WTU to ask for rate increase

West Texas Utilities Company has filed for a general increase in its electric rates for retail customers.

Local Manager Tim McMurray said the application, filed Friday, is a systemwide request for higher rates. Simultaneous filings were made in all incorporated towns and with the Public Utility Commission of Texas at Austin for an increase in rural areas, unincorporated towns and in incorporated towns which have ceded jurisdiction over electric rates.

So far, a total of 19 municipalities served by WTU have opted to let the PUC analyze rate requests and to make decisions for them. These are Albany, Chillicothe, Dickens, Eldorado, Goree, Hedley, Lakeview, Matador, McCamey, Mertzon, Moran, Paint Rock, Roaring Springs, Robert Lee, Roby, Rotan, Rule, Trent and Weinert. WTU has filed complete information about the rate request with each of these towns.

The principal reasons cited for the new rate proposal is that the present rates are not adequate to support the investment WTU has made in necessary new facilities since the last rate increase, Tim McMurray said.

WTU's current construction program, the core of which is the coal-fired power plant at Oklaunion, is the biggest and most expensive in the Company's history. By the time the proposed rates become effective, WTU will have invested more than $84.4 million in new facilities and must spend considerably more in the years ahead to satisfy the growing demand for electricity in West Texas.

The proposed rates would produce an increase in total retail revenue of $26.6 million. This amounts to 11.4 per cent.

No major changes in rate structure are included in the proposal. For residential customers, the average electric bill, including fuel costs, would go up by about 13.2 per cent, although the actual increase would vary with the amount of usage.

Two eject from Air Force jet

By-Jana Harris

An Air Force RF-4C jet from the 67th Tactical Reconnaissance at Bergstrom Air Force Base in Austin, crashed about 1 p.m. Friday, June 17 on the Embree Hunt Ranch six miles southwest of Ozona.

The two members of the Bergstrom jet were the pilot, 1st Lt. Richard L. Toms Jr. and weapons system operator Capt. Richard G. Leary, both of Austin. They ejected uninjured, moments before the plane went down. The crewmen were picked up by a local rancher and transported to Ozona by local officials.

Colonel Hap Carr, Base Commander at Laughlin Air Force Base in Del Rio stated the aircraft was on a routine training mission from Bergstrom when it crashed into a hillside in an isolated area leaving only debris and burned fuel.

A spokesman from Bergstrom Monday declined comment on the cause of the crash. However, other sources present at the accident site speculated a fire in the cockpit.

A board of officers from LAFB and BAFB is conducting a normal Air Force procedural investigation at this time.

Masters track meet scheduled

The 1st Annual West Texas Masters Track Meet will be held Saturday, July 16 at the Lion Stadium in Ozona.

Events will include local men and women participants as well as the young and old from Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio and Corpus Christi.

Field contests will begin at 2 p.m. with running events following at 5:30. Entry fees are $15 for the first event and $1 for each event thereafter. The deadline for entries will be noon, July 16.

Concession stands will be open throughout the day and a discount at local motels may be available for out-of-town competitors.

There is no admission charge for spectators.

All proceeds will be donated to the David Lovell Fund this year.

For more information contact Pete Maldonado, 392-3802; Bobby Aycock or Frank Walston at 392-3621 or 392-3773.

"DIE-IN" FOR PEACE

By Edwin Feulner

The '60s brought us "sit-ins" and "love-ins." But now in the '80s we have "die-ins."

A "die-in," for those of you who may be wondering, is what was staged in West Germany over Easter weekend, when hundreds of pure-of-heart "peace protestors"—after having blocked U.S. military bases—laid down on the ground and pretended to die. The purpose was to symbolize the effect of a nuclear attack and to emphasize their belief that the possession of nuclear arms will lead to nuclear holocaust—an inevitability against which man is defenseless. At issue is NATO's scheduled deployment of Pershing II and Cruise missiles in Western Europe later this year. The chilling irony is that the protestors, failing to acknowledge that NATO missiles are intended for their own protection, staged their war drama in the shadow of a deadly arsenal of Soviet missiles that increases in size almost daily, according to Western intelligence sources.

Unfortunately, the anti-nuke demonstrations in Europe, as in the United States, have been directed almost exclusively against the U.S. and NATO, providing an emotionally compelling, but hardly realistic, picture of the threat we face. In this distorted version of reality, we are the bad guys, and the Soviets the innocents.

The Pershing II and Cruise missiles are, of course, intended to counter Soviet missiles already in place. And we in the Free World didn't put them there.

Writing in Arms Control Today, a publication of the Washington-based Arms Control Association, Richard Barnet, president of the radical-leftist Institute for Policy Studies, said in June 1982, "Perhaps the most important statement to be made by a freeze and an orderly process of nuclear withdrawal would be that the U.S. no longer believes that it can fight and win a nuclear war." This same idea was articulated with grim-reaper morbidity by the peace activists at the West German "die-in."

The argument that there can be no defense against a nuclear attack is debatable. There is a great body of expert opinion to the contrary. More important right now is the fact that if we blindly reject the possibility of defending ourselves against the Soviets' nuclear arsenal we continue to hold the people of the world hostage to nuclear doom—a decidedly immoral policy (called Mutual Assured Destruction, or MAD for short) dating back to the early 1960s.

Some of us have argued for quite a while that the real agenda of the nuclear freeze movement is unilateral disarmament of the West. Despite what is currently being said in the U.S. by freeze supporters about the need for a bilateral, verifiable freeze, the seeds of high-pitched emotionalism now sweeping Europe for unilateral disarmament have already been planted in the U.S.

