USDA to hold public meetings on programs

According to Glenn R. Brzozowski, County Executive Director for the Haskell Farm Service Agency (FSA), the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) will hold a series of six public meetings across the country to solicit comments on the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), Emergency Conservation Program (ECP), Farmable Wetland Pilot Program (FWP), and the Grassland Reserve Program. One of the meetings will be held at the Ambassador Hotel located at 3100 I-40 West in Amarillo, from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. May 14.

Brzozowski explained that comments will be considered in the preparation of the draft programmatic environmental impact statement (PEIS) for CRP, ECP, FWP and the Grassland Reserve Program. "The environmental impact statement will provide USDA decision-makers and the public with an analysis of the environmental benefits and potential effects of administering each of these programs," Brzozowski said. "Also, it can help USDA officials review and improve current policies and achievements."

The prepared PEIS will describe both the positive and negative impacts and collectively address the cumulative impacts of all of the programs being considered.

"FSA administers these programs on behalf of the Commodity Credit Corporation," Brzozowski said, "and we are now conducting a comprehensive review of them in anticipation of potential 'Farm Bill' changes."

According to Brzozowski, "The public comment meetings will allow individuals an opportunity to voice concerns, ask questions, analyze alternatives, or suggest improvements to conservation programs and related legislative issues."

For persons who will be unable to attend the scheduled meeting in Amarillo, written, electronic or oral comments may be submitted for consideration by the close of business on June 30. Comments submitted after that date will be considered to the extent possible.

Send comments and requests for draft PEIS information packages to CRP PEIS, P.O. Box 6830, Falls Church, Va. 22046-6830, via e-mail at CRP@mangi.com or telephone

Gov. Rick Perry thinks the shallow, salty Gulf of Mexico is a logical place for Texas to slake its thirst for fresh water.

In a campaign speech in San Antonio last week, the Republican incumbent proposed construction of a high-volume desalinization plant to make seawater potable.

"There is no greater potential supply of new water than what splashes along hundreds of miles of Texas coastline," Perry said. "It's time to look for new and untapped sources (of water.)"

The governor said he would like to see tax-exempt bonds earmarked to pay for private construction of a desalinization facility capable of processing 25 millions gallons of water from the Gulf every day.

He estimated the cost of such a plant at $208 million.

Desalinization of seawater is nothing new — that's how nuclear submarines get their fresh water — but the process traditionally has been considered too costly to be commercially successful. But that is changing, Perry said.

He said estimated costs are about what the City of Austin has as its commercial water rate — $3 per thousand gallons.

A $110 million desalination plant under construction in Tampa Bay, Fla. will produce 25 million gallons of fresh water daily at an estimated cost of $2.50 per thousand gallons.

But that is a $1 a gallon increase over present costs there.

The governor said he has asked the Texas Water Development Board to work with Texas' regional planning groups and private entities to develop a plan for the state's first large-scale coastal desalination plant.

Perry said that down the road desalinated water could be carried inland from the Texas coast along the utility easement that is part of the proposed Trans Texas Corridor, a new transportation system of toll highways, freight and high-speed passenger train tracks and utility transmission facilities.

Water woes not theoretical along the border

Though Perry's water plan is a future possibility, water problems on the border are a present reality.

Texas' two big international reservoirs, Lakes Amistad and Falcon, stand at only 21 percent of capacity. A year ago, the two impoundments were 28 percent

Unless an unexpected flow of water surges down the Rio Grande soon, farmers and fishermen may see the two lakes reach record low levels this month.

Part of the problem is reduced flow of water from Mexico into the Rio Grande, a matter currently in dispute between that country and the U.S.

Under a 1944 treaty, Mexico is supposed to allow 350,000 acrefeet of water (one acre-foot amounts to 325,851 gallons) into the Rio Grande each year.

The U.S., in turn, must allow 1.5 million acre-feet from the Colorado into the international

This country has been providing its share, but Mexico, blaming a persistent drought, has not.

Bottom line: Water is a big issue in Texas and it will continue to become more important as the state population grows.

Help keep kids safe around cars

Although the safety of children around cars is always a concern, with the coming of warmer weather it is doubly important to consider the safety of children in cars.

Many parents think they can leave a child in a vehicle if they are just running a quick errand. But excessive heat is much more dangerous for children than it is for adults. A young child's core body temperature can increase three to five times faster than that of an adult, making them much more vulnerable to heat stroke. Heat stroke can lead to permanent injury or death.

From 1996 through 2000, more than 120 children, most of them from age three or younger, died from heat stroke after being trapped in a car.

The interior of a car can reach dangerously high temperatures in just a few minutes. When the outside temperature is 93 degrees, the temperature inside your car can get up to 125 degrees in just 20 minuteseven with a window cracked.

The following list includes some of the ways to help keep kids safe that are recommended by the Texas Department of Protective Services.

*Never leave your child unattended in a car, even if the windows are down and a windshield shade is in place.

*Make sure all children leave the vehicle when you reach your destination. Don't overlook sleeping

*Make sure that the seat belt and seat surface are not too hot before buckling your child.

