Electra is next for Indian team

With their first victory safely tucked away, the Haskell Indians make the long trek to Electra Friday night to do battle with the alwaystough Tigers of the North country.

Both Haskell and Electra rebounded last week with victories after opening losses the previous Electra clobbered Paducah, 33-14, to even its record after losing 21-0 to 3A Bowie in its opener. The Indians rebounded from a onesided loss to Munday to post an impressive 20-6 win over Seymour.

"We played better," said Indian Coach Walter Hargrove. "We still made too many mistakes, but we did a lot of things right."

Electra returns four starters from the team that defeated the Indians last year. Among them is Travis Box, whom Hargrove calls an outstanding quarterback and defensive safety.

County veterans receive $662,467

Estimated VA expenditures for Haskell County veterans last year totaled $697,614.

The figure includes $662,467 for compensation and pensions and $35,147 for insurance and

The figures were released this week by Stephen L. Lemons, director of the Waco VA regional

Most of the money expended during the 1989 fiscal year in Texas by the VA went directly to veterans, Lemons said.

"Of the more than $2 billion distributed in Texas last year, more than 53.8 percent, or nearly $1.1 billion, went directly to veterans as compensation and pension for disabling injuries or diseases incurred while in the armed forces," Lemons said.

He added that VA spent nearly $72.7 million for readjustment and vocational rehabilitation benefits, more than $100.1 million for insurance and indemnity payments, $81.9 million for facility construction and more than $722 million for medical services and administrative costs in Texas.

"The Department of Veterans Affairs proudly serves those who served our country," Lemons said. "For more than half a century VA has been a provider of benefits, a pioneer in medicine, a financier in education, a guarantor of home loans and an advocate for Texas veterans.

Each letter asked for a reply. Now, students are anxiously awaiting letters from their new pen pals stationed in Saudi Arabia.

Debbie Earles and Letha Newton are the sixth-grade teachers.

New soccer field dedicated by City

Haskell's newest addition to the City Park was officially dedicated Saturday morning.

A ribbon was cut by Mayor Greg Melton on the new soccer field. Approximately 60 youth and parents were present for the ceremonies. Also participating were members of the City Council and the Haskell Park Board.

The project was initiated two yers ago and recently finished with the installation of the goals. The field had previously been leveled and an automatic irrigation system installed. Koch Oil Co. donated the pipe used to make the goals with the remainder of the labor and money furnished by the City.

Mayor Melton pointed out to those present the importance of the youth to the community. Mike Cook, coordinator of the soccer program, thanked everyone who was involved in the endeavor.

Approximately 80 youngsters have signed up for this season's soccer program. Others interested should get in touch with Cook to register. The City has plans to build a small soccer field near the large one with funds recently awarded by the State Parks and Wildlife Department.

City officials, park board members and soccer players and coaches were on hand Saturday morning for dedication ceremonies at the new soccer

Couple exchange wedding vows

Miss Darla Kaye Griffis and Lee Spencer Lane were united in marriage at 7:00 p.m. on Saturday, August 18, at First Baptist Church in Weinert. Rev. Donny Harbers, pastor, officiated for the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Donald and Gracie Griffis of Weinert and Buddy and Peggy Lane of Haskell.

The candlelight service began with the lighting of the candles. The front of the church was decorated with a brass heart-shaped archway entwined with springeri greenery, baby's-breath and white bows. On each side of the archway were brass candelabras with white tapers accented by springeri greenery and lily-of-the-valley. The wooden rails around the piano and organ were decorated with votive candles and springeri greenery. In each window were pedestal crystal holders with white tapers accented with greenery. Wooden stands with hurricane lamps holding votive candles and accented with lily-of-the-valley and white bows marked the pews. The unity candle and two side candles were placed atop a brass stand accented with lily-of-the-valley.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Sandy King, organist, Karen Harlan, pianist, and singers, Cindy Guess and Debra Herron. Vocal selections included Always, When I'm With You, Endless Love, You Are So Beautiful To Me and The Lord's Prayer.

