Services here Sunday for Mr. Augustine

Funeral services for Walter W. Augustine, 85, were held at 3 p.m. Sunday, at Ozona United Methodist Church with Rev. Ken Harrison, pastor, officiating. Burial followed in Cedar Hill Cemetery under the direction of Sizemore Funeral Home.

Mr. Augustine died at 6 a.m. Friday in Crockett County Hospital.

He was born August 30, 1899 in Crockett County. He married Mary Bell Flowers, December 24, 1927 in San Angelo. He was a rancher in Pecos County for 58 years and Crockett County the remaining time. He was a graduate of Ozona High School and was a member of the Ozona United Methodist Church.

Survivors include his wife of Ozona; one daughter, Mrs. David (Jane) Schweitzer of Midland; three sisters, Lucy Mae Meinecke of Ozona, Mrs. Carl (Wayne) Kreamer and Mrs. Helen Taylor, both of Houston; one brother, Robert Augustine of Ozona; two grandchildren, and one great grandchild.

Community chorus is organized

The Ozona Community Chorus organized last week to provide a program of Christmas music on December 1st, will have its second rehearsal this Thursday evening, November 1st at 7:00 p.m., in the Community Center adjacent to the Primary School. Thursday evenings will be the regular rehearsal times for this program.

Any person interested in performing fine choral music is welcome to sing; the only requirement is to attend the rehearsals. Especially needed are altos, tenors, and basses. Singers who wish to sing with the group need to start attendance no later than this Thursday's rehearsal. The chorus is conducted by Hank Sellers and Mrs. Bud Cox is the accompanist.

The program of special Christmas music will be part of the opening of the Crockett County Museum's new exhibit concerning musical activity in Crockett County. In addition to the choral music, the program will include Christmas vocal solos as well as instrumental solos and ensembles performed by members of the Ozona High School Band.

Halloween activities abound today

Ozonans can celebrate Halloween all day today. Crockett County National Bank is holding open house with the staff in costume all day. They promise "no tricks, just treats." The Teacher Store is closing a week-long sale with a Halloween party today, and the annual Chamber of Commerce carnival is on tap for this evening.

Activities for the Halloween carnival, which will be held in the park, begin at 5:30 with a costume parade. All participants must be in costume and meet at the parking lot at Ozona National Bank. Prizes will be given for best costumes following the parade.

There will be a variety of booths for the carnival and fun is planned for all. Members of the chamber suggest a visit to the carnival in place of the usual trick-or-treating.

The only change in the original plans is the site of the spook house. Instead of the old Davidson building, Girl Scout Troop 169 will man the spook house in the building next to Magicland. The spook house will be open at 6 p.m. and remain open until 10 o'clock. Admission is 50 cents. Spooky movies will be shown from 6 until 7:30 p.m. with a creep show, featuring chills and thrills, from 8 until 10 p.m.

Today is Halloween

This witch was caught against the moon last night by staff photographer Betty Perry, as she rode her broom to Ozona to take part in the Halloween activities going on today. She will probably be seen around the spook house tonight doing whatever witches do on Halloween. It is said she brought an entourage of ghosts and goblins, so beware!

Absentee voting brisk, amendments discussed

A total of 202 voters had cast absentee ballots for the Nov. 6, general election as of noon Tuesday. Absentee voting will continue through Friday in the county clerk's office in the courthouse. A total of 172 persons voted absentee in person and 30 were received by mail.

Besides the full slate of candidates for various offices, there are eight proposed amendments to the state constitution for consideration of Texas voters. Due to lack of space, we were unable to print a sample ballot in this week's edition of the Stockman. However, voters should be warned if they check the ballot box at the top of any list of candidates, they will be voting a straight ticket and they will not be able to vote for any but the candidates listed below that box.

In order to assist the voter with eight proposed amendments and enable them to make a more informed decision when they go to the polls, a brief and objective analysis follows:

Proposition 1- Rights of state-chartered banks. This would grant all banks the same rights and privileges that nationally-chartered banks domiciled in Texas have.

Those in favor of the proposal feel Texas has a strong dual banking system, the number of state and national banks being rough equal. To preserve this dual system, state banks must be kept competitive with national banks.

Those against the proposal feel branch banks drain capital away from the community where it originates and a better way to achieve flexibility is to repeal the constitutional ban on branch banking.

Proposition 2-Funding for state universities. A new dedicated appropriation of $100 million per year would be set up for new college construction fund. There are 26 institutions entitled to a share of the fund. The proposal also permits the issuance of bonds with the principal and interest not exceeding fifty percent of each institution's share of the funds.

Those for the proposal said it would end the inequity of the dual-class system for college construction funding, which enriches five schools while making beggars of the rest.

Those against the proposal feel at a time when state revenues are scarce, it is not wise to create a massive new dedicated fund and unnecessary construction would be wrongly encouraged.

Proposition 3 would authorize state aid to dependent parents, brothers, and sisters of police, fire and other officers killed while on hazardous duty. For the proposal contend some firefighters who were not married but had elderly dependent parents or disabled dependent siblings died. They feel it is only fair to aid these survivors.

Those against the proposal feel this should not be passed until the fiscal implications are clear. There is no enabling legislation for this amendment, leaving the voters with no idea how much the Legislature intends the beneficiaries to receive.

Proposition 4 would enable the voters in Bexar and Collin Counties to abolish the office of the County Treasurer. This proposal holds little interest for local voters. The voters in these counties should be allowed to abolish the offices if they see fit. On the other hand there is some question whether an elective position should be abolished just because the candidate promotes this and wins.

Proposition 5 concerns the Lieutenant Governor vacancy. Under the current law the president protem of the Senate performs as Lieutenant Governor if there is a vacancy. Under this proposition, the president protem would do so only until the Senate selected a Senator to perform the duties. The pros and cons of this proposal is six in one and a half a dozen in the other. The lieutenant Governor is elected by the people. If we are going to change the constitution, why not hold an election and let the voters fill the vacancy.

Proposition 6 would allow use of Public Funds for mutual insurance companies which are owned by their policy holders and have no capital stock. Proponents of the proposal say mutual insurance companies have practically abandoned the use of assessments to raise capital. These companies should be allowed to compete for local governments' policies. There is no apparent opposition.

Proposition 7 would give the State Commission on Judicial Conduct more flexibility, replacing one court of appeals seat and one district court seat with seats for a municipal court judge and county court at law judge. A judge could be disciplined instead of removed from office and the record in a judicial misconduct case would no longer be automatically open upon being filed.

Those for the amendment say only the only measures available now to the commission are too severe in some cases and this would allow the commission to discipline the judges with a warning or additional training rather than removing them. Those against feel giving the commission more flexibility would only reinforce its reluctance to discipline judges appropriately. Also, the public has a right to know when its judges have been accused of misconduct.

Proposition 8 amounts to a legislative pay raise. This amendment would eliminate the fixed $30 per day payment. It would become a floating amount, equal to the maximum federal income tax deduction allowed for state legislators on legislative business.

