In Joann Babbitt's kitchen, there hangs a plaque which reads, "If I had known grandchildren were this much fun, I would have had them first." I can only say, "ain't it the truth."

I await the arrival of my second grandchild with great anticipation. Incidentally, it's due today. I also have reservations. I cannot imagine being as crazy about a second little human being as I am about my granddaughter, Natalie. How can it possibly be as much fun as she? Is it possible for another one to be as smart, as pretty, as charming and loveable as this one? I have my doubts, but all my friends who have more than one tell me I will be just as hysterical over this one as I was the first. Grandmothers have a lot in common. They all think their grandchildren are just the most wonderful things God ever put on this earth.

People who have no grandchildren are just plain bored to death when they are in a group of people who do have grandchildren. They are forced to view hundreds of pictures and hear dozens of stories, sometimes the same one over and over. Just think, two and one-half years ago, I was one of the bored. Now, I'm one of the boring.

We don't usually print rumors, but we have been chasing one down for a couple of weeks now. Rumor had it that everything from a maximum security prison to a camp for illegal aliens was going to be built at Crockett Heights. The residents there have had a couple of community meetings about the matter. Another rumor had it that it would boost the economy with a $25,000 weekly payroll, etc.

We think we have solved the puzzle. According to a high official, contact was made by a Midland party about the feasibility of placing a federal minimum security facility at the Heights. Monday the Midland people were contacted and we were informed the deal had fallen through due to lack of funds. So, for now, it's no prison-no payroll.

Chet Phillip, driver for the Circle Bar Auto Racing crew, had some plain bad luck Sunday, in the Michigan 400. He was in tenth place with less than 19 laps to go when two cars in front of him spun out, and his car hit the back of one of the other cars, knocking him out of the race. We wish Chet better luck Sunday, June 29, when #81 will race in the Daytona 400, one of the biggest stock car events.

I hope I have retired when computers take over the world. Last week was one of the worst in our history. Our computerized typesetter broke down Monday, and all efforts to get a service man out failed. I woke up worrying about it Tuesday at 3 o'clock, bathed, dressed and got to the office at 4 a.m. I adjusted everything I could think of on the machine, to no avail. We made up the paper and I took off for Sonora to use their headliner. It took 2 1/2 hours. I left Sonora for the printer in San Angelo around 5 p.m. When I got back to the office and was unloading papers, it was 10:30. What a day! And, wouldn't you know, the repairman showed up at 8 a.m. the next day. Who needs it?

J. Cleo Thompson

to drill in county field

J. Cleo Thompson, Dallas, will attempt to reopen the Clayton Ranch (Ellenburger gas) field of Crockett County with the scheduling of its No. 1 Clayton-Hemphill, a 9,500-foot project, one location southwest of the depleted opener and 10 miles east-southeast of Ozona.

Location is 660 feet from the south and 1,250 feet from the west lines of 12-GH-GC&SF.

The opener, Magnolia Petroleum Co. No. 1 Boyd Clayton, was finished June 13, 1950, for a calculated, absolute open flow of 9,275,000 cubic feet of gas daily, with gas-liquid ratio of 77,292-1, through perforations at 8,489-565 feet.

WOOL JUDGING TEAM got second place in the State 4-H Roundup. Members of the team are Andy Stokes, Martin Childress, Cody Sutton and George Wall.

West Texas Masters Track Meet set for July

Plans are underway for the third annual West Texas Masters Track Meet which will be held at Lion Stadium July 12.

This event first began on July 15, 1983, in Ozona, after watching a neighboring town (Eldorado) present a meet. It had seemed to not only be so much fun, created so much excitement, and had generated a close bond, not only between athletes, but new and old friends were made. It was something that would and could create a multipurpose project that would satisfy a large majority of people not only in Ozona, but all over Texas.

With the permission of the Ozona School District, two people set out to accomplish a multipurpose project. (1) To benefit some young person in West Texas who is faced with a major disease or accident. (2) To help promote not only the Masters track program, but to encourage a fitness program for all ages, especially those 30 years and over. (3) A community project in Ozona for the purpose of a group of citizens and civic minded organizations that they might work together as a unit. (4) To help promote the community of Ozona with a possibility of putting it on the map. (5) To help the sagging economy of Ozona with the possibility of several hundred people coming to this area. All these purposes have been fulfilled and with such success that in 1984, it was necessary to form a 12 man steering committee to help with decisions and policy. All the meets, 1983 through 1985, proved to be the largest masters track meet in Texas. As of the meet in 1983, the West Texas Masters has been placed on the Texas masters circuit as the meet to participate in. Already, existing meets in south Texas and in San Antonio have been postponed to another date so they may take part in the meet in Ozona.

