Features of the machine include: Automatically takes blood pressure and pulse at set intervals -- will take blood pressure and pulse every minute, every five minutes, every 30 minutes, up to 90 minutes; may be used on adults, children and infants; may be used on trauma patients; when giving blood transfusions; patients receiving medication for high blood pressure or low blood pressure; also may be used taking routine blood pressure and pulse; cardiac patients.

The monitor is also on stand-by battery operation and stores previous blood pressures if needed. The purchase price of the unit was $3,337 and includes the monitor, stand with casters, tray and a set of blood pressure cuffs. Goals for the auxiliary for the coming year include: recruiting volunteers for the hospital and the Thrift Shop; organizing a Junior Auxiliary; and purchasing a Cardiac Monitor and Defibrillator for the emergency room and patient rooms at the hospital. FLBA of Haskell announces stock equalization

Members of the Federal Land Bank Association (FLBA) of Haskell received over $700,000 through dividends and equalization of stock on Sept. 13. "Funds for the dividend and stock equalization have been made possible by the strong financial condition of the Association, as well as strong earnings for 1994," said Dale Bullinger, President of the FLBA of Haskell which makes long term loans on agricultural land and rural homes. The board of directors of the FLBA of Haskell declared a 15 percent dividend to its stockholders of record on July 1, 1995. The total dividend to be paid to the holders of stock and participation certificates is $343,490. In addition, the Association has announced an equalization of stock to 5 percent of the outstanding principal balance of each loan as of Sept. 1. FLBA stock is issued at 5 percent of the loan amount at the time the loan is closed and in the past has remained at that amount until the loan is paid in full. This stock equalization will return another $357,140 to the FLBA's borrowers for a total refund of $700,630. The FLBA of Haskell is part of the nationwide Farm Credit System and has approximately $40 million in loans outstanding to farmers and ranchers in the counties of Haskell,

Jones, Knox and Baylor. Their office is located at 550 South Second in Haskell. Lavon Beakley of Rule serves as Chairman of the Board of Directors with Ernest Beck of Red Springs serving as Vice-Chairman. Other board members are Macky Spurgin

Haskell gets much needed rain

Haskell was hit with heavy rainfall the first part of the week as reports of one-half inch of rain fell Sunday night, followed by another 2-1/2 to 3 inches on Monday. Approximately another one-half inches of rain fell Tuesday morning, bringing a reported total of 3-1/2 to 4 inches of rain in a 2-1/2 day period. The official rainfall report from KVRP was .54 for Sunday night and 2.07 for Monday. And along with the rains, came falling temperatures. By Tuesday at noon, the thermometer had begun to fall even though the weather bureau at Abilene stated that the cold front would not hit until sometime Tuesday night. The storm on Monday also brought lightning strikes to some parts of the town. Keith Hannsz reported lightning striking a radio antennae and hot water heater at his home on North 19th St. The lightning strike also knocked siding off of part of the house. Other houses in that area also reported lightning strikes causing disruption of telephones and television service.

The city of O'Brien sales tax rebate for September was $33.16 in comparison to $0 in the same period of 1994. Rochester's sales tax rebate percentage could not be computed, but the figures show $350.54 for September in comparison to $0 for the same period in 1994. 1995 payments to date of $6,591.75 show an increase of 17.60 percent over 1994 payments to date of $5,605.07. Rule had a 40.02 percent increase with September sales tax rebate of $1,398.84 compared to $999.00 for the same period in 1994. However, 1995 payments to date of $14,905.03 is a 1.88 percent decrease over 1994 payments to date of $15,190.71.

COMPUTER FRAUD: WHAT CAN YOU DO TO PREVENT IT?

As the use of computers increases, so does the opportunity for fraud. A single computer may give access to tens of thousands of business records, greatly multiplying an employee's productivity, but also multiplying the power to cause harm. And when computers are linked into a network and connected to phone lines for outside access, the potential for damage increases exponentially.

Most fraud falls into one of two categories: problems caused by unauthorized access, or misdeeds by an authorized user of the system. An unauthorized user may change or delete records, steal information, create false transactions, or even plant a virus in your system. The first line of defense is to establish and carefully control passwords. Don't be afraid to set and enforce strict rules. Passwords shouldn't be obvious—for example, a user's initials or first name—and they should be changed at regular intervals. Set a policy against sharing passwords on a slip of paper taped to their desk, as happens in too many companies. Change passwords automatically whenever an employee quits.

