It's sure good to get a hot meal for a change

Ninety vehicles carrying over 200 soldiers of The Texas National Guard unit, 4th Battalion of the 133rd Field Artillery from the New Braunfels, San Marcos and Luling areas, stopped again in Ozona for the second year running to be treated to two hot meals at the Civic Center Friday night. The unit was enroute back home to New Braunfels from Ft. Bliss in El Paso after completing a two-week training mission.

Bids were let by the Chamber of Commerce and this year's low bid went to the Knights of Columbus. Last year's feed was hosted by the Ozona Lions Club.

Ozona Intermediate School receives performance award

In a special recognition ceremony held at the Performing Arts Center of the University of Texas at Austin July 18, Manley Holmes, principal of Ozona Intermediate School, was one of seven West Texas educators receiving recognition and financial awards for their school campuses.

The money was distributed under the state's new Performance Gain Award Program, which rewards school campuses that demonstrate special progress in improving academic standards. Mr. Holmes received a check for $38,783, which can be used to support academic programs at Ozona Intermediate School.

Schools receiving the financial rewards were selected by a 10-member advisory committee that included a mix of educators and general citizens. More than 300 schools were honored last year, but only 139 public schools across Texas this year received rewards totaling $9.95 million because the criteria were tightened to reduce the number and increase the award amounts.

To be eligible for an award, a school must have shown at least a two percent improvement on test scores, attendance and dropout rates; a gain in performance that ranks the campus in the top 10 percent of its demographic group; and, minimum absolute performance levels for every group of students.

This is the second year of the Performance Gain Award Program, which formerly was handled by the governor's office but now is under the Texas Education Agency.

West Texas schools receiving the awards were:

Bangs High School of Bangs ISD, $40,666

Blackwell High School of Blackwell Consolidated ISD, $25,000

Crane Junior High School of Crane ISD, $51,209

Ozona Intermediate of Crockett County Consolidated CSD, $38,783

Llano High School of Llano ISD, $69,094

Sonora Intermediate of Sonora ISD, $48,385

Stanton High School of Stanton ISD, $39,913.

The awards were particularly significant because Texas has more than 6,000 public school campuses, and only 139 of them were selected for financial rewards.

Extension agent earns national award

The National Association of Extension Home Economists announced Tedra L. Ulmer, County Extension Agent-Home Economics for Crockett County, has been named as one of four national Excellence in Research Award Winners for 1992.

Ulmer will be recognized at the Texas Association of Extension Home Economists meeting in Lubbock during August as the state award winner. She will also travel to Washington, D.C., for the national meeting in September, where she will present the research at a concurrent session and be recognized at an awards banquet.

The research being recognized was a 1989 study of teen sexuality in Crockett County. The survey was used to determine the need for programming and to develop public support for sexuality education. It was developed through the cooperation of a teen sexuality task force whose members represented the school system, parents, county government, health care and clergy.

Tedra Ulmer

"I feel this is a wonderful reflection on our community because of the commitment shown by our citizens in combating problems facing youth," said Ulmer, who noted, "This award should go to a number of individuals in our community and to our school board, who had the courage to face a growing problem and try to do something positive about it."

Ulmer, the daughter of the late Ted Powers and Mrs. Ted Powers of San Angelo, is married to Neal Ulmer and has one daughter, Katharine. She received her bachelor's degree in Home Economics from Tarleton State University.

She has been an Extension Agent for 10 years, serving Dickens, Sterling, Mason, Callahan and Irion counties as well as Crockett. Ulmer is a certified home economist and a member of the American Home Economics Association, National Association of Extension Home Economists and Texas Council on Family Relations.

Rodeo Queen contestants named; Princesses and Duchesses sought

Three young women will vie for the title of 1992 Ozona Lions Club Rodeo Queen during competition next week. One will succeed 1991 Queen Jeanie Cooper at ceremonies during the rodeo on Saturday night.

Tess Worthington, 17-year-old daughter of Vance and Cookie Worthington, will be a senior at Ozona High School this fall. She's active in band, basketball, track, flag corps, UIL and the 4-H horse project, as well as her church youth group. Her main interests revolve around rodeoing and riding, as well as swimming, running and lifting weights, fishing and hunting.

Heather Hill, 16-year-old daughter of John and Chris Beckham, is a member of the varsity golf team and was a district golf medalist and regional golf qualifier in 1992. A member of the National Honor Society and FFA at Ozona High School, she'll be a junior this fall. Heather is also active in 4-H projects such as horse, goats, sheep and Field & Stream. She placed ninth with a horse demonstration at Texas 4-H Roundup this year, and recently attended the Texas Sheep and Goat Leadership Workshop.

Adrienne Dickerson is the 15-year-old daughter of Terry and Peggy Dickerson and will be a junior at Ozona High School this fall. She's involved in the Gifted and Talented program, UIL one-act play, poetry reading, keyboard and science contests, a member of National Honor Society, and a member of the annual staff. In 4-

H she is active in the sheep, clothing and foods projects. She also attended the Texas Sheep and Goat Youth Leadership workshop and placed first in district with her sheep record book.

