League to offer local address books

A new project of the Ozona Womens League this year is the "Ozona and Crockett County Address Book." It is a compilation of the mailing addresses of all residents in the county. Members took various public lists of residents and put them together to make the final list.

Jane Richardson and Belinda Wilkins were co-chairmen of the project and put in many hours preparing the book for print. The book will be a handy guide for all households and businesses in the area.

It will go on sale Tuesday, November 20, at the Ozona Womens League Bazaar. Thereafter, it will be available through League members and various retail establishments in the community. Numerous businesses contributed to the printing costs of the book and proceeds will be used to support various community projects in Ozona.

Emergency loan deadline coming up

The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) office in Eden can accept emergency loan applications until December 4, 1984, for losses caused by the 1983 drought Crockett County, Ben T. Rucker, Jr., County Supervisor, said today. Crockett County is serviced by the Eden FmHA office. Applications for 1984 losses will be accepted in the near future.

Farmers and ranchers may be eligible for loans up to 80% of their actual losses.

For farmers unable to obtain credit from private commercial lenders, the interest rate on the first $100,000 borrowed is 5 percent. The interest rate for the balance of the loan is 8 percent.

Farmers who are able to obtain commercial credit but want to borrow from the government agency must pay an interest rate of 13.75 percent.

The FmHA office in Eden is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and is located in the ASCS Building, telephone (915)869-3941.

Jr. High Cubs end season winning

The Ozona 7th Grade Cubs finished out their season Thursday night with a win over the Sonora Colts. The 19-8 victory gave the Cubs a 7 and 1 record.

Against the Colts, Lalo Rodriguez once again carried the load for the Cubs. Rodriguez scored the first touchdown on a 5 yard run behind excellent blocking from Mark Fierro and Bobby Calvert. The next score came on a spectacular 79 yard pass play from Chris Denman to George Ybarra to give the Cubs a 12-0 lead at halftime. After the break, the Cubs got on the scoreboard once again as Roger Martinez blasted in from 4 yards out. The extra point was added by Lalo Rodriguez.

Defensively the Cubs have been tough all year, allowing only three scores since the first game. Middle linebacker, Mark Fierro, led the team in tackles all year long. But, team defense was really the key to the Cubs success.

H. O. Hoover wins contest

In a close race, H.O. Hoover bested Wyna Boyd in the football contest for the week. They both missed two games going into the tie-breaker. Hoover guessed nearest to the correct score by only one point, so for the first time this season we almost had a real tie.

The contest will continue through football season, although the season is over locally and basketball takes over. Entry blanks may be found on the sports page sponsored by local merchants. This week's page introduces the basketball schedule locally.

Bazaar Project

A special project of members of the Ozona Womens League is the Ozona and Crockett County Address Book which will be offered Tuesday at the annual bazaar. League members have put a great deal of time and effort into the project which lists the names and addresses of all Ozona and Crockett County residents. Co-chairmen Jane Richardson and Belinda Wilkins show off the attractive and useful books.

Precinct 1 votes are impounded by judge

Following a record turnout of Crockett County voters in the November 6, general election, 112th District Judge Brock Jones, Jr. ordered the Precinct 1 ballot boxes impounded. Apparently there was some irregularity in the absentee box, in that there were more ballots counted than voters who signed the voting sheet.

Judge Jones released the ballots for canvassing to the Crockett County Commissioners Court Tuesday morning, and the election was canvassed by the court Tuesday afternoon. All ballots printed have been accounted for, according to Crockett County Judge A.O. Fields, indicating a miscount in the absentee box.

The race in question seems to be that of County Commissioner, Precinct 1, where Jess C. Marley, a former county commissioner, challenged Sostenes DeHoyos, the democratic incumbent, on the Republican ticket. DeHoyos, according to returns issued, beat Marley 337 to 291. The County Clerk issued 225 ballots for precinct 1 in the absentee box. Thirteen ballots were not used, eight were mailed out and not returned, leaving a total of 204. The count in the absentee voting gave DeHoyos 114 votes and Marley 125, and two write-in votes were recorded for a total of 241.

All election materials were returned to Ozona National Bank after the canvass, where they await further action. Most likely, a recount will be ordered.

In other races, Crockett County voters joined the rest of the nation in giving the Reagan-Bush ticket the almost 2 to 1 vote of 1,094 to 589 for Mondale-Ferraro. In the race for the U.S. Senate, Republican Phil Gramm got 1051 Crockett County votes to 560 for Lloyd Doggett.

Republican Tom Loeffler, U.S. Representative, District 21, received a resounding vote of confidence from local voters, burying his democratic opponent Joe Sullivan 1103 to 484. Mack Wallace was returned as Railroad Commissioner. Local voters gave Wallace 840 votes to 642 for his Republican opponent John T. Henderson. For chief justice, Supreme Court, John L. Hill, the democrat, polled 892 votes to 604 for his republican opponent John L. Bates.

In the only other contested race for Court of Criminal Appeals, Sam Houston Clinton, the democrat, polled 826 votes for place one, while his republican opponent got 542 votes.

Gerald Geistweidt, the republican state representative for District 67, was unopposed, but still received 860 votes. All other local and district races were unopposed, and the democratic incumbents were returned to office. Paul H. Shacklette ran as a write-in candidate for county surveyor and received 59 votes, he also was unopposed.

The amendments fared locally as they did state-wide. Voters gave Amendment 1 the nod by 933 to 319, to provide state banks the same rights and privileges as national banks. Proposition 2, the educational amendment, passed here 919 to 374.

Crockett County voters passed Amendment 3 by a margin of 847 to 432,

New rates for WTU up monthly bills

West Texas Utilities Co.'s new rates will go into effect late this month or in early December, but most customers will hardly notice the difference.

The Public Utility Commission of Texas issued a final order Friday approving a settlement agreement reached earlier by WTU, the PUC staff and several intervening cities.

The compromise agreement includes a $12.4 million annual increase in base rates and a $13.3 million decrease in fuel expense charges. The net effect is an apparent revenue cut, but it does not mean customers bills will automatically go down nor that WTU will lose money.

In fact, for residential customers the annual effect will be an increase of about 4.36 percent. Their bills and those of commercial customers, will decrease slightly in the winter (November through April) and increase in the summer peak usage months. This means a modest profit for the utility.

As for the fuel cost recovery, fuel expenses, by law, are simply passed through to customers. The fuel cost factor, or rate, is set for a year at a time, but eventually is adjusted so that the company does not gain or lose money.

Under the new rates, a residential customer using 600 kilowatt-hours per month and who does not have electric heating will pay $47.42 in the winter and $52.91 in the summer. Currently that customer pays $47.50 and $48.63, respectively.

WTU initially sought a $30.8 million annual revenue increase in the case filed this past June. The main reason cited for the increase was the Company's construction program, which includes the new Oklaunion Power Station, a coal-fired plant being built near Vernon. The plant is slated for completion in December 1986.

Hapless Lions in final loss

By Gary Davis

Ozona's final chances of winning a district 7AAA game were erased last Friday as the Sonora Broncos took the 1-10 Championship with 35-7 win over the Lions. The loss ended the Ozona season and gave the team a 1-8-1 record and a 0-4-1 district record. The Broncos ended their 1984 campaign in third place behind the Ballinger Bearcats and the Colorado City Wolves. The Broncos finished the season with a 3-2 district record and a 7-3 season record.

