cow Callin' comin' soon

MIAMI - Residents of Miami have started stretching their lungs in preparation for the 31st Annual National Cow Calling Contest to be held here June 2.

The annual contest is expected to bring an estimated 1,000 people to the county seat of Roberts County for a weekend of hollerin' and shoutin'.

In last year's event more than thirty people tried to bring home the cows with their stout voices and as one resident said, "We sure raise a lot of loud mouths around here."

Vernon Cook, agricultural extension agent, said the festivities will begin with a show of local talent.

"The 'Frontier Follies' will kick off Cow Callin'," Cook said. "This is where all our local talent performs their various acts."

Cook said that there will be something for everyone to enjoy at Cow Callin' this year.

"We are going to have our Old Timers reunion Saturday morning and then sometime in the afternoon we will dedicate the Roberts County Museum," Cook said.

The extension agent said that so much time was being given to finishing the museum that plans for Cow Callin' had not been finalized.

"We really haven't set down the times for anything yet," Cook said. "We hope to finish the plans this week."

Cook listed several events that will be held for those visiting Miami for Cow Callin' this year but stressed that the times for the events were still "up in the air."

The Lions Club will have games for the kids in the afternoon and the swimming pool will be open for everyone," Cook said. "The American Legion usually sponsors a dance on Saturday night and in the past we have had a square dance at the county barn. I'm sure that they will do something like that this year."

Cook said there will also be the final to the team roping competition Saturday as well as the main event of Cow Callin'.

Cow Callin' is divided into three groups with the men competing against each other as well as the women. One of the favorite attractions is the "Grandma" callin' where grandmothers bring home the cows as they have done for years.

The biggest action this year, however, will be the Roberts County Museum according to many Miami residents.

"Everyone is just waiting to get a chance to see the museum completed," one museum worker said. "Everyone has worked so hard on it."

"It is going to add a great deal to the city of Miami and to Roberts County," the county judge said.

Volunteers were busy cleaning the museum this week getting ready for exhibits to be moved into the 100 year old structure.

"We are cleaning up the display cases and getting everything ready to move in," one worker said as she cleaned the windows for the second time. "Everything has to be just right."

Special session held in Wheeler county court

WHEELER - The Wheeler County Commissioners met in special session this week to review and act upon five items that were placed on the court's agenda.

The first item taken up by the commissioners was the present lighting system around the courthouse building.

After considerable discussion on the topic Mayor Pete Burton was appointed to contact Southwestern Public Service to check on a more adequate lighting system for the courthouse.

Judge Wendell Morgan advised the board that the cost for carpeting the county building in Shamrock had been submitted to him and that he had also received the approximate cost of tile flooring.

The court approved a bid of $7.69 per square yard for carpeting the Shamrock building.

Furniture for the building in Shamrock was the next item brought before the commissioners but was tabled until the next session of the court.

The commissioners also failed to take action on the consideration of legislation.

In a final action, Commissioner E.E. Henderson made a motion to pay the bills submitted to the county clerk by Southwestern Public Service and M.A. Lindsey, for work on the county building in Shamrock.

New line eases situation Canadian power supply 'okay'

CANADIAN - It won't be a long hot summer after all according to Canadian City Manager Vernie Farrington.

Farrington, talking on the issue of whether Canadian would have enough electricity this summer said a new power line and an additional allocation of energy from North Plains Electric will meet the needs of area residents for some time to come.

"We will be adding the new line of power to a section of town to the southeast," Farrington said. "We are going to rope off a section and provide those people with power from the new line."

The City Manager said that only two easements were left to be signed in order to complete the project.

"I just sent one (right of way easement) to Arkansas and I am sure that the state is going to approve their easement," Farrington said.

The total cost of the project is estimated between $15,000 to $20,000 and will be complete within two months.

"We are keeping our fingers crossed but we sure should be finished before June 1," Farrington added.

Canadian residents voted to expand their electric service after officials informed them that they had reached the capacity of their old service.

"We couldn't have taken one more air conditioner last summer," one official said. "We knew that if we didn't do something that we just wouldn't have enough power to make it through the summer this year."

The former mayor of Canadian George Arrington termed the power situation "possibly critical" during the November 27, 1978 meeting of the city council.

Arrington told the council at that time action had to be taken to obtain power from alternative sources before the peak power usage this summer.

Several plans were considered by the board including a lease-purchase plan that would have let Southwestern Power Service purchase the Canadian City Power Plant for a sum of $132,700 annually for the next 10 years with an additional $35,000 from 1990 to 2007.

However, the city council voted to have additional power lines set up to supply Canadian with a new source of power due to the tremendous growth in the area.

"We are growing too fast not to have a system that will handle our needs for sometime to come," a city council spokesman said. "If we need additional power we will be able to make adjustments easier under this plan."

Randy Matson, one of the most honored athletes of Texas, will be the guest speaker for the banquet that brings the athletic year at Wheeler to a close.

Awards will be presented to those athletes that have demonstrated their outstanding skills during the past school year in sporting events.

The coveted Mustang Award will be presented by coach Joe Allen while Coach Charles Carter will present the Mustangette Award. The Fighting Mustang Award will be presented by the Pep Club during the awards ceremonies.

Matson, a graduate of Pampa High School, is renowned for his accomplishments in the field of athletics that was capped by a gold medal in the Olympic Games in Mexico City in 1968.

The banquet will begin at 7 p.m. with dinner being served in the high school cafeteria and the awards presentation in the high school auditorium. Tickets will be on sale at the door for $4.

