Election Tuesday

Most interest in governor, ag commissioner races

Kiwanis to run election board

The Haskell Kiwanis Club will operate an election board Tuesday evening on the east side of the courthouse.

Members will begin posting election returns shortly after the polls close at 7 p.m.

Club members also will be selling sausage on a stick.

Pancake supper scheduled Friday

The annual pancake supper of the Haskell Lions Club will be Friday, prior to the Haskell-Stamford football game.

Serving will be from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

Lions invite everyone in the community to come out and enjoy the pancakes and the fellowship.

Proceeds will go to the Lions Crippled Children's Camp in Kerrville and to the club's eye-glass project for needy children.

Drink taxes net county $164.64

Haskell County has received $164.64 as its share of mixed drink taxes for the third quarter of this year.

The check represents the county's share of $1,470.92 in taxes remitted to the state Alcoholic Beverage Commission for quarterly sales.

Shopper coming out on Nov. 29

The annual Free Press Christmas Shoppers' Guide will be printed and distributed on Thursday, Nov. 29.

Ten thousand copies of the issue will be distributed to homes in the four-county area of Haskell, Knox, Stonewall, Throckmorton and Jones counties.

Advertising deadline for the shopper will be 5 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 16. There will be no exceptions.

The advertising deadline for the Thanksgiving edition of The Free Press will also be Friday, Nov. 16.

Election party at Country Club

Members of the Haskell Country Club and their guests are invited to an election return party at the club Tuesday night.

The club will serve free chips and dips.

With interest elevated with the presence of a local candidate on the ballot for a state office, a heavy turnout is expected in Haskell County for Tuesday's general election.

Haskell's Rick Perry, a Republican, is a candidate for state Agriculture Commissioner. He is opposed by Democratic incumbent Jim Hightower. Karen A. Tegtmeyer is a Libertarian party candidate for the office.

Other than that, most interest centers on the race for Governor where the combatants are Clayton Williams, Republican, and Ann Richards, Democrat. Jeff Daiell is on the ballot as the nominee of the Libertarian party.

Polls in Haskell County will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Absentee voting remains open until 5 p.m. Friday.

Perry, a three-term state legislator, had near-unanimous support from his home county in the primaries. He bested Richard McIver, 255-2, in local voting in the Republican runoff, after piling up 245 votes in the first primary while his six opponents captured only 11.

Both Williams and Richards were solid nominee choices in Haskell County. Williams received 195 votes in the first primary, while six others shared 55 local votes as he won the nomination without a runoff. Richards, who defeated Jim Mattox in the Democratic runoff, won the Haskell County vote by a 570-313 margin in the runoff.

Another race of widespread local interest is the one to choose a successor to Perry as 64th district State Representative. Fred Gough, Republican, and John Cook, Democrat, are the candidates.

Other contested races in Tuesday's election include:
U.S. Senate: Phil Gramm (R), Hugh Parmer (D), Gary Johnson (L).
Lieutenant Governor: Rob

Mosbacher (R), Bob Bullock (D), Tom Owens (L).

Attorney General: J. E. "Buster" Brown (R), Dan Morales (D), Ray E. Dittmar (L).

Comptroller of Public Accounts: Warren G. Harding Jr. (R), John Sharp (D), William E. Grisham (L).

State Treasurer: Kay Bailey Hutchison (R), Nikki Van Hightower (D), Suzanne Love (L).
Land Commissioner: Wes

Parade entry

With their camel, the Three Wisemen from the Kendrick Religious Pageant at Cisco will walk in the Haskell night Christmas parade just ahead of the East Side Baptist Church float, depicting the Nativity. The church also plans to use live animals on its float. The Cisco pageant, in its 26th year, depicts the complete life of Christ and is presented each Thursday and Friday nights from 9 to 11 in June, July and August. The site is half way between Cisco and Eastland on US 80.

Pride at stake in Stamford game

The fat lady has sung her song as far as Haskell's playoff chances are concerned, but the Indians can still salvage some pride.

A victory over arch-rival Stamford Friday night would add a bit of gloss to an otherwise disappointing season.

It will be the final home game for Coach Walter Hargrove's Warriors whose district record dropped to 1-4 after last week's 47-0 drubbing at the hands of Albany.

"We didn't play well," said Hargrove in appraising last week's slaughter. "Maybe this will be our week to get back in the groove."

And the Indians will certainly have to be in the groove if they entertain any thoughts of stopping the talented invaders from the south.

Stamford, the pre-season favorite to pick up all the marbles in 7-2A, got off to a bad start but has rebounded with two smashing victories in the past two weeks. Last week, the Bulldogs crushed Jim Ned, 65-0, and the week before that they defeated Hawley, 24-7.

Hargrove said the Bulldogs are as talented as any team in the district. They have three outstanding running backs in Eric Keen, 175, Darrell Willis, 210, and Eddie Pryor, 170. Split end Kendell Clark, 190, is one of the district's top performers at that position.

The senior-dominated Stamford team fields the biggest line the Indians have faced this season.

Stamford will have the added incentive of staying in the playoff picture. The Bulldogs are 3-2 in league play and cannot afford another loss. Their losses have been to unbeaten Albany, and to Anson, which has lost only to Albany. In addition to Jim Ned and Hawley, the Bulldogs have defeated Hamlin in district play.

Haskell got banged up a little at Albany Friday night. Fullback Jeremy Fuentes went out in the second period with a leg injury, but is expected to be ready to go against the Bulldogs. Edgar Nava suffered a twisted ankle, but he too is expected to play this Friday.

With two weeks to go, Albany is firmly in the driver's seat in district 7-2A with a 5-0 record. Anson, the Indians' opponent in next week's finale, is 4-1, its only loss being a 13-10 decision to Albany. Stamford and Winters are 3-2.

Business meeting

The first

Haskell National Bank's Christmas float in the 1982 night Christmas parade carried out the parade theme, "The Music of Christmas." Haskell National has had a float in every night Christmas parade.

First parade

This was the Kiwanis Club's float in the first night Christmas parade back in 1982. The theme that year was "The Music of Christmas." Kiwanians have had a float in every parade.

Annual Christmas parade to have record float entries

The largest number of floats ever entered in a night Christmas parade in Haskell has been assured for the Dec. 1 event.

Fifteen organizations and businesses have confirmed they will have floats, and several others are expected to do likewise.

Theme of this year's parade will be "Everybody Loves Christmas." The parade will depict the traditions of the holiday.

Floats have been confirmed by Lane-Felker, Sears, McGee Lumber Yard, Walling TV and Electronics, Kids' Duds, Boggs and Johnson, Brian Burgess Insurance, The Personality Shoppe.

Lanco Insurance, Haskell National Bank, First National Bank, East Side Baptist Church, Haskell Rotary Club, Haskell Kiwanis Club, Haskell Fire Department and Auxiliary, City of Haskell and the Haskell Chamber of Commerce.

The Haskell Kiwanis Club and Haskell National Bank will be entering floats in this year's Christmas parade for the ninth consecutive year.

Each of these organizations has had a Christmas parade float every year since the annual night parade started in 1982.

In the 1982, the theme was "The Music of Christmas" and the Kiwanis Club's float depicted "White Christmas" while the bank's portrayed "O Holy Night."

In 1983, the theme was "Holidays in Haskell" and the Kiwanis Club did "Halloween" and the bank's float was for "Easter."

"A Child's Christmas" was the theme in 1984 and the Kiwanian's float featured "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe" and the bank float featured "Old King Cole."

In 1985, the Kiwanis Club chose "Peace" with its float featuring a giant white dove. The

With thanks to a man named Tom

How do you spell dedicated? The Haskell Memorial Civic Center spells it TOM WATSON!

Since early in the beginning development of the Center this man worked with tireless enthusiasm for making it be a success. Today, with much credit and thanks due his effort, it has been.

As the Dallas Cowboys were once able to say about Tom Laundry (as their coach), the Civic Center can proudly say of Tom Watson, "He was our first, our only and our winningest manager."