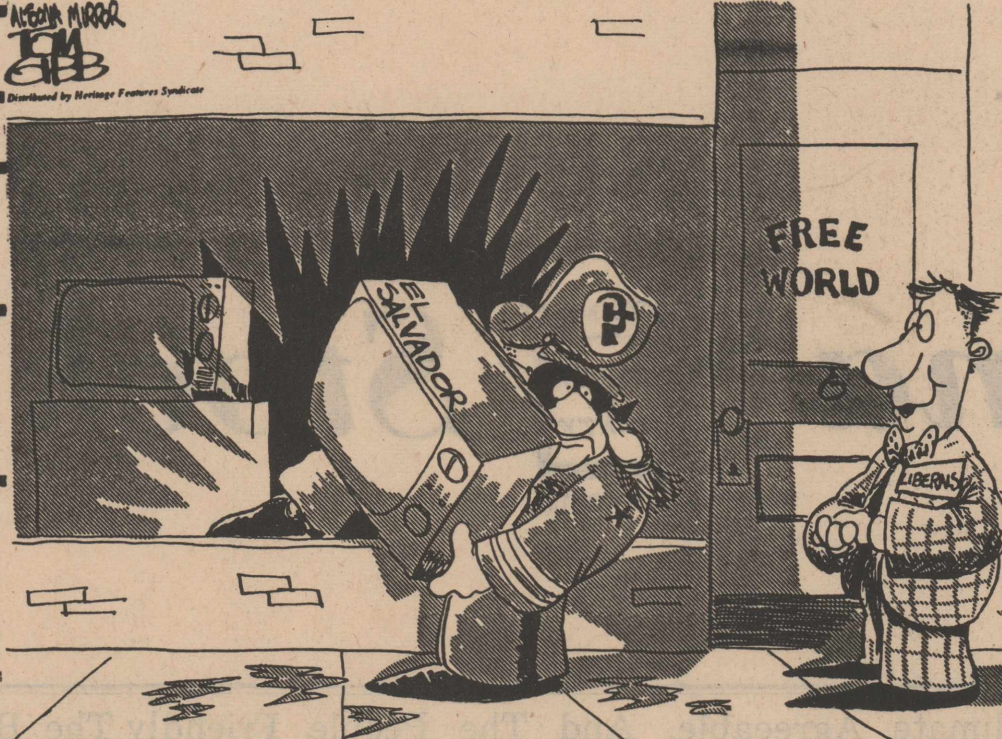

Many involved in the freeze campaign seem to see the U.S. as an aggressor nation and argue that the Soviet Union is only trying, as the IPS's Barnet put it, "to maintain arms competition." They fail to mention that while the U.S. was cutting back its defense expenditures in the '70s, during a period of alleged detente, the Soviets were involved in a massive military buildup.

Many in the freeze movement also seem to feel, as Barnet again put it, that "no one rates a Soviet invasion as more than a hypothetical possibility." No one? We might ask Mr. Barnet to speak with the people of Hungary, Poland and Afghanistan.

If history has taught us one thing about war and peace it is that strength, not weakness, promotes peace. Let's all hope that the current wave of "die-ins" is not prophetic and that the U.S. and NATO are not cowed into a position of weakness that will encourage the Soviets to put us to the test.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Texas Comptroller Bob Bullock certified last week that the Texas Legislature once again, as required by law, has balanced the state budget... but not by much.

Bullock predicted that after the state finishes paying the bills two years from now, there will be only small change left in the bank.

Although Gov. Mark White earlier indicated he might veto the budget unless lawmakers raised taxes for teacher salaries, he was expected to sign the bill, thus ending a budget battle which nickel-and-dimed everyone leaving all feeling underfunded.

But while the tax battle still looms on the horizon, at least two other issues must be resolved first, and events are apparently unfolding to bring lawmakers back into special session this summer. Lieutenant Gov. Bill Hobby predicted last week the Governor will call the Legislature into session within a few weeks to extend the life of the Texas Employment Commission and to enact a brucellosis program. Later this year, Hobby said, White will call a second special session to pass a teacher pay raise.

Some insiders say the first special session could come the last week of June.

Quarantine Sidestepped
 Last week, a few days before Texas was to have gone into court against the federal government's quarantine of all Texas cattle, a tentative bargain was struck when it looked like the Lone Star State was about to lose the case.

White and the feds agreed that Texas will seek to enact a new brucellosis control program and the feds will call off the quarantine as long as Texas shows good faith effort.

White and others will take a week or so to line up the legislative program before a special session is called.

Employment Commission
 When the brucellosis session is ordered, White is also expected to include a bill which will extend the existence of the Texas Employment Commission.

The state agency was subject to the Sunset Act this session, but the Legislature adjourned without passing a bill to continue operation of the commission for the next 12 years.

The Senate passed its version, but when Sen. Lloyd Doggett tried to force the House to accept his "human rights commission" amendment or forfeit the bill, conservative House members called his hand and let the bill die.

Whether Doggett is successful in attaching the amendment this summer may be an indicator of whether he will forge ahead with his now-in-force campaign to challenge U.S. Sen. John Tower.

Water, Farmworkers
 Two other unfinished issues which might find their way onto the special session agenda are the comprehensive Texas water plan and workers compensation for farmworkers.

The farmworker bill was killed in regular session by a last hour filibuster and the water bill was held up in a House committee after it passed the Senate.

A West Texas Senator, Bill Sims of San Angelo, speculated last week Texas may have to pass the legislation piecemeal over the next few years, since it will be difficult to provide an all-encompassing statewide water plan.

Sims passed legislation which would govern the use of fresh water in secondary oil recovery, increase requirements for lining salt water pits, and provide for plugging of old abandoned wells which often leak oil or salt water onto agricultural land.

Galveston Gambling
 What with all the talk last session about legalizing horseshoe gambling, some speculators want to rebuild the gambling hey-day of Galveston Island. Gambling of all sorts was allowed until 1957 when the Attorney General closed it down.

