'Winners with class'

EDITOR: As basketball playoff time arrives we would like to take this opportunity to thank the Haskell fans. Your support and encouragement are very important to us. We appreciate you attending our games, flying the flags, the feature page in The Free Press, and all the good wishes, pats on the back and loving hugs.

We also request that you please remember that out-of-conrol conduct on the part of one fan could jeopardize our continued success. We respect your right to disagree with the referees, but encourage you to do so within the limits of good sportsmanship.

Your behavior reflects on our school and community just as ours does. We want to be known as "winners with class" and we hope you will help us gain that reputation.

Sales tax recipts up by 9.5 percent

The City of Haskell's February check for sales tax collections was in the amount of $24,940.87. The amount was 9.5 percent higher than last year's check of $22,777.37 for the same period.

Checks received in February from the state comptroller are consistently greater than those of other months since they represent collections made in December. They also include receipts from firms which reportquarterly and annually.

This week's check brought the year-to-date total to $34,651.08. For the first two months of last year, Haskell received $31,624.97.

Statewide, this month's ch cities which have the one-percent sales tax were up by 12 percent.

"The growth in collections from the broadened tax base has evened out now," said State Comptroller Bob Bullock. "That means these increases are a direct result of a stronger economy and greater consumer confidence.'

Two Haskell County cities received unexpected windfalls in this month's checks.

Rochester got $16,154.47 and Weinert received $14,995.51, many times the normal for each city. A spokeswoman with the state comptroller's office told The Free Press that the oversized checks included audit payments.

Contracts Playoffs of principals are renewed Maidens play Wall Friday

Contracts for principals and the assistant principal have been renewed by the Haskell Board of Education.

Extended contracts were issued to Gerald McCoy, secondary principal; Jimmy Lisle, elementary principal; and Greg Melton, assistant secondary principal.

Action came during a Feb. 9 meeting of the board during which most attention was given to a number of pending school projects.

Among them were the roofing of various school buildings, the heating and cooling project, changes in the plans for a new field house, seal coating of the high school parking lot and remodeling of the kitchen at the secondary school.

The school received bids from 12 contractors for the roofing projects of the auditorium, high school, junior high and gymnasium. Each contractor submitted a price for each of the four jobs. The bids were referred to a subcommittee of the board to analyze and make recommendations to the board. Other subcommittees will study the proposals for the heating and cooling of the secondary school, the parking lot and the elementary kitchen.

The board officially called the school election which will be held May 6, the first Saturday in May. Charles Swinson was chosen as election judge.

The board also finalized the gifted students program and approved the payment of medical claims from funds the school has retrieved from a former insurance carrier. Superintendent W. R. Baker said there was enough money in the fund to pay all claims incurred between Sept. 1 and Nov. 14, the period during which local insurance program participants were not covered under the insurance program.

The game will be played at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene.

Hawley, runnerup to Haskell in district 7-2A, will play Bangs at Clyde on the same night.

As tuneups for the bi-district playoff, the Haskell Indians have scheduled a couple of toughies for "practice" games.

Saturday night, Coach Randy Stone sends his district 7-2A champions against Class A power Eula and then on Monday, they go up against Class 3A Greenwood of Midland.

The Saturday game against Eula will be at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene, and the Friday contest against Greenwood will be played in Snyder. Both start at 7 p.m.

Eula sports a brilliant 29-1 season record, two of the wins coming over Hawley. Greenwood is a state-ranked team which lost 67-65 to Eula Monday night.

Haskell made its district championship "official" Tuesday night with a 72-48 win over Anson to close the district season with a perfect 12-0 mark. Dusty Meeks and Brad Bevel each scored 21 points and James Rike added 11.

annual Round Robin revival

The annual Round Robin Revival sponsored by the Haskell Ministerial Alliance begins Sunday, Feb. 19 and will continue through Friday, the 24th.

"The round robin is one of the most popular projects of the alliance," said the Rev. Dusty Garison, president of the alliance. "It gives everyone a chance to visit other congregations and hear the different ministers in town. We have a number of excellent preachers and this allows them to share their ministry with the entire community.'

The first such revival was held in 1981.

As in previous years, each evening the service will be hosted by a different congregation with the minister from another church speaking. The host church is responsible for providing special music.