The first year the West Texas Masters attracted 167 athletes participating in one to 14 events each with several well known Master tracksters. In 1985, the meet had 287 to take part setting 91 division records, also drawing even more well known athletes. This year, 1986, a large number of personal invitations have been sent to National and American record holders, some of which have already consented to be a part of the West Texas Masters. A record number of contestants, well over 300, will be in Ozona, July 12, to take part in now, a Nationally known meet.

Publicity on the West Texas masters are sent to three national masters and running magazines, one Texas sponsored running magazine, eighty-seven state, area, and community newspapers, thirty-nine state, area, and local FM and AM radio stations, and seventeen television stations in Texas. The meet in 1985 was filmed by KLST TV channel 8 and then was viewed that night plus several other times. This year's meet will be covered by several television stations, some live, some filmed as well as coverage by AM and FM radio stations, local and area.

Over 450 entry forms have been sent to all areas to Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas, Louisiana, and Illinois. Among those attending are Dr. Charles Beaudry who holds six world and five American records in masters competition, J.A. Alexander who holds three world records and one American record, Wendell Palmer who holds three American records, Dr. Fred White who holds two American records, and several others who have been invited but have not confirmed their participation as of yet.

As one can see, 1986 promises to be a record year for the West Texas Masters and the future of meets to come can only be greater than the year before.

Senior citizens center to open

The new Senior Citizens Center is a dream come true for Helping Hands for the Elderly. The grand opening of the facility will be Sunday and the community is invited between the hours of 3 and 6 p.m.

If you had to pick one person who was responsible for the entire thing, you would have to name Kathy Reavis. She persevered when things seemed hopeless.

She was responsible for incorporating Helping Hands for the Elderly, and starting the Meals on Wheels program early in 1983. Meals were prepared at the Catholic Church and volunteers delivered them from that facility. At that time food was furnished by the Department of Human Resources and COG out of the Junction agency. The program was going well until October of 1985, when inspectors said the kitchen did not meet requirements and cut off the food supply, effectively closing the program down.

More bad luck fell when the board of directors purchased the building behind Westerman Drug in October, 1984 for the purpose of building a senior citizen center and a place to move the food program. After months of hard work, all volunteer labor on the part of the community, that plan had to be tabled. Most were sure the whole thing was falling apart, except for Mrs. Reavis. She met with DHR officials and COG members, along with the Crockett County Commissioners Court.

Meanwhile, Aleane Sutton, donated an old building on 12th Street. A former welding shop, it looked impossible to transform. The board and volunteers got together and after work and on weekends the center began to take shape. The court allocated $25,000 toward the program and the meals program began again, still at the Catholic Church kitchen. Three and one-half months after the program came to a halt, the elderly were getting their meals again and work was going full steam on the center.

Those who could pay were charged just the cost of the meal, and those who could not were served anyway. With fund raisers, help and donations from the community, the furnishings and appliances were paid off and the center was finished. Mela Flores and Juanita Delgado, the only paid workers, were with the group throughout the ups and downs, and still doing the job.

The board of directors is headed up by Mrs. Reavis. Other members are Jerry Hill, Rachel Hall, Margaret Porras, Savannah Wright, Helen Wall, Jim Gray, Beth Boyd, Elma Buckner, Blanca Castro and Janet Hill. Mrs. Hill is treasurer of the organization and reports monthly to the commissioners court.

The center will be open daily for recreation for senior citizens. Programs have not yet been made up, but dominoes and checkers will head the list. Handwork programs such as ceramics are in the offing.

Mrs. Reavis is quick to say, "I didn't do it by myself, I had lots of help." However, she certainly deserves the Lion's share of the credit.

4-H members place in state 4-H Roundup

Eight Crockett County 4-H members participated in State 4-H Roundup Contest with 2000 4-H members and leaders in College Station, June 10 and 11. The wool judging team, consisting of Martin Childress, Andy Stokes, Cody Sutton, and George Wall, placed second. Their coach was Brian May.

The range evaluation team consisting of Keith Fowler, Bryan Harms, and John Williams placed seventh. John Williams was 3rd overall high-point individual. Their coaches were Reggie Quiett and Larry Williams.

Trebie West competed in the State 4-H Food Show and received a red award.

Those accompanying the 4-Hers included: Larry Williams, Brian May, Wesley and Sharmar West, Tamel West, Billy Reagor, and Rachel Hall.

School board hires new Ag. teacher

Members of the Ozona School Board, meeting in regular session on Monday, June 9, approved the employment of Brent Pool as Ozona High School's vocational agriculture teacher next year. Mr. Pool is a 1982 graduate of Tarleton State University in Stephenville and has been teaching in the Miles Independent School District for the past four years.

