Local church repairs bikes for mission kids

Iglesia Bautista El Calvario Alamos with reconditioned bicycles members made a mission trip to San on a Christmas mission trip. A bicycle Carlos, Chihuahua in Mexico last summer. The group was part of a 72 member group that held Vacation Bible School in four villages in the San Carlos area. The Haskell group was assigned to the village of Los Alamos.

While in the village, the Haskell group gave two bicycles to children. Immediately they realized that the bicycles were not only a great toy, but a great method of transportation. Some families in the area have automobiles, horses or mules, but most travel on foot.

The group decided to return to Flores.

drive was begun with help coming from members of First Baptist Church, the Double Mountain Baptist area and various citizens of Haskell.

The bikes were repaired, made like new and delivered to the children of Los Alamos in time for Christmas.

A goal of forty bicycles was surpassed, allowing the group to donate bicycles to children of some surrounding villages.

Those helping with bicycle repairs were Adam Garcia, Bert Alvarez, Danny Ozuna, Louis Enriquez, Stanley Martin and pastor J. R.

Hospital seeks change in Medicare status

Small town rural hospitals are "bleeding out." A new program for hospitals who provide care to small rural communities promises to help bandage the financial wounds.

The Critical Access Hospital program offers greater Medicare reimbursement to rural hospitals who meet certain criteria. Presently, Haskell hospital receives Medicare reimbursement under a DRG plan. This DRG plan pays hospitals a standard fee, regardless of cost of services to the hospital.

These fees currently reimburse the hospital at a rate of approximately 35-40 percent of outpatient cost, leaving a hefty deficit for the local district to absorb.

During a public meeting held Thursday night, hospital administrator Bill Nemir discussed the new program with approximately 25 citizens who attended.

Haskell hospital is seeing a decline in patient population. The patient population admitted under Medicare is approximately 80 percent each year. The average age of a patient admitted is 75. While the cost of providing services to these patients is constantly rising, Medicare reimbursement under the DRG plan remains the same.

Changing the status of Haskell hospital to the Critical Access Hospital program will not affect any services provided by the hospital. In fact, if revenues increase under the new plan new services could be added.

The new program will establish 15 acute care beds and 10 swing beds to meet the criteria. The swing beds will allow Medicare patients who are not well after 96 hours of treatment to remain in the hospital under Medicare guidelines for extended Texas has a total of 36 Critical Access Hospitals. Area hospitals looking to make the change include Knox County Hospital and Throckmorton Hospital. Aspermont and Rotan hospitals are operating under the new arrangement.

Nemir stated that with the numbers used for fiscal year 2001, the Critical Access Hospital status would have generated an additional $400,000 in revenue for the hospital. Instead, the hospital experienced a loss of approximately $200,000.

Haskell hospital did not become eligible for the status change until new regulation standards were implemented by Medicare in 2002.

Noralene Corder of Freemon, Shapard and Storey of Wichita Falls, who is helping the hospital with audit materials for the change, stated that the firm fully supported the efforts of the hospital. She also said that hospitals who were not pursuing the status change would probably not be able to remain open much longer.

Nemir said, "Changing the status of the hospital to produce an increase in revenue is a much better alternative than raising the district's tax rate."

Nemir credited the stability of the local physicians and the hospital staff's efforts to control costs as being instrumental in keeping the hospital's losses to a minimum, allowing the hospital to remain in business.

The package for the status change is scheduled to be submitted to Medicare during January. Approval will come after extensive review and inspection of all departments and aspects of the hospital by Medicare and the Texas Department of Health.

Income from the new program could reach the district by first quarter 2003.

Children enjoy Christmas carnival

Haskell children were treated to a Christmas carnival Dec. 11. Sponsored by Haskell Elementary School, the event was held at the Civic Cen-

Children participated in various Christmas-themed games and had their faces painted. Pictures were taken with Santa Claus.

Kourtney Howard won a jar full of candy for having the closest guess for the number of candies in the jar. Andy Anderson won a Christmas tree decorated with lights. This prize was awarded for the closest guess on the number of lights on the tree.

Admission to the carnival was a non-perishable food time which was donated to Goodfellows.

Haskell Elementary would like to express appreciation to the elementary staff and high school students who volunteered at the carnival. Kathy Garison, coordinator of the event said, "This event would not have been possible without their efforts. And, it would not have been possible without the support of the parents. We appreciate them bringing their youngsters to the carnival. We hope everyone had some Christmas fun.'

MISSION "CHRISTMAS"-Forty bicycles were repaired and reconditioned for children of the Los Alamos area villages by members of Iglesia Bautista El Calvario in Haskell. The bicycles were delivered to the children in time for Christmas. Pictured are I-r: Adam Garcia, Bert Alvarez, Danny Ozuna, Louis Enriquez and Erin Ozuna, front. Not pictured are Stanley Martin and J. R. Flores, pastor.

