Rodriguez Inn took second place, the Anson Bams won third and the Stamford Estrellas came in fourth.

The Kiwanis club expressed its appreciation for the support of the participants and the following sponsors:

Rule football

Rule football boys will report for their first pre-season practice at 8 a.m. on Aug. 4.

Football program ads being sold

The Haskell Booster Club will begin selling ads today (Thursday) for the 1993 football programs. Cost per ad is $25.

"Merchants, as well as individuals, may place ads," said Sammy Larned, Booster Club president.

The program has been restyled this year and will be given free at football games.

Debi Burson and her daughter, Tréci, will handle ad sales. "By reducing the price and giving the programs to everyone, we believe the advertiser's money will go farther," Mrs. Burson said.

Stocks up

Britta Nielsen, the young Dane who has been visiting with Gwen and Duward Campbell, stocked up on CDs of country music stars to take home with her. She is an avid country music fan.

Another foreign teenager visits in Campbell home

By Wendell Faught

Britta Nielsen's friends couldn't understand why she would want to come all the way to America to visit a small Texas town. It would be so boring, they thought, compared to the sites and activities of New York, Washington and the like.

But the 16-year-old student from Sorring, Denmark, had no regrets as she prepared to return home last week after spending five weeks in Haskell in the home of Gwen and Duward Campbell.

Britta is the sister of Klavs Nielsen, who lived with the Campbells as an exchange student in 1983-84. She met Gwen and her daughter, Kristen Grand, when they visited the Nielsen family Denmark in 1984.

It was "a great five weeks" for Britta. She helped Duward work cattle and said she enjoyed it very much. She learned to drive a pickup truck and a tractor, learned to "two-step" and increased her love of country music.

She took in the rodeo and dance at Stamford last month, where she said Jimmy Hannsz taught her to dance. Gwen took her to Carlsbad Caverns and Kristen took her to Oklahoma City where she met an old friend of her brother's, Jodie Taylor, who lived with the Campbell's as an exchange student from Australia a few years ago. She was impressed with a visit to the Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City. Enroute home, they visited Indian City in Anadarko, Okla. There also was a visit to the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

The spirited young Dane made many friends here. She spoke to both the Lions club and the Rotary club.

Britta is in her 11th year of school and will graduate in two more years. Then, she will go to a university. "There's been very high unemployment since the mid-80s, so education is necessary for just about any kind of job in Denmark," she said.

She explained that the country is going through a painful economic transition. The fishing industry has suffered from lack of fish and milk and agricultural products cannot be sold for enough to pay for their production. "People can no longer survive as farmers and fishermen," she said.

Britta has had six years of English and four years of German, requirements for all Dane students. She also had a year of French as an elective.

Fluency in other languages is absolutely necessary, Britta pointed out. There are only 5 million people in the tiny country and since Danes are the only people who speak the Danish language it is imperative they know how to

Indian football workouts begin next Wednesday

Prospects for the 1993 Haskell Indian football team will report for their first practice session next Wednesday, Aug. 4.

Equipment will be issued, starting at 8:30 Wednesday morning. The first workout will begin at about 4 in the afternoon.

Two-a-day practices are scheduled for Thursday and Friday, and possibly Saturday. Practice times, not yet decided, will be determined by the weather.

Next week's practices will be limited to conditioning exercises as the boys work out without equipment. On the following Monday, the team will don equipment and continue twice daily workouts until school begins Aug. 16.

Walter Hargrove, beginning his fourth year as head coach of the Indians, expects to be greeted by 14 lettermen from last year's squad which posted a 6-4 record.

Experienced hands returning will be Casey Larned, Mart Guess, Keiland Riley, Robert Johnson, Jonathan Tatum, Jason Torres, Robert Huff, Justin Lisle, Matt

Perry, Blake Henshaw, Martin Limones, Brandon McFadden, Kevin Conner and Deon Walker.