'Service for the people'

WHEELER - In today's society there are very few things that people can count on but in Wheeler County residents can be sure that in the case of an emergency they will be well cared for.

Wheeler County takes care of itself through the volunteer efforts of more than 20 county residents that participate in the Wheeler County Volunteer Ambulance Service.

Carl Knoll, the director of the service and its only paid employee, said all of the volunteers are highly trained to preserve life.

"Right now we are just finishing the final phase of a paramedic program where we training seven people," Knoll said. "After our final test in July we should be able to cope with any situation that arises in the county."

Knoll said the paramedic program enables volunteer Emergency Medical Technicians and Emergency Care Attendants to receive training in such technical areas as Advanced airway techniques, cardiac monitoring and other life saving procedures.

"We work on a patient but only after a doctor has told us what to do," Knoll said, liking the function of the paramedics to the television show "Emergency 1." "We are in constant contact with the hospital and a doctor is instructing us on what procedures to take as we are transporting a patient to the medical facility."

"We won't do anything until we are told to do so by a doctor," Knoll added.

The county emergency service has been in existence for nearly three years and according to county residents has saved several friends and relatives.

"I know several people that would have died if they (the volunteer emergency service) hadn't been there," one resident said candidly. "Those boys do one hell of a job for us."

The ambulance drivers donate their time as one driver put it, "because who else is gonna do it if we don't."

Knoll said the idea to start the ambulance service came when the county had to rely on other ambulance companies to supply emergency service for the residents of Wheeler County.

The service consists of 24 volunteers drivers and attendants, three ambulances and two ambulance barns according to Knoll.

"We have one ambulance based in Shamrock and one in Wheeler," Knoll said. "When one ambulance is out on a run we use the third ambulance to replace it in whatever city is short."

Knoll said the initial cost of starting the service was great but that the County Commissioners felt the need was greater.

"The cost of one ambulance is about $20,000," Knoll said. "We have a base charge of $40 in the county and $1 per mile outside the county."

"At that rate it takes along time to pay for the equipment," Knoll said. "But we aren't in the business to make money we are here to provide a service to the people that live in Wheeler County."

Knoll said that the rates were recently exchanged and moved upwards to the $40 mark. "We were only charging $30 per trip," Knoll said.

Knoll summed up the responsibility of the emergency service by saying, "We are here to help the people of the county - simply that."

Mending mature marriage

by louise pierce

One thing that should be a minor problem to long-married couples is money. But too often it is a bugbear big enough to cause quarreling and separation and even divorce.

We all know that wealth cannot give us health or longevity or a place in heaven. But we know, too, that it can surround us with good cars, nice homes in prosperous neighborhoods, clothes less than two years old - and, if we're lucky, mates who concur exactly in the way we want to spend the retirement income.

That's the snag. And I'd bet plenty that there's not a senior-citizen marriage, rich or poor, that doesn't burst into a real storm about money once in awhile.

Necessarily there is less to spend now than there was when the wife was teaching school or doing secretarial work or clerking in a store - and when the husband was a cog in the wheel of a corporation or head of his own business or the top chef in the town's best cafe. Now, in many cases, there is only a meager pension, sometimes only Social Security, to live on. Luckier couples have savings, annuities or bonds that draw interest. Ambitious ones supplement their shrunken dollars with newly-acquired income from second careers in industry (always bearing in mind the limits set by S.S., if you want them to keep on paying you - and who doesn't?) or from lawn-mowing, part-time bookkeeping, baby-sitting or seasoned consulting to untried young businessmen.

But, no matter what, it comes down to a certain amount of cash for two people to live on per month. And it's usually less than they enjoyed in their younger years. To a certain extent, this is all to the good. You eat less at fifty and sixty than you did at twenty or thirty, so the food bill is smaller. Clothes last longer when you don't wear your best ones to work every day. The gas bill is less because you drive fewer miles. And a woman who would have died if she'd met three dresses like hers at a party when she was twenty-five, only smiles when she's sixty and prays, "May the Lord make the old rags hang on for another ten years!" Over all, you can rationalize yourself into adapting to a smaller income when you reach the senior-age level.

But you've still got a money problem. It's how to divide what is left after utilities and upkeep and incidentals are paid each month. And that's the stickler that can drive a couple apart and often does.

A woman I'll call Mavis wrote me: "In the six months since Doug retired, I haven't got to spend a nickel of our fifteen-dollar-a-week surplus on myself. He either rushes out and buys a new shirt or pants - or else he saves up the sixty dollars and takes a fishing trip with his cronies." Confronted, Doug spluttered, "I spend the money wisely. If I gave it to her, she'd fritter it away in beauty-shop trills or hen-party luncheons or new clothes she didn't need."

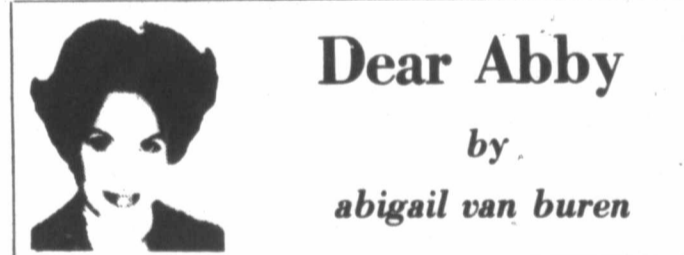

It's all in the viewpoint, isn't it? It's a lack of sharing of values, lack of consideration enough to give like for like, desire for desire, need for need.