Those for the amendment say this would allow legislators to be compensated for the extra work they do during sessions. These payments are meant to make up for income lost during the time they are in Austin doing the public's business. Also, this per diem payment has not been raised since 1975. Those against feel serving in the Legislature is an opportunity for public service, not a profession. Also, allowing the legislators to deduct their expenses from their federal income tax, then granting them an equal amount as a per diem salary, would be double-dipping from the public treasury.

Lions tie with Golden Cranes

By Gary Davis

The Ozona Lions bounced back Friday night in Lion Stadium, from two district losses to tie the Crane Golden Cranes 7-7 in a 7AAA district football game. The tie leaves each team with identical season and district records, 1-6-1 and 0-2-1.

Next, the Lions will travel to Coahoma in an attempt to capture their first district win of the season from the Bulldogs. Coahoma was defeated 35-6 by the Sonora Broncos last Friday.

In the Ozona-Crane contest, the Lions tallied 104 rushing yards, 87 passing yards and 15 first downs. The Golden Cranes had only 8 first downs, but had 203 rushing yards on 29 carries and a mere 13 yards passing. The Lions completed 8 passes out of a total of 21 attempts, but threw three interceptions. Crane completed only 2 of their 10 passes and threw one interception.

Crane's Gerald Mitchell opened up the game with a 48-yard scoring run early in the first period. Cliff Wilson added the extra point and sent the Golden Cranes ahead of the Lions 7-0. Later, in the second quarter, Ozona's Steve Sanchez connected with senior receiver, Al Ramirez on a 1-yard scoring play. Ed Borrego tied the score at 7-7 with his extra point kick.

In the rushing department, Junior David Adams made a return into the lime light with 70 total yards rushing. Sophomore, James Sanchez ran the ball for 22 yards and Junior Harvey Fierro gained 10 yards throughout the course of the game. Crane's Mitchell led all rushers with 181 yards rushing. Behind Mitchell was Wilson with 26 yards to his credit, and Cecilio Gonzalez with 5 yards.

Steve Sanchez completed 7 of his 18 passing attempts for 75 yards and 3 interceptions. Harvey Fierro threw one pass for 27 yards. Abel Sena of Crane led his team in passing yardage with 13.

Ozona's Al Ramirez had an outstanding game on the receiving end as he racked up 89 yards worth of pass receptions. Harvey Fierro caught one pass for 13 yards.

Coach Jim Green seemed pleased with the Lion's performance. "Our kids played good enough to win," said Green. "The offensive line did a very good job of blocking and the defense played exceptionally well." The coach said he had to give credit to each player. "We had real good effort out of everyone," added Green. The Lions had several young players starting last week. "I like the looks of the underclassmen backfield," commented Green. "Abel Lara did a fine job starting for us, as did Butch Gonzalez, James Sanchez and Roger Flores." The Lion coach gave much credit to Al Ramirez on both offense and defense. He also complimented the play of Joe Marshall, Chuy Hernandez, Arturo Gonzalez, and Mario Arredondo. He also added that the defensive secondary only allowed two Crane passes to get by them all evening.

The Lions will meet the Coahoma Bulldogs in Bulldog Stadium at 8:00 p.m. this Friday night. Elsewhere in the district, Sonora will take on the Colorado City Wolves, 28-6 losers to the Ballinger Bearcats and Ballinger will host Crane.

League sets annual gift bazaar Nov. 20

Members of the Ozona Woman's League have set their annual gift and food bazaar for Tuesday, November 20, at the Civic Center.

They are now taking orders for food. Anyone wishing to call in an order may call Jodi Sessom at 392-2208 or Debbie Lambert at 392-5049.

The club project this year is a Crockett County address book. Club members have compiled the book and it will be picked up from the printer today. The books will be on sale at the bazaar.

Week-long amounts to over one inch

Rain and drizzle throughout last week amounted to rainfall of 1.35 in the official gauge at the water district office. Skies were overcast all week as the rainfall came from thunderstorms to light drizzle.

Skies cleared and a beautiful week-end followed with cool nights and pleasant days. Lows were in the 50's and highs for the day were in the mid-70 range.

The week-long rainfall brought the total for the month of October to 3.68 inches of moisture, the most rainfall recorded for any month this year.

Blood drive is tomorrow

The quarterly Blood Drive, sponsored by the Ozona Chamber of Commerce will be held Thursday, Nov. 1, at the chamber building.

Slowing down for potholes is a mistake

It's a big mistake to try to veer around or slow down quickly for potholes.

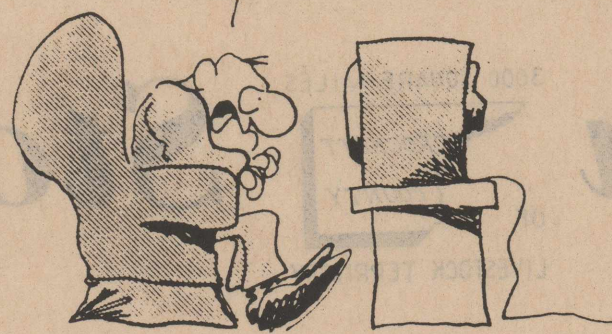

"Holes, unlike most highway surface discontinuities, have a greater potential to cause damage at lower vehicle speeds," report Texas Transportation Institute researchers Dick Zimmer and Dr. Don Iver, of Texas A&M University.

"At common highway speeds, in excess of 40 mph, a hole must be more than 60 inches long and three inches deep to constitute a safety threat to the smallest automobiles," Zimmer said. "On urban streets, with traffic speeds as low as 20 mph, holes must still be more than 30 inches long and more than three inches deep to have the potential of damaging tires and/or rims."

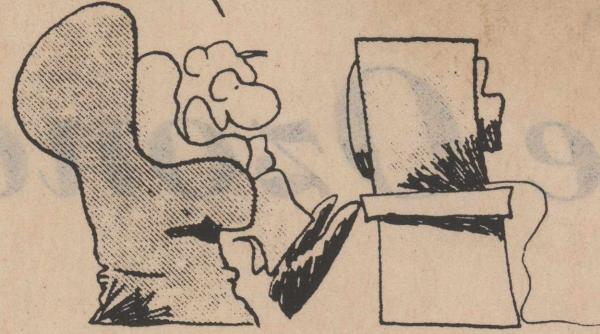

Reacting to a pothole inappropriately—by extreme cornering or braking—has the potential for worse consequences, Zimmer said.

Tests showed that the path of a vehicle was not affected when it struck relatively large potholes head-on.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS
By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Turnout for the Nov. 6 general election will probably be high as indicated by the large number of absentee votes already cast around the state.

Almost lost amid the campaign rhetoric from heated candidates are eight proposed constitutional amendments and some pros and cons which have been argued for each as follows:

PROPOSITION 1: Rights of state chartered banks would be extended to have the same rights and privileges as the national-chartered banks domiciled here in Texas.

Supporters of the amendment argue that while Texas now has roughly a 50-50 ratio of state banks and national banks, the Congress is expected to allow intrastate branching by national banks. This amendment is needed to avoid a severe competitive disadvantage for state banks.

An argument against the amendment proposes the Legislature should repeal the constitutional ban on branch banking and regulate by statute, which could be repealed if Congress acts.

PROPOSITION 2: Funding for state universities would be secured with a new dedicated appropriation of $100 million per year for college construction. It also increases bonding authority for UT and A&M systems.