Entering with her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose a traditional gown of white satin designed by Michele Piccone. Her dress was designed with a high neck band of small beaded Schiffli embroidered medallions edged with pearl drops and a silk illusion yoke of

HOW TO MAKE YOUR EMPLOYEES MORE PRODUCTIVE

Although bonuses and other incentives can help to increase the productivity of your employees, you might want to try some less costly methods.

Here agre a few practical approaches you should consider:

1) Explain clearly what you want the employee to do. Income

1) Explain clearly what you want the employee to do. Incomplete or confusing instructions cause the employees to spend unnecessary time trying to figure out what you want them to do.

2) Be available to answer questions when they arise. This will not only keep the employees on track, but also will make you a part of their team.

3) Be appreciative of the good work that your employees do for you. Most employees give their best effort when they know that it matters. Show them that it does. A simple "Good work," can go a long way.

4) Use tact in discussing the inadequacies of an employee's performance. Ridiculing the employee in front of others will merely cause resentment, not improved performance. If you must discuss performance problems, you should try to do so outside the presence of the employee's peers.

5) Be flexible in overseeing your employee's work. Frequently, there are many "right" ways to do a particular task. If an employee's unorthodox approach works satisfactorily, there may be no reason to ask the employee to change. If, however, you must require the employee to use a standard approach (and sometimes you must), be sure to explain why that approach must be used.

Taking these steps can make your business not only a more enjoyable place to work, but also more profitable for you.

beaded latticework. The fitted bodice, embellished with Schiffli embroidered medallions, had a drop waist in front and a basque waistline in back. The back keyhole bodice, trimmed with pearl drops and closed with small satin buttons down the back, featured a large satin candybox bow sprinkled with pearls and sequins and a cluster of pearl drops from center of the bow. Renaissance sleeves with a large poof of beaded latticework and embroidered medallions held the slim satin sleeves closed at the wrist with small satin buttons and finished with traditional point, and lace medallions with pearls and sequins. The skirt and cathedral train was hemmed with wide scalloped Venise lace.

Her headband, designed with small lace hearts outlined and sprinkled with pearls, held a two tiered finger tip veil of silk illusion fashioned with a poof, finished with pencil edged hem, designed with sprays of lily-of-the-valley and pearl drops draped to the side.

The bride's bouquet was of pink lilies, purple statice iris, fushia rosebuds and a cascade of pearls, lavender lilacs and purple astromeria. Pagoda lace and iridescent ribbons accented the bouquet.

Honoring the tradition of something old, the bride wore her grandmother's gold wedding band; her dress was new; she borrowed her mother's purple silk lace handkerchief; her garter was blue and a sixpence was placed in her shoe by her father, compliments of The Personality Shoppe of Haskell.

The bride's mother wore a ruby satin dress designed by Michele Piccone. The molded basque bodice, with a waistline which dropped lower in the back, had 3/4 length sleeves with fullness on the shoulders. Pearl crests on the shoulders held three strands of pearls that swung in back and adorned the low-cut neckline. The full skirt swept to a high-low tea length. She wore a wrist corsage of white roses. iridescent pearls and ribbons with pink fushian and purple statice.

The groom's mother wore a mauve moire taffeta tea length dress. It had a sweetheart neckline and puff sleeves containing sprinkled sequins. Her corsage was of mauve glad buds and purple iris accented with pearls.

Attending the bride as matrons of honor were her sisters, Derinda Larned of New Braunfels and Donna Waggoner of Red Oak, Bridesmaids were Lori Lane, sister of the groom of Lubbock, Dianne Reed of Haskell, Kelly Hutchinson of Kermit and Amy Walker of Abilene.

Their tea length dresses, in alternating colors of fushia and plum bridal satin, featured a sweetheart neckline which dipped to a deep V in the back with crisscross straps and elbow length puffed sleeves with barrel cuffs. The fitted bodice with dropped waistline came to a point in front. The full flared skirt was enhanced in back with a drape and cabbage rose in the dress fabric.

The attendants wore hair pieces of fushia and white roses accented with purple statice and carried cascading bouquets of pink lilies, white freesia, white roses and purple alstromeice accented with purple streamers.