While at Miles, he trained three state qualifying agriculture mechanics teams, one state winning agriculture mechanics team, four area livestock judging teams, and four area poultry judging teams. He also served as an advisor to eleven Lone Star Farmers, one American Farmer, and four Houston scholarship winners.

Assistant Superintendent Ted Cotton presented a report on the 1986 Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills (T.E.A.M.S.) tests which were administered to students in the third, fifth, seventh, and ninth grades in February. Mr. Cotton reported that 95 percent of the students in the third grade passed the mathematics section of T.E.A.M.S., 91 percent passed reading, and 78 percent passed the total writing section of T.E.A.M.S. The total writing section of T.E.A.M.S. consists of multiple-choice questions on English grammar, as well as a written composition.

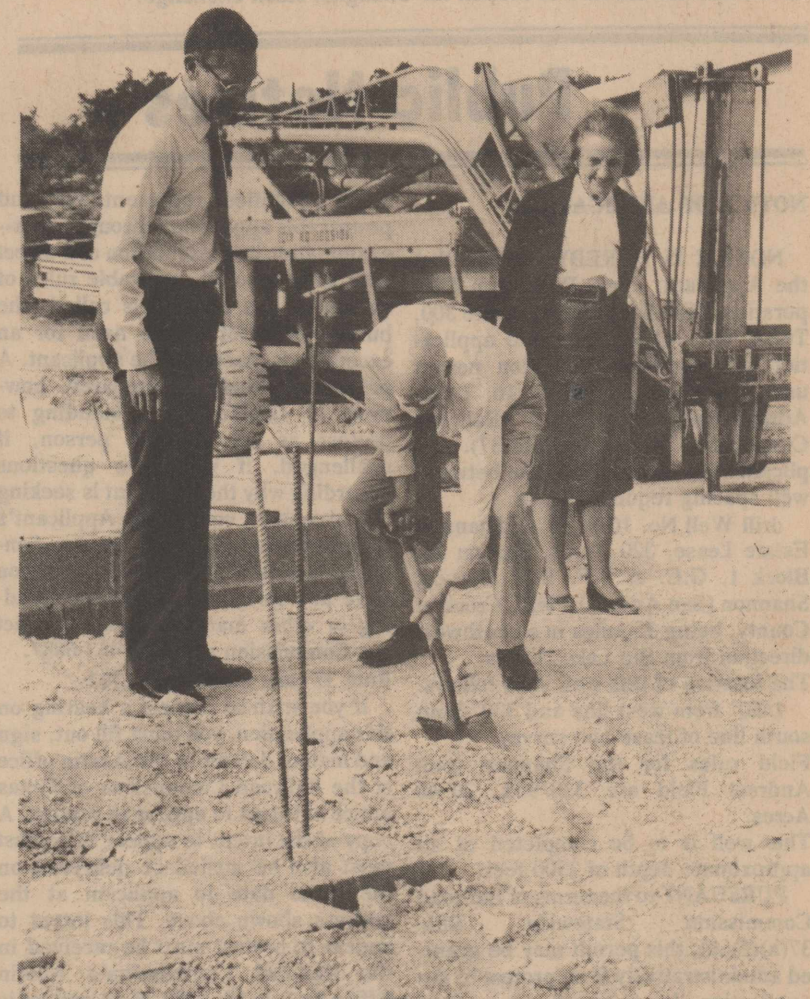

In the fifth grade, 82 percent of the students passed mathematics, 91 percent passed reading, and 67 percent passed the total writing section. Seventy-nine percent of the seventh grade student passed mathematics, 82 percent passed reading, and 72 percent passed the total writing portion of T.E.A.M.S. In the ninth grade, 79 percent of the students passed mathematics, 87 percent passed reading, and 74 percent passed writing.

While the scores in several areas were somewhat low, Mr. Cotton pointed out that several learning objectives that students have consistently scored very high on have been eliminated and more difficult learning objectives have been added.

Mr. Cotton also gave an update on the recently-administered Exit-Level T.E.A.M.S. tests which all eleventh grade students have to pass before becoming eligible to receive their high school diploma at the end of their senior year. He reported that the English language arts section of T.E.A.M.S., and only four juniors have not passed the mathematics section. Students who fail to pass one or both sections of the test will have two additional opportunities to retake the failed section(s) next year.

Superintendent Garland Davis gave a report on a foreign language interest survey that was conducted in Ozona High School in May, and the Board discussed the district's participation in a school drug prevention program for next year.

