Indians shut out Stamford 14-0

"How sweet it is," was the thought on every Indian fan's mind after Haskell's Fri. night 14-0 win over Stamford. Using the ball possession, ground control game that they are starting to perfect, the Indians dominated every aspect of the game against the Bulldogs. The 200 yards rushing did Stamford in.

The lone touchdown in the first half of play was scored by fullback Jason Hobgood on an 11 yard run.

September sales tax receipts reflect small increases

State Comptroller John Sharp delivered a total of $180.5 million in monthly sales tax payments to 1,092 Texas cities and 118 counties, a 4.5 percent increase over the $172.7 million allocated in September 1997.

September's rebates include local sales taxes collected on July sales and reported to the Comptroller in August by businesses filing monthly tax returns.

"Sales across nearly all of Texas picked up the pace in July," Sharp said. "Rebates to cities and counties are up 10.7 percent over the first nine months of last year." Sharp delivered monthly sales tax rebates totaling $164.7 million to Texas cities, 4.5 percent higher than last September's payments of $157.6 million. Rebates of $15.8 million to Texas counties were 4.5 percent higher than allocations of $15.1 million in September 1997. Another $5.2 million went to 34 special purpose districts around the state.

Haskell County had a .88 percent increase for September, 1998 of $25,541.62 in comparison to $25,317.82 for September, 1997. 1998 payments to date of $268,731.60 reflect a 6.18 percent increase over 1997 payments to date of $253,074.09.

The City of Haskell had a 1.28 percent increase for September, 1998 of $23,952.91 in comparison to $23,648.19 for September, 1997. 1998 payments to date of $247,357.74 reflect a 8.09 percent increase over 1997 payments to date of $228,833.44.

O'Brien had a 30.76 percent decrease for September, 1998 of $70.32 in comparison to $101.57

The Indian defense, giving up only 107 yards of total offense to the Bulldogs, dominated the entire first half, giving up only one first down.

The second half started with Stamford quickly grinding out three first downs. Haskell's defense kept them out of the end zone however, and with only 6:37 left in the game, the Indians added another TD with Hobgood again reaching the end zone on a five yard run. Joseph Phemister's two point conversion run gave Haskell the 14-0 lead. A last Bulldog attack was curbed by the Indian defense.

Haskell's crushing game was led by fullback Hobgood, with 18 carries for 75 yards. Quarterback Jason Trammell had 48 yards in 13 carries, fullback Chad Brendle had two carries for 22 yards, Joseph Phemister had 10 carries for 33 yards, and Micah New had two carries for four yards.

According to the coaching staff, the defensive player of the game had to be defensive end Andy Hudspeth. Starting in place of injured Billy Bible, Hudspeth made numerous tackles and saved the day more than once. Coaches added that the entire defense unit played a heads-up game as evidenced by the shut-out.

Now 2-1 for the young season, the Indians will play the 3-0 state-ranked Aspermont Hornets at Indian Field, Fri. night at 8:00 p.m.

Head Coach Don Flippin said that Aspermont has a very good team and has played good competition. "We expect a very good ball game with them," he said.

sets the stage for a "coming together" of the community. Work on the school building was begun several weeks ago and is making progress. Yards and vacant lots are being groomed, windows are being washed and shined, streets are being repaired and everyone seems to be doing a little extra exercise or on a diet in an effort to have everything in top shape to welcome the return of ex-students, teachers and friends to our town and school.

The community combines its time, talents and resources to provide a weekend for everyone to lay aside their cares and obligations and just reminiscence of days gone by, renew friendships and enjoy the atmosphere of the people and place which at once influenced their character, ambitions and existence.

Activities being planned for the weekend include lots of visitation and good food. Also planned is a parade, program hosted by ex-students, community worship service, a "Made in Weinert" quilt to be given away, bingo and a dance. More information on each activity will be released later. Although these activities are an effort of the community, we could never succeed without the help of our neighbors to the North, South and West that have also played a part in the establishment of our roots.

A major "coming together" has been planned for Sat., Sept. 26 at 8:00 a.m. to clean the school building and grounds.

Washing hands is important

The simple act of washing the hands with soap several times a day could be the best way to avoid transmitting hepatitis A, a highly contagious viral disease that attacks the liver.

Hepatitis A is contracted through contact—usually through food or hand-to-mouth—with something contaminated with the feces of someone infected with the virus. That is why it is important to wash hands after using the toilet or changing a diaper and why restaurant employees should follow hygiene policies to avoid transmitting the disease during food handling.

"Although washing hands seems like a small task, it is an important step in preventing transmission of the disease," says Dr. William Lee, professor of internal medicine at UT Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas.