Les Lane of Haskell served his brother as bestman. Groomsmen were Joseph Toliver of Ballinger, Kirk Flippin of Lubbock, Keith Parrott of Acuff, Landon Pannell of Haskell and Scott Fields of Fredericksburg.

The candles were lit by Shannon King, cousin of the bride of Rochester. Ushers were Johney Larned of New Braunfels and Randy Waggoner of Red Oak, brothers-in-law of the bride, and Tracey Kitten of Slaton.

The groom wore a Robert Wagner white padova full dress tuxedo with tails and matching white striped formal trousers. The coat was traditional full dress styling with satin faced peak lapels, self top collar and high center vent. His accessories included a plum satin tie and cummerbund; a white pleated wing collar shirt and white formal shoes. He had a boutonnier of purple statice iris and a fushia rosebud, accented with baby's breath.

All male attendants, including the bride's and groom's fathers, were attired in silver Dynasty tuxedos. Their coats were a one button, single breasted style with satin faced peak lapels, self top collar and center vent. Coordinating accessories included: matching silver formal trousers, white pleated wing collar shirts, alternating plum and fushia satin cummerbunds and ties, and grey formal shoes. Their boutonnieres were similar to the groom's

Brittany Alexander, cousin of the bride of Munday, and Clay Pickering, nephew of the groom of Lubbock, were ring bearers. Brittany carried a heart-shaped eyelet pillow trimmed with white eyelet lace and purple ribbons which held the groom's ring. Clay's square shaped pillow, in the same design, held the bride's ring.

Jenna Smith, cousin of the bride of Abilene, was flower girl. She

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - Texas Democrat candidates launched simultaneous but separate campaign offensives last week, none bolder than feisty Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

How gutsy was he?

For starters, he led the state's top liberal activists to form the Texas Populist Alliance, which some predict could give rise to a new political party here.

Later, he ripped arch-foe Gov. Bill Clements for being too antibusiness (in the farm and ranch sector), which for sheer gall is like accusing Noah of being against arks.

Other Democrats joining in the grand movement included guber-natorial candidate Ann Richards, who now wants to lower insurance rates, and lieutenant governor hopeful Bob Bullock, whose new TV commercials depict opponent Rob Mosbacher as owner of a leaky shipping company which pollutes the environment.

Behind The Scenes

Old campaign warhorses will tell you that perception is everything in an election, and apparently that applies to future elections, too.

Never say liberal Democrats aren't far-seeing: a behind-the-scenes race is on for the pole position between those Democrats still on the ballot for a perceived power vacuum in 1994.

That is the year, they speculate, that U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, by far the strongest Democrat in Texas, may retire.

Mantle of Leadership

Insiders in several campaigns are openly discussing which Democrat will inherit the mantle of leadership, if Ann Richards, who trails Republican nominee Clayton Williams by ten or more points, doesn't catch up by Election Day.

The Democrat who pulls the most votes statewide in November will have to be considered for leadership.

Right now, Bullock and Hightower probably claim the most potential, but Bullock, who is running as an "independent voice" and did not support previous nominees John Hill and Mark White, is not regarded as a party player on par with Hightower. Few are.

Texas Populist Alliance

Last week, the heart of Texas

Last week, the heart of Texas liberalism — a core of 400 established activists — met in Austin to forge a new image and a new group: the Texas Populist Alliance.

Make no mistake about it: this group led by Hightower, U.S. Reps. John Bryant and Craig Washington, and state Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner will help shape Texas politics through the '90s, maybe beyond.

Hightower defined these populists as more in tune with economic issues than "the old liberal Democrats."

Detractors jibe that with the top of the Democratic ticket under siege, the seers have decided to abandon Fort Liberal and build a new one, Fort Populist.

Brains, Muscle, Lore

If Republicanism is building like a prairie fire, say the alarmists, then these "populists" may bulldoze a fire lane before Election Day, or later become the phoenix that rises from the ashes, if that's the case.

The fact is that these 400 activists have muscle, brains and lore: many contributed to the vision that swept the liberal class of '82 to the Governor's Mansion, Legislature, every state agency, and party headquarters.

For eight years, the class of '82 controlled state spending.

Now their ranks are diminished; some became victims of primary wars, others were replaced by Republicans as voters reacted to reforms and taxes.

