Mr. S. Clair was elected chairman of the committee. Other members are: J. C. Winn, J. C. Moore, H. H. Hols, Hubert Rutherford and B. Bomar.

High Waters Recede After Flowing Over Farmlands, Highways; Youth Drowns In Swollen Lake Near Here

Year's Rainfall Of 21 Inches Is Held Responsible

Muleshoe was almost isolated for two days last week, due to flood waters which surrounded the town and cut off highway and rail traffic. On Highway 214, south, water poured over the pavement for about half a mile and for a few hours was between two and a half and three feet deep.

The water came from the West Camp and Progress section and Blackwater Draw looked pretty much like the old Mississippi. Bridges on Highway 70 were unable to carry the flood and the water carried out a Santa Fe bridge at this point, holding up through rail traffic for three days. Passengers and mail were transferred here. However, all damage was repaired early this week and schedules are back to normal. Highway 28, to Plainview, is still under water for about half a mile, and traffic is being detoured.

To the north of Muleshoe, the country resembled a huge lake last Friday, where flood waters from the north part of the county tumbled in on fields, washing out crops, drowning poultry and livestock, and damaging farm buildings. In some sections, the rain reached cloudburst proportions. It was rain from 10 to 20 miles north and west of Muleshoe that did the big damage here. Ditches were not sufficient to carry the water, which overflowed fields and pastures. There were several instances where farmers herded cattle and hogs on haystacks to save them.

These new Santa Fe Railway box cars stored at a country elevator indicate the preparation being made to handle the bumper 1941 wheat crop. The scene is typical throughout the southwest. Storage facilities for the new crop remain a big problem. Ter-

Muleshoe Lions Win Honors At District Meeting

The joint meeting of District 2T and State International Lions clubs ended their convention in Amarillo last Tuesday. Delegates from Muleshoe were present for the three-day session.

The convention started Sunday evening with registration of members at the First Christian church and a sermon by Dr. Roy Snodgrass.

Convention headquarters were at the Amarillo Hotel with more than 600 members from District 2T signing the register. Quite an array of distinguished visitors from over the state, as well as President Karl M. Sorrick of Michigan, Vice President George R. Johnson of Dallas and the district governors were on hand for the meeting.

The Muleshoe club received special recognition twice, once in the introduction of the delegates from the club of the district, and from the Friona club, which Muleshoe Lions organized and sponsored. The club also received special recognition for attendance at local meetings.

Muleshoe received a highway sign for winning the attendance contest. A battle for ballots in the race for district governor, was won by H. C. "Blue Boy" Pender, head of the department of government at Texas Tech. Paschal Buckner of Big Spring was defeated by Mr. Pender. The next convention goes to Odessa.

Patriotism and service in the national emergency was the theme of the convention.

Horse Owners Are Warned Of Sleeping Sickness In County

Sleeping sickness in horses has appeared again in Bailey county, therefore all horse owners should watch their stock closely, and if the disease appears in their neighborhood, vaccination is advisable, S. T. Logan, county agent, said today.

Logan states that this disease caused several losses some years ago here, and that this year is favorable for an outbreak, as mosquitoes are one of the spreaders of the disease. Some losses have already occurred, he said.

Another disease, blackleg, that usually takes its toll in cattle, will probably be worse this year than usual. A simple vaccination is practically 100 percent preventive. Mr. Logan urges cattle owners to take this necessary precaution.

Local Workers Attend Meeting For Red Cross

Tuesday, June 10, several members of the Bailey county unit of the American Red Cross, attended a district meeting held at the Amarillo Hotel in Amarillo. The main speaker for the occasion was Gerald Wasserliis, assistant director of the Military and Naval Welfare Service.

Mr. Wasserliis explained in detail just how the Red Cross is working with the armed services of the U. S. Army and Naval forces.

The Red Cross is doing a wonderful work of service between the soldier boys and the home in many respects. Much of the work which is ordinarily thought would be done by the military authorities is being done by the Red Cross. There is a very close cooperation between the Red Cross and the military authorities relative to the welfare of the service man, it was explained by Mr. Wasserliis.

The speaker pointed out that the Red Cross covers a much wider scope than is generally recognized by even the majority of its members. The Red Cross is doing a wonderful work for recreation in the health conditions, recreation conditions, and in assisting parents and the soldier to keep in touch with each other.

In the emergency cases of need and finance, the Red Cross stands ever ready to assist.

The Red Cross sewing room at Amarillo was observed by the delegation from Bailey county, and many useful ideas were obtained.

Members of the Bailey county unit attending the meeting were: Mrs. Beulah Carles, Mrs. Bill Harper, Mrs. Dorothy Barton, Mrs. Ruby Hart, Rev. Huckabee and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cox.

Walter Wright Is Victim In Sunday Tragedy

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon in the Baptist church at Friona for Walter Andrew Wright, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wright, who reside about seven miles north of Muleshoe. The boy was drowned in a lake near his home Sunday morning at about 11 o'clock.

His body was recovered from the chill waters seven hours later by searchers who used four boats, poles and a hay rake in their efforts.