Although some infected people, especially children, may have no symptoms, Hepatitis A symptoms include fever, appetite loss, nausea, and jaundice and usually last about four weeks.

OPINION

The Inside
Out

By Mary Kaigler

"If one advances confidently in the direction of his dreams, and endeavors to live the life which he has imagined, he will meet with a success in common hours."

This thought written by Henry David Thoreau has certainly played out as being true in the life of Billy Walker of San Antonio, in his dream of seeing a museum established to preserve the history of the early pharmacies which were such an important part of the life of every community.

Although even today drug stores remain an important part of the business life of any town, they may have changed more than any other type of business in the role they have played in the community of the past.

In small towns such as the one I grew up in, drug stores were the focal gathering and lingering place. Dispensing sodas and syrup pepsin, they served our needs for a place for fellowship with others as well as filling the medicinal orders of the country doctor. Who can forget, before the days of drive-ins, the fun of parking in front of the local drug store, honking for curb service, and drinking cherry cokes? Indeed, the drug store was for us a place for all reasons.

The memorabilia involved in the evolution of the drug store in this country make up a monument to an interesting segment of our collective history. A museum dedicated to housing and preserving it seems like a great idea.

A number of years ago when our nephew-in-law, Billy Walker began to talk about his idea and his collection of old bottles and antique objects connected with the history of pharmacy, the magnitude of what it would entail to develop made it sound like "the impossible dream." His being a retired, successful representative of Wyeth Pharmaceutical Company, it seemed a natural enough hobby for him to pursue. But Bill had something more than just a hobby in mind; something that he strongly felt needed to be done.

While filling his garage and several storage sheds at his home with the extensive collection he had amassed, he began to seek the interest of others in establishing a Pharmacy Museum to preserve the relics of that era that has fast been made obsolete by new technology and medical breakthroughs. His hopes to locate it in San Antonio somehow never came through for him, despite months and years of trying.