With 4:28 remaining in the 1st quarter, Sonora's senior halfback Joe Mike Noriega ran 19 yards on a 53 yard Bronco drive from their own 47 yard line for the score. Senior, Scott Miller's extra point attempt was good. Less than two minutes later, on a 64-yard drive, Miller connected with Junior wingback, Esau Ramirez for a 64-yard touchdown pass. Miller kicked the extra point and put the Broncos ahead of the Lions 14-0 at the end of the first quarter. Late in the 2nd period Sonora struck paydirt again. Miller completed a 74-yard pass to Ramirez on a 91-yard drive. Miller's extra-point was good. In the second half, Miller and Ramirez combined once again on a 43-yard touchdown pass. The PAT was good by Miller. Sonora's last score came when Noriega burst the goal line from 1 yard out with 8:34 left in the final period. Miller kicked the PAT.

Ozona's only score occurred on a 72-yard drive. With 2:42 left in the game, Ozona Junior Harvey Fierro hit Diron Holt with an 18-yard pass. Edward Borrego kicked the point after touchdown.

Holt and Senior Al Ramirez each grabbed 61-yards in pass receptions. Chuy Hernandez caught four passes for 33 yards, Harvey Fierro had 28 yards, J.B. Green had 14 yards and Butch Gonzales had 10.

Fierro completed 14 of his 24 passes for 115 yards and two interceptions. Steve Sanchez completed 6 of 9 passes for 82 yards and one interception.

Chuy Hernandez, with 70 yards on 18 carries, led the Lions in rushing. Behind Hernandez was Butch Gonzalez with 9 yards and Matt Gutierrez with 7.

Sonora was led by Noriega who had 72 yards, John David Martinez-62 yards, Victor Lira-42 yards and Edward Mata-27 yards.

The Lions will say goodbye to Seniors Al Ramirez, David Delgado, Joe Marshall, Danny Moran, Matt Gutierrez, Raul Delgado, Mario Arredondo, George Guerra, and Edward Borrego. Also leaving are Raul Delgado and J.R. Garcia. Student Trainers. The team will have many underclassmen joining the ranks next year which should provide for a solid team.

District 7AAA representatives Ballinger and Colorado City will both be in action this weekend in San Angelo Stadium in San Angelo. Ballinger, the district champion will play the district 8AAA runner up, Brady Bulldogs Friday night. Colorado City will play Gatesville on Saturday afternoon.

New DPS sergeant for local area

Sgt. Kenneth L. Hailey, 28, is the new Department of Public Safety area supervisor for Crockett, Sutton, Schleicher and Irion counties. He recently moved to Ozona from Longview. Sgt. Hailey replaces Sgt. Tom Sharp who was transferred.

SGT. HAILEY

Sgt. Hailey moved here with his wife, Roxanne, and two daughters, Brooke, 5, and Amber, 1.

Sgt. Hailey is a native of Longview. He graduated from the University of Texas at Tyler with a BS degree and from the DPS Academy in Austin. He is looking forward to living and working in West Texas, where he will supervise nine highway patrolmen.

TV NEWS: MYTH AND REALITY

By Edwin Feulner
Television has come a long way since its black and white beginnings. But despite the obvious technical advances, the change appears to be for the worse.

While the prime-time "soaps" like "Dallas," "Falcon Crest," and "Dynasty" provide the sleaze-tease network officials feel viewers want, most Americans expect more than high-tech glitz when Dan Rather comes on the screen. But tv news is not what it was when John Cameron Swayze and Edward R. Murrow delivered the daily report.

A two-hour taped interview when exposed to the editing process is reduced to a few seconds of subjective mumbling that may or may not reflect what the individual said. The artificial world of the cutaway becomes a substitute for reality. Issues as complex as tax policy or nuclear disarmament are reduced to thirty seconds of talking heads and visual mush. That's the nature of the beast.

But what happens when that beast gets out of control? Ask General William C. Westmoreland, one of its victims.

It all began when General Westmoreland agreed to be interviewed by CBS reporter Mike Wallace.

A few months later, in January 1982, CBS television aired a controversial documentary "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception," accusing Westmoreland, former commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, of conspiring to deceive the U.S. public and government officials about the size of North Vietnam's fighting force in the year leading up to the January 1968 Tet Offensive.

In his new book, A Matter of Honor (Macmillan, 1984), Don Kowet provides a fascinating inside look at the making of the CBS documentary, which led to the largest libel suit in the history of American media — Westmoreland v. CBS. The case is now being tried in New York with the conservative Capital Legal Foundation, a public-interest law firm representing Westmoreland. Kowet has been following the story for years and co-authored the TV Guide cover story which first questioned the fairness and accuracy of the CBS report.

According to Kowet's description, the techniques used to make the documentary are suspect at best. To support their accusations of a cover-up by Westmoreland, Kowet says a CBS producer juxtaposed statements made by Westmoreland in two, separate interviews regarding the enemy count. In 1967 on "Meet the Press," Westmoreland said the enemy was infiltrating South Vietnam at a rate of some 5,500 to 6,000 a month, while fourteen years later, in the Wallace interview, he cited a figure of 20,000.

What viewers didn't know was that the "Meet the Press" film clip was deliberately edited to delete a qualifying statement in which Westmoreland added that the North Vietnamese had the capability of "stepping up" the troop movements. As a result of the discrepancy in the two figures, CBS alleged that the general had deliberately deceived the American people.

When CBS conducted an internal investigation after the TV Guide story appeared, network officials admitted the news team had strayed from normal news practices — but they still upheld the integrity of the documentary.

The outcome of the $120-million libel suit is being watched with more than passing interest by the journalism fraternity, whose skillful hatchets had struck many public figures before William Westmoreland.

In the meantime, CBS has hired a New York public relations firm to attack Kowet's book, as if that will erase the stain of journalistic impropriety that got the network into this mess in the first place.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS
By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—The Lone Star State is once again a two-party state, and this time it's probably for keeps.

Last week's Reagan-Gramm sweep brought with it some 14 turnovers in the Texas House of Representatives for the Republicans, two more state senators, and numerous sheriffs, county judges and other local officials across the state.

The new GOP members of the Texas Legislature bring the Republican bloc totals to 52 in the House and nine in the Senate.

Liberal Democrats were seemingly wiped out in many areas, including Austin, and a good many conservative Democrats fell victim to the coastal tidal wave which originated in the White House and spread from sea to shinning sea.

Although Reagan's popularity overwhelmed the nation, the Republican gains in other states were not near as heavy as in Texas. Good Democratic public officials thrown out with the wash in congressional races included Jack Hightower of Vernon, Bill Patman of Ganado and Dan Kubiak of Bryan-College Station.

While some political observers attributed the sweep to an overreaction on the part of independents tired of liberal dogma, no one contested the probability that the GOP will two years from now field an organized slate at the county and city levels.

Key Leadership

That very prospect has a divided Texas Democratic Party worried. Like the proverbial donkey that had to be hit with a two-by-four, the Democrats—conservatives, moderates and liberals alike—are very concerned about their party's future.

The liberals, who only a few days ago were calling the shots for the party, have fallen from grace, including Lloyd Doggett and his top backer, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower. Doggett won his hometown—Austin—by an insignificant margin, but lost two of his local lieutenants in state house races there. Already Doggett's negative campaign style and liberal philosophy are blamed for the resounding defeat by those eager to replace him with Democratic leadership.

Compared to Reagan's leadership, which promised opportunity for the next four years, Doggett's attack on Gramm paled. And many Democrats angrily remember it was only last spring that Doggett leveled a barrage of personal attacks against Bob Krueger and Kent Hance in the primary.

Moderation Next?

If this were a season for polarization in which moderates of both parties found no comfortable ground, will the pendulum swing as they both struggle to commandeer the middle ground?

That middle ground, so commonly labeled as conservative Democrats, is actually made up of a large number of middle-class independents: ticket splitters. They provide the weight behind the pendulum swing, and last week they swung heavily behind the GOP in Texas. It may be that two years from now, as the parties vie for the slate of statewide offices, that this group will be wooed as never before, bringing both parties more to the middle.