QADDAFI, SDI, ET CETERA

By Edwin Feulner

The results are in: of the hundreds of people responding to our recent Feulner poll, 93 percent said "President Reagan did the right thing" when he had the U.S. military bomb terrorist headquarters in Libya.

A reader from Denver wrote: "We should all thank God for a strong president who has guts and acts like an American." The reader was not my friend, Joe Coors, but a self-professed lifelong Democrat.

Another reader, the publisher of the Belleville (Kan.) Telescope, said, "It is time that the U.S. let the world know we are not the wishy-washy nation the national news media view us as."

A Wheeling, W. Va., reader sent us a poem from her son-in-law, a marine serving aboard the U.S.S. America. His message to Moammar: "The air wing's all primed, And covers the sky, Your missiles mean nothing, We spit in your eye."

And from Fort Worth, Tex., came the suggestion: "Let's go get Qaddafi's nose."

We heard from readers all across the country: Muskegon, Mich.; Titusville, Pa.; Manchester, N.H.; Clovis, N. Mex.; Steubenville, Ohio; Boston; Brattleboro, Vt.; Zanesville, Ohio; Wierton, W. Va.; Cumberland, Md.; Springfield, Ill.; Atlanta; Birmingham — from towns and cities large and small.

Perhaps the reader who said it best wrote from Van Nuys, Calif. "President Reagan is the only president in a lot of years to have the courage to take this kind of action to preserve our rights," the writer said. "Hurry for us all!"

To the few readers who disagreed: thanks for writing anyway. I appreciated hearing from you all — though I don't plan to send an invitation to my next family barbecue to the reader who said he hopes a camel relieves itself in my yard.

On other matters:

- Whatever happened to the scientific method? More than 6,500 "scientists," have signed a "pledge of nonparticipation" in the Reagan administration's Strategic Defense Initiative. Though the anti-missile space shield program is still in its infancy, some 3,700 professors and "researchers" and 2,800 graduate students have decided the program is so "ill-conceived and dangerous," they won't study the feasibility of shooting missiles out of the sky. Former National Academy of Sciences President Frederick Seitz criticized the group for taking a position "in advance of proper research, experimentation and testing." It's been a lot of years since I studied chemistry and physics, but I do remember being taught that scientists are different: that they don't make up their minds until after they systematically and objectively collect and test their data. Deciding in advance that something cannot work is decidedly unscientific.

- "Reality is busting out all over," says the International Harry Schultz Letter. Written by the man the Guinness Book of Records describes as the world's highest-paid investment consultant, the newsletter was talking about trends in free-enterprise capitalism. What is there to cheer about? Lots, according to investment guru Schultz. Countries moving to deregulate and denationalize their economies include Holland, Sweden, New Zealand, West Germany, Belgium, the Republic of China (Taiwan), France, Hungary, and the People's Republic of China, which has decided to allow residents to hold foreign currency accounts for the first time since 1949, and has decided to reopen the Shanghai stock exchange.

"FASTER, DARN IT, FASTER! WE'VE GOT DEADLINES TO MEET!"

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—State Treasurer Ann Richards told House members last week that if the projected deficit goes over $1.3 billion, the state could start writing hot checks as early as December.

Richards also confirmed the state has lost more than $20 million in potential interest because the state has had to borrow from some funds to pay bills.

Despite the fact the deficit predicament remains uncertain, no special session has been called to balance the budget, but Richards said "the general revenue fund has needed money almost every day this year."

Her message to legislators came out the same week a Texas Poll indicated that most Texans favor a tax increase—first choice the sales tax—instead of loss of services, by 72 to 21 percent.

Those lawmakers who are already prepared to raise taxes next January praised the results. Others remained quietly skeptical.

Campaign Issue

Certainly, the issue of a tax bill is growing into perhaps the biggest campaign issue.

While Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby agreed with the poll results and backed a tax hike, most lawmakers quietly agreed it's easy enough for him to say. He is not opposed by a strong candidate.

Governor Mark White, on the other hand, has already signed the largest tax hike in Texas history, even though he promised not to, and he signed the telephone tax last session. White cannot possibly come out in favor of another tax increase, and yet he can't afford to go against the Democratic leadership which says taxes will be raised. In short, he's got to stay silent.

Taking Over Reins

Former Gov. Bill Clements, who is against new taxes, has been trying to bait White into calling a special session to balance the budget.

In reality, he is daring Democrats to raise taxes just weeks before the November election.

And with White cornered into silence, Hobby is more and more taking over the reins of leadership for the Democrats.

Last week, Hobby and 13 state senators promised to urge the special session if Clements will unveil his so-called "secret plan" to balance the budget without new taxes.