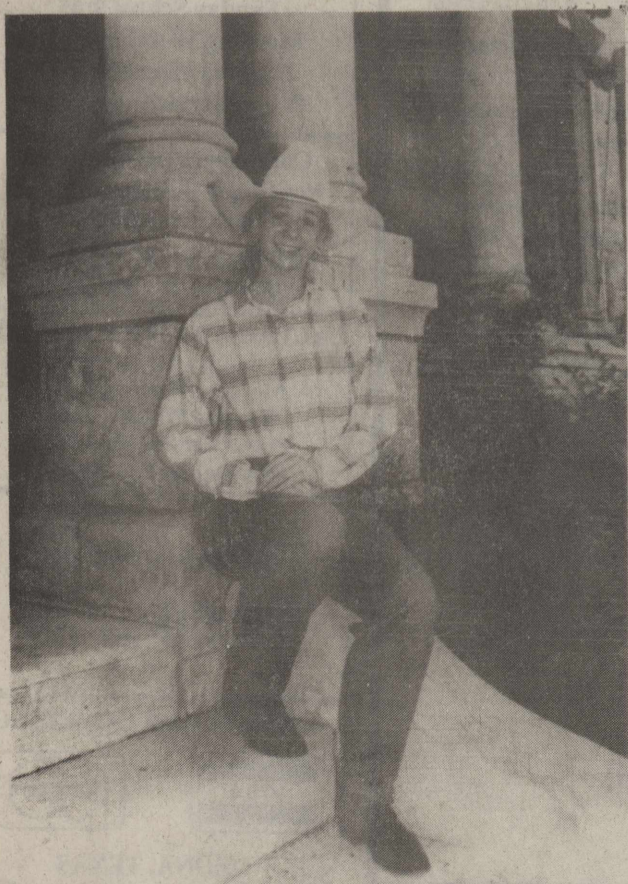

These young ladies will begin competition on Thursday with interviews and horsemanship, then with modeling and public speaking at the Queen's Gala that evening at 7 p.m. in the downtown park. The public is invited to attend the gala, which will be held in conjunction with the Wild West Day Camp closing ceremonies and mini-rodeo.

All children ages K-5 are invited to take part in the mini-rodeo, which will consist of stick horse barrel racing, bronc riding, dummy roping, boot race and other events. Certificates of completion will also be presented to youth who completed all four day camp sessions.

Another new twist to the rodeo queen's contest is the Court of Honor, which will consist of duchesses (girls 6th-8th grades) and princesses (girls age 8-5th grade). These young ladies will ride in the grand entry both nights as an escort for the current queen and queen's contestants, and in the rodeo parade on Friday. To sign up, call the Crockett County Extension Office at 392-2721 by 5 p.m. Monday, July 27.

Journalism scholarships available through the West Texas Press Assn.

A high school senior and a college student have an opportunity to win a $500 scholarship according to Scotty Moore, publisher of The Ozona Stockman.

The West Texas Press Association, the world's largest regional press organization, is seeking two future journalists whose career goals include working with a community newspaper to receive scholarships of $500 each.

Through the Bob Craig Memorial Scholarship program, named in honor of long-time Hamlin Herald publisher Bob Craig who died in 1981, the West Texas Press Association is sponsoring the scholarship program.

Each applicant must fill out an application form and write an essay based on the theme "My Career Goals In Community Journalism". One scholarship will be awarded to a graduating senior and the other will be awarded to a student who is already attending a college or university majoring in print journalism or advertising. Applicants must be from the West Texas Area.

Applications and essays must be mailed to WTPA Scholarship Committee, Stephen Henry, Chairman, Drawer 1628, Levelland, TX 79336-1628.

The deadline is Aug. 1, 1992. Announcement of scholarship winners will be made following the West Texas Press Association convention Aug. 6-8.

Once the winners are selected, they must be enrolled in at least three hours of journalism courses each semester he or she receives the scholarship. The scholarships will be divided into payments of $250 per semester for two semesters for each of the two scholarship winners.

Applications are available at The Ozona Stockman.

Measles outbreak a threat

The measles outbreak in South Texas is a close example of a disease that is affecting many lives. People around the state should take precautions, and be immunized.

This year alone, more than 600 confirmed measles cases have been reported in over 20 counties in South Texas, primarily in Hidalgo County. Recently, an 18-month-old, unimmunized child, died of suspected measles. The Public Health Region 3 communicable disease staff of the Texas Department of Health is currently monitoring measles cases in the region and providing vaccine to all Public Health Clinics.

According to Charles Mallory, Program Manager for the Communicable Disease Programs for Region 3, "Even though no measles cases have been reported in the region this season, it is still very important for children and young adults to be immunized against measles. It is not just a disease of young school children, in fact, more than one third of all cases occur in people 15 years of old and older." Anyone having questions regarding immunizations should call the local Public Health Region 3 field office clinic, county health department, or your private doctor for information.

People catch measles by breathing the measles virus that an infected person spreads by coughing, sneezing or simply talking. It takes from 10 to 14 days for a person to begin to show the symptoms of measles: high fever, rash, runny nose, watery eyes, or cough.

Babies and adults who catch measles are often much sicker and are more likely to suffer longer than elementary school children and teenagers with measles.

Measles is often a severe disease, with frequent complications such as middle ear infection, or, more rarely, convulsions, hearing loss, and mental retardation. In the United States, one child out of every 500 to 10,000 who gets measles dies.