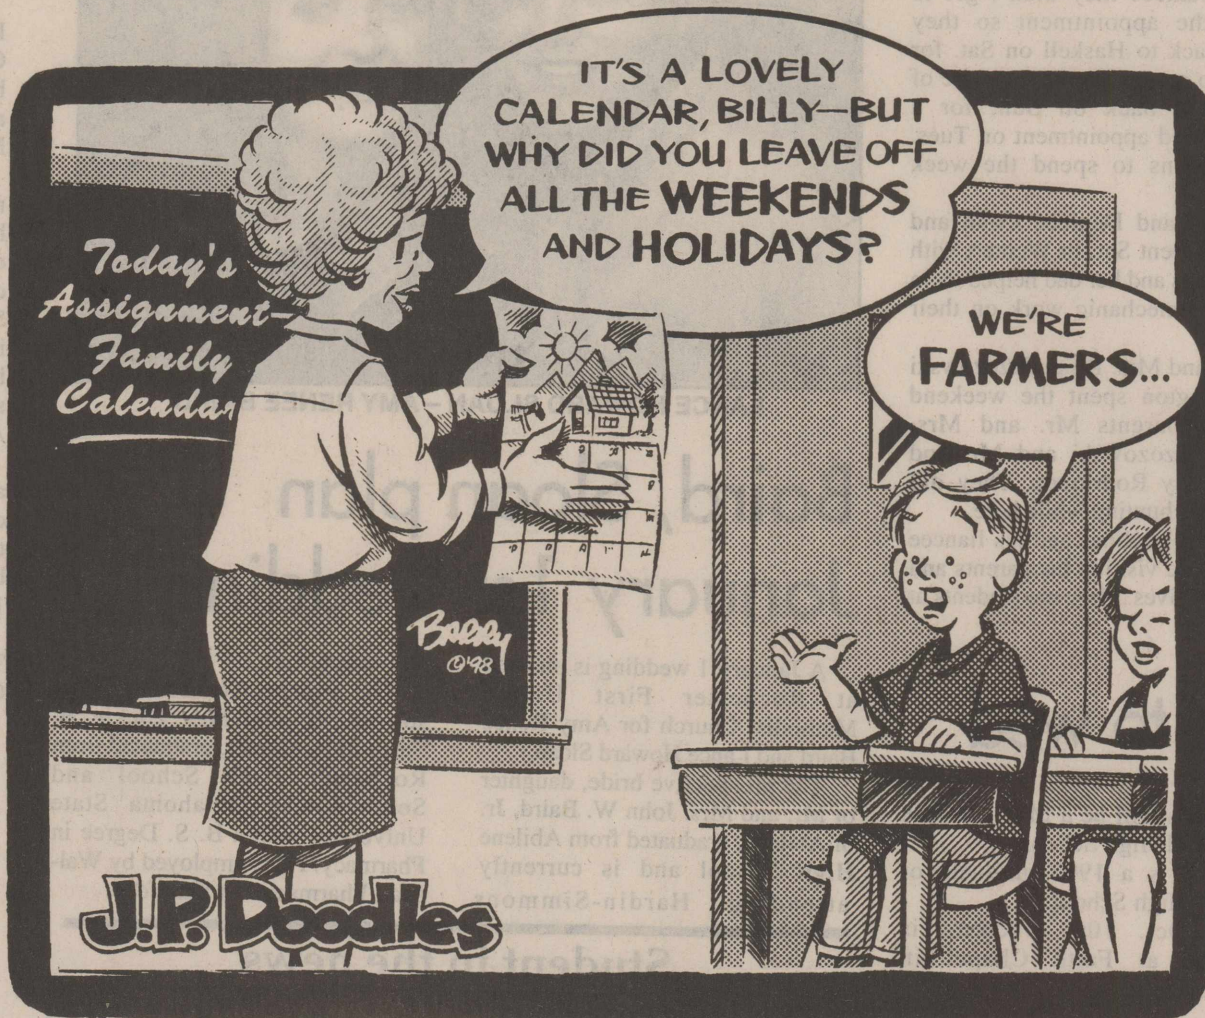

Now, we are happy to learn that by working with the Texas Pharmacy Foundation, his dream is being realized through the establishment of the Texas Pharmacy Museum nearing completion in Amarillo at the Texas Tech School of Pharmacy there.

Billy met and married our niece, Rochester native Carmen Sue Kay when they were both students at Texas Tech. A 1952 graduate of Rochester High School, Carmen is the daughter of the late Lillian Kaigler and Charles Kay.

When Bill began to criss-cross the country in his quest for old drug store items, he often stopped in Haskell and shared news of his findings. During the week-end of the auction of items from the Johnson Pharmacy here, he acquired some interesting things from it and also copies of old prescription, etc., from the old Oates Drug Store. Doyle High contributed many interesting, valuable old objects and chemicals to the collection as well.

Bill has been working at the Amarillo site of the Museum for months, going home to San Antonio only occasionally. As word of the museum has filtered out, he said donations have flowed in from all over the country. One woman has donated a "complete heavy marble and brass soda fountain. Even after being shipped from the West Coast, it is still in good working order. Appropriately, it will be set up and used in the student's dining area at the pharmacy school in Amarillo; he said.

Thoreau was right. Persistence and a patient labor of love has paid off in success for Billy Walker's dream.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — The Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission now has the authority to administer a statewide wastewater and sludge management program.

Authority was granted by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, effective Sept. 16.

TNRCC officials said the agency will implement a Texas version of the federal program that formerly covered all permitting, inspections, effluent monitoring, public assistance and enforcement powers over sludge and wastewater pretreatment and discharges from:

- Industrial and municipal wastewater treatment works;
- Concentrated animal feeding operations; and
- Runoff from industry, construction sites and city storm sewers.

In 1979, Texas began submitting applications to the EPA to gain control of its own wastewater management and oversight.

The federal agency has granted similar authority to 42 other states.

AG Addresses Sunset Review
Texas Attorney General Dan Morales recently wrote to legislators regarding the Texas Sunset

Commission's review of his agency's child support operations.

Morales asked for an expanded review of the child support program — beyond a decision whether the program should become a free-standing agency or remain within the purview of the attorney general or another state agency.

A private consultant hired by the Sunset Commission to review the program is planning to recommend that the child support function remain at the Office of the Attorney General, Morales wrote.

"If [however] it can be shown that a separate agency will streamline collections in our state, I will support such a recommendation," Morales wrote.

Moving the program will have no benefit, Morales wrote, if the collection process is not overhauled and additional resources are not provided.

Docket backlogs will increase as welfare clients move to the child support rolls, and the demand for services created by this increase will overwhelm existing resources within the program, he wrote.

"If we intend to keep pace with this burgeoning caseload which now exceeds one million cases,"

Morales wrote, "the Legislature must look seriously at significant increases in funding for child support operations."

Bush's Eyes Are on Texas
Last week, as the focus on President Clinton's public and personal life tightened, Gov. George W. Bush said a decision whether to run for president would hinge on his family's wishes.

Bush has been showing more concern with getting re-elected Nov. 3 and working with the 1999 state Legislature than with answering questions about his presidential aspirations.

Other Capital Highlights

■ The Texas Department of Criminal Justice is reviewing construction bids to rebuild the execution chamber at the Walls Unit in Huntsville. The interior of the single-story, red brick building in use since 1924 will be redesigned to increase seating in the viewing area to accommodate five witnesses for the condemned inmate and five survivors of the victim.