Critics say liberals are shucking the label; liberals say Democrats aren't losing, and Ann Richards is one of them.

After all, former Gov. Mark White trailed Clements until the waning weeks of '82, when he surged ahead on his promise to lower utility rates.

Richards knows voters are just as concerned now about high insurance rates, and last week she promised to lower them for consumers.

Other Highlights

■ Mike Toomey, executive assistant to Gov. Clements, resigned to become a lobbyist. The lawyer and former Republican state representative from Houston said his replacement as Clement's top aide will be Rider Scott, who is general counsel for the governor.

■ State Rep. Sam Johnson, R-Plano, and three hunting partners were hospitalized after he crashlanded his plane on a Dallas tollway, apparently because of a stuck throttle. Johnson, a retired Air Force colonel, was a Vietnam War combat pilot and POW, and a member of the Thunderbirds.

■ Texas' 15 black mayors have formed a group to rate statewide candidates, and say they won't endorse along party lines.

■ A recent Texas Poll indicates most Texans, 25 percent, consider the state's economy and unemployment as the priority issues facing the state. Behind the economy, drug and alcohol abuse and education were placed first by 11 percent and 10 percent, respectively.

Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro said the Veteran's Land Board will lower interest rates for land loans to veterans to 7.99 percent, effective Sept. 15.

Ask VA

Q: How long must a veteran serve on active duty to be entitled to a VA pension?

A: A veteran must have served for at least 90 consecutive days, at least one day of which was during a period of war, or have been discharged for a service-connected disability from wartime service of less than 90 days.

Q: May a memorial marker be furnished on behalf of a veteran whose remains were donated to science?

A: Yes. VA will supply a memorial marker or headstone to commemorate an eligible veteran. The memorial may be erected, at no cost, in the memorial section of a national cemetery or in a private cemetery subject to their cost.

SO, HOW'S YOUR STANDARD OF LIVING NOW THAT YOU'RE ARRIED TO AN ECONOMIST? MARRIED TO AN ECONOMIST OF THE CALLS IT IMPULSE BUYING, BUT WHEN HE SPENDS IT'S CONSUMER CONFIDENCE! MARRIED TO AN ECONOMIST OF THE CONFIDENCE!

Editor: Please send me your paper for one year and bill me.

I am retired and have been remembering some of the pleasant times I spent at Haskell. I worked at the railroad depot there a number of times. I still own an Elgin B. W. Raymond railroad pocket watch I purchased while working at the depot there in 1924. It probably would pass as a collector's item because Elgin no longer makes pocket watches.

In 1937, while working there, I met Milam Diggs who was postmaster at Munday when I was a kid. His wife was working in the post office at Haskell in 1937.

The late Dr. Gaston Foote, who was pastor of the First Methodist Church in downtown Fort Worth for 20 years, was delivering a Washington's Birthday address in the Masonic Lodge at Haskell about 1930 when I first met him.

I also helped teach some Western Union students telegraphy who were learning at Haskell. The Western Union had a plan that, after learning telegraphy, the students were sent to a Western Union School at Georgetown and taught how to be WU managers. Most of the students were girls as it was then very difficult for a woman to get a job unless she had a skill. There was Mary Ellen Alvis, also Gladys Conner, whose brother later became county judge at Haskell.

I am glad I was able to help those young people and I did it free of charge. But I was highly rewarded by having the satisfaction of seeing them go on to succeed.

I feel like I am kinfolks to Haskell and am looking forward to getting your paper. J. H. Lowder

-- Letters to the Editor --

For Perry

Editor: Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower has Robert Redford appearing at his fund-raising bash in August on Sept. 8. Score one for his team.

But hold on! Texas Ranger pitching ace Nolan Ryan has endorsed Republican candidate Rick Perry, stating Perry, if elected, will be the first commissioner with a working background in agriculture in 40 years.

It's about time! Perry is a fifth generation farmer/rancher from Haskell. He is also a three-term legislator in Austin and was named by the Dallas Morning News as one of the 10 most effective legislators

As a farm/ranch wife, I wish our agriculture commissioner could be elected by people aware of the problems faced by agriculture, but urban people have the numbers to decide who holds the office. They're too busy, understandably, trying to keep up with urban problems to find time to become fully aware of

It's this situation that has kept Hightower in office since 1983.