Youth had been swimming the horse and had made it across the lake once and had started back. The horse became exhausted and sank. Ed Shirley, who was also swimming the horse, tried to assist Wright to stay above the water. Unable to keep the boy from sinking, Shirley swam to shore. The Wright youth could not swim, it was reported.

With Shirley and Wright was Bert McGee, who also resides north of Muleshoe, near the lake where the youth was drowned.

McGee turned loose of the horse as the animal approached deep water, and swam to the shore.

Ernest Wright, father of the victim, was standing on the bank when the horse went down. He dived into the water and swam out into the lake in a vain effort to reach his son.

Efforts to locate the boy's body were started immediately, by some while others at the scene, including W. H. Graham, Farwell newspaper editor, went to obtain help and to get boats and grappling hooks.

Roy Bayless of Muleshoe, who was riding in one of the boats being used in the search, discovered the body.

Lon Robinson of Clovis, N. M., dived into the water and brought Wright's body to the surface.

Walter Andrew Wright was born Aug. 16, 1934, and was a student in the Muleshoe high school the past scholastic year. He would have been a member of the 1942 graduating class.

Boy friends and classmates of the youth served as pallbearers and his girl classmates were flower girls at the funeral services. Burial was in the Friona cemetery.

Steed's Mortuary of Clovis was in charge of funeral arrangements.

Besides the parents, young Wright is survived by two sisters, Devine, 14, and Dixie, eight-months old and one brother, Ernest Lloyd, 10. Also surviving are his grandmother, Mrs. Addie Patton, an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Patton of Muleshoe.

The Wright family has lived in the Muleshoe vicinity since 1926. A large group of the youth's classmates, teachers and other friends from Muleshoe attended the funeral.

Last Rodeo For Old Anvil Park To Be Held July 4

CANADIAN, Tex., June 11 — July 4, 5 and 6 are the dates established for the 19th annual Anvil Park rodeo, with a performance each afternoon, at historic Anvil Park, which will be the last year the contest will be held there.

In 1942 all events will be held at the new stadium to be built during the year on the outskirts of Canadian in the City Park, where plans and preparations are under way for a WPA project with a new grandstand and chutes.

The Anvil Park rodeo is the oldest outdoor rodeo in Texas, having operated for nineteen consecutive years. The first steer roping contest was held at Canadian in the summer of 1888 near the Santa Fe stockyards with Ellison Carroll, world's champion early-day steer roper as the main contestant, and now residing at Big Lake, Texas. Mr. Carroll participates in roping contests for men over 50 at rodeos in west-central Texas regularly.

The purses with added entry fees will amount to more than $2,200 this year, which is sure to bring the top contestants. Clyde Burk of Comanche, Okla., 1936 and 1938, RAA champion calf roper, and 1940 SRA champion calf and steer roper, will be one of the participants this year. Along with Burk will be numerous other champions, because of the handsome prize list.

Events this year will consist of single steer roping, steer wrestling, calf roping, bronc riding, bull riding, wild mule riding, and special acts.

Local amateurs as well as professionals will be permitted to contest in the rodeo this year, and no one will be barred except those on the "black list" of the Cowboys Turtle Association.

The committee has made a contract with Beutler Bros. of Elk City, Okla., to furnish all the stock. This organization has acquired a number of new bucking horses this year, and some of the ambitious bronc riders are sure to "bite the dust" as a consequence.

The Anvil Park rodeo is a community wide organization, made up of cattlemen and businessmen of this area, and since no profits inure to any individual or group of individuals, no admission tax is required.

Earl Blackmore, local trucking contractor, has been selected as chairman of the association this year, with Otto Yokley and Geo. Mathers, local cattlemen, to direct the arena, and they promise a speedy show with no delay in the program.

Wiley McCray, local cowboy celebrity, better known as the "Canadian Kid," has been contracted by the committee to clown the show. In addition to providing fun for the kiddies as well as the grown-ups during the performance, McCray will fight Brahma bulls during the bull-riding event.

SANTA FE CARLOADINGS

New Wheat Estimates For Nation Are Made

The United States Department of Agriculture, in its monthly crop estimate, boosted the expected national winter wheat yield to 697,692,000 bushels from the 653,105,000 bushel estimate of a month ago.

Excessive rains through May and June have made prospects in the Panhandle rather uncertain and this is said to be causing an upward trend in market prices.

Locally, the estimated yields at this time are estimated at from 20 to 35 bushels to the acre, but growers are making no predictions for more than a day ahead.

LABOR "HIS LAW"

Up until two years ago practically in this country had worked all the objectives it had dreamed of for years. It had been accomplished peacefully, and with the blessing of the people as a whole. But more and more the rank and file of labor listened to the honeyed words of imported thugs from Russia, from Germany, from Italy, and in fact, the scum of all European countries. Just why an American laboring man should even tolerate such rats has been one of the great mysteries of life. There was not, it is not today, and never will be, a country in Europe or anywhere else where labor, and especially skilled labor, has had the opportunity that it has in the United States.