The revival also serves as a major source of funding for the charitable work done by the alliance with each evening's offering going for this purpose. The Ministerial Alliance operates two funds, one for assistance to local persons and the other for the benefit of transients. Garison explained that assistance is provided on a "very limited basis" for those unable to find other resources.

Here is the complete schedule:

SUNDAY, FEB. 19: At First Baptist Church, 6 p.m. Speaker: the Rev. Kenny Kirk of First United Methodist Church.

MONDAY: At First Christian Church, 7 p.m. Speaker: The Rev. Victor Andersen of Trinity Lutheran Church.

TUESDAY: At Trinity Lutheran Church, 7 p.m. Speaker: The Rev. Paul Cheatham of East Side Baptist Church.

WEDNESDAY: At East Side Baptist Church, 7 p.m. Speaker: The Rev. Jimmy Turner of the First Baptist Church.

THURSDAY: At Assembly of God, 7 p.m. Speaker: Dusty Garison of First Christian Church.

FRIDAY: At First United Methodist, 7 p.m. Speaker: The Rev. J. C. Amburn of First Assembly of God.

TAX PLANNING

Written By James E. Rodgers, CPA

SOME INCOME IS TAX-FREE

Surprise! In the bleak world of taxes, there are rays of sunshine. You don't always have to pay, pay, pay. There are several kinds of "income" (money received) that are tax-free:

- Inherited money and property
- Money you borrow
- Interest on most municipal bonds
- Most dividends on life insurance policies
- Up to $125,000 gain on the sale of your home if you or your spouse is at least 55 years old

• Regardless of age, you can postpone tax on the sale of your home if you buy another for a like amount within two years

- Income of $70,000 earned while living abroad
- Annuties (the portion you paid for with after-tax dollars)
- Life insurance paid to you as beneficiary
- Gifts
- Child support payments you receive (But alimony is taxable.)

· Scholarships and fellowships received by degree candidates to pay for tuition, books and course equipment

- The principal portion of loans repaid to you
- Income from renting out your vacation home for 14 or fewer days per year
- Money paid to you in a lawsuit as an award for personal injuries

• Money you take from your IRA (a "rollover"), provided you get the money back into the same or a new IRA within 60 days

- Also, these fringe benefits received from your employer are not taxable:
- Premiums on up to $50,000 of group term life insurance
- Medical insurance or expense reimbursement
- Meals furnished on your work premises

If you received money or benefits in 1988 about which you have questions on taxability, see your tax advisor.

Garden Club hears FHA Week Mary Kaigler leads about Keriscaping

The Haskell Garden Club met Thusday, Feb. 9, in the Community Room.

The meeting was opened with Molly Carlisle introducing the guest speaker, Mr. Paul Richwein, representing the Conservation District, from Munday. He showed a video from Texas A&M. It was very informative about Keriscaping, showing the importance of water. The definition of Keriscaping is water conservation with good landscaping. Keriscaping designing can be done slowly. It cuts maintenance in half.

He told many things that were helpful about grasses and perrenials.

A short business session with Linda King presiding was held. She presented the letter concerning help for Girls State and action will be taken later.

There were beautiful specimens of horticulture brought. Bernadine Blankenship brought amaryllis, apple blossom and Bird of Paradise. Lorene Dewey brought African Violets, Juanita Rhea brought three dried arrangements. Juanita Bevel brought a cutting from a Snow Ball bush.

The roll call was answered with plants on the conservation list for our state.

We had special guests from the Rule Garden Club, and Mr. Bevel's agriculture class which consisted of several boys. We are always so pleased to have guests to visit any time.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Nettie McCollum, Leone Pearsey and Gladys O'Neal.

Note: If you are interested in birds (houses, feeders, nests, books, etc.) come to our next meeting. A spring wildflower hunt and tour of Dillon's Nursery in Knox City is planned after the meeting. The date is March 9, 2 p.m., at the Community Room.

Public Notice

On November 9, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company filed a tariff which proposes to prevent local exchange calling over interstate, unrestricted, multi-jurisdictional, WATS Access Lines (UWALs) and intrastate WATS Access Lines (WALs)

UWALs are provided to interexchange carriers for their use in the provision of interexchange interstate and intrastate long-distance and WATS-type services. Similarly, WALs are designed for use in the provision of interLATA and intraLATA WATS services. The UWALs and WALs were not intended to allow local exchange calling.

