from across Texas, recently selected to be one of the first recipients of the Rachel Carson Woman in Science Award. Sky Ranch, Texas Water Research Institute, Texas A&M University TexLink. Texas Association for the gifted and talented, and several TEA regional service centers joined forces to recognize outstanding female teachers who have shown a passion for science and who are willing to pass on their legacy by encouraging their female students to pursue careers in science. The Rachel Carson Women in Science Award was established to identify these teachers as members of a community of women educators who will mentor young women, fostering their interest in the field of science. The award is named for Rachel Carson, who after completing her education in 1932, joined the U.S. Bureau of Fisheries as the writer of a radio show entitled "Romance Under the Waters." Through this show, she was able to explore life have stood the test of time and today under the seas and bring it to listeners. In 1936, after being the first woman to take and pass the civil service test, the Bureau of Fisheries hired her as a full-time junior biologist, and over the next 15 years,

Paula Everett of Haskell rose in the ranks, until she was the five-along with Jonas Salk - featured Spring was ranked fifth most important book of the 20th century. American Heritage Magazine also chose Carson as one of the 20 Greatest Innovators of the Century. On Monday night, Everett and the other recipients were recognized at a banquet in their honor at Sky Ranch near Van. Because of her accomplishment, the school district received free tuition for her and four of her female students to attend a three-day, two-night outdoor education program for 4th, 5th, and 6th graders at Sky Ranch. While at Sky Ranch, the students and teachers participated in studies in aquatics,

Bands repeat winning performances

The Haskell Middle School 7th and 8th grade bands combined this year to form a contest band. This group competed in the Cisco Junior College Music Festival, Mar. 27. For their performance they received a Division 3 in concert and a Division 1 in sightreading.

Although they did not rehearse together more than five times, they worked on the music during their separate band classes. The purpose in putting the two bands together was to develop a strong band with better instrumentation for UIL Concert and Sightreading.

April 4, the band competed in the Region 2 UIL Concert and Sightreading contest in Anson. The band received a Division 2 rating for that performance. In the sightreading contest, they repeated their trophywinning performance and received a Division 1.

"They improved over the week since Cisco," said Michael Copeland, band director. "They performed the best that they ever had for UIL. I am proud of them."

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Through her eloquent writings Rachel Carson awakened people all over the world to the idea that we are inseparable from nature and thatwhat we do to nature, we do to ourselves.

Her rare ability to express scientific facts poetically yet clearly informed her readers of the interrelationships among all living things, and of the consequences of upsetting the delicate balance of nature. She began writing her most famous book, Silent Spring, in 1957. When the book was published in 1962, President Kennedy, upon reading it, was influenced to call for testing of the chemicals mentioned in the book. She did not take a sentimental approach to her writings. In her books, especially Silent Spring, she presented meticulously researched facts to support her premise that we cannot continue to poison our environment and not to suffer the consequences. Her words Rachel Carson is called the mother of the environmental movement.

In 1999, she was chosen as one of Time's Magazine's "Top 20 Most Influential Scientists and Thinkers of the 20th Century" and one of the

SCOTT EDMONDS AUCTION CO. P. O. Box 542, Knox City, TX 79529 • Tx Lic. No. 13594

In the proclamation, he recognizes that positive mental health is fundamental and indispensable to personal well-being, family and interpersonal relationships, and contributes to community and society.

Mental illnesses are more common than heart and lung diseases and cancer combined. One in five Texans experiences a diagnosable mental illness each year, regardless of age. gender. race. ethnicity, religion or economic status.

More than 54 million Americans have a mental disorder in any given year, but fewer than eight million (15%) receive treatment for their mental illness

One in five children has a diagnosable mental, emotional or behavior disorder, but only 30% of these children receive mental health services.

Suicide, a preventable cause of death, is the third leading cause of death for 15 to 24-year-olds in the nation and the sixth leading cause of death for 5 to 14-year-old children.

A range of treatments exist for most mental illnesses that are effective in reducing the symptoms of mental illnesses and improving the quality of life of Haskell County citizens who have a mental illness.