I used to cry over money when Otis frowned at it and at me. In our youth I wanted a big house but he wanted a new car every couple of years and continuing business improvements, which he got. One winter he wanted a new overcoat that I thought he didn't need - and he gave it up only when I emptied our bank account into my fur-collared suit and lizard shoes with bag to match. The minute the monthly bills were paid, we both grabbed for what was left. And the grabbing often resulted in the stabbing of pride and personality and the perfect love we professed to enjoy.

Then came our forty-first wedding anniversary. We had to pause and take stock of our finances. He had moved into a swanky new office and announced plans for ventures in which I would work with him so that we could be un-retired and set for life.

I couldn't go along with that. I wanted his success and pride of new accomplishment, certainly. But I'd been a professional writer and speaker all my adult life, when I could manage time for such pursuits. I'd always looked forward to retirement as the time when I would live almost exclusively on the lecture platform or at my typewriter. I didn't want to give up that dream.

We sat down, each with proposed budgets and career plans in hand. He said, "We've got to stay together and stay happy." I nodded, adding, "So we've got to find some way for both of us to give and take." He bobbed assent. We thought awhile. Then he went on, "Will you give up the new furniture you've been wanting if I give up my office expansion? Shall we take what we'd save if you were working with me - and hire the help I need, leaving you free to do your writing and speaking?" I kissed him and meant it. We had reached our compromise on money. We had both won and lost, but each of us felt like a winner.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: I work in the office of a fairly large company located about four miles from my home, so I often bike to work. When I do, I wear tennis shorts and carry my work clothes in a back pack.

When I'm early, I have a cup of coffee with some of the other early arrivers while I'm still in my tennis shorts.

After four months of this routine, my supervisor called me into her office and told me it was very "unprofessional" for me to be standing around in tennis shorts, and I was not to do it anymore!

I told her that as long as I didn't WORK in tennis shorts I saw nothing wrong with it, and I intended to continue. She looked me in the eye and said, threateningly, "We shall see!"

I'm not sure of what she meant by that, but since when can a supervisor tell an employee what to wear to work? Your opinion is needed.

IRKED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR IRKED: What you wear to work is your own business, but once you enter the building, what you wear in the presence of your co-workers becomes the business of your supervisor. Remember, too much exposure can be hazardous to your health - and your job!

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday my children and I were in a doctor's office. A boy about 4 was there, running wild. He beat on the furniture and kicked the door, then attacked the other patients - children and adults alike - shouting the whole time that he wanted to fight.

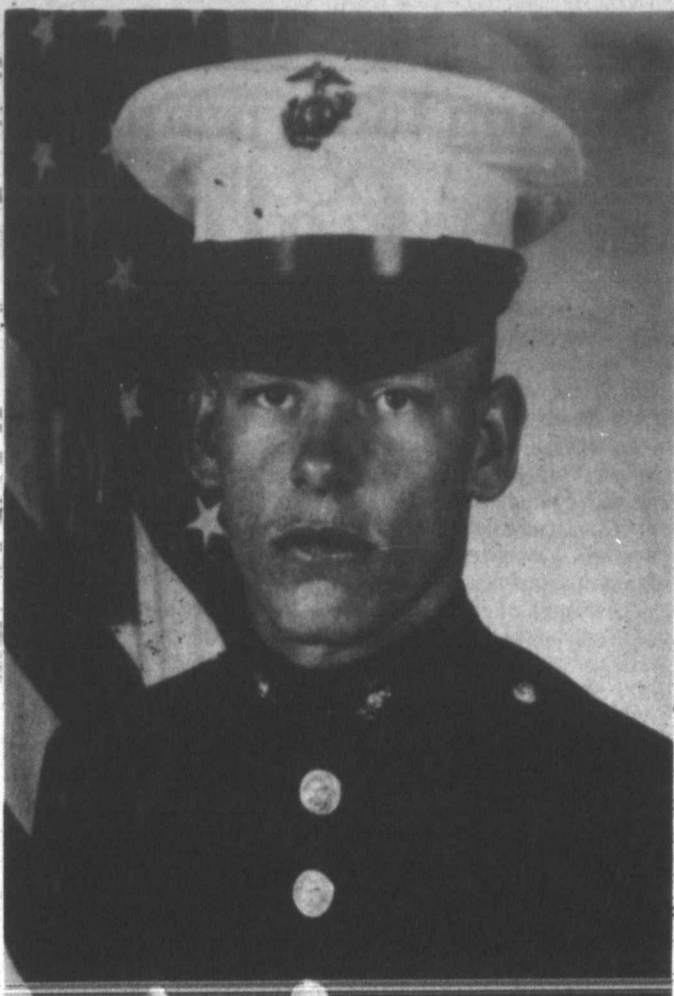

I couldn't believe my eyes. His mother was nowhere in sight. Another patient and I tried to subdue the child. We learned that his mother was down the hall in another waiting room, so I took the boy by the arm and found his mother. When I told her that her child had been tearing up the waiting room and hitting people, she barely looked up from her magazine and said tersely, "He is just fine!"

Needless to say, I was stunned. I then better understood the boy's behavior and actually felt sorry for him for having such an unconcerned mother.

What should I have done? I'm completely confused.

BEWILDERED IN DAYTON

DEAR BEWILDERED: You should have asked the doctor's nurse to handle it. The mother, the child, or possibly both, have serious problems. Such aggressive, anti-social behavior as the child exhibited is a symptom of a serious mental problem. The mother may have been acting under doctor's orders (ignoring the outburst) instead of being "unconcerned."

At wit's end

by erma bombeck

I think it's safe to say that I lusted after a food processor for two years.

I wanted it to give birth to my zucchini, respond to my push-button control and flash those whirling blades just for me.