Many people have contributed to this community project, but no one actually gave of himself to the extent that Tom gave. Rising early, staying late, he sacrificially volunteered his time. Gratefully acknowledging this the members of the board of directors again express their heartfelt appreciation.

Who can find a dedicated man? The Haskell Memorial Civic Center found one in Tom Watson and they know that his "worth was far above rubies."

57 attend parents' meeting

Fifty-seven parents attended a parents' meeting last week to hear a youth development specialist discuss ways they can help their children survive competition.

Dr. Lynne Thibodeaux, extension 4-H and youth specialist from Texas A&M, conducted the meeting, as well as school assemblies for students in grades 7-12.

Dr. Thibodeaux told parents the main thing they can do is to be sure their children have their own goals. In the assemblies, Dr. Thibodeaux urged junior high and high school students to set goals and to work toward accomplishing these goals.

The meeting and the assemblies were co-sponsored by the Haskell County Extension office and the school district.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as a result of breast cancer.

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate. The cost is only $60.00. A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

Dr. Engle chosen for ACU award

The husband of a former Haskell woman has received the "Alumnus of the Year" award by the Abilene Christian University Agriculture Department.

Dr. David Engle received the honor Saturday at the ACU homecoming football game.

Delta Tau Alpha sponsored a barbecue dinner to honor Engle at the University Church of Christ.

Engle, who is the faculty coordinator of range science at Oklahoma State University, graduated from ACU in 1972 with a degree in range science.

In 1975 he received a masters of wildlife biology degree. He earned a PhD in range science at Colorado State University in 1978.

Dr. F. M. Churchill, professor emeritus of agriculture at ACU, said Engle was chosen from more than 700 eligible alumni. To be eligible for the award, an alumnus must be employed in the field of agriculture for 10 years, a major contributor to the science of agriculture and must be active in church and community activities.

This year, Engle received the "Outstanding Young Range Professional" award from the Society of Range Management.

He has been active in both the section and international levels of the Society and served as president of the Range Science Education Council in 1986.

Engle has been recognized for his efforts to improve range and ranch management and is credited with improving grazing land management technology for Oklahoma and the entire Great Plains region.

Engle is married to the former Debra Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Campbell of Haskell. A 1974 graduate of ACU, Mrs. Engle is senior director of Gift Programs in the Oklahoma State University Foundation. The Engles live in Stillwater, Okla.

Open Letter To The Voters of The 64th State Representative District

I have met Fred Gough only once in my life and found him to be a personable, polite-seeming individual. Assuming this is so, I cannot understand why he would allow his campaign ads to continually misquote the truth. The statements and beliefs he attributes to his opponent John Cook are simply untruths.

Negative untruthful campaigns have always concerned me because they tend to cover up the true issues and are normally used by candidates who are afraid they cannot measure up to their opponent in qualifications and ideas. I challenge Mr. Gough to take the high road for the remainder of this campaign and tell us what he believes in and why he would make a better State Representative for this District than his opponent.

As far as I am concerned, I already know John Cook is the best candidate. This is not because John is an attorney or despite him being an attorney, but because he is an intelligent, articulate, caring person who understands and addresses the issues. He is not running so that he will have something to do, but because he can make a difference. John's everyday work as a small business man, oil and gas operator, and rancher will be most beneficial to the district.

In politics, as in life, if you look for and support the person on the high road, you will be right most of the time because it is the road lined with integrity. John Cook has always traveled the high road.

Sincerely,

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - Items of note that cropped up last week while Congress wrestled with the budget and Texas hurdled toward an election:

■ Congressmen drawing the line on spending have written themselves a $19,000 pay raise into the budget;

■ Former San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros said Democratic nominee Ann Richards did not snort cocaine at a fundraiser for Atty. Gen. Jim Mattox and ripped his sheriff for investigating her.

■ Republican nominee Clayton Williams said he favors reducing the no pass-no play suspension from six to three weeks, a stance which former Gov. Mark White called "a retreat" from his reforms.

White, a Democrat who was defeated in the primary after a bloody attack by Richards, still has yet to endorse a candidate for governor.

Candidate for Mayor

White was white-hot at Richards for smearing him in TV ads which accused him of enriching himself financially at taxpayer expense, and vowed publicly he would never support her.

Williams courted White's endorsement over the summer, with unpublished results, and many have been surprised to see White stay out of it.

Now a Houston attorney, his name is being circulated there as a possible candidate for mayor next year.

White's name will be included in an exploratory poll in January by forces seeking to unseat Kathy Whitmire, according to reports.

School Finance Case

Moving with surprising speed, the state Supreme Court last week agreed to hear oral arguments on whether Texas' new school finance system is unconstitutional and should be thrown out immediately.

"We are pleased by the strong leadership shown by the court in agreeing to hear the Edgewood versus Kirby case at a very early date," said Al Kauffman, lead attorney for the property-poor school districts that launched the legal challenge against the funding system in 1984.

The high court will hear arguments on Nov. 28 - seven weeks after Kauffman's clients filed the appeal.

Some days a good ol' boy just can't do anything right, according to Richards.

She protested because Williams calls her "a liberal" in new TV ads, and her campaign spokesman said she actually is more of a fiscal conservative than he.

That brought quite a few inside laughs in Austin, where nothing is so hilarious as a liberal Democrat "admitting" he or she is actually a fiscal conservative just before Election Day.

Unless it's a Republican vowing to veto taxes or make government live within its means.

Scott Controversy

The governor's chief of staff, Rider Scott, found himself embroiled in controversy when a new prison consulting firm used his name to solicit business.

Scott was legal counsel and executive director for the Criminal Justice Division this summer, but planned to resign and join the corporation.

Instead, he was promoted to chief of staff and timing prevented his name from being pulled from some of the printed solicitations.

Record Registration

Secretary of State George Bayoud said a record 7.7 million Texans have registered to vote in the Nov. 6 gubernatorial election.

According to Bayoud, 7,701,499 - or 62 percent - of Texas' 12.5 million eligible voters have registered. That eclipses a record set in 1986 when 7,287,173 Texans registered to vote in a gubernatorial election.

Capitol Highlights

■ Kay Bailey Hutchinson, GOP state treasurer candidate, said about $100,000 million of the state cigarette tax goes uncollected because incumbent Richards does not have an effective enforcement division.

Hutchinson, a former state representative, said tens of thousands of cigarette packs enter the state with no tax stamps or counterfeit ones and blamed Louisiana as the biggest culprit.

■ Enrollment at Texas colleges and universities increased by over 26,000 students, or three percent, and is expected to pace the nation.

The University of Texas at San Antonio had the greatest number of new students, 1458, while Texas A&M University at Galveston had the state's largest percentage gain of 14.9 percent, leading the state for the third straight year.

■ Attorney General Jim Mattox warned that gang membership is rising dramatically in Texas, some 7,000 members in large cities, some armed with fully automatic weapons.

Police report 179 gangs in Dallas and 256 gangs in Fort Worth, each city with 2,700 gang members.

Editor: In January of 1990, my office responded to a questionnaire regarding various issues concerning the citizens of this state. There are several social issues to which a response was made that do not accurately reflect my position and values.

I do not favor a repeal of the state's anti-sodomy statutes nor do I favor law violators, self-disclosed homosexuals/lesbians as law enforcement officers. Our state's anti-sodomy statutes need to be enforced.

I have not in the past advocated repeal of the state's anti-sodomy statutes or employment of law violators, self-disclosed homosexuals/lesbians as law enforcement officers, and I do not now nor will I in the future.

My investigation reflects that the questionnaire was not signed and was mailed from my office without proper review, and I have advised my opponent of this error.

Fire ants

Editor: Fire ants have now moved into Collin County to stay. They are stinging children and adults, ruining crops, tearing up machinery, and costing thousands of dollars in damage to electrical equipment and air conditioners. At this time, no one is protected in our state from this growing menace.

Ten years ago hardly anyone had even heard of a fire ant. Federal funds were given to the Texas state agriculture department to control and stop the spread. Our current agriculture commissioner Hightower spent most of these funds to buy himself a jet airplane, thus no campaign to stop the ants. Look now at the mess.

