School bells ring once again

by Ted Cotton,
 Asst. Superintendent

"Where did the summer go?" Do you mean it's time for school again? These are only two of the many expressions that have been heard around Ozona this week as administrators, teachers, parents, and students make final preparations for the beginning of school on Wednesday, Aug. 30.

Research report says local schools in good light

AUSTIN - School budgets have been increased by 50 percent since the school reform HB 72 was enacted five years ago. A total of $13.5 billion was approved by school trustees in 1,055 Texas school districts last year. To pay for it, officials levied local property taxes totaling $5.6 billion. The state provided $4.9 billion. The remainder came from school lunch and other fees, federal aid, bond sales, interest, and other revenue.

The figures come from the latest issue of Bench Marks 1988-89 School District Budgets in Texas, an annual publication of the Texas Research League, an Austin-based, educational corporation engaged in governmental research.

An average of $3,384 per student for current operations was budgeted last year plus $288 for repayment of debt and $464 per student for capital outlay.

Ozona Public Schools' budget provided $4,663.53 per student for current operations, $568.59 for debt service, and $145.07 per student for capital outlay based on the 927 students enrolled in the fall semester of 1988. The average salary for classroom teachers paid by Ozona Public Schools in 1987-88 was $25,553 plus supplements for the career ladder.

 In Ozona Public Schools, the average salary for administrators was $36,715, and $28,727 for other professional support employees (librarians, counselors, nurses, supervisors, etc.).

Petitions oppose Val Verde explosion

Petitions opposing a series of underground explosions in Val Verde County are circulating in Ozona.

The series of explosions planned by the Defense Nuclear Agency has created concern that the blast might allow salt water to infiltrate underground fresh water supplying Del Rio and Laughlin Air Force Base.

A government fact sheet states that the explosives, which would include ammonium nitrate, would begin with a blast from 1,000-pound charges in April 1990. A 10-ton blast would follow in May of 1991 and the largest blast with 300-ton charges in November of 1992.

Purpose of the explosions is to simulate the impact of Soviet nuclear warheads on subterranean command centers according to the DNA.

Del Rio officials have presented petitions in Washington, D.C. signed by more than 10,000 Val Verde citizens protesting the plan. Del Rio's population is estimated at 40,000.

In response to inquiries from the Mexican government, the State Department said that the blast is expected to create "a big underground hole and nothing else".

Fracturing from the explosion will extend less than one kilometer from the site resulting in a cavity 100 square feet by 50 feet according to the message.

The petition being circulated in Ozona by the Riverside Landowners Protection Coalition, Inc. is directed to national, state and local officials requesting that they do everything possible to prevent the blasting.

County workmen position a state marker commemorating Emerald townsite on the courthouse lawn Tuesday. Preliminary preparations for the marker placement, including a drawing, building forms for the base and digging the location, were done by Ricky Burger as a community service project in becoming an Eagle Scout. The marker has been in storage for a number of years after being removed from the roadside park east of Ozona when I-10 was built.

he will face a credibility hurdle the first time a reporter asks him if he will raise taxes, which will probably occur the day he becomes a candidate.

If he answers yes, he'll drag down the credibility of fellow Democrats Mattox and Richards, two liberals expected to be friendly to new taxes, as Hance painted them.

If he answers no, voters will be reminded that he broke that pledge once before and has never apologized for doing so.

Political Reform

When the well-healed Capitol crowd dismissed state Sen. Chet Edwards' chances for lieutenant governor against well-funded Comptroller Bob Bullock, Edwards challenged lawmakers to clean up gifts from lobbyists and misuse of state funds.

He angered more than a few lawmakers by predicting that voters won't approve their salary increase in November unless legislators clean up their act.

Edwards, one lawmaker said, was trying to create a campaign issue and should not be taken seriously.

But every week some new report surfaces of questionable gifts or improper state spending. The issue is far from dead.

Dog Track Snitch

A runner-up group for the controversial Galveston dog track license says it may pay the monetary price sought by a man who told authorities he was paid by the license winner to sabotage other applicants.

The winner adamantly denied the charges. Officials are still investigating.

One of the secret ambitions of some people is to be able to enjoy some of the evils which go with having too much money.