Even though passwords provide good protection, you should expect them to be defeated. Make sure your system keeps a record of access attempts, and make sure your computer specialist reviews the reports regularly. Then, even if your defenses are breached, you will know about it and can take counter-measures.

The second type of fraud, where an authorized employee is deliberately falsifying records, is harder to detect. Here you must fall back on the typical internal controls for any business system—segregating duties so one employee can't control the whole process, careful review of reports, and enforcing vacations so a different employee runs the system for a while.

Progressive Study Club

By Oleta Cornelius

The Haskell National Bank Community Room was a kaleidoscope of color on Thursday night, Sept. 14, when the Progressive Study Club of Haskell met for their first meeting of the 1995-96 year with a finger food buffet and book review. President Nancy Toliver called the meeting to order and welcomed members and one guest, Geneva Stone. Grace was said by Billie Cannon.

The serving table was laid with a white cloth and held an assortment of kaleidoscopes as the centerpiece and spangles of glitter down the center of the table. An assortment of finger sandwiches, fruit, cheese, crackers and pastries was served to members with iced tea.

The speakers table held a large assortment of different kinds of kaleidoscopes with a large fall wreath on the podium. Pledge to the American flag was led by Anita Herren and pledge to the Texas flag by Frances Gray.

Mattie English introduced Sammie Turner as speaker for the evening. Mrs. Turner, wife of Rev. Jim Turner, pastor of First Baptist Church of Haskell, is Sunday School teacher and Ladies Bible Class. She and her husband have two sons, one daughter and seven grandchildren. She told the group that after her husband went into the ministry and had been preaching for 38 years, they had moved eight times and her life had been turned and changed many times like a kaleidoscope, leading into her book review, "Kaleidoscope Renaissance," by Cozy Baker.

The life of Sir David Brewster revealed in the book that he was a child prodigy. Born in the Scottish Lowland in 1781, he constructed a telescope at age 10. Endowed with natural scientific abilities, he was far beyond his peers and had an exceptional aptitude for learning. His family decreed he should study for the ministry in the church of Scotland.

At age 12, he entered the University of Edinburgh and at age 19, received an Honorary Master of Arts which gave him a license to preach as a minister of the Scottish established church. However, his first sermon proved to be his last as it made him so nervous with people eyeing him and he didn't like the sound of his own voice. It turned out to be a good thing for science as he turned his talents to optics and for 12 years did a series of experiments which were published.

At age 26, he received a Doctor of Letter from the University of Aberdeen and served as editor of Edinburgh Encyclopedia for 20 years. In 1811, working on lenses, he developed the brilliant light used by lighthouses on the sea coasts.

In the years that followed, he received numerous awards and prizes and was admitted to the Royal Society of London. At age 35, he invented the kaleidoscope and applied for a patent. Due to a fault with patent registration, they were quickly manufactured by others and sold by hundreds of thousands. He did not receive any financial success from the discovery.

In 1923, he was a corresponding member of the Institute of France and Royal Academics of Russia, Prussia, Sweden, Denmark, and in 1849, he edited the Edinburgh Encyclopedias. He was knighted in 1832 and even though he was a brilliant scholar and scientist, he remained a poorly paid teacher. His lifelong love of nature's beauty, abiding Christian faith and the ability to translate what he learned into the written word that even children could understand, endured him to all. He lived to 87 years of age.

In 1988, an exhibit of various kaleidoscopes was put on display by the Smithsonian Institution. The various ways they were made and the objects used were very interesting. At the conclusion of her talk, small kaleidoscopes were handed out to members and guests.

Marjorie Huss, chairman of the Yearbook Committee, with the assistance of Kay Croft and Thula Perry, handed out the 1995-96 yearbooks with the club's theme of the year, "A Kaleidoscope of Opportunities." Moving rapidly in many objects describes the kaleidoscope; and quoting from the preface of the book, "By unified effort, as each individual accepts her responsibility for contributing interest, time, energy and creativity, we can make a difference in the picture that our kaleidoscope reflects back to the society we live in. United together, we can achieve our goals as we present a three-dimensional, balanced mingling of minds, hands and hearts; as we will be "doers," not merely "viewers" in our world."