Party Leaders

The Texas Republican Party Chairman, George Strake, predicted the victory has begun to realign the electorate to allow Republicans to carry the conservative banner in this state.

Strake left no doubts as to his intent to target statewide Democratic officials for defeat, and a full slate of Republicans, well-financed and with '84 momentum, will probably appear in '86 elections.

Texas Democrats aren't exactly rolling over to play dead. Even before the election results cooled off, Gov. Mark White told reporters it was time for a "new foundation" in the Texas Democratic party, a statement of no great genius.

But White, himself, is considered by many of his own party to be one of the most vulnerable of Democrats, especially since he endorsed a tax hike last summer to pay for education reforms.

Also considered highly vulnerable is Hightower, whose base is almost identical to Doggett's and whose speeches are grating the nerves of real farmers and ranchers, and Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, a feisty, unapologetic liberal who faces trial in February on commercial bribery charges. Considered somewhat safe are Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Land Commissioner Garry Mauro and Treasurer Ann Richards because of their records of production. Much depends on how Mauro and Richards interact with the conservative wing.

Future Prospects

One thing the Republicans lack is a large stable of proven public servants, those who have worked their way up the ladder, but they certainly have a good new crop now and who knows how far the tidal wave will carry.

For '86 campaigning, the Democrats are already talking of bringing up Congressman Kent Hance of Lubbock to soothe conservatives, gratify West Texas and replace the lost liberal elite.

Then, too, Democrats still have two of the nation's top fundraisers in Hobby and U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, both conservatives.

The Texas Legislature goes into session in a little more than two months, and then next June the behind scenes campaigning begins anew. The '86 season should be fascinating for voters.

Plant oil not practical substitute for diesel fuel

The value of substituting plant oils for diesel fuel has been laid to rest by Texas A&M University agricultural economists—unless the price of diesel skyrockets.

Recent articles in popular farming literature have called attention to the possibilities of using plant oils such as sunflower, soybean and peanut for diesel fuel as a potentially inexpensive energy source. But an energy report written by the economists and published by Texas A&M's Center for Energy and Mineral Resources indicates plant oils are not economical as substitutes for the fossil fuel.

Even under the most optimistic conditions, No. 2 diesel from plant oils will cost from 80 cents to $1.20 more than regular diesel, according to the report by Drs. Ronald Griffin, Ronald Laceywell, Glenn Collins and Hao-Chun Chang.

Seventy-four attended the West Texas Utilities Christmas programs which Darolyn Moore presented November 8. Christmas ideas included many beverage, microwave, cookie, cake and craft ideas. Additional recipe booklets will be available at the local West Texas Utilities office after Thanksgiving. Energas Christmas recipes are available at the Energas Utilities office and the County Extension Office.

Sixty-six 4-Hers attended the Intermediate 4-H Club hotdog supper and hayride at Erby Chandler's, November 5. The Junior High 4-H Club met the same evening and learned about method demonstrations. The group of 4-Hers became actively involved in presenting mini-demonstrations to their peers, during the Garden Club meets at Perner home

The Ozona Garden Club met November 12, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Perner with a Thanksgiving dinner. Mrs. Joey Pierce and Mrs. Douglas Bean were hostesses.

After the meal, the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Bill Mason. Mrs. Mason gave a report on the District VIII Fall meeting she had attended in San Angelo last week. Mrs. Steve Kenley gave a monthly plant study on Irises.

Mrs. Mike Ledoux introduced Ms. Peggy Sharp, owner of "Peggy's Pebble Plants" of San Angelo and Abilene who gave an interesting and informative program on "Hydroculture".

Others attending were Mrs. Boyd Baker, Mrs. Joe Bean, Mrs. Louis Hall, Mrs. J.W. Howell, Mrs. J.B. Miller, Mrs. Mike Miller, Mrs. Beecher Montgomery, Mrs. Tom Stokes, Mrs. Glenn Sutton, Mrs. O.D. West and Mrs. Charles Williams.

Guests included Mrs. Ken Harrison, Mrs. Nelson Lanham, Mrs. Roy Pearson and Ms. Alma Corbell of San Angelo.

meeting. The Senior High Club met and enjoyed Lane Scott's presentation on computers.

Many of the 4-H foods and nutrition project groups are in the process of completing their Foods and Nutrition projects. Deadline for menu, recipe, and project record forms is Monday, November 26, 5:00 p.m. at the County Extension Office.

As Christmas approaches, Christmas candies for parties become more popular. Microwaving candy takes less time and is less likely to fail than conventional candies. Your favorite recipes can be used for microwaving since ingredients and temperatures remain the same. Recipes cooked on high need to be stirred every 2-3 minutes until the sugar dissolves to decrease chances of crystallization. The major problems of converting recipes is boil overs. Cutting the recipe in half and using a larger container is appropriate.

Using built-in microwave probes is generally not recommended because probes are not designed for extremely high temperatures, which candy requires. Always read your microwave manual before experimenting with candies.

Flashy Peanut Brittle

1 cup raw peanuts
1 cup granulated sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
Dash salt
1 teaspoon margarine
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon vanilla
Place peanuts, sugar, syrup and salt in 4-quart measuring cup. Cook 4 minutes and stir. Cook until mixture reaches 290°, about 13 minutes. Add margarine and cook to 400°F. Remove from microwave. Stir, then add soda and vanilla. Pour onto buttered foil. When cool, break apart; or when slightly cool, pull apart.

For more details on obtaining a microwave candy thermometer and recipe booklet, call me at the County Extension Office at 392-2721.

Mrs. Salvant speaks to Womans Forum

The Ozona Woman's Forum met November 6, in the Hospitality Room of the Ozona National Bank.

Mrs. Pleas Childress introduced Joan Salvant, the honored guest for the meeting. Mrs. Salvant had done the pieces of art for the Ozona National Bank last year, and had generously given the prints from the original paintings to the Crockett County Museum for a fund raising project. She carried her generosity even further by returning to autograph the prints sold during the afternoon party.

Mrs. Salvant gave a brief resume of her work which consists largely of architectural projects. She expressed special interest in this particular area of Texas with its broad spectrum of subject matter.

The walls of the party room were used to display a number of paintings by the artist, and the tea table with its autumn floral arrangement complimented the setting.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Bill Carson, Mrs. James Childress, Mrs. W.T. Stokes, Mrs. Fred Hagelstein and Mrs. Marshall Montgomery.

Twenty-three club members and numerous guests were present to admire and acquire works of art by Joan Salvant.

The Ozona Woman's Forum and the citizens of Crockett County greatly appreciate the artist's contribution to the cultural interests of Ozona.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

Since the welcome showers we have had, our country is beautiful and fresh looking again, so it is a joy to drive around and see it all.

This should be a busy month for you that garden and are planning to plant trees or shrubs. If you want to add character to your house and landscape, plant a tree or better yet plant several. I believe trees and plants grow off better here if they are given this chance to form a root system before very cold weather, and are ready to start new growth before the hot spring days.

Don't just plant any tree-plant one that will be in good scale with the size of your house and lot. Also choose one of the improved maples, oaks and other species that we are accustomed to planting and do well here. These shapelier, often more brilliant in fall color, and those that flower, bloom more beautifully than their run-of-the-mill relative-yet cost only a few more dollars.

You can speed up growth and survival living by following these five rules.

1. Buy either balled and burlapped or container-grown trees.

2. Dig a generous hole and plant your super tree no deeper than it grew in the nursery. Loosen burlap when placed in the hole.

3. Refill the hole with a mixture of two-thirds good top soil and one-third peat moss. Tramp the soil down as you go along. When half-filled, soak with water to collapse harmful air pockets around the roots. Finish filling holes. Stake the tree securely.