If these proposed tariff changes are approved, the blocking of local exchange calls over intrastate WATS access lines and UWALs will take place within 30 days. This proposed tariff change will not result in the blocking of local calls placed to an 800 Service number.

The Public Utility Commission (PUC) of Texas has assigned this matter to Docket 8421. A hearing on the merits of these proposed tariff changes is scheduled for March 13, 1989.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should mail a request to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757 by February 27, 1989. Further information may also be obtained by calling the PUC Public Information Office at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0221, teletypewriter for the deaf.

What about high blood pressure?

1985 Statistics (estimates) o Mortality: 30,700 deaths.

o Prevalence: 59,130,000 American adults and children have high blood pressure or are being treated for hypertension by a physician.

o Race: Black Americans have almost a 33 percent greater chance of having high blood pressure than whites

What is blood pressure?

Blood pressure is the force exerted by the blood against artery walls. The heart creates this pressure as it pumps

When the heart contracts, it pumps blood into the arteries. The small arteries (arteroles) of the body offer resistance to the flowing blood. The higher the resistance, the greater the pressure required from the heart to propel blood.

The elasticity of the walls of the arterioles allows these small vessels to expand or contract according to the ever-changing rate of blood flow. This keeps the blood pressure surprisingly constant in normal people. When the arterioles remain contracted or lose their elasticity, for whatever reason, the increased resistance leads to high blood pressure

How is blood pressure measured? Blood pressure is measured with a quick, painless test using a medical instrument which is called a sphgmomanometer. A rubber cuff is wrapped around a person's upper arm and then inflated with air. When the cuff is inflated, it compresses a large artery in the arm, momentarily stopping the flow of blood.

As the air is released in the cuff and the blood starts to flow, a doctor or other health professional listens with a stethoscope to the sound of the blood pulsing through the artery. While listening and watching the sphgmomanometer gauge, the doctor then records to measurements. These are 1) the maximum pressure of the blood flow when the heart beats (the systolic pressure), and 2) the minimum pressure of the blood flow between heartbeats (the diastolic pressure). Blood pressure is measured in millimeters of mercury, which is normal and that the arteries are under a greater strain. This may contribute to heart attacks, strokes and atheroscierosis. In effect, the heart has to work harder to generate enough pressure to force the blood through the arteries and supply the body's needs. If high blood pressure isn't treated, it may get harder and harder for the heart to pump enough blood and oxygen to the body's organs and tissues to meet their needs.

When the heart is forced to work harder than normal for an extended time, it tends to enlarge. A slightly enlarged heart may function well, but a significantly enlarged heart has a hard time meeting the demands placed upon it.

Arteries and arterioles also suffer the effects of elevated blood pressure. Over the time they become scarred. hardened and less elastic. Some hardening and loss of elasticity occurs naturally as people age, but elevated blood pressure speeds up this process.

Arterial damage is bad because hardened or narrowed arteries may not be able to supply the amount of blood the body's organs need. And if the body's organs don't get the oxygen and nutrients they need, they can't function properly. Hypertension also accelerates atherosclerosis. There's also the risk that a blood clot may lodge in a narrowed artery, depriving a part of the body of its normal blood supply. The heart, brain and kidneys are particularly likely to be damaged by high blood pressure.

Why does the mortality from high blood pressure appear to be so low?

The mortality figures for high blood pressure are deceptive. For example, the figures at the top of this article indicate that relatively few people die from a disease afflicting almost 60 million people. That's not the whole story, though, because high blood pressure damages body organs and blood vessels.

Many people die from heart attacks and strokes that directly result from hypertension. These deaths aren't listed as deaths from high blood pressure; they're listed separately as deaths from heart attack and stroke.

The result is that high blood presssure may not at first appear as dangerous as it is. Because of the disguised mortality figures, and more importantly because it's possible to have high blood pressure for years without knowing it, this disease has earned its reputation as a silent killer.

Probably to no one's surprise, San Antonio is the most popular tourist destination in Texas. That's confirmed in the highway department's "Auto Visitor Survey.

Fully one-third of the state's outof-state visitors who responded to the survey visited the Alamo. With the River Walk and now Sea World, as additional attractions, San Antonio gets more tourist dollars than any other city in Texas.

