Indians to host Albany

The Haskell Indians, after having an open date the past week, will resume non-district play this week against the powerful Albany Lions.

The contest will be played at the Indian Field on Fri., Sept. 15. Kickoff time will be at 7:30 p.m.

The Indians used their ball control style of offense to defeat the Rotan Yellowhammers in their season opener, 33 to 22. Haskell comes into the this game 1 and 0 on the season, while the Lions are 1 and 1.

During the last two seasons, Haskell and Albany have split their games; Haskell winning in Albany and the Lions winning in Haskell. This will be another interesting game!

Haskell's younger teams, the 7th and 8th grade Warriors and the Indian JV, will play in Albany on Thursday night. Game time for the 7th grade will be at 5:00 p.m. The other games will follow.

In last week's action, the young Anson Tigers defeated the Indians JV team 42 to 14, while the 8th grade Warriors lost 22 to 18. The 7th grade Warriors only scrimmaged.

All Indian fans will want to come out and support the Indians in this important non-district game Friday

USDA announces final DCP payments

Agricultural producers enrolled in USDA's Direct and Counter-cyclical program (DCP) can expect their final 2006 direct payment to be electronically deposited into personal bank accounts sometime after the first week in October, announced Glenn R Brzozowski, County Executive Director for the Haskell County Farm Service Agency (FSA). Producers who chose not to receive an advance 2006 direct payment will receive a lump sum payment for the year in October.

The direct payment for a crop equals 85 percent of the farm's base acreage multiplied by the farm's direct payment yield multiplied by the direct payment rate.

The FY 2006 crop year direct payment rates and maximum potential counter-cyclical rates:

Wheat, 52 cents, 65 cents per bushel; corn, 28 cents, 40 cents per bushel; grain sorghum, 35 cents, 27 cents per bushel; upland cotton, 6.67 cents and 13.73 cents per pound; rice, $2.35 and $1.65 per hundredweight.

Soybeans, 44 cents and 36 cents per bushel; peanuts, $36 and $104 per ton; barley, 36 cents and 15 cents per bushel; and oats, 2.4 cents and 8.6 cents per bushel.

"We (FSA) will accept late applications for the 2006 DCP signup from now through Sept. 29, 2006 if producers pay a $100 late fee," said Brzozowski. Producers sign DCP contracts annually and can choose not to participate in the program in any given year.

FSA reminds producers that if changes in operation potentially impacting interest in base acres have been made since signing the last Direct and Counter-cyclical Program contract, the successions-in-interest must be reported to the county committee by Sept. 29, so that a final eligibility determination can be made.

Changes that qualify as a succession-in-interest include

•A sale of land

·A change of operator or producer, including an increase or decrease in the number of partners

·A foreclosure, bankruptcy or involuntary loss of the farm.

•A change in producer shares to reflect changes in the producer's share of the crop(s) that were originally approved on the contract.

If a succession-in-interest has taken place, you, as the "predecessor," are required to refund any advance DCP payments you received for the affected base acres before a payment can be made to the "successor." Not reporting a succession-in-interest can result in contract termination and a loss of program benefits for all producers

For more information about DCP or other FSA programs, call the Haskell County Office at 940-864-2617 or log on to www.fsa.usda.gov.

which has a separate lane. Higgins stated that this is only a temporary condition and that left turn lanes will be a part of the finished project to be completed around the end of summer

Parallel parking is required on U.S. 277 and U.S. 380 with the current temporary striping. Parallel parking will be a part of the completed project.

The recent paving placed in Haskell on U.S. 277 and U.S. 380 is an underseal designed to make the final surface last longer. The final hot mix surface will be placed next summer when the weather is better for paving and after the concrete work is finished. This seal coat does not improve ride quality, but the final surfacing will.

At many locations, driveways and intersections were constructed an inch or two high in anticipation of the final two inches of surfacing. This has created a rough ride, but is only temporary and will be eliminated before the work is completed.