Being practical, however, I had to justify it. I told my husband the children would make better grades in school if their carrots were sliced uniformly. I told him no one would need glasses if we got the tumps out of the white sauce. And once I got the hang of how to use all the blades, I could take in potatoes to slice for profit. He bought it. Literally.

The first week I dedicated my life to chopping, slicing and grating. I had bags of sliced tomatoes, bags of chopped onions, bags of diced peppers, bags of soups, bags of mushrooms, bags of ground meat, bags of bread dough and if they ever made a pizza the size of the Astrodome, I had the grated cheese for it.

My refrigerator looked like pillow city. One morning, my husband opened the refrigerator door and shut it quickly. "What's that blob in there?"

"What blob?"

"The one that is restless."

"It's pureed lettuce."

It was clearly time to move on to the next plateau: sauces. I had bags of mayonnaise, bags of hollandaise sauce and bags of white sauce. Maybe it was a coincidence, but in moving a bag of lemon sauce one day I was struck with the similarity to the pouch I was carrying on my hips.

By the time I got to the chapter on breads, cakes, and cookies, I began getting complaints from the family. My husband said to me one afternoon, "I don't know how to tell you this, but I have never trusted anything ground up. Somehow I always feel they are hiding something by giving it another form."

"What are you trying to say?"

"I am sick of sipping salads through a straw. I cannot eat another thing that is chopped, sliced, diced, liquefied, mashed or grated."

"Maybe we could have another baby?" I asked brightly.

"Well, maybe just a little more pureed lettuce," he said, extending his plate.

DECORATING TRENDS... Charlie's

A LITTLE BIT OF COUNTRY

Country prints have been around since grandmother's day, but today they are being seen in unexpected places, not only in traditional and Colonial rooms but also in smart contemporary and happily "mixed" settings.

The reasons aren't hard to find. There is warmth and friendliness in fresh, colorful prints and patterns that brings new liveliness to any room. And there is a "romantic" feeling that is once more in fashion.

Small-scale prints mix beautifully, and there is a definite trend toward mixing patterns in the same room, breaking an old "rule." A room of many patterns can still be unified, by the choice of a dominant color, for example, in several patterns, or by using a single type of pattern in varying sizes. Solid backgrounds (walls and floors) can also unify the pattern mix.

If the romantic mood suits you, and you like a setting that is cozy, inviting and filled with color, let yourself go with a little bit of country in a new world of pattern!

Whatever your choice, in solids or patterns, you'll find an inviting world of style and color in our furniture showroom, along with beautifully crafted woods. Expert decorating counsel from our courteous and helpful staff is yours for the asking.

Gardening by the moon signs

The moon will be increasing: 1-11; 26-31. The moon will be decreasing: 12-25.

The fruitful signs are: 1 (Cancer); 10-12 (25pm)-12 (Scorpio); 19-20 (Pisces); 28-29 (Cancer).

The semi-fruitful signs are: 8-9 (Libra); 15-16 (Capricorn); 23-24 (Taurus).

The barren signs are: 3-4 (Leo); 5-7 (Virgo); 13-14 (Sagittarius); 17-18 (Aquarius); 21-22 (Aries); 30-31 (Leo).

We have still had nice moisture; all fruit trees have been blooming. None frozen, only the apricots. It has been a wonderful Spring. This is one of the busiest months.

It is time to move all house plants out for the summer. If you do not bury the pots, remember they will need water every day.

All bedding plants should be in their places. It is better to get them out while the days are still cool.

It is time to be busy in the perennial border, staking, supporting, pinching out leggy and unneeded growth. Thin out the perennial asters, phlox and chrysanthemums; sow annuals in the gaps and bare spots.

The vegetables should all be planted by the middle of the month and the second planting of corn should be done by the end of the month.

For many years we have practiced rotating plantings in the garden. We think this is one of the best ways to discourage plant diseases and pests that winter over in the soil.

We are interested in companion planting. We know that certain plants do better when grown together. For instance, garlic grown near roses seems to improve the roses and protect them from aphids. Garlic planted around pit fruit trees (peach, cherry, plum) helps in controlling the borers in these trees.

Marigolds grown near tomatoes, carrots and beets help to control nematodes. You do know what a nematode is? We hope you are not like the woman my friend told me about. She was complaining to him about her tomatoes. He suggested that she might have nematodes in her soil. She quickly said, "Oh, no! I kill every toad I see!"

The frogs: the horned toad, bull frog or toad frog are all wonderful helpers for you. They eat hundreds of insects every day, especially the pill bugs. Do never kill a frog. They are your friends.

From the book Companion Plants by Helen Philbrick & Richard B. Gregg, we read that there is one exception in your rotating garden: tomatoes. They like to grow in the same area year after year, and prefer compost made with their own stalks and leaves.

Tomatoes give off root excretions which have an inhibitory effect on the growth of young apricot trees. We had an apricot tree growing near the tomatoes last year and the tree looked sick all year. It did have a heavy crop of fruit but they did not mature properly. It is putting out this year. Blooming, it doesn't look like a healthy tree should. So this may prove their point.

Spread rotted manure or compost around fruit trees, vines and berry bushes. Then mulch heavily with straw, wood chips or other coarse materials.

New cuttings need mulching to maintain even soil moisture and temperature. For sun protection, an old window screen supported by four sturdy posts works well and will also cut the managing force of hail or rain.

Work bone meal and wood ashes into the soil around spring-flowering bulbs. Do not remove foliage until it yellows and dies, or next Spring's blossoms will not be big and pretty. Snip all dying narcissus and tulip blossoms. Do not cut or tie their foliage. Next year's bulb and flower bud development depends on their growth now.