4. Prune back the trees side branches if nursery man has not done so all ready. Use a fertilizer rich in phosphorus to stimulate root growth.

5. Water once a week in dry periods in its first growing season. There is a splendid article in Nov. Southern Living you may be interested in if you have a great deal of shade. Try this beautiful evergreen, Japanese Aucuba to brighten your garden.

DUPLICATE BRIDGE

Mrs. Joe Friend and Mrs. Pete North were tied for first place with Mr. and Mrs. Evert White in Duplicate Bridge Club play Saturday afternoon at the Country Club.

In play Sunday first place was won by Mrs. Clay Adams and Mrs. Gene Lilly. Second place went to Mrs. Gene Williams and Mrs. Jack Williams.

FRIDAY BRIDGE

Mrs. Oscar Kost was hostess for the Friday Bridge Club in her home last week. She also won high for the afternoon.

Winning second high was Mrs. Sherman Taylor. Mrs. Eddie Arnold won the bingo.

Others playing were Mrs. Joe Friend, Mrs. O.D. West, Mrs. Sterling Baker, Mrs. Sidney Millspaugh, and Mrs. J.B. Miller.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED. Angenette Livingston of Stephenville and Lt. Jody E. Naron of Fort Rucker, Alabama exchanged wedding vows at 10:00 a.m. on Sunday, October 28 in the Rose Garden of Botanic Gardens in Fort Worth. The bride's brother, Rev. Travis Wayne Livingston officiated the double ring ceremony. Angenette is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Travis Livingston of Stephenville. Jody is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Naron of Santa Anna, formerly of Ozona. Jody, a graduate of Ozona High School, graduated from Tarleton State University in August with a degree in Agricultural Education. Angie was a Junior at Tarleton State University majoring in Math. They will be at home in Fort Rucker, Alabama.

Pensioners may owe taxes Internal Revenue cautions

Pension income may be either fully or partially taxable, IRS says; and federal income taxes may be withheld from pension payments. Many retirees may find the withholding a convenience that can spare them penalties when they file their federal income tax returns. Withholding is not compulsory, and any person can apply to their payor for exemption. However, without tax withholding, a retiree who owes $400 or more for 1984 may be liable for an estimated tax penalty. A retiree who chooses not to have tax withheld from pension payments may pay quarterly estimated payments to avoid the penalty. Additional information can be found in Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax," which is available free from the Internal Revenue Service.

The Scientists Tell Me... Best Range Management Must Be Tailor-Made

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

Ranchers, working to recover from a drought and several years of other economic adversities, are looking for ways to improve their range management that will speed their economic recovery and perhaps avoid in the future some of the problems they've encountered in the past.

"Best" range management cannot be generalized, according to range scientists involved in this area of research for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, (TAES), because natural, economic, and human resources are so highly variable among ranching enterprises that no two are exactly alike.

However, there are a number of fundamentals that should be common to good range management on any ranch, according to Wayne T. Hamilton, researcher in range management for the Experiment Station.

"For example, consider the related goals of soil protection and water retention," suggests Hamilton.

"The soil depth present on ranges when we start operating a ranch could be the most we will have in a lifetime. Since the potential for production diminishes with soil loss, management must provide for soil stability to preserve an opportunity to produce at an opportunity to produce at the highest level possible.

"The best way to accomplish soil protection is with the plants that occupy the range. Vegetation provides the retardance and 'opportunity time' needed for water to percolate from the surface into the root zone, to support future plant growth."

Regarding "vegetation goals," Hamilton points out that on most ranges there is a wide variation of possible plant composition, from near pristine or "climax" vegetation reflecting high successional stages, to the bottom end of range retrogression where woody plants and/or annual and weak perennial herbaceous plants dominate the vegetation.

One example Hamilton cites is of much rangeland, once dominated by desirable grasses and forbs, and now virtually covered by mesquite, prickly pear, broomweed, milkweed, etc.

What vegetation should be and what management should do to influence change depends on many factors including range site potential, current condition, technically feasible alternatives, economic feasibility, kinds of livestock, wildlife habitat requirements, and management objectives. These are some of the variables each landowner must define.

While the natural limitations of climate and soils, and differences in management goals will cause the view of "best" range to vary, there are some factors that should be common to any quality range.

For instance, the range management program should produce the quantity of forage needed to allow economical use within management objectives. It should also provide the stability to be a dependable forage supply in times of stress, as well as in normal years, according to Hamilton.

"A well-managed range should also provide the nutritional quality in the forage to meet animal needs for economical levels of production. In many areas, ranchers feel that these three requirements emphasize the need for a balance of grasses (Quantity), shrubs (stability), and forbs (quality) where all three are present in the vegetation composition.

"Vegetation goals should be matched to the range site potential," Hamilton says, "and the specific plants that will grow on unique areas of the range. Identification of range sites also allows us access to site descriptions which provide information on soils, vegetation, and recommendations for initial stocking rates, based on current condition.

"Measuring range condition by range sites, or to put it another way, determining where your range stands in relation to its natural potential vegetation, provides a basis for estimating the degree of improvement you can achieve through management.

"Additionally, this approach allows identification of the primary limitations to improved production, such as excessive woody plants. Site descriptions also contain helpful information on the relative value of the vegetation for different kinds of livestock and wildlife.

"On many range sites the same soil is capable of growing greatly different plants, depending on the influence of management, and secondary succession can be used to improve the relative percentage of those species that provide the best use of the range.

"Such replacement of low-value plants with ones of higher value requires being able to identify plants that are important occupants of range sites and managing grazing to insure that the desired species have an opportunity to compete successfully.

"It may also require brush management in order to obtain the opportunity to make possible such improvements through grazing management.

"Woody plants are also subject to management that influences their desirability and utility. In many instances woody plants become decadent, producing low amounts of new annual growth within reach of browsing animals.

"Brush management may also be used as a means to modify woody plant stature to increase accessibility and nutritive value to livestock and wildlife.

"Therefore, what grasses (and forbs) and, in the case of woody plants, which species and how accessible and valuable they are as a diet component are important considerations of good range management.

"Every landowner is conscious of many of these factors but most successful range management requires a consciousness of all of them, used in full awareness of the individual economic and climatic factors.

"In other words, best range management plans must be tailor-made to fit the ranch and rancher," Hamilton concluded.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION
THE STATE OF TEXAS

TO: T.B.A. Partnership, Ora Boss, Gary Adolf, and Castleberry Drilling Service, Defendants in the cause herein described:

Each of you are hereby commanded to appear by filing a Written Answer to the Plaintiff's Petition at or before 10:00 a.m. of the first Monday after the expiration of 42 days from the date of the issuance of this Citation same being Monday, the 17 day of December, 1984, at or before 10:00 a.m. before the Honorable 112th District Court of Crockett County, Texas at the Courthouse of said County in Ozona, Texas.

Said Plaintiff's Petition was filed in said Court on the first day of January, 1984 in this cause, numbered 4646 on the docket of said Court, and styled, Halliburton Company, Plaintiff vs. Good Earth Energy, Inc., Et Al, Defendants. The names of the parties to the cause are as follows:

Halliburton Company, as Plaintiffs and Good Earth Energy, Inc., Merit Gas & Oil Company, T.B.A. Partnership, composed of Daniel B. Thomas, Ora Boss, Gary Adolf, Individually and as partners, Rye Supply Company, Inc., Elcon Trucking, Inc., Castleberry Drilling Service, Ira Smith, Garrison Contractors, Inc., Western Company of North America, Bell Petroleum Surveys, Inc., AWS Well Servicing Company and Shoreline Supply Company are Defendants. A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows:

This suit is brought by Plaintiffs Halliburton Company on sworn account and to foreclose liens on certain Oil, Gas and Mineral Leases described as the Scull Leases covering all of Survey 5, Abstract 1755, in Block No. 1, G.C. & S.F. Ry. Co. Survey and Survey 7, Abstract 1756, in Block 1 of the G.C. & S.F. Ry. Co. Survey, all in Crockett County, Texas. T.B.A. Partnership, Ora Boss and Gary Adolf, individually and as partners under the partnership known as T.B.A. Partnership are all purported owners of an undivided working interest in said Scull Leases and their interest or interests are subject to foreclosure. Defendant, Castleberry Drilling Service is asserting some right, title or interest in said oil, gas and mineral leasehold estates, which Plaintiff contends is inferior to Plaintiff's liens.