A large percentage of labor does not, even now, realize that so-called "leaders" like Harry Bridges, personal friend of "Modom" Perkins) is running the greatest racket this country has ever seen. The laborer not only loses financially, but loses the good will of his people, and as a consequence stands today, he will be many years regaining it, even if he repents in sack cloth and ashes. The Texas Digest, in its current issue, very likely has the correct solution for labor when it says, editorially:

"The interest of the workers should be protected fully, and the essentials of collective bargaining should be preserved. But this has not been done without recognizing even the possibility of a strike in the present circumstances. If it can't be done without the weapon of the strike threat, then the interests of workers should be protected by suspending for a period of time the important interests as at stake now, and they must not be jeopardized in an effort to protect lesser interests. Indeed, the only way to protect the lesser interest in the long run. But regardless of everything, strikes must stop."

POLICY IS UNCERTAIN

A great deal of the President's late talk was given to a restatement of his foreign policy, so there was nothing particularly new in it, except for a definitely more aggressive tone. It was a restatement of the policy of the Axis. However, Mr. Roosevelt emphasized a few points which are of the highest importance, and which he had not covered in the same way before.

First, he made it perfectly clear that in the Administration's viewpoint, our present policy is not just an idealistic attempt to save England and the British Empire—the "the only policy" it is based on cold, hard principles of self-interest. He is convinced that if England falls we will be next on Hitler's list, and that the wise course is to keep the fighting out of this hemisphere if possible.

Second, he said categorically that sea control will be the determining issue—"If the Axis powers fail to gain control of the seas they will certainly be defeated." Therefore, he and his supporters reason, it is necessary that we keep the oceans intact.

Third, he intimated that the policy, in self-defense, may find it necessary to control certain areas in this hemisphere which now belong to German-dominated France—Dakar, the Cape Verde Islands, and the Portuguese possessions. It is probable that only Dakar, which is a fairly well fortified position, would be difficult to take over.

Fourth, and very important, he spoke tellingly of "freedom of the seas." To millions of Americans, those words carried them right back to 1916. "Freedom of the seas," was President Wilson's "naïve point of disagreement" with Imperial Germany. Wilson's insistence on this that finally brought us into the war. When we're Neutralty Act at the onset of the present war, Wilson, abandoned this position. And while the President said he sees no reason for the Neutralty Act, that he has no intention of repeating Germany's "rules of war," as they were not a part of the "freedom of the seas" which he thought that the

YOUR NAME?

By CHARLES DIDWAY

JOHNSON
Surpassed only by Smith, Johnson is the second most common American surname. It is a patronym meaning "son of John." The name John might be termed the "father of surnames." It has provided names for millions of people.

The following are a few of the many surnames meaning "son of John," all similar in meaning to Johnson: Jansen, Johanson, McShane, MacKean, Hanson, Bevan, Fitzjohn, Bowen, Jennings, Jackson, Owens, Evans, Jones.

Popularly interpreted, the name John means "God's grace." Andrew Johnson (1808-1875) was the 17th president of the United States. Eastman Johnson (1824-1906) was an American painter.

HARVEY
An English name and its bearers in Great Britain were among the most valiant of that country's soldiers. "Harvey" comes from the French "Herve," and sprang into existence following the Norman invasion. William Harvey (1578-1657) was an English physician and anatomist, and discoverer of the circulation of the blood.

KIRKLAND
This name, sometimes spelled "Kirkland," is an English local name meaning "church" from the English and Celtic "kirk," which means "church." Kirkland designated one who worked in or lived near lands belonging to the church. John Kirkland was one time president of Harvard College and Samuel Kirkland, an American clergyman, was the founder of Hamilton College, and a missionary to the Indians.

POOL
Pool is an English place name, meaning, as the name implies, one who dwelt near a pool. The name is more commonly spelled "Poole." Outstanding bearers of this name have been John Poole, English dramatist and writer, and William F. Poole, American librarian.

SLATON
Slaton is an English local name meaning "town built upon the plain," from the Anglo-Saxon "slade" (plain) and "ton" (town). Originally Sladeton, the name was shortened to Slaton, and in some cases to Slade.

ENGLAND NEXT?
Britain's decisive victory in Iraq makes good news—she couldn't afford to lose her oil wells and pipelines there, as they are almost literally the lifeblood of her military and naval forces in the East. Other good news was the destruction of the Bismarck by a tremendous concentration of British naval units—no British public which was aghast at the sinking of the Hood could be of the fleet.

But the news from Crete is as bad as it could be. Again the Germans demonstrated the power of their air-arm again they showed the finest kind of staff and supply work. In losing Crete, Britain loses much of her Mediterranean power.

Some commentators think the battle of Crete may have been a full dress rehearsal for invasion of Britain herself. There is a similarity in conditions. The Nazis had to come over water, and we had to come over water. Detachments of entrenched defenders in rugged country. However, an invasion of England would hardly be so easy. The Luftwaffe would be given plenty of opportunity to bomb England and England is far better defended from the point of view of men, positions, and weapons, than is Crete. The fact that, according to reporters on the scene, German loss of soldiers and planes in Crete was staggering, indicates just how tough over-water invasion is.