*When you and your child exit the car, place a windshield shade in front and back windows to cut down on the heat.

*Make sure that kid's arms, legs, fingers and toes are safely inside before closing doors.

*Always lock doors and trunk, even at home. Children playing in the car could get trapped.

*Keep your car keys out of children's reach and sight.

*Keep the rear fold-down seats closed to prevent kids from getting into the truck from inside the car. *Contact your auto dealership about getting your vehicle retro-fitted with a trunk release mechanism. *If your child gets locked inside a car, get them out as soon as possible. If you can't get them out, call 911 immediately. Parked cars can be especially hazardous for kids. Always lock your doors. Children are naturally curious and can find ways to get into cars, but they can't always find their way out. More than a third of last year's heat-related deaths among children occurred when they crawled into unlocked cars and became trapped.

The Rotary Club has donated a beautiful red plaid rocker love-seat to our library. It is the perfect place to come in relax and read a book. We are so grateful to the Rotary Club for this gift. It adds so much to the library. Every person who has come in has had to try out the loveseat. Thank you Rotary members!!

The 4-H members who participated in the 4-H photo project at the junior, intermediate and senior levels have their photographs on display in the showcase at the library. It is amazing what these young people have done with a camera. Come in and view these remarkable photographs.

Haskell had an abundance of talented young people. Tell a child how wonderful they are and that you love them and are proud of them. We hear so much "anti....everything" in the papers and on the television let us be "for...our" young people and let them know it.

JANET FRAZIER

Former Weinert teacher honored

Educator Janet Frazier of Holland has been honored by a nomination to Who's Who Among America's Teachers for the second consecutive year.

Former students who described Frazier as the most influential teacher in their academic careers, made the nominations. Approximately 5% of the nation's teachers are honored by such nominations. Less than 2% of the nations teachers receive more than one nomination.

When asked to reflect on the nominations, she credits the many teachers who mentored her. These include a number of folks in Haskell County who touched her life.

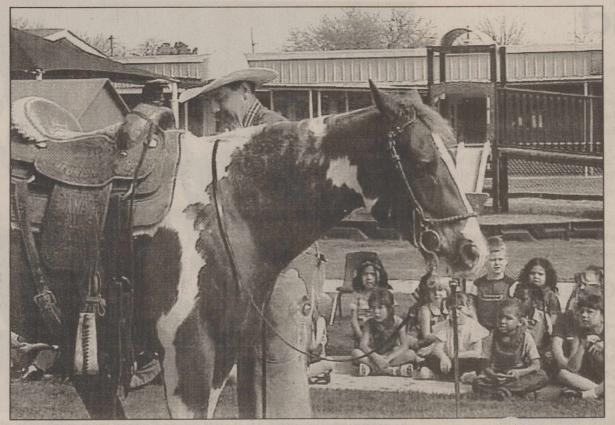

Frazier began her career in public education as a substitute teacher in Comanche, in 1985. She taught three years in a combined classroom of kindergarten and prekindergarten students (and one class of Chemistry) in the Weinert ISD. She joined the staff at Holland ISD as a third grade teacher in 1990.

Preparing society's future leaders has been one of the educator's stated objectives in her classrooms.

As the Director of Special Education for the Bell County Cooperative for Exceptional Children, Frazier continues her involvement in the Holland ISD and surrounding districts.

This Week's Devotional Message:

GIVE YOUR MOTHER THE LOVE AND HONOR SHE HAS EARNED

Now your mother was there to exhibit her care

Every day from the time you were born, By dispelling your fears and removing your tears

When she knew you were feeling forlorn.

Yet the moment you'd grown, she had probably known That you'll solemnly vow you will honor her now,

You'd begin to ignore her advice.

Now you have to agree, when you went on a spree,

You had ended up paying the price;

But religion has told, when your mother is old,

That it's part of the heavenly plan

And repay all her love while you can.

The long-awaited farm bill has cleared the House and Senate conference committee and passed the House of Representatives. Now specific details can be examined. Texas Cooperative Extension has scheduled a "Farm Bill Interpretation Program" at 8:30 a.m., May 15 at the Haskell National Bank meeting room in Haskell, to help producers and ag lenders better understand the ramifications of the new farm bill.

"We have known for some time now what the respective House and Senate bills have looked like, but we have been speculating on what compromise the conference

District 3 Extension Economist. "Now we have the details of the bill in place. We've designed this program specifically to help producers and lenders understand the effects of the farm bill on the agricultural economic climate of the Rolling Plains and what specific actions producers need to take in order to take full advantage of the farm policy provisions."

Bevers and Brandon Anderson will conduct the program. Anderson is the County Extension Agent for Agriculture in Haskell. The meeting is being sponsored by The Texas Cooperative Extension of Haskell and Knox County and the Haskell County Agriculture Committee.

its program and crop commodity changes. The overview will be followed by an explanation of the target prices, loan rates, fixed payment rates, counter-cyclical program, base and yield updating and payment limits.

"We'll also talk about the farm bill's considerable conservationrelated program changes and what producers need to do to regarding the processes associated with these changes," said Bevers.
