Kitty's Korner By Kitty Montgomery

Making plans for a ski trip proved to be a lot more fun than actually doing it last week. At least for me it turned out that way. I am probably the only ski school dropout in Ozona. After about an hour and a half of instruction and a dozen falls, I decided it was much wiser to be a live coward than a dead hero, and I quit.

In the first place, I was over-dressed. Having never been on a pair of snow skis or on a mountain covered with snow, I had to depend on my experienced companions to tell me what to wear. They put me in men's long underwear (two-piece) the top came about to mid-thigh. The bottoms came considerably above the waist. Next came a turtle-neck sweater and wool knee socks. Then came the ski pants. I borrowed Janice Marley's ski suit and it would zip up when I first tried it. However, with all the extra innerwear, it took three of us to zip the pants up. Then came the heavy jacket with a fur collar yet. Heavy leather gloves, a wool cap and ski boots completed the outfit. I could hardly move. The boots were made out of some rigid material which didn't give at all and they came up to my knees. I was a walking zombie. Since I couldn't bend over, someone buckled my boots and snapped my skis onto same, and before I knew what was taking place, I was in the beginners ski school.

There were eleven students in my class. The instructor lined us up on the baby slope. The guy on one end fell down and it was just like a row of dominoes. I happened to be tenth in line, and I knew what was happening but there was little I could do about it. That was just the first of many falls. After about an hour of learning to balance, not to look at your ski tips and not to depend on your poles to hold you up, we were ready for our first slope. I got off to a flying start, but I couldn't stop and the first thing I knew, I was down in the snow again.

This time I could see the handwriting on the wall. I could hardly hold on to that thing which pulls you back up the hill. I didn't have a dry thread on me from exertion. When I got to the top, I took off my skis and parked them, and headed for the restaurant where I spent the rest of the day on the pavilion watching other people make fools of themselves. A lot of them were being carried off on stretchers. I can't say I would ever call that fun.

We left Ozona at noon Thursday and were bouncing around in a Wagoner for seven or eight hours. When we got to Ruidoso and found the group of condos where we had reservations, we found ours with beds stripped, the linens dirty, and the music on. We were sent to three others and found them in the same condition. In desperation, we checked in at the Ruidoso Inn. Nobody was happy with the rooms because they thought we should all be together. We finally arranged for another condo. I had turned the bedspread back and collapsed, but they got me up and I hastily made the bed. We got everything together before I discovered my glasses were missing. A thorough search turned them up under the pillow. We were off again and finally ended up in a really lovely condo.

Jerry Perry is well-known for never getting in a hurry, but getting to the ski slopes really put him in gear. We had hardly closed our eyes before we were awakened by the television ski report and Jerry pouring coffee. It was long before daylight, but he already had his ski suit on and was prodding us to do likewise.

It was the same thing the next morning, however, I had already declared my intention to stay behind. To my surprise I found Willa still in her bed when I finally dragged my bruised and aching body to the kitchen for coffee. David Marrs came by and took us to lunch. He is selling log homes, in Ruidoso, and after lunch he showed us every homestead in that county. It was up one mountain and down the other for hours in another 4-wheel drive vehicle. We were almost convinced we should buy some property and settle in that beautiful country, but everytime I seriously considered it, I would look up at that big white

C of C chooses dinner speaker

The Ozona Chamber of Commerce announced today the selection of Don Newbury, current President of Western Texas College in Snyder, as the Chamber's featured speaker at its Annual Banquet on January 29. The announcement was made by Stan Lambert, President of the Chamber of Commerce. "We're delighted to have such an outstanding speaker like Don Newbury for our annual banquet."

Lambert further stated that Newbury was chosen after an extensive search that produced speaker candidates such as former Richard Nixon, Roger Staubach, and Tom Landry. "Everyone knows where Nixon and the Cowboys are today," reflected Lambert in the understatement of the year. "We wanted someone fresh, positive, someone who could bring a ray of light, and who's confident of the future. Don Newbury is just the man! He's a perfect after-dinner speaker and I'll stand at the door with refunds for anyone that leaves unsatisfied!!"

Newbury brings a long list of credentials and experiences that will delight and humor the crowd. He has spoken over 2,000 times in the most of the 50 states. With a background in public relations, he has served in many capacities, primarily in the educational and business community.

His degrees include a B. A. from Howard Payne University, an M. J. from the University of Texas at Austin and a Ph.D. from North Texas State University. He and his wife, Brenda, have three daughters.

DON NEWBURY

Newbury's honors and memberships have included past president, Alpine Chamber of Commerce; Boards of Directors, Optimist Club, American Red Cross and Howard Payne University; outstanding alumnus, Howard Payne University, and other honors from Press Club of Forth Worth, Fort Worth Jaycees, and National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

The Annual Banquet of the Ozona Chamber of Commerce will be held on Tuesday evening, January 29, beginning at 7:00 p.m. in the Ozona Civic Center. Tickets are $10 each and may be obtained by calling the Chamber office at 392-3066 or by calling Lambert at 392-3745.

"We invite everyone from our community and from surrounding communities to come out and enjoy an evening of fun, laughter and recognition of some of our community's 'faithful servants'" stated Lambert. "It will truly be a night to remember!"

Chemical truck wreck causes I-10 reroute

A tank truck carrying hazardous chemicals overturned between Ozona and Sonora early Saturday morning, and traffic on I-10 had to be rerouted for several hours.

The accident occurred about 7 miles west of Sonora on I-10, causing some residents to be evacuated within six miles of the spill. The driver, 25-year-old John Keller of Houston was in critical condition with chemical burns and was flown to Brooke Army Burn Center in San Antonio. Another Houston man who was a passenger in the truck was treated and released at the Sonora hospital.

Officials believe the driver fell asleep causing the accident. The entire contents spilled from the tanker, covering a half-mile radius from the scene.

