STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS
By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Near the end of last week, one veteran reporter characterized this special session as "the most confusing mess anyone has seen in years." No one disagreed.

But two days later, the House rallied behind its leadership to pass the Texas public school reform bill, and the ball is rolling, indeed.

Since this is a tax session, the House is calling the shots more than in ordinary sessions. The House will not act to approve a tax bill, until after the Senate has passed the school reform bill and the governor has signed it, its leaders have said.

The bill sent to the Senate last week included a temporary appointed State Board of Education, perhaps the most dramatic of this year's proposed reforms and probably the most politically sensitive.

Other reforms approved were competency testing for all teachers, a salary schedule recognizing teacher longevity, a career ladder for teachers, and pre-kindergarten programs for four-year-olds with language or learning disabilities.

The pre-kindergarten portion was one item that had been struck down by a committee that had "gutted the bill," according to one legislator.

Lewis Takes Over

House Speaker Gib Lewis expressed his dismay at the gutting, but after the bill reached the floor for debate, House members were too split to reach a majority.

Even the agreed points seemed to be falling apart. Finally, Lewis took over and began working for daylight. On the long day of passage, Lewis pushed through a compromise reform bill, gaveling the votes sections by section until final approval was reached 15 hours later.

"Lewis is getting everything he wants," one labor leader was overheard saying.

The Speaker was aided by at least two other factors: the legislators' desire to avoid dragging out the session, and his own power to make new committee assignments next January, when the Legislature convenes again in regular session.

"Gib took an extra interest in the (reform) bill, and it's hard for a member to ignore his request for support when Gib has the power to make or break him on committee assignments just down the road," one senator said.

Teachers Lobby

The groups representing teachers gave their approval to the compromise, at least outwardly, even though they opposed some of the control measures placed on the profession.

But when Lewis agreed to leave their salary schedule intact, they gave their support. That schedule gives raises for experience and provides for some merit raises.

Senate Action

Across the rotunda, senators were laboring over their version of the school reform bill, sticking fairly close to the proposals of the select committee.

But it had already rejected some of the reforms which the House approved.

The biggest question remaining on the issue was whether the Senate would go along with the House bill, or whether it would act to significantly alter it.

With time running out on the 30-day legal limit of the session, the Senate appeared willing to maintain the House reforms in order to bring up the tax bill which will pay for the whole thing.

Earlier, the Senate voted to confirm 448 of the governor's appointees.

Farmworkers Insurance

Meanwhile, waiting in the wings is a bill providing for workers compensation insurance to migrant and seasonal farm laborers.

Governor Mark White has indicated he may open up the special agenda to include this issue, if enough time remains near the end of 30 days, and the bill's sponsor is not taking any chances.

Last week the bill by Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, passed out of committee and is now poised for floor action, should the agenda be opened.

Jim Mattox

A newspaper investigation revealed last week that Texas Atty. Gen Jim Mattox has hired nine staffers to aide special prosecutors, which is three times the number allowed by state law.

Six of the nine reportedly are carried in the budget of another division of Mattox office. Fund transfers between division is not authorized by state law.

The probe reported that Mattox hired 17 more staff than authorized by law. A Mattox spokesman disagreed with the interpretation of the statutes.

BANKING ON GOOD HEALTH

By Edwin Feulner

If Congress doesn't act quickly, Medicare could go bankrupt in less than five years. That's not much time to fiddle around with inefficient remedies; the program helps pay hospital bills for more than 30-million Americans!

When Congress acted last year to bail out the failing Social Security retirement fund, it didn't even examine the related Medicare hospital fund — currently suffering from what might prove to be a terminal illness.

Medicare insurance pays most hospital bills for Social Security recipients. Initiated in 1966, it cost $3.4 billion its first year. Medicare now costs $36.1 billion annually — better than a ten-fold increase.

There are many factors contributing to the cost hemorrhage. People live longer and 2.2-percent more elderly are added to the Medicare rolls each year. The permanently disabled became eligible for Medicare in 1977. And there has been a sharp increase in medical costs in recent years. A May Reader's Digest article on the Medicare crisis reported that between 1967 and 1982 "the daily rate of a hospital room escalated 457 percent ... at the same time newer and higher-priced diagnostic tests and surgical procedures have been prescribed with increasing frequency." According to the Congressional Budget Office the additional funds pumped into Medicare can't keep up with the escalating cost of hospitalization.

The time has come to find a cure for the ailing program. Recently, proposals for "privatizing" Medicare have begun surfacing. Though the very idea sends some people into knee-jerk-induced spasms, the plan deserves serious consideration. One such proposal, by former White House analyst Peter Ferrara, proposes the use of "health-bank" individual retirement accounts (IRAs).

Under this proposal, workers would continue to pay taxes to fund the current Medicare program, but they would also receive tax incentives to establish voluntary health-bank retirement accounts. Over the years, funds that accumulate in these private accounts would be used to pay for private health insurance and other medical expenses during retirement.

This proposal could be the first step toward solving the current Medicare financial crisis. It would support the current system for the elderly without other medical insurance plans; it would provide health care for the poor; it would make the system equitable. Most of all, it would create a financially secure health-care system for retired people — at considerable savings to the tax-paying public.

you and the LAW

PRESENTED BY THE STATE BAR OF TEXAS

Q: How much can I deduct as damage on my income tax for an easement I had to allow the city utility company for a power line through my property? My lawyer says 90 percent, but my accountant disagrees. Whom should I believe?

A: It is difficult to evaluate your question without more information. For example, did you receive any money or other consideration for the property? Is the entire property affected by the easement or only a specific portion?

Generally speaking, the grant of an easement on a taxpayer's land is treated as a sale or exchange of the portion of the property affected, and gain or loss is measured by the difference between the amount received and the adjusted basis allocated to that portion of the property affected. This gain or loss is usually a capital gain or loss. Casualty losses, which generally give rise to ordinary income deductions, are usually not available for the granting of an easement.

Q: I am divorced and living with my 10-year-old son. My parents and I have raised the child without any help from his father. If I die while my son is a minor, does my son's father have any claim to him?

A: At your death, your son's natural father would have a right to custody of his son. The surviving parent is considered the "natural guardian" of the children. His rights as a natural parent would be superior to anyone else's rights where your son is concerned, but your parents could challenge this in a contested hearing in probate Court.

The only way that you can prevent that is to terminate parental rights for failure to support the child. To do this, you would have to go to District Court and prove that the boy's father had failed to support in accordance with his ability for more than one year and that it would be in the boy's best interest to terminate the parent-child relationship.

Q: In many auto repair shops I have noticed the sign "Not responsible for loss by fire or theft." Is this a defense in case of a lawsuit?

A: Notices placed in a repair shop purporting to limit liability usually are insufficient unless expressly called to the attention of the customer. When actually made aware of such notice, the customer expressly or impliedly agrees to be bound by such limitation. The shop, however, cannot relieve itself from liability for gross negligence or fraud. Even a disclaimer of ordinary care of property left with the shop will be strictly construed and limited to its precise terms.

Q: My son lived in my home all his life and died without leaving a will. He had my name on his signature card at the bank with checking privileges and access to his savings account. I have other children. Do I have to divide his money equally among myself and my other children? He also left all his material things here.

A: A person who dies without a will, leaving no spouse or children, leaves all his property to his parents equally. If only one parent survives, the other half goes equally to your son's sisters and brothers.