Clements Response

The Clements campaign called the challenge "a giant step forward," but denied ever having a secret plan.

Clements will implement the blueprint that he utilized in his first term, a spokesman said.

If Clements comes out with a workable plan, do you think we'll see a special session this summer or fall?

The move places Mark White in the middle of one heck of a squeeze play. If taxes are raised during a special session, he will certainly hear plenty about it in the weeks left on the campaign trail. But if Democrats join with Republicans and urge him to call it, he will be all by himself, if he refuses.

Another official in a tough spot will be Speaker Gib Lewis, who is against new taxes, but has an opponent in an increasingly Republican district.

Prison Lawsuit

One budget issue is prison construction, which was set back last week when Attorney General Jim Mattox's legal opinion nullified a unique bond plan to finance a new prison.

Prison board officials said they now cannot possibly build a new prison in time to satisfy a federal court deadline. To comply, the prison system will have to release early some 3,000 inmates.

The governor and House Speaker Gib Lewis have vowed that will not happen.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club
by Mrs. Bailey Post

Now that we have had spring and summer moisture you may be encouraged to plan for a more successful flower garden for the summer and fall. You can benefit from flowers around your home in a variety of ways. They add color and appeal, fresh flowers for your home, help give light physical activity, and a pleasure of accomplishment from your efforts.

To repeat with the basics, all flowers can be classed as annuals, biennials, bulbs, or perennials.

Not all color comes from true flowers, coleus, dusty miller, and others are used for colorful foliage.

At planting time, try not to attempt more than you can manage to maintain. A small, well cared for border adds to the beauty, but a large one with weeds, grass and struggling flowers begging for attention can be very discouraging.

Select location for flowers that help them add to the overall picture. This means placing them where they can be seen by you and your visitors. If you have flowers handy to well traveled walks or sitting spots, you are much more likely to have them in arrangements in your home. Too, it gives you a chance to become well acquainted with their finer points, flower characteristics, variations in leaf shapes, and sizes, and other distributions you would not notice from a distance.

Select positions where flowers will grow well, both now and in the future. Avoid putting them around bases of young trees. When the tree grows, it will win out over the competition for light, moisture and nutrients.

Foundation plantings and shrub borders make good backgrounds but enough space should be allowed as plants will not become cramped. Plan flowers that are in scale with the background plants. The simplest plan is to use basic group of perennial flowers, and then add bulbs, annuals, and chrysanthemums for color across the season. They should look good blooming or not. It is best to stick to older proven varieties. An important part of having a good flower garden is keeping it well groomed and within your ability to maintain.

Plans are underway for July Fourth in Ozona

Plans for July the 4th activities are underway at the Chamber of Commerce and an exciting day is in the making.

The possibility of a goat roping at the rodeo park is being discussed, but this is not definite.

Activity will once again fill the town square with many booths of different types. Anyone wishing to have a booth can contact Beth Boyd at the Chamber of Commerce by July 2, at 392-3066. Booths must be sponsored by an organization and not an individual.

Willena Holden along with other bands will provide music in the square. A greased pole will also be available for those who want to attempt to climb it. The Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a washer pitching contest.

There will be no fireworks extravaganza this year because it has become too expensive. First of all, the Chamber of Commerce would have to give the State of Texas a bond in the amount of

Firemen answer three calls in week

The Ozona Volunteer Fire Department was called to duty three times during this past week.

Wednesday, June 11, at 5:44 p.m. a call was received to Highway 137 for a blue chevrolet which caught fire. It was driven by Abel Mendoza from Iraan. Firemen used 400 gals. of water and returned to the station by 6:10 p.m.

On Thursday, June 12, firemen were sent in two directions as overlapping calls came in.

At 3:29 p.m. a fire on a tank battery one mile south of Highway 290 at the Perner Ranch on the Mitchell Black Top was reported.

About 30 minutes later, another call was received for a truck fire two miles west of the Crockett/Sutton County line. The left rear inside tire had blown out.

Firemen returned from the tank battery at 4:35 p.m. and from the truck fire at 4:58 p.m.

The Southern Baptist Convention----

One pastor's perspective

by Jim Gray

Last week, Southern Baptists, more than 40,000 in all, from all 50 states and several foreign countries gathered in Atlanta, Georgia for the annual Southern Baptist Convention. The theme of the convention was "love never fails" based upon 1 Corinthians 13:8. The purpose of the convention was to hear reports from Baptist seminaries, colleges, and institutions, and to conduct business including the election of officers.