■ Austin Independent School District altered results of the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills test administered last spring to boost the ratings of three elementary schools, a private auditing firm reported. Last week, the Texas Education Agency lowered the schools' ratings in response to the auditors' findings.

■ The State Board of Education on Sept. 11 approved 85 new publicly funded charter schools. After the board took action, Texas Education Commissioner Mike Moses expressed concern that the issuing of so many new charters will make it hard for his staff to monitor all of the schools.

■ Freedom of Information Foundation of Texas honored retiring Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock with the 1998 James Madison Award, recognizing the career public servant for his support for and defense of First Amendment rights.

■ A July study by Dun & Bradstreet, the business consulting firm, rates the Austin-San Marcos area as the fifth-best spot in America for entrepreneurial activity. Ahead of Austin on the list were Monmouth/Ocean, N.J., Las Vegas and Salt Lake City (tie) and Orlando, Fla.

■ Gov. Bush was one of nine governors who called on the U.S. House last week to approve more visas for specially skilled foreign workers.

Legal Matters

By Attorney General Dan Morales

When I filed suit against the nation's largest tobacco companies in 1996, very few outside this office gave us much of a chance. The tobacco industry was famous for its undefeated record in court battles. Now, just over two years later, the people of Texas have become the beneficiaries of the largest victory in American legal history.

We won a record $17.3 billion dollars for our state. We succeeded in bringing to light decades of illegal maneuvering by the industry to conceal its research regarding the addictive nature of tobacco and the serious health consequences caused by its use. We placed major restrictions on how the tobacco industry can market its products, especially to our young people. Hopefully, we have ended the industry's practice of targeting our children as replacement smokers for those who die as a result of using their products.

Costly Delays
Our success did not come easy. Even after we announced our initial settlement in January, it became apparent that political wrangling among state leaders might jeopardize our victory. These unjustified delays were costing Texas some $15,000 a day in federal taxes and raising concerns about preserving the settlement. After efforts to mediate our differences were rejected, it became apparent that some of those who had intervened did not desire a quick resolution.

That's when I make one of my most difficult decisions as Attorney General. I filed a motion for sanctions against the intervenors and their lawyers to force the dispute back into court where all parties would be bound by the law, the evidence and the facts of this case. Disagreements about the tobacco settlement had to be removed from the political arena and returned to the judicial arena where it belonged.

As a part of our final settlement, I withdrew the motion for sanctions. But looking back, I know filing that motion proved to be the turning point in our efforts to end the political feuding that threatened our settlement. Soon after the motion was filed, negotiations for a resolution intensified and the settlement was quickly approved by all parties.

I applaud Governor Bush for his support of this final agreement and harbor no ill will against him or the other intervenors. Our intentions were strictly business, not personal. Because we were able to reach a settlement, the first year's payments from the tobacco industry are on the way to our state treasury where the money can be put to work improving the lives and health of our children and families.

Investing in Our Children's Future

A Memorandum of Understanding I signed with legislative leaders specifies how we intend the initial settlement dollars to be spent for public health. This agreement provides for the creations of permanent endowments within our state medical community for research as well as health care for those who cannot afford it. It calls for the funding of a much needed children's health insurance program for uninsured kids. The final settlement dedicates over $2.2 billion to be used to reimburse counties for medical care they provide to poor citizens. The settlement also provides for almost $680 million a year to the state budget for the next twenty five years.

The battle with Big Tobacco is over the citizens of Texas are the winners. This victory presents our leaders with an unprecedented opportunity to improve our state's commitment to public health, especially our children, without the need to raise taxes. Our success also provides leaders with an unexpected means to begin an endowment for our state's future while also addressing other important needs including education, public safety and transportation. I know they have the vision and resolve to see that this opportunity becomes reality. Let us join together in supporting them as they use this victory to lead our state into the next century.

The annual dove fry was held at Faith Lutheran Church Sunday night, Sept. 13 with the following enjoying a night of good food and fellowship: Pastor Jeff, Marie and Thomas Zell, J. B. and Dorothy Toney, Marvin and Verlene Stegemoeller, Michelle, Tarah, Clay and Megan Toney, Frieda Knippling, Lewis and Verlene Corzine, J. F. and Anita Dozier, Alvin and Alice Bredthauer, Doris Lehrmann, Mary Neinst, Meta Kupatt, Louis and Adeline Spitzer, Clancy and Helen Lehrmann, Buddy and Beverly Tredemeyer, Tami and Kami Baitz, Marchel and Barbara Nauert, Clayton, Paula and Michelle Stegemoeller, Robert Ace, Brenda, Sam Mathew, Joseph and Daniel Turner, Jack Jones, Odene Dudensing, Adela and Gene Teichelman, Ronnie, Kathy and Ross Teichelman and Hilda Kieke.