Most citizen's understanding of mental illnesses lags behind current scientific knowledge about the types of mental illnesses and the treatment methodologies currently available to effectively treat citizens with mental illnesses that are in various stages of manifestation.

Recognizing that the lack of proper understanding of mental illnesses and the ungrounded fears of citizens who have a mental illness may result in stigma (a mark of shame, discredit, or public disgrace) being attached to Haskell County citizens due to their illness, Judge Davis calls upon all citizens of Haskell to increase awareness and understanding of mental illnesses in a way that lessens the stigma, and reduces the fear, while encouraging support for appropriate services for all citizens with mental illness.

STORMY WEATHER-A tornado moving up and down into clouds approximately 3 miles northwest of Haskell Sunday afternoon was caught on video by Randall Martin. Area spotters and lay enforcement were watching the storm system that later produced a large tornado in Throckmorton County.

AUSTIN — When the Legislature convenes in January, Sherwood Forest once again will be dangerous territory for Robin Hood.

In this case, of course, Robin Hood is not a clever road agent in green tights who robs from the rich and gives to the poor, but the metaphor used for the state's complicated school finance system.

That system essentially does the same thing by funneling tax dollars from the richer school districts in Texas to the poorer districts.

Because of that, the formula has had plenty of sharp-tipped arrows sent in its direction since the funding plan's adoption in 1993.

Sticking with metaphors, more are in the quiver. A new plan, proposed last week by acting Lt. Gov.

Bill Ratliff at a meeting of the Legislature's Joint Committee on School Finance, would depend on a statewide property tax to balance funds between districts with ample income and districts without.

A proposal is not a reality, but it's a starting place. Bottom line: School finance will be a huge issue next session no matter who gets elected governor. Perry gets cops, loses doctors...

For the first time in its history, the Combined Law Enforcement Associations of Texas, better known as CLEAT, has endorsed a Republican gubernatorial candi- with plans for a "Guys of Enron" date, Rick Perry.

The organization, which represents some 13,000 Texas police no, this was not an April Fool's retaliation for his surprise veto last year of a prompt payment bill aimed at insurance companies.

Longview Dr. John R. Coppedge, who said he had raised $100,000-plus for Perry over the years, recently announced his support for Sanchez. Other doctors are expected to prescribe the same medicine for the governor.

While Texas has more police officers (40,000-plus) than doctors, the men and women with M.D. behind their name have more political contribution money to spend.

Static over electric deregulation...

Public Power Pool, a group representing Texas local governments, has filed a petition with the state Public Utility Commission seeking reimbursement of money they say has been lost because of delays in being converted to new electrical suppliers.

The filing was on behalf of 46 local governmental entities across the state.

The simple version of their argument is that they signed contracts under the state's electric deregulation law that are not yet being honored because of delays. Because of that, they say, they have lost millions of dollars in rate savings.

Equal access follow-up...

The news last week was that Playboy magazine is planning a "Girls of Enron" issue. Playgirl magazine has responded to that photo spread.

Talk about losing a suit. And gag. Former employees of the bankrupt once-upon-a-time Texas business giant stand to make a little money off their career misfortune by literally losing their shirt.

pline. They are not born with it. Little by little parents have to teach it to them. While teaching discipline does take time and practice, it gets easier as children learn to control their own behavior. And best of all, teaching discipline does not have to hurt either the parent or the children. Discipline is helping children develop self-control. It is setting limits and correcting misbehavior. Discipline is also encouraging children, guiding them, helping them feel good about themselves, and teaching them how to think for themselves.

Spanking is not necessary for having discipline. Discipline should help children learn how to control their own behavior. Spanking is used to directly control children's behavior. Spanking does not teach children how to change what they do, as good discipline should do.

Children do need to know that the adult is in charge, but spanking can teach children to be afraid of you. Good discipline teaches children to respect you, and respect goes both ways. Treat children with respect and let them have some control, and they will respect you and listen to you.