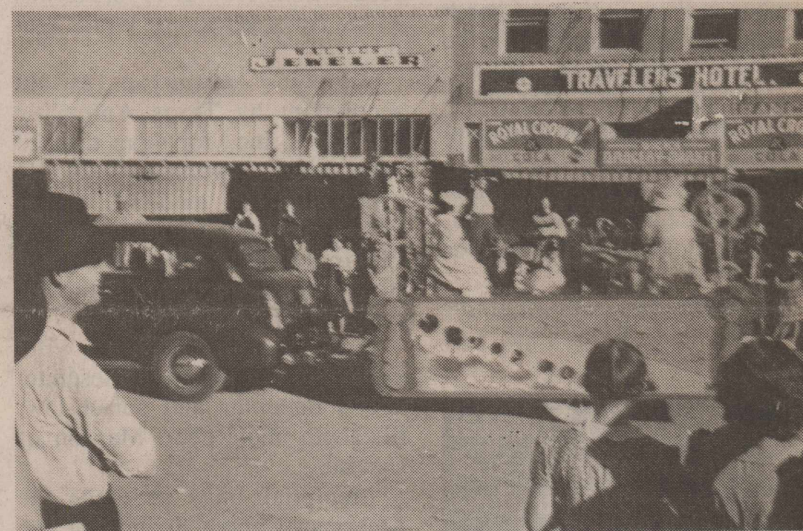

The Indians lost two more lettermen when Matthew McFadden moved to Jacksboro and Keith McDonald moved to Andrews.

Biggest task for Hargrove and his staff will be to find replacements for Tommie Isbell, Cody Josselet and Joseph Rodriguez, all offensive-defensive standouts on last year's team.

The Indians will play the same teams in 1993 as they played last year. The schedule lists four home games and six away.

Pre-season scrimmages are scheduled against Roscoe there on Aug. 20 and against Quanah here on Aug. 27.

The season opens at Munday on Sept. 3, followed by Seymour here on Sept. 10 and Knox City there on Sept. 17 before the Indians open the district 7-2A schedule at Anson on Sept. 24. Other district games against Winters here, Hawley there, Rotan here, Jim Ned there, Hamlin here and Stamford there will follow on successive Friday nights.

Parade

Haskell has had a love affair with parades for a long time. This photo shows part of a parade in downtown Haskell in the 1930s.

Duck population at park replenished

The duck population at City Park was boosted last weekend when Karen Howeth released 15 2-year-olds to replenish the dwindling flock.

Mrs. Howeth said the new additions would be watched closely this week, and if everything goes all right, another 25 will be released next weekend.

Mrs. Howeth has been raising the ducks just for this purpose. At her suggestion, the City of Haskell bought 40 ducklings and turned them over to Mrs. Howeth to raise.

Practically all of the ducks which have inhabited the City Park for the past four years have mysteriously disappeared.

Haskell teachers at Utah conference

Three Haskell CISD teachers were selected by the Texas Education Agency to attend the New Standards Project Conference in Snowbird, Utah, July 8-14.

Attending from Haskell were Paula Everett and Richard Holloway, math teachers, and Cathy Bartley, English language arts teacher.

Participants were trained for scoring math and language arts tasks which had been part of a pilot program through the states. They then had to score papers in order to practice using the rubric (a scoring guide). Each teacher had to qualify to become a scorer by scoring three sets of 20 papers. After qualifying, the teachers scored hundreds of papers.

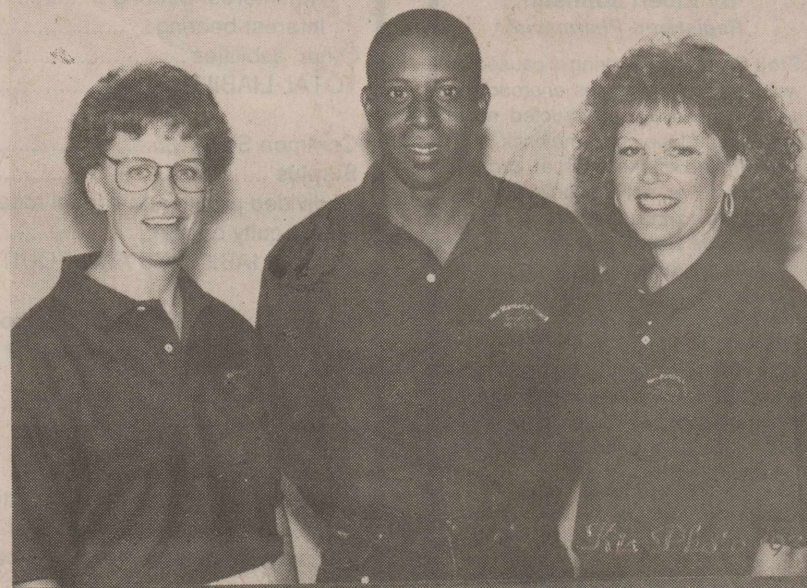

The New Standards Project is a vision for the 90s. It began two years ago with support from the Pew Charitable Trusts and the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation. NSP is a partnership of states and urban school districts that is adopting a set of very high national education standards and developing a new kind of assessment system designed to gauge student progress toward those standards. The primary goal of the project is to greatly improve the performance of all students.

NSP is run jointly by the National Center on Education and the Economy and the Learning Research and Development Center at the University of Pittsburgh.