If this Citation is not served within ninety (90) days after the date of its issuance, it shall be returned unreserved.

The officer executing this process shall promptly execute the same according to law and make due return as the law directs.

Volunteers are important to 4-H program

The average 4-H volunteer donates 220 hours per year in preparing for and teaching youth--thus for each hour the salaried staff member spends in 4-H a volunteer spends 12 hours. He or she drives 300 to 400 mi. for 4-H in a personally-owned car and spends $40 to $60 on teaching materials. Estimated value of the total time volunteers devote to 4-H nationwide plus their out-of-pocket expenses is about $1 billion annually.

A dollar value, however, cannot be placed on the great impact 4-H volunteer leaders have on the lives of 4-H'ers not only in their projects and activities, but as they pursue careers chosen often as a result of their project experiences. Volunteer leaders in middle management roles are making it possible for professional staff to devote more time to their administrative responsibilities for conducting Extension work in their counties.

Change cooking habits to protect family

A change in your cooking methods may help protect you and your family against heart disease, hypertension and other health problems, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Mary K. Sweeten.

"Lowering the percentage of fat in the diet appears to be one of the major keys to a more healthful lifestyle," she explains.

To adapt your favorite recipe, start by cutting fat by a third or a half.

For example, in a casserole calling for 6 tablespoons of margarine, try 3 or 4. Or if a muffin recipe suggests a cup of oil, try ¾ of a cup. If that works, use only ½ the next time around.

You should experiment, cutting the fat in cakes can be difficult, but you should have success with most casseroles and quick bread recipes.

When recipes call for onions, green peppers, mushrooms or other vegetables, be sauteed in oil or butter, you can often cut the amount of fat in half or leave it out entirely. Just add several tablespoons of water or broth. Then steam in a covered pot.

Sweeten says you don't even need fat to make an acceptable roux or gravy. Brown flour in a slow oven or in a heavy pan on top of the stove, stirring constantly. Cool, and then slowly add cold water or broth.

After it is smoothly blended, stir the mixture constantly over medium heat until it comes to a boil and thickens. You can make a white sauce or pudding the same way by adding cold milk or fruit juice directly to flour or corn starch.

Another way to reduce the fat in your diet is to trim the fat from meat edges and remove the skin from poultry. Also, broil or bake meat on a rack so that the fat drips off.

Brown ground beef and then drain well in a colander before you add other ingredients. Chill soups overnight and remove hardened fat.

The nutritionist says low fat plain yogurt works well as a substitute for sour cream in cold dips. It can also be used to stretch mayonnaise in coleslaw, tuna and potato salads and dressings. Try half yogurt and half mayonnaise.

Yogurt can also be used in place of sour cream in cooked foods. To keep it from separating and becoming watery, just whisk some flour into it before cooking.

Better still, add the yogurt after removing the cooked food from the stove. If you need extra incentive, Sweeten says to remember that per cup, low fat plain yogurt has only 150 calories, whereas sour cream has more than 450 and mayonnaise more than 1500, mostly from fat.

"You will be surprised at how soon your family will become accustomed to the adapted recipes and may even prefer the new lighter taste and the less heavy feeling after eating," she observes.

"You may have a few flops as you experiment, but the successes will soon start multiplying. Then, be sure to write down the alterations so you can do it again," says Sweeten.

Mrs. Arledge tours Europe

Sue Arledge returned last week from a five week tour of France, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Holland, England, Scotland and Wales. Highlights of the trip included attending the Passion Play in Oberammergau, Germany, mountain hiking in the Grindewald glacier area in Switzerland, the Loch Tay area of Scotland, Wales and the Isle of Anglesy, the Cotswolds in England, and while in London, being a spectator of the royal procession with Queen Elizabeth and Prince Phillip and President and Mrs. Mitterand of France on the occasion of their State visit to England.

Sue was accompanied by her sister Betty Lou Winslow of Arlington, Virginia and her son W.O. Mills, III of Dallas.

Mail and phone order protection

Thousands of Texans are getting a head start on Christmas by placing mail or phone orders for gifts now so they will get here in time for the holidays.

Most of these consumers will be satisfied with the merchandise they order, but some will be disappointed. And whether they can get any satisfaction for their complaints or not will depend on how they placed their orders, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist Nancy L. Granovsky.

Many mail-order companies now offer toll-free numbers for easy ordering. "Using the telephone may seem more convenient than ordering by mail," she says, "but it's also riskier, since phone orders are not covered by the Federal Trade Commission's mail-order rule."

The mail-order rule - which applies only to orders placed through the mail, or shipped through the mail - requires companies to ship your order within the time they promise, or within 30 days after they receive your order, Granovsky explains. So if you order gifts by mail in October, you can reasonably sure they will arrive in time for Christmas.

If the company must delay shipment, the mail order laws require that you be notified and allowed to either give your consent, or cancel your order for a full refund, she adds.

When you order by phone, you aren't covered by this rule and you assume responsibility for merchandise that is not delivered or is delivered late, cautions the home economist. So television ads that say "allow four to six weeks for delivery" may not make good on their promise.

If you receive unsatisfactory merchandise, you can ask the company for a refund, just as customers who order over the phone can. But mail order customers can also look to the post office for assistance if the company does not satisfy their complaints, notes Granovsky.

Since not every complaint results in an investigation and not all investigations result in refunds, the best policy for consumers is to be careful, whether they order by phone or mail, she says.

Before placing any order, consider the company. An established, well-known company is likely to be one that satisfies most of its consumers.

Read the description of the product very carefully. Words like "jumbo," "giant," or "miniature," have no legal definition, she emphasizes. That means the advertised "giant bath towels" you order could turn out to be no larger than a face cloth. Instead, look for descriptions that include specific measurements. Some companies offer a toll free number for customer assistance and questions.

Check the return policy of the company. The return policy should be stated somewhere on the order form. If a policy is not mentioned, the company may not have one.

Be sure the return policy is specific, she warns. The promise of an "absolute refund" in the event of dissatisfaction means nothing. You might pay $50 for an item and return it for an "absolute refund" only to have the company reply "absolutely no," or send a return of $1 and say "this is absolutely all you get."

Look for the terms such as "full-refund" or "refund all your money" when reading return policies.

In the event of a problem with mail order company, first try to resolve it with the company, Granovsky says. If that's not possible, write a complaint to the postal inspector if the postal service was involved in the transaction, and then notify the Better Business Bureau in your area.

Crockett Co. E.M.S. meets at Care Center

Crockett County Emergency Medical Services met in the regular monthly meeting Monday, November 12, at 7 p.m. in the dining room of the Care Center.

Those present were Dub and T.K. O'Bryant, Joe and Tina Moran, Doug Meador, Paula Westmoreland, David Cooke, and Billy Kiser all EMTs. Also present were those students presently enrolled in the EMT class being held. They were Gary and Shawn Mitchell, Raymond Borrego, Pat Villalon, Dorothy Lane, Lorelei McMullan, Zoe Green, Elliott Barrera, Dawn Burns and Sybil Hedrick.