THREE WARNINGS

Mark Twain said: "A few fair men on the other side will argue and reason against the war with speech and pen and at first will have a hearing and be applauded, but it will not last long; the others will outshoot them and before long you will see this curious thing: The speakers stoned from the platform and free speech strangled by hordes of furious men who in their secret hearts are still as much as you are speakers, but do not dare say so. And now, the whole Nation, pulpit and all, will take up the war cry and shout itself hoarse and mob any man who ventures to open his mouth, and presently such mouths will cease to open."

George Washington Said: "Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike of another causes those who are attached to one side to see only on one side and serve to veil even the second acts of villainy that they see sooner or later."

SHORT SHOTS

"Food" may be a better word, but there was more downright satisfaction in eating when the stuff was called "vittles."

SOUTHERN WILDLIFE

By CHARLES DIDWAY

Foxy Farmer
D. W. Kolb, a ranger in McCurtain county, Oklahoma, tells us of one farmer's unique method of safeguarding his quail during the last hunting season. "At the beginning of the season," Kolb informs, "this farmer simply lured all the quail on his farm into a trap, kept them well hidden and well fed during the shooting season, granted entrance to all who desired to hunt on his land, and when the season closed, turned the well fattened birds out upon his broad acres once more!"

Loss a Hook—Save a Life
It is a hard matter to release a fish so skillfully that it will not die later. One tender, slimy outfit covering is injured, the fish dies. He may look frisky as a cork when you let him go—but an unbelievable high percentage of the fish you handle die later. Cut your snell or leader and release the fish with the hook in him. You only lose a hook which can be bought for a nickel.

Swallow-Proof Catfish Hook
"Anything that would keep an old cat from swallowing a hook so deep you have to tussle half an hour to get it out would be a boon to civilization!" That's the motto. Southern fishermen feed. Make a guard wire. Loop a piece of stiff wire through the eye of your hook. Twist the wire around the hook shank and bring both ends out straight to the sides. If a cat gets big enough to swallow wire and a hook, it's tough and no one would believe he was that big anyhow!

Delour—Quail Nest Ahead
A mother quail and her nest of 2 eggs recently caught travelers to a bit of detouring between Bracketville in Kinney county and Rock Springs in Edwards county, Texas. The state highway department's crew of engineers and construction gangs, building a road between those two communities, located a quail nest. All traffic was detoured around that spot until mamma quail hatched a dozen, and two or three inches deep. Make a guard wire. Loop a piece of stiff wire through the eye of your hook. Twist the wire around the hook shank and bring both ends out straight to the sides. If a cat gets big enough to swallow wire and a hook, it's tough and no one would believe he was that big anyhow!

Tough, Eh?
The lady of the house heard a knock on the door. Looking through the screen she saw a Chinese fish peddler. Not wishing to be disturbed, she called to her maid: "You go, Ella."

Fish Have Lubrication Too
While we don't know whether the fish "change oil" every twenty miles, we do know that, in order to glide easily along in the water, its body is covered with a slimy mucus which is being constantly poured out in large quantities by special glands situated in the epidermis. This mucus makes the body of the fish slippery and also minimizes friction with the surrounding water.

A Fishing Squirrel?
There is no such thing as a flying squirrel. They can glide downward, but can't rise. With the exception of bats, no North American mammal is capable of sustained flight. In the squirrel that glides, there is an out-stretching of skin on both sides of its body, extending from the front to the hind feet. When it leaps with its feet spread out, this membrane of skin is extended, forming a flat surface which enables it to glide diagonally downward from one limb to another.

Sorter—Stretching It
We've finally resolved to quit being surprised over anything new in the fishing line anymore. The latest thing that has caused us to lift our eyebrows is a complete line of rubber lures put out by Packer & Keller, Inc., 2207 West 69th Street, Chicago, Ill. They tell us that those lures are far more natural looking than the wooden variety and are real fish-grabbers. Now sportsmen needn't stop stretching their catch—they can stretch the lures too!

Bill: "Hey, boss, Dr. Smith is outside with a blow-out."
Boss: "Fine! Diagnose it as flatulency of the perimeter, let him fix it himself, and send him back to $5 for professional services."

"I had my 'druthers'— I'd rather think that I knew less and know more, than to know that I knew it all and know nothing."

THE SMOKY YEARS

By ALAN LE MAY W.N.U. Release

Dusty King and Lew Gordon were joint owners of the vast King-Gordon range which stretched from Texas to Montana. When building up this string of ranches, they continually had to fight the unscrupulous Ben Thorpe. Thorpe rivaled King-Gordon in power, wealth, but he had gained his position through wholesale cattle rustling and grafting. Their opposing interests came to a show-down when the Government announced the auctioning of the valuable Crying Wolf land in Montana. King bid big to beat out Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, raced home to tell his Jody Gordon the good news. A rusty brought the news that Dusty King had been killed.

CHAPTER IV
They buried Dusty King five miles south of Ogallala, beside the Great Trail, which he himself had pioneered. They thought he would want to rest out there in the open plain, near enough to the cattle trail so that the rumble of hoofs would sometimes come to him through the ground.