Public Health Region 3 recommends that infants and children be immunized at 15 months of age, and again at 4 to 6 years (before entering school). Children will receive a combination vaccine, MMR (Measles, Mumps, and Rubella).

Adults born after 1957 who have not had the live measles virus vaccine on or after their first birthday, had a case of measles diagnosed by a doctor, or had a blood test for measles, should be immunized.

Paisano Baptist Encampment to be held July 26-31

The 72nd consecutive session of the Paisano Baptist Encampment will be July 26-31 at the historic encampment grounds located mid-way between Alpine and Marfa on Highway 90 in the mile high Davis Mountains near Paisano Peak. Started in 1916 by a group of cowboys led by pioneer circuit riding missionary Bro. L. R. Millican, the encampment has met every year since 1921 on the 1000 acre, oak grove clustered campgrounds in the cool mountain pass. Unique in Baptist life, the encampment is one of the last truly "family" camps, with everyone from infants-100 year olds included in the group. Ministering to generations of West Texans, with about 2000 expected to make their annual pilgrimage to hear the finest preaching, Bible teaching and music to found anywhere, this year's encampment will blend the old and the new.

The old will be in familiar program personnel who have blessed the campers in past years, and the new in a new Bible teacher for the adults in the morning study time. Dr. Milton Cunningham, Baylor University, Waco, will be returning for his fifth time as a Paisano preacher. He had a three year cycle 1987-89, and returned last year to fill in for Dr. Buckner Fanning who was ill and could not attend. Cunningham was a Southern Baptist Missionary in Africa for fifteen years, before pastoring Westbury Baptist Church in Houston from 1973-90. He coordinates pastor and church relations for Baylor University, and helps in seminars and training for pastors in the continuing education program. Dr. Buckner Fanning, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, San Antonio, will be the other Paisano preacher. He is looking forward to being back again this year, and it will be his second time to preach at Paisano.

The new Bible teacher will be Dr. Larry McGraw, associate professor of Bible at Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, since 1982. He will be teaching the book of Amos. McGraw also serves as Senior Adult Minister at First Baptist Church, Abilene.

Dr. Bruce Lampert, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Shawnee, OK, will teach the college and career age group. Lampert was formerly at First Baptist Church, Stamford, and moved to Oklahoma last fall. He pastored at Alpine before going to Stamford, and has been a Paisano attendee for many years. He will teach from the Bible book of James.

Music director for the week is Ed Wittner, who will be in his 12th year at Paisano. He is Minister of Music, Columbus Avenue Baptist Church, Waco.

Charlie Elliott, Minister of Activities, First Baptist Church, Midland, and several of his high school youth will lead the Children's Day Camp for first-sixth graders. Preschool children will be directed by Mrs. Debbie Jeffreys, Schertz. Nursery children will be cared for during the Bible study times and workshop services, directed by Mrs. Nita Dempsey, Marfa.

The first meal will be served at 6:00 p.m. Sunday night. As has been its custom since the beginning, no specific charge is made for meals for anyone, but an opportunity is given for a contribution to be made to cover the cost of the meal and the program.

Several area churches will have special programs for the Paisano visitors who arrive early. Details may be had by calling the local church office in Alpine, Marfa and Fort Davis.

Visitors and area residents are invited to attend the camp. More information may be obtained by calling Rev. Lloyd Conner, publicity vice president for Paisano at 915-762-2019-office, or 915-762-2293-home.

FURNITURE PARALLEL OR DIAGONAL?

People often ask if they should put their furniture parallel to a wall -- or whether it's all right to place some furniture diagonally.

Generally speaking, a room usually looks better if the big pieces run parallel to a wall. This seems to create more unity, it is more pleasing to the eye and is often more practical. However, like most rules of decorating, there can be exceptions based on personal preference or specific room situations, so there are times when major pieces could be placed diagonally, but most decorators prefer parallel placement in the majority of cases for the big pieces.

Small pieces, on the other hand, may often be turned at an angle to a larger piece. By doing this you can break up an over abundance of straight lines, and get more interest and convenience in a room.

Another thing to consider is that even though you are placing a big piece, such as a sofa parallel to a wall, the sofa doesn't necessarily have to cling to the wall. You might want to try floating it -- letting it stand free in the room -- and still keep its lines parallel to a wall even though it is not close against that wall.

Whatever your preferences are, remember that we can help you select beautiful furniture -- and give you ideas on how to place your furniture in the most beautiful way, too.

The Goal Of Instruction

by Dennis J. Prutow

Every good teacher is interested in training his or her students. A change of thinking comes first. Once thinking is changed, behavior is expected to change. This is the goal of Christianity, too. As the Bible says, "The goal of our instruction is love from a pure heart and a good conscience and a sincere faith" (1 Timothy 1:5). And if love is the goal, we are to be changed into God's image! "God is love" (1 John 4:8). But three things are required.

First, love comes only from a pure heart. This means the heart must be cleansed from sin. And such cleansing requires "the washing of regeneration and renewing by the Holy Spirit" (Titus 3:5).

Second, love comes only from a good conscience. This is a conscience which says "yes" when God says "yes" and "no" when God says "no". And this requires "the blood of Christ (to) cleanse your conscience from dead works to serve the living God" (Hebrews 9:14).