Rick Perry has a plan to combat fire ants statewide. Jim Hightower has done nothing to help us. Give Rick Perry your vote on Nov. 6 for Texas Agriculture Commissioner.

Whether it's a mile-high "Dagwood" or your basic peanut butter and jelly, most everyone has a favorite sandwich.

But whatever your taste buds, Saturday, is going to be Sandwich Day, a day to honor the masterful creator of the original fast food.

Saturday will be the birthday of John Montague, Fourth Earl of Sandwich, who was born Nov. 3, 1718. He was a gambler, and legend has it that he invented the sandwich as a time-saving nourishment while engaged in a 24-hour gambling session.

But sandwiches weren't his only claim to fame. Montague was Britain's first lord of the admiralty, secretary of state for the northern department, postmaster general and the man after whom Capt. Cook named the Sandwich Islands in 1788.

Just when you thought you knew enough about geography to play a respectable game of "Trivial Pursuit", someone surprises you with an obscure fact or statistic.

For instance, most people probably don't know how Idaho got its name. In 1860, a lobbyist suggested to Congress the name "Idaho" for a new mining territory. The word supposedly was Indian for "gem of the mountains."

However, Congress discovered that "Idaho" didn't mean anything in any language, and named the territory "Colorado" instead.

Nonetheless, use of the word spread to the Pacific Northwest. Soon a steamboat called "Idaho" was carrying gold prospectors up and down the Columbia River. They began talking about the "Idaho" mines, and in 1863 the name was re-proposed to Congress for another mining area and was adopted.

Simple error played a part in the names of many of our nation's towns. Nome, Alaska, is one such example. The word "Nome" was miscopied from a British map of Alaska on which "? Name" had been written around 1850. Although this area of west Alaska had not been named, Nome remained on the map.

In many cases, towns were named as a result of indecision or desperation. For example, one community in North Carolina was trying to find a name for its town when someone suggested, why not call it "This?" Someone else said, "Why Not?" One can imagine how towns such as Accident, Md., Jackass Flat, Neb., Chicken, Fla., Embarrass, Minn., or Bowlegs, Okla., got their names.

Other geographic names were chosen for their significance to our country's history. Seven states were named in honor of kings and queens: Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia.

Geography offers many surprises that probably will not be found in textbooks. Did you know that Virginia extends 57 miles farther west than West Virginia? Or, that New Hampshire has the shortest coastline of any state on either seaboard--18 miles long? On the other hand, Kentucky has more man-made shoreline than any other state.

Most Texans probably know that Texarkana is much closer to Chicago than it is to El Paso, but would you have guessed that Atlanta, Ga., is closer to Detroit, Mich., Chicago, Ill., and Keokuk, Iowa, than it is to Miami, Fla.? And if you rotated North Carolina on its northeast corner, it would reach both Boston, Mass., and Boston, Va.?

Everyone knows that Rhode Island is the smallest state. But did you know that it is closer from the northern state line to the southern state line than it is from Haskell to Abilene (48 miles)? (It's only 37 miles east to west.)

Hospital to employ physician assistants

Soon, Haskell will be utilizing a new concept in delivery of health care.

Haskell Memorial Hospital will be hiring several Physician Assistants (PAs) to help relieve some of the time constraints on physicians in Haskell, as well as to extend coverage of health care to Haskell County residents.

PAs are highly trained and skilled individuals who are generally capable of handling most problems that physicians will see on a day-to-day basis.

At Haskell Memorial Hospital, they will be employed to work from 7 a.m. Saturday until 7 a.m. Monday every week. There will be one PA on duty in the hospital 24 hours a day.

A physician will be on backup call to help assist the PA in any way necessary and to care for patients who are in the hospital. The Haskell Clinic and the Hospital Clinic will no longer be open on Saturday or Sunday mornings. The physician assistants, however, will have clinics which will function just as they are now. These will be at the hospital where the facilities are being made ready at this time.

All necessary records and charts will be kept the same as if a patient went to see his or her own physician. Should a physician need to refer a patient to the weekend clinic, he will be able to leave the patient's chart from his clinic for the PA to utilize.

The Saturday morning clinics will be at a reduced rate. These will not be at emergency room rates. After 12 noon on Saturday and probably a clinic time to be designated later on Sunday, emergency room rates will then be enforced. It is anticipated that these clinics will be self-supporting within a short period of time.

The physician assistants to be utilized locally are all now employed in full-time jobs in Abilene. There are none of them with less than 10 years experience. All are extremely knowledgeable and their credentials have been carefully checked by the physicians and hospital staff.

Since continuity of care has always been a concern to local physicians and time with families and to be a part of the community is equally important, hospital officials said they are proud to introduce this quality of health care to the community. They stressed that if anything extends beyond the PAs' capabilities, the backup physician will be on call.

At the present time, it is expected that Dr. Wayne Cadenhead with cover a weekend, Dr. Bill McSmith will cover a weekend and Drs. Joe Thigpen and Frank Cadenhead will share a weekend, rotating in this fashion.

Hospital officials say they are excited about this new concept and feel that it will extend the quality of health care to the community.

Watching Washington

The United States is the only major industrial power that has no strategy to limit foreign involvement in creating public policy.

Even though our companies are often denied any input into the trade policy of other countries, our government does little to rein in foreign influence here at home.

This is one reason why America's competitive edge in key industries such as semiconductors, aerospace, biotechnology, and telecommunications is threatened.

As Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, I called hearings recently to examine foreign influence in the U.S. political process. The purpose of these hearings was to explore ways to maintain the openness of our government and our economy while limiting the influence of those who don't have American interests as their first priority.

During one three-year period in the 1980s the United States went from the world's largest creditor nation to its biggest debtor, the only industrialized country to cross that line during peacetime. Increased foreign investment has given foreign companies and governments a greater stake in our economy to the point where they are spending hundreds of millions of dollars to sway American economic policies. As author of the 1988 Trade Act I saw foreign interests spend an estimated $100 million to lobby against provisions in that legislation. More than 1,000 Washington lobbyists, at least 100 of whom are former U.S. Government officials, are employed by Japanese interests alone.

Part of the problem is the "revolving door" from government service to lobbying on behalf of foreign interests. In 1985, 16 U.S. Trade Representative officials left their government jobs to work for foreign clients. That's almost one in every ten people working for that agency. And more than once, a leading American trade official has left the negotiating table to join a company that had an opposite interest in the talks. This kind of turnaround is unheard of in the capitals of our competitors.

We cannot allow this to continue. That's why I am cosponsoring a bill that will tighten restrictions on lobbyists for foreign governments and beef up the rules requiring foreign lobbies to give more detailed reports of their activities. Earlier this year I sponsored an amendment to limit the influence of foreign controlled political action committees which the Senate approved.

These initiatives are promising steps to limit the influence foreign interests have on U.S. policies. But as the Finance Committee hearings show, the response may not yet be adequate to the threat.

We need to send a clear signal to our economic competitors that while they are welcome to buy American products, American economic policies are not for sale.

Drive safely. Don't wreck your life.

bank's float depicted a "White Christmas."

The Kiwanians' 1986 float featured "Hawaii" and Haskell National's the "North Pole" in keeping with the "Christmas Around the World" theme.

In 1987, the theme was "Christmas Through the Ages" and the Kiwanis float featured the "Caveman" era while the bank chose "The Gay 90s."

The Kiwanis float in 1988 had a giant bank of white tumble weeds with multi-crystal lights and the bank's float carried a kids' choir of employees' children.

Last year, the theme was "The Lights of Christmas" and the Kiwanians responded with a float with a giant Christmas tree made entirely of lights and garland. Haskell National had a horse and surrey, representing Christmas 1890, which ushered in the bank's 100th anniversary year.

Bud Lane, president of the Haskell Chamber of Commerce, congratulated Haskell National and the Kiwanis Club for their support and participation in the Christmas parade.