But all of Texas benefits from San Antonio's popularity. Regardless of which state a tourist comes from, he has to travel a lot of Texas to get to the Alamo city.

Everyone knows that a person's past athletic skills improve as he 🏐 ages.

This was certainly evident in an article the other day where Joe Cunningham offered some remarks on Bill White, the new president of the National League.

He called White an excellent firstbaseman, which he was, but said that he (Cunningham) was a better outfielder (both were firstbasemen with the Cardinals but saw occasional action in the outfield).

I remember Joe Cunningham of the Cardinals in the 50s. He was no great outfielder by any means. Joe Garigiola who was then helping broadcast the Cardinal games once commented on Smokey Joe's defensive skills: "He leads the National League in diving, one-hand catches of routine fly balls.'

Think back, if you will, and try to remember the number of times a basketball team has beaten a superior 🧠 opponent by playing a stall game. Not often, I'll bet.

Every time I hear of a stall game I remember the time long ago, in the mid-40s, when Oklahoma A&M was in the process of winning back-toback national championships.

The Bob Kurland-led Cowboys had beaten Oklahoma 59-40 in the first meeting between the teams at Stillwater. In the second game in Norman, the Sooners gave a new meaning to the word "stall." When the game ended, the Cowboys were out front 14-11. Trying to justify his tactics to the press which criticized his team's play, OU coach Bruce Drake explained, "We lost by only 3 points this time instead of 19 as we did before."

A typical blood pressure reading for an adult might be 127/78 mm Hg, although this reading varies depending on age and other factors. (Normal blood pressure is defined by a range of values, so don't be alarmed if your reading is somewhat higher or lower.) The first, larger number is the systolic pressure; the second is the

The important point to remember is that the harder it is for the blood to flow, the higher the numbers will be.

What is high blood pressure?

Medical scientists have determined a norm for blood pressure after studying the blood pressure of many people over many years. When blood pressure increases above this upper limit and remains elevated, high blood pressure (or hypertension) exists.

High blood pressure in adults is defined as a systolic pressure greater than or equal to 140 mm Hg and/or a diastolic pressure greater than or equal to 90 mm Hg.

Why is high blood pressure bad? Elevated blood presssure indicates that the heart is working harder than

The elusive House Bill 1, the long-awaited workers' compensation reform bill, has finally been filed. Several "hired gun" lobbyists had embarrassed their clients by organizing a letter-writing campaign in support of specific provisions of HB 1 weeks before such a bill existed. As it turns out, some of the measures called for in the letterwriting campaign were not included in the filed version of HB 1. At any rate, responsible legislators always insist on carefully studying a major piece of legislation before vowing to

Among the elements I insist on in any workers' compensation reform package are provisions which would result in a significant rate decrease for small businesses and action to get small employers out of the "assigned risk pool". Workers' compensation rates are a substantial drain on small businesses in this state, and I intend to work to bring relief to business operators in the 30th district. I am developing two bills to address the specific disadvantages of small businesses that will result in tangible rate reductions.

Now that the mysterious HB 1 is in print, I intend to go over it thoroughly and support all components of the package that improve the climate for business and workers in our state.

For many school districts, the teacher career ladder has been perhaps the most unwelcome legacy of the infamous HB 72. 1 have introduced legislation, SB 183, to permit local school districts to drop the career ladder program.

The state funds allocated for career ladder pay supplements would instead be distributed equally among a district's teachers as a general pay raise. This proposal provides, on a local option basis, for teacher pay raises free of the politics and stress of H. Ross Perot's career ladder.

The recent collapse of major insurance companies has resulted in intense scrutiny of the State Board of Insurance.

The Senate State Affairs Committee has held days of hearings in the Capitol into the SBI's failure to protect policyholders of troubled insurance companies through the agency's so-called "early warning system"

Gov. Clements' appointed chairman had difficulty answering basic questions about the role of the State Board, which is supposed to set insurance rates and regulate companies to avoid insolvencies. In fact, Gov. Clements' chairman often had trouble understanding the questions that inquiring senators asked him.

The governor says he will appoint a new chairman but as yet has failed to find a qualified candidate who is willing to accept the job.

Insurance reform means more jobs

More jobs for Texas workers will be the immediate result of the passage of House Bill 1, reforming the Texas Workers' Compensation System, according to Larry S. Milner, president and chief executive officer of the Texas Chamber of Commerce.