And third, love exists only on the foundation of faith which is un-hypocritical. This faith is a gift from God. "For by grace you have been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God" (Ephesians 2:8). Yes, God's teaching is geared to produce "love from a pure heart and a good conscience and a sincere faith."

Overhead cuts first step down path of fiscal responsibility

TWO YEARS of hard work are starting to pay off.

Congress recently passed an amendment of mine to cut 10 percent out of government overhead spending.

Overhead spending includes such items as travel and supplies. This amendment reduced the Agriculture Department's overhead spending by $50 million—the biggest single cut in the bill.

Not one program was touched, not one job was eliminated.

That was the first step toward creating responsible spending habits by the federal government and saving taxpayers' dollars.

I intend to offer similar amendments to future budget bills that come before Congress.

These are common sense cuts. They cut an area of spending that has gone virtually unsupervised for decades—overhead spending.

Almost one in every five dollars spent by the federal government is for overhead expenses. That is as much as $320 billion this year alone!

We are at the point where we must decide whether to put our economic house in order or pawn the furniture to pay the rent.

It is right to break the federal government of the habit of spending more than it takes in.

It is right to cut the fat from budgets that have long gone unscrutinized.

It is right to hold the federal government responsible for balancing its budget.

But it is unfortunate that Congress has become addicted to spending and borrowing and taxing. It is regrettable that Congress cannot exercise self-discipline.

The federal government is borrowing $1 billion a day to pay for its spending habits.

This year, the federal deficit will reach nearly $400 billion.

In 1990 Congress passed the largest tax increase in history, and in 1991 it passed the largest budget deficit ever.

We cannot continue down this road. We must not pawn our prosperity or bankrupt our country.

The federal government has long overspent its budget. There is tremendous waste.

Still, some would like us to think that all of the fat has been cut and further cuts would hit the bone.

Don't be fooled. Federal government overhead spending has far outpaced inflation.

A government-wide 10 percent reduction would save at least $30 billion in the first year alone. Keeping the growth of overhead costs to the rate of inflation over the next five years would give us a total savings of $143 billion.

The budget can be balanced if annual spending is limited to a three percent increase and if government overhead, not people or programs, is targeted.

We don't need to raise taxes to balance the budget.

We do need to force fiscal discipline upon Congress.

CUTTING OVERHEAD

■ Almost one in every five dollars spent by the federal government is for overhead expenses.

■ A government-wide 10 percent reduction would save at least $30 billion in the first year alone.

■ Keeping the growth of overhead costs to the rate of inflation over the next five years would give us a total savings of $143 billion.

Letter to the Editor

This letter is in reference to the problems that our mother, Peggy Phillips, is presently experiencing in Ozona. Our lives have been irrevocably changed since our father was killed on Christmas Day in 1990 in our family's laundry. Our family has been through so very much in the last several months, and it seems that unnecessary things are continuing to happen there in Ozona.

Our mother's property has been vandalized several times, the most recent being last week when an air conditioner was stolen out of the laundry where our father was murdered. It greatly disturbs us to think that someone could steal something where such a horrendous crime has already been committed.

We implore people to have respect for our mother, and our father's memory. People need to realize that our mother's life needs to be as stress-free and peaceful as possible. This does not seem to be happening at this time. Officials in Ozona need to be more considerate and aware of the problems that our mother still faces.

We appreciate all the kindness and consideration that many of the people there showed after our father's death. However, the few persons that are causing all the vandalism need to be stopped, and they need to realize that our mother has been through more than enough in the last one and a half years to last a lifetime. We feel the only way of being heard, and getting any appropriate action or response is by writing in this type of format. It is the best way of reaching the people of Ozona and trying to make them aware, and perhaps resolving some of the problems that our mother still faces.

Thank you,
Katrina Phillips

Smith honored for help to business

WASHINGTON, D. C. - Congressman Lamar Smith recently was awarded the U. S. Chamber of Commerce Spirit of Enterprise Award.

The Spirit of Enterprise Award was awarded to Smith for his support of free enterprise in America. Smith has won the award each year it has been given.

"I am honored to receive this award once again," Smith said. "This is a symbol of what I firmly believe is right with America. The federal government needs to provide tax and regulatory incentives for the private sector to create more jobs.

"Free enterprise is what has made this country great and keeps it from following the downward spiral of other nations' economies."

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce represents 190,000 businesses and organizations throughout the United States.

McCleary Used Cars opens in Ozona

Letter to the Editor

After an absence of several years, Ozona once again has a used car business. Charles McCleary opened McCleary Used Cars at #1 Barnhart Highway July 16. McCleary welcomes inquiries about specific automobiles. If the lot doesn't have what the customer wants, he will find the right car or truck to fit their needs.

In 1979, Charles came to Ozona to fly for Jay Miller. He ran Miller's Aero Vac charter service from 1979 to 1984. He then opened his own business, McCleary Aircraft Service, which he still operates. The aircraft business does repairs, overhauls and annual inspections of aircrafts. McCleary also provides pilot service to other aircraft owners.

He graduated from high school in Richardson and majored in photography at East Texas State University at Commerce.

McCleary Used Cars is open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. weekdays and from 9 until noon on Saturday. The business occupies the office and display floor area at #1 Barnhart Highway, and Ozona Trailer Company is in the north portion of the building.