Now that the Island is undergoing a building boom with several large hotels going up right on the seawall, a move is afoot to legalize casinos.

State Sen. Chet Brooks and the city council have agreed to a non-binding straw vote to see what citizens want.

Texas Republicans
 The Texas Republican Party reports it is in unified state following this spring's bloody infighting and the election of a new state chairman. The GOP vows to carry the state in '84, and national Republicans visited Dallas last week to prepare for the coming convention there next year.

New chairman George Strake said last month the party, which was $230,000 in debt, was whipped from the November Democratic sweep which reclaimed the Governor's Mansion. "We had nowhere to go but up," he said.

He reports gains since the '78 Clements win: 230 GOP chairmen out of 254 counties, and increases of two congressmen, 14 legislators and 152 county and district elected officials.

Dependable television reception with only a moderate outlay of cash may soon become a reality for Ozonans if planned tests of strength of television signals in this fringe area prove feasibility of installing a community television receiving and distribution system in the town. Backers of the proposed community TV receiving system for Ozona include Dick Henderson, W. E. Friend, Jr., W. D. Cooper, Oscar Kost and W. E. White.

Eight years of experience and more than 240 hours of attendance at short course training schools for operators and managers, plus exceptionally high grades in examinations combined to win for W. D. Cooper, manager of the Crockett County Water Control and Improvement District water and sewer service, a Grade A permanent "Certificate of Competency" from the State Health Department and A&M College.

A water carnival, featuring a college swimming team, water ballet and bathing beauty contests will be held Saturday night, July 10, at the north pool here under sponsorship of the Ozona Lions Club.

Reminiscent of the heydays of the old Crockett County rodeos was the jam-packed grandstand at the fairgrounds here Saturday night for the closing program of the sixth annual All Black Rodeo sponsored by the Ozona Roping Club. An estimated 2,000 spectators cheered the determined cowboys and horses in a variety program of goat roping, calf roping, hair pulling, bronc riding and steer riding.

Voters of Crockett County will be called upon to decide at the polls on Saturday, July 10, whether or not they want the sale of beer legalized in the county.

Tips For Gardeners

From The Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

Perhaps June is your enjoyment month. The days are not too hot for outdoor activities and most of the planting has been done, so it is time to pause briefly to reflect your accomplishments and enjoy the flowers, vegetables and other fruits of your planting. The welcome good morning rain last week has given our city such a beautiful fresh green landscape, we hope the showers continue.

Perhaps some of you may need a few cultural practices to help you produce vigorous rose plants since the arrival of warm summer days are here. Proper care at this time will insure attractive foliage and many lovely roses this fall and early winter. Too, strong healthy plants also are better able to withstand very unusual winter conditions we sometimes have.

Roses are heavy users of nutrients and require applications of fertilizer for the best growth. Fertilizer should be applied every 6 to 8 weeks until July 20. The soil should be moist before applying fertilizer which you should spread over the surface and work into mulch lightly. Water the bed thoroughly after applying fertilizer.

Frequency of watering depends upon the soil type, climate conditions, growth stage and development. The most efficient use of water is obtained with the soaker hose, thoroughly wetting the soil to a depth of 8 to 10 inches at each application. Frequent, light applications of water will result in shallow root system and drought damage. A thick layer of mulching material is an excellent cultural practice, for it conserves the moisture, keeps soil insulated against heat and reduces weed growth.

As the roses fade and petals fall, remove the spent flowers. Otherwise, food and energy will be depended on useless seed production rather than new growth and continued flower production. Use sharp shears for removing the old flowers, making the cut just above the second five-leaflet leaf above the main cane or branch. If long-stemmed exhibition blooms are desired, all lateral shoots developing below the terminal flower bud should be pinched out as soon as they are long enough to grasp firmly.

It's that time of year once again when it is important to know the essentials of making good pickles. Pickles are affected by weather and growing conditions, kinds of salt used, acidity of vinegar, temperature of storage conditions, pickling process, and time between gathering and pickling.

Pickling variety cucumbers (such as Explorer, Salty, and Crispy) and not of salad type are for pickling. For best results pickle cucumbers within 24 hours of gathering, select uniform 4 to 6 inch cucumbers, wash and remove blossoms, and use nonwaxed cucumbers.

Always waterbath pickled products. The water bath treatment is designed to destroy destructive bacteria and will not soften pickles, unless they are processed beyond recommended time.

It is best to use soft water for pickling, since hard water may contain minerals which darken pickles. If hard water is all that is available, boil it in an enamel lined container for 15 minutes. Remove from heat, cover, let sit for 24 hours, then remove any scum or sediment.

High grade, clear, distilled vinegar of 4 to 6% acidity (40-60 grain) is best for pickling. Cider vinegar has a unique taste, but it may darken or lighten products such as pears, onions, or cauliflower. Homemade vinegar should not be used because acid content varies. Some vinegar may be 10% acid and must be diluted with water of equal part. Be sure to use at least 1/2 cup (5% acidity) per quart of pickles.

Use fresh, whole spices for best flavor in pickles. Powdered spices may cause the brine to darken or become cloudy. For best results tie spices loosely in a cheesecloth bag and remove bag before canning.

Pure granulated or pickling salt with noncaking additives should be used for all pickling. Noncaking ingredients may cause cloudy brine and iodized salt may darken pickles. Calcium chloride may be used to improve texture (1/4 teaspoon per quart).

For more tips on pickling or canning contact the County Extension Office.

PLUS OR MINUS GOD?

This young man, like multitudes of others his age, realizes he must soon be earning a living and perplexing questions arise.

What vocation shall he follow? Will the life-work he has in mind offer him a suitable outlet for his talents? Will he be happy and contented in that work?