Over his grave they piled boulders, after the fashion of the prairie men. Bill Roper himself filled a cross railroad ties, the most durable and massive timber available at Ogallala. After that was all done, and night had come on, and everybody had gone back to their homes, Bill Roper went back to that lonely cross and squatted on his heels against the pile of stone. After a while a ridden horse came toward the cross, and Bill Roper went back to that lonely cross and squatted on his heels against the pile of stone. After a while a ridden horse came toward the cross, and Bill Roper went back to that lonely cross and squatted on his heels against the pile of stone.

There was a silence, sharp and hard, before Bill said, "How is it you haven't told anybody this?" "I haven't had any chance to talk to you," Dry Camp said. "I'm telling you now, ain't I?" "Who was it?" "Cleve Tanner; and Walk Lasham."

Dry Camp took a match out of the pocket of his cowhide vest and chewed the end. "You see—" he searched for his words painfully, after the manner of men who know much, about "Dusty," he tied his horse out back of the Lone Star Bar, in the angle of the wagon shed. There's a corner there, like you can't see the front down here, hardly; and what with it getting dark—" "Where were you?" "I was in Bailey's Harness Shop, next door. I saw Dusty turn off the walk, and walk back between the fish 'change oil' every twenty miles, we do know that, in order to glide easily along in the water, its body is covered with a slimy mucus which is being constantly poured out in large quantities by special glands situated in the epidermis. This mucus makes the body of the fish slippery and also minimizes friction with the surrounding water."

"You're in this, Dry Camp." "You're going to start rouding 'em in." "What you offering these boys?" "Horses and grub, and what other stuff we'll need. Not another thing." They sat silent for a long time more. "All right," Dry Camp said. "I'll go."

In the starlight Bill Roper swung down in the angle of the little shack which served King-Gordon as a loading-fordman's office at their Ogallala pens. Within, Bill Roper found Lew Gordon sitting alone. "Just talked to a man," Roper said, "that saw the killing." "Gordon was instantly alert. "Who was it?" "He's a man that can't come forward, because he's already an outlaw in his own right. But Dusty was killed by Ben Thorpe, and Walk Lasham, and Cleve Tanner the three working together. Walk Lasham bore down Dusty's gun."

This man that told you this—we've got to get hold of him; his story has to go to the authorities, Bill." Roper shook his head. "He'll hang if they lay hands on him. Anyway, nobody would believe him against these three."

Lew Gordon made a gesture of once impatient and weary. "Whenever we turn we hit some gang of lawlessness," he said. "There's too many men afraid to stand forward and face out the law. Seem like nothing is done open and above board any more." "Never was, since I remember," Roper said. "I've got a couple of years in mind right now. I'm going on the warpath, Lew." "Gordon had been fiddling with a pencil, and now he threw it on the table in front of him. "We're figuring you to take over the Crying Wolf, Bill. Dusty's half of King-Gordon naturally will stand in your name now; Dusty never paid any attention to any other kin. But the Crying Wolf was where he figured for you to go and work, and there's just any call to change that, now." "You can count me out of the Crying Wolf, Lew." "What do you want to do?" "We're going to branch out a new way," Roper said. "We're going to have a barriar outfit. And I'm its new boss."

"You're in this, Dry Camp."

INSTALLMENT I

"Then, by God, King-Gordon has come to his split-up!" Silence again before Dry Camp said, "And I suppose I'm expected to just kind of stand aside and stay out of it and see how you work it out, huh? Well, I won't do it, Bill." "You're in this, Dry Camp."

"How am I in it?" "I've got to have me an outfit. It's got to be made up of boys that aren't afraid of Ben Thorpe or all them boys that haven't got anything more to lose. I'll need near fifty men. But to start off with I want Lee Harshin, and Tex Daniels, and Tex Long; Nate Liggett—Dave Shannon."

"Wow!" said Dry Camp. "You get those four or five in the same bunch, they'll eat each other alive." "That's the kind I want," Bill Roper said. "I want a wild bunch such as the West has never seen before."

"And me—what am I supposed to do?" "You—you're heading south. You're going back to Texas and down beside Bill at the foot of the stones. Find out anything in the town." "Hell, no." "No," Dry Camp repeated after him. "No, and they won't."

"You talk mighty sure, Dry Camp." "I talk mighty sure because I am mighty sure. Nobody saw Dusty killed except the three men that done it and one other man." "Bill Roper's hand shot out and caught Dry Camp's lean arm in a grip that bit like a trap. "Who was that?" "He."

There was a silence, sharp and hard, before Bill said, "How is it you haven't told anybody this?" "I haven't had any chance to talk to you," Dry Camp said. "I'm telling you now, ain't I?" "Who was it?" "Cleve Tanner; and Walk Lasham."

Muleshoe Study Club Closes Year With Dinner

The Muleshoe Study Club closed its year's work with the annual installation dinner given by the retiring president and vice president, Mrs. A. E. Lewis and Mrs. C. S. Holland, at the home of the former, Thursday evening, June 5.