Most people want to help us preserve our rural lifestyle. When he implies all the decent hardworking small farmers endorse him, while his only opposition comes from the chemical lobbies and giant agribusiness interests, city people believe him and vote for him, thinking they're helping the small family farmer. Unfortunatly for us, it's not the truth.

Rick Perry has a tremendous amount of grass roots support within agriculture all across the state. Our problem is Perry's lack of name recognition with urban voters and the fact that ag issues usually aren't exciting enough to get much free media coverage, whereas Hightower is issuing press releases these days faster than bunnies have babies, ensuring that his name stays in the news. Despite this discouraging situation, Perry's rural supporters are committed to helping him win in November.

They know that Perry, as a husband and father of two small children, will certainly make food safety and environmental concerns an important part of his office. He plans to establish a task force with ag producers, consumers, conservationists, land grant colleges and other research institutions working together to reach viable solutions to agriculture's problems. We need this cooperation to move

This spirt of working together is sadly lacking under present conditions. Incredibly, Hightower can't even maintain a working relationship with Farm Bureau, the largest voluntary farm organization in Texas. The one man the ag producers of the state should be able to count on is busy telling anyone who'll listen that Farm Bureau is fundamentally an insurance company that subsidizes a farm organization---its officers paid by the insurance company. This group has a lot of holdings in chemical stock, hormone manufacturing, etc. That was an underhanded charge during the primary and he persists in repeating it, but never in public in front of a Farm Bureau member who could argue the issue. I've yet to hear anyone in the media call him on it.

The Farm Bureau Executive Board in Waco is composed of men who are farmers/ranchers or came from a farm background (more than can be said for Hightower). The board of directors in each county is composed of farm people. The backbone of FB is farmers' and ranchers' active paticipation in county and state activities. Persons from high membership areas like Houston and Plano, who may join solely for the insurance benefits, cannot vote on FB policies or serve on any board if they don't earn the majority of their income from agriculture. If Hightower still can't figure out that basic concept, it's no wonder he can't figure out why we want him out of the office and Hightower's use of the words "organic" and "natural", coupled with cheap shots at FB, is calculated to garner more votes from sympathetic city voters. These farming methods are ideals to strive for and work toward (as many FB members do), but they are not realistic or feasible under certain conditions and consumers' prices will be driven up and product availability severely affected, it a common sense approach isn't taken.

I don't need Robert Redford flying to Texas to encourage me to be concerned about the environment. I moved from the suburbs of New York City to rural Texas in 1962 to get away from the crowds, skyscrapers and subways and enjoy the rural lifestyle. I'm very grateful that our land is still a peaceful, beautiful place to live (in between droughts) and it has stayed that way because we were environmentally concerned long before Hollywood and Hightower jumped on the bandwagon.

Our small cattle operation has had to cope, in the years Hightower has been in office, with lowered demands for beef, thanks to incorret and detrimental charges from vegetarians, vegans, health faddists, animal rights activists and environmentalists. I'll proudly show our family farm to anyone--and I'm outraged that Hightower persists in saying our type of operation---mainstream agriculture---is drowning and we should diversify. It would be asinine for us to abandon our lifestyle on his recommendation and go into something like deer farming when beef has proven to be a nutritious. safe and delicious part of America's diet, currently endorsed by the American Heart Association.

If Hightower had promoted beef---a prime Texas commodity---the way he promotes himself, instead of leaving the job up to beef producer organizations, we might not be drowning today. He's very busy supporting a diversified product such as venison (deer farming), which is an interesting alternative to beef. However, it's also a specialty, high-dollar item, which could potentially hurt lowand middle-income consumers in their pocketbooks, where they can least afford it. Yet these are the people who will probably vote for Hightower.

How can he possibly justify and brag about Texas Department of Agriculture's support of a $35,000 loan to San Antonio attorney Jane Macon to raise miniature horses while he ignores the mainstream beef industry? We're not looking for financial grants or low-interest loans. We simply want TDA's print and media capabilities, and our commissioner, to get correct and current information to consumers.