Summer Treats

The stamp collecting program presented by Mr. Domingo Sedeno from the Main Post Office in San Angelo was lots of fun. The kids were informed and entertained by a video of Benjamin Franklin telling the story of the post office and highlighting commemorative stamps that are fun and profitable to collect. Mr. Sedeno went on to explain how stamp collecting works and how to get started in this great hobby. He gave the kids a preview of the new stamps coming out in October and outlined the Benjamin Franklin Stamp Club that is sponsored by the US Post Office and how they could join in the fun. It was a wonderful program and I want to thank Mr. Sedeno for coming, and I hope he will come back soon to keep us informed about the world of stamps.

CCPL is looking forward to the story of Ft. Lancaster presented by Mr. Ron Alton on Wednesday, Aug. 23, at 10:00 a.m. Mr. Alton will show a slide presentation covering the history of Ft. Lancaster and the restoration work that is going on all the time. Ft. Lancaster was an important outpost and center of protection for the early settlers of our area and Mr. Alton has put together a great program covering this historic fort. Come Check It Out!

Mrs. Gonzales is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Valadez of Ozona. She is a 1964 graduate of Ozona High School and is employed in the San Angelo school district.

Those from out-of-town attending the ceremony included her parents of Ozona, her aunts, Olivia Munoz and Effida Bryan and son William, and Beatrice Medina, all of Del Rio, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Bayarena Jr. of Fort Worth, Mr. and Mrs. Jesus Bayarena of Corpus Christi, Danny Valadez of Fort Worth, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Valadez and sons Phillip and Kevin of San Angelo, Debbie and Ernest Rodriguez of Abilene, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Robert Valadez and son Bryon of Ozona.

A barbecue supper honoring Mrs. Gonzales was attended by approximately 125 guests Saturday evening, Aug. 19, at the Johnson Street Church of Christ Willow Camp.

Mark Dudley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dudley, was among the 236 students receiving degrees at summer commencement at Angelo State University Aug. 18. Mark earned a bachelor of business administration degree.

Allan W. Ostar, president of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, was the featured speaker at the ceremony in the ASU Physical Education Building.

Jack B. Smith, Jr., president of the local Federal Land Bank Association was elected president of the State Federal Land Bank President's Association for 1989-1990 at their annual meeting held in San Antonio Aug. 3, 1989.

Voyager 2 signals at ASU Aug. 21-25

The Planetarium at Angelo State University will receive satellite transmissions from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) Jet Propulsion Laboratory, broadcasting images transmitted from Voyager 2 as it makes its closest approach to the planet Neptune, Aug. 21-25, according to Dr. Mark Sonntag, ASU Planetarium Director.

Sonntag received notice from NASA early in August that satellite transmissions would be available for reception by the ASU Planetarium during the historic pass-by.

The ASU Planetarium, located in the Nursing-Physical Science Building at ASU, will be open to the public from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. every weekday of the Voyager 2/Neptune encounter, so the public can enjoy this once-in-a-lifetime event. On Thursday and Friday, Aug. 24-25, NASA will be broadcasting continuously from 8 a.m., Aug. 24 to 10 p.m. Aug. 25 for the time of Voyager 2's closest approach to Neptune and its largest moon, Triton. The closest approach to Neptune is at 3 a.m. and to Triton at 8:20 a.m. on Friday, Aug. 25.

Sonntag said the broadcasts will be carried on the Planetarium Lobby large screen monitor and in the Planetarium dome.

Four dollars in five were spent for salaries. Statewide payroll expense averaged $2,757 per student as compared to $3,626.86 in Ozona. Payroll expense is a combination of salary levels and staffing patterns.

Taxpayers provided one teacher for 12.5 students in Ozona Public School while the statewide pupil-teacher ratio was 17.1 to one. Because of the existence of small classes, especially at the high-school level, and abbreviated teaching schedules, many other classes have more than the average number of students.

To fund higher school budgets with a declining tax base, school trustees in most districts have raised tax rates. The average school district imposed a property tax at the rate of 91.2 cents per $100 of appraised value, which value averaged 96.5 percent of market value (selling price). The "true tax rate" was 88.1 cents (91.2 times 96.52 percent) statewide. Locally, the Ozona Public Schools imposed a rate of $0.980 while property was appraised at 98.8 percent of its market value making the true rate $0.968 per $100 of market value (selling price).