The overall project is the first major work on U.S. 380 in over 40 years and the first rework on U.S. 277 in over 70 years. (Likely the original town section that predates TxDOT.) It could be decades before any other major work is done on these roads. This once-in-a-lifetime project and the negative impact on businesses should be short term. The project will improve the appearance of Haskell in the long run and enhance local businesses

Motorists are also reminded that the area between the solid white line and the curb is not for driving or passing, but for parking. Drivers are reminded that crossing a solid white line should be avoided if possible.

Higgins can be reached by phone at 325-576-2765, 249 N. Central, Hamlin, Texas 79520 or by email, ihiggin@dot.state.tx.us.

TEMPORARY STRIPING-This is the new layout of the downtown intersection of U.S. Highways 380 and 277 in Haskell. Drivers should notice that both highways are now a single lane. All left and right turns as well as straight traffic will be channeled in a single lane, with the exception of traffic moving north on Highway 380. That traffic will be allowed to turn right as before in a lane next to the courthouse. Patience and cooperation is urged by those using the roadway, as drivers learn Selephone

Health screenings should not replace health provider visits

by Jane Rowan CEA/FCS, Haskell County

With the availability of community health screenings and home health testing kits, more and more Americans are playing doctor. Often seen as less expensive and more convenient than a trip to a health provider's office, self-testing diagnostic and monitoring services are big business. However, this technology is not without limits and could result in serious problems for those who rely on these tests instead of the expertise of their health

Devices such as blood-glucose tests and blood-pressure kits make it easier for people to self-monitor conditions such as diabetes and high

However, other tools of the medical trade are fast becoming available outside the health provider's office "no prescription needed" such as bone density scans and ultrasounds, among others. Spiraling health-care costs and interest in preventive health care are paving the way for products and services that provide immediate information and suggested remedies, but not always reliable information and remedies.

Accuracy is an important consideration when it comes to company and/or Medicare; the testing outside a medical setting or without a health provider's order. False-positive test results indicate that a condition is present when, in fact, it is not. False-negatives are results that do not identify a condition that is present. All diagnostic tests have limitations and sometimes their use may produce erroneous or questionable results.

Test results obtained outside of a clinical setting may not be accepted by a health professional and he or she Classifieds Sell Call 864-2686 may recommend another test, possibly costing you twice as much.

Those who rely on tests which are not ordered or conducted by their health provider also miss out on preand post-test counseling, which offer information, support and follow-up advice that only a health professional can give. The benefit of having a health professional involved in a test or screening procedure is that the results can be evaluated within the context of the whole health picture, not just one test.

Furthermore, receiving news of a potential illness or serious medical condition over the phone, or from the color of a test strip, can be devastating.

How can you protect yourself from health scams?

·Be wary.

•Question what you see or hear in ads or on the Internet.

•Find out about a product or service before you pay for it.

•Do not let a sales person force ou to make a snap decision.

•"Free" services are free; they do not require giving the provider your Medicare number, credit card any number or identification.

•Check with your health provider. •Check with your insurance testing being offered for a fee at a community screening may be covered under insurance at your health provider's office.

It's easy to see why some people can be taken in by promoters' promises, especially when successful treatments have been elusive. But resist pressure to decide "on the spot" about trying an untested product or treatment. Ask for more information and consult a knowledgeable health professional. Promoters of legitimate healthcare products or services do not object to your seeking additional information.

You can use the following checklist to help make sure that the health information and/or services you are receiving can be trusted:

•Can you easily tell who is sponsoring the product or service?

•Is the sponsor a government agency, a medical school or a reliable health-related organization?

•Is there contact information for the service provider? Address? Phone number?

•Is your privacy protected?

•Does the product or service make claims that seem too good to be true?

To report a health product or service that you believe is being advertised falsely, contact:

Former Texas First Lady Connally dies at 87

AUSTIN-Former Texas first lady Idanell "Nellie" Brill Connally, 87, died Sept. 1 at her residence in

Gov. Rick Perry ordered that flags be flown at half-staff Sept. 6, from sunrise to sunset, in honor of Mrs. Connally. She was the wife of the late Gov. John B. Connally. Burial was in the State Cemetery Sept. 6.