The NSP pays special attention to equity, strives to educate all students at high standards, and wants standards and assessments to help bring about better student outcomes. It wishes to build an examination system that wants teachers to prepare students to do well. This system uses teachers' task development, scoring, and using results to improve curriculum and instruction. This national movement for content standards, however, clearly intends these

PHARMACY NEWS

Stop Smoking! Snoring is caused by weak muscles, masses encroaching on the airway, or obstructed nasal breathing. Sleeping on the back, obesity, irritated smoker's throat, congestion, hay fever, or nasal polyps all can contribute to the problem. Solutions can include sleeping on the stomach or side, avoiding depressants or muscle relaxants (including alcohol, antihistamines, or sleeping pills) at bedtime, sleeping with a single pillow rather than a stack, possibly replacing a feather pillow with a synthetic one, or wearing an orthodontic device that keeps the tongue in place and pulls the jaw forward.

Mrs. Phemister hostess to Weinert club

The Weinert Extension Homemakers had a called meeting by President Myrtle Phemister on July 14 in her home. Seven members attended.

Prayer was said for the people in the flooded states and the problems they were having.

The TEHA prayer was repeated by members. The hostess served refreshments, Cokes, coffee and cookies.

The president passed out sheets on a report of expenses for the year and the Council report was given by Estalynn Liles.

Alice Yates reported that she now has the new calendars in her home. She also reported on the craft work that was being done at the nursing center in Haskell. Cordie Cunningham reported she has the quilt top for the Rehab Center's quilt almost completed. The club nominated Joetta Burnett for vice chairman for the TEHA convention.

Myrtle Phemister was nominated as delegate. Faye Jetton, Estalynn Liles and Lavita Burgess will work on the club program for next year.

The club is working on street signs and house numbers for the next year. Next meeting will be Aug. 3 at the home of Betty Sanders. Mary Martin of Haskell will speak on "volunteerism."

Price support loans available from ASCS

Price support loans and loan deficiency payments on 1993 wheat (if applicable) are available from the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

All wheat producers in the 1993 farm program are eligible, said Glenn R. Brzozowski, county executive director of the ASCS.

"A price support loan provides immediate cash for farmers and allows them sufficient time to make important marketing decisions, or to hold the grain for feeding later," Brzozowski explained.

The loan rate for Haskell County's 1993 wheat crop is $2.38 per bushel. Jones County's 1993 wheat crop is $2.36 per bushel, and Knox County's is $2.38. The rate reflects relative county market prices.

Under the price support loan program, the Commodity Credit Corporation makes loans to eligible farmers, using the commodities as collateral for loans. Stocks may be stored on the farm in approved structures, or off the farm in approved commercial warehouses.

Wheat loans are available to farmers through March 31, 1994. Loans mature on demand, but no later than the last day of the ninth month following the month the loan is approved.

Irrigation efficiency evaluations conducted last year in Haskell and Knox counties showed the average application efficiency to be 80 percent, pattern efficiency of 60 percent and overall efficiencies of 48 percent.

Haskell Soil & Water Conservation District

Testing the efficiency of your center pivot irrigation system will show you how productive the system is operating and could point out areas along the system where too much or not enough water is being applied.

The first step in determining the efficiency of the system is knowing the gallons per minute you are pumping through the system. This is done using a flowmeter or velocity gauge.

After the gallons-per-minute is determined, a series of catch cans or gauges are placed along the system and water is caught in them as the system passes over it.

The average amount of water that is caught in the gauges is compared to the amount of water pumped through the system to determine the application efficiency.

The uniformity of the water applied to the field or the pattern efficiency is calculated by comparing the lowest 25 percent of the area under the pivot to the average amount of water applied to the field.

Factors that influence efficiency of the irrigation system are operating pressure, pumping rate, worn or plugged nozzles system leaks, wind and humidity.

Areas of irregular crop growth under the pivot could indicate too much water is being applied in some places and not enough in others. An efficiency test could show how to correct this problem. If you are interested in having an efficiency test conducted on your center pivot call the Seymour Aquifer Project office at the Soil Conservation Service in Haskell, 864-3334.

Mary Kaigler:

From the Inside Out

Every time I see fresh, yellow crook-neck squash I think of her. She was the only one I've know who "did it up" and flavored it the way she did--always exactly the same, always exactly perfect--the way I like it.

"No secret," she'd say, mashing down the steamed-tender slices. Adding a dab of butter, a few tablespoons of milk, a finger-sprinkle of salt, a few shakes of pepper--testing the rightness of the combination by its aroma--she'd finally add a few grains of sugar. Her creamed squash was never sweet, but until she added that bit of sugar, it was just mashed squash. After that addition, for me, it was haute cuisine.