The guests were seated at three tables laid with white cloths and centered with pink roses in frosted bowls. Music was provided through the dinner hour by Misses Virginia Whittington and Gloria Cowdy, and Marlene Lancaster and Charles Gilbert Lewis gave three dances.

After dinner, the new officers were installed by Mrs. Lewis. Farmers Greet Parity Price Of 85 Percent

From the Panhandle to the Rio Grande Valley, and the Piney Woods of East Texas to the Western Plains, farmers were jubilant last week as Congress finally passed, and the President signed, the measure fixing government loans on major farm products at 85 percent parity.

Producers of the basic crops who cooperate in the AAA program will receive at least 85 percent of parity in the market place on their 1941 crops. The remaining 15 percent will be made up by conservation and benefit payments. Parity is a price designed to give farm products the purchasing power in terms of other goods they had from 1909 to 1914.

Loan value on cotton, which was nine cents per pound last season, is set at 13.5 cents under the new plan, an increase of 4 1/2 cents. Just what this $2 per bale increase will mean to the Lone Star state, business and professional people as well as farmers, is well known to anyone who has ever been in Texas when the money supply starts rolling to town in the fall.

It means, in round figures, that Texas' 3,000,000 bales will put some $200,000,000 into the channels of trade this fall, or between 60 and 70 million dollars more than last season.

Wheat presents a parallel instance. The state's annual crop of between 30 and 40 million bushels will have a value of at least 96 cents per bushel against 63 cents last year. Price of oats, barley and other grains, always affected by the price of wheat, will be correspondingly higher.

Officials of the American Farm Bureau Federation, which has made the parity measure its major legislative project since last December, hailed the recent overwhelming vote in Congress as one of the most notable victories it has ever won for American agriculture in its 20-year battle to give the farmer a fairer share of the national income.

The Farm Bureau is universally credited with being a major factor in the measure's enactment. The vote in the House was 275 to 63, and in the Senate, 72 to 2, showing, Farm Bureau officials said, that Congress at last realizes that the American farmer is entitled to some of the price protection that has been so long given to labor and industry thru the protective tariff.

J. Walter Hammond of Tye, president of the Texas Farm Bureau Federation, who probably had as much to do with getting the measure passed as any other man in the state, pointed to it as an example of what farmers can do if they will only organize to make their voices heard.

"If, with only a small percentage of the farmers organized, we can get Congress to do this much for agriculture, just think what we could do if we were fully organized," he said.

"We must not forget that this parity measure is for one year only," he pointed out. "With increasing prices constantly rising, increasing the cost of things the farmer must buy, the need will probably be even greater next year. We must make Congress realize that justice for agriculture should be placed upon a permanent basis."

Claims by industrial interests that the slight boost in prices of raw products will materially increase living costs were most vigorously refuted by the Texas farm leader.

"A dollar shirt, for example containing less than a pound of cotton, should cost the consumer only about 3 cents more unless industry uses this as an excuse to boost its own margin of profits excessively," he pointed out. "Likewise the rise in the price of bread should be less than one-half cent a loaf."

"Balance this against what the $23 per bale increase in cotton and the 33 cent per bushel rise in wheat will mean to Texas' half million farm families and to everyone else in this state dependent upon agriculture, directly or indirectly for a living."

Hundreds of ponies are visiting the city dump at Ebbw Vale, Wales, every day to forage for food.

Yucca May Be Basis For New Plains Industry

The Yucca plant, which grows so abundantly in the Panhandle and parts of Oklahoma and New Mexico, may become one of the most valuable raw materials in the war industry.

The lowly plant, commonly referred to as bear grass, can be made into fiber stronger than that of jute, and at a much lower cost than that prevailing during the first World War. At the present time the supply of fibers from India, main American source of the commodity, is straitened and R. S. Chapman painted an optimistic picture of a fiber manufacturing industry for Portales, N. M. when he spoke there to a group of businessmen last week.

Mr. Chapman who is the owner of patents for extraction of fiber from the yucca plant, showed samples of fiber that he had extracted at his experimental station at Phoenix, Ariz., and furnished detailed information as to the cost of extracting fiber in plants with a daily output of from three to 15 tons.

CARDS OF THANKS ARE CHARGED FOR AT THE REGULAR AD RATES

The Journal wishes to call the attention of its readers and others to the notice which always appears at the top of the editorial page in regard to advertising. In this notice, Cards of Thanks are listed as paid advertising. This charge is made with more in mind than mere financial greed. The old fact is, that if a charge was not made, there would never be room for anything except cards of thanks.

Thanking people is a custom much to be desired, and we are for it. But there must be rules to be guided by, as far as newspapers are concerned, so these charges are made in order to be fair to all. After all, it is a very convenient way to extend thanks, and, too, the charge is very little. It is an old newspaper custom, and not a greedy idea of our own. Please co-operate with us. Thanks.

Methodists Let Contract For New Community House

Officials of the Methodist church met Wednesday night to open sealed bids for the construction of the educational building, and the Charles Lenau Lumber Co. was the successful bidder. Three local firms bid on the material with the following results: Charles Lenau Lumber Co., $3,671.35.