Apply a good sprinkling of wood ashes around new cabbage plants. Side-dress peas with aged manure or fish fertilizers at first sign of blossom.

Both bush and tree peonies need a bonemeal feeding for flower formation. This is also good for dahlias and gladioli that were left in the beds over winter.

Feed fruit trees and berries with a dressing of compost and manure. To conserve water, spread a heavy mulch of grass clippings or green hay under the trees.

Feed everbearing strawberries liquid manure and apply a heavy mulch.

Check roses for last pruning. It is a mistake to leave weak growth on a bush. We had so much winter kill on our roses, they had to be pruned very severely. But they are making strong new growth and seem to have a promising future.

Check evergreens for bagworm bags. Evergreens can still be planted with success.

Cut out all basal lilac suckers at or just below ground.

Plant dahlia roots and glad now. Place stakes in position when planting dahlias.

Keep newly planted shrubs and trees well watered. Never allow them to dry out the first year. This is important.

Feed iris with bone meal. This is their blooming time. They should be very beautiful this year, with all the moisture and cool weather. Ours are loaded with buds and we are looking forward to a beautiful show.

Are you having trouble with pillbugs and slugs? This is our method of control. We turn over a clay flower pot in the bed where they are. Since they are nocturnal creatures, they work at night and find a cool place to sleep in the day. With a pan of boiling water, go out early in the morning. You will find them thick under the pot. Douse them with the hot water and you will kill a bunch. Do this for a few mornings and then move the pot to another spot in your bed. This way, you will keep their population under control.

It is time for planting Elephants Ears, Caladiums, Cannas, tuberose, Tigridias and other summer flowering bulbs.

Many annuals can be planted in the beds where you want them to grow this month: Potulacas, Annual Phlox, Sweet Alyssum, Nasturtiums, Calendulas, Zinnias, Marigolds, Asters and Petunias.

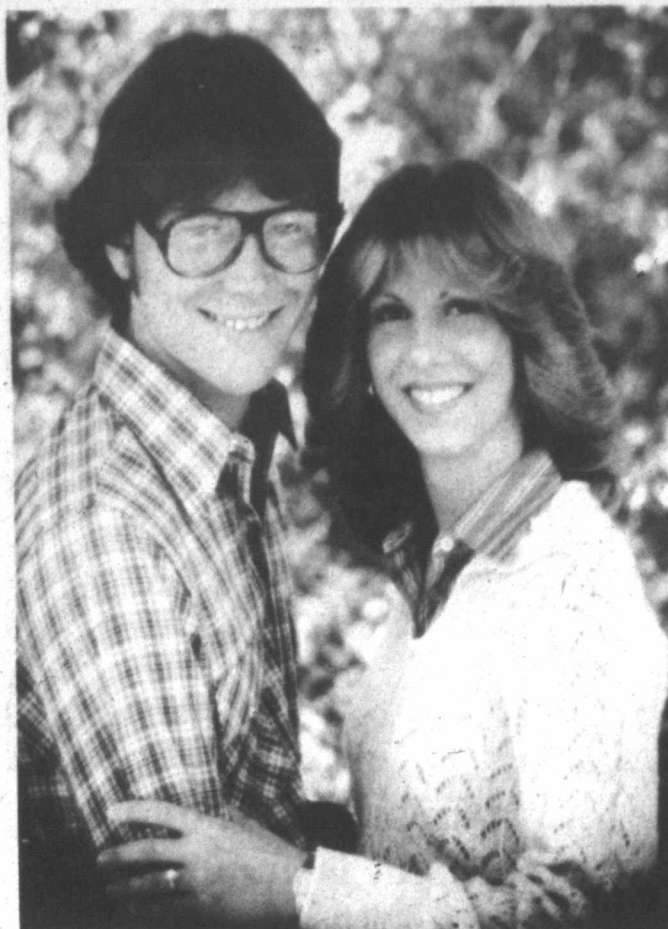

Petunias are one of the most dependable to bloom all summer, especially the single type. There are three basic kinds of petunias: multifloras, grandifloras and double. Grandifloras are just what the name implies, large flowered. Their blossoms may be anywhere from three to four inches wide. Some varieties are ruffled. Multiflora petunias are smaller flowered and have many blooms. Doubles are exceptionally beautiful petunias with layers and layers of petals. There are also cascade petunias which are especially suited for hanging baskets.

Try edging a bed of petunias with parsley. It will not only be pretty, but the parsley can be used in cooking and making salads.

Growing and sowing conditions are at their best now. It is a joyous time in the garden.

Crafty Cooking

by sally shaffer miller

Occasionally, when the wind is right and the barometer is on the upswing, I have wonderful and welcome memory flashes of my friend Gail.

Gail is the type of person every woman must envy. At least I do. She can do anything, build anything, make anything, repair anything, simply because she wants to. She compounds all these sins or traits (call them what you wish) with radiant, fresh and natural good looks. Sometimes I want to...Oh, well, let's get back to the memories.

Gail decided to build a porch onto her house. And she did. Her reasoning was that, after all, it was her porch, planned and paid for by her, and so why not be built by her? Why not, indeed? She figured that in doing it that way, she'd get exactly what she wanted nail by nail. She did, too.

One Saturday morning, around 11, Gail called me.

"What's up?" she beamed.

"What wasn't up was me. I considered it a major accomplishment to find and then answer the phone. Saturday is my day to sleep. 'Not much,' I mumbled.

"Good!" she bubbled brightly. "I've just finished painting the bedroom, and I thought I'd scare up some soup and salad. C'mon over! We can eat on the porch!"