News of Mrs. Connally's death made headlines and newscasts the world over. As first lady of Texas, she rode in the limousine with her husband and President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy when assassin's bullets rang out on Nov. 22, 1963, in Dallas.

She was preceded in death by Gov. Connally in 1993.

Report details state economy The Austin think-tank, Center for Public Policy Priorities, issued its annual report, "The State of Working

The eight-page report, released Sept. 6, shows how Texans are faring economically, based on wages they earn and other measures.

On the bright side, Texas' unemployment rate continues to decline and the Lone Star State is adding jobs at a faster rate than the U.S. as a whole, the report said.

But nearly five years since the 2001-02 recession, the economy has not rebounded with advances in household income or real wages. Texas has shown a 6.2 percent decline in real median (inflationadjusted) household income since

Nearly all demographic groups have experienced this decline, but younger workers and African-Americans were hardest hit, the report said.

Education and health services is the fastest-growing sector of the workforce, having increased 15.3 percent since 2000. McAllen-Edinburg-Mission was the area of the state with the highest unemployment rate at 7.8 percent, but McAllen-Edinburg-Mission also had the highest job growth over the last year, with a 6.5 percent increase. A chart in the report showed the importance of education. The more educated a Texas resident is, the less likely he or she is to be unemployed. In yet another measure, Texas had a median hourly wage of $12.50, far below the national average of $14.28. But, Texas came in a few cents better than its neighbors, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

The complete report can be found online at www.cppp.org.

Candidates say what they'll do Comptroller Carole Keeton Strayhorn and Gov. Perry rolled out their gubernatorial campaign commercials on television.

Strayhorn portrays herself as the candidate who will shake up the good old boys network in Austin and Perry promotes himself as the candidate who will keep Texas borders safe.

Kinky Friedman, though not through paid TV commercials, said he would do more than Perry when it comes to border security. He said Texas has its own army, the Texas National Guard, and he would order 10,000 troops to the border right Friedman also said he would slap companies that hire undocumented workers with heavy fines and require documented workers to carry a special identification card.

Statewide voter program debuts

Texas Secretary of State Roger Williams and University of Texas baseball coach Augie Garrido kicked off a state voter education project dubbed "VOTEXAS" Sept. 5 in Austin.

The program encourages voters to find out when they will vote, where they will vote and how to use the new equipment in their precincts.

A mobile exhibit will make its way around the state, demonstrating the five different types of electronic voting machines used in Texas.

People who visit the exhibit will have a chance to cast a practice ballot.

The program complies with the federal Help America Vote Act, which requires states to do the following:

•create a centralized statewide voter registration list;

•improve vote casting and counting systems;

•make more polls accessible for disabled and visually impaired oprovide assistance to "non-English language dominant voters": •train election officials, workers and volunteers: and •implement voter education programs.

Seat belt usage up

There's proof that more Texas motorists are buckling up. State transportation officials announced safety belt usage in Texas topped 90 percent for the first time in history.

A record 90.44 percent of motorists are using safety belts, up from 89.9 percent last year.

Since enforcement and education efforts began in 2002, safety belt usage in Texas has jumped more than 14 percentage points. This increase translates into an estimated 1,200 fewer fatalities and more than 28,000 injuries prevented as a result of traffic crashes since 2002, according to transportation officials.

"Increasing safety on Texas highways is something we work on every day," said Hope Andrade, a member of the Texas Transportation Commission. "We are pleased that more and more Texans are doing their part to make our highways a safer place by the simple act of buckling their safety belt every time they get in their vehicle."

Transportation officials credit a safety belt awareness and enforcement campaign called "Click It or Ticket" with helping drive safety belt usage to an all time high in Texas.

