mmittee strives to help Haskell

by Caron Yates

Have you been wondering what you can do to help improve your town or the county as a whole? Well, here is your answer, The Committee to Help Haskell County.

This committee was formed in July 2005 at the suggestion of Jill Watson, warden of the Rolling Plains Correctional Facility. Its primary purpose is to bring attention to the county by utilizing all cities in the county.

The work of the committee is spearheaded by Susan Cockerell, but includes members from area towns. Committee members are Susan Turner, Sheila Hester and Reida Penman of Rochester, Billie Ruth Walker of O'Brien, Diane Simmons of Paint Creek/ Lake Stamford, Oleta Cornelius McKeever, Connie Benton, David and Donna Davis, Janis Cox, Jennabeth Kimbrough, Nelda Lane and Sally Rueffer of Haskell.

Cockerell said, "We really would like help from others, especially from county towns not as heavily represented." Judge David Davis added, "The activities sponsored by the committee provide a great way to showcase your area. We need people with ideas who are willing to work."

Fund-raising, in the beginning, came from several sources. The prison helped to publish a cookbook of recipes from cooks around the county, which sold quite well. The committee is in the process of "reworking" the cookbook with new recipes. Also generous donations from businesses and individual community members has helped make the work of the committee possible.

Some of the upcoming events being planned and sponsored Prairie Days. by the committee for this year include a quilt show on Oct. 25 at the Weinert School. The Miss Merry Christmas Pageant will be held Nov. 8, a $500 academic graduating senior from each high school in the county and the trail ride and queen's contest which are a part of the Wild Horse

Cockerell emphasized the committee would be willing to assist any community in the county with planned events. They can help with advertising, award will be presented to a organizing, meals or with whatever the need might be. If you would like to help on the committee or have an idea for an event in your community,

Hurricane Ike slams Texas coast

AUSTIN-Hurricane Ike's 40mile wide eve crossed Galveston Island early on Sept. 13, laying waste to the city of Galveston before plowing its way north through Houston, then heading northeast and out of Texas.

Ike brought with it powerful winds and a 12-foot wall of seawater that wrecked or swamped Galveston homes, businesses and infrastructure. FEMA-directed search and rescue crews moved in to Galveston and other communities as winds and high water began to recede. An estimated 140,000 coastal residents did not obey evacuation orders. On Sept. 14, the governor's office reported more than 1,900 storm victims had been rescued.

On Sept. 15, nearly 3 million homes were still without power in scores of communities in Ike's path. Crews began to distribute water, ice and MREs (Meals Ready to Eat) on Sept. 14. Authorities asked that residents not return to stricken areas until further notice.

For evacuees and rescuees whose homes and businesses are still habitable, it could take weeks before power and city services are restored.

The National Weather Service on Sept. 12 had predicted a lifethreatening storm surge to hit the Texas coast in advance of Ike as it spun toward Texas as a Category 2 hurricane with winds in excess of 100 mph.

Service to protect Ike evacuees

Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott on Sept. 11 launched Operation Safe Shelter, an emergency service to provide registered sex offender information to evacuation shelter personnel.

The Office of Attorney General established a 24-hour a day, toll-free emergency hotline to allow shelter personnel to inquire whether evacuees are registered sex offenders.

When evacuation shelters contact the Safe Shelter Hotline at 866-385-0333, officials will access and share information from the state's registered sex offender database

Callers should be prepared to provide evacuees' names, addresses and dates of birth. Shelter managers can use this information as necessary to coordinate specialized housing arrangements or take other action as appropriate, according to the Texas tops California in study

Gov. Rick Perry and economist Arthur Laffer on Sept. 9 unveiled a study comparing Texas and Laffer's study suggests that Texas' lower taxes, reasonable regulations and limited government have created a better economic climate with growth in income, wealth and employment projected to strengthen relative to California and the nation as a whole.

Perry and Laffer presented the study at a forum hosted by the Texas Public Policy Foundation, Texas Association of Business and Texas Conservative Coalition Research Institute.

A news release from Perry's office said the study compares the two states' taxes on labor income, capital income, consumption, overall tax environment, government spending policies and government regulatory policies. The study found Texas' economic environment more competitive than California's in five of the categories and equal to California's in taxes on consumption.

Perry credited "controlled government spending and a reasonable tax environment with creating prosperity and attracting businesses to move to Texas" and expressed the value of "continued government spending restraint and transparency."

New prepaid tuition fund debuts

Texas Comptroller Susan Combs on Sept. 10 rolled out the Texas Tuition Promise Fund, a way for parents to lock in current prices for college tuition and fees for their children.

"You can prepay for a fouryear degree, or you can prepay in small bites - for just a few classes or a few semesters. And, best of all, you don't have to worry about future tuition increases, because vou lock in current prices," Combs said.

The Texas Tuition Promise Fund offers three levels of pricing to prepay undergraduate tuition at schools ranging from public community colleges to four-year state universities. The money also may be used at out-of-state or private universities, with students and their families making up for the difference in cost.