For over nine weeks, was called by one reporter a "dress rehearsal" for the Reds' program of sabotaging defense. It begins to look as though the public, the workers themselves, and — be it ever so slowly — the government may have something to say about that!

McReynolds Lumber, $3,878.04. Higginbotham - Bartlett Lumber Co., $3,734.13. Construction will start at the earliest possible date, the officials said. The building, a 40x80 structure, will be frame and stucco, equipped for banquets and other entertainments, as well as religious work.

THE "TOWN WIT" REMARKS ON WEATHER CONDITIONS

Muleshoe is in the market for a Dry Dock.

One more rain will make us eligible for an "Over The River Buryin' Society."

An Elizabethan communion table taken from Mersham church in Kent, England, has been found in an attic and returned to the church.

FOR SALE MISCELLANEOUS

Here is a big idea that will—if enough people act on the hunch—convert hundreds of unwanted articles now gathering dust in Muleshoe and West Plains attics, basements, garages, storerooms, offices, stores and warehouses into thousands of dollars of ready cash.

Its possibilities are great. It is a sort of "share your own wealth" campaign — for there is scarcely a family in the whole community which has not some things for which they no longer have use that can be converted into cash, and thus transformed into all kinds of much wanted new things.

If you—and you—and you—and all of us will just take inventory of the dust covered or closet-space robbers that we no longer want and advertise them in the Muleshoe Journal Want Ads we will start a great new miscellaneous market humming—in a city the size of Muleshoe there is always someone to buy what you no longer need or want.

Begin the inventory now! You will be surprised at what you find and when you have the money to buy something new you will have a new and friendlier feeling for Muleshoe Journal Want Ads—unless, of course you are one of the hundreds who have long been reading the "For Sale - Miscellaneous" classification to a profit.

Miss Violet Franklin of Amherst and Glenn Hennington of Lubbock, were married Saturday, May 31. Malaria Mosquito Control Urged By Health Board

"A marked saving in human lives and improved health conditions may be obtained in large measure by an educational program for the control of the mosquito," suggests Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. Possibility of mosquitoes being a real menace here this year, is a real one, with many lowlands water flooded.

"Malaria is transmitted to humans," he said, "by the bite of Anopheles mosquito. This mosquito acquires the malaria parasites by biting a person who has these parasites in his blood. She (it is the female who transmits this disease) then bites a well person. The parasites enter the blood, grow, and multiply there. Poisons are formed and carried in the blood stream to all parts of the body. The person bitten by the carrier mosquito begins to shiver with chills, burn with fever, water, where they float, and in a few days hatch into "wiggletails." These live in the water and require twelve to fourteen days in summer to complete the cycle.

"The protection of humans may be accomplished by screening all houses to prevent the entrance of mosquitoes. A 16-mesh wire screen should be placed over all openings. Be sure that all chimneys, cracks, and other openings are covered.

"The malaria mosquito breeds in still water and the pools and grassy edges of running water, as well as in many places where water is allowed to collect or stand. The female mosquito then lays her eggs on the surface of the water, and the eggs hatch into "wiggletails." These live in the water and require twelve to fourteen days in summer to complete the cycle.

"In order to prevent the malaria mosquito from breeding, destroy their shelters by removing all brush and weeds, and drain or otherwise control their breeding places in water by spraying the surface with oil or putting top-feding minnows in waters where oil or drainage cannot be used. Such a campaign was being waged around all the military areas in Texas."

"NO ONE EVER WINS AN ARGUMENT"

University of Texas officials of the Interscholastic League are now willing to admit that nobody ever wins an argument.

Compiling results of the recent high school debate meet held on the University of Texas campus, league officials found that for the first time in its history, state debate decisions just about add up to a tie.

Of the 14 teams competing in the state finals, judges' decisions went to seven negative sides, seven affirmatives. More than that, the 94 judges' votes counted exactly 47 decisions on each side of the question.

Debate topic was increased national resources taxes for Texas.

LANDING STRIPS FOR NATION'S HIGHWAYS IS URGED IN CONGRESS

WASHINGTON — The largest airplanes — both giant bombers — and huge passenger airliners — eventually may be making emergency landings alongside the thousands of miles of highways throughout the United States.

Senator McCarran (D-Neu.) disclosed recently that a section of the proposed national defense highway bill requested by President Roosevelt would authorize construction of "landing strips" along the nation's highways.

"The idea has been used successfully in Germany for several years," the senator said. "It's too bad that we have not done it before but once we get this authorization, development should be rapid."

McCarran explained that the "landing strips will be constructed along our present highways usually in the direction of prevailing winds." If two highways form a "V" the inner area may be utilized for the emergency field. He added that the "landing strips" might or might not be surfaced, depending upon soil conditions and other factors.

A related plan, the widening of highway crossroads to provide 400 "satellite airroads" provides landing areas for military aircraft in mass movements, was urged before the House roads committee by Gen. George H. Brett, army air corps chief.

U. S. NAVY LOWERS REQUIREMENTS FOR ALL ENLISTMENTS

Lowering of physical requirements for enlistment in all classes of the naval reserve, except for commission rank will permit enlistment of many men who have previously been rejected for the regular navy or naval reserve, according to recruiting officers at Abilene, Tex., announce.