The City of Haskell also has had a perfect attendance. For six years, the City's float closed the parade with the giant clock on a New Year's float, and for the past two years, the City float has been at the head of the parade with a float bearing a large key to the City welcoming people to Haskell.

As co-host with the Chamber of Commerce in bringing the parade, the City does not compete in the float contest.

Lane also gave thanks to Kids' Duds, Lane-Felker and the Haskell Rotary Club, each of which has missed having a float just one year, and to the First National Bank, which has had a float each year since the bank was established.

Two other faithful parade participants have been Hardin-Smmons University with its Six White Horses and the Love Baton Twirlers of Abilene. Both units are returning this year.

As usual, the Chamber's float will feature Santa Claus.

Also on the ballot will be one proposed constitutional amendment which calls for a clarification of the authority of the Senate to consider certain nominees to state and district offices and to provide for filling vacancies in those offices.

State agency seeks input on local school

Parents and patrons of the Haskell Consolidated Independent School District may express their views and opinions on the schools at a meeting Monday, Nov. 12.

Members of an accreditation team from the Texas Education Agency will be here on that day to receive input from local citizens.

Interviews will be conducted by team members in the elementary cafeteria, beginning at 5 p.m.

Every school district in the state is required by law to be visited by an accreditation team from the agency to evaluate the quality of its education programs and to determine what progress the school district has made since the last visit.

During the interviews, emphasis will be given to the quality of instruction and community support present on each campus in the district. Areas to be evaluated by the team include planning, curriculum, instruction, services to students, instructional resources, personnel, governance, community conditions and physical facilities.

Indians fall to Albany

That's a pretty good football team they have down at Albany.

If there are any doubts about the Lions, just ask the Haskell Indians who went down, 47-0, in Albany Friday night to the unbeaten Lions.

The Indians stopped the potent Lions on their first possession, but after that, Albany scored on its other five first-half possessions and resumed the onslaught with an 82-yard return of the second-half kickoff for another touchdown to build an insurmountable 40-0 lead just seconds deep into the third quarter.

Albany rushed for 279 yards and added another 77 in passing, while holding the Indians to a mere 72 yards rushing and just 34 yards passing. The Indians also saw the Lions intercept three passes and recover two Haskell fumbles.

The Indians started out all right, moving from their own 24 to midfield on four running plays following the opening kickoff. But a 5-yard penalty and a pass interception killed the drive.

After Bobby Smith intercepted a Haskell pass at the Albany 44 and returned it to the Indian 23, the Lions moved in for their first score in four running plays. Johnnie Hudman got the touchdown from the 5 with only 43 seconds left in the first period.

Two minutes later, the Lions had their second touchdown on Hudman's 2-yard run, four plays after the Lions recovered a fumble at the Haskell 23.

Another interception, this one by Buster Shelton, set up the next Albany touchdown. Shelton's return left Albany in possession at the Haskell 20. A 5-yard penalty against the Lions moved the ball back to the 26, but on first down, Clint Chapman passed to Steve Hudman for a touchdown.

Johnnie Hudman's 33-yard punt return to midfield started the Lions on their next score. After Chapman threw incomplete on first down, Albany went on the ground 10 straight times, climaxed by Hudman's 3-yard TD run.

Next time Albany got the ball, the Lions drove 59 yards in seven plays. A 15-yard pass from Chapman to Sal Martinez, a 10-yard strike from Chapman to Steve Hudman and a 7-yard run by Hudman moved the ball to the 27.

After Chapman was sacked for a 13-yard loss and then threw incomplete, Hudman ran 25 yards to the 15. On the next play, Chapman threw to Smith for a touchdown and the Lions extended their lead to 33-0 just 8 seconds before intermission.

Smith took the second-half kickoff on his own 18 and sped 82 yards for the Lions' sixth touchdown with the third-quarter clock reading 11:15.

The Indians, with the help of three penalties against Albany, stopped the Lions on their next possession. Keith Thompson's punt from his own 29 was blocked by Erik Harvey and recovered on the 27, giving the Indians their best chance at avoiding a shutout.

Runs of 5 and 6 yards by Jonathan Dever and Harvey, respectively, and a 3-yard run by Dever moved the ball to the Albany 13, but that was as close as the Indians were to come. Thompson intercepted an Indian pass behind the line of scrimmage and ran it out to the 37.

The Lions then drove in for a touchdown in seven plays. Carlos Alcaraz scored the touchdown from the 2 to complete the scoring for the night, although Thompson did attempt a 44-yard field goal on the Lions' next possession.

Albany pretty well contained the Indians' Dever, who was held to 34 net yards in 15 carries. Harvey was 3 for 20, and Jeremy Fuentes was 4 for 18 before leaving the game with an injury. Johnnie Hudman had 151 yards for the Lions.

Stocks connected on only 3 of 20 passes, to Cody Josselet and Dever for 13 yards each and to Harvey for 8.

Farm price supports and loan programs must be continued, Rick Perry, Republican candidate for Texas Agriculture Commissioner, said last week, pledging to use his influence as commissioner in retaining these programs.

"My opponent is trying to scare farmers and ranchers by lying about my record," Perry said. "He says I support eliminating our farm program payments."

"That's not true," said Perry. "I've participated in the program as a producer. My neighbors participate. I know what would happen to rural areas of Texas if these programs were discontinued. I do not support such an action."

"Hightower is lying just like he's lied to us before. He has no influence in Washington because he belittles the administration. U.S. Department of Agriculture officials don't trust him after he so mismanaged the crop inspection service that they had to take it away from his administration. He insults Texas congressmen like Kika de la Garza and Charles Stenholm because they are not as liberal as he is."

"And he has no influence with mainstream agriculture producers so he's lying about my position on subsidies and hoping he can scare those he's alienated into voting for him. I'm the one who will be able to get something done."

Colleges report enrollment gains

Texas college and university enrollments are up this fall by more than 26,035 students.

Preliminary figures for the 1990 fall semester show the combined enrollment at all institutions of higher education is 885,515, a 3 percent increase from last fall.

Notes From The Rolling Plains

(Note: The following is one of a series of stories by noted wildlife photographer Wyman Meinzer offered by Haskell Save-A-$ for your enjoyment.)

A famous naturalist once said that wildlife is the health barometer for our world. The meaning is simple. If the living elements of our ecosystem cannot survive in this world as we now know it then we can pack our suitcases. We will be the next ones on the outgoing list. I know this might sound a little exaggerated but let's take a short look at the environment and what has been happening to it during the past few years. For awhile, some years ago, DDT was the wonder chemical whose application was recommended for almost everything except the common cold. As a kid I discovered an old barrel in the junk yard that was half full of a mysterious white powder. Mixed with water it looked like powdered milk. I fed a pan of it to our barn cats one evening. Lo and behold every cat in the barn was dead the next morning. When confronted with the grisly find I was informed that the barrel contained DDT. In college I recall a professor who thought so much of DDT that he said he would eat a spoon full of it. As he spoke I remembered the cats...Before it was discovered that DDT thinned the egg shells of certain species of raptors, the populations of prairie falcon and bald eagle was almost decimated. It would boggle the mind to really know what chemicals are being used today that would make the effects of DDT look like child's play. We should look back on these mistakes of the past and learn from them. Sometimes it seems as though we are on a collision course with disaster and don't care. For instance did you know that open oil storage tanks and pits account for the deaths of 100,000 ducks and 500,000 other migratory birds annually? This is in Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma alone. Drive around the country and see how many open tanks and pits are in evidence, awaiting the fall migration. Its just one of the many problems facing the very existence of our natural fauna in these times. It is a federal offense for oil pits and tanks to be open. They must be covered with a special mesh to minimize the likelihood of birds lighting in the muck. Call your local game warden if you notice open oil storage pits or tanks in your area. Let's work for wildlife for a change. After all, they have warned us in the past when we've poisoned our precious earth.

BECAUSE HE IS ONE OF US

Dear Friend:

We have a lot in common here in west central Texas. We share a glorious history. Our ancestors worked hard, sometimes had to fight hard, to make our land productive and secure.