A clean-up crew from Channel Construction Co. in Channelview arrived on the scene Sunday and disposed of the chemicals.

Moran wins final contest

Winner of the final weekly football contest was Esmie Moran. The contest featured the college bowl games and Mrs. Moran missed three games and won without the tie-breaker.

The contest will resume next year.

New Year brings first snowfall of year

The first winter snow storm of the season came in with the new year last week. Blowing snow and sleet began about 5:30 p.m. on New Year's Day.

Wednesday morning Ozonans woke to a snow covered landscape and freezing temperatures. Several motorists had to abandon their vehicles on the hills around town, the ice making driving hazardous. Several wrecks on I-10 kept DPS troopers busy New Year's night, but no injuries were reported.

Trucks seemed to have the hardest time negotiating the icy roads. A truck-tractor overturned on I-10 near the Circle Bar Truck Corral Wednesday at mid-morning, spilling its contents of produce. It was several hours before Hubbard Body Shop employees managed to transfer the produce and bring the truck in to town.

County employees sanded the hills and bridges, but most mishaps occurred before the trucks arrived. The ice was not as treacherous by late afternoon, but temperatures remained below freezing all day. Thursday dawned bright and clear with most of the snow and ice melted, except for drifts here and there.

An unusually mild and wet December saw trees beginning to bud and rose bushes and shrubs putting on new growth. December rainfall was 2.87 in the official gauge at the Water District office.

One killed and three injured in fiery crash

An Ozona man was killed and three others injured in a one-vehicle crash just north of Ozona on Hwy 163 Saturday night, Dec. 29 at 7:30.

Rudolfo R. Enriquez, Jr., 21, was fatally injured when the car he was driving went out of control, crashed into a culvert and traveled 346 feet in a ditch before overturning and bursting into flames. Enriquez died of head injuries after being thrown from the car. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Peace Justice Raymond Davee.

Cheo Vargas, 30, was ejected from the car. He was treated for bruises, scratches and a broken arm at Crockett County Hospital and later released.

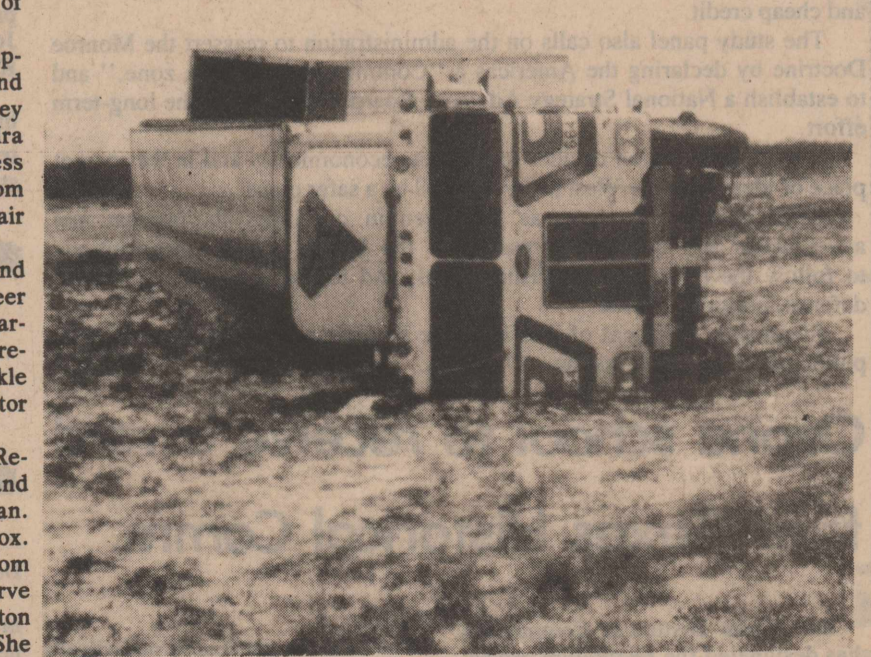

Rudolfo C. Enriquez, 38, father of the dead man, was released from the hospital Sunday, after being treated for head and chest injuries. Ricardo Cardona, 25, was treated and released from the hospital later in the night. The elder Enriquez and Cardona were not ejected from the car, but managed to escape before flames engulfed the car.

Funeral services for Enriquez were held at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 1, at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Catholic Church with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery under the direction of Sizemore Funeral Home.

He was born August 12, 1963 in Ozona. He married Valerie Mahannah October 31, 1980. He was an employee of Delta Drilling Co.

Survivors include his wife of Ozona; two daughters, Jessica and Melissa, both of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolfo Enriquez; two sisters, Amanda and Martha; his grandmothers, Ofelia Enriquez of Ozona and Mrs. Eugene Kaberein of California.

Truck turnover spills produce

A victim of the icy roads here Wednesday, this truck overturned in the snow at an underpass six miles east of Ozona on I-10. The driver was not injured and the produce was transferred to another van. It was several hours before the site was cleared.

BEYOND DETENTE

By Edwin Feulner

Though the Reagan administration's performance in the foreign policy arena has been somewhat inconsistent, President Reagan has left his indelible mark on international affairs in one important way: he has publicly recognized the Soviet Union for what it is and has acted accordingly.

Some of this has been in the area of rhetoric, which, though it may offend some of the delicate-of-heart, is an important part of foreign policy. And Ronald Reagan was absolutely correct when he stood before the world and called the Soviet Union "an evil empire."

Part of this also has been in terms of recognizing the weaknesses and vulnerabilities of the Soviet empire. While the freeing of tiny Grenada from a band of Soviet imitators is hardly in league with the liberation of Guadalcanal, it shows that the Reagan administration recognizes that Soviet expansionism is neither inevitable nor irreversible — and is prepared to take advantage of appropriate opportunities to accelerate the roll-back of communism.