QUILT DEMONSTRATION-Gwen Campbell demonstrated the art of quilting for Rhonda Hanson's second grade class during National Children's Book Week. Many of Campbell's beautiful, handmade quilts were on display. Each student designed their own quilt square using fabric remnants. During a study of Christmas traditions, the class met Jodi Taylor who is originally from Australia. Taylor was a foreign exchange student with the Campbell family several years ago. Christmas traditions from Sweden, Denmark and Norway were shared with the students.

Don't overlook eye screenings

People over 40 usually have annual physical examinations to determine their overall health. But many overlook eye screenings that can detect diseases before they rob a person's vision, says an ophthalmologist at Ut Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas.

According to a recent study conducted by the National Eye Institute and Prevent Blindness America, more than 1 million are blind and another 2.4 million are preserving your eyesight. visually impaired.

"Unfortunately, the first time a person visits an ophthalmologist is after he or she notices a problem," says Dr. Jess Whitson, associate professor of ophthalmology at UT Southwestern. "Some eye diseases, like glaucoma, have no symptoms in the early stages and can be detected only by an eye exam. That's why

People who have diabetes, high blood pressure or a family history of eye problems are at high risk for developing eye problems and should see an eye-care professional, Whitson says.

CHRISTMAS VISITORS-Haskell third grade students visited with residents of Rice Springs Care Home. They had Christmas cards to give to the residents and sang carols during their visit. Teachers of the group are Melodee Christian and Donna Waggoner.

College information hotline set

The Texas Association for College Admission Counseling (TACAC) announces the annual toll-free College Information Hotline (877-275-7007). Hotline 2003 will be available January 18 and 19, from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. (Central Standard Time). The College Information Hotline, which is the largest project of its type in the nation, provides information about post-secondary educational opportunities to students and their

The College Information Hotline is available to anyone in the state who has questions about any aspect of college admission, financial aid, degree programs, housing, student life and activities, or special programs. Callers may also request information from specific colleges and universities or information about any college in the United States. Spanish-speaking counselors and admission representatives from more than 25 public and private colleges and universities in Texas will be on

In previous years, callers have predominantly been high school students and the parents, but an increasing number of information requests are beginning to come from middle school students, current college students, adults who did not complete college or have never attended, and veterans with questions about their benefits.

HIGHLIGHTS

By Mike Cox

Lawmakers propose sobriety checks to fight DWIs

AUSTIN—The state budget, insurance reform and school finance are the big issues facing lawmakers in the coming legislative session, but there are other hot topics, including several measures aimed at reducing drinking and driving.

Among the proposals is a bill authorizing sobriety checkpoints, a measure sure to generate some spirited discussion among Texans.

Advocates say checkpoints are a good tool in getting drunks off the road before they can hurt or kill someone with their impaired driving. Others see checkpoints as another step toward a police state.

The issue is not new. Twelve years ago, the U.S. Supreme Court held that limited sobriety checkpoints were constitutional. Thirty-nine states have laws allowing them, but not Texas.

In 1994, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals said DWI checkpoints were not constitutional in this state unless Texas developed guidelines covering their usage.

The legislation proposed in the House by Rep. Todd Smith, R-Euless and in the Senate by Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo would authorize Texas law enforcement agencies to run sobriety checkpoints if they were advertised in the media in advance (but not by location) and if the checkpoints didn't delay traffic by more than 10

In addition, police could only ask a driver to take an alcohol test if they have probable cause that the person is drunk. Finally, police could ask to see a driver's license and proof of liability insurance at a checkpoint, but not inspect the vehicle.

The statistics that make any DWIrelated proposal important are sobering: Up to half of all fatal car crashes are alcohol-related.

More troopers out soon...

periods of the year at hand, the Department of Public Safety routinely puts all available troopers on the highways. This year, even more will be out and about: The DPS just graduated 201 new troopers, the largest graduation in the history of the 67-year-old agency.

Most of the new troopers are going into the Highway Patrol, but others will be license and weight, driver license and Capitol troopers. Once they complete a one-year probation, the troopers will earn $35,000 a year.

Despite the size of this class, with the approaching retirement of more Baby Boomer generation troopers, more recruits are being sought. Anyone interested in applying can check the nearest DPS office, visit the department's Web site at www.txdps.state.tx.us or call 1-866-TXTROOP.

Don't forget the child support...

The Attorney General's Office has received $27.6 million in federal incentive payments based on the office's Child Support Division's performance during fiscal year 2001. This money can be used to leverage an additional $53 million in federal money to cover the state's child support recovery efforts.

In fiscal year 2001, child support collections increased by 21 percent compared with the previous fiscal year, the AG's office reports. That represents a jump from $1 billion collected in 2002 to $1.2 billion last

I'm not nuts, really...

In some versions of last week's column, I mentioned that Texas is the second state in the U.S. in terms of pecan (puh-con) sales. In explaining that, for some reason, my fingers typed "nasty nuts" instead of "tasty nuts." Just for the record, and before someone throws a pecan pie in my face, I am a nationalistic Texan who loves pecans. Especially in pralines. That's pray-leans, not prah-leans. Happy Holidays.