And questions arise about the ethical standards he should set for himself. Just how honest ought a fellow be anyway? How loyal to the truth? Do moral compromises pay?

In other words, this young man is inquiring into the meaning of life itself. In essence, his question is, shall a fellow plan his life plus or minus God?

How he works things out depends largely upon his earlier training. If his religious life has been neglected, he is more likely to make the fatal mistake of trying to get along without God.

If he has been more wisely led, he will place God and truth and right at the center of his thoughts. If he seeks the better way, his House of Worship stands ready to offer him every aid.

Register now for Ranchers Roundup

Concurrent sessions for sheep and goat producers during the International Ranchers Roundup (IRR) are mostly geared toward increased production, developing better foreign and domestic markets and herd health care.

The IRR will be August 1-5 in this West Texas ranching hub at the Convention Center. Program details and registration information are available by writing to IRR, P.O. Drawer 1849, Uvalde, Texas 78801.

Major topics that will be discussed include Increasing Lamb and Kid Crops Panel, Lamb Feedlot Panel, Supplementing Sheep and Goats, Will Supplemental Feeding Pay?, Recommendations for Supplemental Feeding, Internal and External Parasite Control, Managing Sheep on Bitterweed Panel, and Use of Guard Dogs Panel.

Two internationally known South African sheep and goat specialists will discuss industry changes in that country, a chief competitor with the U.S.

Dr. Danie Wentzel, of the Groot Fontein School of Agriculture, Middleburg, South Africa, will discuss Increasing Mohair Quality and Production and Reducing Abortion in South African Angora Goats. Derek Hobson, a prominent rancher will give a general overview of sheep and goat ranching in South Africa, including their marketing and promotion activities. Wentzel and Hobson are both scheduled to appear in the special "discussion session" where they can carry on an in-depth discussion with ranchers in an informal setting.

Some 14 sheep and goat specialists will share their expertise with participating ranchers. Included on the program are seven ranchers, three feedlot operators and two research scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in San Angelo.

The IRR is recognized as the largest, most comprehensive, educational event ever organized to aid southwestern ranchers. Over 100 speakers will appear during the three days of concurrent sessions which also include programs in beef cattle, grazing management, marketing, wildlife, ranch family business management, and a computer workshop. Over 100 ranching experts will be on hand to share their expertise.

Sheep and goat producers can participate in the August 5 ranch tour of innovative sheep and goat operations, in West Texas. The much talked about Savory Grazing Method will be observed on the tour. Other tours available to IRR participants include one in beef cattle, grazing management, and a two-day wildlife tour in the scenic Texas Hill Country with an overnight stop in Kerrville. July 1 is the ranch tour deadline.

Due to space limitations, participation will be held to the first 750 who register. If space is available, late registration can be done at the door.

Pot plant popularity proliferating

Pot plants have enriched home and business landscapes for a long time, but their popularity has increased sharply in recent years, says Dr. William C. Welch, a landscape horticulturist.

Welch, who is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, notes that a big advantage of plants growing in containers is their portability, enabling "instant landscaping." They can be given a prominent spot when at their peak and hidden when not needed or in an unattractive condition. Container plants also need only a small amount of space.

"A wide variety of plants with different cultural requirements can be grown in containers since individual soil, water, pH (acidity), fertility, light and other requirements can be provided for each plant," the horticulturist points out.

Place plants in containers to dramatize them and make them more important visually. Deciduous or evergreen trees, shrubs, vines, annual and perennial flowers make excellent choices.

"Determine plant locations and amounts of available sun, moisture and protection present," Welch advises. "Annual flowers prefer at least a half day's sun but evergreens and tropicals do well with less."

For better design, do not combine plant species in one container since they often compete visually, says Welch. Clusters of similar plants and containers may be preferable to a single plant. Also, large, open-growing plants may look best with a groundcover.

Select containers of simple design that feature the plant. Some of the most appropriate containers, such as clay products, are often moderately priced.

"Pot plants usually require more care than those grown in the ground," says Welch. "Most need frequent watering, especially during hot weather, and added protection in cold weather."

Use a planting medium high in organic matter, such as peat or compost. A good mix is five parts garden loam soil, four parts organic matter and one part course builder's sand.

Repot plants every three or four years in a new medium since organic matter breaks down and decomposes. Periodically apply small amounts of fertilizer, suggests Welch.

Tennis clinic slated

There will be a tennis clinic starting June 27 to July 9, July 4 which is a Monday will be skipped due to a holiday and most people probably will be out of town. That day will be made up on July 9 which is the following Saturday.

There will be 3 different divisions in the clinic. All ages up to the 6th grade will be considered beginners and will meet from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. All Jr. High ages will be considered average and will meet from 11:00 a.m. till noon. All high school ages or advanced from 1:00 p.m. to 2:00 p.m.

Memos from your child

Don't spoil me. I know quite well that I ought not to have all I ask for - I'm only testing you.

Don't be afraid to be firm with me. I prefer it; it makes me feel more secure.

Don't let me form bad habits. I have to rely on you to detect them in the early stages.

Don't correct me in front of people if you can help it. I'll take much more notice if you talk quietly with me in private.

Don't make me feel my mistakes are sins. It upsets my sense of values.

Don't protect me from consequences. I need to learn the painful way sometimes.

Don't be too upset when I say "I hate you". It isn't you that I hate, but your power to thwart me.

Don't take too much notice of my small ailments. Sometimes they get me the attention I need.

Don't nag! If you do, I shall have to protect myself by appearing deaf.

Don't make rash promises. Remember that I feel down when promises are broken.

Don't forget that I cannot explain myself as well as I should like. This is why I'm not always very accurate.

Don't tax my honesty too much. I am easily frightened into telling lies.

Don't be inconsistent. That completely confuses me and makes me lose faith in you.