Proponents argue this amendment will end the dual-class system for college construction funding which enriches Permanent University Fund schools while making beggars of the rest.

Opponents argue that state revenues are too scarce to create a new massive dedicated fund.

PROPOSITION 3: Grants the Legislature authority to provide financial aid to dependents of police, fire and other public officers killed in hazardous duty. Currently, only the spouse and dependent children receive such aid.

Proponents say that elderly dependents of single officers should be eligible for aid if the officer was their sole means of support. Others argue that fiscal guidelines for this amendment are not clear and voters have no idea how much the beneficiaries will receive.

PROPOSITION 4: Allows the abolishment of county treasurers in both Bexar and Collin counties, if voters approve. The county clerks would assume the duties of the treasurer.

Supporters say taxpayers could be saved from paying two salaries. Opponents say county clerks already have enough to do and the division of duties is best.

PROPOSITION 5: Changes the manner in which a vacancy in the lieutenant governor's office is filled to allow the Texas Senate to select a senator to perform the duties. Under present law, the vacancy goes to the president pro tem of the Senate.

Proponents say that the post shouldn't be filled simply because of Senate tradition, or because senators wanted to honor the person who became president pro tem.

Opponents argue that since the lieutenant governor is elected statewide, it is too narrow to let the 34 senators choose the successor. If we are going to change the law, we should provide for a better means of selection.

PROPOSITION 6: Would allow public funds to be used to pay mutual insurance companies premiums on "nonassessable" life, health, and accident policies and annuity contracts.

Since mutual insurance companies are owned by their policyholders and have no capital stock, a 1942 Texas Supreme Court ruling held that public entities could not have such an insurance policy because they would become stockholders.

Proponents say that since mutual insurance companies have practically abandoned the use of assessments to raise capital, these companies should be allowed to compete for local governments' insurance policies. This amendment carries no apparent opposition.

PROPOSITION 7: Amends guidelines for the State Commission on Judicial Conduct which currently has 11 members: two court of appeals justices, two district judges, two lawyers, four nonlawyers and one justice of the peace. This proposal substitutes one appeals justice and one district judge with one municipal judge and one county court at law judge.

In cases of judicial misconduct, a judge could be disciplined instead of removed, and the record would not automatically be open to the public, but subject to authorization of the Legislature.

PROPOSITION 8: Increases the amount of per diem that legislators can legally receive to an amount equal to the maximum that can be deducted from federal taxes.

Lawmakers currently receive per diem of $30, but could conceivably raise it to $75, if this proposal passes.

Gambling winnings must be reported

From a tax standpoint, cash winnings from lotteries, races, games of chance, and raffles are viewed as income on the federal tax return, the Internal Revenue Service says.

Similarly, contest prize money and awards from employers are also considered as taxable income by the IRS and must be reported.

The IRS adds that property items won in contests or donated by employers, such as household appliances, all-expense-paid vacations, or cars must also be included in income at fair market value. Both cash and non-cash winnings are shown on Form 1040 as "Other Income."

The IRS notes that gambling losses may be deducted to the extent of the winnings if deductions are itemized.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club
by Mrs. Bailey Post

Spurred by fall showers and coolness, roses vie with mums for attention at this time. Both should be at their best until frost comes along to spoil them.

Some have asked when to move hybrid tea roses. They are best transplanted while they are dormant, from December to February. Prune vigorous canes back to three or four growth buds, and remove weak and damaged canes and those growing toward the center of the plant.

Here is a rule you might like to try on how to predict a frost. Critical low temperatures are not the official ones the weather man takes, but the colder ground level temperatures. If the forecast is for as low as 40 degrees F. look out for it to be 30 degrees at ground level by morning.

Bluebonnets should be coming up thick since the recent rains if in a space where they can reseed. If not, it isn't too late to get them planted.

For sometime now plant breeders have developed excellent hardy, dwarf type plants. They are much more useful in the landscape than the old standard varieties. Some of these are nandina, flowering quince, pyracantha, crepe myrtle, and several types of Juniper. There are good selections for mass plantings. Other small plants that do well in partial shade are fatsia, aucuba, holly fern, Indian hawthorn and Japanese black and mugo pines.

November is the best month for planting anemones in most of Texas.

It is garden clean up time. Besides making the area more attractive, you will eliminate breeding and nesting areas for pests. Prune and discard dead limbs, and remove any decaying fruit, flowers, or sickly plants. Be sure to avoid putting diseased plant material on the compost pile; instead throw them away.

Microwave course is available

A home study course containing information and experiments to help you learn about microwaving with your own oven is now available from the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says Crockett County home economist Rachel Hall.

"Research studies show that most people use their microwave ovens for simply reheating and defrosting foods, rather than actually cooking," she says. "So we're offering this course for people who want to get full cooking use out of their investment in a microwave."

Participants in previous Extension home study courses have reported significant changes in the way they use their microwave ovens after completing the course, she adds.

The course contains eight lessons for you to complete at your own pace. The first three lessons include information on the oven, accessories and utensils; factors that influence cooking reheating and defrosting times; and meal planning and recipe conversions.

The remaining five lessons cover microwaving breads and cereals; dairy products; vegetables and fruits; meats; jam, jelly and candy, as well as foods for children to cook. Although these five lessons follow a logical progression, each can stand alone so you can do them in a different order or skip over some.

You can get a copy of the microwave basics home study course by mailing a $3.00 check or money order to cover printing and postage costs to: Microwave Basics, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Department of Ag. Communications (2112), Reed McDonald Building, Room 101, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

Or you can call the County Extension Office at 392-2721 for an order blank.

Popping Into The Past

Popcorn has a long and colorful history which includes being used as a food source necklaces, headdresses, and status of gods. Before the invention of modern farm machinery, neighbors met in late October every year for husking bees. As they sat in a big group and husked the corn, occasionally someone would find an ear of red corn among the yellow ones. Whenever this happened, that person would choose someone to kiss. Some of the older kids enjoyed it so much, they smuggled in their own red ears and pretended to find them in the pile. (They'd do more kissing than husking)

In days of old, people thought a little demon lived inside each popcorn kernel and when his house was heated, the demon got mad and exploded. Actually each kernel is made of tiny starch cells surrounded by a hard protein shell. When kernels are heated, the starch cells soften and the moisture in the kernel converts to steam, building up pressure, causing the starch cells to explode.

There are many types of popcorn poppers available today, ranging from campfire poppers to stove-top pans, electric poppers, and poppers for microwave. A good popcorn popper should have heat-resistant handles and cover which fits securely, yet will allow steam to escape. Check both the cord and poppers to make sure they are approved by Underwriters Laboratories.

The key to storing popcorn is in an airtight container at room temperature, in a refrigerator, or in the freezer. Popcorn dries out when exposed to air; however it's possible to restore lost moisture to the corn by sprinkling it with water (1 tbs. per pound of kernels). Cover tightly and shake several times during a 24-36 hour period--the popcorn should again pop well.