The Texas Department of Transportation and its partners, the Texas Department of Public Safety and local law enforcement agencies across the state, engaged in the "Click It or Ticket" campaign last Memorial Day with a single objective: to watch for Texas drivers and passengers who were not buckled up and encourage them to comply with safety belt and child safety seat laws.

Texas law requires drivers and front seat passengers in all vehicles to be secured by a safety belt. Children under 17 years old must be secured with a safety belt or a child safety seat. A child under five years old and less than 36 inches tall must ride in a child safety seat.

A safety belt violation can result in fines up to $200, plus court costs.

Increasing safety on Texas highways is one of the five main TxDOT goals, along with reducing congestion, expanding economic opportunity, improving air quality and increasing the value of transportation assets.

"Helping people get in the habit of using safety belts is just one of the many things we are doing every day to improve safety on our highways, said Andrade. Among the TxDOT initiatives she cited were efforts to install safety barriers in the center median of divided highways, installing rumble strips along pavement edges, building wider safety shoulders, dividing busy fourlane highways, adding dedicated leftturn lanes at busy intersections and encouraging teen drivers to practice safe driving habits.

"Working together we can improve safety on Texas highways," said Andrade.

Beware of Debt Elimination Scams

Rebuilding a good credit rating management. Credit counseling services and debt repayment plans both offer long-term, practical solutions to debt management. But where there are debt-weary consumers, there are fast-talking opportunists who promise quick relief and "debt elimination" plans that are "100% guaranteed" to erase your bad credit. These types of claims are usually false or misleading. Despite what a credit repair company may tempt you to believe, there is no easy way to fix bad credit.

This summer, my Consumer Protection Division closed down a fraudulent "debt elimination" operation which targeted victims of last year's hurricanes as well as other consumers facing financial difficulties.

Bankopp.com and its owner David Jason West promoted a scheme through seminars in various states in which hurricane victims and others were fraudulently promised the complete elimination of debt within a few short months.

To become enrolled in the after a hardship takes time and good required to wire a one-time $5,000 deposit to an unidentified "bank" that would initiate the debt elimination process and use the deposit to defray the costs of the process. Once the cumulative debt of applicants reached $100 million, the bank would begin making loans to pay off individual debts. Once a consumer paid off his debt, the "loan" would be forgiven.

The $5,000 fee was actually deposited to an account in the name of "Del Sur International Holdings." which our investigators traced to Panama. Bankopp.com's owner never offered any evidence in the case that a "bank" even existed.

In truth, Bankopp.com and its associates were simply out to cash in on the misery and vulnerability of overwhelmed consumers.

Legitimate financial assistance in the face of seemingly impossible debt is available. If you have a problem paying a debt, immediately contact your creditor and find out if you can alternate payment make arrangements. Ask if and how this will affect your credit history. Even program, however, consumers were if creditors reduce the payments and give you more time to pay a debt, it most likely will show up for several years on your credit report. Creditors are generally willing to negotiate terms directly without the need of a debt settlement company.

> Consider talking to an attorney before-hand and ask for an explanation of the different legal choices available to you and the consequences of each before you stop paying a debt. A debt settlement company cannot offer you legal advice or representation.

Do not trust a debt settlement company that "guarantees" fast results and assures you your credit will not be negatively affected by using their services. It will ultimately be the creditor's decision if they wish to accept an offer made on your behalf, including the renegotiated amount owed and the timeline in which it must be paid.

And even if the creditor accepts the offer, they will likely inform credit bureaus that you did not honor your original agreement with them. That information could remain in your credit history report for several Debt settlement will not prevent negative marks against your credit history. If you fail to pay your bills in full and on time, this will likely make it more difficult to obtain credit or, in some cases, even future employment.

If a creditor does not accept an offer from a debt settlement company on your behalf, the creditor can continue to attempt collecting directly from you, including through a lawsuit or other legal action.

Know all fees a debt settlement company will charge before you contract with them, above the amounts that will be used to pay creditors directly.