According to the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services, you can do lots of things that will help your children learn selfcontrol. You can help them feel good about themselves, show them how a person with self-control acts, guide them, and set limits. Correct misbehavior by talking to them. Teach them how to think for themselves.

Let them know what they are doing right, as well as about the mistakes they make. Say two nice but true things to children for every time you correct them. Remember, they are changing their behavior. Tell them how well they are doing, even if they only improve a little.

One thing is to set routines for bedtimes, meals and chores. Routines help children feel safe, because they know what parents expect.

Young children have a hard time going from one activity to another. Warning them a few minutes ahead

W. D. Joiner is now city impounder and anyone wishing to inquire about strayed livestock should telephone him at No. 49.

The Haskell Ice Plant has been making ice this week and has already cut out a load of hard, clear ice of the best quality. There is not a plant in the state that makes better ice than is made here.

Marvin Bros. sold and delivered two new Fords in our vicinity recently, one to Dr. Dunn of Rochester and another to Dr. Taylor of Goree. This makes five Fords the local dealers have sold in the last two months.

No. 1 200-300 lbs., 1.10-1.40; 300-400 lbs., 1.00-1.10; 400-500 lbs., .90-1.07; 500-600 lbs., .80-.94; 600-700 lbs., .75-.82; 700-800 lbs., .68-.78; 800-up lbs., .60-.73.

Heifers: medium and large frame No. 1 200-300 lbs., .95-1.25; 300-400 lbs., .90-1.05; 400-500 lbs., .80-.93; 500-600 lbs., .75-.85; 600-up lbs., .55-.75.

Bred Heifers: medium frame, 475-600

Bred Cows: young to middle aged, 625-725; aged or small 450-600.

Cows with calves: medium frame No. 1 young and middle aged, 770-900; aged or small, 650-750.

Appropriate discipline: Setting limits for young children helps them get ready. Be clear about options your children have. Make them choices that you can live with. Remind them of your rules. Just saying no is not enough. Children often need reminders. Start with only a few rules. The more rules you have, the harder it will be for your children to remember them. Be sure you know why you are saying no. As a parent you must keep your children healthy and safe. You must help your children get along with other people. And you must stick to what you believe in. Explain your reasons for saying no. Be sure your child understands your reasons. Give children a voice. Children need a voice in setting limits. They need a chance to tell you what they think and feel. When children help you make rules, they are more likely to obey them.

Say what you mean and be clear about your limits. Setting limits does not make you a "meanie" forever, if you are fair. When you stick to your limits, your children may not like what you are doing. Accept their feeling, but stick to your limits. Fair limits show you care. If you set limits by yourself that are unfair and too strict, your children will try to get back at you. If you do not set limits, your children will push and push until someone sets a limit for them.

When children break the rules stay calm, do what is fair, do something that makes sense and will help them learn not to make the same mistake again.

Some of the problem-solving steps to help children think through what happened and figure out how they can help themselves not make the same mistake again are: Have the child say what the problem is. Have the child come up with as many solutions as possible. At this point, the number of ideas is more important than how good the ideas are. Discuss solutions together and have the child choose which solution to try next time. Be sure it is one you can both accept.

Try out the solution. Check the results. If it works, great. If not, start again.

Two important messages come across to children when you use this approach. First, no problem is so great that you cannot solve it. Second, you are responsible for your own behavior.

Beef SPA workshop set

By Brandon Anderson Haskell Co. Extension Agent The cattle market has faced many ups and downs over the past three years. To sustain and improve in this environment, it is imperative that cow-calf operators know how their operation is performing from both a production and financial standpoint. To assist ranchers in determining this, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is offering a Cowcalf Standardized Performance Analysis (SPA) Workshop to be held at the Texas A & M Research and Extension Center located south of Vernon

The course will be May, 7. and will begin at 9:00 a.m. on Tuesday. This will be a working workshop where the ranchers will be assisted in completing their own analysis. SPA provides ranchers an opportunity to analyze their ranch operation from both a production and financial side. SPA facilitates the comparison of an operation's performance between years, producers, production regions, and cow-calf producer.