I did go over to her house and I was glad I did. Gail's soup had a hint of a taste I couldn't define. I had to wait over a year for her to tell me what it was. And what I choose to call her salad is simple, but very good. It can be made yesterday, because it keeps well.

So there we sat on the homemade porch, eating soup and salad. Again, I wondered where she found all the time and the energy to do all that she did. She made me promise not to tell about her recipes, but I'm a snitch and she's in Arizona any way. So who's to know? The first recipe is for GAIL'S SOUP. It will serve four.

HAVE ON HAND:

1 C. chopped carrots. Scrape them first, please.

2 C. chopped spinach. Get it fresh and wash the daylight out of it, drain and then chop. The vital things in this won't hurt in the transition, and you really don't need the stems.

1 quart distilled or purified water. This is available at your grocery store.

1 C. V-8 juice

1 tsp. sea salt. Actually, vegetable salt will do here. That's the good old reliable kind you can get at the grocer's every day. The sea salt probably take a special trip to your nearest health food store, but you won't regret it.

1 Tbsp. raw natural honey. This is the ingredient that I couldn't identify.

NOW DO THIS:

After you have done all the necessary chopping and washing, combine the vegetables and honey and water together in a soup pot. Cook it for about 25 minutes on a medium-low heat. (You know your stove well enough by now to know what kind of heat that is, don't you?) Add the V-8 juice and the sea salt. Simmer about 15 minutes longer, while you prepare SALAD A LA GAIL.

This salad takes a little bit of forethought, because it assumes that you have cooked 4 chicken breasts and don't know what to do with them. I will grant you that this situation is highly unlikely. But, if you haven't eaten them already, you're ready for the salad. This is definitely a salad you must plan for, in terms of the other ingredients and the time it takes to set. Read this recipe with care, please and you won't need to apologize for just "throwing something together."

HAVE ON HAND:

4 chicken breasts, cooked, skinned, de-boned an cubed. (That should have taken up half of Gail's morning, but it didn't, because she did it yesterday.)

2 pkg. frozen snow peas, cooked. (Gail will condescend now and then and buy something frozen. Bless her heart she's now back in our league of things.)

1 can water chestnuts, sliced. Keep the liquid.

1 can bean sprouts. Keep the liquid.

4 oz. canned or fresh mushrooms. If canned, keep the liquid.

1/2 C. white wine vinegar

1/2 C. soy sauce

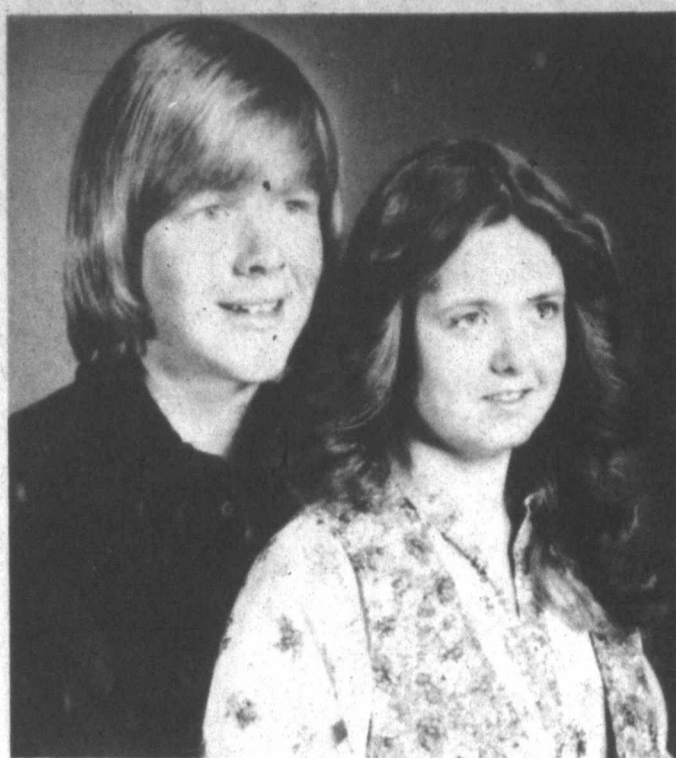

1/2 C. vegetable oil (Gail and I prefer peanut oil.)

NOW DO THIS:

Combine the chicken and the vegetables. Set those aside. Now whip up the vinegar, soy sauce and oil.

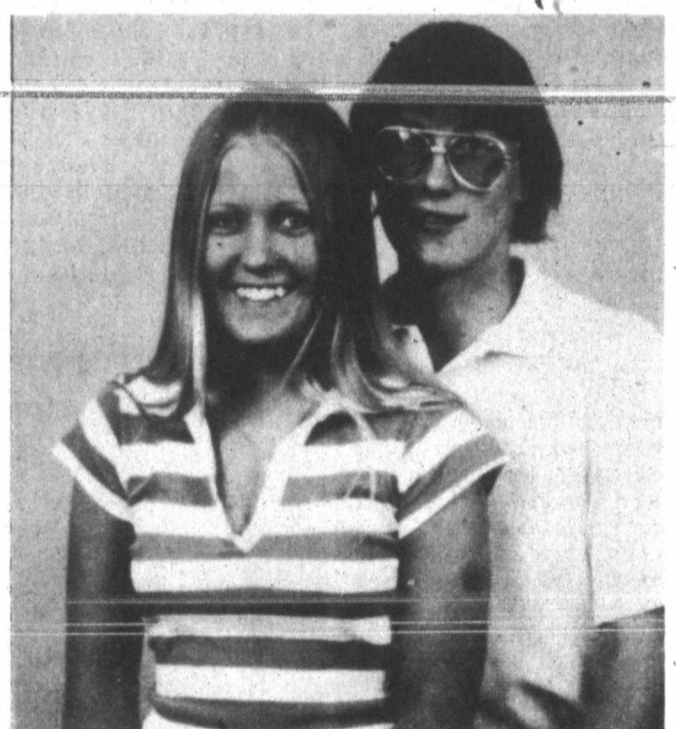

Pour that concoction over the chicken-vegetable mixture and marinate for several hours. Let's say 3 or 4 hours will be enough.