Don't put me off when I ask questions. If you do, you will find that I stop asking and seek my information elsewhere.

Don't tell me my fears are silly. They are terribly real and you can do much to reassure me if you try to understand.

Don't ever suggest that you are perfect or infallible. It gives me too great a shock when I discover that you are neither.

Don't ever think that it is beneath your dignity to apologize to me. An honest apology makes me feel surprisingly warm toward you.

Don't forget I love experimenting. I couldn't get along without it, so please, put up with it.

Don't forget how quickly I am growing up. It must be very difficult for you to keep pace with me, but please do try.

Don't forget that I can't thrive without lots of understanding love, but I don't need to tell you, do I?

FOOD STERILIZATION BY NUCLEAR RADIATION EXTENDS SHELF LIFE

A Texas A&M University food scientist says low-level nuclear radiation wastes could be safely used to sterilize and preserve foods.

Radiation could be used at food processing plants to keep potatoes from rotting and extend their shelf life up to a year and a half, said Dr. E. E. Burns. It might also be used to keep milk from spoiling, to preserve strawberries and other fruits and vegetables for longer periods of time, or to keep bread fresher longer.

The process would use radiation from atomic waste to kill microorganisms, such as bacteria, fungi and certain enzymes, that cause food to spoil, he said.

Crockett County Care Center News

BY ANN McCARTNEY
DIRECTOR OF ACTIVITIES & SOCIAL CARE

The rains came and we just were not able to go on the picnic prepared for us by the fine group of ladies from the First Baptist Church. We were truly sorry. Ladies, try us again next year!

Tuesday morning bingo winners of the El Chato dinner for two was once again shared by two. Tied this week were Johnny Henderson and Bertha Miller. They will both be ready for the field trip, planned for next week, when we once again go to eat at El Chato's.

Tuesday afternoon Ruth Hester came for ceramics. She came early because of her Dr's appointment on Wednesday. Residents participating included Juana Hernandez, Frances Borrego, Inez Biggs, Bertha Miller, Maude Pettit and Ola Mills.

Wednesday morning residents enjoyed the movie "My Side of the Mountain" furnished by our local school system.

Wednesday afternoon the Sunshine Hour volunteers were from the Lillian Henderson Sunday School Class of the United Methodist Church. They were Sandy Stark and Frances Curry. They continued doing the fine job this group has done this summer.

Madge Granell was pleased to have Madye Jo Humphreys back and assisting with the beauty shop this week.

Thursday afternoon Bible study was once again led by Rev. Dennis McKain and assisted by Marie Walker. This was followed by Spanish Hour of Praise led by Maria Vitela, Paulita Leal, Carmen Vargas, Felipa Munoz and Juanita Rebelez. Earlier in the week Juanita Delgado and Manuela Flores had served communion to this group of residents.

Friday morning bingo winner of the gift certificate donated by Watson's Department Store was Johnny Henderson. Grace Cotter won the second place prize. Volunteers included Danette Robinson, who helped both Tuesday and Friday, Kellye Robinson, Misty Fowler, Cherry McGuire, Anna Bell Patrick and Alice Ross.

Dominoes were played on Saturday morning by Paul Cavin, Maude Pettit, Ola Mills, and Bertha Miller.

On Saturday afternoon Jo

Cook came and gave a craft program. Residents painting the plastic stick plant decorations included Frances Borrego, Juanita Hernandez, Moriana Perez, Inez Biggs, Bertha Miller, Pearl Morris, Maude Pettit, Ola Mills and observer Paul Cavin.

Sunday afternoon church services were given by members of the First Baptist Church.

On Monday residents were treated to piano music by Sara Hignight.

We have a special project going at the Care Center. With memorial money we are buying a hydrocollator, a steam pack and master heating unit. If this project interests you, we would be glad to add your name to the list.

Social Security and the single parent

A growing number of divorced and widowed women and men today face the responsibility of raising a family alone. Many are concerned about providing for dependents when either parent dies or becomes disabled. Others -- especially women who have earned a few Social Security work credits -- wonder how they'll get by in later years long after the children are grown.

If you are a single parent, Social Security should play an important part in your financial planning. It represents a base of protection. You should know ahead of time what benefits may be paid on your Social Security record and on that of your former spouse.

As an insured worker, you can get retirement checks as early as age 62. And monthly payments can be made should you die or become severely disabled for at least a year. Eligible dependents include your unmarried children who are under 18 (under 19 if in high school) or who become disabled before age 22. You need not have custody of the children nor provide most of their support for them to receive benefits.

If you are caring for a child under 16 (or disabled) who is getting a benefit based on the other parent's earnings, then you may receive checks, too. If you work and earn over a certain amount ($4,920 for people under 65 in 1983), however, some or all of your payments may be withheld.

Some benefits can be paid on that person's social security record even though you have no entitled child in your care. For example, you are eligible for checks as a widow or widower at 60 or older (or as early as 50 if disabled) or as divorced spouse at 62. In case of divorce, the marriage must have lasted at least 10 years. Benefits can be paid even if the former spouse had remarried.

If you wish to know more about social security benefits for single parents and their

Driver's Ed. receives high marks

In Texas, driver education apparently ranks up there with Mom, baseball and apple pie, according to the results of a survey conducted by the Texas A&M University Safety Education Program.

Of 180 Department of Public Safety licensing officers, high school principals, parents, students and average citizens questioned, almost 100 percent of them supported driver education, said Dr. Maurice Dennis, director of the Safety Education Program which conducted the survey for the Texas Driver and Traffic Education Association.

"Driver education has recently come under a number of attacks," said Dennis, "but in this survey people are saying it's a program they believe in."