That's the message too from a blue-ribbon study panel which met with President Reagan at the White House the week after the election.

Led by John Fisher of the American Security Council, one of the country's most knowledgeable and experienced national security specialists — and someone who is often out-of-step with the flagellating detente-ists in the foreign service establishment — the high-level group said it was now time for the United States to move beyond detente, and mount a non-provocative campaign to turn the tide against world communism.

The study panel came armed with a plan, spelled out in detail in a 204-page report, A Strategy for Peace Through Strength.

"If the conflict between the Free World and communism is to be ended without war — then the Soviet leadership must be persuaded that it is more profitable for them to give up the goal of world domination than to continue seeking it," the report says.

"This we can persuade them of firstly by being so strong militarily that they dare not attack us, and secondly by going on the ideological offensive by developing democracy worldwide while exploiting Soviet vulnerabilities: in other words, a policy of military defense, political offense."

The resources of the United States and its allies are superior to those of the Soviet bloc, the study panel told the president. "What we have lacked so far is the understanding, will, and organization to use them."

The plan outlined by Fisher has four major elements: 1) rebuilding U.S. defenses, with special emphasis on defending the U.S. population against Soviet missiles and bombers; 2) supporting anti-Communist freedom fighters in an effort to roll back communism "around its edges"; 3) a stepped-up program of "public diplomacy," aimed at carrying the message of freedom to people within the Soviet bloc; and 4) establishing an Office of Strategic Trade that would help see that the U.S. and its allies don't prop up the anemic Soviet economy with high-tech sales and giveaways and cheap credit.

The study panel also calls on the administration to reassert the Monroe Doctrine by declaring the Americas a "Communist-free peace zone," and to establish a National Strategy Advisory Board to coordinate the long-term effort.

If the Soviet Union decides to compete economically and in the market place of ideas with the West the world will be a safer place.

Until then — so long as the Kremlin continues its international adventurism and internal repression — the United States must continue to follow the advice of the Fisher panel, and follow a policy of military defense, political offense.

(Feulner is president of The Heritage Foundation, a Washington-based public policy research institute.)

Ozona school to receive award from Texas Historical Comm.

The Texas Historical Commission has designated the restoration project of the Ozona Heritage School as a recipient of the Texas Award for Historic Preservation. Notice of this award was received during the Christmas holidays in a communication from the state commission to Garland Davis, Superintendent of the Crockett County Consolidated Common School District.

The award is presented periodically by the Texas Historical Commission to recognize significant contributions toward preserving Texas history, architecture, archeology, or culture.

Presentation of the award will be made at a later date, in coordination with the local heritage group and the state historical commission.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS
By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—The New Year's holiday combined with a brief snow storm to slow down government and political activity at the Capitol last week.

Three inches of snow fell onto the unprepared city and state employees were sent home to safety.

Meanwhile, falling oil prices on the world market continued to cause concern among the Legislature's leadership on the effect of the decline on dwindling state revenues.

Governor Mark White, along with governors of several other states, questioned whether President Reagan's budget and tax proposals would cause yet more loss of state government dollars.

White asked the 30-state Interstate Oil Compact Commission to form a task force to study the impact of the tax revision proposals to determine whether they will further depress oil and gas production in Texas.

Revenue Sharing

Two other federal budget proposals worry Texas officials: the elimination of the federal revenue-sharing program within three years and the repeal of itemized deductions for state and local taxes.

The revenue-sharing program allocates millions to cities for such basic services as schools, police protection and sanitation. The elimination's effect would be either a cut-back in services at the local level or an increase of state and local taxes to pick up the burden.

Another federal proposal would eliminate the tax exemption for interest on bonds issued by state and local agencies, a method of raising money for housing and other loans.

Texas Unemployment

Unemployment figures for Texas were reported a little higher in November, and the Texas Employment Commission reported it was due to an increase in workers looking for temporary Christmas work.

Nearly half a million workers, or 435,100, were reported unemployed, a rate of 5.4 percent.

The McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg area suffered the highest jobless rate of 21.1 percent.

Other Rio Grande River towns showed rates in the high teens, while cities in the refinery areas of Beaumont-Port Arthur had a jobless rate over ten percent.

GOP Director Leaves

The executive director of the Texas Republican Party said last week he will leave his job in March to direct the political committee of New York Congressman Jack Kemp.

Presumably, the committee is a prelude to Kemp's candidacy for president in '88, and the addition of John Maxwell would increase Kemp's hopes of carrying Texas.

Maxwell is highly regarded for his work at Texas GOP headquarters over the past two years. In his statement, Maxwell warned against a renewed surge of party infighting.

State Sued

A state employees union last week filed a lawsuit against the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, alleging the Austin State Hospital harassed workers who reported poor conditions.

The lawsuit claims the workers were disciplined after they became active in a Texas State Employees Union effort to prove the hospital violated a federal court agreement calling for improved patient care and higher staff-to-patient ratios.

The alleged harassment resulted in one employee being fired for absenteeism, two employees being put on six-months probation for engaging in union activities during work hours, and one employee being transferred involuntarily from night to day shift.

Prison Plan

A federal judge last week approved a plan to cut down on guard-against-inmate brutality in Texas prisons, but he warned prison officials against evading the plan's terms by claiming they don't have enough money.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice, who's court ordered prison reforms a few year's ago marked the beginning of a scandal-ridden scenario in the prison system, ordered the anti-brutality plan implemented immediately.

A prison spokesman said the Texas Department of Corrections is now caught in a squeeze between Justice on one hand and the Texas Legislature which must approve the budget.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club
by Mrs. Bailey Post

I'm sure all of you were elated over our most welcome rain, but surprised to have cold weather and snow. With the moisture we should have a beautiful spring and native flowers.

Outdoor gardening in January may be rather slow, but soil preparation may be undertaken when the ground is in suitable condition to work.