This is an intensive workshop with the intent being ranchers completing the analysis for the 2001 calf crop. Registered operators will be sent forms to organize data before the conference. Confidentiality of the producer's data will be maintained. Individual conferences will be held with producers. Each ranch will be provided an assistant and a computer. It is important to register early so you can be advised on how to organize your data for the SPA analysis.

Interested persons can obtain additional information or register by contacting Stan Bevers, Extension Economist, at the Texas Cooperative Extension Center at Vernon at (940) 552-9941.

Immunizations

The Texas Dept. of Health in Stamford will hold an immunization clinic Thurs., April 18 at the Haskell National Bank Community Room in Haskell. Clinic times are and 1 to 4 p.m.

Karnal Bunt regulations forces quarantine for Archer and Baylor Counties

In July 2001, Throckmorton and Young Counties were placed under regulation for Karnal Bunt. Archer and Baylor Counties were also placed under the regulation.

In an effort to prevent the spread of Karnal Bunt from this regulated area to non regulated areas, numerous things were placed under quarantine. One of those items placed under quarantine is livestock.

In accordance with the regulations all livestock grazing on wheat, Durum Wheat or Triticale after the plant reaches the soft dough stage must be moved off this forage for a period of five (5) days before leaving the regulated area. Once the livestock has met this five day requirement, they can be moved out of the regulated area under the USDA-APHIS-PPQ permit. Livestock moving out of the regulated area directly from these fields without observing the five day requirement will be considered in violation of the quarantine. This applies to all livestock under contract moving to feed lots, marketed through sale barns or sold by private treaty

In an effort to assist in determining when this five day period and permit requirement applies to the livestock, the following dates have been estimated. The five day period and permit requirements will apply to all the livestock moving out of the regulated area between April 15, 2002 and July 15, 2002.

Livestock moving out of the regulated area prior to April 15, 2002, or after July 15, 2002 are not subject to the five day requirement, provided the fields they are moving from do not contain Wheat, Durum Wheat or Triticale in the soft dough stage of growth.

Livestock producers in the regulated areas are asked to contact the Olney Karnal Bunt Project office and request inspections of their production fields prior to shipping livestock out of the regulated area. If permits are required, they will be issued by project staff members and should accompany the livestock during the movement.

FAVORITE SONG: LET ME CALL YOU SWEETHEART. FAVORITE COLOR: ROSE.

Mother . . . Love, Jeanie, Charlotte and Suzy.

They call her grandmother and look forward to her frequent notes. Notes that are always written on pretty paper with a neat stamp and sometimes a clipping-a cartoon, a recipe, a Dave Barry column, a devotion, an encouragement, a birth announcement of a friend or family member and sometimes an obituary. The notes are short, often saying nothing more than "I saw this and thought of you" or they may just be about what has been happening in Haskell.

These notes are special to "them" and help add meaning and warmth to a busy lifestyle. What really makes the notes special is "they" have never met her. She is the Grandmother of their neighbor. It started simply-young mothers meeting at the mailbox. Jennifer started sharing her Grandmother notes and they all look forward to them. Jennifer especially treasures her weekly notes and always finds comfort in the closing, which always says, "give the three a hug and remember honey, I love you."

We call her Mother and have been the recipient of many notes. They always manage to make us smileeven after a hard day. We are always sure of one thing. The notes will end with "Honey, I love you."

All three of us (Redwine sisters) and the other eleven grandchildren, twenty-six great grandchildren and four great grandchildren receive notes and cards regularly-keeping us all informed. As do many friends. Today in a world that communicates instantly with cell phone, faxes, email, conference calls-often without much thought or purpose, it is nice to have someone that cares enough to take the time to thoughtfully and purposefully communicate with us.

They are all just simple notes and/or cards, but they have a huge positive effect on many lives. If you 📅 really want to feel special, find a way to get in the address book of Lois Redwine or send her a note. I bet she would answer.