Depending on how the bank accounts were set up, you may have to apply for court administration before you can get any of the checking or savings. Even if you are able to withdraw the money, it must, like the other property, be shared, either with his other parent or with his brothers and sisters.

Q: What are the requirements for the State to hold driving records, or can they be purged?

A: Texas Motor Vehicle Laws require the Department of Public Safety to keep records of all convictions and accidents. The DPS is required to examine your driving record to see if renewing or issuing a license would be dangerous to public safety. The Department is, therefore, required to maintain records only so long as they may form the basis of cancellations, suspensions, revocations or denials that show a person to be a frequent violator of traffic laws. There are no provisions, however, for automatic purging of driving records. Records which are not required to be maintained may be destroyed with the approval of the State Auditor and the State Librarian.

The Newsreel

A rerun of "The Ozona Story" as gleaned from the files of the "The Ozona Stockman"

Thursday, June 30, 1955

Miss Sarah Hicks, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Hicks, won the title of Miss Ozona in the second annual Ozona Lions Club water carnival bathing beauty revue Saturday night at the north pool.

At a District 6 4-H Club meeting, Carl Conklin, Crockett County 4-H Club member from Ozona, was selected to represent the 25 county District 6 on the State 4-H Council. Carl was selected on the basis of his outstanding record of activities and awards, as well as his leadership ability to express himself before a group.

John Linn Scott, Austin architect, employed by the county to prepare plans and specifications and supervise construction of the new Crockett County hospital, submitted tentative plans at a meeting of the hospital board and Commissioners Court last week.

Understandably jittery Ozonans observed the first anniversary of the disastrous flood which enveloped the town in the early morning hours of June 28, 1954, by keeping a nervous watch on rampaging Gurley draw, the comparatively short draw which cuts across the southeast edge of Ozona, as it overflowed its bank about 10 o'clock Tuesday night as the result of heavy rains in the limited watershed of the draw northeast of Ozona.

A need for a better flood alert system for Ozona was pointed up Tuesday night when a group of well-meaning persons caused a near panic with unfounded rumors of impending flood.

Mrs. P.L. Childress and daughter, Genelle, entertained with a luncheon Saturday at the Childress home to honor Miss Melissa Smith of Kansas City and Miss Mary Mitcham of San Angelo, Mrs. Childress' nieces, who were here for a visit.

Letters to the Editor

June 20, 1984

Dear Kitty:

To clear the record for various members of the Chamber of Commerce who in years past have donated generously for the funding of a "fireworks show", the Chamber of Commerce will not be the actual sponsor per se of the July 4th fireworks display.

In conjunction with the activities planned by the Chamber of Commerce for July 4th, the Crockett County National Bank is sponsoring the show as a way of "expressing appreciation to the community for making our first year so successful." The Directors of the Crockett County National Bank have committed themselves to a "full partnership" with the people who reside in Ozona, Crockett County and surrounding counties. By underwriting the costs associated with this display, we are simply saying "thank you" to those who have supported our efforts to establish a banking organization committed and dedicated to providing professional banking services in an atmosphere of friendship and trust.

We hope everyone in our community enjoys the activities planned by the Chamber of Commerce. We also hope you will enjoy the "fireworks display" which will culminate the day's activities.

Very truly yours,
Stan Lambert
President

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

Almost all of your warm-weather annuals should be up and growing now. But there's still time to set out transplants of such bedding plants as marigolds, impatiens, moss rose (portulaca) and coleus. Since wilting can be a problem this late in the season, set out the transplants on an overcast day or provide temporary shade. Fertilize at plant time and every 4 to 6 weeks through August. Use 5-10-10 or similar fertilizer at the rate of one-half cup per square yard of planted area.

If you have plants given as gifts they can be set out in the garden now. Remember that these plants have been grown in a greenhouse, so they'll be more sensitive to outdoors than plants grown for landscape use. They need lots of water, good drainage, and fertile soil. Cut back hydrangeas to about two-thirds their original height and plant in the shade. Dahlias and Transvaal daisies (gerheras) thrive in the sun. Let them gradually adjust to outdoors by setting the pots in partial shade for a week or two before planting in the garden.

You may want to try ground layering to have new plants to put out in the fall or spring. Low-branching shrubs like the old-fashioned roses, spirea, jessy willow, fursythia, devtzia, weigela, verburnum and others are easy to propagate. Just bury a section of branch underground and after it has developed its own root system, use a clean, sharp knife to separate the whole piece from the parent plant, select a young, vigorous branch on the lower half of the plant. Gently make a slanting cut about halfway through the stem; make sure you expose at least one inch of inner bark. Remove all the lower leaves on this section of the branch and bury it 4 to 6 inches in the ground. Use a forked stick or a stone to keep the branch in place. A longer stem may be pinned down at several locations along the length of the stem to get more than one new plant.

July above ground crops - 5,6,7,8,9,28
Root crops - 12,13,17,18,22,23,26,27.
Transplant - 1-4,28,31.

Do-it-yourselfers may yield to professionals

As summer approaches, thousands of do-it-yourselfers will grab their tool boxes and start attacking long lists of home repair and improvement projects. If you're one of them, it could be worthwhile to take a second look at your list and consider the true costs of each job, says housing specialist Dr. Jane Berry.

"Many dedicated do-it-yourselfers will tackle any project without hesitation, regardless of its complexity or the time involved. Yet sometimes a particular job might better be left to a professional," says Berry, a home economist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service. For example, if you plan to purchase carpeting that costs $15 a yard installed or $13 a yard off the roll, the carpeting will account for 86 percent of the total expense. That means only 14 percent is saved by doing the job yourself. In addition, laying carpet requires renting or buying special tools, and a small mistake could ruin the entire job.

So where materials count for the majority of the expense, and your own skills are questionable, it's often better to use the services of a professional, says Berry.

But labor-intensive repair and improvements are another matter, notes the specialist. Finishing an already framed-in attic area, for example, requires relatively inexpensive to correct any mistakes. Generally, sheet-rock accounts for 20 percent of the cost of the job, so the do-it-yourselfer can save about 80 percent over what a contractor might charge for drywall installation and finishing.

Even for labor-intensive projects, not all do-it-yourself jobs will result in saving money, she says, since the cost of materials is often increased due to over-estimating the amount needed and waste.

The value of your time is another cost to be considered, says Berry. It can take the amateur 50-100 percent longer to do a job than it would take a professional.

As you gain confidence, also be careful about attempting jobs beyond your skill level, which can result in accidents, injuries or "botched" jobs that cost even more to repair, she cautions.

With money, time and quality of the finished product at stake, it pays to consider the pros and cons before starting each do-it-yourself project.

Summer heat offers fun, danger to swimmers

Summer means swimming to most children, but clean, shallow water and warm weather don't guarantee their safety, warns a Baylor College of Medicine specialist.

Near-drowning, swimmer's ear and chilling are common dangers for swimmers. However, close supervision, rinsing the ears, and shortened swim periods will help prevent these problems.

Near-drowning, or shallow water blackout, can occur when children compete to see who can stay underwater the longest, said Reuter, a clinical professor at Baylor.

A swimmer taking many deep breaths before going underwater exhales carbon dioxide from his lungs. Carbon dioxide normally stimulates breathing and prevents a person from holding his breath too long. But if there is not enough carbon dioxide in the lungs, the oxygen level can drop low enough to cause a blackout.