The report points out that the calculation of a true tax rate based on market value rather than on appraised value enables a valid comparison of tax levels with other schools. In 1988, the true tax rate exceeded $1 in 336 school districts in Texas.

The tax on a house that would sell for $80,000 in Ozona Public School District would have been $504. If the homeowner were eligible for homestead exemptions, the tax would have been $304, and if owned by a person 65 years or older, the tax on an $80,000 house in this district would have averaged $206, or less if subject to a tax freeze. That compares with statewide average tax bills of $723, $638, and $544 respectively for an $80,000 house.

Last year Ozona Public Schools' revenue from the property tax increased by 10.1 percent for 1988-89 as compared to a 6.8 percent increase statewide.

Local property taxes plus state aid was $4,551 per student in Ozona schools as compared to $3,221 statewide. The primary purpose of state aid is to equalize state and local tax resources among schools. In 1988-89 tax resources ranged from less than $2,500 per student in 12 districts to more than $10,000 in five districts.

Sunday's worship service was conducted by members of First Baptist and Calvary Baptist Church. A large number attended, and the singing was great. David McCarley led the singing while his wife, Jerry, played the piano. We would like to thank them for coming.

A special thank you goes out to the Dan Bean Roping Association for their generous donation towards the purchase of a much needed wheelchair.

Beth Crowder is here visiting her daughter, Jeana Kay Saddler, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Crowder. Beth is currently in cosmetology school in Kerrville.

Five rules for ranch drought survival

The probability of a major drought occurring or the possible length of an already existing dry period are usually much discussed subjects by the West Texas rancher. Such discussions are much in evidence at the present time due to higher than normal temperatures and spotty rainfall since the fall of 1988. In the past ten months, many areas in Far West Texas have received less than two inches of precipitation. This lack of moisture has resulted in a continuation of livestock supplemental feeding and an increase in the number of livestock lost to toxic plants.

For the West Texas rancher, drought is a way of life. During the past seventy years, the West Texas area has encountered drought conditions two out of every five years. Droughts in West Texas generally last longer as compared to the rest of the state, with 79% of the droughts lasting two or more years. As such, certain rules should be followed to ensure ranch survival during dry periods.

Rule number one is to constantly evaluate ranch forage supplies and strive to balance livestock numbers with forage availability. Reducing stocking rates during drought pays dividends in terms of less damage to desirable forage plants, more rapid range recovery following drought, reduced supplemental feeding costs, and fewer losses of livestock to toxic plants.

As most West Texas ranchers know, it is very dangerous to overestimate forage supplies. Proper use of West Texas rangeland dictates a maximum 25% use of available forage. For example, if a pasture has available 500 pounds per square acre of usable forage, only 125 pounds per acre should be allocated to livestock use. Continuing with this example, a one section pasture (640 acres) would have available 80,000 pounds of forage. One animal unit will consume 20 pounds of forage per day. If a rancher has 50 animal units grazing the one section pasture, those animals will harvest 1,000 lbs. of forage per day. If no rain occurs, the forage in the pasture could be expected to last 80 days (80,000/1000) at the present rate of stocking.

When estimating future forage supplies, care should be taken to not overestimate the probability of receiving rainfall. For example, a rancher near Big Spring, Texas has a 65% chance of receiving one inch or greater rainfall in August. Near Fort Stockton, that probability drops to 45%, and by the time you reach El Paso, there is only an 8% probability of obtaining one inch or greater of rain in August. Being aware of the above probabilities will help make stocking rate adjustments based on fact, not hope.

Rule number two is to manipulate the livestock mix to reduce drought risk. In general, breeding herds should constitute no more than 60% of the total carrying capacity of a ranch, with the remainder of the stocking rate composed of held over yearlings or stocker type animals. When additional forage is available, extra animals can be purchased to take advantage of the feed. If drought conditions occur and forage supplies are limited, livestock numbers can be reduced by selling the stockers or yearlings first without destroying the integrity of the breed of the herd. Accurate records of livestock performance should be maintained so that when it becomes necessary to reduce the breeding herd, the least desirable animals are culled first.