Prepaid tuition accounts must be paid in full and open for at least three years before tuition benefits can be paid, a feature that encourages parents to begin saving early, the comptroller

Cotton Market Weekly

By Plains Cotton Cooperative Association

September 11, 2008

Cotton futures prices on the New York Board of Trade remained mostly under pressure this week due to poor demand. There also were reports of significant damage to the Louisiana cotton crop while considerable rain in parts of West Texas caused concern about crop development.

Regional analysts in the South Delta reported substantial damage to the Louisiana crop as a result of flooding rains from Hurricane Gustav. Defoliation of fields in the region remained limited. Cases of boll rot and hardlock also were reported in the state as well as in parts of Arkansas and Mississippi, and re-growth has occurred on some stands. Therefore, farmers will have to apply several rounds of harvest aid chemicals to kill the new vegetative growth, a process that will increase the cost of production.

High Plains farmers prayed for rain earlier this year, but the flooding storms that drenched Lubbock and the surrounding area this week were not what they had in mind. Cotton farmers now require heat to push their crop to its full potential, and the recent cool front chased away the dry, baking sun growers desperately need.

Elsewhere in Texas, farmers from central and northern parts of the state to the coast were carefully monitoring the approach of Hurricane Ike which was making its way to the Texas coast this week. According to the National Hurricane Center, the storm was projected to make landfall along the central Texas coast in the early morning on Sept. 13 as a category 3 or possibly category 4 hurricane.

Although picking is virtually complete in the Texas Upper Coastal Bend and Coastal Bend districts, work has just begun in the Winter Garden area. Farmers there are concerned that heavy wind and rains could adversely affect quality and yield.

In other news, USDA's September supply/demand report contained numbers that were well within the range most cotton market analysts expected. The U.S. crop was pegged at 13.8 million bales, up one percent from August but 28 percent less than last year. Forecasters made their estimates before Sept. 1 so any damages to the nation's cotton crop from Hurricane Gustav or Hurricane Ike will not be tallied until the October report. In its report, USDA left domestic consumption unchanged from last month, but U.S. exports were reduced 500,000 bales to 14.5 million due to weaker world demand.

Meanwhile, the department's latest weekly export report showed net sales of 138,300 bales, up considerably from the previous week but 36 percent less than the four-week average. Turkey and Mexico were featured buyers. Export shipments for the week ended Sept. 4 totaled 233,700 bales, up three percent from the previous week but down five percent from the four-week average. China was the primary destination.

Spot cotton sales were at a stand-still in the week ended Sept. 11 as no bales were traded online by producers in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas compared to 843 bales the previous week.

"In addition to a lack of demand, producers are reluctant to sell at the current prices," an analyst explained. "Unfortunately, the repayment amount on an old-crop loan would require a higher selling price than farmers could receive for their cotton this week."

urricane lke affects us al

by Caron Yates

For most of the residents of Haskell County and the surrounding area, Hurricane Ike was something we watched develop from afar. Although we from any hurricane that hits the swim to safety." Texas coast, we don't usually get much closer.

While there may be others, at least two evacuated families are staying in Haskell until they get the "all clear" to go back home. Chris McSmith, son of Dr. and Mrs. Bill McSmith, and his wife Debi, left their home in downtown Houston on Thursday afternoon ahead of the storm. They are anxiously awaiting word on the condition of their workplaces, as well as, their home. McSmith said, "Our house is in a high area, but all the major highways leading in are still under water." In fact, Gov. Rick Perry is advising residents of the affected areas to stay away until utilities can be restored because of health concerns.

Joey Martin, son of Stan Martin, and his family are also staying in Haskell with grandmother, Ruby Martin. He lives on the Galveston coast and still has not heard how his property fared the hurricane and subsequent flooding. He is hoping for the best, but knows the flood waters were devastating.

They left during the voluntary evacuation and took lesser used roads, so they didn't encounter any major problems in getting out. Martin said, "A close friend that chose to stay had to move up always hope for beneficial rain as high as his attic and eventually

Certainly get of harm's way is the number one priority in preparing for such a large hurricane. Medical personnel from the Wichita Falls area were sent to Houston to care for patients, so local employees could secure their own families and property. Of course the Red Cross. Salvation Army and like organizations are always on standby to help in disasters.

The Abilene office of the Texas Department of Transportation also sent a total of nine people in three different crews. Two crews were sent for courtesy patrol, while one was sent to help restore radio antennas and coordinate all TxDOT radios, from the different districts, to the same frequency, thus enabling complete communication.