We believe in the Lord, in ourselves, and in our families. We want steady work, a fair price, and a healthy economy. We want our children to have a good education and an opportunity to build their future here at home.

In order to accomplish these goals we need a state government that furnishes quality services efficiently and economically. A government that stands by our sides and stays off our backs.

I believe we can do better, that's why I'm running for State Representative. I know by working together and carefully using our resources we can make sure Texas' best days are ahead of us. I ask for your vote and support in this effort.

Thank you,

Boy Scouts selling gourmet popcorn

Haskell Boy Scouts joined other units of the Chisholm Trail Council last Wednesday in kicking off their annual sale of Trail's End gourmet popcorn. The sale continues through Nov. 14.

Popcorn sales help provide supplemental income to finance scouting activities for the council, as well as individual scouting units.

"Escalating program costs, the need for camp equipment and maintenance, as well as continued growth in youth participation, have prompted the council to seek additional sources of support," said John Clark, executive for the Chisholm Trail Council.

The primary income for scouting activities will continue to come from community support through the Sustaining Membership enrollment program of the Council.

Last year the Chisholm Trail Council sold 13,722 containers of Trail's End gourmet popcorn and raised over $50,000 for Council and local unit activities. The Council has set a goal of $60,000 for this year to be shared by the units participating and the Council.

A bucket or a microwave box of popcorn sells for $5. A 12-pack microwave box is $10 and a box or ready to eat caramel corn is $6.

Perry responds to Hightower letter

"Although lying, putting up a smokescreen and hiding his wrongdoings aren't new to Jim Hightower, his letter to the media stoops to a new low," Rick Perry, the Republican candidate for Agriculture Commissioner, said. "He labels our revelations about his scandalous tenure as negative campaigning."

"I say the truth hurts, doesn't it Jim?"

Perry was referring to a letter from Hightower sent to The Free Press and other state newspapers, saying Perry's claim he (Hightower) favors flag-burning is an absurd suggestion. "However," said Perry, "Hightower said during an Austin radio talk show Aug. 3 on KLBK, 'it's stupid to fuss about flag-burning.'"

Hightower's letter also says a press conference was staged to impugn his personal integrity.

"I say a man with integrity wouldn't ask his operatives to shake down the people he regulates, or would he take a state plane to a political fund-raiser in Arkansas, disguising it as an egg audit," said Perry.

"Hightower says I have suggested that Texas fell from the No. 1 producing state to No. 2 during his tenure. What we have said is that we are falling farther behind No. 1, and are in danger of slipping to No. 3 again, like we did in 1986, during Hightower's tenure I might add.

"He's right I've been touting my endorsement by the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Association. I am proud of their support. But there is no evidence of collusion between them, the Farm Bureau and the U.S. Department of Agriculture regarding the transfer of the Texas-Federal Inspection Service to TCVA. USDA took TFIS away because of Hightower and top aides abusing government credit cards to pay for thousands of dollars in personal and political expenses.

"Jim Hightower is a desperate man and history tells us he'll do anything, irregardless of legality or ethics, to further his career.

"Hightower is hiding behind Molly Ivins' (Dallas Times-Herald columnist) skirts. She's his buddy, she's not neutral, and the column he's distributing is full of lies. No ifs, ands or buts.

"He says two things not long for this world are dogs that chase cars and politicians who lie to the people. See ya later, Jim."

Area council receives grant to fight drugs

The Abilene Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse has received a grant of $72,500 to expand its services into eight surrounding counties, including Haskell.

It is part of a $4.4 million "council initiative" package offered by the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse to extend council services to under-served counties.

"The council has never refused help to anyone outside Taylor County," said Mary Busby, executive director, "but because of this grant, we can now be available to the people of area counties on a consistent basis."

In addition to Taylor and Haskell counties, the service area includes Callahan, Eastland, Jones, Shackelford, Stephens, Stonewall and Throckmorton counties.

Services include educational programs for schools, churches and civic organizations, employee assistance programs, evaluation and referral, a 24-hour telephone information service and DWI and public intoxication education classes.

Mullino named Mauro coordinator

George Mullino of Rochester has been named Haskell County campaign coordinator for Land Commissioner Garry Mauro.

The Mauro campaign also announced the establishment of volunteer political organizations in all 254 Texas counties.

"I am extremely proud of our volunteer organization," said Mauro. "We may be the only campaign to have achieved the goal of having local organizations in every Texas county."

Mauro is running for a third term as Texas Land Commissioner. He has been endorsed by the 10 largest newspapers in Texas and every other newspaper that has made a choice in that race.

The Land Commissioner is responsible for overseeing 20.5 million acres of state land.

"I strongly endorse Fred Gough as my replacement."

CUSTOMER SERVICE AND EMPLOYEE ATTITUDES

The quality of customer service your company provides will have an effect on the net profit of your business.

Even with the best of intentions, many companies only give lip service to this very critical area. It is necessary that every employee be tuned in to how he or she can contribute to outstanding customer service - the kind of customer service that keeps customers coming back again and again.

"Customer service" includes every element of the sales transaction between your business and a customer. Though you may consider customer service just a matter of being polite to customers, it actually involves many areas, including the following:

- Being truthful in advertising your product or service.
- Providing a product or service that meets or exceeds customer expectations.
- Being prompt in delivering your product or service.
- Letting customers know you appreciate their business.
- Handling customer complaints or other concerns promptly and politely.
- Being polite and cheerful in dealing with customers - even when they're "just looking" instead of buying.

Every employee in your business should be able to compile a list of the behaviors that contribute to good customer service in your specific line of business. Have your employees bring their lists to a staff meeting and compare notes. Discuss the area where your company could improve customer service. Then decide on specific actions to take and decide who will take them and when. It's important to follow through to be sure that the changes you decide to make are actually made.

Get your employees involved. Be persistent and consistent in improving customer service. Your net profit will show the positive results of your efforts.

Editor: Would you believe there is a great state in the world's greatest democracy where less than one-third of the people who are eligible to vote actually cast their ballots in important statewide elections every four years?

Would you believe, fellow Texans, the great state I'm referring to is Texas?

Such is the case in gubernatorial election years dating back to 1974. During those years, less than half of the state's registered voters went to the polls, while about one-third of voting age Texans did not even take the time to register to vote.

Here's the most recent example. In November 1986, almost 11.8 million people were eligible to register and vote. Of those, about 7.3 million were registered, but only 3.5 million actually took the time to vote. In other words, 29 percent of voting age Texans turned out at the polls.

For the sake of comparison, voters in California go to the polls at a much higher rate. In a California gubernatorial election year, it's not unusual for turnout rates to approach 70 percent of those people who are registered to vote.

Another important gubernatorial election year is upon us in Texas. Unless the historical trends abruptly reverse themselves, those national, state and local leaders who will guide us into the 21st century will be chosen by less than one-third of the Texas electorate. What a shame when you consider the critical issues that confront our state and country.

Literally hundreds of important decisions at all levels of government will be made in this year's election. We will elect a U.S. senator, governor, lieutenant governor and scores of other statewide and local officeholders. Also on ballots statewide is a proposed constitutional amendment to clarify the authority of the Texas Senate to consider certain nominees to state and district offices. If history repeats itself, however, a disturbingly small number of Texans will make those decisions.

Fellow Texans, beginning on Wednesday, Oct. 17, the first day of "extended" absentee voting, we will be choosing people to represent our interests on vital issues. This is an extremely important election year, one that is much too important to watch from the sidelines.

The absentee voting period runs through Friday, Nov. 2, providing Texans with an extended voting period, instead of just an election day. If you are registered to vote, there simply is no excuse to stay away from the polls. This year's election period culminates on election day, Tuesday, Nov. 6. In other words, you have 18 days to exercise your constitutional right--the simple task of casting your ballot.

Recently, we have witnessed political freedom and democracy take root all over the world. It is my hope that these sweeping worldwide political changes will inspire more Texans to vote this year. We need to be a role model for these emerging democracies. We need to practice what we preach. If you don't take the time to vote, I believe you have no right to complain about your government or its elected officials.