Two efforts to get this summer's Dare to Care Work Camp off the ground have been fruitless. The summer's activities have simply stretched the schedules of most of the camp's volunteers thin. With little time remaining for planning or implementation this year, it seems unlikely that we will be able to have a work camp as we have known it. Hopefully, June of 1993 will find us hard at work again.

While I believe some good things have resulted from previous work camps, I am not convinced that an organized camp is the only, or most effective, way to serve the needs of many in our community. Perhaps we should have an on-going, year-round work camp with volunteers ready to lend a helping hand to their neighbors when ever a need arises.

It would truly be wonderful if all of us who have the time, resources, and abilities would be watchful of those around us and would seize opportunities to give a hand up whenever possible. I know that many in our community do this already as a matter of course, but some of us wait to be asked instead of taking the initiative.

I guess what I'm really trying to say is that if we can't have a work camp, let's at least have good works. Whether these works are done by churches, organizations, families, or individuals doesn't matter as long as persons in our community are not doing without what they need for a decent existence.

I would like to thank those who have supported our previous work camps either with hard work, finances, or prayers. We will be needing you again next year.

Sincerely,
Frances Curry

Terrifying facts about America's national debt

Frosty Troy, editor of the Oklahoma Observer, recently compiled and published these terrifying facts to impress his readers with the enormous size of America's national debt:

Each minute $874,000 is added to the national debt, each hour $52.7 million. On Sept. 30, the end of the federal fiscal year, America will have a national debt of $4.037 trillion. It took 20 percent of all federal revenue to pay interest on the debt this year.

If you opened a business the day Christ was born and lost $1 million a day, you'd still have 700 more years to expend $3 trillion.

And Troy concluded with these words by Thomas Jefferson:

"The question whether one generation has the right to bind another by the deficit it imposes is a question of such consequences as to place it among the fundamental principles of any government. We should consider ourselves unauthorized to saddle posterity with our debts, and morally bound to pay them ourselves."

McCleary Used Cars opened in Ozona last week. Here to share the excitement of opening day with Charles McCleary are his parents, Opal and C. A. McCleary of Richardson.

Orphan Train Riders to organize Texas Chapter

Saturday, Aug. 1, promises to be an exciting day in Granbury, as Orphan Train Riders, families and friends gather at Key Largo Restaurant on Hwy. 377 for the purpose of organizing a Texas Chapter of the Orphan Train Heritage Society of America.

Over 4,000 homeless, abandoned and orphaned children were brought to Texas from the late 1800's through the 1920's from New York City streets. News of the impending arrival of these children on the train spread throughout rural Texas by word-of-mouth, preachers announcing the event from the pulpit, and, of course, from newspapers. The New York Children's Aid Society would hire agents to handle the placements in the local communities. Upon the arrival of the train, the children would be taken to a central location-or sometimes just lined up on the platform of the railroad station-for people to look them over and choose one to take home. Many of these children were selected by farm families who needed additional labor, and they were not so fortunate as others who were adopted by loving people who genuinely wanted a child.

Over 150,000 children were relocated in this massive effort-and many historians say this is a very conservative number. This practice ended in 1929 when child welfare reform laws were enacted by our government.

The Orphan Train Heritage Society of America, Inc., is actively engaged in preserving the history of our "Orphan Train Riders." Gatherings, such as this one scheduled in Granbury, are often called reunions, and these events have enabled many people to gather information while listening to the surviving Orphan Train Riders tell about their lives. One of the primary goals of the group is to publicize this situation as there is surprising little information about this endeavor in newspapers, railroad archives, or elsewhere. "Certainly we'd like to have the orphan train facts included in school books for our young people to know about this important part of America's history," say Ms. Johnson, executive director of the OTHSA.

All persons having an interest in the orphan trains era are invited to attend. A registration fee of $30.00 per person includes all activities during the day, a luncheon, and an evening in Glen Rose attending the outdoor drama, "The Promise." To register, write to (Mrs.) Jere Nailling Lummus, P.O. Box 1281, Granbury, TX 76048, or call 1-800-858-8262, 9-5 daily, or 817-579-1686, evenings and weekends.

Social Security news and views

One in every six American workers is employed by either federal, state or local government. That fact can bring home the importance of two special provisions in Social Security law.

Both provisions apply mostly to federal, state and local government employees who did not pay Social Security taxes in those jobs. And it's important to know about these provisions because anyone who is figuring on getting both full Social Security benefits and a government pension might have to figure again.

One law, the windfall elimination provision, affects Social Security retirement and disability benefits. It requires that a modified formula be used that results in lower benefits for government employees who also qualify for Social Security. That's because the formula is geared to giving more generous Social Security benefits (when compared to pre-retirement earnings) to lower-paid workers. Due to a quirk in the formula, government employees were treated as lower-paid workers and received the generous benefits in addition to their government pension. The provision eliminates the windfall.

The other law, called the government pension offset, affects Social Security benefits that may be payable to a spouse or widow. It requires that a direct offset be used, which essentially prevents a person from getting a hefty government pension AND a dependent's benefit from Social Security. Spouse's benefits were meant to be paid to people financially dependent on their husbands or wives, not to people who worked for a government agency and earned a pension.

