School board approves administrator contracts

BY MELISSA PERNER
THE OZONA STOCKMAN

The CCCCSD School Board approved administration contracts during their Feb. 22 regular meeting.

After meeting in executive/closed session, the board approved one year contract extensions for OES and OMS Principal Tamara McWilliams, OES Assistant Principal Vicky Munoz, Federal Programs Director Janina Savala and Technology Director Keith Harmsen.

The board also approved a one year administrator contract for OMS Assistant Principal Edward Perez.

OHS Principal Ronny Clayton's contract was tabled until the March 22 regular board meeting.

BUDGET

In his report, Superintendent Raul Chavarria gave the board an update on the 2016-2017 School Budget as of January 2017.

In the report, Chavarria said the district is currently operating around $10 million below last year's budget.

The recapture amount the district has to send to the state is $6.9 million, which is less than last year's $12.4 million. This is the money the district must send as part of the Robin Hood plan due to CCCCSD being considered a property-rich district.

"If it stays this way that's a $419,000 savings to us. That's huge," Chavarria said.

The district also made cuts in maintenance. Chavarria said if any major items need repair or fixing then the district may have to look at using the fund balance.

"We are in good shape considering all of the budget cuts that we had to implement this year," Chavarria said. "Those cuts do not affect the teaching and learning of our students."

SCHOOL CALENDAR

In his report, Chavarria said the District Site-Base Committee and district officials will be working on the 2017-2018 School Calendar.

He said they will be considering important dates parents and the board want to observe, including Labor Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas,

Texans collaborate for private property rights

When you defend a philosophy and try to create change for the better, there will be opposition from those who have a different philosophy and from those who like things the way they are.

Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association (TSCRA) leaders and many other Texas-based organizations have taken an aggressive, offensive approach to eminent domain reform in the 2017 session of the Texas Legislature. These organizations have formed the Texans for Property Rights coalition to better defend against the opposition that has already begun to emerge.

Pipeline and power line companies and cities are among that opposition and are pushing the message that eminent domain reform will increase litigation. They claim eminent domain reform will result in more lawsuits, making trial lawyers' dreams come true. I'm sorry to burst the dream, but our eminent domain reform goals are well thought out, reasonable and not designed to increase lawsuits. In fact, these changes are meant to decrease the amount of litigation necessary for both landowners and condemning entities. By providing a better initial offer to landowners, it will be less likely that the transaction will need to be resolved in the courtroom.

Landowners are at a huge disadvantage when dealing with the condemnation process and the Texans for Property Rights initiative will begin to level that playing field.

It's harder to play offense than it is defense, which is why we have more than doubled our work on this issue. We are talking to legislators about supporting the change, educating them on why eminent domain reform is necessary, and answering opponents' allegations with sound solutions and examples of real-life landowner problems. To see some of these examples firsthand, visit our website at www.texansforpropertyrights.com.

We are asking anyone who believes private property rights are of paramount importance to our state to contact your state representative and state senator today, and let them know you support eminent domain reform and private property rights.

We urge you to remind legislators that landowners, not the pipeline and power line companies, voted them into office.

In 2011, the Texas Legislature enacted Senate Bill 18, which included a provision that an entity with eminent domain authority that wants to acquire real property from a property owner must make a "bona fide offer."

A component of the Texans for Property Rights initiative is to beef up the bona fide offer section of the law. This means including details up-front for the property owner about how

Continuing to provide the gold standard

When not working in DC, you can find me traveling to one of the communities in the twenty-nine counties across the 23rd Congressional District of Texas, to meet with constituents and learn about the issues most important to you. Sometimes I stop in half-a-dozen or more towns before flying back to DC on Monday.

Why is this so important? Because my job is to serve as your Representative, and hearing from you face-to-face allows me to better serve you.

I am committed to offering my constituents the Gold Standard when it comes to two-way communication and the services that my office provides.

The team I've built in Texas and DC knows that this is my number one priority and that anything less is unacceptable.

I have five offices from San Antonio to El Paso so that my staff is accessible to you and able to participate in important community events throughout the district.

We have caseworkers in San Antonio, Del Rio, Eagle Pass, and Socorro. We also have two dedicated Veteran liaisons to help serve the extensive veteran population that is proud to call our district home.

As evidence of my commitment to the Gold Standard, during my first term over 2015 and 2016, I hosted over 400 public meetings, called over 630,000 households for live telephone town hall meetings, responded to over 50,000 constituent letters, and put over 75,000 miles on my car crisscrossing the district.

From my five district offices, Team Hurd has hosted regular office hours and helped over 1,000 constituents solve complicated cases with on your behalf.

Each summer during the month of August, I host a meet-and-greet series called DC2DQ at dozens of Dairy Queens throughout the district.