The Friendship Club met for its monthly dinner at Faith Lutheran Church last Thursday. The birthday son was sung for Joyce LeFevre, Ev Ulmer and Dorothy Toney. Enjoying the day together were: Delbert and Joyce LeFevre, Minnie Monse, Joe and Dorothy Clark, J. J. B. and Dorothy Toney were in Corpus Christi recently for the wedding of his nephew, Darren Guess. He was married to Shannon Morris. They also visited with Dorothy's sisters, Dahlia Perkins and Lois and Ed Peel of West Columbia. Besides enjoying visiting with all the relatives, the Toney's really enjoyed all the rain while there. We wish they could have brought some of it back with them.

Kevin Kimbro of Livingston, Bubba and Tammy Miller of Huntsville and Anna and Jeremy Willis of Montgomery spent the weekend in the home of Joe and Dorothy Clark. On Saturday night, Bubba and Jeremy participated in the rodeo at the West Texas Fair in Abilene. They both entered the bareback riding competition. They compete in rodeos all over Texas every weekend but had hard luck in Abilene. Bubba was the first contestant to ride and was thrown off early into his ride, falling hard and was taken to Hendrick Medical Center where he was treated for a possible sprained collar bone. He was released from the hospital and the group drove back home that night. Jeremy was disappointed too as he was thrown from his horse during the last half second before the buzzer. He had drawn the 1997 Champion Bucking Horse and had anticipated (while dreading) the ride

District-wide school survey results given

by Mary Kaigler

That large generation of children called Baby Boomers have grown up and have just been outnumbered.

This past summer the generation of children under 18, sometimes called the Millennium Generation, grew to 70.2 million, surpassing the previous high set by Baby Boomers in 1966. Unlike the Boom which began in 1946 and showed a definite downturn about 15 years later, the current increase gives no indication of ending in the near future.

This generation will no doubt redefine society in the 21st century just as the Baby Boomers shaped social, political, and economic changes for 50 years after World War II.

As could be expected, the impact of such a swell of growth will be certainly be felt in our schools, creating a challenge for educators and communities.

In a recent report of the findings in a Rural School Modernization Survey made by Congressman Charles Stenholm, to find out if we are prepared in the 17th District to continue providing children with a safe learning environment and if the appropriate learning tools are there to allow them to graduate and compete in the emerging global marketplace.

The 32 counties surveyed include 106 independent school districts and 403 K-12 public schools. A majority (203) of the principals from these elementary and secondary schools responded.

Some of the survey results reported by Stenholm include:

*Approximately one-quarter of the responding schools are 50 years or older

*Threats to learning mentioned included; the environment (such as traffic surrounding the school)-13%; drugs-12%; violence-9%.

*More than a third of the respondents currently face an overcrowding problem; an additional 13% anticipate further crowding in the next 10 years.

"With the under-18 age group growing, it's clear that our education systems will be pressed to meet new demands," Stenholm noted.

Among the conclusions reached by the findings of the survey which focused on physical and technological questions was the fact that the number one wish of the responding principals would be to see increased parental involvement in the education of every child.

"Children who enter the classroom with the self-confidence borne of parental support, who have learned the basic values of honesty, courtesy and personal responsibility, who are disciplined to pursue their studies at home, are children who succeed and excel at school," Stenholm's report pointed out. "While educators can supplement those qualities, only families can ensure them."

A comparison of Haskell County school facilities to the other 31 district counties is as follows:

	Haskell County	Other Counties
Avg. Classroom Age (years)	28	31
Date of Initial Construction (avg.)	1966	1948

Quail Appreciation Days planned during October

by Greg Kaase
Haskell Co. Extension Agent
Everyone loves quail...one way or the other. To show how far appreciation goes for the birds, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service has planned a series of October "Quail Appreciation Days."
"Our aim is for participants to 'appreciate' the various components of quail management needed to produce bobwhite and scaled quail populations to the degree that a good bird dog can appreciate the results come this November," said Dr. Dale Rollins, Extension Wildlife Specialist here and the series coordinator. "We've had appreciation days for other species in the past that have been very successful. The quail series will offer research updates, troubleshooting habitat problems and other hands-on activities like quail necropsies, dummy nest transects and plant identification."