Finish pruning grape vines if you have them and they have not already been done.

House plants face rather difficult conditions during January. The air indoors is likely to be exceedingly dry due to use of artificial heat. Keep varieties that prefer low temperature in cool locations and never near direct heat. During the short days of winter all house plants respond favorably to exposure to maximum sunlight and especially ones that bloom.

Trim the old blooms out of your pampas grass to induce new spring growth.

On warm days prune summer flowering shrubs as needed in winter or early spring in order to keep them in bounds. Rid your garden of plant litter and check plantings to be certain they get sufficient water.

Deciduous (bare root) shrubs and trees may be purchased at a more reasonable price than balled or burlapped plants. They should do well if planted carefully. Inspect for bruises, tears, or breaks and prune back beyond the injured point. Remove excessively long and unwieldy roots. Also prune back tops of plants. Spread roots and gently fill in about them with top or mixed soil. Set plants at same depth as they were in the nursery or yard if just moving them. Apply water while planting to drive out air pockets. After soil has been filled in around the roots, tamp down surface to stabilize plant. Leave a space six inches around the trunk or stem of the plant to catch water. This can be filled in later.

This is a good time to inspect your garden tools for repairs that might be needed.

Preparation for a spring garden should begin now

With Christmas and New Year's finally behind us, most of us may be inclined to relax and not do much work—but not if you're a gardener.

The time to start preparing and planning your spring garden is now. And the January/February 1985 issue of Texas Gardener magazine is specifically geared to helping both experienced and new gardeners have an abundant harvest.

A comprehensive planting guide gives optimum planting dates for most crops. It is broken down into six zones to accommodate Texas' vastly different growing conditions. The guide also provides information on how much to plant, how to space your rows and how it takes vegetables to mature.

The January/February issue also features Texas Gardener's annual All-Texas Selections list, which includes the varieties of vegetables which have been tested and proven to perform best in Texas' unique growing conditions. The list is updated each year and six new varieties have been added for 1985.

For squash lovers, the magazine includes a simple step-by-step guide to growing summer squash. The article includes information on how to prepare the soil, plant, care for and harvest this popular vegetable.

Beginning gardeners will find two articles of particular interest. "A Good Garden Starts With A Great Plan" provides basic guidelines for planning a garden, beginning with advice on how to decide what to plant. By putting your garden plans on paper before you actually start the physical labor of gardening, you can save yourself a lot of time and work, the article states.

Another article on seed basics, lets gardeners know how they can test seed to see if it's good, the best ways to plant different types of seeds and how seed can be stored.

For those interested in landscaping, horticulturist Neil Sperry offers tips on how to make the best selection when you're buying trees and lists his favorite tree varieties for Texas.

Determining a good weight-loss plan from a fad diet

How can you tell a legitimate weight-loss plan from a fad diet? Here are several phrases commonly used to promote fad diets.

"Fast and Easy Weight Loss." It may be fast and easy, but it won't be permanent. This usually means that water and muscle mass are the initial losses instead of fat. These sudden losses can harm your health and the pounds will eventually return.

"Magic Diet Food." There is no magic diet food. Going on a one or two-food diet simply starves your body of the nutrients it needs. If you lose weight it's because you cut calories, not because of a special food.

Children can choke on some foods

Parents who consider safety when buying their children's toys, or who carefully keep small objects out of the reach of little hands, often forget to use the same caution in preparing children's food.

"Food asphyxiation accounts for as many childhood deaths annually as poisoning," says Dr. Mary Ann Heussner, a health education specialist.

About 66 to 77 children die by choking on food each year, she reports. A recent study of children's food-related choking fatalities conducted by John Hopkins University found that more than 90 percent of the victims were under five, Heussner says. The risk was highest in one- and two-year olds and dropped substantially at age three.

The children choked most often on hot dogs. Other foods on the list were candy, peanuts, and other nuts, grapes, cookies, meat, carrots, apples, popcorn and peanut butter, she notes.

Foods such as peanuts or hard, round candies should not be given to children younger than four or five, she advises. Foods that must be chewed should not be given to children until they have developed a complete set of teeth around age two.

Besides causing choking, another danger is that the food can go deep into the bronchial tubes or into the lungs themselves, says Heussner.

"It's not always easy to recognize that a child has inhaled food," cautions the specialist. The initial coughing fit may end and the child will appear to have recovered. However, more serious symptoms such as pneumonia, may show up.

"If you suspect food inhalation and the food particle is not coughed up, contact your pediatrician or family physician," advises Heussner.

Since many choking incidents occur when the child is eating or drinking while lying down, crying, laughing, talking, running or playing, adult supervision during meals and snack time is extremely important, she says.

Thousands of couples will start a new life this coming year when they retire. With more leisure time than ever before at their disposal, new challenges and old interests will be beckoning for a place in their schedules.

Actually, our retirement "careers" are what we make them. Some of the best days and most enjoyable hours of our lives await us through active, zestful and creative use of time, rather than embarking on a one way trip to the rocking chair.

Whether twenty or eighty, everyone needs to know and find meaning to their life. Someone once said they were not afraid of dying; only of living without a purpose. What better place to find that sense of peace and purpose for every-day living than within the church or synagogue of your choice? Why not stop in this week?

mountain and decide against it. At some point through the years, my spirit of adventure deserted me. I hardly noticed it was gone until last week. I'm afraid if I did something that foolhardy, I would lose my sense of humor and then I would really be in a fix. As I said in the beginning, it's a lot more fun to think about something than to actually do it.

I was never so glad to see Ozona in my life when we got in about 8 o'clock Sunday night. I kissed my cat, I kissed my house and I hugged my bed. Library board meets for reports and planning

The Crockett County Public Library Board held its regular meeting Monday, January 7, at the High School Library. Sheri York announced the purchase of approximately 300 new books using the money donated by the Quarterhorse Association. These books have been catalogued, and some are ready for checkout. Other new books are boxed and ready to move to new quarters.