"There are more than 8,000 deaths a year in the United States caused by drowning," said Reuter. "Many have occurred from shallow water blackout. And many near-drownings are not reported at all."

If someone blacks out underwater, Reuter advises giving artificial respiration immediately. The simple prevention for near drowning is not to breathe heavily and then try to stay underwater for a long time.

Swimmer's ear, or external otitis, occurs when the ear is exposed to water for long periods of time or when wax traps water in the ear. The skin in the ear becomes wrinkled and itchy, and if scratching breaks the skin, a bacterial or fungal infection may develop.

"The big difference between a skin infection anywhere else and in the ear is that the skin in the ear canal is closely applied to the bone, so the slightest bit of swelling causes a great deal of pain," Reuter said.

People who repeatedly suffer from swimmer's ear should rinse the ears after swimming with a solution of one tablespoon of white vinegar to five ounces of rubbing alcohol, Reuter said.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, MY COUNTRY!

The cynics can make a strong case against our time. Soon they'll try to prove we'd be better off living in another century. But kids still celebrate their birthdays. So does the nation!

Because, along with life and liberty, the pursuit of happiness is one of our inalienable rights. Happiness isn't a birthday party, nor a Fourth of July parade. It is really a spiritual quest—born in brotherhood, nurtured in self-control, and ultimately realized in respect for one another and for God. Because we were willing to settle for less... less we've been getting!

The Church is not immune to controversy as it tries to wrestle with the frustrations of our time. Wrestling means conflict. Not every hold deserves applause or contributes to victory.

But the Church inspires those millions of Americans whose pursuit of happiness turns humbly and confidently to that very Creator who endowed men with certain inalienable rights. He brings us together!

MR. AND MRS. DEAN PHILLIPS
Celebrate 25th Wedding Anniversary

Couple renews wedding vows after 25 years

The original wedding vows were said at Paint Creek Baptist Church of Haskell, Texas, June 27, 1959 at 4:00 p.m. for Peggy Houston and Dean Phillips. They have lived in Ozona, since their marriage. They have owned a grocery store, Maytag Laundry and now own and operate the Redwood Motel.

The renewing of vows was read by Rev. Ted Turnley of Ozona First Baptist Church at 8:00 p.m. Saturday, June 23. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Lester Ivy of Albany, Texas. Her dress was dusty rose with a chiffon shawl in a formal a-line style. Her attendants were dressed in short pink dresses. Matron of honor was Margaret Bolding, sister of the bride from Stamford, Texas. Bridesmaids were Wanda Dews and Marge St. Clair. Candlelighters were Margie Dean St. Clair and Deena Beth Phillips. Dempsey Bolding, brother-in-law to the bride served as best man. Ted Dews and Jimmie Lott served as groomsmen and ushers. Leigh Chandler was flower girl and ring bearer. Kara Bolding, niece of the bride sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer" with Rosalind Williams at the organ.

A reception was held on Sunday, June 24, at First Baptist Church Fellowship Hall at 2:00 p.m. Mrs. Cora Anderson of Longview, sat at the bride's book. Punch was served by Mrs. Audrey Glynn and cake was served by Mrs. Edna Dendy, sister of the groom, from Silver City, New Mexico.

A rehearsal dinner was served before the wedding in the Fellowship Hall to families of the wedding party guests. Hosts for the 25th ceremony were Katrina and Deena Beth Phillips, daughters of the couple, with a group of friends and relatives assisting.

Other out of town guests were Dolin Hughes, Stamford, Texas; Elizabeth Jones, Odessa; Lawrence and Ruby Akdahl of Luaders, Tex.; Gladys Mae Sims, San Angelo; Rev. Rayford and Desie Harris of San Angelo, and Mrs. Lester Ivy of Albany.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Harrell have returned home from a trip to several European countries including Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland and Austria. In Oberamgau, Germany, they attended the World Famous "Passion Play" which has been performed by the village citizens every ten years for the past 350 years.

Fireworks and the Law
Needless to say, everyone wants to have a safe and happy Fourth of July. However, in the past the fun of exploding certain types of dangerous fireworks resulted in the tragedy of loss of a finger or loss of eyesight. In order to try and better protect the public the legislature has regulated the type of fireworks that can be sold at retail or possessed by individuals in the State of Texas.

It is unlawful to offer for sale or to sell fireworks to children under 10 years old or to intoxicated or irresponsible persons. Further, it is illegal to explode or ignite fireworks within 600 feet of any church, hospital, asylum or public school, and within 100 feet of where fireworks are stored, sold or offered for sale. It is also illegal to ignite or discharge fireworks within a car or to throw them from a car. Violations of the state fireworks law can result in a fine of not more than $1,000.00 and imprisonment for not more than one year, or both.

Persons selling or manufacturing fireworks are required to obtain a license from the State Fire Marshall. Applications for a fireworks display permit should be submitted to the fire department chief or the chief fire prevention officer of the city or county where the display is to occur. If there is no such chief or officer in the area where the display is to occur, the application should be submitted to the office of the State Fire Marshall. No fireworks may be sold before June 24 or after July 4 during the July 4th holiday period. The State Fire Marshall is a division of the State Board of Insurance and, for licensing information, their Austin telephone number is (512) 475-4203.

Permissible fireworks in the State of Texas are as follows:

not to exceed 20 grams; helicopter type rockets, not to exceed 20 grams; cylindrical tounians, not to exceed 75 grams with an inside tube diameter not to exceed 3/4 inch; cone fountains (volcanoes), not to exceed 50 grams in weight; wheels, not to exceed 60 grams in weight, but there may be a number of drivers on any one wheel; illuminating torches and colored fire in any form, not to exceed 100 grams each; sparklers and dipped sticks, not to exceed 100 grams each; firecrackers and salutes which do not exceed 1-1/2 inches in length or 1/4 inch in diameter and do not exceed 2 grains each in weight; whistles without report, not to exceed 40 grams each in weight; skyrockets with sticks that meet all of the following requirements: (a) total propellant charge must not be less than 4 grams nor more than 20 grams each in weight, (b) the casing size may not be less than 5/8 inch for the outside diameter and not less than 2-7/8 inches in length, (c) overall skyrocket length, including the stick, may not be less than 15 inches, (d) the stick must be securely fastened to the casing.

These fireworks are required to be classified by the federal government as "Class C Common Fireworks" and that certification is required to be on all shipping cases and on retail containers. Bottle rockets or skyrockets with sticks that do not meet the above requirements are not permissible fireworks.

In addition to the state law, your city or town may have enacted local ordinances prohibiting or imposing further regulations on fireworks. For example, local laws may regulate the noise and locations for exploding fireworks, or possibly ban the explosion of all fireworks within the city or town limits. Check with your prosecutor for possible local ordinances governing the legal use of fireworks.

Browning foods in the microwave oven

Foods prepared in the microwave, because of shorter cooking times, often do not have the browned appearance of conventionally cooked foods. If you find this to be a disadvantage, there are several things you can do to enhance their appearance. Baked goods, such as cakes and quick breads, can be sprinkled before baking with nuts, toasted coconut or raisins. Meats and poultry can be brushed with bottled browning sauce, capsup or worcestershire sauce.

Italian Open-Faced Beef Sandwiches

The Scientists Tell Me...