Chill the entire thing. Serve it chilled, over lettuce, or endive, or spinach.

INSTALLING TRACK LIGHTING

Track lighting adds versatility and sophistication to the home. It makes the use of light easy because there are several types of fixtures and countless ways to position them. However, such variety leaves room for error when choosing between competitive systems and during installation.

Ask yourself the following questions when selecting a track system:

• Which system offers the greatest number of fixtures? This is hard to determine without actually working with the system, so talk to someone who is familiar with various types of fixtures or who has actually used them.

• How complicated is the system to install?

• Can a fixture be switched from one circuit to another?

• How reliable are the connecting elements?

• Are special fixtures, such as framing projectors, available?

Basically, find out first whether or not the system possesses enough fixtures to supply the variety of lighting required presently and in the future. Second, find out whether or not the track has the flexibility necessary to control these fixtures independently. Fixtures are not interchangeable among different brands.

WINDOW SHADES POWERFUL ENERGY SAVERS

Window shades do powerful "blocking" - for energy saving touchdowns. They block out heat during summertime and block in heat during winter months.

Opaque, light-colored shades block air flow better than draperies and venetian blinds, saving up to 21 cents on every home-cooling dollar and eight cents and each home-heating dollar. Since glass through the glass itself. Window shades reduce heat gain in a home from the summer sun by 63 percent, and they prevent 24-31 percent heat loss in the winter.

CROWDED CLOSETS

Crowded closets and cabinets are a common problem, but you probably have more space than you realize. To get the most efficient use out of your closets, reorganize them to work for you:

• The "coat" closet, generally located in the foyer, is one most often seen by guests. Try to keep it as neat and attractive as possible; using it only for in-season garments will help. A full-length mirror, hung inside the door is a great convenience.

• Your bedroom closet is probably one which needs the most attention. To begin, remove everything from the closet and give it a thorough cleaning. Spray Fantastik® spray cleaner on all washable surfaces and wipe with a clean cloth. Turn the Easy® sprayer to stream position to get into corners where dirt can accumulate. When the cleaning is done try economizing space by utilizing double-decker hanging clothes rods and adjustable shelves. Small items can be conveniently stored in vinyl shoe pockets hung on the door.

• Organization, convenience and efficiency are essential when it comes to the kitchen cabinets. Store the appliances and items you need most often at arms reach. Use space-savers such as stacking shelves, drawer dividers and storage turntables to help you organize more effectively.

FASHIONED FOR FALL - Square shoulders are very much in evidence in outfits from the Cathy Hardwick fall and winter collection shown at New York's Fashion Institute of Technology Thursday. Dr. Lamb

by lawrence e. lamb, m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Enclosed is an advertisement which has been running for several Sundays in our city newspaper. It's a full-page color ad with the comic section. Would you give us your thoughts on this advertisement and the product mentioned in it and the validity of the claims made for weight reducing?

DEAR READER - My thoughts are unprintable but I'll try to clean them up. Every time I read those ads making exaggerated claims for weight loss to the public, I am distressed. It's really unfortunate that such methods can be presented to the public, some of which are out and out frauds, and still others which have never been adequately tested.

By contrast, new medicines that have a fairly good record in other countries often can't be cleared for use by doctors in treating patients with important medical problems.

Even if you're totally fasting, the maximum amount that you can lose in a day's time is about a half pound of fat and a half pound of muscle. Any other weight loss is simply water and emptying out the digestive system.

Many weight reducing gimmicks depend on washing out a lot of body water. Read their ads carefully. They often say, "Loss of pounds," but they don't say pounds of what. Some of those that are a little more sophisticated say, "Loss of pounds of fat and water," but they don't tell you how much fat and how much water. They wouldn't dare or the public would know that the system doesn't do very much about eliminating unhealthy fat.

So, whenever you see an ad that says, "Lose two pounds a day," ask yourself, "Pounds of what - water which is going to come right back or unhealthy fat?" Anything which causes your body to lose flesh, meaning fat and muscle, at a faster rate than one pound a day can only do so by significantly damaging the body's system. Starvation is bad enough, and can be fatal.

The safe way to lose weight is to follow a balanced diet which is sufficiently limited in calories in relationship to a person's physical activity and other uses of calories to cause a weight loss of approximately a pound of fat a week. During such a diet, it's a good idea to also follow a sensible exercise program.

There is a basic law of nature that I wish all my readers would remember. It will help them avoid being taken in by such questionable advertisements. It is simply, "Energy can neither be created nor destroyed." You can't change that any more than you can have the sun come up in the West.

It means that there is no magic way to eliminate the calories of fat in your body. If you consume 3000 calories a day your body must convert this to heat, mechanical, chemical or other forms of energy or store it as fat calories. The only way you can eliminate calories stored as fat in your body is by either decreasing the calories consumed in your diet or increasing the calories used by your body. That is where exercise helps.