The Commissioners Court will open bids for the remodeling of the Perner home into the County Library Building at its meeting next week. Specifications for the building were discussed and approved. Job descriptions for the positions of county librarian and library-aide were approved. The board will receive applications until February 15. Interviews will be conducted shortly thereafter.

The county librarian will begin work on March 4, and the library aid will begin work after April 1. Target date for moving into the remodeled building is May 1. A list of jobs to be completed by the library staff prior to moving was approved. A brief discussion concerning parking and new equipment at the new facility was also held.

Memorial contributions may be made by mail to the Crockett County Public Library, P.O. Box 1545, Ozona, Texas 76943, or to Mrs. Mary Helen Parks, P.O. Box 986, Ozona. Other library board members may also accept memorials.

Social Security recipients need year end reminders

People receiving Social Security benefits should note that there are some things they can do at the end of the year that will help assure that they continue to get the most out of their Social Security and Medicare protection.

For one thing, it's a good time to review one's circumstances to see if there are any changes that may affect one's benefits. These may include changes in earnings if a person continues to work after retirement, change in marital status, change in name or address, or a change in family size or number of dependents. These are the most common events that may affect a person's monthly check. These and other events are discussed below:

Change in earnings--People who work in 1984 and whose earnings exceed the annual earnings limit or were higher than estimated earnings should report the change in earnings as soon as possible. Many people wait until the April 15 deadline to include the changes in the annual earnings report. However, by that time, substantial overpayment of benefits may have occurred. This is because benefits are reduced $1 for each $2 of earnings above the annual limit. People who work are required to report the amount of earnings they expect to have and their benefits are adjusted accordingly. Any unreported earnings would mean the person would receive more benefits than he or she is entitled to--overpayments. The law requires overpayments of Social Security benefits to be repaid.

Change in marital status--The benefits of people under 60 who are receiving benefits on the earnings of a deceased worker stop if they marry. Benefits to widows and widowers or surviving divorced spouses 60 and over are generally not affected by marriage. And, in a 1983 change in the law, disabled widows and widowers and surviving divorced spouses 50-60 can remarry without affecting their benefits. However, all such people should report the marriage to Social Security to avoid any confusion regarding their new status. In some cases, it is possible to get a higher benefit on the earnings of a new spouse.

Change in address--Although most people automatically report their new address to Social Security when they move, people whose checks are directly deposited in their bank or other financial institution may not. However, Social Security sends people many important notices and other information that may affect their checks. The post office will forward the mail to the new address for the first year, but after that, will then return it to the sender. Thus, it's important for people to report a change of address to assure that Social Security is able to keep in touch with them.

Change in number of dependents--Each eligible dependent of a retired, deceased or disabled worker may receive a benefit based on the worker's earnings up to a family maximum benefit. When the oldest child turns 16, parents' benefits stop, the child's benefits continues until 18 (or 19 if a full-time high school student) or indefinitely if the child becomes disabled before 22. A parent should report to Social Security if a child marries or is otherwise no longer in his or her care.

This year for the first time, the benefits of some people with higher incomes may be subject to income tax. They will get a statement in the mail in January from Social Security showing the amount of benefits they were paid during 1984. The statement--Form SSA-1099--can be used to figure their tax liability. Only about 10 percent of the people getting benefits will be affected by this change in the law. And, then no more than half of their benefits will be subject to tax.

The Scientists Tell Me . . .

Differential Tax Programs Show Uneven Results For Saving Agricultural Land

For nearly thirty years, states in the South have been debating the need for legislation that lowers property taxes on agricultural land in order to preserve it for food and fiber production. Results from such legislation have been uneven, according to Dr. John Stoll, agricultural economist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES), who made a study of such taxes for TAES and the Southern Rural Development Center.

Differential assessment legislation, called DAL, as applied to agricultural land usually has two primary purposes, Stoll says. To provide tax relief on eligible land, and to decrease the rate of conversion of agricultural land to non-agricultural uses.

Thirteen Southern states, including Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia were included in a study by Stoll and other researchers of the effect of DAL on annual acres of cropland, pastureland, and forestland between 1950 and 1980.

Results indicated that DAL has not been generally successful in preventing the conversion of eligible land to non-eligible uses, although it may delay such conversion.

The effectiveness of DAL is directly related to a land owner's decision to convert agricultural land.

In many cases, the benefit of reduced property taxes may be outweighed by other economic and non-economic factors. The desire to finance one's retirement from the proceeds of the sale of agricultural land to developers is an example of one of these economic factors, Stoll says.

The most important non-economic factors appear to focus on demography (study of human populations) and lifestyle; it has been estimated that approximately one-half of all farm sales are based on these non-economic factors.

For example, the median age of farmers in the South is quite high. Without heirs to take over the farm, it appears that many older farmers desire to retire from farming, despite any economic incentives to continue.

A simple desire, by young and old farmers alike, to leave an area or quit farming also influences the decision to convert.

Contributing to this decision is the conflict between farming practices and encroaching urban development, such as complaints from suburbanites about early morning tractor noises. It is apparent in many cases, Stoll says, that reduced property taxes may contribute only slightly to the decision to convert agricultural land.

Prime agricultural land which is flat, clear, and well drained also happens to be the least-cost land for urban development. In most areas of the South, demand by developers for farmland pushes its development value well beyond its agricultural use value.

A number of studies have concluded that DAL cannot reduce property taxes enough to offset urban pressure to convert agricultural land, in the long run. Agricultural land, like other commodities, is eventually sold to the highest bidder.

Because of consumer demand for housing, highways, golf courses, parks, and other elements of urban uses, the highest bidders are usually developers especially in the rural-urban fringe.