If you are transferring money to a third party to pay your creditors, be sure to check periodically with your creditors directly to ensure that your debts are being paid.

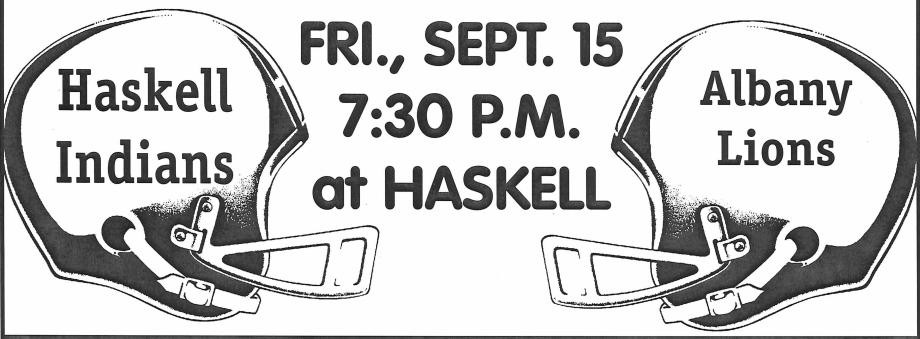

Remember, there are seldom quick fixes to your credit history if it reflects legitimate debts you did not pay. The key to rebuilding your credit is to manage your debt and to consistently pay your bills on time.

USDA to issue final CCC crop payments

Johanns announced that USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) would issue final 2005-crop upland cotton, grain sorghum and peanut counter-cyclical payments beginning Sept. 1. This is the earliest that producers will have received final counter-cyclical payments for these commodities.

"Drought and low market prices are just two factors adversely affecting many producers this year," said Johanns. "These payments will help many farmers during this difficult period to remain a viable part of America's agriculture sector in the

Upland Cotton

The final 2005-crop upland cotton counter-cyclical payment rate is 13.73 cents per pound. The upland cotton payment rate is at the maximum level due to market prices averaging well below the 52-centper-pound loan rate during the marketing year. Because of these low market prices, USDA is able to calculate the final counter-cyclical payment rate for upland cotton at this time. If market prices were higher, USDA would calculate the payment rate after USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) announces the national average market price in October.

year. The 2002 Farm Bill provided for the availability of partial 2005crop CCP payments in October 2005 and in February 2006. Producers who accepted the two partial payments received 9.61-cents-per-pound. They are due an additional 4.12-cents-per-

Grain Sorghum

The final 2005-crop grain sorghum counter-cyclical payment rate is $0.27 per bushel. The grain sorghum payment rate is at the maximum level due to market prices averaging well below the $1.95 per bushel loan rate during the marketing year. Because of these low market prices, USDA is able to calculate the final counter-cyclical payment rate for grain sorghum at this time, prior to NASS's release of the final season average price at the end of Final CCP payments for grain sorghum are normally made following the marketing year. The 2002 Farm Bill provided for the availability of partial 2005-crop CCP payments in October 2005 and in February 2006. Grain sorghum producers who accepted the two partial payments received $0.1890 per bushel. They are due an additional $0.081 per bushel.

Peanuts

CCC announced that peanut farmers will receive 2005-crop counter-cyclical payments of $104 average marketing year price for 2005-crop peanuts, which was announced on Aug. 31 is $346 per short ton, $9 lower than the $355 national average loan rate.

The 2002 Farm Bill requires final counter-cyclical program (CCP) payments for peanuts to be made after the end of the marketing year. The 2002 Farm Bill provides for partial 2005-crop CCP payments in October 2005 and February 2006. Producers who accepted the first and second partial CCP payments for 2005-crop peanuts have received $72.80 per ton and are due an additional $31.20 per ton

The counter-cyclical payment rate is the amount by which a commodity's target price exceeds its effective price. The effective price equals the direct payment rate plus the higher of: (1) the national average market price received by producers during the marketing year, or (2) the national average loan rate for the commodity. The counter-cyclical payment amount equals the CCP payment rate, times 85 percent of the farm's base acreage, times the farm's CCP yield per crop. USDA's Farm Service Agency distributes CCP payments on behalf of CCC.