Perry would welcome a debate with Hightower to discuss these issues, but he's exercising his incumbent's prerogative to dodge face-to-face debates. During the primary, he acted like he couldn't debate because FB ran six candidates against him and he just couldn't run all over the state. He's down to one opponent now---and apparently that's still one too many.

The high cost of TV and print advertising will limit the times Rick Perry's ads will run, so please look for them and help agriculture elect a man with family values who will represent us all---agriculture (mainstream and otherwise) and consumers alike.

If the March primary was the first inning of this ballgame, then November is the ninth inning and I hope Nolan Ryan's team wins again, but we'll never do it without the urban vote. Please help.

The principal roles in "Cry from the Mountain" are played by four outstanding performers.

James Cavan plays Jonathan, the old hermit who is the caretaker of a deserted mining camp and lives alone with his dog Jake. The old man resents the intrusion of Larry and Cal Sanders, but eventually comes to share his Christian faith.

Wes Parker plays Larry Sanders whose marriage is on the brink of disaster because of his unfaithfulness and his wife's unwillingness to forgive.

Rita Walter is Carolyn Sanders who is unable to forgive her husband and contemplates having Chris Kidd plays 10-year-old Cal Sanders. When his father is seriously injured in a kayaking accident, Cal seeks the help of the old hermit.

Billy Graham appears as himself with a message of hope.

Notable in the supporting cast is Coleen Gray, who plays the mother of Carolyn Sanders.

Children whose parents are functionally illiterate are twice as likely as other children to be functionally illiterate.

BE A PART OF THE TRADITION ATTEND THE HASKELL COUNTY FAIR

The first FAIR in Haskell County was held in 1903. There was a fine display of horses, mules, hogs, cows and poultry. There was a large selection of wheat, oats, rye, corn, potatoes, maize, kaffir, millet, sorghum, vegetables and fruit. In 1904, A Women's Department was added. In 1924, the FAIR ASSOCIATION was incorporated with a capital stock of $15,000.00. Improvements to the fair grounds included barns for stock and houses for all kinds of exhibits. A large grand stand was built and a good track. Automobile races and horse races were featured and of course, a carnival, brought large crowds to the fair.

Indians win over Seymour

Haskell evened its record at 1-1 in Seymour Friday night with a 20-6 victory over the host Panthers.

Jonathan Dever scored all three touchdowns, one in each of the first three periods, as the Indians built a 20-0 cushion before surrendering a harmless touchdown to the hosts in the final period.

After a drive bogged down with a failed field goal attempt from the Seymour 18 on Haskell's first possession, the Indians drove 55 yards for the game's first score the next time they got the ball. Dever scored from 14 yards out with 1:02 to go in the initial period, giving Haskell a 6-0 lead after the failed extra point attempt. An 18-yard run by Dever and a 13-yard pass from Rusty Stocks to Jeremy Fuentes had powered the Indians into scoring position.

In the second quarter, Dever romped 89 yards for his second touchdown. The touchdown run came after Rene Garcia recovered a Seymour fumble at the Indian 2, followed by a 9-yard run by Fuentes. After another missed extra point attempt, the Indians clung to a 12-0 lead which they maintained at halftime.

After Fuentes returned the second-half kickoff to his own 40, the Indians drove to the Seymour 9 where they surrendered the ball after a fourth-down effort left them a half yard short of a first down. A 31yard pass from Stocks to James Espinoza was the big play in that

But after the Panthers couldn't move out, Haskell made it 14-0 when Erik Harvey tackled Blake Jurecek in the end zone when he failed to get off a punt.

Shortly after that, Dever capped a 36-yard drive following another fumble recovery by going 4 yards for a score. Big gainer in the drive had been a 16-yard pass from Stocks to Cody Josselet. Another missed extra point left the Indians with a 20-0 lead.

Seymour's lone touchdown came early in the fourth period when John Gann scored from the 2, capping a 54-yard drive which had been fueled by a 48-yard run by Greg Adkins.

Dever wound up the night with 193 yards in 33 carries. Stocks was 5 of 12 in passing for 110 yards with no interceptions.