DAL has a long controversial history in the South. Florida was the first Southern state to enact a DAL program in 1959, while Georgia was the last in 1983.

Three basic types of DAL are employed in the South. The least restrictive is preferential assessment, followed by deferred taxation, and then restrictive agreements.

Preferential assessment is the simplest type of DAL found in the South, according to Stoll.

Under preferential assessment, eligible and participating tracts of land are valued for tax purposes according to current use instead of fair market value, determined by urban development prospects or other alternative uses. Participation in the program is generally voluntary.

Preferential assessment represents a permanent tax break equal to the taxes saved by assessing land according to use value rather than market value. Five Southern states authorize preferential assessment of eligible land: Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, and West Virginia.

Deferred taxation is the most common type of DAL employed by Southern states. Under deferred taxation, participating land is assessed each year according to both its use value and fair market value.

But, only taxes based on its use value are due and payable in a given year. The difference between taxes on use value and fair market value, are "deferred."

Should the use of the land change to an ineligible use or be otherwise withdrawn from the program, the deferred taxes become due and payable.

Seven states have deferred taxation programs: Alabama, Kentucky, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

Restrictive agreement programs also provide for the assessment of participating land for tax purposes according to use value. Use value assessment, however, is granted only after the owner signs a contract agreeing not to convert the land to an ineligible use.

An owner can be released from a contract but may be required to pay back some or all of the taxes saved while participating in the program. Florida, Georgia and Louisiana are the only states in the South which have restrictive agreements.

"As stated earlier, it appears DAL cannot prevent the conversion of agricultural land to non-agricultural uses, in the long run," Stoll says. "DAL, however, may delay such conversion for a number of years."

"Where farmland is assessed according to its development value, but cannot be sold immediately for development because of insufficient urban demand, DAL provides an incentive to prevent the premature idling of productive farmland."

"Thus, the importance of DAL appears to lie in reducing farm taxes and delaying the conversion of agricultural land until it is actually needed for urban development. To prevent the eventual conversion of agricultural land, policies other than DAL would have to be developed," Stoll concluded.

Soil testing will help when planning year's crops

It's time to plan next year's crops and soil testing should be one of the first items considered, advises a soil chemist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The Extension Service soil testing program is an advisory service which can guide in maintaining a soil fertility program and provides information to help make management decisions, explained Dr. Michael Hickey, soil chemist who directs the Extension soil testing laboratory here.

Proper sampling tools will make the job easier, he said. Suitable tools include a soil sample probe, sharp-shooter shovel and a plastic bucket. The probe is best suited for sampling the sandy soils on the High Plains. If a probe isn't available or moisture conditions make clay loam soils stick in the probe, a sharp-shooter shovel can be used.

"The goal of field sampling is to provide a measure of the average soil fertility in the field," Hickey said.

The first step in sound soil sampling is to subdivide the field, based on the overall appearance of the land and any known differences in past crop production. Hickey said this gives the producer an opportunity to sample problem sites separately so that site-specific fertility problems can be identified and the "average" fertility of the field won't be biased.

Each sample submitted for chemical analysis should represent a composite of 10 to 15 individual samplings, randomly taken, within a given area. For each individual sample, the same amount of soil should be taken to eliminate bias.

If the past crop was bed planted, the best sample will come from half way down the bed. If last year's fertilizer was banded, try to avoid sampling from the bed, Hickey urged.

Prior to taking a sample, scrape the litter from the surface, he advised. Then push the probe into the soil to the depth of plowing, which will be six to eight inches. To use a sharp-shooter, dig a V-shaped hole and take a half-inch slice of soil from the smooth side of the hole.

"While taking a sample, it is a good idea to note any soil compaction or the occurrence of plow pans," Extension specialist cautioned.

Subsamples should be placed into a clean plastic bucket. After subsamples have been taken for a given area, mix them thoroughly. Take about a pint of this composite mixture for chemical analysis by the soil testing laboratory.

Soil sample bags which hold the proper amount for testing and soil sample information sheets which itemize details about the field and sample needed for interpretation of the chemical analysis are available at the local county Extension agent's office, or at the Extension soil testing laboratory in Lubbock.

The information sheets should be filled in as completely as possible, Hickey stressed. Each soil sample should be marked with the producer's name and sample number, which should correspond to the number on the information sheet. The analysis should be marked on the sample, and the proper fee included.

Representative from Bullock's office sets visit

State Comptroller Bob Bullock will have a representative from his San Angelo office in Ozona on January 17, 1985 to assist local taxpayers and answer questions about state taxes.

Bullock said Tax Representative Al Butkovich will meet with local taxpayers in the Law Library at the County Courthouse Annex from 2:00 to 3:00 p.m.

"If Ozona area merchants, or anyone else for that matter, have any questions about state taxes or need help in preparing state tax forms, Mr. Butkovich will be there to assist them," Bullock said.

"We're trying to cut the red tape in this office, and we believe these face to face sessions with taxpayers help do just that," Bullock added.

The San Angelo office serves San Angelo and surrounding counties.

Mr. and Mrs. Foy Moody and Jack of Plano were holiday visitors in the home of their daughter and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Childress and Melissa.

Ring in ear can be persistent

Almost everyone has experienced brief periods of "ringing in the ear," but millions of people endure this problem constantly or repeatedly.

Known technically as "tinnitus," the noises can include clicking, buzzing, ringing, whistling, hissing, or roaring sounds, according to the Texas Medical Association.

These ear noises sometimes are caused by built-up ear wax, an infection, or fluid behind the ear drum. In these cases, corrective measures often can relieve the noises. Certain drugs taken in high doses—particularly aspirin—may cause the annoying sounds. A serious blow to the head can produce life-long tinnitus. And continual loud noises such as stereos can cause not only tinnitus but hearing loss.