To give you a better understanding of the fundamental laws of energy as they apply to your body, I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-2, Understanding Your Energy System. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

SWEET CALORIES
NEW YORK (AP) - Americans would consume more than 1.2 trillion extra calories each year if they did not have a sugar substitute to fall back on, according to a study conducted by the Calorie Control Council.

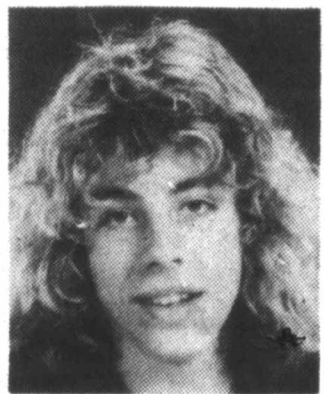

This would mean an additional 27,400 calories - or nearly eight pounds - a year for each of the 44 million consumers of saccharin aged 13 and over, reported the council, an association of manufacturers and suppliers of dietary food and beverages.

Life swell for Leif

Teen idols come and teen idols go. Mostly they take a hike back to obscurity around the time they're no longer boys. But 17-year-old Leif Garrett doesn't plan to disappear along with his facial fuzz.

"I really don't know if the teen idol stuff helps or hurts," he says. "My gut feeling is that it is just something I will pass through on my way to something else. People like Shaun Cassidy and me have been working at singing and acting for years and years. We're professionals, and I have a feeling that guys like us are going to be the leading men of the future."

"It's so easy for a 17-year-old to sound pretentious," Garrett continues, "but I really love my career. We started out in shack flats when I was five, and we've been moving up ever since. I suppose there are a lot of ways to grow up that are satisfying. I happen to like the way I did it."

Top award won by den-disco combination

By BARBARA BASLER AP Newsfeatures
When we hear a designer or decorator use the term "multi-functional" to describe a room or a piece of furniture, most of us picture the practical. We think of the living room that becomes a bedroom at night, or the desk that doubles as a dining table. But for Sherman Nobleman, multi-functional means a den that doubles as a disco. "And this concept won the Portola Valley, Calif., designer first-place honors in the 21st Annual S.M. Hexter Awards Program, a national design competition. Nobleman won in the residential interior category. Nobleman says that when his friends heard he was designing a disco room for his home, they imagined "a room that would be wild, bizarre, fantastical." But that was never the room he had in mind.

"From the beginning, I wanted a room that would be comfortable and useful all the time," he explains. And so Nobleman designed a room for living as well as dancing, a kind of rich man's recreation room. The interior is casual and comfortable by day, clean and classy by night. But because his friends had imagined a rather decadent design, he dubbed his room the "den-disco." The room, located in a small space beneath the house, has a hardwood floor for daytime exercises or nighttime disco. The cobalt-treated wood can take the skids and scuffs of the dancer, he says, and needs only a buffing to restore its beauty. Around the perimeters of the floor, wicker furniture covered in bright cotton fabric invites reading, relaxing or visiting. The room also contains covered platforms that can be used for seating or game-playing. The bar area is convenient and compact, tucked away in a corner. There are two long walls in the room, one glass, the other mirrored. The window-wall reveals the outdoor trees and shrubbery, which are illuminated by colored lights at night. Nobleman says his wall of mirrors "doubles the feeling of space in the room," and provides a disco atmosphere at night. The mirrors also conceal storage closets that can hold everything from exercise gear to stereo equipment, with room left over for coats, games or musical instruments. "I told you," Nobleman smiles, "you can do everything in this room." Of course, a multi-purpose room needs multi-purpose lighting, and the den-disco has that. The room has three lighting systems to cover every lighting need. And, because no real disco can "do without syncopated, flashing lights, a system of colored lights can be plugged into the stereo system to produce light sequences that flash in time to the music. Two other designers won honorable mentions in the residential interior category. Ronald Oates of New York designed a winning interior for a cooperative apartment, using mirrors, platforms and angular seating arrangements to shape a long, narrow living-room area. Designers Janet and Shelly Rosenberg of Upper Montclair, N.J., produced their winning room in their own renovated colonial house. The couple opened part of the attic to a spare bedroom right below, creating a home office, den and living area on the upper level, and a library and additional work space on the lower level. Skylights were installed in the attic to provide both light and visual excitement.

This coming year offers you fresh beginnings and a new start in areas of your social life that had seemed difficult to cope with. Several new acquaintances could become long-lasting friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is a good day to get together with a friend and discuss an important matter that has been on your mind. Each will be receptive to the other. Find out more about yourself in your new Astro-Graph Letter which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10029. Be sure to specify birth sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Because you are exceptionally practical today, this would be a good time to put your budget in order. You'll make intelligent choices.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Think things through slowly and carefully today and you will be able to clear up a perplexing personal situation which has had you bogged down.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you need assistance at this time, go to someone who is older or who you consider more mature. They'll be able to offer you the right kind of help.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may be called upon to show your loyalty to an old friend today. You won't mind a bit, even if it inconveniences you somehow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Make that little extra effort today and you'll be pushed right out in front of the pack. Persistence and determination pay off big.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your realistic approach to issues makes you a formidable contender today. It isn't likely anyone will try to get the upper hand over you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone may seek you out today for purposes of joining in a venture that could be profitable to both of you. Don't discount the offer without study.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Although the position you take on an issue may not be the popular one, if you state your case objectively others will end up agreeing with you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today is a good day to bring order into the picture of neglected tasks. Throw out all those things you've been sweeping under the rug.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your social encounters may be more serious than merely play today, but this will be due to your own choosing. The outcome will be good.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) All those chores you've been neglecting over the weekend will be handled efficiently and quickly today, putting your mind at ease.