Never a gourmet cook, Mama was nevertheless a good cook, with an extremely sensitive nose for the right seasoning. She could smell when gravy was done or salty enough. Her recipes were in her heart. She loved preparing special things for her children, always managing to have each one's favorites when they came to visit. I was her main squash enthusiast and I could eat it until my eyes virtually rolled back in pure hedonism.

Into her 80s Mama continued to preserve, pickle, jar and freeze from the garden and orchard. Every year when the fall garden had "come off" and been "put up", she and Dad spent two weeks on the coast at Corpus Christi deep-sea fishing, having a ball and filling their freezer.

Dad liked to cook fish as much as he liked to catch it and watch his grandchildren eat it--especially Lake Brownwood crappie and catfish.

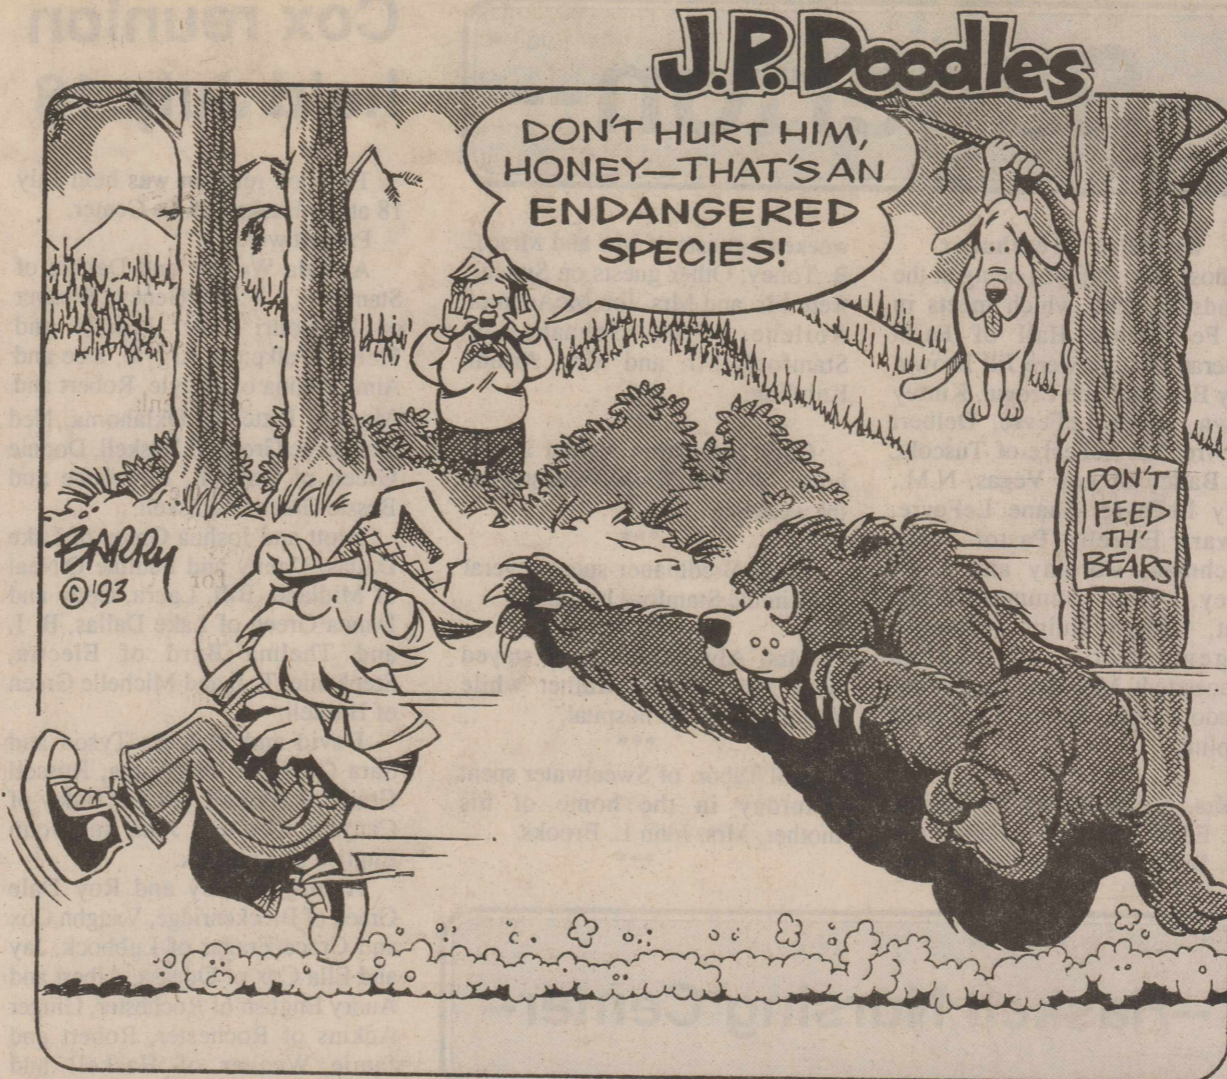

Invariably getting the deep grease hot enough to set off the smoke alarm, he'd drop the cornmealed fish into his special black iron skillet, meticulously careful to turn each piece only once as it bubbled golden brown.