Tinnitus also may occur as a symptom of nearly any ear disorder, but most often it results from a defect in the hearing nerve as part of the aging process. As time passes, distortions begin to occur within the delicate mechanisms of the ear.

People with persistent tinnitus often seek medical attention from an otolaryngologist, a physician who specializes in ear, nose and throat problems. Some medications may provide relief, but many times there is no simple answer or cure.

Some measures may be recommended to reduce the tension and anxiety caused by tinnitus, and biofeedback exercise may help a person live more comfortably with it.

Many patients find relief by playing background music to mask the unwanted sounds. "White noise," such as low-volume static between FM stations, also can provide considerable relief.

Small electronic devices that produce white noise can be used on desk tops or miniaturized to fit into hearing-aid shells (tinnitus maskers). Combined with a hearing aid, they are called tinnitus instruments.

Holiday guests in the home of Bill and Lois Pinkston were Sam, Shirley and Creasa Helotes, Kimberly Mulvany, Kurt Granberry, Tom, Carolyn and Jeff Pinkston, all of Houston; Herman, Gwen and Jennifer Muenster and Bertha Carroll of Eldorado, Jim and Dorothy Carroll of San Angelo, and Cindi and Steve Brister of San Antonio.

Guests in the Dwight Childress home Friday and Saturday were Mrs. Childress' Uncle, Mr. John Burnet of New York City and her mother Mrs. Betty McEntire. Mr. and Mrs. Vince Huffman and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Henderson spent the Christmas holidays at the Copper Mountain Ski Resort in Colorado.

A thank you goes to Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander for treats given to the staff and for a memorial donation given in memory of Rudy Enriquez.

Another memorial was also received in memory of Rudy Enriquez, the mother of Maxine Brown, the brother of Susie Spoons, and the mother of Ray Hildebrand.

Some five church members accompanied Ken Eppler for the fifth Sunday church services given by the Calvary Baptist Church on Sunday, December 31.

We played bingo on Wednesday and Friday again this week. We cannot let a Tuesday holiday keep us from playing bingo twice a week.

Last week's winners included Moriana Perez, winner of the El Chato dinner for two; Rebekah West, winner of the monthly certificate from Baker Jewelers; Billie Whately, winner of the first place gift certificate from Westerman Drug, and Nila Turnell, winner of the second place gift.

This week's winners included Ola Mills, winner of the El Chato dinner for two, Tomasa Ramoz, winner of the gift certificate from Clayton's Village Drug, and Hilda Dysart, second place winner. Volunteers included Elodia Zapata, Amalia Lumbreras, Dorothy Doll, Anna Bell Patrick, and Mattie Cooper.

Photographs preserve history

Interest in preserving and restoring historic buildings has reached every corner of Texas. However, it is still difficult for people who care about Texas' heritage to find photographic documentation on buildings because material is scattered over the state. But now the largest collection of interior photographs of Texas houses to date is being compiled. Already more are being sought in both public and in private photographic collections. Area residents have a chance to use their old photographs to help this effort.

This project, "Images of Victorian Texas: 1860-1920," which has the support of many preservationist groups throughout the state, aims to locate photographs of the interiors of Texas buildings, especially houses, taken before 1920. These interior views show what kinds of furniture, draperies, carpets and accessories were in use at a point in time in a specific place. They document characteristic room arrangements, seasonal changes, special efforts to accommodate the climate as well as ethnic and regional variations in interiors. Such a comprehensive survey as well as comprehensive survey of photographs of Texas interiors will enrich preservation and restoration efforts.

As many people know, interior photographs are rare when compared with the number of surviving portrait photographs and exterior building views. Some interior photos survive in library and archival collections but many interior views are in individual collections and in family photograph albums. Dr. Cynthia Brandimarte, director of the project, is eager to hear from individuals or institutions that have interior photographs taken between 1860 and 1920.

Dr. Brandimarte will be in the area during the last two weeks in January to view and copy photographs. If you have, or know someone who has pre-1920 interior photos of Texas houses, call her at (713) 869-8367 or call her collect after 6:00 p.m. at (713) 869-0315 by January 15.

Ozona Lions B.B. team plays in Big Lake tournament

By Gary Davis

The Ozona Lions did not start off the new year quite the way they wanted. The Lions lost two consecutive games in the 54th annual Reagan County Tournament held January 3, 4, and 5 in Big Lake. The two losses lowered the Lion's season record to an even 7-7 mark.

In the second round of the tournament, the Lions were defeated by the Crane Cranes, 39-61. Harvey Fierro led the team in scoring with 18 points. Fierro was followed by Al Ramirez with 6, Scott Denman with 5, Steve Sanchez with 4, and Mario Arredondo, Gary Davis and Brad Thompson each with 2 points. The Lions could only manage a mere 24 total rebounds throughout the entire contest. Denman and Bret Thompson each had 5 rebounds to lead their team in that department. Fierro and Ramirez each had 3 rebounds while Arredondo, Davis, and Sanchez each with 2. Matt Gutierrez and Brad Thompson each grabbed 1 rebound.

On Thursday, the Lions were defeated in preliminary action, 40-52 by the Eldorado Eagles. Fierro took top scoring honors in that game with 12. Sanchez shot for 10 points, while Ramirez hit for 8. Denman had 6 points and Arredondo and Bret Thompson each had 2 points. The leading rebounder was Ramirez with 9. Denman was close behind with 7 and Sanchez had 4 added to his tally. Other rebounders were Fierro-3, Arredondo-3, James Fierro and J. B. Green-2, and Gutierrez-1.