The convention opened Tuesday morning and was presided over by Dr. Charles Stanley, President of the Convention and pastor of First Baptist Church of Atlanta. Dr. Staley gave the "President's" address at the close of the morning session. On Tuesday afternoon a new president was elected to succeed Dr. Stanley who has served the maximum two consecutive terms. The new President is Adrian Rogers, pastor of Bellevue Baptist Church in Memphis, Tennessee. Rogers was opposed by Winifred Moore, pastor of First Baptist Church of Amarillo, who received 45 percent of the total votes. Rogers has been identified with the conservative, fundamentalist movement while Moore has been identified with the more moderate group.

Some within the Convention believe there has been a slow erosion of fundamental Baptist beliefs. Some seminary and college professors and administrators have been accused of espousing the "spot" theory. That is, that the Bible is literally true and in others it is not. The "fundamentalists" fear that if left unchecked, this erosion will lead to a falling away from the faith as in some other denominations which question or deny the virgin birth of Christ and dismiss many of the miracles in the bible. Undoubtedly, there are some in the convention who have espoused such false teaching but the number is believed to be small—these would be termed "liberal".

There is a third group who have been labeled "moderate". The "moderates" claim to hold a traditional, evangelical view of the Bible and its teaching but oppose the harsh tactics they believe the "fundamentalists" are using. Perhaps this analogy will be helpful. The "fundamentalists" see liberal theology as a cancer which must be cut out even if the patient dies. Many "fundamentalists" see no hope for and some desire no reconciliation. The "moderates" on the other hand also see liberal theology as a cancer but prefer the use of chemotherapy with the hope of reconciliation.

While much attention has been focused on the controversy, I still contend that Baptists agree on far more than they disagree on. This is even my contention across denominational lines. I find Bible-believing Christians who have "called upon the name of the Lord" in many different churches.

Understand, that the above perspective is mine. I'm glad to be home and this pastor and First Baptist Church are still in the business of telling the people of Ozona and Crockett County and anywhere else the "Good News" that Jesus saves sinful men.

Tom Diehl takes over at United Diehl is a graduate of Pecos High School and has lived in Ozona for a little over six years. Previously, Diehl had been employed with Texas Oil and Gas for about six years. He then worked for six months with Combined Insurance Company.

Law officers search for man and sons

Law enforcement officers from Ozona as well as those from Iraan and Sheffield, were out most of the night Sunday and early Monday looking for a Sheffield man and his two sons. A DPS helicopter and a Border Patrol plane participated in the search.

Morris Jones and his sons, Shawn and Jeremy, left their Sheffield home Sunday evening to do some practice shooting with a pellet rifle.

After the truck Jones was driving got stuck crossing a draw, the trio spent the night in remote country near Fort Lancaster. The search was initiated about 11 p.m. Sunday, and the three were located at Fort Lancaster around 10 a.m. Monday, where they had walked about a mile for help.

Ozona men spend 6 days on the Pecos

A group of Ozona men recently spent six days on the Pecos River, traveling in five canoes.

The men put in at the Hinds lease on the Pecos and traveled to the Pecos High Bridge. Pancho McMullan and Cap West provided transportation to the river and back to town.

Turns were taken with the cooking and enough fish were caught for those taking turns at cooking to use their imagination. Pete Maldonado served "Catfish Almondine," along with some exotic accompaniments the final night out. Due to rain they stayed in camp one day to dry out.

Making the trip besides Maldonado were Lane Scott, Cliff McMullan, Frank Reavis, Pleas Childress III, David Porter, Dee Keilers, Gene Hood and David North.

HAVE YOU COMPLIMENTED Your Child Today?

A child needs at least one, good solid compliment per day. If "an apple a day keeps the doctor away," a compliment a day will give self-esteem to your child.

Self-esteem is crucial for a person. How does a child build it? Does he come by it himself? Not really. The beginning of self-esteem happens when parents constantly and consistently COMPLIMENT the child.

Children need to hear, "Hey you did a great job." A pat on the back, a "well done," "I appreciate you," "I'm proud of you," are beautiful words to the ears and ego of the child, whether the child is 5 or 50.

Some sons and daughters now grown have never heard their fathers praise them to their faces. Oh, they hear from others how proud Pop is of them, but they may hurt, hoping to hear it with their own ears. And some fathers go to their graves, proud as peaches of their sons, but they never, "Said it."

"A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in baskets of silver." (Proverbs 25:11)

SCS dedicated to improving productivity of rangelands

The Soil Conservation Service is dedicated to improving the productivity of our native rangelands. One of the ways to achieve this goal is to provide technical assistance to ranchers and help them implement a planned grazing system.