For more information on the direct and counter-cyclical payment program, contact your local USDA Service Center or visit: http://www. fsa.usda.gov/ online.

According to a study published in the Archives of Internal Medicine, there's a 76 percent discrepancy between what medicines doctors prescribe to patients and what medicine these patients really take. Some of the inconsistency stems from patients not taking their prescribed medicine, patients taking medicine that's not prescribed and/ or patients taking the wrong dosages.

"This study stresses the need to open the lines of communication between the doctor, patient and pharmacist," said Abraham Delgado, MD, FACP, medical director, TMF Health Quality Institute. "If you can't finish your medicine, you can't afford it or are having trouble taking it, as your doctor, I would want to know so that we can talk about other options and avoid any potential for harm." In 1998, the Journal of the American Medical Association estimated that medication-related problems resulted in 106,000 deaths annually.

Delgado believes that patients can protect themselves by being proactive anytime a medicine is prescribed to them. "As you leave the doctor's office with your new prescription, make sure you know how to take your medicine, when to take it and that you understand what you are taking it for," he said.

Robert Talbert, PharmD, is a professor of pharmacy at the University of Texas Health Science Center in San Antonio. He advises patients to schedule a yearly "checkup" with their pharmacists just as they would schedule an annual physical with their physician. If patients are using more than one pharmacy or pharmacist, they should carry a list of all of their medications to the pharmacy at each visit and review them with the pharmacist. For mail order prescriptions, patients may want to call after refills or if they have other questions about their medications.

"Take all of your medications and over-the-counter products with you, including any herbs, vitamins, dietary supplements, ointments and creams," said Talbert. "Your pharmacist can check for drug duplications, medicines that don't mix well together and help you to understand more about the drugs you are taking. At least one health care professional, either your doctor or pharmacist, should know everything that you are taking.'

The following tips will help you safely manage your medicines:

•Follow the doctor's instructions and read (and keep) the package insert information, if available.

•Take your medicine for the whole time it is prescribed, even if you feel

•Do not skip doses of medication or take half doses to save money. Talk with your doctor or pharmacist if you can't afford the prescribed medicine. There may be less costly choices or special programs to help with the cost of certain drugs.

•Talk to your doctor or pharmacist if you are having side effects.

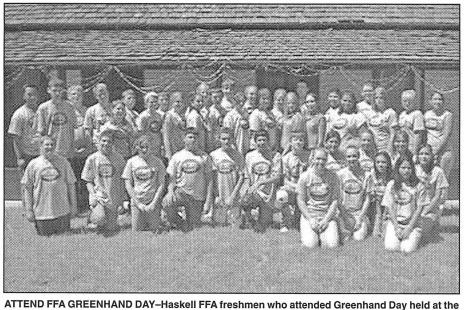

enough to avoid running out of medicine

·If you take more than one medicine, be able to tell them apart by size, shape, color, number or name imprint, form (tablet or capsule) or container.

•Make a list of all the medicines you take. Show it to all your health care providers including physical therapists and dentists. The list should include the name of each medicine, doctor who prescribed it, reason it was prescribed, amount you take, and time(s) you take it. Be sure to add any new medicines to your list.

•Dispose of medications that have gone out of date and store medications in a dry, cool place (not the bathroom).

Take care of final estate plans now

While you may not want to think taxes about the inevitable, it will save your family a lot of difficulty and heartache if you go ahead and have a will drawn up appointing an executor-a person who will be in charge of wrapping up your personal and financial affairs upon your death.

There are two kinds of executors: Personal executor-spouse, child, other family member or friend. Professional executor-person or organization that you may not be close to, but who you trust with your estate, such as your attorney or accountant or bank trust officer.