Being quite deaf he was oblivious to the shrill warning going on around him. Mama's ears being as sensitive as her nose, she always stood by with the electric fan she kept on the cabinet for just that purpose, aiming at the shrieking alarm through the smoky vapor. While she subdued the ear-splitting beeps, Dad fried, turned, then drained the crispy, tender fillets on a brown paper bag. With great ceremony he'd announce to the grandchildren, "Let's get after this fish." They always did. A culinary ritual, performed in perfect harmony.

I don't do most things the way Mama did--partly from choice, partly from circumstance of time and personality--however, seasoning squash is one thing I've consciously tried to learn from her. I haven't mastered it yet. But without saying a single word she taught a truth that I've later come to realize applies to all of life, as well as to cooking squash: Just knowing the necessary ingredients is not enough. The secret of heightening and bringing out exceptional flavor in everything is finding the right balance and knowing when to add a judicial bit of sugar.

In nearly 65 years of loving together as a team, Mama and Dad were a living example of how ordinary ingredients, thoughtfully and patiently seasoned together can become an extraordinary blend. Like the one for Mama's squash, their recipe was in their hearts.

Mama has been gone for several years now, but she is right here with me this morning as I look at this beautiful yellow squash that Helen Fouts brought over. We're going to take it into the kitchen and she is going to coach me through the squash seasoning process one more time. While it's simmering down she is going to tell me again about the hilarious two days during the hurricane when she and Dad were marooned in an ocean-front Corpus Christi motel, their ice chest filled with fish but no ice.

LETTERS

To Stenholm

The following letter was written to Congressman Charles W. Stenholm.

Dear Rep. Stenholm: While I do not reside in your district and therefore do not have a countable vote, I do own property in Haskell County and so have a concern about what you do and say as you represent that part of the state of Texas. Because of my intentions to return to Haskell to live, I subscribe to the Haskell Free Press and by so doing I read your letters that appear in the paper.

I was very interested in your explanation of how you opposed President Clinton's tax bill and yet voted for it so you could oppose it again later. I know that makes sense to somebody--it's bound to--but I guess we will only know for sure when we see your "No" vote on the final version of this proposed "Largest Tax Bill" ever.

Since I can't understand the tax logic, maybe you could explain to me your stand on gun ownership. You voted for the Brady Bill that would keep only law-abiding citizens from purchasing a tool for self-defense for a period of five working days (up to seven days total) because you said you thought it would somehow curtail crime. Statistics show that 20 of the 22 states that have waiting periods have had increases in violent crime and most of those increases exceed the national trend. So: waiting periods only hinder law-abiders, not criminals.

We all had the opportunity to see and hear the citizens in California who lined up to buy a tool (weapon) to defend their homes, families, and businesses from the lawless rioters, but couldn't because of the "waiting period." The rioters, thieves, arsonists and murderers were not affected, but homeowners and business owners were. So: waiting periods only hinder law-abiders, not criminals.

Please, Mr. Stenholm, vote against the upcoming tax increase; please, vote against the enactment of the Brady Bill; and please, vote for spending cuts and caps. This will allow us (the law-abiders) to retain more of what we make and protect that which we retain from the law breakers who are not worried about the laws that are passed.

standards to apply to all students.

This spring, NSP will pilot full scale matrix assessments in math and English language arts. By 1996, a portfolio system capable of yielding individual student scores is expected to be ready.

NSP is making an effort to move away from multiple choice forms of standardized testing to a form that is more consistent with good practices. This will focus on what children can do rather than what they cannot do.

Haskell CISD may be involved in the pilot testing in the spring. The school will be playing an important role in this development process.

Britta is the 12th young Dane to spend time in the Campbell home. The Campbells have hosted three foreign exchange students from Denmark, and have been visited by nine friends of those students.

Foreign teenagers in the Campbell home are far from rare. The Haskell couple have hosted six foreign exchange students in recent years, including three from Denmark. Some of them have returned to visit and brought friends with them. (Klavs has been back three times.)

Britta returned home Sunday. Gwen and Kristen, along with Campbell grandchildren Jim and Amanda Crawford, took her to the DFW airport where she boarded a plane for Denmark.