An ambulance run involving massive injuries to one person was discussed by the first responders and personnel on the ambulance. For the benefit of the new students, methods of evaluation and treatment for the injured were discussed.

Co-ordinator Dub O'Bryant led the group in a discussion on the importance of the accuracy and completion of the ambulance run forms. These forms must be completed for every run that is made. Times, locations, conditions, complaints, symptoms or description of illnesses are very essential. Very important also are lists of supplies used and their charges. We were very strongly reminded that unless all charges are submitted, no money can be collected therefore making it almost impossible to replenish supplies. Therefore its very important to have payment information such as insurance names and policy numbers, medicare, medicaid, etc.

A committee, including medical director Don L. Carlisle, M.D., coordinators Dub O'Bryant and Brian Henry, Administrator Don Hopkins and board member Lloyd Winkley, is presently working on a personnel policy that will include answers to any questions about dress code, behavior of EMS personnel and the importance of privileged information.

After a short break the group reviewed emergency procedures requiring CPR or cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Everyone present was required to demonstrate CPR skills.

There is a lot to learn during these meetings because not only do past and present EMTs benefit, but new ones, also get a chance to hear and learn about problems they may be faced with in their future as an EMT. At this time everyone who can is encouraged to attend these meetings. The next regular meeting is scheduled for December 10.

DIRECTOR OF ACTIVITIES & SOCIAL CARE

Another nice week of Autumn has passed. It might have been windy on election day, but it wasn't too bad to get out to vote. Those residents making the trip included: Hilda Dysart, Nina Mayfield, Ola Mills, Billie Whately, and Minnie Karr. Voting absentee earlier were residents Tomasa Ramos, Arthur Phillips, Johnny Henderson, and Floy Clare Short. Dorothy Doll assisted our residents with transportation on Tuesday.

Wednesday morning volunteers for ceramics included Ruth Hester, Mattie Cooper, Patti Racher, Marie Pierion and her mother along with Donna Beth and Lynette Davidson. We appreciate all this helpers! Residents participating included: Tomasa Ramos Juana Hernandez, Moriama Perez, Billie Whately, Nina Mayfield, Hilda Dysart, Ola Mills, and Maude Pettit.

Thanks goes to Myrtle Post and Jonsey Williams for sending some good magazines.

This was birthday party week. Those celebrating birthdays this month and thus being honored were Moriama Perez, Floy Clare Short,

Carlisle horse accorded high honor

The Legion of Honor Award, the first level of the Achievement Awards Program, was established by International Arabian Horse Association to recognize those horses who have achieved an outstanding record in the show ring in either Halter Classes, Performance Classes, Competitive and Endurance Trail Rides, or Racing. From among the thousands of horses who have competed in shows throughout the United States and Canada, only 754 horses have qualified for this award as of November 5, 1984.

KM Wedeia, a nine year old mare, owned by Dr. Don and Lee Carlisle, has qualified for the Legion of Honor Award by earning points in 25 shows. KM Wedeia has earned a first place in Hunter Under saddle, a first place in Working Hunter, and a second place in Native Costume. As a trail horse, KM Wedeia has earned 13 first places, and two second places. In Western Pleasure, she has accumulated a reserve champion, a first place, two second places, five third places, and four fourth places. In addition to this record KM Wedeia has earned the 1979 Region 9 Trail Horse Championship title, the 1980 U.S. National Trail Horse Top Ten title, and the 1983 U.S. National Trail Horse Top Ten title.

This is an outstanding show record. Additionally, her 1984 show record includes Region 9 Reserve Champion Purebred Trail and U.S. National Trail Horse Top Ten.

We got a good chuckle from last week's paper during reading. We played rhythm band instruments stored in the closet, we didn't play in the closet.

Thursday morning's beauty shop was manned by Clara Byrd. We surely hope our other volunteers will be back to help her next week.

Ted Turnley held our Bible study this week. Maria Vitela had a large group of workers with her for Spanish Hour of Praise.

Bingo winners of the week included: Juana Hernandez, El Chato dinner for two, Maggie Crawford, gift certificate from The Teacher Store, Bertha Miller, Avon donated by Anna Bell Patrick. Volunteers included Patrick, Dorothy Doll, Angelita Pena, Inez Gutierrez, Elodia Zapata, Marge Morris, Amalia Lumbreras, and our own Alice, Maude, and Nina.

We started sewing our gift dolls on Friday. Volunteers included Dorothy Doll, Lola Rios, Anna Yruegas, and Marge Morris.

Tomasa Ramos and Alice Ross were our only residents going to the Arts and Crafts fair. We made over $38 at the fair. Many thanks to Jackie King, Ruth Hester and Mattie Cooper for helping sell our products.

Left over ceramics from the fair are now on display and have been discounted some. Come by and buy your Christmas gifts from us!

Father's Rights

Congress this past summer passed legislation allowing states to begin withholding pay from fathers' wages when they fall behind in child support payments. Fathers should, of course, pay. But Congress failed to do anything for fathers in this bill.

That's typical of federal and state law all over the country. Fathers have almost no rights--except the right to pay up or go to jail. The lack of paying child support is often a symptom of this unfairness, and it's sometimes justified. But fathers' rights are seldom considered in this connection.

The divorce process tends to oust one parent--usually the father--from the family. He becomes simply Mr. Moneybags, and his visitation rights are often not enforced by the courts.

Ginny Nuta, spokeswoman for Parents Without Partners, was recently quoted in The Christian Science Monitor as saying that if a father leaves one state he can be tracked down. But if a mother takes children across state lines and refuses to allow the father to visit them (which often happens), there's no remedy.

There are fathers who drive long hours each weekend to get to see the children they're supporting financially--and often denied these rights by subterfuge. But when he doesn't make a payment, his wages are withheld or he can go to jail.

There are countless cases where mothers use generous court-ordered support payments for drugs, booze, boyfriends and high living, and not for children. Fathers are often almost powerless to do anything in such situations.

Men ask, if things today are equal, why they should not, also, when given custody, get generous child support payments from working ex-wives; few do. Moreover, courts in the past have tended to award custody of children to mothers, even when the father is the more deserving and responsible parent.

What's needed are laws that enforce visitation rights, regular reviews of custody and support decisions by the courts, truly equal and fair treatment of fathers in divorce cases, the right of a father to pick a financial institute to handle the support payments he makes, and more state laws providing for joint custody--which is now known to be preferable to one-parent custody in many cases.

Texans feeling the effect of largest tax bill in history

You go to the store and buy an oil filter for your car. It seems like it cost a nickel more this time.

Then you pick up the dry cleaning. That seems higher, too.

You didn't forget that bag of fertilizer. But you paid 50 cents more than the last price you remember paying for it.

Oh, you almost forgot picking up the camera you left at the repair shop last week to get the shutter fixed. That much to get it fixed, huh?

As you drive, you're wondering what it was the newspaper boy said about the new weekly price for home delivery.

And so it goes. The October 2 tax hike is upon us.

The $4.8 billion tax package passed by the Legislature and signed by Governor Mark White took effect Oct. 2.

How much of the new tax burden will fall on you depends on what you buy and where you live.

The state sales tax went up by 1/8 of a cent, but a whole slew of items will be taxed for the first time, increasing the price of some things by as

Accidents with firearms lack safety

Accidents with firearms don't just happen. They are caused by ignorance, carelessness or disregard for safety rules.

With hunting season at hand, now is a good time to review firearm safety rules, says Billy Reager, county Extension agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

He lists these "Ten Commandments of Firearm Safety:"

Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun.

Watch that muzzle! Be able to control the direction of the muzzle even if you should stumble.