Several years ago, the late Robert Smith of Austin, then the Travis County district attorney, captured what I believe to be the essence of civic participation in a socalled "you are 'they'" speech he gave during the closing arguments of a trial.

In his remarks to jurors, Smith said: "Have you ever thought to yourself 'they' ought to do something about crime? Well, today, you are 'they'."

Remember, in this election and all future elections, you are "they." You have the power to elect people who will make the decisions that affect your lives and our state.

Study the issues and learn as much as you can about the people who want to represent you. Take advantage of the precious freedom you possess as a citizen of the world's greatest democracy. Take a few moments and get involved by casting your ballot.

Big Texan Steak Ranch gets award

Amarillo's legendary Big Texan Steak Ranch has never had a problem establishing its identity. With 75 tons of beef served annually, it is a steak restaurant with a reputation as big as the state it calls home.

Yet the key to this restaurant's annual sales has been more than just a mere steakhouse identity. The Big Texan has become famous to customers across the United States for its continuous innovations in merchandising beef.

In 1990, those innovations have also helped The Big Texan win bragging rights as Texas' "Beef Backer of the Year."

A generation of Americans have stopped at The Big Texan as they traveled an east-west route across the Texas Panhandle. Since the day it opened, the restaurant has met the demands of its customers in innovative and common sense ways.

Mary Ann Lee is owner and widow of the restaurant's founder, Bob Lee. Lee, a native of Missouri, started the restaurant in 1962. He built its reputation around a Texas-sized, 72-ounce steak that customers receive free when they eat it along with its trimmings in one sitting. To date, about 30,000 persons have attempted the feat and 4,950 persons have received the meal at no cost.

Even in 1990, challengers ask for the steak on a regular basis. But the majority of the Big Texan customers praise the restaurant for keeping up with consumer demands in today's rapidly changing society.

"We are independent operators in the restaurant business," said Rebecca Lee, daughter of the restaurant's founder. "Food and specialty items are what we do best. We try something new each time we print a menu."

A recent menu change reduced the size of steaks by 2 to 3 ounces. This reduction--called downsizing--has actually helped the restaurant serve more beef. The reason is that the smaller steaks appeal to both men and women.

"Our patrons' responses and attitudes have changed over the years because of their increased health awareness," Rebecca Lee said. "We adhere to and promote the American Heart Association's position that beef's protein is a necessary supplement to the diet in controlled quantities and contributes to a long, healthy life."

The restaurant also has introduced senior citizens' dinner centered around 4-ounce portions of beef. Other innovations feature lunch specials that include a steak burrito made from U.S. Prime steak cuts, a steak kabob that incorporates beef, jalapenos and cheese wrapped in bacon, and beefalo chili that is one-half beef and one-half buffalo meat.

With 98 percent of its sales centered around 0 beef, the restaurant serves more than 150,000 pounds of beef each year.

Selective Service now 50 years old

The Selective Service System is celebrating its golden anniversary. This small federal agency, best known for drafting young men into the armed services during times of war, turned 50 years old Sept. 16.

The modern-day Selective Service System was responsible for providing manpower to the military during World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam War. Since the agency's inception in 1940, more than 15 million young men have been inducted and well over 100 million have registered. The last draft ended in 1973, and today, men are only required to register with the agency. But the system is prepared to reactivate the draft at a moment's notice if ever given to go-ahead by Congress and the President in a crisis.

The tradition of military conscription in America predates the Revolution, but it wasn't until the months prior to the U.S. entering World War II that the military draft mechanism was placed in the hands of a civilian agency. It was Sept. 16, 1940, that President Franklin Roosevelt signed the Selective Training and Service Act, creating the country's first peacetime draft.

Contact with Selective Service has become almost a rite of passage for young men and their families because the registration program has been continually in effect for the better part of the past 50 years. There were only two brief suspensions: from March 31, 1947, to June 24, 1948, and from March 29, 1975, to July 2, 1980.

In July 1980, because of studies and exercises indicating reduced military readiness with the Selective Service System in deep standby, and with the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, President Jimmy Carter revitalized the agency. Once again registration became a national requirement for all young men age 18 through 25, and since 1980 nearly 25 million young men have registered.

Young men must register within 30 days of their 18th birthday at the local post office. Failure to register is a felony punishable by a fine of up to $250,000 and/or up to five years in prison. Men who fail to register as required are ineligible for employment in the Executive Branch of the federal government and the U.S. Postal Service. They also are ineligible for federal job training benefits and education grants and loans. Registration is also a prerequisite for many state jobs and state benefits.

Social Security has 800 number

Social Security's toll-free 800 number telephone service is now available from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on weekdays.

Most Social Security business can be handled completely by phone. Appointments for office visits can also be arranged by phoning first.

Best times to call are early in the morning and late in the afternoons.

Patients discharged too soon

Medicare patients are being discharged from hospitals quicker and sicker because of federal efforts to control spending, according to a recent Rand Corp. study.

The study found that the number of Medicare patients discharged with at least one medical condition still requiring care has increased 28 percent since implementation of the Prospective Payment System.

The Prospective Payment System encourages hospitals to discharge patients sooner by basing payments to hospitals on an average for similar diagnoses and disregarding the length of stay and amount of care provided to individual patients.

The results of the study were published in an article in the October issue of Texas Medicine, the official monthly magazine of the Texas Medical Association.

Clear Fork Co-op School

By Susie Chavez

Towns from all around got together for the 1990-91 school year to form a school for at-risk kids. The school is being held in McCauley and is called Clear Fork Co-op.

They have free transportation and child care for everyone. The towns are Anson, Aspermont, Hamlin, Hawley, Haskell, Merkel, Roby, Stamford and Trent.

The director at the school is Dale Freeman, who runs the school with the help of his secretary, Debra Stevenson.

The counselor, Cassie Minzenmayor, worked very hard to get the students in the right classes. This wasn't easy. The teachers came from all around to help out. They are Kathy Jones, Linda Haston, James Garrett, Ronnie Freeman, Eric Stevens and Pauline Morris. The average enrollment at the school now is about 85.

Students are working in modules rather than doing everyday school work. The students read the modules, do the worksheets on their own paper, check their answers with an answer booklet, and then take a test over what was covered.

Since students don't have to listen to a teacher all day they have to make a higher grade on their tests. Instead of a 70, the students have to make an 80 to pass. If they don't pass, they go back and re-do the module and take a different test.

They also have vocational classes at the school for the students. These classes are BOC (Business Office and Clerical), Food Production, Building Maintenance and Child Care. The vocational classes are two hours long.

The goal of the BOC class is to have all the students employable by the end of the year. They work on filing, 10-key skills, office work, resumes, interviews and all other skills needed in an office. This week they are starting a school paper and they have had elections for their club and newspaper. In the class there are about 12 students. The results of the elections:

Lisa Hernandez, editor; Kolbi Odom, co-editor; Susie Chavez, president; Monica Lou Salas, vice president; Rachel Rivera, secretary; Michael La Salle, treasurer. Linda Haston is the sponsor for the BOC club and the newspaper.

Kathy Jones is the head of the Food Production class. Vera Rivera runs the kitchen. In this class the students learn how to cook and work in a kitchen. They prepare lunch at the school in the cafeteria every day, and afterwards they clean up.

Building Maintenance is a class for boys or girls. Right now, there are 25 boys in there, but they say girls are welcome. Ronnie Freeman is the teacher in this class. Here, the students study building, electricity, plumbing, carpentry, janitorial and painting.

They also have a vocational class for Health. It is called Health Occupation Education Through Distance Learning. The students talk over the phone to their teacher, Roegenia Hainline, who lives in Garland. The site facilitator in McCauley is Paulene Morris. She said the students are learning all about hospitals and terms used in them. They will be going on trips to the hospitals, dentist offices and veterinarian centers all around.