Each meeting is open to the public, and an opportunity for me to hear your questions and concerns directly, along with providing you an update on what I'm working on back home and in Washington to keep us safe, grow the economy, and increase opportunity across the district.

Last summer, I hosted 23 public meetings in six days.

There is always more to do, and I will continue to make sure your voice is heard in Washington. In order to represent you to the best of my ability, I want to remind you that regular feedback from our communities is essential. Your phone calls, emails, and attendance at meetings will ensure that my legislative work is in lock-step with the needs and challenges you have shared with me.

To receive continuous updates on legislation that affects you and meeting notices in your community, please sign up for my e-newsletter at www.Hurd.House.gov/contact. And always feel free to call me to ask questions and express your opinion at (202) 225-4511.

She Said What?

I remember learning early in life that humans should use all five of their senses, but darn it, mine don't work any more. I've got cataracts on my eyes making the whole world cloudy, I'm going deaf from listening to too many loud auctioneers for 45 years, the feeling in the tips of my fingers has been destroyed by too much hot metal, and in the process of carving some skin cancer from my nose the Doc seemed to have also removed my smell. My wife is disappointed I can still talk but I can't get a word in edgewise. I'm 65 going on 95.

The other afternoon I was trying to sneak in a nap because my belly ached and just when I was starting to enter la-la land I thought I heard my wife yell, "Where are (mumble, mumble) and what (mumble, mumble) you up to? You're much (mumble, mumble) quiet."

It always makes my wife nervous when she can't hear me clanging about because she thinks I'm probably making a big mess she'll have to clean up. Nine times out of ten she's right, but not this time. I was a bit irritated at her for interfering with my beauty sleep so I yelled back, "I was trying to take a nap, thank you very much."

Then I thought I heard her reply, "You can't (mumble, mumble) a nap, it's (mumble, mumble) in the afternoon!" It was then that I realized that the noise was not emanating from the mouth of my beautiful bride but from my gastrointestinal tract. My stomach was growling. Big time. If I'd have recorded the gastro-music I'm sure it would have become a platinum selling rap song.

IT'S THE PITTS

I was embarrassed to admit to my wife that I'd been carrying on a conversation with my in-laws but fortunately for me she's starting to lose her senses too and she couldn't hear me either. Fearing ridicule, I still haven't told her that my bowels frequently speak to me.

That same day my wife and I were reading the newspaper while we ate supper when, all of a sudden, I heard my wife gasp, "Why would she write such a thing?"

"Who?" I asked.

"J.K. Rowling," she replied.

Now, in case you've been living in a cave the past 20 years, J.K. Rowling is a woman who became a billionaire by writing a series of books starring a dweeb named Harry Potter and something called Hogwarts. (Hogs have warts? Who knew?) It's all witches, magic and make-believe lunacy that my wife and billions of other people loved. But not me.

I tried to read one of her books and only lasted two pages and my wife made me sit through an entire Harry Potter movie with her and it was the longest 10 hours in my life.

At least it felt like 10 hours. Maybe it was only five.

"What did she say?" I asked, trying to pretend I cared.

"She wrote a new book and they made a movie out of it and she called it, 'Great Breasts and Where to Find Them.'"

I spewed a mouthful of broth and gruel all over myself. I thought maybe my stomach was talking to me again and I didn't hear her correctly. "She called her book what?" I asked.

"There's a review in the newspaper and it says, 'Great Breasts and Where to Find Them.'"

"Let me see that," I said as I ripped the paper from her hands. I read the offending passage and then laughed the hardest I have since our ram Studly tried to breed our neighbors Saint Bernard. (You should have seen the look that dog gave Studly!) "What are you laughing about?" my wife demanded.

"It seems your reading comprehension isn't what it used to be. You added an 'R' to the word Beast. The name of her book and movie is 'Great Beasts And Where to Find Them.' Not Breasts."

This time it was her turn to rip the paper from my hands. "Let me see that." I was kind of disappointed to tell you the truth.

"Finally," I said to my wife, "she wrote a book I might've read."

Federal judge sides with plaintiffs in Planned Parenthood case

AUSTIN — Texans who rely on Planned Parenthood as a medical care provider won't have to seek those services elsewhere, pending an upcoming trial.

In the lawsuit titled Planned Parenthood et al. v. Texas Health and Human Services Commission, U.S. District Judge Sam Sparks of Austin on Feb. 21 granted a preliminary injunction to prevent the Texas Department of Health and Human Services from eliminating funding for Planned Parenthood in the state's 2017-18 budget.