Chocolate Popcorn Balls

3 quarts popped corn
1 cup sugar
1/4 cup cocoa
1 cup light corn syrup
1/2 cup evaporated milk
1 tablespoon margarine
1/8 teaspoon salt

Spread popped corn in a large shallow pan. Place sugar, cocoa, corn syrup, evaporated milk, margarine and salt in a medium size saucepan and mix together. Cook over low heat, stirring all the time, until sugar is dissolved and margarine is melted. Turn heat up to medium and continue cooking 8 minutes, stirring all the time. Remove from heat. Pour over popped corn and mix lightly with two forks to coat. Careful, it is hot! Let stand 5 minutes to cool. Coat the palms and inside of fingers with margarine (to keep mixture from sticking to hands)--then shape coated popcorn into balls. Makes 10 to 12 medium-size popcorn balls.

Popcorn Balls

1 cup sugar
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
7 cups warm popcorn

Boil sugar, water, corn syrup, salt and butter until the soft ball stage is reached. Add vanilla and pour over popcorn. Form into balls. These make quite a hit with children.

Caramel Popcorn

1 cup margarine
2 cups brown sugar
1/2 cup corn syrup, dark or light
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon vanilla
6 qts. popped corn

Melt margarine in large saucepan. Stir in brown sugar, syrup, and salt. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Boil without stirring for 5 more minutes. Remove from heat and stir in baking soda and vanilla. Gradually pour mixture over popped corn in large pan and mix well. Bake at 250° for 1 hour, stirring every 15 minutes. Remove from oven, cool completely. Break and store in sealed container.

Songs that do make a difference

Music has a strong influence on the emotions of man. Songs make us sad or happy, gay or sentimental, thoughtful or frivolous.

But there are songs that do even more... that make a difference in our lives... in what we shall become.

These are the hymns that men and women have cherished through centuries of faithful worship in cathedrals and village chapels. And among them are the lovely little songs of childish devotion that teach a youngster of Jesus' love.

Are your children learning the songs that make a difference? Is your family growing spiritually in the worship and associations your religion offers?

Seventh grade Cubs make it five in a row Cowboy camp meeting set November 6-8 at McMullans

The Ozona Seventh Grade Cubs captured their fifth victory in a row Thursday night, by defeating Crane 16-6.

Crane, who was previously undefeated, faced a very stubborn Cub defense. Mark Fierro, Lalo Rodriguez, George Ybarra and the entire defensive squad put forth a tremendous effort to allow Crane only one touchdown. The Cubs had two fumble recoveries, one made by Mark Fierro, the second by Andy Stokes, both came at crucial points in the game. Both times the fumbles occurred, the Cranes were driving in for a possible score.

Offensively, Lalo Rodriguez was the workhorse for the Cubs. Scoring twice, his great running efforts turned in several crucial first downs. Chris Denman threw passes to Phillip Munoz and George Ybarra for both extra point conversions. It took a great effort by the entire Cub team to defeat a very powerful Crane football team.

The Cubs next game is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 1, at 5:30 in Coahoma.

Glenn and Rodeo Cowboy Ministries have pioneered many cowboy church services including the ones at the National Finals Rodeo in Oklahoma City and the World Cup Rodeo in Australia. As a result many western oriented people have received Jesus Christ as their Saviour and Lord.

Everyone is welcome to come share in the fellowship, and be blessed as Glenn preaches the Word of God. Do dress warmly as the Campmeeting is held in the ranch barn, 10 miles east of Iraan on Highway 190, and bring a friend.

The Ozona Woman's Forum will sponsor an autograph party Tuesday, November 6, for Austin artist Joan Salvant. The event will be held at Ozona National Bank's hospitality room at 3 p.m.

Ms. Salvant did prints of four Ozona historical structures. These prints will be sold at the autograph party with proceeds to benefit the Crockett County Museum.

Buying bulk food complicated

Scooping your own corn meal or rice from barrels at the supermarket may be a nostalgic reminder of the old country store. But like most things, even buying bulk food is more complicated than it was in grandma's day.

Today you may have to struggle with a long-handled scooping device or plastic dispensing mechanism to get at your favorite bulk food. The apparatus is there for good reason—to protect your health and safety.

The growing popularity of selling everything from trail mix to dried fruit, coffee beans and popcorn in bulk led food retailers to seek guidance from the Food and Drug Administration for applying sanitation law in their operations, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service food and nutrition specialist Marilyn Haggard.

"The objective in providing guidelines for bulk food sales is to control potential health problems such as the spread of communicable disease, outbreaks of food-borne illness and unintentional contamination of food," she says.

The FDA completed guidelines for handling bulk food in supermarkets earlier this year, and the effects are being seen in the grocery stores now, adds Haggard.

The rules require bulk food to be dispensed from containers with close-fitting individual covers. Containers must be easily removable from the display unit for servicing, unless they can be cleaned in a place without contaminating the food, explains the specialist.

The FDA ordinance also states that manual contact with the food by customers must be avoided either by mechanical dispensing devices such as gravity fed units, manual dispensers like tongs and scoops, or wrapping and sacking products, advises Haggard.

Also, just because you buy food from bulk dispensers doesn't mean you give up your right to product information, she says. The containers should show either a counter card or manufacturer's label stating the name of the product and its ingredients in order of predominance.

To reduce the possibility of contamination, the rules suggest that retailers limit the depth of a bulk-food container to 18 inches and locate any containers with the opening at the top at least 30 inches from the floor, Haggard says. But retailers are not required to use these measurement standards as long as they avoid contamination of the food.

The FDA guidelines call for voluntary compliance by retailers and exempt wrapped candies, nuts in their shells and other protected items, she adds. So consumers will need to judge for themselves whether a bulk food operation seems sanitary, she adds.

DON'T LET THE BIG CITY STEAL YOU BLIND

It's a serious charge, but many of us are guilty of actually stealing from our own community. Every time we fail to shop our own home town stores first we take from the local economy.

When we buy from those who buy from us . . . either our labor or our products, we're getting full value for the money we work to earn. The money we spend out of town could be used to help improve our own community and help make it a better place to live.

Because only part of each dollar we spend puts actual goods and services into our hands, we need to make sure the rest of those dollars go to support our own community. Let's support our own schools, churches, roads, police and fire protection — not someone else's. Don't let the big city steal you blind — shop at home.

Gold Star winners

GOLD STAR AWARD winners recently were Ira Childress and Susan Scott. The two will be honored Saturday in El Paso at the District 6 Gold Star Banquet. Shown above are Childress,

C. Huffman participates in convocation

Charles Huffman of Ozona was among the 8,000 participants in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod's Great Commission Convocation in St. Louis, Mo., which concluded October 28. Charles is the minister of Faith Lutheran Church, Ozona & Hope Lutheran Church, Sonora. This Great Commission Convocation, the second held within the Synod in the past four years, was aimed at helping participants hone their skills and inspiration for 'discipleship', which includes in large part evangelism outreach into their communities as well as spiritual nurture of church members.

The program included worship, Bible study, a first-time evangelism outreach into various S. Louis communities, and 131 workshops which participants attended in order to learn discipleship skills, as well as exhibits.