As noted earlier, most workers affected by these laws are State and local government employees who paid into pension systems that were not part of the Social Security system.

For more information about either law, contact our toll-free number of 1-800-772-1213. Ask for the fact sheet entitled Government Pension Offset (for government workers who will also qualify for Social Security benefits based on their husband or wife's work record) or for the fact sheet entitled A Pension from Work Not Covered by Social Security (for workers in jobs not under Social Security who also qualify for Social Security benefits on their own work records).

New HIV regulations benefit women and children disability applicants

Social Security recognizes that HIV - the virus that causes AIDS - can develop differently in women and children than in men. The agency has published proposed regulations and also issued new operating guidelines that Social Security is now using to assess all HIV cases, including those for women and children with HIV infection.

The new criteria list certain gender-specific manifestations of HIV infection - such as gynecological cancers and infections - that is considered in evaluating a woman's disability claim. In addition, the new guidelines note that the course of HIV disease in children is also different from that in adults, and contain a specific list of criteria severe enough to prevent a child from functioning the way that a healthy child of the same age would.

This is the first time that Social Security has provided such a list for HIV-infected children. The evaluation of claims filed by women and children with HIV is not limited to the criteria on the list. All claims are afforded the appropriate steps in the disability decision-making process. All evidence is considered relevant to a woman's or child's claim, not just evidence of HIV-infection included in Social Security guidelines.

This is important because it means that all Social Security disability claimants with HIV infection are evaluated under the most up-to-date medical criteria. And, their claims can be approved faster and payments made more quickly once all other eligibility factors are met.

Latest statistics show that approximately 10 percent of Social Security claimants with HIV infection were women - and this percentage is expected to rise in the future.

More than 2,000 cases of AIDS have been reported in children under 13 years old. Most of these children acquired the disease before birth from their mothers, who were infected with HIV. The number of children with HIV infection is, unfortunately, also expected to rise.

Social Security administers two separate programs that pay benefits to people disabled as a result of HIV infection - the Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) program and the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program. Under both programs, applicants must meet the definition of disability in Social Security law - basically, for adults, the inability to work because of medical impairments that are expected to last at least one year or to result in death. For children to be found disabled, they must have an impairment of comparable severity.

SSI makes monthly payments to people with disabilities, including children, whose income and assets are below a certain level. In our state, SSI eligibility usually means entitlement to Medicaid benefits.

Social Security's proposed rules also significantly expand the authority of SSA field offices to presume a person is disabled and make immediate payments to SSI claimants when it is confirmed that the impairment due to HIV infection is severe enough to keep the person from working. These payments can continue for up to six months while the formal disability determination process takes place.

Teal season, dove limits dopted

Texas hunters will have an early teal season for the first time since 1987 and a four-day special white-winged dove season now that approval has been granted by state and federal officials.

The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service recently agreed with Texas waterfowl biologists to allow a nine day statewide teal season Sept. 12-20 and a four-day white-winged dove season Sept. 5, 6, 12 and 13 in the Special White-winged Dove Area.

State and federal officials also approved a TPWD recommendation to that part of the Special White-winged Dove Area from Del Rio north to Fort Hancock and made this area part of the central dove zone.

The USFWS will allow Texas teal hunters to hunt from 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset if the department is willing to conduct field evaluations of this change. Teal shooting hours traditionally have been sunrise to sunset.

The four-day white-winged dove season has a daily bag limit of 10 doves that can include no more than five mourning doves and two white-tipped doves.

Mourning dove dates are: North Zone, Sept. 1 - Nov. 9; Central Zone, Sept. 1 - Oct. 31 and Jan. 2 - 10; and South Zone, Sept. 20 - Nov. 12 (ends Nov. 8 in Special White-winged Dove Area) and Jan. 2 - 17. The statewide (except Cameron, Hidalgo, Starr and Willacy counties) daily bag limit is 12 doves, including no more than six whitewings and two whittips.

Other dates for the 1992-93 season which may be of interest to area hunters include:

Oct. 1 - Nov. 1 - Archery season, deer and turkey

Oct. 1 - Feb. 28 - Javelina season, most of Texas

Oct. 3 - 11 - Antelope season, TransPecos, Permian, Panhandle

Oct. 31 - Feb. 28 - Quail season, statewide

Nov. 7 - Jan. 3 - Whitetail deer, turkey seasons most of Texas

Nov. 14 - Jan. 10 - Whitetail deer, turkey seasons, South Texas

Nov. 28 - Dec. 13 - Mule deer season, TransPecos

April 3 - May 2 - Rio Grande turkey season, most of Texas.

Habla usted Texan?

More and more Texans are talking these days — in Spanish.

In a state where one out of three residents is Hispanic, Anglos by the thousand are deciding to become bilingual.

Spanish is hardly a new language in Texas. It has been spoken here since 1514 when Alonso Alvarez Pineda, the first European to touch these shores, arrived to map the Gulf of Mexico.

Most graduates of state high schools have had at least a beginning course in Spanish as a second language. In cities like San Antonio, where about half the population is Hispanic, almost everybody has a rudimentary knowledge of the language. Many Anglos along the border speak it fluently.

Only in the last couple of years, however, has bilingualism become the vogue. Now schools like The University of Texas at Austin, UT San Antonio, UT El Paso and other institutions around the state are being hard put to find enough teachers for the spiraling enrollment in Spanish classes.