Last, but certainly not least, we have the child care center. This is held in the old homemaking building. The students can bring their children to school with them every day and leave them there. Elma Rae Crowley is the head of the center. Romona Benevides and Gloria Hunter help her out. Students may work in the child care

Clear Fork Co-op was a great idea. Hopefully it will continue to operate for years to come.

The cooler days of October bring a special energy to the flower garden, especially in this area. Fall-flowering plants are in their prime, and autumn color is on schedule. But it is also time for planning springtime color, especially with bulbs.

Before planting bulbs, be sure they have been pre-cooled. If they are not, place bulbs in a paper bag and chill in the vegetable crisper of the refrigerator for four to six weeks before planting.

When planting, plant bulbs where they will have good drainage.

Plant your perennials in the fall so they will develop root systems through winter and bloom the next year. Fertilize at planting time with a low-nitrogen fertilizer such as bone meal or other organic fertilizer.

It's autumn, and there's no better way to take in the season than by gathering materials for an arrangement.

While looking for just the right branch, flower or pod, you'll become a keen observer of nature. The leaves are changing colors as they drop their cloak of chlorophyll.

An arrangement can be a simple branch in a vase or a complex assemblage of all the garden has to offer.

Scale is always an important consideration in any design. You do not want it too large or too small for its position in your home.

Once you have collected all these treasures, don't be afraid to dive in and try an arrangement, even if you barely know which end of a vase is up. Have fun, learn as you go, and you may be surprised how well your arrangement looks. Just remember, it doesn't have to be critiqued; no one else has to like it. This can be your personal interpretation of the season, a simple salute to autumn.

Wild hogs challenge to hunters

When the Texas deer season begins for rifle hunters next month, more of them will be looking for first-time encounters with another game animal, the feral (wild) hog.

"Feral hog numbers have increased tremendously throughout most of Texas during the past few years," said Billy Higginbotham, wildlife and fisheries specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The numbers are high enough that some landowners are using the hogs as a bargaining point in hunting leases," he said. "Hunters should be able to combine feral hog hunts with their traditional deer hunts in most hog-inhabited areas, where both seasonal leases and day hunts are available."

He said many experienced hunters find a hog hunt challenging because the hogs are smarter and more elusive than deer.

Hogs are basically a wet habit animal, although they have adapted well to drier climates of south and south central Texas.

"In wet years, they move out of bottomland and bogs into the uplands," said Higginbotham. "However, under heavy hunting pressure, they move deeper into remote areas and become nocturnal."

There is no regulated hunting season for feral hogs. Hunters should, however, inform their local game warden if they plan to hunt at night or use methods that may be mistaken for deer or other regulated hunting.

Johnnie Hudman, manager of the Nail Ranch in Shackelford County, said the ranch has sold hog hunts for about four years. "We have a very heavy population," he said. "Our guided hunts have almost 100 percent hunter success."

Higginbotham says wild hog is excellent to eat and easy to prepare. "The same care and sanitary practices should be taken when processing feral hogs as with venison," he said. "Sausage is one of the favorite dishes, but the meat can be prepared using any pork recipe."

I want to express my sincere thanks to my family and friends for the love you showed me while I was hospitalized and since I've been home. For your prayers, visits, gifts, flowers, phone calls, food, and cards, I am very grateful.
A special thank you to Mel Swoyer and Chaplain Vasquez for your support. May God bless each of you as He has blessed me.

Haskell County's unemployment rate in September was 3.9 percent, according to figures released last week by the Texas Employment Commission.

The monthly report listed Haskell County with a labor force of 3,594, employment of 3,454 and unemployment of 140.

Haskell County's rate was well below the 6.2 percent for the state as a whole. The Abilene Metropolitan Statistical Area, of which Haskell is a part, showed unemployment at 6.3 percent.

Show winners prepare for district

Haskell County 4-H members are making final preparations for the Rolling Plains District 4-H Food Show. It will be Saturday, Nov. 3, at the Wilbarger Memorial Auditorium in Vernon.

In the foods project, 4-H'ers learn the importance of including foods from each of the basic food groups in the daily diet. They learn the principles of nutrition as they relate to health, physical fitness and appearance, as well as acquiring and demonstrating skills in planning, purchasing, preparing and serving tasty, attractive and nutritious meals and snacks.

Ten 4-H members from Haskell County will compete in the district show:

Junior Division: Shannon Jordan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Jordan; Shannon Sanford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Sanford; Kaki Stapleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Stapleton, all of Haskell; and Sara Kitley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Kitley of Rule.

Entrants from 21 counties will compete in senior, intermediate and junior divisions. Each division has four food classes: main dish, fruits and vegetables, breads and cereals and snacks and desserts. Contestants in the district event are all winners in their county food shows. Senior division winners in each category will advance to the State 4-H Food Show in College Station next June.

Special beef awards will be given by the Wichita Area Cattlewomen organization.

County Extension Agents Lou Gilly and Max Stapleton said the contestants will report to the auditorium in Vernon at 9:30 on the morning of Nov. 3. Judging will begin at 10.

The dishes will be on display from 1 to 1:30 p.m. and the public is invited to view them. Ribbons and awards will be presented during an awards ceremony at 2 p.m.

Cookbooks containing all the recipes prepared for the district show will be on sale at the competition for $4, said Betsy Harkey Wilbarger County extension agent/home economics and chairman of the District Food Show Committee.

Other committee members are home economics agents Jane Rowan, Beverly Thomas, Patri Spurlen and Arla Felts.

Cruise

Area women recently visited Pittsburgh, Pa., and Cincinnati, Ohio, during a Fall Foliage cruise on the Delta Queen. This is the centennial year of the historic Delta Queen steamboat. Tours of the two port cities were of special interest to the group visiting the University of Pittsburgh, and then particularly interesting to arrive in Cincinnati and dock at Riverfront Stadium when the Reds won the National League Western Division pennant. The group included Mildred Berry, Dorothy Beddingfield, Sue Brown, Durene Boone, Imogene Bowen, Nell Ferguson, Lou Gilly, Becky Knipe, Betty McCoy, Faye Moon, Thula Perry, Helen Ruggles, Gerry Spain, Lois St. Clair, Nancy Tolver and Rozelle Wilkinson.

Farmers see profit in pintos

One-fourth of the approximately 930 million pounds of pinto beans grown annually in the United States are sold south of Interstate 10, mostly in Texas, California, New Mexico and (old) Mexico.

Now, Texas producers are beginning to cash in on that staple of the increasingly popular Tex-Mex and barbecue cuisines.

Experts estimate that Texans wolf down about 150 million pounds of pintos a year.

In the past five years, increasing demand and more attractive prices have prompted increased interest and acreage. Sluggish markets in 1982-83 saw the price paid farmers drop as low as 8 cents a pound. For the past two years, however, the price to farmers has been about 31 cents a pound.

From less than 1,000 acres in 1980, Texas production climbed to some 9,000 acres in 1989, doubling this year.

Pinto beans, a legume, are valuable in crop rotation systems to improve the soil. They require standard row crop equipment already owned by most crop producers.

The pinto bean is an excellent crop for the High Plains and many other parts of Texas. They are successfully cultivated as far south as the Rio Grande Valley. The fertile soils, low humidity and bright sunlight of the Texas High Plains produce an excellent quality pinto.

One advantage to farmers is the short time the crop is in the field, about 75 days. When a cash crop can be finished in 75 to 80 days, from seeding to harvest, it can be fit into a time slot between other crops. They can be planted after wheat harvest in early summer for a second crop, and harvested in time to plant winter wheat, for example.

These three groups were the sweepstakes winners in the Cub Scout pushmobile races in Haskell Oct. 13. At left, is Wolf Den 3 from Haskell, third-place winner; In the middle is Bear Den 5 of Haskell, first-place winner; and at right is the Knox City Webelo team which won second. The first- and third-place winners were transported under the picture which ran in The Free Press last week.

Teacher to address state convention

Haskell teacher Martha Jarred has been asked to be a presenter at the 13th annual Texas Association for the Gifted and Talented Convention Nov. 16 in Houston.