The workshops, among the most popular offerings of the Convocation, ranged over many topics, spanning evangelism for all age groups and cultures, and teaching such diverse methods as puppets, drama, music, television and other media in spreading the Gospel of Jesus Christ. In his keynote address opening the Convocation here Oct. 25, Dr. Ralph A. Bohlmann, president of the 2.7 million member church body, told the audience that it was 'America's largest committee on evangelism'. Bohlmann said that he has sensed a "...new spirit of evangelism, mission and caring for one another..." since the Synod's 1980 convocation.

Charles, on returning to Ozona, said that the Convocation was 'the experience of a lifetime. To be with 8,000 other Christians who are dedicated to reaching out with the love of God in His Son to a world that is quickly passing away is indescribable', said Charles.

Rudy Enriquez is contest winner

Rudy Enriquez won the football contest this week. Esmey Moran ran a close second. Both contestants missed only one game, but Enriquez won it on the tie-breaker, having nearest to the correct score.

Over a dozen only missed two games and there were eight with only 3 misses. Apparently those who entered the Stockman contest were not as surprised at the upsets as the sports casters were.

Entry blanks may be found on the sports page sponsored by local merchants. Everyone is eligible and all entries must be in the Stockman office or in the mail before 5 p.m. on Friday.

Letters to the Editor

October 29, 1984
Dear Editor:

When Texas voters go to the polls to make their choices in the presidential and state elections, they'll have an important opportunity to help our college students. That opportunity is Proposition 2, a proposed constitutional amendment.

Proposition 2 will give us the chance to make sure that our state-supported universities have the classrooms, libraries, labs and educational equipment they need. With no increase in taxes!

How is this possible? It's possible because Proposition 2 restructures the way that dedicated funds are divided up among our colleges. It would include all components of the University of Texas and Texas A&M System under the bonding program of the Permanent University Fund. This will save tax dollars because the PUF is supported by oil, gas and ranching leases on public lands rather than our tax dollars.

Also, it will create a new dedicated fund for all colleges outside the UT and Texas A&M Systems.

Proposition 2 will save tax dollars another way by allowing our colleges to use the new dedicated fund's bonding program to pay for repairs and rehabilitation projects, instead of just new construction.

Proposition 2 is a major step in the right direction-for our college students and us, the taxpayers. It deserves our support on November 6.

Sincerely,
Sonny Henderson

October 25, 1984
To The Editor:

While Texans are calling for less government, Land Commissioner Gary Mauro has asked for a 41% increase in the number of employees in his department.

Maybe he needs these people to drive the 31 new four-wheel drive vehicles that he's ordered (cost: almost $375,000). Or maybe he needs these people to operate the $13,000 35mm camera he ordered. Or maybe he needs all these extra people to spend all the travel money that he's requested, (up almost fourfold since 1983).

Whatever it is, I know what we need. We need a land commissioner who knows the value of a dollar, not Gary Mauro who only knows how to spend it.

Sincerely,
Darla Jones

Dear Editor,

Thank you for your continued support of the Family Shelter. I greatly appreciate all the play that is given to our public service announcements. We have had response from women who have seen or heard about the Shelter due to media coverage in our outlying counties.

I'm enclosing two public service announcements that announce my monthly visit to your community. I'd welcome any advice or suggestions from you that would help me to better serve your community.

Thank you,

Sales tax representative to visit here

State Comptroller Bob Bullock will have a representative from his San Angelo office in Ozona on November 5, to assist local taxpayers and answer questions about state taxes.

Bullock said Tax Representative Esther Esparza will meet with local taxpayers in the Law Library at the County Courthouse Annex from 10:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m.

"If Ozona area merchants, or anyone else for that matter, have any questions about state taxes or need help in preparing state tax forms, Ms. Esparza will be there to assist them," Bullock said.

"We're trying to cut the red tape in this office, and we believe these face to face sessions with taxpayers help do just that," Bullock added.

Planting dwarf shrubs will lessen pruning chores

If you deplore the thought of planting shrubs this fall because of the tedious pruning they require, consider dwarf plants.

Dwarf plants are just about the nicest thing to hit the nursery trade in recent years, says Billy Reagor, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Dwarf, compact, low-growing plants can be the answer to landscape maintenance problems.

Many of the larger old standards now come in "dwarf models," says the agent. Choose from dwarf abelia, pyracantha, ligustrum, nandina, pittosporum, quince, crepe myrtle, bamboo, oleander, azalea, many varieties of holly and others at your local nursery or garden center.

The wide versatility and adaptability of dwarf plants add to their popularity. Dwarfs are adaptable to fully shaded areas, open sun and partial shade. They also can be used for clipped borders, groundcovers and formal and informal plantings.

Dwarf plants are best used in small, detailed areas where they will be observed at close range, such as patio and entrance areas. They should not be used for background plantings or in areas where they might be overgrown by larger shrubs or annual flowers.

Pruning can be virtually eliminated with dwarf plants, but they do require room to spread and grow. Your nurseryman can advise you on the proper planting distance of the particular dwarfs you select.

The following dwarf shrubs can be a boon to any landscape:

Dwarf Yaupon Holly--This Texas native is excellent as a low hedge or container plant and has few insect or disease problems.

Dwarf Abelia--A low, spreading evergreen, this shrub has shiny small leaves with a reddish tinge and bears delicate white flowers most of the summer.

Wheeler's Dwarf Pittosporum--This is a compact evergreen shrub with glossy, dark foliage. It has all the same desirable qualities as regular pittosporum but is only a fraction of the size. It is probably the most popular plant to hit the market in the past decade. However, it is subject to cold damage.

Dwarf Nandina--A dwarf mounding shrub, this plant is different from the regular Nandina. It produces small, compact plants with green foliage in late spring and summer that turns brilliant scarlet and bronze in the winter. Probably the best selection is called Harbor Dwarf.

Rock Cotoneaster--This plant's flat, horizontal branches make it ideally suited for planting in rock gardens where these branches can rest on the ground or on a low bank where it will serve admirably as a ground cover.

Dwarf Gardenia--Here's a compact, flat-topped evergreen shrub with glossy, dark green leaves plus fragrant flowers during warmer months. It likes acid soil.

Dwarf Buford Holly--This is an erect evergreen with dark, glossy green foliage. It grows slowly, has clusters of red berries after blooming in the spring, and is larger than the dwarf yaupon. In fact, it can reach 6 feet at maturity.

Dwarf Pyracantha--Several varieties of hybrid dwarf pyracantha are available--"Tiny Tim" and "Red Elf" are two favorites. They have dark evergreen foliage with a bright reddish tinge and bear delicate white flowers most of the summer.

Good grazing management promoted by S.C.S.

Good grazing management is promoted by the Soil Conservation Service as it adds many benefits to a ranching operation as well as being more profitable to the rancher.

Living plants make food for their survival by combining water and minerals in their leaves through a process called photosynthesis. Sunlight provides the energy for this process. Plant food is stored in the root system and is used for new growth and seed production.

Proper grazing use is the removal of 50% or less by weight of the annual growth by the end of the grazing season which is approximately April 1, in this area. This 50% can be safely removed without any harmful affects to the plant. The remaining 50% is left for the photosynthesis process to manufacture and store plant food.

Improper grazing management contributes to soil loss and range deterioration. When the natural vegetation of an area is destroyed, erosion is accelerated in the form of sheet, rill or gully erosion. Sheet erosion is the removal of a fairly uniform layer of soil from the land surface as a result of raindrop splash and runoff. Rill erosion is caused when runoff is heavy and water concentrates in rivulets and may develop into gully erosion if not corrected.