Interest in learning to "habla espanol" is not limited to college students, however. Berlitz Language Centers in Texas report a 60% increase in Spanish class enrollment.

The National Autonomous University of Mexico (which operates its only U.S. campus in San Antonio) has been forced to rent space from a nearby hotel to handle the overflow of students wanting to take Spanish. Enrollment already has increased 50% over a year ago and is still going up.

Why the sudden interest in learning a second language one that has been spoken here for almost 500 years?

Language school officials say there are two reasons.

The proposed North American Free Trade Agreement is one. This expansion of economic ties with a country that already has contributed so much to the history and culture of Texas has created a heightened interest in learning each other's language. Schools south of the Rio Grande report that they're also flooded with students enrolling in English classes.

Another reason is demographic. Experts predict that one third of Texas residents will be Hispanic within a decade. By 2035, if projected birth rates and immigration figures are accurate, Anglos will be a definite minority.

Looking to increased trade with Mexico, Texas businesses are rushing to build bilingual staffs. One language school says its institutional enrollment—employees enrolled by their company—jumped 70% this year. Even the security detail for Governor Ann Richards may soon attend Spanish language classes.

Even without the trade agreement with Mexico, a knowledge of Spanish has become increasingly important as the Hispanic population of almost every Texas city and hamlet increases. Lawyers, physicians, sales people, politicians and others who serve the public are discovering that learning the second language is good business.

"Unlike the people of most other countries, Americans are lazy linguist," one spokesman says. "With this new interest in speaking Spanish, it may be that Texas will gain another 'first'—that of becoming the only truly bilingual state in the nation."

Children from violent homes

More than half of the children whose mothers are abused are likely to be victims of physical abuse. Older children are often injured while trying to protect their mothers.

Whether or not the children are abused physically, they suffer emotional trauma and psychological scars from watching their fathers beat their mothers.

In homes where domestic violence occurs, fear, instability, and confusion replace the love, comfort and nurturing that children need. These children live in constant fear of physical harm from the person who is supposed to care for and protect them.

They may feel guilt at loving the abuser or blame themselves for causing the violence.

Children from these homes may experience stress-related physical ailments, as well as hearing and speech problems.

Children from violent homes have higher risks of alcohol/drug abuse and juvenile delinquency.

is in Ozona each Monday from 1-3 p.m. in the Juvenile Probation Office at the south entrance of the courthouse.

Information for this article was taken from the brochure "Domestic Violence: Understanding a Community Problem," printed by the Department of Human Services.

Foot care important for diabetics

For diabetics there is no sidestepping good foot care.

"Fifteen to 20 years into the disease, poor circulation and nerve damage can threaten the limbs," said Dr. Glenn Cunningham of Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "But proper preventive measures can help avoid infection, gangrene and amputation."

Cunningham urges diabetics to practice proper foot care, including: wearing shoes with good arch support and proper fit, and wearing clean socks or hose; avoiding walking barefoot; checking inside shoes for pebbles, tacks or tears; cutting toenails straight across to prevent ingrown nails; buffing down corns or calluses with a pumice stone or an emery board. Do not cut them or use a chemical corn remover.

Researcher studying teen girls' dietary needs

In an era of dieting and fast food, teenage girls may not be meeting their dietary needs, according to a researcher at the USDA's Children's Nutrition Research Center at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Dr. William Wong, who suspects that recommended daily allowances for some nutrients may not be appropriate for teens, is conducting a two-year study involving teenage girls.

He is looking at diet, proportion of body fat to muscle, bone density levels of nutrients such as iron and calcium and number of calories burned in relationship to age, stage of puberty and race.

"We want to know what and how much teenage girls are eating and what is happening to their bodies during this stage of their development," he said.

Stealing electricity is against the law!

Stealing electricity is a felony.

Some people tamper with their electric meters to avoid paying for the energy they use. Stealing electricity is a felony offense in the state of Texas and violators will be prosecuted. West Texas Utilities' Current Diversion Department is working hard to help combat the growing problem of energy theft.

Energy theft is dangerous.

Not only is service theft a crime, but it is also very dangerous. Serious injuries can result from meter tampering.

A crime against you!

When someone steals electricity, they are not only stealing from WTU — they are also stealing from you, as a ratepayer. Just as shoplifting increases the cost of items you buy in the store, power theft increases the cost of your electric service.

WTU will prosecute.

Because we are concerned about the dangers and costs resulting from meter tampering, West Texas Utilities will prosecute energy thieves.

Screwworms found within 140 miles of Texas border

COLLEGE STATION - Screwworm cases found in Mexico in May crept north to within 140 miles of Texas, fueling worries about the health of the livestock industry on this side of the border.

The nearest case was found on May 21 in Soto la Marina in the state of Tamaulipas, 136 miles from Brownsville, said Dr. Ed Gersabeck of Hyattsville, MD, senior entomologist with the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS).

The latest infestations were reported in cattle on May 25 in Los Choapas in the state of Vera Cruz, and in Gonzalez in Tamaulipas, Gersabeck said.

The May discoveries bring to 45 the number of cases reported in Mexico since the beginning of the year.