Mrs. Jarred's topic will be "Literature As a Catalyst for Higher Thinking" and will offer practical, classroom-tested activities for developing creative and critical thinking skills across the curriculum through the use of quality literature.

A first-grade teacher in Haskell schools, Mrs. Jarred also conducts the Kg-3 gifted and talented program. She has received specialized training in educating the gifted from workshops, seminars and college courses. She has been instrumental in implementing the Haskell program.

She and her husband, Kenneth Jarred, have two daughters, Diane of Okinawa, and Susan, a Haskell High School sophomore.

7.7 million eligible to vote

More than 7.7 million Texans are registered to vote on Nov. 6, an all-time high for a gubernatorial year general election, says Secretary of State George Bayoud.

The figure represents about 62 percent of the 12.5 million Texans of voting age.

A speedy recovery is wished for Jane Miller, who has been a patient in the Stamford Memorial Hospital recently. Jane is a former nursing supervisor. Remember that trip to Austin, Jane, when my sister, Dorothy Massey, and fellow student, Barbara Newman, went to take their State Board exam to become LVN's? Both of those lovely ladies are now deceased. They both made excellent, caring nurses.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Shannon Kittley upon the loss of her grandfather, J.B. Gipson of Haskell. Also, to the families of Frances Mullins of Stamford. Also, Fae Cobb and Lillian Bagley.

Dovie Anderson, Jeanne Burlison and Vicky Anderson were visitors of Ruth Wilcox on Tuesday morning, the 23rd of October.

Our prayers and best wishes go with Ruth Wilcox when she enters St. Mary's Hospital in Lubbock on Nov. 7 for tests. Good luck, Ruth, and may everything turn out fine.

Correction to last week's news: Wes Kittley was not the speaker after all at the pep rally this past Friday. Don Hisey, who I have been told was one of the best football players to ever come out of Rule, gave a most inspiring and thought-provoking speech. We certainly did enjoy it, Don.

This past Monday your writer took her daughter, Diane DeLoach, to the Abilene airport to catch a plane back to Chicago. On the way to Abilene, they picked up Pat Gray in Stamford and Marjory Griffin and Valeta Mullins in Anson. They visited briefly with Danny and Luke Kittley at Mabee dorm at ACU. The ladies enjoyed a seafood luncheon at Red Lobster after which they did some shopping at the Mall of Abilene.

Good luck to Peggy Crownover of Stamford, who has recently moved to Weatherford to be near her son, Rusty and his family.

Warning: A gasoline thief is at work in Rule. At first I had thought my car suddenly began using too much gasoline, but when a sixty mile trip seemed to empty my gasoline tank, and no leak was found in it, it suddenly dawned on me what had happened. Immediately, I went to the store and bought a locking cap for my car.

Aren't these autumn days great? Haven't decided which is the nicest, this time of the year or the Spring.

Enjoyed a recent visit with Essie and Clyde Hall of Stamford.

Good luck to Frankie and Mike Wilcox, who recently moved to Abilene. They will be missed, especially Frankie's pretty smiling face at Farmers National Bank.

Congratulations once again to the great Bobcats, who 45'd yet another team this past Friday night when they defeated Aspermont. Keep it up, boys! They are overall 8-0 and 3-0 in District 9.

The game at Aspermont was terminated with 9:12 minutes remaining in the third quarter because of the 45-0 score. Superman Shannon Taylor had 18 carries with 204 yards gained rushing, and scored every third time he carried the ball. Carols Muniz scored the other Bobcat touchdown on a two-yard run. Ranked sixth in the state among six-man teams, Rule has chalked up eight wins this season and is 3-0 in district play. Our two biggest challenges are yet to come, however, with Rochester and Jayton yet to be met, both of whom are powerhouses.

Welcome back to Rule, Kristi, Wes and Kyla Jones. It's nice to have you down the street from us.

Although I only know his first name, which is Mark of AT&T, I would like to thank him profusely for "calming me" this past Sunday night when my granddaughter was injured, and I was trying to call for the EMS in Haskell. Too, he dialed the number for me. Also, thanks to the dispatcher for EMS, who called back to tell me that the ambulance was on the way.

It seems to me that each generation has its own "silly" or unique songs. For instance, another lady and I were singing "Mairzy Doats and Dozy Doats and Lid'l Lambe-ivi" in order to activate a toy that I was carrying. A much younger lady came up, looked in puzzlement, and asked: "What on earth are you singing?" As the other "older" lady said, we certainly were dating ourselves as that song was popular in the forties during World War II. We should have gone further into the song to the lines which stated: "If the words seem queer, and funny to your ear - a little bit jumbled and "jivy"; say: Mares eat oats and does eat oats, and little lambs eat ivy"

On the day that this paper comes out, there will be one more performance of "Puttin' On The Hits" tonight at 7 p.m. at the Rule High School auditorium. If all goes as hoped, this will be the third night of a SRO crowd, and performances which are unequaled to any done before.

Many of you no doubt watched the Tennessee Ford 50th Anniversary celebration. One of the many guests was comedian George Gobel, who I remember as an Air Force cadet at Altus Air Force Base, and who was a frequent customer in the Base Post Exchange. Little did we clerks dream that we were waiting on a future celebrity. Also stationed at the base was the writer of "Doby Gillis" - Max Shulman, who dropped by the PX almost each day to see if his book "Feather Merchants" had sold.

Congratulations to Mrs. Charles (Dorothy) Clark upon her completion of 34 years employment at Lone Star Gas Co. in Stamford. Here's hoping she adjusts better to retirement than yours truly.

On Thursday night, Vicky Anderson and Alma Counts were guest of Bobbie Connally of Stamford at the Silent Auction of the Business and Professional Women's Club. It was indeed wonderful to see many old friends there Hilda Harris, Pam McClellan Cox, Irene Stewart, Doris Kinney, Maggie Baldowski along with her daughter, Janice, and two granddaughters, Ethel Bounds, Barbara McGaughey, Sandra and Sharon Rhea, Dolores Bearden, Dorothy Clark and her mother, Mrs. M. Y. Benton; Candy Clayton, Jane Whittemore, Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. McGougal and to meet new people: Kim Bearden, Mrs. Frank Cox. A delicious meal of baked chicken and rice was served, and the meeting took place at Maggie's Cafe.

Remember not long ago when Kathryn Carter wrote articles about loving small towns? Sure do miss her articles. They were so true to life in small towns. This fact has been brought to mind twice in the past few months. First, an Abilene doctor remarked how supportive my daughter's family was when she had major surgery, and told his wife that you just don't see that any more. Then, more recently when a granddaughter was taken to an emergency room following an accident, the ER doctor asked if there was anyone left in Rule because at least ten people were waiting outside the room.

When, and if, I ever see those two doctors again, I would like to tell them that they should move to smaller towns if they are impressed with the families' support and devotion.

Welcome to Rule newcomers: The Mark Robinson family who have purchased Pinkard Funeral Home, also Mark's father, Joe Robinson, who came from northwest Arkansas. They have bought the Fannin home.

Also, welcome is extended to Jessie Wolton, sister of Minnie Pearl Kinney, who has moved to Rule from Bovina, and has bought the Tommy Davis home.

Justin Wayne Hertel celebrated his fourth birthday Sat., Oct. 27 at his home in Snyder. A racing theme was carried out, starting with the sidewalk to the house lined with black and white checkered flags and red streamers attached to each flag forming a raceway. The inside was decorated with balloons and streamers. The table was decorated with a birthday cake, a replica of a race car made by his mother. Each wheel was lettered with Happy Birthday Justin. Napkins, cups and favor holders were decorated with race cars. Pin the Tail on the donkey and other outside games were played and enjoyed by all. Out-of-town guests were his grandparents Wanda and Jerry Saffell of Rule, and aunt and uncle Janie and Joe Cannon and cousins Allison and Jay of Abilene.

After the party, Justin was treated to his favorite dinner at Jarmallo's for Mexican food.

Think about it: "Gossip is like a scorpion. It is primarily composed of a long tale with a nasty sting." (From Rule Reminder)