Rule number three is to supplement livestock to insure that proper nutritional requirements are being met. This is essential to prevent a reduction in reproductive rates and overall performance of livestock during drought. For example, phosphorous is known to be deficient in West Texas range forage. This mineral should be provided year long, free-choice to livestock as a 1:1 calcium:phosphorous mix. Phosphorous should be supplemented not only during drought years, but during the wet ones as well.

Vitamin A can also be expected to be limited during drought conditions. This vitamin can be stored by livestock for a maximum of 90 days. When no green forage is available to livestock exceeding that length of time, it should be supplemented.

Protein and energy can also be expected to be limited during drought. To properly supplement these nutrients, it is beneficial to utilize a forage testing program. The data obtained can then be used to establish what nutrients are limiting and in what quantity they should be supplemented. The result is an accurate supplemental feeding program that provides the required nutrients to each grazing animal while maintaining feeding costs at the lowest possible level. When supplemental feeding, it should be remembered that pregnant females require a much higher nutritional level than animals simply maintaining themselves.

When the range becomes severely forage depleted, caution should be used that supplemental feeding does not evolve into maintenance feeding. If each grazing animal is not able to obtain his fill from the range forage, supplementing this fill will only serve to accelerate permanent range damage by providing livestock the energy to continue to graze any and all remaining forage. At this stage, the alternatives are to either sell animals, lease additional grazing land, move animals to alternative sources of feed, or use a complete semi-drylot program to reduce grazing pressure on the remaining forage.

Rule number four is to be vigilant for potential poisonous plant problems during drought. The possible consumption of toxic plants during drought is increased due to reduced grazing selectivity by livestock. Such problems can be accelerated by livestock deficiencies of phosphorous and vitamin A which can greatly alter livestock grazing behavior. Many toxic plants such as garboncillo are extremely toxic even when dead. During drought conditions, ranchers must keep a close eye on livestock for symptoms of toxicity or use of toxic plants. Be extra observant for the latter condition around watering and bedding areas.

Rule number five is to concentrate on other sources of income such as wildlife during drought. Harvesting wildlife during drought can be good drought strategy in that it promotes a reduction in the incidence of starvation, and associated diseases, and will help maintain the remaining wildlife in a more desirable condition for recovery when drought breaks. All of the above is accomplished while also providing much needed cash flow for the ranch.

In summary, droughts are of common occurrence on rangelands, especially in West Texas. The rancher who plans for these droughts maintains adequate forage reserves by properly balancing his livestock numbers to the forage supplement and uses sound range management principles will not be forced into panic culling of livestock on a depressed market. he will also be able to significantly reduce the long-term adverse effects of drought on the rangeland forage resource.

Wildlife symposium slated for Fort Davis Sept. 19

Wildlife management in the Trans-Pecos region will be the focus of a symposium to be held at the Prude Ranch near Ft. Davis on September 19. The program begins at 9 a.m. and concludes with a barbecue supper that evening. There is a $20 registration fee and participants are encouraged to pre-register by Sept. 1.

"Whereas previous seminars in this area have concentrated on mule deer management, the focus of this meeting will be on other important wildlife in the area, including blue quail, turkey, antelope, javelina, and exotics" said Dr. Dale Rollins, Extension Wildlife Specialist from San Angelo. Other talks will include supplemental feeding, water requirements and facilities, and marketing gamebird hunting.

"At a recent mule deer 'roundtable' in Alpine, area ranchers expressed a need for more management-related information on species besides just mule deer", said Rollins. "The topics and speakers will provide 'hands on' information that should be of interest to ranchers, other landowners, and sportsmen," he added. For more information about the symposium, contact the County Extension Office at 392-2721.

Five rules for ranch drought survival

Agricultural taxpayers may qualify for special tax treatment of income received because of the drought, according to an economist in management with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Wayne Hayenga said the Internal Revenue Service has explained the extent to which payments received by farmers under the Disaster Assistance Act of 1988 and certain other income may qualify for deferral.

He said the IRS also addresses the proper tax treatment of payments and other benefits received by farmers under the act.