"We are hearing strong support of this bill from local chambers of commerce and business interests in all parts of the state," Milner said.

To which then-sports editor Hal Middlesworth of the Daily Oklahoman replied: "Why didn't you just forfeit, and make the score 2-0? You can't get much closer than that."

In Houston last weekend, I noticed that practically all gas stations advertise regular and unleaded gasoline for the same price.

I can't remember many of the school books I used as a youngster, but I do recall three of the best educational tools I ever used: 1) a looseleaf notebook cover, 2) a map. and 3) a calendar.

Printed inside the notebook cover was a list of all the states and their capitols. It was pretty easy to memorize, although I don't remember that I ever needed that information in any school subject.

From a large map that hung on one of our walls at home I memorized the names of all the U.S. cities with more than 100,000 population which were listed in descending order from New York to Lowell, Mass. There were 93 of them. The number and order have changed drastically from those 1930 census figures.

Around the edges of a large calendar on the wall were pictures of all the presidents, Washington to FDR, along with the years they served. I still remember all the faces and I still remember all the dates.

I wish I could remember just a few of the things I learned in school.

Fire at Rule

EDITOR: I wish to thank the Rule firemen and friends for saving my home. I know each man that was here and they shall always have my appreciation and prayers ... my lifetime.

The most terrifying sight is to see red flames of fire leaping through your windows. The most beautiful sight was the faces of the Rule volunteer firemen and friends.

Volunteers (to me) are very special people. These men saved my home. I thank each one for their quick response. The professional way they did their work and the consideration they showed to me and for my home.

Thursday afternoon while my daughter and I were burning the weeds in my garden, the fire spread into my back yard, the very place we had avoided. We had burned the front against a mild breeze. I had watered the ground by my barn and fence so it would not go into the field. I never expected it to ever reach my car port. With fire, careful is not careful enough.

The fire spread faster than we could comprehend. I ran to call the fire department and couldn't see the dial or remember the number. When I saw the fire coming in my window I cried, "Lord I can't handle this by myself." Grabbing the burning curtains, I was able to keep it from spreading inside. The fire outside, I knew was going to my attic. I would lose my home! As I poured water on my window facing, I saw the faces of the firemen and friends. The most beautiful faces.

To tell how it happened, the words come easy. But never will words be adequate enough to tell how my families and I feel about these men and the exceptional job they did in saving our home.

We can never repay them to equal what they did for us, but they will always have our deepest gratitude for their help and their choice to be volunteer firemen.

Presidents' Day, a time to remember.

For centuries nations have honored their leaders. Usually they were kings whose main job was keeping the neighboring king from barrowing his property. And they were more or less given the job by their father, who got it from his father, and so on.

But, here in a democracy, the situation differs. The people decide who their leaders will be. And we have had many.

On Presidents' Day we will take time to honor not only our leaders but also the government that made them leaders as well as the country they led.

Scouts visit Austin

Hans and Marcus Overton from Boy Scout Troop 148 in Paint Crek and three Scouts from Troop 149 in Blackwell represented the Chisholm Trail Council in Austin last weekend for the Boys Scouts of America's Report to the State.

Following a parade of Scouts, military bands and mounted cavalry down Congress Avenue, the boys were escorted to the Governor's reception room for a picture session with Jack Rains, secretary of state.

They then were seated as official council delegates in the House of Representatives where they occupied seats normally reserved for House members and then represented the Chisholm Trail Council during the ceremonies.

The boys were joined on the floor by representatives of 22 of the 23 councils in Texas and reported to the secretary of state on the progress of Scouting in their individual councils.

While in Austin, the Scouts spent the night at Lost Pines Scout Reservation, had breakfast with Bob Armstrong of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission, toured the Capitol and grounds and visited the LBJ Library and Museum.

Austin met the boys at Lost Pines and served as guides during the activities. The Scouts expressed thanks to Roger Basquet and David Roberts for their help in finding their way around Austin.

Representing the council along with Hans and Marcus were Cody Wilkinson, Robert Parsons and Jacob Blair of Balckwell. Adult leaders azttending were Billy Hood of Blackwell Troop 149 and Wallar Overton of Troop 148 in Paint Creek.