According to Rollins, quail and quail hunting are becoming especially valuable commodities. "Texas is the last stronghold for wild quail hunting and I want to ensure that area ranchers 'appreciate' the importance of quail habitat as a potential revenue stream" he said, noting that in some areas ranchers may glean more from a quail hunting lease than from a livestock grazing lease. Rollins said the four sites are all on area ranchers with successful, long-term quail management plans. The dates, locations and County Extension Agent contacts are: Oct. 1, Jamie Currie Ranch, Glasscock County, contact - Steve Sturtz, (915) 354-2381; Oct. 6, Sherman Hammond Ranch, Pecos County, contact - Zan Matthies, (915) 336-2541; Oct. 14, Newell Ranch, Shackelford County, contact - Rocky Vinson (915) 762-2233 and Oct. 20, Angelo State University Ranch, Tom Green County, contact - Jeff Ripley (915) 659-6524.

Registration for any one of the four program sites is $10 per person if registration is made seven days prior to the event. Registration thereafter and at the door is $20. The fee covers lunch, refreshments and handout materials. Rollins said the appreciation theme stems from past programs dealing with predators, feral hogs and cedar. The term "appreciation" refers to "judging with heightened awareness" and being "critically or sensitively aware of."

For further information on the series, contact Dale Rollins at (915) 653-4576, or Texas Agricultural Extension Office, 7887 US Highway 87 N, San Angelo, Texas 76901-9714.

Haskell Class of 2001 elects officers

The Sophomore class of Haskell High School has elected their new officers for the year. The following colorful report of the occasion was written by class reporter Jimmy Huff, who very well may be a budding creative writer. The Free Press editor decided to share it as written. In his own words, sophomore reporter Jimmy Huff writes:

As we mingle with other mortals in the halls of the subculture we call "high school", there are unanswered questions that arise. For example, "Should I dye my hair? Does she like, like me? What really goes on in the teacher's lounge?" These questions are uttered by many of the student body. However, perhaps the most important question is, "Who are the class leaders for the Class of 2001?" Well, maybe not, but it adds to the effect of this article.

On the twenty-eighth of August, at eight o'clock in the morning, a cry for political soundness shrilled and echoed through the ears of sophomores and compelled many to immediately throw aside their activities and vote. That could be a slightly exaggerated statement, but here are the results of the voting that took place. The job of handling the finances of our class was given to Deshea Phemister who was elected treasurer. Tom Fouts is serving as president, with Paige Hagadone right by his side, serving as vice president. A pen fills the void of emptiness of Dan Fouts' fingers as he dynamically and enthusiastically serves as secretary. Referring to myself in the third person, I'll say that Jimmy Huff is serving as class reporter.

The co-activity chairpersons are Jeff Blanks and Amanda Perry. Since the sophomore class fundraising will be manning the concession stand at the home basketball games, they will be busy overseeing those activities.

As the Class of 2001, we look forward to a busy and rewarding school year!

Pharmacy museum is dream come true

by Mary Kaigler

Some of the old drug fixtures and copies of prescriptions from the early drug stores of Haskell will be among an extensive collection of old time pharmacy bottles, tools and furnishings housed in the Texas Pharmacy Museum, soon to be officially opened by the Texas Tech School of Pharmacy in Amarillo. Grand opening festivities of the 45,000 square foot museum are scheduled for 1:00 to 5:00 p.m., Sun., Oct. 8.

The museum will be the first of its kind in the state of Texas and the first museum/laboratory for pharmacy students. The School of Pharmacy now has three classes of students working toward a 4-year Doctor of Pharmacy degree at the Texas Tech Medical Center at Amarillo.

Scraps and pieces of a past era will fill the basement facility to give visitors a glimpse of the early days of pharmacy and of its growth since the late 1800s.

The museum first started as a dream of Billy Walker of San Antonio, husband of the former Carmen Sue Kay of Rochester. An avid collector of pharmacy memorabilia, Walker retired three years ago from his long-time job as a representative for Wyeth Pharmaceutical Co. and became involved with the Texas Pharmacy Association.

Not long after the association gave him the opportunity to work under the Texas Pharmacy Foundation, the Texas Tech graduate's collection grew from a few bottles and jars to include everything from books and art to scales and cabinets.

Now valued at more than $80,000.00, his collection embodies all sorts of antiques and memorabilia, including an extensive group of injectable products and the only collection of early products related to women prior to 1950.

An additional $600,000.00 worth of antiques have been committed to the museum from private collections. Using these pieces of the past to capture and recreate the story of pharmacy since 1860, the museum will be divided into four major areas, with the central part depicting a pharmacy of the early 1930s.

Other featured areas will include a pioneer hall of fame and an extensive collection of pharmacy art. Exhibits will feature original pharmacy furnishings, including an authentic jeweler's repair section and post office.

Plans are also being made for a consortium of museums between Texas Tech, the University of Houston, Texas Southern University and the University of Texas. Although the Texas Pharmacy Museum will remain independent of these other schools, it will cooperate with them on the exchange of duplicates, overages and ideas.