Be sure the barrel and action are clear of obstructions and that you have only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying.

Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger; know identifying features of the game you hunt.

Unload guns when not in use. Take down or have actions open; guns should be carried in cases to the shooting area.

Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot; avoid all horseplay with a firearm.

Never climb a fence or tree or jump a ditch with a loaded gun; never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.

Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or water; at target practice be sure your backstop is adequate.

Store guns and ammunition separately beyond the reach of children and careless adults.

Avoid alcoholic beverages before or during shooting.

much as 6 1/8 percent. Services such as dry cleaning, repairs, catering, massages, tailoring, mending and entertaining all have additional costs tagged on as a result of the expansion of the state sales tax categories. Repairs such as for fixing the old television set, putting new heels on the old loafers, replacing the crystal of watches, now become tax-laden bills.

Taxes on other items, such as cigarettes and alcohol, have gone up. The cost of motor vehicle registration, gasoline, sales tax on cars and other car rental taxes were already raised August 1.

Movie tickets and admissions to almost any entertainment event in the state will now fall under the state sales tax. Rodeos, ballet performances, cir-

Cubs thrill fans with Colt victory

The Eighth Grade Cubs ended their season Thursday with a thrilling 14-12 victory over the Sonora Colts. Once again the Cubs came from behind in the fourth quarter for the victory. A halfback pass from Eloy Gonzales to Harvey Dominguez as the clock ran out in the first half gave the Cubs an 8-6 lead. The extra points were added when Copie Davis tossed a pass to Juan Mendez.

After halftime, Sonora scored after a long drive which took most of the third quarter. Once again the Cubs denied the Colts the extra points leaving the score 12-8. Toward the end of the third quarter, Landon Duncan broke loose for a 51 yard run, all the way down to the Colt's 20 yard line. A few plays later Eloy Gonzales scored the touchdown for the Cubs.

The defense, led by Wolf Rutherford, held the Colts in the next series. With time running out, Oscar Galindo came up to knock the ball loose from the Colts halfback on Ozona's own 18 yard line. It took a tremendous team effort for the Cubs to win their sixth game in a row. This victory game gave the Cubs a 6-2 record. Congratulations Cubs for a job well done and a great year.

The Saturday night movies also continue to draw good attendance. Garland Young reported attendance for the last two months has been up sharply. Veterans' exhibit in final week

The Crockett County Museum will be featuring "A Salute to Crockett County Veterans" exhibit for the final viewing this week, Monday through Friday.

All those who have not seen this outstanding collection of war memorabilia and photographs of Crockett County service men are urged to do so. It's a nice way to show appreciation for the county's veterans.

Beginning Saturday the Museum will be closed for two weeks in preparation of a new special exhibit, "The Sounds of Music in Crockett County, 1890-1980," to be opened Dec. 2.

The exhibits committee invites anyone with old musical instruments, photographs, musical memorabilia of any kind to share with them for this special exhibit. The music exhibit will be up for six months, Dec. 2-June.

Texas retains mystique for children books

Unlike other states, Texas has retained its mystique of heroes, cowboys and the open range, a Texas A&M University review of children's literature set in the Lone Star State indicates.

Dr. Norma Bagnall, who conducted the research for her doctoral dissertation in English, says that children's literature is a reflection of adults' ideas and values.

"When we write for children we are inculcating them into society. In writing for them we are telling them what our society is like and what kinds of values we want them to have," said Bagnall, who recently received her Ph.D. and is now an assistant professor at Missouri Western State College at St. Joseph.

Children's literature about Texas has continued in a historical and rural setting while other children's books evolved into realism, she said.

Cheesecakes

TEXAS PRALINE CHEESECAKE

- 1 cup graham cracker crumbs
- 1/2 tablespoons sugar
- 1/2 tablespoons Parkay margarine, melted
- 8 oz. pkg. Philadelphia Brand cream cheese, softened
- 1/2 cups packed dark brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 cup finely chopped pecans

Combine crumbs, sugar and margarine, press onto bottom of 9-inch springform pan. Bake at 350° for 10 minutes. Combine cream cheese, sugar and flour, mixing at medium speed on electric mixer until well blended. Add eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Blend in vanilla. Stir in pecans. Pour mixture over crust. Bake at 150° for 40 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to 250°, continue baking 30 minutes. Loosen cake from rim of pan, cool before removing rim of pan. Chill. Brush with maple syrup and garnish with pecan halves, if desired.

CARAMEL-PECAN LAYERED CHEESECAKE

- 1 cup graham cracker crumbs
- 1/2 tablespoons sugar
- 1/2 cup Parkay margarine, melted
- 8 oz. pkg. Philadelphia Brand cream cheese, softened
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup Kraft caramel topping
- 1/2 cup chopped pecans

Combine crumbs, sugar and margarine, press onto bottom of 9-inch springform pan. Bake at 325° for 10 minutes. Combine cream cheese, sugar, flour and vanilla, mixing at medium speed on electric mixer until well blended. Add eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Reserve 1 cup cream cheese batter, stir in 1/2 cup caramel topping. Spoon half of plain batter over crust, cover with caramel batter. Sprinkle pecans over caramel layer, spread remaining plain batter over pecans. Bake at 150° for 70 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to 250°, continue baking 30 minutes. Loosen cake from rim of pan, cool before removing rim of pan. Chill. Melt brown sugar and margarine in saucepan. Add water, bring to boil. Add pecans, cook 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Spread on waxed paper, cool. Brush top of cheesecake with topping before serving.

Foods prepared at home add visible fat to diets

Every time you butter a slice of bread or pour dressing on your salad, you're adding visible fat to your diet. Visible fats and oils are those added to foods, either directly or as ingredients in meals, bakery products and other processed foods, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Mary K. Sweeten.

Lean beef is popular with some consumers

Some like it lean. That's the conclusion researchers at Texas A&M University drew from a nationwide study of consumer beef steak preference.

The majority of participants selected randomly from Houston, Kansas City, Philadelphia and the San Francisco Bay Area, rated USDA higher grade prime and choice steaks as most palatable.

But 25 percent of the consumers—mostly from Houston and the San Francisco area—also found USDA grade good loin steaks to be acceptable and indicated they would buy this grade of meat.

The study was sponsored by national cattlemen's associations, the USDA and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station to determine what consumers want so that beef producers and retailers can do a better job in providing that product.

The USDA grades beef according to the degree of marbling—the flecks of fat within the lean. The more marbling, the higher the grade.

Consumer acceptance of leaner meat could result from a number of factors, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service food and nutrition specialist Marilyn Haggard.

Those consumers looking for ways to cut calories and fat from their diets may be more willing to trade some of the taste and juiciness of higher grade steaks, she notes.

But cooking methods may have something to do with it, too. People who tend to use moist cooking methods, or prefer their meat on the rare side, will find leaner cuts more acceptable, explains the specialist.

Regional dishes and cooking styles may also account for the popularity for leaner beef, especially for the consumers in Houston and San Francisco, suggests Haggard.

"For example, fajitas are an enormously popular dish that uses lean beef," she says. "And a true fajita uses skirt steak, which is so lean that it was once considered very unpalatable by most consumers."

Marinating steaks before cooking on an outdoor grill, or slow cooking barbecue are also popular cooking methods well-suited to leaner beef, and the warm-weather lifestyle, she says.

share of visible fats—about 30%—from foods prepared at home, notes Sweeten. Ingredients in prepared baked goods account for another 7.4 percent; canned goods 6.8 percent; and frozen foods 6.3 percent of the visible fats and oils we consume. Potatoe chips add another 6 percent to the total.