A four member team from the Abilene Zoo were called on to help with the evacuation of The Texas Zoo in Victoria. They went anticipating moving all of the animals to Houston. However, because Ike turned northwest at the last minute, plans were changed. The majority of the animals, were crated and moved to the strongest building at the zoo in Victoria. Equipped with generators, animals and keepers remained protected until the hurricane and flood danger had passed. By Saturday, the animals were released back to their . As Abilene Larry Lemon stated, "It's one thing for a building to be blown over, but it's a really different story when that building houses tigers or other such dangerous animals." On a more local level, the medical director at the Rolling Plains Prison, was asked to go to Pecos to assist with the medical needs of federal prisoners being evacuated from the Houston facility.

Getting utilities restored quickly is of utmost importance. Mark Thane and Ricky White from AEP's Haskell and Stamford offices have been dispatched with the Abilene group to Longview to assist in the effort to restore power. Jerry Coker has just returned from helping with repairs in Louisiana.

While the devastation of a hurricane is not something most of us are likely to experience first hand, we can always seize any opportunity to help those affected, financially or personally in whatever way possible.

FAITH'S WARNING SIGNAL SAYS TO STOP, LOOK AND LISTEN

When everything seems out of whack Because we've wandered off the track, It's time we should be turning back; So STOP and get on board.

Though good intentions will abound, Temptation often gets around

And sidetracks us, until we've found We LOOK to be restored. So let's pretend we're engineers

And train ourselves to shift the gears Away from sin; then use our ears To LISTEN to the Lord.

TAX PLANNING

MAKE TIME NOW FOR A TAX REVIEW

The beginning of fall is a great time to get a head start on your 2008 taxes. You can review earnings and deductions and organize your records while there's still time to make adjustments for maximum 2008 tax savings.

Start your review by pulling out a copy of last year's return and your most recent pay slip. If you're self-employed, pull together your earnings and expenses for the year to date. Focus on the following areas:

•Compare this year's earnings and tax withholding with three-quarters of last year's total. If there are big differences, you may need to adjust your withholding or estimated tax payments before year-end.

•Review your itemized deductions for this year and compare to 2007 numbers. Decide whether you'll likely itemize or take the standard deduction. If you itemize, there could still be time to take discretionary deductions.

•Review your 2008 contributions to 401(k) plans and IRAs. Are you on track to make the maximum contributions you're allowed? Pay special attention to this year's increased IRA limit and the catch-up contributions if you're age 50

•Look at the performance of your investments, and estimate whether you expect large gains or losses in 2008. Decide if you want to sell anything to offset 2008 gains and losses.

Finally, are you taking advantage of the tax breaks for individuals and businesses provided in the 2008 tax law (for example, the increased deduction for business equipment

For guidance in your review, contact our office. We can help you identify tax-saving opportunities you might want to consider to cut your 2008 tax bill.

CONSIDERING EXPANSION-The Committee of the Rochester Veterans Memorial is considering expanding the project to include Haskell veterans. The committee would like input from Haskell veterans, their families and other Haskell citizens. The Haskell American Legion has expressed support. With enough response, a meeting will be called to discuss the details. All veterans names would be submitted in writing and each one verified. The names would be listed in alphabetical order. There would be no charge, but donations would be accepted. If interested, contact Jane Short 742-3302 or Linda Short 743-3325 as soon as possible. The committee would like to have the Haskell Veterans Memorial stone completed by Veterans Day, Nov. 11.

City Council report

The Haskell City Council met in a regular session Sept. 8 with Mayor Bob Smith and all councilmen except Sue Medford in attendance.

The closing of the alley running east and west in Block 14 of the Original Town of Haskell was approved. The closing was requested by Danny Stocks and Andy Rodriquez, adjoining property owners.

The council accepted the resignation of Chief of Police Tom Bassett.

The appropriated budget amendments were approved.

In the report by City Administrator Brandon Anderson:

•It was noted that recent rains have made several lots and yards overgrown with weeds. Owners of lots and yards out of compliance will be sent letters in the coming days.

•Ads in the Haskell and Stamford papers for police chief have not produced enough applicants for the job. Ads may be run in the Abilene paper and listed on the TML's website.

•Board members for the appraisal district need to be nominated by Oct. 15. Councilmen should be thinking of qualified individuals who might be interested in serving.

•The bid request on the consultation for the refurbishment at the airport has been released. Anderson will be in Austin in late October or early November to help in the selection of the consultant.

• Mark Lundgren with Congressman Thomberry's office is working hard to keep the city advised on the Assisted Living Facility. The city is awaiting news from Washington on the project.

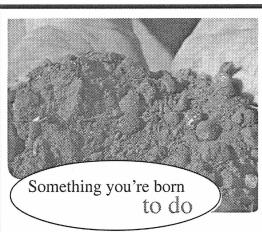

•The sale of the prison is progressing and the completion is anticipated by the end of September.

Everybody has something that they do best. It's something you're born to do. Farming is like that. It's not easy and it's not for everybody. Some years right at the very last minute a storm comes through, takes a would be bumper crop and flattens it like a pancake. It takes courage to face those odds every year. You have to believe in agriculture to do that.

We believe in it, too. Ag banking...it's what we do best. If you're in agriculture in this part of the country, we would like to be your bank.