Poisonous Plants In Pastures Increase Meat Production Costs

By Robert L. Haney

Poisonous plants in pastures cause a tremendous economic loss to livestock owners and higher prices to consumers because of animal deaths, loss of production of meat, milk, wool, and mohair; plus reproduction problems.

It has been estimated that in some years poisonous plants in Texas alone, cost the livestock industry more than a hundred million dollars. The figure for the Great Plains and Western States is several times as much.

It's impossible to accurately estimate the losses from animals that have been poisoned without dying but left chronically ill.

Equally difficult to assess are the economic losses from the thousands of acres of rangeland left unused a part of the year, or year round, because of poisonous plants.

More than 130 species of poisonous plants are known to grow in Texas, with at least 80 of them recognized to be of economic importance.

Much of our present knowledge of this costly problem has been accumulated by toxicologists, in the College of Veterinary Medicine of Texas A&M, doing research on poisonous weeds for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Two of these toxicologists are Drs. B.J. Camp and E. Murl Bailey. Camp was one of the discoverers of the long-sought cause of poisoning from bitterweed. Bailey is a national and international authority on treatment of animals poisoned by plants or chemicals.

"Poisoned animals often exhibit a number of symptoms," Camp and Bailey say, "and some of these are similar for different plants. However, identification of the poisoning is essential in order to prescribe treatment."

To narrow the field, they have grouped plants into categories under a major sign (symptom).

For example, under reproduction, we find broomweed (also known as turpentine weed or slinkweed) which, in some years, can cause 40 to 50% abortion rates. Locoweeds also cause abortions and other reproductive problems.

Plants causing nervous signs include guajillo, a legume that's a valuable browse plant but during a drought, sheep and goats may develop a CNS (Central Nervous System) syndrome if they eat only this plant for six months or longer. Animals have a "rubbery" action of the legs and the syndrome is called "limberleg" or "guajillo wobbles."

Locoweeds, already listed in the "abortion" section also causes habituation (addiction) and CNS syndrome. The redstemmed peavine produces a hindquarter paralysis in sheep, goats, and cattle which is a progressive disease. A respiratory syndrome, (breathing problems) also occurs in those affected animals which recover from the locomotor syndrome (problems in walking or standing).

Bitterweed, probably the single most important plant to the sheep industry in Texas, occurs west of the 99th meridian in Texas (roughly, of a line drawn between Wichita Falls and San Antonio). TAES scientists discovered the toxic agent is hymenoxon, and are now working on feed additives and other preventive measures. Sheep can become addicted to bitterweed and are then "poor-doers."

Rayless goldenrod can affect all domestic animals and produces a condition called "trembles" or the "jim-meys."

Catclaws, cause animals to develop a weakness of the rear legs with a knuckling of the fetlock joints, and the condition progresses to paralysis of the hindquarters. Cattle, sheep, and goats are susceptible.

Coyotillo, is a shrub with seeds and leaves that are highly toxic to goats, sheep, cattle, horses, swine, guinea pigs, primates, and humans. Signs are similar to guajillo intoxication but coyotillo is an acute intoxication requiring only about 1 tablespoon of fruit per sheep while guajillo intoxication requires chronic ingestion.

Lobelia grows along the Texas Gulf Coast and affects cattle, sheep and goats. Though the clinical syndrome proceeds to depression, coma and death, some animals remain recumbent and depressed for several weeks but will eat and drink if nourishment is placed in the mouth. Many of these animals will survive.

African or Mexican Rue are plants that grow on disturbed soils and are difficult to eradicate. Cattle, sheep, and probably horses are susceptible. Acutely, animals exhibit stiffness, trembling, incoordination, frequent urination and hypersalivation (slobbering). Chronically affected animals show depression with a weakness of the hind limbs and knuckling of the fetlock joints.

Western Horse Nettle causes "Crazy Cow Syndrome," a disease characterized by incoordination and although the death loss is quite low, affected cows never recover. The affected females may give birth to normal but small calves.

Plants causing nutritional diseases include mesquites which can kill cattle that become addicted to mesquite beans.

Plants affecting the liver include the senecios. Hard yellow liver (HYL) is a disease which occurs sporadically in sheep, cattle, goats, antelope and deer and appears to be of toxic origin, though so far, 80 different plants from the areas where HYL occurs have been fed to sheep in varying amounts without causing the disease.

We don't have space to even list the other symptoms or the plants which cause them but this brief survey will serve to give you an idea of the problem toxic plants can cause. Additional information, including a listing of plants by months of occurrence, together with a much fuller discussion of symptoms and the plants which cause them, can be obtained free by contacting Dr. Murl Bailey, Department of Vet. Physiology and Pharmacology, College Vet. Medicine, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

Tap water causes over 2,600 burns annually

Of the approximately 112,000 people admitted to U.S. hospital emergency rooms with scald burns each year, more than 2,600 of these are caused by hot tap water.

Scald burns from hot tap water tend to be more severe than other scald burns, with about 25 percent of these patients requiring hospitalization, says the Texas Medical Association.

The problem is that many water heaters have been pre-set at the factory at dangerously high temperatures and remain that way in many households. This poses a particular hazard for children, the elderly, and the physically and mentally disabled.

Most electric water heaters now in operation have been pre-set at 150 degrees Fahrenheit, and most gas heaters are 140. A study has shown that serious burns of adult skin can result from 2 seconds of exposure to 150-degree water and from 5 seconds with 140-degree water.

In contrast, it takes 30 seconds of 130-degree water to produce a serious burn. This generally allows enough time for most people to react and withdraw before suffering a burn. At 120 degrees, 10 minutes of exposure would be required to seriously burn an adult.

Since no household needs require tap-water temperatures greater than 120 degrees, it is wise to adjust thermostats on residential hot-water heaters to that maximum.

The temperature can be measured with a candy thermometer in bathtubs and sinks.

College education has little impact on attitudes

A college education may not have the impact on political attitudes and values that many pundits believe, a Texas A&M University study suggests.

"For years there has been the truism that education has a big impact on people's political values," said Dr. Arnold Vedlitz, a political scientist and associate dean in the College of Liberal Arts, who conducted the study.

Vedlitz said that while it may be true there is a change in students' political values and attitudes from the freshman to the senior year, there are more influences impacting on students during that time than just their educational experience.

"There are movies, wars and a number of other factors that would affect one's values," he said. "There is also attrition in the ascent to seniorhood. Maybe those who make it to graduation were already different to begin with."

In looking at two different sample groups each composed of college students and their brothers and sisters who did not attend college, Vedlitz found little evidence that a college education significantly changes political values or attitudes.

Crockett County Care Center News

BY ANN McCARTNEY
DIRECTOR OF ACTIVITIES & SOCIAL CARE

This week really started off on a musical note when Sara Hignight came for a sing-along on the organ. Past records in our scrapbooks show Sara has been coming as a volunteer a long time. We are glad she is still coming!

We had movies on two days this week. We were sent three and we always hate to see free things go to waste. We really appreciate our school librarian and her assistants for ordering these for us.

Ruth Hester, once again led ceramics on Wednesday morning. Thanks also goes to Ann Shaw for donating some pieces and to Barbara Walker for helping with some cleaning.

We were pleased to have Tammy and Monica Davee once again helping this week with visitation, ceramics and bingo. Barbara and Dwyane Davee also helped with bingo on Tuesday.