Adkins, who had only four carries, gained 141 yards for Seymour and Gann was 9 for 42. Seymour completed just 2 of 8 passes for 14 yards and had two intercepted.

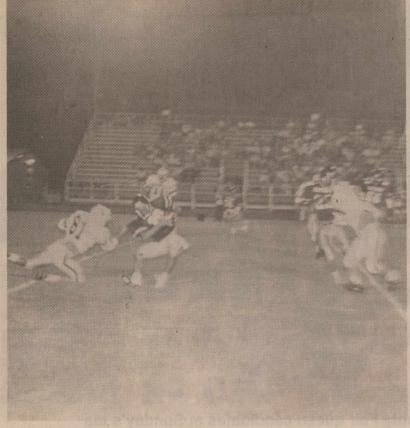

Haskell Coach Walter Hargrove praised his defense. Chad Gibson. Mitch Mayfield and Garcia each had a fumble recovery. Gibson also had an interception, as did Dever.

FHA

By Kellie Reid Hot rollers, pipe cleaners and okra pods are just a few things that FHA members had to find on Sept.

It's a new year and FHA is ready to go, and what better way to start the year than with a scavenger hunt? Many members and newcomers met in the homemaking cottage and were ready for fun. The group was divided into different groups and given a list of odds and ends to find and bring back in a limited time. The team that brought back the most things was the winner.

Following the scavenger hunt, there was a short meeting and then refreshments were served.

Officers for 1990-91 are Wendi Watson, Deanna Sheets, April Isbell, Mindy McGee, Jane Villa and Kellie Reid.

Anyone wishing to join FHA should contact Mrs. Thompson or any of the officers.

Weinert spruces up for homecoming

Preparations are well underway for Weinert's Western Days and Homecoming which is scheduled for Oct. 6.

Since the school's campus is no longer in use and the school has officially closed, it has been anticipated that this year's homecoming will, in all liklihood, attract the largest number of exes

Because the school has been unattended since May, the help of exes and/or residents of the community is needed to prepare the premises for homecoming. In that regard, a cleanup has been planned for Saturday, Sept. 22, at 9 a.m. The cleanup is to include school grounds, as well as classrooms.

Volunteers should bring cleaning supplies and yard maintenance equipment since supplies are no longer available at the school. The should include brooms, mops, rag cleaning solutions, mower Weedeaters, etc. Tractors wi shredders also would be helpful.

Homecoming officials say the cleanup is vital to the success homecoming and to the future of "building" all residents and e students hold dear. "The cleanup ca be an excuse to socialize, to cate up on the goings-on in town and learn first-hand from Wood Bruton, homecoming president, ar his staff about the activities th have been planned," they said.

It also is hoped that the scho cleanup will be "contagious" ar spread throughout the communi so the town may be "spruced u for everyone's nostalgic trip dov memory lane on Oct. 6.

Flower workshop conducted

The Haskell Garden Club met Sept. 13 at the Haskell National Bank Community Room.

Marion Carlisle presided for a short business meeting. Lorene Dewey read the minutes and they were approved. The treasurer's report was read by Mary Bischofhausen.

The theme for the club's year's study is "Our Land, Protect and Preserve for Tomorrow." Leone Pearsey was the program director and she shared the new yearbooks by expressing ideas about them.

A flower arranging workshop was then conducted by Juanita Rhea. She began by explaining the day's theme, "Reflections of the Good Earth." There are so many beautiful and interesting things reflected into our lives by using and enjoying the things supplied by the earth.

Each member brought a container and dried and fresh material to design an arrangement. Mrs. Rhea explained and demonstrated all the elements of design, balance and depth with rules concerning each.

At noon, a delicious salad luncheon wsa enjoyed. Mrs. Helen Cox joined the Garden Club. A guest was Mrs. Townsend of Rule.

The club has an interesting selection of programs for this year with four authoritative speakers. Anyone interested in learning to grow flowers, shrubs, etc., or knowing more about landscaping, study of birds, conservation and community concern topics is invited to join the Garden Club.

The club will have a flower show at the Haskell County Fair and invites to public to come to the fair and support Haskell and all the people helping with the fair.