A Texas Tech news release, stating that the museum is expected to serve as a triggering factor to get the other schools to develop museums as well, said "The result will be three of the finest pharmacy museums in the United States."

Not only is this museum the result of a dream of finding a home for it, pursued by the husband of a native Haskell County resident, it will be home forever for some of the old relics of Haskell's well remembered Oates Drug Store, which was such an important part of the life of this community.

Haskell Lions Club admits new members

The Haskell Lions Club recently reached a milestone in its 75 year history by admitting the first woman to its membership. Linda Haynes, Child Protective Services Supervisor with the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services and Ann Decker, Administrator of the Rice Springs Care Home are the new members.

Lion President, Brian Burgess, said, "This is a new era. Having lady Lions has been a long time coming. I can think of no better way to start our 75th anniversary celebration than by welcoming these two professional women to the Haskell Lions Club. Their energy and perspective will serve us well as we move forward into the 21st century."

Packing school lunches is as easy as ABC

If you are packing school lunches for your children this year, a good guideline for also packing nutrition into them is to remember the ABCs. Including a good source of vitamins A, B, C and calcium is important, because many foods rich in these nutrients are also good sources of vitamin D, iron, protein and carbohydrates.

Here are the ABCs of packing healthy lunches:

A: For vitamin A, provide one half-cup serving of a deep yellow or deep orange fruit or vegetable. Baby carrots (packed with a favorite yogurt dip), cubed cantaloupe, or dried apricots are good choices.

B: Vitamin B is found in whole grains, meat, nuts and seeds. Meat, cheese or peanut butter sandwiches on whole grain or enriched breads, low-fat cheese with whole wheat crackers, pasta salad with cheese and kidney beans, and even lunch-box treats of graham crackers, oatmeal cookies with raisins and sunflower seeds provide B vitamins, protein, carbohydrates and iron. Pack at least two servings of grains or bread and some protein every day.

C: Vitamin C and calcium are both found in calcium fortified orange juice. Pack one half-cup of fresh strawberries, cubed pineapple, citrus fruits or citrus juice for vitamin C, and one cup of low-fat milk or yogurt for calcium. Low-fat dairy products also provide protein and vitamin D.

"Lunch should provide one-third of a child's daily intake of vitamins, minerals and calories," said Dr. Debby Demory-Luce, nutritionist at the USDA/ARS Children's Nutrition Research Center at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "It's important to get children involved in the selection and preparation of their school lunches," she said. "Not only do most children want a say in what they are going to have for lunch, but parents can also use this time to teach them how to make healthy choices. These lessons, will, in most cases, stay with them for the rest of their lives."

Learning study habits important

Getting children into a good homework routine during their early years can lay the foundation for a lifetime of good study habits.

Dr. Florence Eddins, a child psychiatrist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston said, "Parents can teach their children good homework habits by example."

By sitting near the child and doing some work of their own, they can give the child an idea of how to do homework. Flexibility is important. Some children like to do homework with music in the background or may need to play before sitting down to hit the books. It is good to experiment for a while to see what works best for the child.

TV or not to TV? That is every parents question. Dr. Julie Jones, assistant professor of family and community medicine at Baylor College of Medicine says the answer can influence whether your child starts the school year with appropriate study habits.

"Parents can increase their child's potential study time by limiting the amount of TV he or she watches," Jones said. If a favorite program is on before the work can be done, videotape the show for later viewing as a reward.

She recommends limiting TV time to one hour a night. "More than this interferes with study, reading and thinking time," she said. "If your kids stay up too late watching TV, they won't be alert enough to learn well the next day."

Success with homework also depends on good communication between parent and teacher. Learning what the teacher expects from the child will make it easier for the parents to help with homework.

Fort Griffin celebrates anniversary October 3

The Texas Parks and Wildlife is commemorating the creation of the Texas Park system.

In honor of the Diamond Jubilee anniversary a celebration will be held at Fort Griffin State Historical Park, Sat. Oct. 3, with a special open house Fri. and Sat.

Key note speaker at the formal program to be held at 2:00 p.m. Sat. will be State Representative James L. "Jim" Keffer of Eastland. Albany rancher/historian, Bob Green will speak about how and when Fort Griffin became a state park. Veteran of the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) Fort Griffin Camp, Ed Tackett will reminisce about the days spent at Fort Griffin. Renowned Cowboy poet Sam Davis of Abilene will entertain.

The Texas Forest Service and Smoky Bear will have helpful hints on fire prevention. Living Historians, authentically dressed for the 1870s, will walk out of the pages of history and take part in the program.

As a part of the celebration, all normal park fees will not be charged Fri. or Sat., Oct. 2-3. Entrance and camping at the park will be free both days.