Wednesday afternoon Grace Dorsey and Velma Marley served refreshments during our sunshine hour. Tammy and Monica entertained the group with a program of songs.

Thursday the beauty shop was manned by Lola Rios, Jo Richardson, Clara Byrd, Vivian Hughes and Renee Wiecek. Vivian's granddaughter.

Bible study on Thursday afternoon was led by Ted Turnley. He is doing a study on Revelations.

Tuesday and Friday bingo winners included Billie Whately, winner of the El Chato dinner for two, Paul Cavin, winner of a gift certificate from Westernman Drug and Bertha Miller, winner of Anna Bell's Avon gift. We welcomed Phil Schneemann to our home and our bingo games. She moved in on Tuesday. Tuesday volunteers included Angelita Pena, the Davees, Mattie Cooper, Martha Emert, sister of Nina Mayfield; Alice Ross, and Maude Pettit. Friday the volunteers included Pena, the Davees, Cooper and Elodia Zapata, Elsa Ramirez, Carmen Fuentoz, Lelia Tambunga, Anna Bell Patrick, Sophie Tijerina, Fleet Worthington, Virginia Bishop and Jason and Justin Moran.

Friday afternoon we had a field trip to Clayton's Village Drug. Volunteers Lola Rios, Sammy Patino, Bernice Phillips, Shirley Kirby, and Earline Jones assisted Juana Hernandez, Paul Cavin, Bertha Miller, Hilda Dysart, Nina Mayfield, Pearl Morris, Nila Turnell, Maude Pettit, Ola Mills, Billie Whately, Minnie Karr and Johnny Henderson all in going. The rest of our residents were sent back a milkshake all courtesy of Clayton's Village Drug. We do appreciate these volunteers assisting with this project.

Sunday church services were brought by Ralph Anderson and some six fellow church members.

Dominoes were played on Monday by Nila Turnell, Nina Mayfield, Maude Pettit, Ola Mills, Johnny Henderson and Paul Cavin. It was good to have two tables.

Thanks goes this week to Mike Wall and KWIK for a pretty plant, to Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Haire for more apricots, to Polly Drew for books and magazines, to Nina Mayfield for two pretty pot plants for all to enjoy, to Clayton's Village Drug for some all occasion cards, to the Lutheran Church for Portals of Prayer daily devotionals and to the United Methodist Church for Upper Rooms in large print.

We appreciate all our summer volunteers and hope everyone will keep coming!

Progressives in the saddle

[Ed. note: This editorial appeared in the Dallas Morning News, Tuesday, July 26, 1983. It is somewhat dated, but a true harbinger of what was to come.]

By William Murchison

Time was when the Texas Democratic Party was as conservative as a double-breasted suit.

Gone with the wind! The 1982 primaries ratified a transfer of power that had long been in the works, as Democratic conservatives, from John Connally on down, moved to a party, the Republican, more sympathetic to their aspirations. A year ago, "Progressive" Democrats—or, as they were known in the olden time, liberals—swept all the major offices and went on to swamp the Republicans in November.

The Democratic Party of Texas is now a "progressive" party, if you please. But are you pleased? Well, I suppose it depends on one's point of view.

Some of the progressives, like Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, have tended to business and kept mostly quiet. Others have not. For instance, state treasurer Ann Richards lent her voice, and the prestige of her office, to the National Women's Lynch-Reagan Caucus down in San Antonio this month.

Gov. Mark White, who has peeled off most of his conservative Democratic outer garments so as not to look like—shudder!—John Connally, was there, too. White gives every evidence of wanting to be the 1981 Democratic presidential candidate; which means he has to massage just the right constituencies, while uttering just the right populist rhetoric. Sometimes the combination of massaging and rhetorizing lands him in trouble.

White had promised the schoolteachers a 24 percent raise, as repayment for their political support against Gov. Clements. One slight hitch: Texas didn't have the money; whereupon White first proposed a tax hike, then couldn't talk anyone into passing it, absent reforms to ensure that good teachers, as opposed to run-of-the-mill ones, got the lion's share. In the end, the governor had to toss the whole question into the lap of a blue-ribbon commission. He says he'll call a special session one of these days.

White's grand "populist" issue, however, is high utility rates, for which he blames utility company greed, rather than decades of federal meddling in the energy marketplace. White managed to intimidate all three Clements-appointed public utilities commissioners into resigning; the new PUC is Lily White. It should be fun to watch utility rates plummet.

What's that? White says he never promised actually to cut utility rates? An interesting, after-the-fact contention: the trouble being that whatever White actually said, the voters seem to have thought he was pledging to make life less expensive for them. If it doesn't get less expensive, who knows what

Coded dates state worthy information

Coded dating on packaged foods is a mystery that most consumers can solve with a little information, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist Bonnie L. Piernot. Sometimes letters are used to represent the month, or in baked goods, the day of the week, she explains. So "A" in a code may mean either January or Monday. Numbers represent the day of the month and year. For example, "B24" could stand for February 2, 1984. In other cases numbers can represent the day and year. So 2804 can mean the 280th day of this year, October 6, 1984. Checking dates on packaged foods can help consumers get the most nutrition for their food dollar. According to Piernot, the fastest loss in food value occurs during and immediately after the processing for packaging. But the loss of nutrient quality continues at a slower pace all during the life of canned and frozen foods.

MANY THANKS

We would like to take this opportunity to thank our family and friends for the food, flowers, plants and especially for the many special prayers that Lupe received during her illness and stay at the hospital. We love you all for being so kind to us. May God bless you all. Love, Lupe and Pando Cervantez 18-1tc sort of angry things they will say?

The "progressive" in hottest water, though, is Atty. Gen. Jim Mattox, the former congressman from Dallas. Mattox's name keeps coming up in stories about the shadowy South Texas oil-financier, Clinton Manges, who gave Democratic candidates, Mattox among them, $1.8 million last year.

Mattox has joined Manges in a suit against Mobil Oil and others for money the two say is owed Manges and the state on an old oil lease. When Mobil's attorneys subpoenaed Mattox's sister, the attorney general supposedly threatened to put the law firm out of the bond business. Worse: One attorney who talked to Mattox said he was "babbling and ranting and raving—insane-type ramblings of a hysterical man." Still worse: The attorney is reported to have a recording of the conversation. And worse yet: a Lower Colorado River Authority official says Mattox's intervention delayed an important bond sale.

Meanwhile the Travis County district attorney is trying to find out whether Mattox's campaign last year received a covert loan through a Seattle bank that did extensive business with Manges. The investigation, has widened to include the attorney general's telephone manners.

And to think—"progressive" government has been in the saddle for just six months! Before all is said and done, a lot of Texans may be fondly fingering their double-breasted suits, remembering how it was in the good old days.

MRS. RONNIE EUGENE PEARL
...nee Miss Donna Renee Yeager

Yeager, Pearl exchange wedding vows Saturday

Miss Donna Renee Yeager became the bride of Ronnie Eugene Pearl in a 2:30 p.m. ceremony in Ozona Church of Christ Saturday. Justice of the Peace Raymond Dave officiated.

Parents of the couple are Donald R. Yeager and Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Pearl.