Studies have shown that screwworm flies can travel up to 100 miles on wind currents, and these new finds definitely pose a threat to Texas livestock, said Dr. Cliff Hoelscher, entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Texas livestock associations are keeping a close eye on the progress of the pest in Mexico.

"We've been monitoring the situation daily," said Steve Munday, spokesman for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

"We view this as a very serious situation. The (wet) weather conditions over the winter and ranch activities during this time of year create a prime situation for a screwworm reinfestation in Texas," Munday said.

More than 123 million sterile screwworm flies per week are being dropped from airplanes into the infested areas, Gersabeck said. The sterile flies disrupt the reproduction cycle of the insect, leading to a decline in populations.

Mexican program officials now have 535 field inspectors working to define the extent of the outbreak, originally detected on Jan. 17, 1992, in southern Mexico.

The screwworm and its flesh-eating larvae have been the scourge of the livestock industry for generations, accounting for $250 million in annual losses in the United States during the 1950s and 1960s. Screwworms were finally eradicated from Texas in 1982.

One hurdle in the screwworm battle is creating awareness of the problem in the industry. Many ranchers are either so young they do not remember the infestations of the 1950s and 1960s, or they are very new to the business, Munday said.

"There aren't enough trained cowboys and good horses right now to do the work needed," he said. "There is a labor shortage in ranching now. It's really a whole different equation."

Additionally, the Screwworm Adult Suppression Systems pellets, used effectively in an outbreak in south and southwest Texas in the early 1970s, can no longer be used due to laws that restrict the dispersal of pesticides into the environment, he said.

According to Gersabeck, as many as 400 flies can mature in just one infested wound within only three weeks.

All livestock owners are urged to inspect animals carefully for the presence of blow fly larvae and send in suspect samples for positive identification, Hoelscher said.

Ranchers or business operations importing cattle from Mexico must use caution and follow quarantine procedures to avoid the accidental importation of screwworm-infested animals, he said.

Texas ranchers should treat all wounded animals and keep to a minimum veterinary practices that cause a break in an animal's skin.

Mailing kits for sending in samples of suspected larvae for laboratory identification are available from most county Extension Service agents and from area offices of the Texas Animal Health Commission.

Samples should be taken before a wound is treated because medication will kill the larvae and make identification more difficult. All samples should be sent to the USDA-APHIS Veterinary Services Screwworm Eradication Lab, Box 969, Mission, TX 78572, 512 580-7360.

Videos present contrasting views of animal activist movement

COLLEGE STATION - A new educational video program that addresses the issues of farm animal well-being, food safety and use of natural resources has been developed at Texas A&M University.

Written and produced by doctoral student Jeff Goodwin, the "What's the Beef/Here's the Beef" videotapes examine opposing viewpoints of animal activists' concerns related to agriculture.

In preliminary tests of the one-hour program with 258 Texas Agricultural Extension Service agents, 92 percent rated the program as effective and 99 percent said they could use the video for educating producers and consumers.

When compared to a control group, Goodwin found the agents who viewed the videotapes significantly increased their knowledge about the animal activist movement's views of animal agriculture. Goodwin also found a "moderation" of agents' attitudes about the subject.

"It's very significant that a group of well-educated subjects with such deeply felt emotional underpinnings on this controversial issue could have their attitudes changed by exposure to a one-hour program," Goodwin said.

Goodwin, a former Agricultural Extension Service agent, developed the video as part of his research on how the Extension Service can more effectively educate consumers about agriculture.

"An accurate and objective public perception of animal agriculture is essential to the well-being of both the agricultural producer and the consumer," Goodwin said. He added that agriculturists also must listen to consumer concerns about the safety of the food supply and the treatment of farm animals.

Goodwin says the contrasting viewpoints approach to educating audiences on controversial issues may serve as a model for future Agricultural Extension educational programs on such topics.

Goodwin has presented the program to such groups as the Texas Bankers Association, the Academy of Veterinary Consultants, the National Association of County Agricultural Agents and the Colorado Cattlemen's Association. By the end of August, the program will have been presented to more than 4,000 people, Goodwin said.

For copies of the video program or for more information, contact the Texas A&M Instructional Material Service at 409 845-6601 or Jeff Goodwin at 409 845-4445.

BOTTOM LINE

Texas A&M's new goal is not only to educate its graduates, but to teach them how to crash the job market.

This fall, the school will offer Reality 101...a seminar designed to make freshmen and sophomore students aware that they need to start thinking about preparing for the job market while they're still learning.

It's a part of the program of Aggieland's new Career Center. Dr. Wayne Terrell, the acting director, says students will be taught the importance of achieving high grades, acquiring related work experience and developing personal skills.

The new Center will operate three divisions to aid students—Career Education, Cooperative Education and Placement Services.

NOTHING PIGGISH ABOUT THIS

Scientists at Texas A&M University are studying 600 pigs hoping to discover why they live happily with melanomas, a cancer that kills three out of four humans who develop it.

Pigs of this breed usually have this type of skin tumor when they are very young. For reasons unknown, however, only one of ten cases is fatal.

Melanoma is particularly dangerous for the 600,000 humans who are diagnosed with it each year because the tumors tend to metastasize, or spread throughout the body. The melanoma cells also metastasize in the pigs, but then stop growing. Some pigs covered with melanoma have survived eight years.