Proper grazing management leads to a good vegetative cover which in turn will: shield the soil from the impact of raindrops; bind the soil together to protect against runoff; provides organic matter; slows runoff velocities; reduces evaporation losses; and provide a base from which plant food can be manufactured.

When a good vegetative cover is accomplished, the land will be more productive in terms of pounds of livestock produced and in net return to the land manager.

Eighth grade Cubs win four in a row

The Ozona Eighth Grade Cubs won their fourth game in a row Thursday night defeating Crane 14-8. Crane was the second undefeated team the Cubs have faced in as many weeks. Once again the contest was decided in the final minutes of the game.

Ozona was first to get on the scoreboard when Eloy Gonzales scored from 4 yards out late in the second quarter. The extra point conversion failed leaving the score 6-0 at halftime.

After the break, Crane roared back to score on a three yard run making the score 8-6 late in the third quarter. Ozona wasn't finished yet, however. A 32 yard pass from Eloy Gonzales to Harvey Dominguez set up the winning touchdown. Three plays later, Eloy Gonzales scored his second touchdown while Copie Davis tossed a three yard pass to Landon Duncan for the extra point conversion making the score 14-8 with only a few minutes left to play.

The defense was outstanding for Ozona. Led by Wolf Rutherford and Ed Calvert, the Cubs stopped the Crane short of a touchdown more than once.

A super effort by everyone gave the Cubs their fourth victory. The next game is Thursday night in Coahoma.

Drug treatment programs seem to be successful in helping some chronic drug users kick the habit, according to the results of a 12-year follow-up study of almost 500 opiate addicts nationwide.

Of the 26 percent of the addicts who reported they had not used illicit drugs for the last year before the follow-up, more than half said they had been on a treatment program when they quit, said Dr. Dwayne Simpson, head of the Behavioral Research Program at Texas A&M University.

The Scientists Tell Me...

Preharvest Sprouting of Pecans May Indicate Water, Fertilizer Imbalance

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

Pecan vivipary, also called "preharvest germination," is one of the major problems in the commercial production of pecans, according to Dr. J. Benton Storey, horticultural researcher for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

"Nuts of some varieties tend to germinate (sprout) on the tree shortly before harvest time, and are thus rendered unmarketable. Such preharvest germination is now considered one of the limiting factors in pecan production in the Winter Garden area of Texas, some parts of northern Mexico, and Israel," says Storey, who is also a professor of pomology at Texas A&M University.

"The cause of pecan preharvest germination and the conditions under which it occurs have not been well understood.

"It is believed, however, that the factors underlying germination of the nuts on the tree are not different from those providing for germination of seeds in general, namely, moisture, aeration, favorable temperature, and viability of the seed.

"Of these, the amount of moisture available to the nuts seems to be of most importance. Observations made by some workers have indicated a need for better water management.

"Our own observations indicate that preharvest germination of pecans is usually avoided when proper soil moisture levels are maintained throughout the growing season.

"Earlier research suggested that preharvest germination of pecans is directly related to vegetative growth or tree vigor.

"Vegetative growth seems to be most dependent upon availability of nitrogen. Excessive nitrogen, (N) should logically prolong vegetative growth, delay nut maturity and increase nut sprouting.

"Unpublished observations have suggested that potassium (K) fertilizer has advanced shuck opening. The longer the nuts remain on the tree in moist, warm environment the greater is the incidence of preharvest germination.

"The objectives of our present research were to study the effect of various soil moisture, nitrogen and potassium levels on the vivipary of pecans.

"For this experiment, we selected 96 nine-year-old 'Wichita' trees near Quemado, in Maverick County, Texas. Trees were spaced 35 feet x 35 feet, in a square design.

"The treatments included 4 irrigations, each of which contained two rates of nitrogen (120 and 240 pounds per acre), and three rates of K2O (0, 167, 8,335.6lbs./acre), replicated four times.

"The irrigation treatments were: 1) maintaining an optimum soil moisture level throughout the growing season until harvest, coded as no water stress (NS); 2) maintaining an optimum soil moisture throughout the growing season until harvest, plus 10 gallons of 73% sulphur per acre, applied in liquid form through the flood irrigation water, coded as NSS; 3) allowing the trees to remain water stressed from the beginning of the growing season until September 1, after which irrigation water was supplied to provide optimum soil moisture until harvest, coded as early stress (ES); and 4) maintaining an optimum soil moisture level from the beginning of the growing season until September 1, after which water stress was allowed until harvest, coded as late stress (LS).

"A cased hole, six feet deep, in the drip line of a tree near each end of each irrigation treatment, allowed access for the neutron meter to measure soil moisture at any point along the tube. Soil moisture was considered to prevent stress when moisture was over 50% of the difference between field capacity and permanent wilting.

"Preharvest germination was not affected by any of the irrigation treatments during the 1981 growing season, which had over 27.5 inches of rainfall and shortened the length of stress in the treatments.

"More stress was observed in the fall of 1982, when supplemental irrigation water had to be applied during the growing season to compensate for the low rainfall. Preharvest germination was significantly increased by a period of water stress, either early or late in the growing season.

"Before the first harvest, on October 18, nut sprouting on the tree was higher in both the early stress and the late stress treatments, as compared to the no stress and no stress/sulphur treatments.

"By the time of the second harvest, on November 6, the highest germination was found on the late-stressed trees which also showed the lowest soil moisture at that time.

"Early research has suggested that the longer the nuts remain in the unopened shuck the greater is the proportion that germinate. If this is the case, then preharvest germination could be related to shuck opening.

"We found that both treatments that caused early or late stress, not only showed higher nut sprouting on the tree but also showed lower shuck-split grades, as compared to no stress and no stress/sulphur.

"An important way by which shuck-split influences nut sprouting could be through reducing the amount of moisture in contact with the shell.

"Moisture in contact with the shell, especially at the apex end, and thence imparted to the seed has been reported as the specific cause of germination.

"When the shucks freely separate from the shell, open and lose moisture through evaporation, the seed moisture content drops below the threshold needed for germination, because pre-moisture supply from the shuck is no longer available.

"But adequate moisture within the tree is needed to encourage shuck splitting. Too much or too little water available to the tree can cause vivipary, or sprouting.

"Some researchers have reported that high levels of nitrogen might shorten the rest period of the pecan seeds or otherwise predispose them to germinate.

"Different rates of soil-applied nitrogen didn't affect preharvest germination in this experiment, so apparently wider differences in rates of nitrogen or more than 2-years treatment is needed to see this effect.

"Potassium, always related to water consumption, did not affect preharvest germination during the first season. In 1982, however, an addition of potassium fertilizer decreased preharvest germination, as compared with the control.

"This positive effect of potassium was not reflected on the shuck-split grades, and there was no evidence of an increase in the potassium content of the leaves. Research in further seasons will test the consistency of potassium influence on preharvest germination," Storey concluded.

End-of-year crop & livestock reports

The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service will begin contacting farmers and ranchers across the state in late November for final 1984 crop acreage, yield and production totals and during December for end-of-year livestock and poultry inventory information.