Rhonda Shaw, sister of the bride, served as matron-of-honor. Bridesmaids were the cousins of the bride, Robin Bolf and Kristi Bolf of San Angelo. Flower girl was the bridegroom's daughter, Shauna Pearl, of Kerrville. Jason Yeager, brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a long white taffeta and polyester organza gown with stand-up collar and ruffle trimmed yoke. Applique trim on the bodice and long sheer sleeves matched her hat and veil. Her bouquet was a nosegay of white roses and lavender ribbon surrounding a white gardenia.

Ushers were Eddie Pearl, bridegroom's brother; Gary Yeager, bride's brother; and Bill Bolf, bride's uncle.

Rebekah Shaw, the bride's niece served as honorary flower girl. The bride's attendants wore dusty lavender taffeta and chiffon dresses with handkerchief hemline, and carried long-stem white roses.

The church was decorated with candles, English ivy and bows. Large ceramic swans were used in the church and at the reception.

Karen Childress was soloist, accompanied by Sara Hight.

A reception followed in the Granny Miller Hall.

After a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple will be at home in Ozona, where the bridegroom is employed by a local oil firm, and the bride is office manager at Fesco. Both are graduates of Ozona High School and the bride has her BBA from Angelo State University.

"Sell-by" dates guide consumers

Perishable foods with less than 30 days of shelf life, such as milk and baked goods, frequently carry a "sell-by" date, says Bonnie L. Piernot, Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service specialist.

"Some consumers believe the food is no good if it's still in the store on the sell-by date," she says. "Actually, the food will be wholesome if used right away, but consumers should buy before the package date if they want to allow for home storage—even in the refrigerator." The open sell-by dates on perishable foods are easy for consumers to understand.

BAC warns residents with fire safety rules

Texas residents should be conscious of the threat of fire at all times. But, according to the Building Advisory Council of Texas, certain times of the year are especially hazardous in residential areas. The upcoming July 4th weekend is one.

"If you live in neighborhoods with homes and apartments roofed with readily combustible wood shingles, you should be even more alert over this holiday weekend," says H.V. "Corky" Moss, President of the BAC. "Such roofing can easily be ignited by sparks or embers from other fires," adds Moss.

The BAC recommends that all residential roofing materi-

activity takes upward trend

Two of the early indicators of exploration activity are up nationwide. The U.S. seismic crew count was up eight percent from a year ago. Well permits are on an upward trend and active rigs were running about eleven percent ahead of the first 5½ months of 1983.

Petroleum Information International reports worldwide oil production is running 7.6 percent above a year ago. P.I. said the Middle East has increased almost 22 percent over the first four months of 1983. Production worldwide is running at 54.5 million barrels a day. Free World, non-Opec production is 6.5 percent ahead of last year. Russia's production is down slightly, while China's is up almost 6 percent.

Some investment advisors believe that sales of publicly registered drilling partnerships will soon start back up. The advisors are saying that drilling costs are down by as much as fifty percent, land leases are cheaper, rigs are less expensive to rent, and better crews are available for hire.

Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company has asked the government to allow it to drop its wholesale gas prices by three percent. A spokesman for the Houston based pipeline company said this is the fourth price cut since June 1 of 1983 and makes a net reduction of 15 percent in only 13 months. Panhandle Eastern supplies gas to utilities in five midwestern states.

The Permian Basin rig count for this week is 331. Last week 332 and one year ago 214.

als meet a UL Class A fire rating.

Although many city ordinances in Texas prohibit the sale of fireworks, people can and do find a source for fireworks during the July 4th holiday. The BAC suggests that fireworks enthusiasts enjoy the holiday by attending a public fireworks display in their area.

Regardless of what type roofing material you have on your home, you should still be especially cautious over this holiday weekend. The Building Advisory Council of Texas offers the following advice:

Cut dead foliage from last winter's freeze around your home. If you live in an apartment, request that the maintenance people do this. This will eliminate a potentially combustible source of fire near your home.

Do not burn trash without first checking with your local fire department. Many Texas cities have ordinances prohibiting your doing this. They also would have a central dump or special trash pick-up service you could use.

If your lawn is dry, water it well. This will eliminate a potentially combustible source for fire near your home by moistening the grass' root system to create a "buffer fire zone" around your home.

Do not pile or store combustible material such as grass cuttings near the house. Bags of dried grass clippings piled against the house or underneath an outside stairway are a definite fire hazard.

Do not leave outdoor charcoal or gas burners unattended. If you cook with charcoal, submerge the remaining coals in water after you finish. A slight wind blowing into the air intake section of the cooker can rekindle a flame in those supposedly "dead coals."

Do not use gasoline or kerosene to ignite charcoal when cooking outdoors. Special charcoal starter fuels are produced with a low flash point for safer use. And once the coals are burning, do not become impatient and add more starter. A stream of charcoal starter pouring from a container can flame immediately upon contacting the already hot charcoal and instantly burn back up the stream engulfing your hand and flames.

Do not throw any "supposedly" extinguished cigarette onto the ground. Dispose of them in an ashtray or ground them into the pavement with your foot.

The Building Advisory Council of Texas is an organization committed to the use of non-combustible materials in building construction.

Children are Breakable

In normal, everyday wear-and-tear, children hold up very nicely. But in a car that stops suddenly or crashes, many children don't do well at all.

Why? Because so many parents don't realize how dangerous the automobile is to young children. And they haven't done anything to protect their children.

Imagine a car traveling at just 30 mph. That's the speed the passengers are traveling too. Then there's a crash...and the car stops. But the passengers keep moving at 30 mph until they are stopped by something... with the force of a fall from a three-story building. That can be rough on anyone, especially a child.

The fact is, the most common causes of death and injury to children in automobile crashes are: 1.) being thrown into the windshield, dashboard, some other part of the car, or into another passenger; 2.) being crushed by adults who are not wearing safety belts; and 3.) being thrown from the car.

After the critical early weeks of life, motor vehicle accidents are the leading cause of death for our children. In 1980 almost 700 children under the age of five were killed in motor vehicle crashes and tens of thousands were seriously injured.

Although most injuries to children in motor vehicles are a result of crashes, noncrash events such as sudden stops, turns, and swerves can be hazardous to children. In a study of children treated in an emergency room for injuries sustained as motor vehicle passengers, a California pediatrician, Dr. Phyllis Agran, found that 23 percent of the children were injured in noncrash situations.

There is a simple cure for this epidemic that is killing and injuring our children—child safety seats and safety belts. They work in two important ways:

1.) They anchor a child to the vehicle seat. If the car hits something, the safety seat will help the child slow down with the car. This reduces the forces to which the child is subjected, because the car itself is absorbing much of the energy of the crash as its metal structure collapses. Without a belt or safety seat, a child would absorb the entire force of the crash when he or she hits the windshield or dash.

2.) A safety belt or safety seat helps to spread the force of the crash over the strong bony structure of the body. Safety seats used for children up to about four years old are designed to spread crash forces over a much larger body area than safety belts.

The proper use of a safe child safety seat can reduce the chance of death and injury by at least 50 percent. In other words, more than half of the small children who are now killed and injured in motor vehicle crashes could be saved if they were properly restrained in child safety seats.

Unfortunately, most parents do not provide their children with the protection child safety seats can offer. Less than one half of infants under one year old and about 20 percent of children ages one to four are using child safety seats. About half of the child safety seats that are used are used improperly—either the child is not properly secured in the safety seat or the safety seat is not properly attached to the car.