Jerrene Couch, Second Vice-President, handed members their tickets and work assignments for the Chicken Spaghetti Supper to be held Friday, Oct. 27, from 5 to 7 p.m. in the Haskell High School cafeteria. Advance tickets will be $5 and $5.50 at the door. All proceeds are used by the club for civic projects and scholarships.

Federation Counselor's Report was given by Erma Liles who reminded members of the state Fall Board Meeting hosted by the Mesquite Dist. and to be held at the Kiva Inn in Abilene, Sept. 21-23.

President Toliver displayed items for ditty bags to be given at the convention and asked members assistance in filling the bags, following the conclusion of the meeting. The Haskell Progressive Study Club will be responsible for the decorations of Friday morning's breakfast at the convention. She also commended the club on the eight state awards won by the club for the 1994-95 year.

The next meeting on Oct. 12, will be a business meeting for the Study Club.

The meeting was adjourned. Hostesses for the evening were members of the Social and Yearbook Committees.

Brazos West Art Club

The Brazos West Art Club met Monday, Sept. 11, at 7 p.m. at the Haskell National Bank Community Room for a salad supper. Ruth Jackson, a cartoon artist from Abilene, gave an interesting demonstration on the art of painting cartoons.

A short business meeting was conducted with Fern Livengood presiding. The minutes were read by Denia Cunningham. Ruth Ann Klose gave the treasurer's report. Fern Livengood explained the new attractive yearbooks which were made by Doris Jordan.

Two new members, Ella Rogers and Dorthea Monroe and one visitor, Shirley Burgeson from Lubbock, were introduced. Members present were Doris Jordan, Ruth Ann Klose, Denia Cunningham, Florence Larned, Peggy Middlebrook, Anita Herren, Iva Lee Gipson and Gladys O'Neal.

Anyone who is interested in different types of art, is welcome to join the art club. Interesting and well-known artists, from all over Texas, present guest demonstrations at each of our meetings.

Genealogical Society

Officers Steven Turnbow and Wanda Ham, of the Haskell County Historical and Genealogical Society, have just replenished the historical contents of the display cases in our courthouse. They were also successful in negotiating to have a second display case placed next to the first, located on the main floor of the courthouse.

The first case was placed there last April, beneath three different pictures of the courthouse donated by the Society, each depicting the structure as it has changed in appearance over the years.

The Society gladly accepts and encourages the donation of historical artifacts of interest pertaining to Haskell County heritage, such as: early pictures of our city, old merchant calendars or catalogues, the earliest issues of our newspapers, any fossils or arrowheads found within the county, photos of our earliest county officials and especially any pictures of passenger trains seen in the county.

When citizens donate or loan any of these items, the Society will ensure their preservation and consider placing them in the display cases in the courthouse. A donor or loan card may be placed in the display next to the item. All donated and loaned materials should be approximately fifty years old and may either be mailed or delivered in person to the Society, in care of the County Library, at 300 N. Ave. E., Haskell, TX 79521. The Society appreciates your support.

WORSHIP TOGETHER

The freedom of the press is one of the great bulwarks of liberty.
—George Mason

"Publish and set up a standard; publish and conceal not."
—Jeremiah 50:2

WE SELDOM THINK ABOUT WHAT THIS NEWSPAPER DOES FOR US

If you're reading this, you're holding a newspaper in your hands, or else it's spread out on the table before you. Most of us will read or flip through a newspaper without thinking of all the things it does for us. It informs us of what's going on in the world, the nation, or at least in our home community; depending on its scope. It entertains us, with comics, amusing feature articles, and challenging crossword and perhaps other kinds of puzzles. It advises us on matters of health, finances, and many other areas of our lives. We can read the opinions of everyone from syndicated columnists to our own neighbors. We learn the schedules of each House of Worship through the directory. All of these things, including this newspaper itself, symbolize the freedom we enjoy in our great land.

Bobwhite Brigade seeking a few good men and women

Texas has the finest quail hunting found anywhere, and one group is working to see that it stays that way, forever.

The Bobwhite Brigade, a quail "camp" for high school youth, has trained more than 100 ambassadors for quail conservation since its inception in 1993.