"There is no legitimate public interest in allowing Texas to complete its planned terminations (of funding) based on the current facts," wrote Sparks. "Instead, the public interest favors enforcing the individual plaintiffs' rights and avoiding disrupting the health care of some of Texas's most vulnerable individuals."

Sparks found that an injunction would ensure that Medicaid recipients in Texas "will continue to have access to medical care at their chosen providers" and the Texas Department of Health and Human Service's termination of Planned Parenthood's provider agreements likely violates federal law.

Sparks ordered the plaintiffs and defendants to work out a schedule for presenting arguments within 30 days. The court will then schedule a trial date.

Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton expressed disappointment in the ruling and said he plans to file an appeal.

'BATHROOM BILL' CONTINUES

The Trump administration has reversed last year's Obama administration move to allow transgender students to use the bathrooms and locker rooms of their choice.

The civil rights divisions for the federal justice and education departments on Feb. 22 issued a joint "Dear Colleague" guidance letter reversing the controversial move last May.

In late August, a Fort Worth federal district court enjoined nationwide enforcement of the Obama administration's directive.

Meanwhile, Senate Bill 6 by Lois Kolkhorst, R-Brenham, is awaiting a hearing by the Texas Senate's State Affairs Committee.

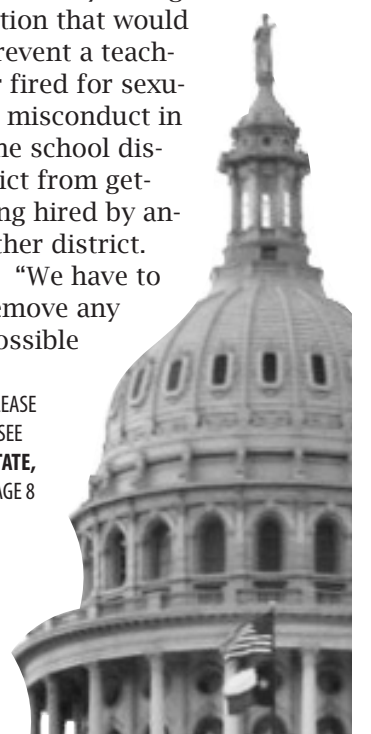

The state legislation, considered a high priority by Gov. Greg Abbott and Lt. Gov. Dan Patrick, would require transgender students to use facilities that match the biological sex they were assigned at birth.

SENATE PANEL HEARS BILL

The Senate Education Committee on Feb. 23 heard testimony on legislation that would prevent a teacher fired for sexual misconduct in one school district from getting hired by another district.

His employment lasted until 1983 when he moved to Waco, Texas to attend Texas State Technical Institute.

He received his diploma with certifications in heavy truck mechanics, and spent 17 years working for Freightliner and International dealerships in the Fort Worth, Texas area.

Putting it out there and getting it back

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH

JIM FISH

"You can lead a horse to water but you can't make it drink." How many times have we referred to that old, overdone adage? Being a health coach and an administrator for a large nutrition group on Facebook has borne that fact out more than anything else, however. I've ferreted out some golden information regarding optimum health, discovered the motherlode of dietary misinformation and helped others negotiate their own returns to good health. Still, it is very difficult to convince the unwilling they can improve their lot in life with some basic changes.

Case in point (actual post from the Facebook group I help to administrate):

MB: "Thanks so much [so-and-so], for putting all of this into easy to read and understand terms... I'm not diabetic at all, but worried sick about my husband, been trying for over a year for him to jump on the keto [ketogenic way of eating] wagon with me. He has massive stores of fat on his stomach. Can't hug him anymore, my arms won't go around him... I have dropped 50 pounds, no more BP [blood pressure] meds, no acid reflux. Feel amazing... His Dr. says "pre-diabetic", and he has lost no weight on what his dietician has him eating?"

A fellow member replied: "My T2 [type-2 diabetic] partner didn't make any significant changes to his lifestyle until he witnessed me shed 40kg [90 pounds] and attain remission status A1c of 5 percent within a 7-month timeframe. Prior to that, he was halfhearted about his own recovery process. I found when I focused just on my own T2 recovery and left him to his own thoughts (nil encouragement from me) and simply became an example of a person taking responsibility for my own self, that was what got him noticing. I think it is the 'path of least resistance' that has the greatest impact. Me stepping back from his stuff meant if anything was going to change/improve in his life then that was to come from within. He recognized this and started to make changes without my prompting."

As an administrator, I replied: "[So-and-so], thanks for sharing your experience. Far too often, we build barriers between us instead of understanding, when we attempt to force our beliefs on another, regardless of their validity. We each have but one life and one body, and though we would do well to take responsibility and educate ourselves regarding its optimum wellness and functioning, most of us have suffered the effects and become jaded by the nutritional misinformation that abounds. Often, it is only by witnessing the experiences of others for ourselves, that says more and allows us to better adapt truth and reality in a manner only we can best interpret for ourselves."