From The Inside Out

By Mary Kaigler

Who is this Mystery Reader? I was born in a log cabin in Stillwell, Oklahoma.

I am widowed after 56 years. I have two children.

I attended school at Rule and also in Corinth, (halfway between Rule and Jud) and Sul Ross in Alpine. No one knows that I once had Cherokee Indians for neighbors and that Mrs. Hummingbird used to take my mother crawfishing.

My favorite TV shows are Dan Rather News and Jeopardy.

Update

The last Mystery Reader presented here was Carolyn Reynolds of Haskell, who worked in the County Courthouse twenty-eight years as District Clerk, before retiring.

She and her husband, Sonny Reynolds, have two daughters; Leisa, who works in the office of Dr. McSmith and Laurie, who teaches 6th grade at Wylie High School. The couple's son, Mark, studies Radiology at MidWestern, hoping to intern at a hospital close to this area.

Carolyn is the daughter of the late Ewell and Effie Grimsley, who lived in the communities of Rose, Midway and Rochester.

After leaving her job in public service, which she says she loved, she has found that she loves retirement, and likes to be with her children, and staving busy in the community. She delivers lunches and works at the Experienced Citizens' Center each week, and helps out at the District Clerk's office when needed.

She is a member of the First Baptist Church, Haskell, where she sings Sunday School Class.

Happy to be living near all of her children, Carolyn says she and Sonny enjoy being with them so much, they never feel the need to travel.

Thoughts for the Week How often in our lives it seems that we find ourselves coming to a point of needing and wanting to find new life through new vision; making the right changes and growing. Is it possible for us to do that after years of entrenched, same-way thinking and same-way using of our energies

In The Principles of Psychology, Willliam James writes, "Man alone, of all the creatures of the earth, can change his own pattern. Man alone is the architect of his destiny. The greatest discovery in our generation is that human beings, by changing the inner attitudes of their minds, can change the outer aspects of their

In thinking of what kinds of positive changes we might need to make, as we come to the end of another year, perhaps the following words of an anonymous writer have some merit for considering.

"How would it be if just for today we thought less about contests and rivalries, profits and politics, winners and sinners, and more about helping and giving, mending and blending, reaching out and pitching in?"

daughters, five grandchildren and in the choir and is secretary for her three great-grandchildren. How would it be? Bundle up to tace the elements year, are you ready to face the elements? You may not think you need a coat if you're just getting in your car that's inside your garage, or just running quickly into a store or

When you go outside this time of even going through a drive-through. But doctors at UT Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas say you shouldn't go anywhere in winter weather without something to keep you warm. It may only be a couple of miles to the store, but if you have car trouble or get into an accident, that quick trip could turn into a long night. If you're not prepared, you could be at risk for hypothermia, which can be deadly UT Southwestern doctors recommend being prepared to spend at least an hour outdoors anytime you leave the house in winter. It's a good idea to keep spare blankets, a flashlight and water in your trunk so you'll be ready for any emergencies. For longer trips, carry food in case you get stuck.

Don't forget to bundle up your children. UT Southwestern doctors also remind parents that small children are at even greater risk than adults for hypothermia. Dress children warmly with a coat, hat and shoes, even if they won't be leaving the car. Older adults also need to be bundle up during cold weather.

Walking in wintertime also has its hazards. Snow and ice can make sidewalks treacherous. Keep sidewalks and paths around your home clear, and look out for patches of ice when you're walking. If the sidewalk looks slick, try walking on the grass, which is less likely to get

LET FAITH CONSOLIDATE YOUR NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

As the season of fun and festivity draws to a to follow it for a few days before consigning it to close, let us give some serious thought to a limbo along with its predecessors. This year for worthwhile task which most of us have a change, try simplifying it into one allundertaken rather half-heartedly at this time encompassing resolution: to attend the Church every year, despite our good intentions. Driven of your choice regularly throughout the coming by a natural impulse to turn over a new leaf in year. If you will do so and try to live by the our lives as well as on the calendar, we compile lessons you learn there, this will be the only New our annual list of personal reforms and even try Year's resolution you'll ever need.

> NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The City of Haskell will hold a public hearing on Jan. 2, 2003 at 5:00 p.m. at the city hall in Haskell located at 301 South First.

The purpose of this public hearing is to allow for final public comment regarding the completion of the 2001 Texas Capital Fund Project-Management Training Corporation. The general public is invited to attend and participate.

In addition, should any non-English speaking citizen(s) desire to address the city during such hearing and needs the assistance of an interpreter, the city will attempt to provide one if sufficient notice is provided. Also, if any citizen(s) should desire or need special technical assistance, handicap accessibility to the hearing site, or need interpreter assistance, please contact Sam Watson, Haskell City Administrator, at 940-864-2333.

Written comments may be sent directly to the City of Haskell at P. O. Box 1003, Haskell, Texas 79521, or to the city's grant consultant (Celero Group) at 815 Brazos, Suite 200, Austin, Texas