"I just have to come back," were her parting words.

Mrs. Jon Todd Darrow

Ronna Casey weds Jon Darrow

Mr. and Mrs. David Casey of Athens announce the marriage of their daughter, Ronna Danette, to Jon Todd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jon Darrow of Stephenville. The couple was married June 19 at Chapel on the Bosque in Stephenville. Kevan O'Banion officiated.

For the wedding, the bride wore a gown designed by Mori Lee-New York. The gown of silk-faced satin had a sweetheart neckline with Juliet sleeves fitted on the forearm to a puffed shoulder adorned with Alencon lace heavily beaded with pearls and sequined.

Bows underneath the puffed sleeve had dangling teardrop pearls attached. Double rows of seed pearls outlined the neckline and cuffs and the basque waist of the bodice which was adorned with Alencon lace, pearls and sequins. The full skirt was gathered and flowed into a cathedral train with cascades of pearl motifs of lace on the front and back. Lace motifs from the waist to the end of the cathedral train were separated by a small bow. The entire hemline was edged with a wide border of beaded lace. A candy box bow was attached at back below the waistline.

The bride's earrings were a gift from the groom and were a teardrop pearl beneath a swirl of tiny pearl. Her veil was a tiara of Alencon lace adorned with pearls and sequins. The two layers of the veil cascaded to fingertip length.

The bride's bouquet was made by Mrs. Casey and the bride's aunt, Patricia Malone. It was made of pink verigated roses, pink verigated mini-roses, traditional stephanosis, fuchsia carnations, white mini-daisies, white double ruffles, English ivy and iridescent gyp, with fuchsia and white ribbon with long streamers.

Something old was a lace handkerchief of the bride's great-grandmother Thompson, something new was her dress, something borrowed was a crocheted lace garter of Mrs. Casey's, something blue was the bride's garter. The father of the bride placed two pennies in the bride's shoe representing the bride and groom's birth years.

Matron of honor was Jackie Ratcliff of San Angelo, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Kristal Howard, sister of the bride, Amy Malone of Plano, cousin of the bride, and Kim Darrow of Stephenville, sister of the groom. Bridesmaids wore floor-length dresses of wild rose taffeta with a scooping back and three layers of ruffles flowing beneath a candy box bow. Each carried a single pink verigated rose with a pink bow on the stem.

The groom wore the "Maverick" style black tuxedo tails with black vest, black Wrangler's, black boots and black hat.

Groomsmen were Mark Darrow of Sheridan, Wyo., and Scott Darrow of Lubbock, brothers of the groom, Carl Holland and Todd Adams of Stephenville.

The outside of the chapel was decorated with pink bows. Guests were met at the historical chapel, built in 1899, by Miss Shelley Stancell, cousin of the groom. The registry was decorated with antique lace and pink roses in an antique milk glass pitcher.

The bride and groom met before an arch decorated with ivy, pink flowers and pink bows. On both sides of the arch were two pillars with ferns. Two more ferns were placed one arch side of the pillars. The pews were decorated with pink bows.

All flowers and decorations were made by Mrs. Casey and the bride's aunt, Patricia Malone of Plano.

The reception was held in the Center Grove Schoolhouse behind the chapel. The bride's cake was four-tiered and set in a spiral with pink roses lining each of its inner edges. The bride's bouquet was placed at the top of the spiral on the special-made stand. The bottom layer of cake had the bride and groom's names on front in a heart. Ivy was placed around the cake on the table, decorated with antique lace.

The groom's cake was a double layer chocolate, decorated with ivy.

Guests were served cake and mints on antique milk glass dishes and punch in milk glass cups. Serving at the table were Melanie Darrow, Kristi Adams and Dana Pearson.

Grandparents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Condra of Abilene and the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Casey. Grandparents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Darrow of Stephenville and Mrs. Roy E. Stephens of Brownwood.

The newlyweds, both graduates of Tarleton State University, will live in Akerly. They will teach next year at Sands CISD.

The couple left on a cruise to Freeport and Nassau, Bahamas, for their honeymoon.

Out-of-state guests for the ceremony were Lucy Baucom of California, the bride's aunt, and Lezlie Mayne of Utah, cousin of the bride.

Goldthwaite picked best in Class 2-A

Area 2A football teams didn't get much respect from those participating in the annual Texas Sports Writers Association poll last week.

Unless you can enlarge "area" to include Goldthwaite.

The Eagles, who lost to Schulenburg in the state finals last year, were placed No. 1 in the pre-season rankings.

Except for Goldthwaite, however, the nearest team ranked in the writers' top 15 is Holliday, ranked No. 11.