The confidential interviews, conducted by mail or in person by field enumerators, provide information used by producers to make their production and marketing plans for the coming year.

"These surveys take on a new importance this year," State Statistician Dennis Findley added, "since the prolonged dry weather in many areas of the state cut crop and forage yields and forced heavy culling of livestock herds. Producers are depending on this information for an accurate picture of the 1984 agricultural situation. We all need a sound base to make the right decisions for 1985."

To reduce survey costs, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service is urging farmers and ranchers to return the mailed questionnaires as soon as possible. The reported information will be combined for state as well as county estimates.

Annual county estimates are published for livestock, dairy, poultry, cotton, field crops, small grains, fruits and pecans, vegetables, and cash receipts from the sale of farm products.

New law requires buckling up young children under 4

Seventy-eight children ages 4 and under died in auto accidents in Texas in 1983. Another 6,603 were injured, many seriously.

Although these figures led the nation, the Texas Medical Association says there could be a substantial decrease in these categories beginning Oct. 31, 1984, when a new state law takes effect.

As of that day, a driver must buckle up a child passenger under age 4 with a safety seat or seat belt or face a fine of $25 to $50. The fine will be dismissed if the person acquires a child safety seat within 10 days of the offense and provides proof to the court.

Statistics show that nine of every 10 children involved in auto accidents could have been spared death or injury had restraints been used. TMA supported the new law, which was passed during the Texas Legislatures special session in June.

The law does not apply to a person transporting a child in a vehicle in which all seating positions equipped with child safety seats or safety belts are occupied. Also exempt are bus or cab drivers and others hired to transport passengers.

The law, which applies to cars and light trucks, requires that a child under 2 must be buckled into a safety seat that meets federal standards set by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Children over 2 but under 4 must be restrained by a safety seat or seat belt.

Failure by a driver to use the child passenger safety seat could not be admitted into evidence during a civil trial, according to the law.

To help people obtain child safety seats, numerous groups, including the Texas Medical Association Auxiliary, have programs that loan the seats at no charge. For information on loaner programs in your area, call 1-800-252-8255, a toll-free number operated by the Texas Department of Health.

TMA also supports mandatory use of safety belts for all other ages because of their proven record in reducing deaths and injuries. Tragically, about 98 percent of automobile occupants killed in Texas during 1983 had seat belts available yet failed to use them.

Masses scheduled for Nov. 1-2

The traditional feast of All Saints, a holy day of obligation is Thursday, Nov. 1. Celebrating the Feast Day, Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church will have two masses scheduled at 8:30 a.m. and 7:00 p.m.

On the following day, Friday, Nov. 2, the Church will celebrate the Feast of All Souls with Masses at 8:30 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. The remembrance of the departed members, friends and relatives continues with a Rosary procession recited in the Lima and Cedar Hills Cemeteries at 5:00 p.m. All are invited to attend any of the various celebrations.

PBPA energy report

With things finally beginning to look up for the domestic petroleum industry, the Norway, Great Britain, Nigeria crude oil price cuts have created quite a stir.

However, with OPEC not rushing to set up a meeting, October the 29th is the actual date, we have a strong feeling that they have already worked out how they are going to handle this, and we don't think it will be by cutting the price, but by cutting production.

With many companies already involved in last quarter activities, one thing we don't need is people hitting the panic button. Prices may come down a bit, but so have costs of drilling, exploration and leasing, along with workovers, parts and supplies.

Even with a price reduction, you get a reduction in your Windfall Profits Excise Tax, showing that every cloud has a silver lining. We got along on 10 cent per barrel oil, five dollars oil, nine dollars oil, 12, 20, 25, 30, 35 and 40 dollar oil, but with every price increase, we had a cost increase, plus a tax increase, so let's not jump ship just because a few waves are being made. And, while Mobil has announced a 75 cent price cut in West Texas Intermediate, no one seems to know that they are rescinding their trucking charges, which are also 75 cents.

The Permian Basin rig count this week is 367. Last week 373 and one year ago 321.

Recent visitors in the M.E. Nicholas home were his brother and sister-in-law, Justin and Barbara Nicholas of Columbus, Ohio.

Crockett County Care Center News

BY ANN McCARTNEY
DIRECTOR OF ACTIVITIES & SOCIAL CARE

The rains came this week and we were not able to go out to eat at El Chato's but that was okay. We enjoyed the rain and we can go to El Chato's this week.

The rain did not keep the Knox Band away. Jamie Knox, J.D. and Don Kilgore came and gave a fine performance on Tuesday night. Maude Pettit did a lot of dancing, most everyone else just tapped their foot and clapped their hands. We had visiting and assisting us Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander and Nancy Leifeste, the new Activities Director at the future Reagan County Care Center. We enjoyed meeting Nancy and are in hopes we might have some combined activities in the future.

Ceramic class was led on Wednesday by Ruth Hester and Dorris Karr. Eight residents participated. Thanks goes to Nancy Vannoy for cleaning some pieces for us.

A new craft project was conducted when several of our residents came to the Dayroom and decorated Halloween bags made to hold our Halloween candy on Halloween night. We have the treats, so you come on by! Residents who assisted with this project included Tomasa Ramos, Alice Ross, Bertha Miller, Hilda Dysart, Nina Mayfield, Nila Turnell, Maude Pettit, Billie Whatley, Moriana Perez, Minnie Karr and Phil Schneemann. Volunteers assisting included Anna Yruegas, Lola Rios, and newcomer Marjorie Morris. (Welcome to our group of volunteers, Marjorie).

Reading has held twice last week. Had to catch up from the week before. About nine residents usually attend our reading sessions.

Thursday morning beauty shop was manned by Lola Rios and Clara Babb. Thanks, ladies!

Bible study was led this week by Ted Turnley. Maude Pettit played the piano and Paul Cavin assisted in leading the singing.

Sara Hignight came and played the organ on Friday for our residents. Thanks, Sara.

Twenty-two residents played bingo on Tuesday morning and nineteen played on Friday. Grace Cotter won the first place certificate from Westernman Drug. Hilda Dysart won the second place certificate. Bertha Miller won the El Chato dinner for two certificate. Volunteers included residents Maude Pettit, Alice Ross and Nina Mayfield, sitters Amalia Lumbreras, Elodia Zapata, Inez Gutierrez, Angelita Pena, and volunteers Dorothy Doll, Anna Bell Patrick and Mattie Cooper.

Ten members of the Church of Christ accompanied their pastor Ralph Anderson to our Care Center Sunday afternoon for Church services. The singing and the sermon given by this group is always greatly enjoyed.

Dominoes were played this Monday by Tina Holmsley, volunteer, and residents Maude Pettit, Paul Cavin and Ola Mills.

Thirty-five young children, along with their four leaders, came from the Ozona Day Care Center of the United Methodist Church and shared the Halloween songs they had learned this Monday morning. What a treat to have these kids come!

They were all invited, as are all of you young goblins out there, to come by the Care Center between 3:30 and 8:30 on Halloween, show off your costumes and receive a treat from our residents. So, why not drop by? See you Wednesday, Halloween night!