While the Lions were in Big Lake, the Lady Lions were holding down the fort here in Ozona against the Lady Bearkats from Ballinger. Although the local girls did a super job and played, possibly their best game of the year, they too were defeated, 37-31. Zelda Munoz led the scoring attack with 9 points and Julie Reagar had 8. Vanessa Miller scored 6 while Vickie Reagar scored 4 and Sharon McCrohan and Donna Sanchez each hit for 2. The Lady Lions had a good game on the boards, with a total of 39 rebounds, 22 offensive and 17 defensive. Munoz also led her team in rebounds with 10. J. Reagar had 9, V. Reagar-7, V. Miller-5, McCrohan-4, and Donna Sanchez and Christy Parks each had 2.

The Lions and J.V. Lions will begin district play Friday in Coahoma. The girls will also be in Coahoma. District 7AAA is the most even that it has been in several years, which should provide for an exciting season. Coahoma will be led by returning lettermen, John Swinney and Brian Callaway. Crane is led by Kenny Walker, Lonnie Mitchell and Abel Sena, while Colorado City will feature such players as Doug Chitsey and Don Randle. Ballinger has a "senior squad" this season, as only two players are not seniors. Kirk Francis will be the Bearkat's main weapon and Sonora will be sporting such players as Scott Miller and Esau Ramirez. The Lions will be looking for their first playoff berth since the 1970's.

EXTENSION OFFICE NEWS

By Rachel Hall

The Progressive Extension Home-maker Club will have a meeting at 12:00 noon at the Civic Center, January 10. ****

About 87% of all Americans suffer from some form of foot trouble, according to U.S. Public Health Service estimates. By understanding the elements of quality footwear, consumers can guard against foot problems caused by poorly constructed or ill-fitting shoes.

Shoes are built over molded forms, resembling feet, called lasts. The upper material is pulled over the last to form the shape of a shoe. In nearly two-thirds of the shoes made today, the upper is cemented to the sole of the shoe. In men's and children's shoes, the upper is usually stitched to the sole.

Leather is valued as shoe material because it has breathability which permits moisture to evaporate. That's important because the feet have 250,000 sweat glands, which produce a half pint of moisture a day.

About 35% of all shoe upper materials sold in the U.S. are man-made. For some uses, such as sandals, man-made materials may be a better buy or better choice than leather. Vinyls are extremely durable, but inflexible. The urethanes are more supple and softer than vinyl and look more like leather. The poromerics look the most like leather and have good breathability.

You can check the manufacturer's label to determine what material has been used to make the upper. In sandals, man-made materials are often the most economical choice since breathability is not an issue.

In addition, check for these features of shoe quality:

Lining. Leather linings are desirable in a closed shoe because of the need for moisture release. Foam-backed tricot, is also effective. A lining is not always needed on a casual or open shoe.

Soles. The three most common materials used in soles are leather; leather-like manmades, and natural or synthetic rubber. Leather soles breathe, but wear out more quickly and absorb water in wet weather. Polyurethane soles are more durable than leather but can be somewhat slippery. Synthetic rubber soles cushion the foot well, are long wearing and do not get sticky in the heat.

Lifts. A lift is the bottom area of the heel that takes the most abuse and is likely to wear out more quickly than any other shoe part. Nylon and polyurethane lifts are generally sturdier and longer wearing than rubber.

Back seam. The back seam is a vulnerable part of the shoe. Look for reinforcement with a collar or an added layer of material at stress points.

Counter. The counter is a piece of molded stiffening material that strengthens the back area of constructed shoes. The higher the heel on a woman's shoe, the longer the counter should be.

Counterpocket. The extra lining inside the back of the shoe should keep your heel from slipping. Suede is the preferred material.

Shank. A steel, wood or synthetic piece is inserted under the arch of a shoe for reinforcement. All constructed shoes, even flat ones, should have a shank. A squeaking or clicking sound while walking can indicate that the shank is loose.

Laces and straps. Lace holes should be reinforced, either with rust resistant brass or chip resistant painted eyelets. Some eyelets are reinforced on the inside of the shoe. Straps should have at least five holes for fit adjustment.

Finishing. All top lines should be neatly finished and all stitching should be neat and even with no loose threads and no missed stitches.

CARD OF THANKS
The Enriquez and Vargas families would like to express their thankfulness for all the food, gifts, prayers and companionship during the time of sorrow over our loved one.

Alcohol content in children's medicine can be dangerous

The high alcohol content in many children's medicines can be harmful if these medicines are taken too often or in large doses, a Baylor College of Medicine pediatrician warns.

Alcohol, or ethanol, can be found in more than 700 liquid medicines including teething preparations, decongestants and cough suppressants. The alcohol content of these medicines ranges from three-tenths of one percent to 68 percent.

"If children are given large doses of an alcohol-based medication or take it too often, the central nervous system can be affected," said Clifford Mishaw, M.D., a pediatrician at Baylor. "Symptoms of this include decreased reaction time, lack of muscle coordination, behavioral changes and drowsiness."

Several of the medicines containing alcohol are available without a prescription, so parents may not be aware of the alcohol content, Mishaw said.

Parents should read labels on these medications to determine the alcohol percentage and follow dosage directions carefully.

Alcohol is used in liquid medicines to dissolve drugs that can't dissolve in water. Infants and small children have to be given liquid medicines since they can't swallow pills safely.

Parents need to tell their pediatrician if their child is taking an over-the-counter medication. Prescription medications should not be taken along with any over-the-counter drugs unless a physician is consulted.

"The alcohol in over-the-counter medications can alter how other drugs are absorbed or broken down in the child's system," Mishaw said. "This interaction can change the effectiveness of the drug or cause adverse reactions such as nausea, vomiting or an increased heart rate."

Although it is rare for a child to suffer permanent neurologic damage or die from using alcohol based medications, Mishaw stressed that parents should be aware of their potential danger.

The American Academy of Pediatrics offers these tips for giving children medications containing alcohol:

Consult a physician before giving a child younger than 6 over-the-counter medications containing alcohol.

Buy small containers of all medications to decrease the chances of an accidental overdose.

Secure safety caps on medications and store those without child-proof lids out of the child's reach.