A planned grazing system is managing rangeland so it is grazed and then rested in a planned sequence. Livestock are selective in the plants they graze. They tend to repeatedly graze the desirable plants and leave the less desirable plants. This weakens the more desirable plants and allows unwanted plants to thrive and multiply. Almost all rangeland pastures also have areas where livestock concentrate such as around water, bedding grounds, and feed grounds. Under continuous use, these areas are always overgrazed.

Grazing and resting plants on rangeland in a planned sequence gives the better plants a chance to regrow, compete, and multiply, thus gradually increasing the amount of high quality plants available per acre. This improved range condition increases livestock production, improves the habitat for wildlife, reduces erosion, and conserves water. By resting pastures, overgrazed areas are allowed to become productive again.

By combining livestock from several pastures into one herd and grazing one pasture at a time, there is a tendency for them to disperse and improve the grazing distribution over the entire pasture. Planned grazing systems vary somewhat from unit to unit. The kind of system or systems, may depend on present pasture and corral layout, available water supplies, and economics as well as range condition, kinds and classes of livestock, long-range goals for rangeland improvement, and the time necessary to supervise operation. The point is, rangeland greatly benefits from the graze-rest sequence provided through properly managed planned grazing systems.

For more information on planned grazing systems, contact the local Soil Conservation Service which provides technical assistance to ranchers by working through the Crockett Soil and Water Conservation District.

EXTENSION OFFICE NEWS

By Rachel Hall

Muskmelons, of which cantaloupe and honeydew are varieties, are native to the Near East and are generally thought to have originated in the area that is now Iran. The earliest record of muskmelons was in an Egyptian illustration of funeral offerings dating from 2400 B.C.

The first real mention of what we know today as cantaloupe was in 300 B.C. with the writing of Greek philosopher Theophrastus. However, commercial production of cantaloupe did not begin until the mid-1800's, when farmers in Maryland, Delaware, and New Jersey grew melons. Today virtually all modern commercial cantaloupe production is centered in California, Texas, and Arizona.

The honeydew melon has a much shorter history and is thought to have originated in the tropic and sub-tropic regions of Africa. The first real record of honeydews came in 1869 when the French seed company Vilmorin Aydiereux and Co. registered a melon variety called the White Antibes.

Cantaloupe and Honeydew are very high in vitamin C and cantaloupe are particularly rich in vitamin A. One eighth of honeydew has 60 calories, 15 g. carbohydrate, 1 g. protein, 60 mg. sodium, 410 mg potassium, and 1 g. dietary fiber. One fourth of a cantaloupe has 50 calories, 1 g. protein, 14 g. carbohydrates, 40 mg. sodium, 120 mg. potassium, and 1 g. dietary fiber.

When selecting ripe cantaloupe, look for deep, golden netting over a creamy yellow background. The stem should not be attached to the cantaloupe, since the fruit separates from the stem when mature and should not be picked before that time. A sweet musky aroma is another good indication of a ripe cantaloupe.

A creamy or white color is one way to spot a ripe honeydew melon. A ripe melon will also yield slightly to pressure on the blossom end. If a honeydew appears too firm, let it stand at room temperature to enhance natural sugars and improve the fruit texture.

Preparation-Mother Nature supplies cantaloupe and honeydew in their own serving bowls and they are great to eat chilled just as they come. Here are a few quick and easy recipes using Texas Melons:

Cantaloupe Cocktail with Orange Sauce for Breakfast-Cut the Cantaloupe with a ball cutter or dice to make 3 cups. Blend 1 cup orange juice with 2 tablespoons lemon juice and pour over the cantaloupe. Pile into cold glasses and sprinkle with sprigs of mint dipped in powdered sugar.

Gingered Melon Wedges-Cut 1 large honeydew in half, seed. Cut each half into four wedges. In a cup stir 2 tablespoons of powdered sugar with 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger. Sprinkle over wedges, cover and refrigerate until cold.

Light Melon Lunch-Pile cottage cheese into the cavity of a halved cantaloupe. Delicious and low cal! Easy and Refreshing "Company Desert"-Chill for an hour either honeydew or cantaloupe halves. Fill cavity with sherbet or vanilla ice cream. Garnish with granola or chopped nuts.

El Chato's and Mayfield trade out in Little League play

Mayfield Construction downed El Chatos 6 to 4 in Little League play Monday night.

Matthew Marshall pitched three full innings and Mark Ramirez pitched three full innings for El Chatos. Also Ramirez brought in the first run during the second inning while Marshall brought in the second run during the fourth inning and went on to bring in the third run during the sixth inning.

After a hard fought ballgame, Ramirez brought in a fourth run. Mayfield Construction managed to bring in six runs to end the ballgame.

El Chatos turned the tables on the Mayfield crew in a make-up game Wednesday night getting a 10 to 6 victory.