Band parents appreciate assistance

The Ozona football boosters club is second only to the band boosters club when it comes to spirit. Ozona band parents wish to give a special thanks to all well-wishers, decorators, sign makers and supporters in general who gave members encouragement before their journey to Brady to compete in the class 3-A marching competition.

Although the band received a #2 rating, most band parents feel the score was not representative of their efforts or ability. As far as the group is concerned, the band along with the director, Kelly Glaze, rates a #1 with them.

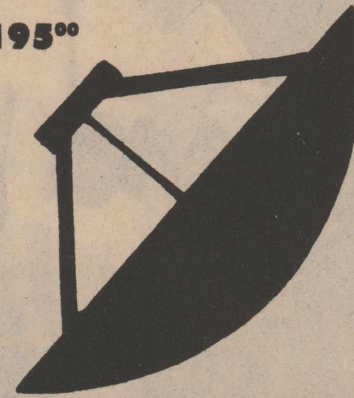

The band, 88 strong, has 16 senior members, 10 juniors and the remainder is made up of freshmen and sophomores. The three senior twirlers, Susan Scott, Alma Kay Ramos and Deena Phillips received a #1 for their solo performances, while Jennifer Probst, a junior, received a #2.

Why that cop can't smile

By Paul Patti

Speaking to large groups of people is almost always stressful for a police officer. Recently, I spoke to a group of local businessmen, whose leader had invited me for "luncheon" and a "chat." He gave me no idea what to speak about, saying only, "You can tell us about the crime problem." I couldn't foresee what I was in for.

After a short crime prevention speech I asked if there were any questions and was met with blank stares. This was a tough group, including a local printer, gas station owner, real estate salesman, and some insurance executives. They obviously had no questions about crime prevention. Finally, one hand went up in the back of the room. The printer, a middle-aged, short, balding man, asked: "Why don't the officers we see on patrol ever smile?" He went on to tell me about the lack of any wave or other recognition, either. I fell silent. This wasn't the typical "What-kind-of-locks-should-we-have?"-type question I was used to. I bluffed my way through it, but it started me wondering--what ever happened to the good-natured, smiling, street-corner cop?

If you can recall your last encounter with a police officer, try to remember the officer's facial expression. Even if it was a non-threatening, friendly encounter--do you remember if the officer smiled?

Officers stop smiling in stages, they definitely don't come on the job full-frown. Recalling my police experience and public contacts, I went from grinning rookie to sour-pussed veteran in just seven short years. I'm turning that around now. Officers that "hang on" to the job start to think of or create reasons to smile. The deadpan Detective "Dirty Harry" Callahan would have exploded from internalized stress years ago if such character ever actually existed.

People believe there are two reasons cops don't smile--the first is they're underpaid, the second is they're unappreciated. While these may have been true at one time, for the most part they do not apply today. On a scale with other trade-professionals, officers are well-paid and receive excellent benefits, especially in large metropolitan departments. Citizens do appreciate police, as expressed nationwide through "memorial" and "appreciation" days, citizen support for salary increases, public awards and recognition for heroism and service, and media coverage of the good officers do.

No. Being underpaid or unappreciated have nothing to do with why officers don't smile. There could be many reasons, or there could be just one.

In the last ten years we have seen an avalanche of lawsuits against individual officers and departments, brought mostly either by angered criminals, or by attorneys specializing in draining public and insurance coffers with frivolous claims. The public demand for protection from criminals on one hand, and the flood of lawsuits from criminals on the other, is a major reason cops can't smile. The officers may spend months--and sometimes even years--laboring under the burden of a lawsuit that may threaten their careers, homes, and their families' futures. A smile will not come easily.

This past July, a Miami Beach detective locked up a man who allegedly fired a machine gun into a residence, barely missing an infant. Awards? Commendations? This officer is being sued by the man's lawyer, who claims the officer "tricked" and "lied" to get the attorney to "sur-render his client."

An officer's stress is heightened by the fact that no one in "the club" is ever sued and dragged into court like a criminal. The club consists of the lawyers who comprise the rest of the criminal justice system--judges, defense attorneys, and prosecutors. They do not as a rule sue each other, and are mostly immune from suits for any of their official actions; cops are not. And since officers are the only ones in the system who are not lawyers, lawsuits are vague and mysterious to us, not something we carry around in brief cases ready to use to threaten somebody. Cops are definitely not club members.

Recently, Barbara Berry of Hollywood, Florida, filed a $50,000 claim against the state and a judge for failing to sentence a convicted "habitual offender" to a twenty-year prison term as mandated by law. While he should have been behind bars, the offender killed Ms. Berry's eight-year-old daughter, Lisa. Lisa's nude, battered body was found floating in a canal four days after she was abducted from a bowling alley. Her killer was convicted and sentenced to death, but the state dismissed the civil claim filed by her mother. The judge did not do what he legally should have done--and Lisa died because of it. The judge, however, was immune from suits.

I'm not saying officers should not be held accountable; we should. But, we should also enjoy the same immunity from suits as do lawyers and judges. Or they should enjoy the same protection as we do--none.

We're beginning to smile more. Congratulations to the U.S. Supreme Court for their recent simple, straightforward, common sense rulings on MIRANDA and the exclusionary rule.

Next time you encounter an officer--smile. If he or she smiles back, it's a sign the officer is either a rookie, or knows someone or something the rest of us don't.

The author is a twenty-eight-year-old training officer on the Lake Worth (Fla.) Police Department.

Helping hands gets tax-exempt status

Helping Hands for the Elderly, Inc. has received its tax-exempt status from the Internal Revenue Service. Those donating contributions to the organization may deduct the cost of such from their income tax.

Directors of the organization have purchased a building directly behind Westernman Drug on 10th Street and are in the process of clearing it out and remodeling for a Senior Citizens Center. The meals on wheels program will also operate out of the center and plans for the kitchen are already underway. The center will serve all the senior citizens in the community with meals, activities, games and hobbies.

Cathy Reavis is president of the board of directors. Louis Hall is vice president; Rachel Hall serves as secretary and Beth Boyd is treasurer. Other board members include Robert Flores, Elma Buckner, Eva Ramirez, Lupe Galvan, Savannah Wright, Agnes Payne, and Margaret Sharp.

The Helping Hands For The Elderly will be hosting a benefit hamburger supper Friday, November 9. The proceeds will go to benefit the Senior Citizens Center located in the old Jerry's Appliance building.

Kickoff time for the supper will be 5:00 p.m. at the Civic Center and will continue until 7:00 p.m. after which time, your support can be extended further by attending the Ozona Lion vs. Sonora Broncos game.

Your support will be appreciated. So, see you at the benefit for our senior citizens at the Civic Center.

violence involves the entire family

Family violence is just that. It cannot be understood simply as violence toward women and/or children. It involves all members of the family.

The County Liaison from the Family Shelter will be available in Ozona at the Courthouse on November 15, from 10 to 3, to talk to anyone interested in learning more about the dynamics of violence, and the Shelter. Also, the Shelter Liaison is looking for volunteers in Crockett County for more information, call 655-5774.

The longer that violence continues over weeks and months (and even years), the more serious and dangerous it becomes. Call the Family Shelter for help, at 655-5774. You may call collect.