Public telephones vandalized

"Vandalism can be a serious problem with public coin telephones," says E. O. Cambern, West Texas Gen'l Manager. For that reason, General Telephone asks that you contact local police immediately should you see anyone damaging one of these facilities.

"We know the customer is inconvenienced when a coin telephone does not work," said Cambern. "We would appreciate your reporting the location and telephone number to us so that our crews can repair it as quickly as possible." Ozona customers may report pay telephone trouble by calling 112-655-0686. There is no charge for the call.

Because coin telephones are often exposed to the outside elements, they receive more weather abuse and are easier targets for vandals. General Telephone appreciates the cooperation of local citizens in notifying the company when attention is needed.

Drought gives ranchers re-evaluation opportunities

While a drought is both stressful and traumatic for livestock producers, it also gives ranchers an opportunity to evaluate and update their managerial practices. "Once the drought has set in and cow numbers are considerably cut, a rancher can reappraise his entire ranch operation," says Dr. Tom R. Troxel, livestock specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, headquartered at Uvalde. "The rancher can then ask himself, 'What can be done to improve the overall efficiency of the ranch and provide some flexibility to reduce the effect of the next dry period.'"

Many ranchers have already sold 25 to 75 percent of their herds since the dry weather started last fall. Troxel reminds that lactating cows have high nutritional requirements, and if the nutrition is not present due to drought, both the cow and calf will suffer. One option is to wean and sell the calf early in an attempt to maintain the condition of the cow. He points out that many 200-pound calves are now going to market.

With the culling of cows, a rancher could very easily move from a year-round calving season to a spring and/or fall calving season. "A ranch could keep cows that calve at a certain time of year or when it rains again buy replacements that will calve at the same time of year," said Troxel.

Many times it is very difficult to control a breeding season due to the large size of some pastures. Once livestock have been removed from a large pasture, the rancher may want to consider cross-fencing the large pasture into three or four smaller pastures. Therefore, a rotational grazing system could be initiated which may help during the next dry period.

"Eliminating non-breeding and late calving cows through pregnancy determination can increase profitability regardless of rainfall level," adds Troxel.

Lightweight calves are those generally born late in the season or are those born from poor milking cows. Pregnancy determination can also eliminate the late calves, and ranchers can then eliminate the cows with poor milk production.

Another management practice which should be included is a good herd health plan, Troxel recommends. This includes all the necessary vaccinations, including calfhood vaccination against brucellosis. Heifer calves should be vaccinated with reduced Strain 19 vaccine between 4-12 months of age, with accredited state or federal veterinarians required to vaccinate the heifers.

The certified free herd program is another consideration for ranchers, particularly those who sell breeding stock. The number of certified free herds in Texas has increased from 675 in 1983 to 1307 or more so far this year. To be classified as certified brucellosis free, a herd (all cattle older than six months) must successfully pass two negative blood tests 10 to 14 months apart. In addition, the herds must be recertified annually, Troxel reminds.

"In the semi-arid Southwest, 6 out of 10 years have below normal rainfall," adds Troxel. "Cattlemen need to stock their ranches with those six years in mind." Generally, according to long-standing statistics, only two "normal" years fall within the 10-year span, while two other years are usually high rainfall years resulting from hurricanes.

Flexibility is a key word during the extra high rainfall years as well as times of drought. When high rainfall results in an over-abundance of grass, ranchers may want to consider keeping their own stockers or buying some to utilize the extra grass, the specialist adds.

Flexibility has become important as cow/calf operators face rising feed costs and dwindling income. A rancher must consider all possible alternatives for making the ranch as economically efficient as possible. "Although drought is extremely difficult to predict, it does provide an opportunity for ranchers to regroup their thoughts and consider changes in managerial practices," adds Troxel. "This regrouping of managerial practices will serve the rancher to this advantage when the next dry cycle occurs."

The width of a bolt of lightning is on the average only about six inches.

Convenience foods not always expensive

Does it pay to scratch convenience foods from your shopping list and prepare them at home?

Not always, says home economist Bonnie L. Piernot. Studies by the U.S. Department of Agriculture reveal that 60 percent of 228 selected convenience products cost more per serving than the homemade version. But one-fourth cost less, and the rest cost about the same.

The studies compared the cost of convenience foods to their homemade counterparts including the cost for fuel to cook them and preparation time, figured at minimum wage.

To save money, the average consumer will have to shop carefully for convenience foods. "Generally, the more ingredients involved and the more preparation necessary, the slimmer are the chances that one of these items will be cheaper than one prepared at home," Piernot advises.

Some samplings of the comparative costs cited in the studies show the following:

Among the vegetables, most canned and frozen bulk packaged items are lower in cost than their fresh counterparts. However, vegetables with added sauces and in cooking pouches increase dramatically in cost.

Frozen french fried potatoes are less expensive than fresh homemade ones. Convenience au gratin potatoes, however, cost three times more than making them from scratch.

Pancakes and waffles made from mixes requiring only water are better buys than those made from scratch. And the frozen, ready-for-the-toaster variety costs three to five times more than those made from a mix.

Frozen orange juice is a bargain at only a third the cost of the same size serving squeezed from the orange.

Seventy percent of baked, ready-to-eat products are more expensive than home-baked ones. However, white-enriched bread and devil's food cake mix are among the bargains.

Most commercially prepared entrees with pork, beef and poultry are more expensive than home prepared. Frozen pizza and lasagna cost more than twice as much as the home-made version.

When comparing convenience foods versus home-made ones, remember that most home prepared entrees contain a higher proportion of meat, poultry, fish and cheese, says Piernot. The convenience counterpart usually has more starchy ingredients such as sauces, pasta, bread coating and topping.

While it's difficult to define quality, the product label is your best guide to what's in the convenience package, says the home economist. The ingredient are listed in order of quantity.

For example, if gravy is listed first, your money buys more gravy than meat. Labeling can also help in defining nutrients and ingredients, but if you're concerned with controlling fats, sugar and salt, you will not always be able to determine the amount from the label.

For consumers whose time is more important than cost or quality, she says, it can often pay to let the manufacturer handle most of the food preparation.

Various summer plants provide garden color

With the heat of summer, the gardener and many plants tend to go on vacation, often leaving the landscape void of color.

However, some outstanding colorful summer annuals and perennials will provide color and beauty with a minimum of care during the hot days of summer, says a landscape horticulturist.

The vinca or periwinkle is one flower that thrives where many would perish, says Everett Janne with the Texas A&M Extension Service. This robust summer annual demands little attention, yet provides a mass of color all summer. The All-American variety "Polka Dot" will serve as a summer ground cover with its low mass of blooms while the deep lavender "Little Linda" and the pink and red "Delicata" provide variety.

Zinnias have a sure summer heat tolerance and ability to grow under adverse conditions, Janne notes. Even though zinnias have been around for many years, many new and improved varieties offer vivid colors and durability. Zinnia blooms now range in size from tiny border hybrids to giant Dahlia types.

The Gloriosa daisy is a summer perennial, returning each summer to open its typical daisy blooms of rich orange, yellow, pink and mahogany. The large graceful heads of the Gloriosa daisy are supported on strong stems which are excellent for cutting, says the horticulturist.

Portulaca is unsurpassed as a summer border or rock garden plant, adds Janne. Often called moss rose, this summer annual prefers the sun and will tolerate dry, hot conditions to produce warm, vivid blankets of color. For continuous summer production, sow seed at six-week intervals.