"Costs are borne more and more by parents. The state currently reimburses the school system $12.50 per student, while the cost to the school is $136.00," he said. "And some of the kids who need driver education the most are unable to take it because of the cost involved."

Dennis said a campaign called "Help 200,000" (the number of young people in Texas who reach driving age each year) is trying to influence the state legislature to take a look at driver education-not only to put more money into the program, but also to raise standards and mandate improvements.

Nitrites used to cure meats

Consumers today are assured of safe cured meat and poultry products because of a food additive called nitrite. Nitrites prevent food spoilage by inhibiting the growth of bacteria, some of which causes botulism, a potentially lethal condition for humans.

Nitrites have an especially important role in protecting today's cured deli meats which are marketed in vacuum packages as well as canned, says Dr. James Denton, a poultry marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Meat packaged in this manner would provide a good medium for botulism-causing bacteria were it not for the protective nitrites.

Actually, nitrites go back a long way—even to Biblical times when salting and curing was a popular method for preserving meats, notes Denton. Salt (sodium chloride) used in the curing process back then likely contained low levels of nitrites, such as sodium nitrite.

Before the advent of refrigeration, the curing process was the most reliable method for preserving meats, notes the specialist. The most common method was the "dry cure" in which a salt, sugar and nitrite mixture was applied directly to the meat as a dry mixture. This mixture "dried" or reduced the meat's water content and also reduced water activity in the moisture remaining in the meat. Both of these effects significantly reduced the potential for bacterial growth, thus preventing meat spoilage.

Even after refrigeration came into being, people had become accustomed to the flavor of cured meats, so use of a brine method became popular, Denton points out. The method involves soaking or injecting meat with a mixture of salt, sugar, nitrite and water. This still gives consumers the flavor of cured meat but with a much lower salt content and only enough nitrite to effectively store the meat up to two weeks.

Smoked meats prepared without the use of nitrite are just that—smoked—and have a shelf life of only five to six days, says Denton. Meat cured with nitrite in the brine and then smoked is stable in the home refrigerator for two weeks.

Cured meat should be frozen if it's to be kept longer than two weeks, emphasizes the specialist.

Carbohydrates not as fattening as thought

Carbohydrate foods like pasta, potatoes, corn and bread are often portrayed as the fattening "villians" in American diets.

But they are actually full of energy, nutrients, fiber and protein, and not all that fattening, says Mary K. Sweeten, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

According to the specialist, the chemical composition of carbohydrates is indicated by the name—carbo for carbon; and hydrate, for water.

Simple carbohydrates are the sugars and sweeteners found in fruits, vegetables, dairy products and processed sugar. Complex carbohydrates are many simple carbohydrates joined together in growing plants. They form the starches and fiber of vegetables, fruits and grains.

Carbohydrate foods provide an efficient source of energy essential for functioning of the muscles, brain and nerves and for good use of other nutrients in the body, explains Sweeten.

They act as carriers of many essential nutrients, including vitamins and minerals. They are also a good source of dietary fiber, and an inexpensive source of protein.

"Many people don't realize that carbohydrates contribute four calories per gram to their diet—which is the same amount of calories per gram contributed by protein." Fat contains nine calories per gram. "So carbohydrates are not the fattening foods they have often been called," declares Sweeten.

Research has shown that obese people do not necessarily eat excessive amounts of carbohydrates, but they often eat more fat than people of normal weight, she adds.

Carbohydrates provide a wide variety of nutrients in anyone's diet, says Sweeten. Whole grain foods and enriched breads contribute essential B vitamins and minerals. Carbohydrate-containing fruits are major sources of vitamin C.

Vegetables, such as carrots, sweet potatoes, yellow squash and dark green vegetables are good sources of vitamin A.

Wheat flour and cereal products also account for about 17 percent of the protein in the U.S. diet. And except for dairy products, carbohydrates are low in fat and contain no cholesterol.

"Far from being fattening 'villians,' carbohydrates are necessary for a balanced diet," says Sweeten. Consumers should be wary of any diet that recommends severely limiting or eliminating carbohydrates, cautions the specialist.

MEDICAL MEMORABILIA DONATED TO TEXAS A&M

Century-old medical instruments and other items belonging to one of Central Texas' first doctors have been donated to Texas A&M University, where they will be displayed in the Medical Sciences Library.

The collection includes saddle bags which carried surgical instruments and 24 apothecary jars, some still containing medicine more than 100 years later.

They belonged to Dr. Thomas H. Dennis, who practiced in Limestone County in the late 1860s.

The doctor's great-grandson, Dr. George Tipton of Temple, presented the items during National Library Week. Tipton, a consulting physician at Teague Veterans Administration Center in Temple, is also a member of the Texas A&M medical faculty.

Other memorabilia donated include personal papers, a framed diploma and portraits of Dennis and his wife, said Virginia Algermissen, director of the Medical Sciences Library.

Harsh penalties for DWI convictions could do more harm than good if implemented, says a Texas A&M University safety education expert.

"My only fear is that people will overreact and make the penalties so strong that they will be ineffective," said Dr. Maurice Dennis, head of the Texas A&M Safety Education Program and co-author of the curriculum used by most Texas court-mandated educational programs for DWI offenders.

"It (driving while intoxicated) is still not looked on as a purposeful act. If we said first offenders would all get five years at Huntsville (state prison), juries wouldn't convict. They're not going to take a chance on ruining this person's life because they're thinking, 'That could be me,'" said Dennis.

Dennis said the emphasis should be on higher rate of convictions with lighter sentences—for example, a mandatory 72 hours in jail for first offenders, plus participation in alcohol education.

Can you afford today's life insurance?

Yes, if it's Farmers Variable Premium Whole Life. It's a life insurance policy designed for today's economy, and also to meet the needs of the future. It gives you a lifetime of affordable protection.