Categories of the act include crop loss assistance, livestock sales and feed assistance.

Hayenga said according to the IRS, farmers may elect to defer the inclusion of crop loss assistance payments receive under the Drought Assistance Act until the next tax year.

"All Title II payments are eligible for elective deferral under Section 451(d), regardless of whether they were received before or after the date of enactment," he said.

He said the time and manner of making this affirmative election is described in IRS Publication 225, Farmer's Tax Guide.

Concerning livestock sales caused by the drought, the IRS has ruled that gain from such sales that took place solely because of the drought can be deferred for one year by electing farmers, the economist said.

"The IRS explains how to qualify for the deferral. For example, the sale must occur solely because of drought conditions in the designated area that affected the water, grazing or other requirements of livestock to necessitate the sale," Hayenga said.

Concerning feed assistance, Title I of the act authorizes programs to provide feed assistance and certain other benefits to qualifying livestock producers if the Secretary of Agriculture determines that a livestock emergency exists because of a natural disaster, such as drought.

"Here, the IRS has said that Title I payments are not proceeds from the sale of livestock and so are not eligible for deferral under Section 451(e), nor are they eligible for deferral under Section 451(d) because they aren't compensation for the loss of crops, where income would have been reported in a later tax year," Hayenga said.

He said generally, reimbursement payments under Title I programs are to be included in gross income according to the recipient taxpayer's accounting method.

Genealogical society to meet

The San Angelo Genealogical and Historical Society will meet Tuesday, Sept. 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the Church of Christ at 901 N. Main.

Sue Bramhall, district clerk, will be the speaker for the evening, and the subject of the program will be "district Court Records".

A beginner's genealogical class will be held at 6:45 p.m. before the regular meeting. Visitors are always welcome.

Visiting Dallas for a week was Jessica Galan who made the trip with grandmother Tommie and uncle Thomas. While there they visited with friends and relatives, spent a day at Six Flags, took in the night lights of downtown Dallas, and of course, visited the shopping malls.

Most enjoyable, however, was bringing home Uncle Lee who had spent the summer working in Dallas while staying with his uncle, Jesse Ramos.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as a result of breast cancer. Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate. The cost is only $60.00. A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

Program teaches good parenting

Improving relationships between parents and teenagers will be the focus of a series of discussion sessions beginning Monday, Sept. 11, at the County Courthouse Annex. The program is being sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Crockett County Citizens Advisory Juvenile Board.

The discussions will be based on a program called Systematic Training for Effective Parenting of Teens (STEP/Teen).

STEP/Teen is a sequel to Systematic Training for Effective Parenting (STEP) which is the most widely used parent education program in the country. More than one million people throughout the U.S., Canada and other countries have participated in STEP and STEP/Teen discussion groups since the program was introduced in 1976.

The program encourages mutual respect between parents and teens. It leads to increased cooperation, more effective communication and a more responsible, self-reliant attitude among teenagers.

One parent who participated in the program in Kerr County said, "It's really pretty quiet around here now. We used to do a lot of screaming and hollering and slamming of doors. Now we talk and nobody gets mad. There is more understanding. The role playing in class really helped us to deal with the different circumstances we have had to face at home."

Through readings, activities, discussions and audiocassettes, parents learn effective ways of communicating with their teens—and have the chance to share their concerns with other parents.

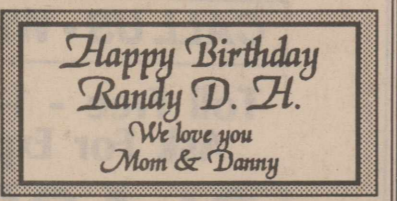

Another former participant recommended the course to all parents—not just the ones with problem kids. "If we had known then what we know now, we feel we could have prevented many of the problems we're having with our kids today," he said.

The cost of the course, which includes a workbook, is $10 per person. The course is limited to 10 people. Couples as well as individuals are urged to attend.

The sessions will be held every Monday night from Sept. 11 through Nov. 13 and will begin at 7 p.m. and last for two hours.

For more information or to register, contact the Crockett County Extension Office at 392-2721. Or come by the office, located on the second floor of the Courthouse Annex.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages, regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, national origin or handicap.