You may also want to appoint an alternate executor in the event that your primary executor is unable to fulfill the responsibilities. Otherwise, the court will appoint someone to fulfill the obligations. Your executor must be of legal age at the time that he or she has to act. You can name your 12-year-old child as executor if vou wish, but if something happens to you before the child is of legal age, you will need to have an alternate.

Some of the responsibilities of your executor will include:

Arranging your funeral

Obtaining an original copy of your will and filing it with the court for probate

 Taking possession of your estate and making a list of your property

•Paying outstanding debts and Notifying beneficiaries

•Distributing property according to your wishes after all debts and taxes have been paid.

The person you choose as your executor must be someone you trust and should be honest, organized and able to communicate well with people. Make sure that you communicate your wishes to your executor and that he or she knows where you keep your records and exactly how you want your property or assets distributed. You may also want to give a copy of your will to your executor with a notation where the original can be found, such as your safe deposit box.

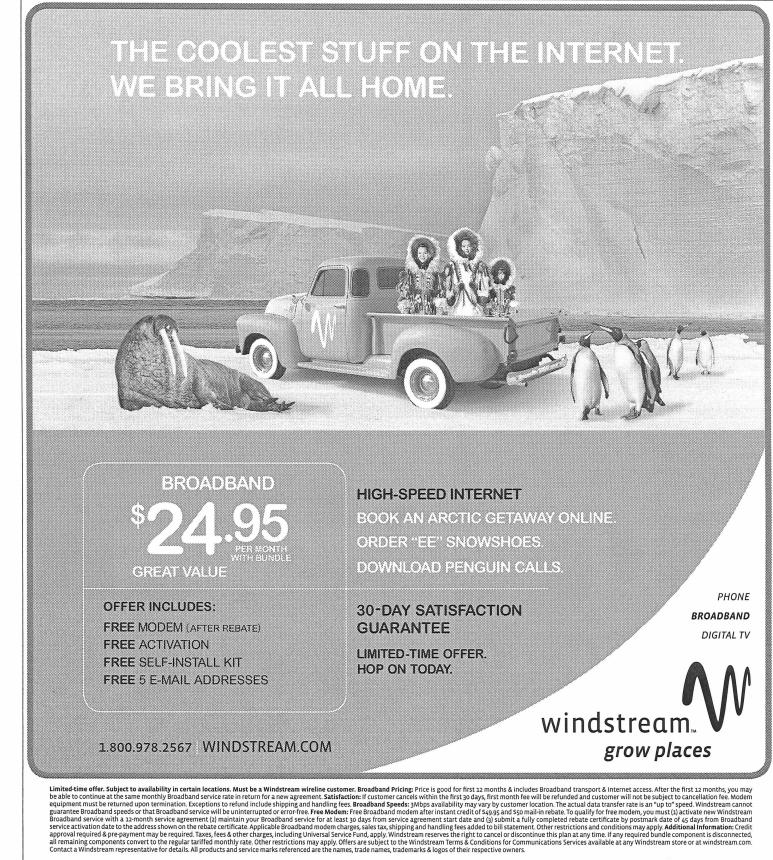

Since there is a great deal of responsibility, be sure you choose someone in whom you have total trust and confidence. If your estate includes business interests, it would probably be preferable to name someone other than your business partner as your executor.

By naming a professional executor, he or she will be able to bring impartiality to the administration of your estate. If you choose more than one executor, be sure to make it clear in your will how differences of opinion will be settled. Taking care of your estate early will save grief and problems for your family later.

This Week's Devotional Message:

THE CHURCH CAN BE A BRIDGE AS WELL AS A BUILDING

Is there a generation gap at your house? Have the lines of communication and understanding between parent and child fallen into a deep chasm of selfishness, intolerance and mutual mistrust? Take your family to church and let them all listen to the word of God, who sent His only Son to preach the gospel of faith and love to young and old alike, so that both may better understand the meaning and purpose of life. When family needs replace individual desires, your faith will provide answers that will benefit all. Let your church span the gap of discord with a bridge of