Salvia is a persistent annual with bright scarlet or blue spikes of bloom throughout the hot summer until cut down by frost. The rich red varieties are most showy when displayed against a background of green or white, Janne suggests. Cut faded blooms often to encourage more growth.

Summer or late cosmos produces rich yellow or orange blooms from mid-summer to late fall and demands little or no care. "Sunset" and "Goldcrest" varieties produce brilliantly color blooms. Cosmos may need staking in windy areas.

Marigolds may be planted from early spring well into summer. Many improved varieties offer a wide range of plant and bloom sizes as well as color variations. No other summer annual will provide the rich, clear vivid yellows and oranges of the French or large marigold, Janne says, a few plants will outproduce this carefree summer annual. Plant marigolds throughout the summer for continuous bloom into the fall.

CORNER ON HOME CARE

Coming Clean About Laundry

Here are some tips to help you get the laundry done quickly and efficiently:

- Before you start, sort in loads...white, light colors, darks and gentle cycle items. Close zippers, inspect and empty pockets and turn dark colored items inside out to eliminate lint problems.
- Although it may seem to take time, safety pin socks together...saves lots of sorting later.
- Read the care labels on clothes and use bleach according to their instructions.
- Treat spots and stains with a laundry stain remover such as Shout from Johnson Wax before washing. This eliminates pre-soaking and helps remove tough stains and soil.

- Spots and stains should be treated with laundry stain remover while they are still fresh. Wash items with the hottest water possible for the fabric type and don't forget to use enough detergent—consult label directions.

- Don't overload the machine. You may think you're saving time by cramming two loads into one, but you're really setting yourself up for extra work coping with wrinkles and added lint.

- Use a wash cycle fabric softener, like Rain Barrel from Johnson Wax. It gives fresh fragrance to your clothes, cuts down static electricity and leaves clothes wearable soft and with even fewer wrinkles to iron out later.

OUR HEROES OF AMERICA

Our Postal Workers

How many letters did you mail last year? How many did you receive? Chances are, the total was just a small fraction of the 120 billion pieces of mail that America's postal workers had to handle and speed on their way in 1983. While the workload has increased in recent years for our postal workers, their productivity rate has risen right along with it. Each day, they work to bring us a highly efficient postal service, all at lower postage rates than exist in any other industrialized nation but one.

Who are America's postal workers? Some are postal clerks, who handle a variety of jobs. Many deal directly with the public at post office windows selling stamps, money orders, and accepting parcels. Some work at other post office windows that assist Federal government programs—passport applications, Selective Service registration and food coupon distribution, to name just a few. Other postal workers around the clock sort and route mail.

There are many other postal workers who also operate behind the scenes, yet are just as important in helping mail service run smoothly—mechanics who keep mail trucks in good running condition, engineers and janitors, watchmen, drivers, dispatchers and others in clerical jobs. About 310,000 postal workers belong to the American Postal Workers Union (APWU), the world's largest postal union.

Although the mail processing workload increased 2.8

percent last year, the volume of mail was handled with 1.0 percent fewer work hours. Thanks to increased automation of mail processing operations, productivity gains will soon be even greater. Service performance for 1983 was 96 percent—one point up from the year before.

In the years to come, many postal workers will participate in on-the-job-retraining programs as Postal Service continues to convert to high-tech mail-sort programs. APWU will be working to improve working conditions for postal employees in many

New publication outlines pros, cons of incorporation

Most businesses in Texas are either sole proprietorships where the organization is owned by an individual, or partnerships where two or more persons are the owners. At some time during the life of the business, the single owner or the partners are faced with answering the question, "Should I (we) incorporate?"

Until now, there was no single non-legal source where business persons could find help in answering this question. Previously all available information on this subject as it pertains to Texas businesses was written for those with legal training. Now, however, with the publication of How to Incorporate Your Texas Business, business persons have a single source for straight answers about the pros and cons of turning a new or existing business into a corporation.

Written by Texas lawyer Tom Branton, this book initially asks the question, "Should you incorporate?" then goes on to help with the answer by outlining the advantages of incorporation. These include transfer of vested interest, limited liability, and tax advantages such as qualified retirement plans, health insurance, medical reimbursement, business expenses, and tax payments at the corporate rate rather than the individual rate. Of course there are also disadvantages such as the cost in time and money to incorporate.

For those who choose to incorporate, Branton takes them step by step through the entire procedure starting with how to incorporate (he recommends professional help rather than a do-it-yourself approach), and continuing with how to run the organization, what records are necessary, cash flow, whether to take income as salary or dividends, and how to get money out of the corporation.

For those who like the idea of incorporating but still need to maintain some of the advantages of single ownership or partnership, Branton recommends, then goes on to explain, the selection of Subchapter S status. This is generally the route taken when the normal method of income taxation for a corporation would create a tax disadvantage. Most often this occurs if the corporation has a loss from the year's operations. In a sole proprietorship or partnership this loss could help offset other income, and lower the person's income tax. In a corporation this loss cannot be claimed personally, but in a Subchapter S status, the shareholders (owners) are not taxed as a corporation, but as individuals; so, therefore, losses may be used as personal income tax deductions.

Math anxiety a problem

Math anxiety, a pervasive problem across the country, may have met its match at Texas A&M University.

Dr. Margaret Chmielewski began to look for a solution to the problem after being faced with a strong case of math anxiety in her graduate statistic classes for non-stat majors.

She and her husband Joseph, a counselor in private practice, developed a technique that employs relaxation, specially phrased and intoned delivery of materials and specially timed classical music.

They believe this method of learning math would be especially helpful in high schools where students' math SAT scores are waning or even for persons in the work force who need to brush up on math skills.

"Subchapter S," Branton states, "is just a tax election. It does not affect your legal status as a corporation. You still have your limits of liability and all other advantages of being a corporation."

For those business persons who decide against incorporation, How to Incorporate Your Texas Business provides an example of an excellent partnership agreement. In this agreement most of the difficult decisions that partners may someday face have already been decided. Without such an agreement—which addresses 18 key points of a partnership—Branton feels partners will have a difficult time attempting to resolve their operating problems.

Health conscious consumers should read nutrition claims

Centuries ago people learned to pound grains, add a little water and bake the resulting dough to make a simple bread. But the "staff of life" found in today's supermarkets is no longer so simple.

Commercially baked breads offer many texture, flavor and nutrients choices, says nutritionists Mary K. Sweeten. This variety makes it important for consumers to read beyond the label to the ingredient and nutrition information, says Sweeten, a specialist with the Texas A&M University Extension Service.

For example, health-conscious consumers often reach for breads that claim to have "natural whole grain goodness." However, the nutrition labels on some of these breads often reveal that they contain some whole wheat and whole rye flour, but unenriched, bleached wheat flour is the primary ingredient, she says.

The protein content of these breads may be boosted with wheat gluten, soy flour and whey solids. Molasses is often added as a sweetener and the molasses or caramel coloring helps achieve a darker "whole grain" appearance, notes the nutritionist.

"These breads are not necessarily inferior to whole wheat breads," says Sweeten, "but the shopper should not be misled by claims or appearances." Whole wheat bread must contain only whole wheat flour.

Other consumers select breads which claim on the label to have fewer calories. Some lower-calorie breads are created by adding powdered cellulose, which has the capacity to absorb water. Increasing the amount of water does not add any calories, she explains.