Fats are a necessary and beneficial part of a balanced diet, says the nutritionist. But, making wise choices among the many margarines, oils, dressings and shortenings on the market can help consumers reduce their visible fat consumption and increase the ratio of polyunsaturated to saturated fats in their diet, she adds.

The following information can help consumers select among different forms of fats and oils:

Fats and oils that are solid at room temperature contain more saturated fat than those that are liquid. Liquid semi-soft fats and oils made from vegetable oils provide the lowest degree of saturated fats.

If your physician has restricted your cholesterol intake, reduce your consumption of shortenings and margarine that contain animal fats, such as lard.

Read the labels carefully to determine the oils used in production of margarine and shortening. Oils from a single source, labeled as 100 percent soybean, corn, safflower, or sunflower oils, have a higher ratio of polyunsaturated fatty acids. Products simply labeled "vegetable oil" or "vegetable margarine" can contain a combination of oils, including palm and coconut oils which are the prime vegetable sources of saturated fats.

Read the label on processed foods to determine the type of fats and oils used as ingredients. Many brands of cookies, crackers and baked goods contain lard, tallow or highly saturated vegetable fats.

Diet or imitation contains about 60 percent fat compared to 80 percent for regular margarine. The calorie reduction is about 20 percent; 100 calories per tablespoon for regular margarine, versus 80 calories for imitation margarine. Water or nonfat dry milk is used in place of fat in these products.

To burn up the calories in one slice of cheese pizza, you would have to either run for 9 minutes, swim for 16 minutes or walk for 35 minutes.

Home Free helps runaways return to their families

The Trailways Corporation has carried more than 1,000 runaway youths back to their homes and families, free of charge, since it inaugurated operation: Home Free on June 7, 1984. The program, initiated in cooperation with the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP), is designed to afford runaways a means by which they can escape life on the streets after having run away from home.

According to Trailways officials, any child 18 years-of-age or younger who wishes to return home and who is confirmed as a missing person by any officer of the court will be issued a free ticket to their home town aboard Trailways. Since announcing the program in June, an average of 10 youngsters have taken advantage of the program each day.

"When we first formulated the program I was hopeful that we could at least succeed in reuniting one child with his or her family," noted James L. Kerrigan, chairman and chief executive officer of The Trailways Corporation. "The fact that we are carrying 10 children each day is encouraging and gratifying. It tells us that the program is working. Of course, once you experience some degree of success, you want to improve on that. I would like to see us carrying 100 children each day, and I believe that number is very realistic," said Kerrigan.

According to officials of the IACP, more than 1.5 million children are listed as missing in the United States each year. Of that number many are runaways who soon find that life on the streets is both difficult and dangerous. Police officials believe that many of these youngsters eventually turn to illegal activities in order to obtain the funds necessary for survival.

"If we are able to reach these children before they resort to illegal activities, there's a good chance that we can help them," stated Norman Darwick, executive director of the IACP. "We find that many of these children had, in the past, desperately wanted to return home. They either didn't have the money, their parents didn't have the money, or they simply did not want to ask their parents for assistance. They were embarrassed and frightened. Now that we have Operation: Home Free, we have a valuable tool to offer these kids. They

Sonora game dinner set for Nov. 20

The 16th Annual Game Dinner in Sonora will be held Tuesday, Nov. 20, 6 p.m., at the County 4-H Barn, with a seasoned crew of people at the helm. Bill Stewart, overall chairman, along with Cleve "Festus" Jones, President, and various chairmen, have met and set this Game Dinner in motion, and look forward to a large attendance, last year the Game Dinner Association hosted approximately 700 people.

The menu is being planned and should rival any game dinner of the past, with exotic game being on the menu, barbecued buffalo, roasted wild boar, fried venison, dove and quail, cabrito, smoked turkey, sonofagun stew, chili, beans, slaw and cobbler, with a few surprises thrown in, all to be cooked by local people in their own special way.

A lot of excitement is generated by the list of door prizes to be given away, most of which are donated by local merchants and oil related businesses, some purchased by the Game Dinner Association. Tickets will be on sale at the door for the door prizes at $1.00 each with the meal tickets being $5.00 each and will also serve as a door prize ticket.

All proceeds collected above the cost of the dinner will be donated to local civic organizations.

A Hunter of the Year Award will be presented to an individual hunter or group of hunters that has shown a great interest in conserving wildlife.

can go home free, on their own without any hassles and without any strings attached," explained Darwick.

According to Trailways officials, Operation: Home Free has been established as corporate policy and will exist as long as there is a need. "We do not view Operation: Home Free as a special and limited offer," noted Kerrigan. "It is our company's way of responding to President Reagan's request for private sector initiatives in filling public needs. We're in the transportation business and these kids need transportation; it's as simple as that."

The program works as follows. A youth who has runaway from home and wishes to be reunited with his/her family must report to the police in the town in which he/she finds him/herself. The police will call the child's home town and verify their status as a runaway or missing person. An officer of the court will then call Trailways to obtain schedule information to the specific destination. The officer will escort the child to the Trailways terminal or agency one half hour prior to the scheduled departure and will fill out a form which asks for the officer's name, department, the child's name, the point of origin of the trip and the destination. The trailways ticket agent will then issue a free ticket to the child. The officer will then call ahead to the home town to alert the child's family and the local police of the scheduled arrival time. No arrest is made. No fine is applied. No further information is requested and the child is treated during the trip as if he/she were a full-fare-paying passenger.

"Since we announced the program I have been asked time and again about its progress," stated Kerrigan. "We have, to this point, touched over 1,000 young lives, and the lives of more than 1,000 American families. It's progressing fine. All of us at Trailways are very proud of the program. The success of the program is reflected in the hundreds of letters we're receiving each week from people who have used the program or have heard of it."

Smoking costs Texans $1 billion a year experts say

Legislation to fund anti-smoking programs across the state would help Texans avoid a habit that costs them as much as $1 billion per year, according to an article in Texas Medicine.

The figure includes the cost of health care, accidental fires, and lost work days attributed to smoking, note three health promotion experts.

"Chronic, heavy cigarette smoking is widely recognized as a major contributor to the burden of disease in the United States," they write in the November issue of the Texas Medical Association's journal.

The article is by Alfred McAlistier, PhD, and Sam A. Nixon, MD, of The University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston, and Curtis Dickson, administrator for the Beaumont City Health Department.

They note that recent efforts to designate a portion of the state cigarette tax for cancer research, anti-smoking programs, and health promotion have failed in the Texas Legislature. Only about $40,000 in state funding is available for programs to discourage smoking, they say, while about $5 million is designated for educating the public about alcohol and drug abuse.

The most effective programs to prevent smoking are aimed at teenagers by reinforcing their intentions not to smoke, the writers say. "Research has shown that these programs can reduce by half the number who start smoking and may deter the use of alcohol and marijuana as well."

They say using a portion of the cigarette tax to fund anti-smoking programs is justified in at least two ways: Somers should be responsible for supporting efforts to help them give up the habit. And the state should not gain tax revenue from a health-endangering habit unless some of the revenues are used to avoid that danger.

Although the Legislature voted this year to increase the state cigarette tax by two cents per pack, none of the new funding will go toward health education.

In late 1983, a survey by the Public Policy Resources Laboratory at Texas A&M University found that 71 percent of Texans favored new taxes on tobacco and alcohol, including 58 percent of smokers. "Lower-income smokers were not more likely than higher-income smokers to oppose the idea," the Texas Medicine article says.

In a related editorial, Democratic state Sen. Chet Brooks of Pasadena notes that Congress recently allowed the federal cigarette tax to decrease by 8 cents per pack despite research indicating that higher cigarette prices discourage smoking. Brooks is a member of the Legislative Task Force on Cancer in Texas, which is making recommendations to the next two sessions of the Legislature.