The top teams, as seen by the writers:

1. Goldthwaite, 2. Paul Pewitt, 3. Boling, 4. Schulenburg, 5. Pilot Point, 6. Boyd, 7. Groveton, 8. Honey Grove, 9. Refugio, 10. Timpson, 11. Holliday, 12. (tie) McGregor and Thorndale, 14. New Waverly, 15. (tie) Mart, Springlake-Earth and Italy.

The top three teams in the other classifications included:

Class 5A: Converse Judson, Odessa Permian, Dallas Carter.

Class 4A: A&M Consolidated, Waxahachie, La Marque.

Class 3A: Southlake Carroll, Vernon, Sweeny.

Class 1A: Tenaha, Bartlett, Rankin.

72 attend reunion of Harrells

Seventy-two persons attended last weekend's reunion of descendants of Will, Ike, Nathan and Charlie Harrell.

The group included five first-generation offspring of the original four brothers--Viola Tidwell, Rollo Harrell, Dovie Carroll, Violet Allen and Nathan Harrell Jr.

A special tribute was given to the eight new babies born since July 1991.

Recognized for coming the greatest distance were the daughter and son-in-law of Daisy (Harrell) Smith, Linda and Howard Beckham, and their son Jared, who was the youngest in attendance.

At the business meeting, the group voted to give a love offering of $500 to the Willow Cemetery Association in memory of Will, Ike, Nathan and Charlie Harrell.

A fun time was had by all at the crafts auction.

The group expressed appreciation to Junior and Margie Harrell, Jimmie and Francis Bowen, and Gene and Mike Harrell for their hard work.

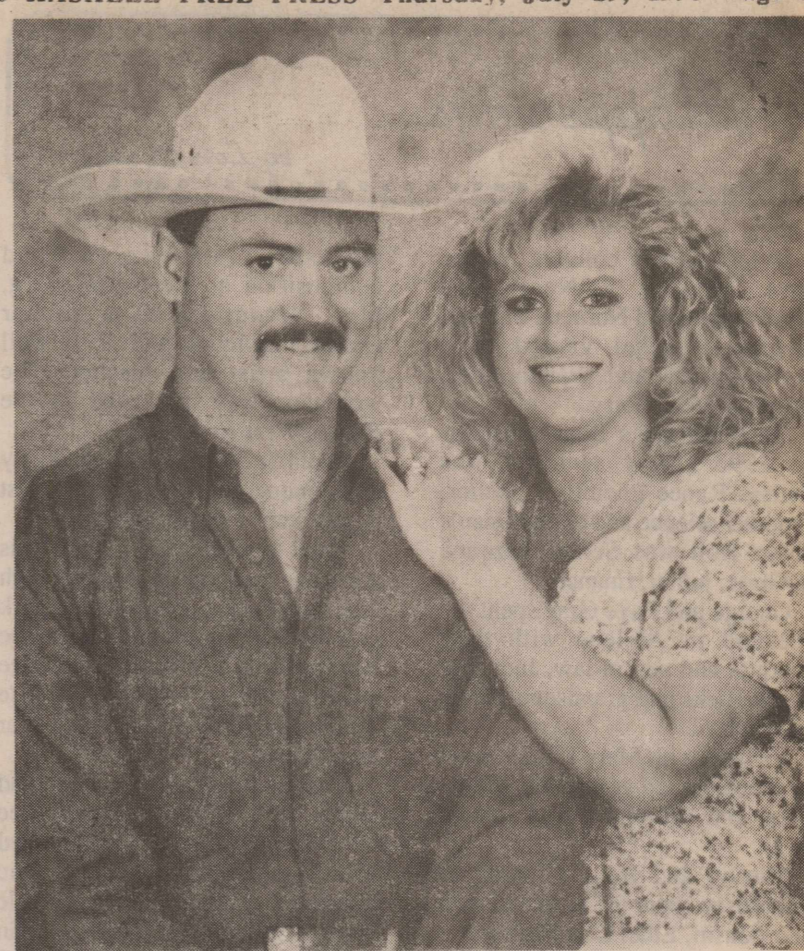

Noah volunteers help 21 women

Nineteen volunteers worked 736 hours in June, giving assistance to 21 women. They also handled a referral to the battering intervention program.

Donna Sue Anders, outreach coordinator, made that report at the July 9 meeting of the Noah Project-North advisory committee.

Sheila McMeans, fund-raising chairperson, reported on final plans for the Super 2nd Saturday garage sale. A special guest was Sherri Abec, administrative director of Noah, Inc.

Members of the Noah Project are available to give presentations to groups upon request. For information, call 864-2551.