Marshall pitched three full innings with three strike outs. Ramirez also pitched three full innings with four strike outs.

During the second inning Michael Sizek put his excellent "sneak technique" to work and scored the first run for El Chatos.

Mayfield Construction seemed to overpower the El Chatos boys for a while scoring several times. During the bottom of the fifth inning El Chatos decided to run away with the ballgame.

With the teammates supporting each other they scored nine runs to win. Diego Pena, who did an excellent job at first base, scored the second run. James Tambunga who "shines" as catcher, scored the third run. Tim Wheeler scored the fourth, Ramirez hit for the fifth. Sizek, Shane Hester, Gerald Ortiz, Pena, and Tambunga all scored again.

At the top of the sixth inning when Mayfield Construction went to bat, pitcher Ramirez struck out their first batter, then Pena caught a pop fly for the second out and on a tricky stop by Ortiz, who teamed up with Pena, the third out was made.

Journey through Texas ---

The battle of Adobe Walls

"I am often questioned about my experiences on the frontier, as if the life has been filled with unbearable hardships, to be shunned and forgotten. Gladly would I live it all over again....I would run the risks and endure all the hardships that are naturally ours just for the contentment and freedom to be found in such an outdoor life...Coming generations will never know the trials and hardships we endure. We have helped build a great empire in the west."

--Billy Dixon

By the summer of 1874, Billy Dixon has been making a comfortable living as a buffalo hunter for some time. Bull buffalo hides bring as much as $4 each, and while the herds are thinning, Billy and his .50 caliber rifle can still keep two or three skinners busy for days. Billy and his men hunt near the growing Adobe Walls settlement in the Texas panhandle. Adobe Walls was a Spanish settlement much earlier, and a trading post in the 1840s. Now it is a small town created by the buffalo-hunting business.

The herds are running and business is good for the hunters. But one day, Joe Plummer returns with supplies from Adobe Walls to find his two partners "scalped, a heavy wooden stake driven through the breast of one which pins him to the ground, and otherwise mutilated in a shocking manner," Billy says. The Indians are on the warpath.

"All of us feel that their murders have been perpetrated as a warning to the buffalo hunters to leave the country," Billy says. "Every man of us is dead set against abandoning the buffalo range...we are in a fair way to make big money."

The raid prompts many hunters to seek protection at Adobe Walls. Thus many of them sleep in Hanrahan's saloon and four adjacent buildings the night of June 26, 1874. Suddenly a sound like a rifle shot rings out, awakening two of the men. The big cottonwood ridgepole which supports the saloon's sod roof has popped for some reason. The two rouse 15 other men to help shore up the pole lest it collapse on those inside. Dawn breaks as the job is finished. Billy and Hanrahan decide to stay up and start working. As Billy secures his bedroll on his wagon, he looks up to see 700 Indians speeding towards the camp.

"There has never been a more splendidly barbaric sight...Hundreds of warriors, the flower of the fighting men of the Southwestern Plains tribes, mounted on their finest horses...coming like the wind. I must confess, however, that the landscape possesses little interest for me when I see the Indians are coming to attack us. War whooping has a very appreciable effect upon the roots of a man's hair."

The 28 men and one woman hole up inside the stores, firing from behind sacks of grain and flour. The sod walls stop bullets and keep the Indians from burning the building. Wave after wave of Indians attacks the buildings, but kill only two men at the outset of the battle. The hunters take a heavy toll and the Comanches, Kiowas and Cheyennes fall back. By 2 p.m. the Indians are back to the foot hills and firing only at intervals.

After two days the Indians retreat entirely. Billy and the others bury the fragrant bodies of the dead Indians and horses. All their horses have been killed or run off. The men wait until a German settler happens in for supplies before they can go to Dodge City for help from the Army and the restoration of peace.

"Had it not been for the cracking of that pole...the Indians would have come upon us unawares, yet we never can find a single thing wrong with that log." But, the fight at Adobe Walls breaks up buffalo hunting in that section just as the Indians want, and Dixon speculates that this may be the last buffalo hunting he ever does as a business.

Roger and Elizabeth Dudley entertained her sisters Saturday, June 7, on the occasion of their 44th wedding anniversary, with a dinner at the Circle Bar Restaurant. Attending were Edith and Sterling Jennings of San Angelo. It was her birthday. Also Lois and Bryan Phoenix of Crane, who were celebration their anniversary, and Mrs. Phoenix's twin sister, Joyce Cooper of New Mexico.

The youth group from First Baptist Church left today for Dallas, where they will spend a day at Six Flags and go to a two day Youth Evangelism Conference at Reunion Arena. They will return Saturday night.