For more information, call 915/762-3592. The park is located between Throckmorton and Albany on US 283.

Local facilitators attend convention

Partners for Children facilitators Rhonda Hanson, Janice Browning, Cathy Bartley, Julie Kretschmer and Michelle Dunnam from Haskell CISD attended the Parent Learning Network Texas Conference held Sept. 10-11 at the Omni San Antonio Hotel in San Antonio.

Communication and languages, essential elements for maintaining all human relationships, were this year's conference themes. Through keynote speakers, breakout sessions and informal networking with peers, those who attended came away with new, exciting and successful ideas to implement in work with children and families.

The Haskell CISD Partners for Children hosted a Back-to-School hot dog supper at the City Park Tues., Sept. 22 to kick-off the new school year. Parents are encouraged to watch for notes and newspaper articles of upcoming Partners for Children events.

Steps to help cope with hearing loss

Have you noticed that the passing of time is not kind to our ability to hear?

According to Dr. Lois Sutton, a clinical assistant professor of otorhinolaryngology at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, nearly one-third of all people over the age of 65 experience some degree of hearing loss. "This age-related loss is called presbycusis and results in a loss of sensitivity to sounds," she said.

But there are steps to take to lessen the impact that hearing loss has on quality of life. Dr. Sutton recommends:

*Informing people of hearing loss so they can modify their speech.

*Eliminating background noise.

*Watching the speaker carefully and learning to use natural lipreading abilities.

*Asking a speaker to rephrase a comment or question that isn't understood.

*Using an assistive-hearing device.

*Having hearing re-evaluated every year by a certified audiologist.

Limiting exposure to noise is also important. Hearing loud noises or sounds, whether continuously or in short bursts, can damage hair cells and further erode hearing sensitivity.

ACU to honor war veterans

Abilene Christian University is looking for a few of its good men and women.

The ACU Alumni Association is calling for all ACU war veterans to attend special activities where they will be honored during ACU's upcoming homecoming weekend Oct. 15-18.

"Many of these men and women left school to serve our country in times of war, not knowing if they would ever return," Deana Nall, coordinator of alumni activities, said. "I think it would be a tragedy to forget the sacrifices these people made for our country."

Nall also said she hopes alumni from World War II, the Korean War, Vietnam War and the Persian Gulf War will be represented.

Those interested should contact Nall at 1-800-373-4220 or (915) 674-2627 by Oct. 1.

This Week's Devotional Message:

AUTUMN COLORS PAINT THE BEAUTY OF GOD'S CREATION

The spectrum of autumn will soon be displayed
And it's truly a sight to behold;
As the green leaves of summer will now be arrayed
In the brilliance of scarlet and gold,
For a moment of glory before they disband
In the cold winds that soon will appear.
It's the season of harvest all over the land;
A magnificent time of the year.
You will learn through your Church that the beauty of fall,
From the time that Creation began,
Was a harvest of color God painted for all,
As a part of His wonderful plan!

Food for thought

He (Christ) disarmed the rulers and authorities (and) made a public display of them, having triumphed over them through Him (Colossians 2:15).

In Colossians 2:15, Paul identifies something very important that happened at the death, resurrection and ascension of Christ. Not only were we made alive in Christ, but Satan was also disarmed and defeated. His defeat is not pending, nor is it future; it has already happened.

If Satan is already disarmed, why don't we experience more victory in our lives? In a word, the lie. Satan roams around like a hungry lion, looking and sounding ferocious. In reality his fangs have been removed and he has been declawed, but if he can deceive you into believing that he can chew you up and spit you out, he can control you, which is just what he wants to do. He is gumming Christians to death!

The very reason Christ conferred His authority on us was to demonstrate to the kingdom of darkness who is really in control in this world. In Ephesians Paul wrote that his call was "to bring to light what is the administration of the mystery which for ages has been hidden in God, who created all things; in order that the manifold wisdom of God might now be made known through the church to the rulers and authorities in the heavenly places. This was in accordance with the eternal purpose which He carries about in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Ephesians 3:9-11).

How are we doing at making Christ's victory known to "the rulers and authorities in heavenly places," which is God's eternal purpose? In many quarters, not very well. Some of us are still saying, "What rulers and authorities?" We're not sure that demons even exist. How are we ever going to get our job done in the world if we don't believe what God says about the kingdom of darkness? Others of us are cowering in the corner pleading, "O God, please help us! The devil is roaring at us!" And God responds, "I've done all I'm going to do. I defeated and disarmed Satan at the cross. I conferred all authority on you in Christ. Now open your eyes. Realize who you are and start demonstrating the authority you already possess."

In Your name, Lord, I will take a active stand against the devil and his demons, renouncing both apathy and fear.