How can Farmers do this? On many insurance policies you pay more. Those fixed premiums must allow for all the likely variables in future economic conditions. By designing a plan with variable rates, Farmers New World Life Insurance Company can offer you lower premiums now and, they are guaranteed for three years.

After that at no more than three year intervals, they can go up or down, but can never be raised higher than stated in the policy. There are many other advantages in this new approach to life insurance... phone me, I'll be glad to tell you.

Hyperthermia effective treatment for cancer eye

More than 9 out of 10 cases of ocular tumor, (cancer eye), in cows regressed after treatment with hyperthermia, according to scientists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, who conducted extensive field testing of this new technique.

This is of real significance since annual economic losses to the U.S. livestock industry

Prepare to rid premises of mosquitoes

Residents of water-logged sections of Texas should begin a do-it-yourself project immediately to help rid their premises of sleep-robbing, outdoors-spoiling mosquitoes, reports the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

Rainfall has increased the spread of mosquitoes and is producing some phenomenal mosquito hatches, particularly in coastal areas, reports Jimmie D. Dickens, Director of the TDH General Sanitation Division.

While many areas have mosquito control districts or local health departments for large scale reduction of mosquitoes and mosquito larvae, the individual home dweller can do a lot to alleviate the problem.

"Mosquitoes must have water in which to hatch their eggs, so the best way to combat them and the potential viral diseases they cause is to eliminate places around the home where water collects," said Dickens.

Some mosquitoes lay their eggs in old tires, tin cans, gutters, or other water-holding containers in which they may remain unhatched for weeks or months until they are covered over with water. When water collects, it usually draws what health officials call flood water mosquitoes. These mosquitoes are very aggressive and will even attack you during daylight hours, but they seldom carry disease, said Dickens.

from cancer eye have been estimated to be in excess of 20 million dollars, according to Dr. Gary C. Smith, Professor of Animal Science at Texas A&M University. Dr. Nelson Adams, Extension Livestock Specialist, Fort Stockton, was in charge of field testing.

Losses are in the form of reduction in salvage value due to carcass condemnation, reduction of weaning weights of calves nursing

After water stands awhile and becomes stagnant, it draws the Culex quinquefasciatus, commonly called the Culex or southern house mosquito. This mosquito can carry St. Louis encephalitis and is usually a night feeder.

One frequently overlooked source of mosquitoes are roof gutters, which become clogged and hold water. These should be cleaned several times a year, and all water-holding containers should be removed from the premises. Dickens says bird baths, flower vases, and watering containers for pets should be emptied and washed twice a week. Fish ponds can be stocked with mosquito-eating fish.

Wearing a mosquito repellent will help you when outdoors in mosquito-infested areas, as will the wearing of long-sleeved shirts and long trousers.

Doors and window screens should be kept in good repair and should fit tightly to keep mosquitoes outside. Commercial sprays can eliminate mosquitoes which get indoors.

But the best practice, said Dickens, is to prevent mosquitoes in the first place by eliminating standing water.

affected cows, weight losses of affected cows, and a shorter productive life-span of cows and associated replacement costs for such cows.

Hyperthermia, (super heat), is furnished in the field by a small hand-held device developed by Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory and manufactured by private industry.

Cancer cells have been found to be more susceptible to damage by heat than normal body cells and therefore are killed by a heat level that causes little or no permanent injury to adjacent normal tissue cells.

The device induces heat in animal tissue by the passage of radio-frequency electric currents through the tissue, between and under the electrodes.

A treatment involves heating the tumor site for 30 seconds. Power source is a portable 12-volt battery or the device can be operated from a cigarette-lighter receptacle in a motor vehicle.

Bovine cancer eye occurs more frequently in geographic areas with high intensity ultraviolet light and some breeds are more susceptible than others. For testing, Smith and Adams chose 16 ranches in high-risk areas in West Texas and examined 1,770 cows and found 239 of the cows had ocular tumor (cancer eye).

Cooperating ranchers were sought, with a relatively large number of cows with cancer eye tumors, who would cooperate in treatment and follow-up evaluations.

A detailed diagram was made of the exact location on the eye and the approximate size of each tumor. No histopathological examination was made of tumor cells and all tumors were treated, except for seven advanced invasivestage corneal tumors.

"It has been reported that 20 to 25 percent of the cases grossly diagnosed as cancer eye are not squamous cell carcinoma," Smith says.

"However, ranchers or veterinarians in the field would not try to determine whether the observed lesions were malignant or benign and would treat every tumor; such was the procedure in this evaluation. Treating all tumors is recommended since benign lesions often become malignant."

Most treatments initially were performed by Adams. However, by demonstrating the technique during treatment on each ranch he involved the ranch owner, county extension agent, and ranch foreman in learning the proper procedure.

Therefore, the results represent a number of operators using the hyperthermia device under diverse conditions. There were 420 individual tumors identified on the 230 cows for an average of 1.76 per cow.

As previously mentioned, seven cows had tumors in the advanced invasive stage, completely encompassing the cornea, and some of these had secondary infections. No treatment was attempted on these cows.

In this evaluation, 81.2 percent of all tumors on affected cows occurred on the eyeball and 18.8 percent were on the eyelids. Of the 18.8 percent were on the eyelids. Of the 18.8 percent occurring on the eyelids, 46.8 percent occurred on the outer surface of the upper or lower lid and 53.2 percent occurred on the third eyelid.

A 95 percent regression was achieved for all tumors, irrespective of location, less than 5 mm. in diameter or requiring one application of treatment.

As the size of tumor increased, the regression after treatment decreased. Regression for tumors requiring two, three, and four or more treatment applications were 88.3 percent, 76.0 percent and 60.0 percent, respectively.