Dr. Dale Rollins, San Angelo-based wildlife specialist and Bobwhite Brigade coordinator, says that the innovative quail corps is looking for "a few good men and women" for its 4th Battalion. The 4th Battalion will muster at the Krooked River Lodge north of Abilene during June 23-27, 1996.

"We take 30 cadets from throughout Texas and put them through their paces at this quail version of 'boot camp.' The kids leave well-versed in quail management, conservation and leadership skills," he says.

Cadets learn about bobwhites from the inside out and learn to develop a birdseye view of habitat management. The hands-on curriculum involves using radio telemetry, diet analyses and habitat evaluations.

Graduates of the rigorous training agree to conduct at least three educational programs on quail conservation in their local communities. Many have conducted more than 20 presentations, including civic groups, news articles and television appearances.

Texas youth who are currently high school freshmen through juniors are encouraged to apply for the 1996 camp. Cost for the five-day camp is $125 per cadet. Applications are available by writing to Rollins at Bobwhite Brigade, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, 7887 North Hwy. 87, San Angelo, TX 76901, or calling 915-653-4576.

Beef cattle numbers continue to grow

Cattle herds in the United States continue to grow, meaning low meat prices for consumers for up to two more years. Extension Livestock Economist Dr. Ernie Davis says the mid-year inventory survey shows 114-million head of cattle in the U.S. - up two percent from last year. That's the largest total number of cattle since 1985.

Davis says people raising cattle right now should really look at their herd, and cull hard this fall. That way you reduce the number of cows having calves and by the time heifers reach breeding maturity in 1998, the market may have recovered.

He advises ranchers to manage and market their cattle more efficiently and be patient for the market to turn around. Davis says right now when you combine beef, pork and poultry production, there are record supplies of meat. What it means for the consumer is that good deals on meat will continue.

Davis says to look for more specials on beef this fall and expect those lower meat prices into 1997.

Haskell Livestock Auction Report

The market at the Haskell Livestock Auction was a run of 1405 head of cattle at its sale on Saturday, Sept. 16, according to Gary Tate, reporter. The market was fully steady on all classes of stocker and feeder cattle. Bred cows and pairs were $50 to a $100 cheaper. Packer cows and bulls were $1 to $2 lower. 150 yearlings have been consigned for next week.

Cows: fat, .28-.32; cutters, .30-.36; canners, .25-.34.

Bulls: bologna, .40-.46; feeder, .55-.65; utility, .40-.50.

Steers: medium and large frame No. 1 200-300 lbs., .70-.85; 300-400 lbs., .65-.82; 400-500 lbs., .60-.75; 500-600 lbs., .58-.68;

600-700 lbs., .58-.66; 700-800

lbs., .57-.625; 800-up lbs., .50-.60.

Heifers: medium and large frame No. 1 200-300 lbs., .65-.75; 300-400 lbs., .57-.67; 400-500 lbs., .55-.65; 500-600 lbs., .55-.60; 600-up lbs., .48-.58.

Bred Heifers: medium frame, $300-$400.

Bred Cows: young to middle aged, $450-$550; aged or small, $300-$450.

Cows with calves: medium frame No. 1 young and middle aged, $550-$700; small or aged, $400-$450.

Tate said, "All plain and full cattle were $5 to $10 lower than quoted prices. It's time to get the very best bull you can buy."

Creating better tomatoes

The Flav'r Sav'r tomato was originally promoted for being a riper, longer-lasting tomato that would revolutionize the produce business. A year after it was introduced to consumers, Calgene - the company that bred the new tomato - is concentrating distribution on the East and West coasts.

According to Dr. Jim Giovannoni, assistant horticulture professor with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, the Flav'r Sav'r isn't the perfect tomato, but it is a good start. The taste didn't really improve, but the longer shelf life is a plus.

Giovannoni says the challenge now is to create a better tasting tomato that isn't mushy. Since tomatoes and tomato products are big business in the U.S., there is a real race to improve them. Texas A&M is in the running, with researchers identifying some of the genes that control texture. That way, the tomato can ripen on the vine and still be firm when it gets to the market.

Giovannoni estimates that could take just another year. But it'll be closer to the turn of the century before enough tomatoes can be produced to clear government regulations and appear in the stores.