Minimum height for naval reserve enlistments has been reduced to 62 inches, regardless of age. Former minimum was 63 inches if between seventeenth and eighteenth birthdays, and 64 inches for all others.

All previous weight and chest minimums have been suspended with the provision that the applicant for enlistment must be well proportioned and muscular. Eighteen sound vital teeth may now get an applicant past the examining medical officer who previously demanded that he have 20 sound teeth.

Age limits for enlistment in the naval reserve are from 17 to 50 years with beginning pay ranging from $21 to $99 per month, depending upon recruit's qualifications, whether on active duty. Those enlisted should expect immediate orders to active duty and to be released from active duty after national emergency or war as soon as their services can be spared, recruiting officers said.

OLETHA COKER OF EARTH WEDS KRESS MAN

Muleshoe Library News

Another new and interesting book in the Muleshoe Library is "My Sister and I," by Dirk van der Heide. There is also a popular song by the same name, and about the same boy and girl. For those who love over the song, the book will be of double interest.

Last spring a twelve-year-old boy named Dirk van der Heide was living just outside Rotterdam with his father and mother and little sister. Ever since he was nine Dirk had kept a diary, and on May 9 he was worrying about an essay on Erasmus that his school teacher had asked him to write. But school never met in Holland on May 10, and Dirk never handed in the essay. Instead, he lived through five days of blitzkrieg and escaped with his sister to England and finally to America. In this book, Dirk tells his own story of those days.

It is in the constant contrast between the interests of a normal boy and the horrors of modern war that this book achieves its power. Thousands of people have lived through this experience, and hundreds have written about it. It has remained for a boy of twelve to make it the most moving document that has come out of the war. Only the mind of a boy could record events in the purity of their immediate impact.

There are any number of other excellent books on the shelves of the Muleshoe Library. There are books to meet the taste of old and young. If you have a library card, use it; if you do not have a card you should get one at the earliest opportunity. Visit your local library.

THIS ONE IS TOLD BY A BANKER

Does it pay to make a farm inventory each year?

Well, here's a partial answer. Some years ago, a banker friend was telling of an experience he had. At the beginning of the year he had made a loan to a young farmer who was starting out just about from scratch. At the end of the year the young man came in showing very plainly that he was badly discouraged. Because of the drought he had not made the crops he expected to make, and he could make only a partial payment on the note. It would soon be time to make arrangements for next year and he felt he was worse off now than when he started. Frankly, the young man was ready to slip up.

"Wait just a minute," said the banker as he reached for the record that was made out and filed when the loan was made. "How many cows do you have now? How many calves?" On completing the check-up they found the young man had more livestock than he had when the loan was made, more corn in the crib, more hay in the loft, and he still had the money and implements he had bought with part of the money obtained through the loan. He had been building up his capital!

"Why, young man, you are a better credit risk now than you were when you first came in."

Wedding attendants other than the bridal party, were the bride's brother, Douglas Coker, Mr. and Mrs. David Anderson of Littlefield, Mr. and Mrs. V. D. Coker, and Joyce, Miss Carolyn Dixon and Mrs. Holcomb.

Russia expects its bakeries to bake 11,500,000 tons of bread in 1942.

There was a year ago," announced the banker. "Your net worth is greater. The increase in value of livestock, feed, and equipment far exceeds the unpaid balance of your note."

A very much relieved young man left the office of the banker all because of a few minute's work with a lead pencil. Why not try this plan around New Year's? Nothing will pay better the next rainy day.

Don't Gamble On Brakes!

Many cars that had good brakes before the floods we have just gone through, may have unsafe brakes now. Driving in mud and water will often get mud and water into the brakes that starts cutting on both the lining and the drums. This cutting action is almost equal to a grindstone on the contact surfaces, and will result in early replacement of linings and drums if allowed to continue.

The cost of removing the wheels and cleaning the linings and drums is very small. It will save expensive brake repairs and insure safe brakes.

If you appreciate the value of safe brakes don't fail to have them taken care of.

How to become A SKILLED DRIVER

By RAY W. SHERMAN

Courtesy of the FORD GOOD DRIVERS LEAGUE

EDITOR'S NOTE: We believe many motorists in this community would drive better if they knew better how to drive. In the interest of safety, we will publish from time to time excerpts from the book, "How to become a Skilled Driver," written for the Ford Good Drivers League by Ray W. Sherman, noted authority on driving. These excerpts are reprinted through courtesy of the Ford Motor Company.

SKILLED DRIVERS NEVER STUNT

Some drivers think skill behind the wheel consists in doing tricks with a car—driving fast, beating lights, gliding through "stop" signs or generally making the rest of the world miserable.

When a skilled driver watches one of these unskilled operators, he feels rather sorry. He sees a wonderful piece of machinery, glorious roads leading to lovely countryside, a driver with good intellect, good gums, good legs, good eyes. And he sees the whole picture marred because the driver never acquired real driving skill.

Some drivers think they're smart when they do tricks with a car. Actually, if a driver doesn't think right, he can't drive right.