"The overall 90.8 percent success of tumor regression after one treatment establishes that the hyperthermia technique is a highly successful method for treating ocular tumors," Adams says.

"In addition, the treatment technique is simple enough to be used by anyone who is familiar with cattle and has received some professional instructions and demonstration of the equipment.

"The equipment is also compact, light-weight and easily used at remote field locations, where no electrical sources are available. Successful treatments result in a rapid, easily-identifiable tumor regression, without permanent damage to adjacent normal cells."

"However," Smith interjected, "The average heritability estimate of 30 percent for susceptibility to cancer eye must be considered in evaluating a management program for control of this disease."

"It must be emphasized that this method of treatment should be used only in an effort to reduce production losses and, particularly, losses due to condemnation.

"This method of control should not be used to mask the phenotypic appearance of a detrimental genetic trait, thus allowing the perpetuation of the trait in subsequent generations.

"This would be particularly true for purebred seedstock herds; any animal with cancer eye should be identified and eliminated from the herd as soon as is economically feasible," Smith concluded.

Pamphlet promotes healthy lifestyle

Despite advances in modern medicine, good health is still primarily the responsibility of the individual. Bad health habits are the root of many medical problems.

That is the message in a pamphlet titled "Your Health is in Your Hands," produced by the Texas Medical Association. The pamphlet notes that practicing good health habits has two important benefits:

You may save money on doctor bills and home remedies. You will feel better and will have taken an important first step towards a longer, healthier life.

TMA encourages you to watch six areas to ensure good health:

Alcohol: If you drink alcoholic beverages, do it moderately. Two drinks a day should be the limit. Overindulgence can lead to alcoholism, cirrhosis of the liver, and auto accidents.

Smoking: Ideally, no one should smoke. On an average, 80 percent of all deaths from lung cancer are caused by smoking. It has also been linked to circulatory diseases, increased risk of heart attack, and cancer of the bladder, mouth, and throat.

Obesity: Many persons weigh more than is healthy because their eating is triggered by anger or anxiety. If you can identify the times your resistance to overeating is greatest, you have accomplished the first step in changing your eating habits. Being overweight can lead to heart attacks, diabetes, and high blood pressure.

Exercise: Regular exercise is a must to keep your heart muscles and lungs in shape and to supply your body with the blood it needs. How much and what kinds of exercise you need depends on your age and physical condition.

Sleep: The amount of sleep needed varies from person to person. Eight hours a night is the general rule. Three nutritious meals a day: Something as simple as eating breakfast may increase the quality and length of your life. Have lunch and dinner at roughly the same time each day. Avoid snacks.

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation for the wonderful support given to me by Ozona people during both my stays in the hospitals. About all I had to look forward to was my mail, and believe me, I got hundreds of cards and letters every day. I very much appreciated the flowers also. They were a spot of cheer in an otherwise dreary atmosphere. I thank you for the phone calls, the prayers, the visits and especially for all the good food after I came home.

Sincerely,
Tom Montgomery

Electronic phones popular choice

Five million consumers purchased their own telephones in 1982, and another 10 million are expected to do so in 1983.

Electronic telephones are becoming an increasingly popular choice for those who buy phones, says Bonnie Piernot, a family resource management specialist with

Wind tunnel testing helps gas mileage

Truck designers at International Harvester are finding clues to greater fuel efficiency blowing in the wind at Texas A&M University.

The university's wind tunnel has been used for the past two years to help the firm improve gas mileage for its 18-wheelers.

In late 1982, International Harvester announced a successful coast-to-coast run of its largest Class 8 line-hauler, which averages 8.26 miles per gallon, about 2.5 mpg better than conventional trucks.

"We feel the increase in efficiency was due about two-thirds to aerodynamic changes and one-third to a better engine," said M. Eugene Olson, Harvester's project development engineer for aerodynamics.

Texas A&M's wind tunnel is operated by the Texas Engineering Experiment Station (TEES), the engineering research arm of The Texas A&M University System. The tunnel has been used to test projects ranging from the space shuttle to Dallas' Reunion Tower.

Astros break even

The Ozona Astros broke even in the Big Lake Softball Tournament last weekend with one win and one loss.

In the first game, the Astros defeated the Big Lake Tigers 7-5. Kent Muse was the winning pitcher while Calambres was the loser.

The Astros fell to the Tigers in the second game 13-8. Winning pitcher was Pablo Cruz and losing pitcher, Dutz Enriquez.

the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Electronic phones differ slightly from standard push-button phones because they send out pulses instead of electronic beeps.

Although phone companies will often charge extra to handle the electronic beeps of push-button dialing, there is no extra charge with electronic phones, says Piernot.

Another advantage of electronic phones is that they can be programmed to perform special functions, such as dialing frequently called numbers, canceling incoming calls from people who don't use a special code, and preventing the person on the line from hearing while you talk to someone in the room with you.

"People with physical disabilities could really benefit from some of the options such as automatic dialers, amplifiers, large dials and number pads that electronic phones make available," says the specialist.

"But electronic phones have their disadvantages too," warns Piernot. For example, current electronic phones cannot be used for the cut-rate long-distance services, or for push-button bill paying.

Because electronic phones are still in the developmental stages, they are also more likely to break down than standard phones, explains Piernot.

"Electronic phones are definitely more sensitive and need a little more care than others." Some people may find it helpful to have a standard phone as a back-up for their electronic phone, she adds.

Servicing electronic phones can present another problem. Some stores will not service electronic phones and the consumer must pay to ship it to a central or regional service center.

The cordless telephone is popular because it allows phone use indoors and out with a range of up to 1000 feet. The portability is convenient, yet can also result in a consumer misplacing or even losing a phone outdoors.

Due to rapidly developing technology, the quality of electronic phones will probably get better, while the price may actually decrease in the future, states Piernot.