LaNell Trussell attends clinic for screeners

LaNell Trussell attended a recent screener's clinic for Scopic Sensitivity Syndrome (SSS) in Ardmore, Okla.

The clinic was designed to certify people who hold degrees in education as screeners for SSS.

SSS is a perceptual problem in which an individual does not see the printed page the same way as a proficient reader does because of difficulty in efficiency of processing full-spectrum light. It is impacted by glare, luminance, nerve length and black/white contrast.

SSS is not detected by visual examinations, educational and psychological evaluations and other school-related tests. Problems are not corrected by remediation, skill building, vision training, diet control or drug therapies.

The screening process takes about an hour and determines if an individual has SSS and what can be done to help one who exhibits symptoms of SSS.

Anyone interested in finding out more about SSS may contact Ms. Trussell in Rule at 997-2571, P.O. Box 521.

Ms. Trussell graduated in December from Hardin-Simmons University with a bachelor's degree in elementary education.

Mrs. Clark to retire from Stamford Co-op

Dorothy Clark will retire from Stamford Electric Cooperative Monday after 11 years employment. She began working for the co-op as a consumer accounts clerk on June 2, 1982, and has been cashier since July 1, 1985.

All friends are invited to attend a retirement reception in her honor from 2 to 4 p.m. on Friday, July 30, in the Stamford Electric Cooperative community room, 225 W. McHarg.

Mrs. Clark was born and raised in the Old Glory community, the daughter of Fritz and Emma Baitz. She graduated with honors from Old Glory High School and was employed by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in Stamford for a year prior to her marriage to Joe Clark of Sagerton.

The Clarks have lived in the Sagerton community since their marriage in 1946 and have engaged in farming. They owned and operated a grocery store for a number of years before it was destroyed by fire in 1962.

They take an active part in all community activities and are charter members of the Sagerton Hee Haw. It was Mrs. Clark who conceived the idea for the Hee Haw back in 1971. She directed it for 15 years and she and her husband have continued to take an active part in the show each year.

Prior to her employment with Stamford Electric Cooperative, Mrs. Clark worked for the Credit Bureau of Stamford, operated a beauty shop in Sagerton for four years, drove a school bus and helped her husband at the Sagerton Gin and Nine Point Grain Elevator during harvest time. --Library Notes--

By Joan Strickland

It is about time for the summer reading program to come to an end. We will have our final program Aug. 4 when Sara Dulancy will read and we will have cookies and punch and present the certificates.

If you have your reading logs complete please bring them by the library so I can begin preparing the certificates. You have to turn in your reading logs in order to receive a certificate. If it's not full, that is fine. Just remember I have to have them in order to give you a certificate this year.

Our program this year has been very successful. We've had Oscar the Grouch, Wild Things, Puppy Dogs and visited a Secret Garden. If you missed our program this summer be sure and watch for us next summer. We have good times at summer reading.

I would like to thank the Eoline Grissom estate for their wonderful donation of books. Also thank you Margaret Radliff for your donation of books, and to John and Sally Cox, thank you so much for your donation.

We have a few who have not been feeling well and we hope you will be back with us soon at the library. Please know you are missed: "Little" Eva Speer, D. N. Foil and Alice Wooten.

The fund for the copy machine is coming along nicely. Please feel free to donate to our copy fund any time. We may start a fund for adding on a room next--who knows? We are growing with your help and support.

Monique Ferris, thank you so much for helping at the library this summer. All will miss you.

Memorial donations: Buck Everett, Dr. Hazel Weaver, Ruth Chambers Cox, Sally White Turner.

See you at the library.

Thank you for reading the Haskell Free Press

Administrators attend conference

Haskell school administrators Jim Lisle, Greg Melton and Billie McKeever attended the Texas School Initiative Institute in Dallas June 30-July 2.

Aim of the conference was to train administrators to become peer evaluators as part of the accreditation process for Texas schools.

Conference participants were briefed on new legislation and state board rules and how these will impact accreditation.

Training consisted of examination of Academic Excellence Indicator information, school report card data, interviewing techniques, and collecting data.

Each administrator will serve as a member of a peer evaluator team which will make on-site accreditation visits to schools selected by the Texas Education Agency.

Bulge veterans to re-unite

Veterans of the Battle of the Bulge will hold their 12th annual reunion Sept. 15-18 in Bismarck, N.D.

Called by many as "America's greatest battle," the Battle of the Bulge was fought during the bitter cold and snow of the heavily forested Ardennes area of eastern Belgium and northern Luxembourg from Dec. 16, 1944 through Jan. 25, 1945. American forces suffered 81,000 casualties, included 19,000 killed.

For information about the reunion, write to VBOB, Box 11129-P, Arlington, VA 22210-2129.