Health coaching has taught me at many levels that even though I dedicate most my time to the study of nutritional science, our ancestral dietary history, have read some 250 books and numerous studies and publications; it means very little to those who are not ready or want to hear the information. I share my passion with the few who do listen and use what I've learned for my own health and personal benefit... the results have been amazing.

In 1998, I was diagnosed with Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD) after giving myself chemical asthma in 1996 and having smoked tobacco products for some 20 years. In 2001, a basal cell carcinoma was removed from my upper lip and three others appeared in subsequent years. I had a heart attack on Aug. 28, 2004. I quit smoking that day but my weight increased over the next 6 years until I tipped the scale at 310 pounds and my blood pressure was showing to be consistently high in the summer of 2010.

My VA caregiver informed me I was diabetic in the spring of 2010 and would begin the drug regimen in November of that year. I dreaded taking the pills most. With all the medications I already took, diabetes meant at least another two scripts to be filled every month. I was already taking eight meds every day. That notwithstanding, he also told me that people with my conditions had about a 5-year life expectancy.

It was during the summer of 2010 I happened across an old article published in the New York Times (2002) entitled, "What if It's All Been a Big Fat Lie?" by a Gary Taubes. It sparked my interest and resonated as true to me, and ultimately led to the remission of all the aforementioned diseases and conditions, and a decrease of 135 pounds of body weight. I weighed 183 pounds during the last physical and according to my doctor, I've increased my life expectancy to over 25 years.

For the past 7 years, I have studied nutrition and ancestral dietary development, and have reinvented myself as a health coach, inspired by my personal health triumphs and my wife's conditions. Many of you already are aware she suffers from dementia and rheumatoid arthritis. The point is, good health is possible for most people who learn and responsibility care for their own body, and are mindful of the proper nutrients that goes into it. It is our ignorance and misguided trustfulness of certain profit-driven corporations, industries and institutions that stands between us and our own good health and wellbeing.

Here's to your health.

OZONA SENIOR HAPPENINGS

Health and wellness program every Tuesday afternoon

BY BRENDA NEWTON
SENIOR CENTER DIRECTOR

Can you believe it? We are experiencing March winds. It is Texas weather this year for sure. One day it is cold and the next it is hot. The trees and plants relay don't know what to do and we humans don't know what to wear. We are blessed though. We have not had deep snow or water as of yet and hopefully we will not have either of these in the future. I feel for those that have and pray they will have the blessings we have.

Do you remember last year that I asked to borrow movies to show in Thursday afternoons here at the center? Well, you guys were so sweet and brought me quite a few movies. I have stopped having the movies on Thursdays but I still have your movies. If you need them back please come and look through and find the ones that are yours. I would love for you to have them back.

There will be free health and wellness programs at the Crockett County Senior Center put on by Jim Fish. These will be weekly programs every Tuesday afternoon at 2 p.m. Personal health and wellness is quickly becoming a necessity as more and more people fall victim to the modern metabolic diseases like type 2 diabetes, militias, heart disease, dementia, obesity, chronic inflammation and cancer, to name a few. Oddly enough, most are preventable. Learn what you can do now to assure your quality of life and use your retirement to travel and live your dreams and be healthy enough to enjoy them.

Nikki Bishop is still having the sit-down exercise on Tuesday mornings at 10:30 a.m. She is the Wesley Nurse at the Methodist Church. She will take your blood pressure and keep a record of your progress. If you have any questions about diabetes or any other age related problems, give her a call at the Untied Methodist Church. She is aware of all kinds of helpful tidbits that might be helpful.

There will be a Bingo Social on March 27. Chicken Spaghetti with garlic bread and salad will be served along with cupcakes made by Elda Flores. There will also be bingo each Thursday afternoon. That means tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. Try it, you'll like it.

Have a couple of girls joining me on Thursday morning at 9:30 for sit down exercise. They always say that they are able to move more than they could before starting these exercises. Wouldn't that be worth it?

- Exercise - 9 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

JUST BEGINNING

I remember some years ago when I went on a mission trip with a group of teenagers (15-18 yr. olds) from another state. Most of them came from homes or families that did not go to Church. I also found out most of them were new Christians one year or less. They said they were fed up with their life and wanted something better, (John 10:10). They started going to a local Church that had a good youth program and there they came to know about Christ and how He loved them. During the week we went into neighborhoods passing out new testaments, Bibles, (Matthew 28:19, 20) and little pamphlets telling how God loved us and how Christ died for us, (Romans 5:8). It also explained how we must realize we are separated from God because of sin, (Romans 3:23). It also said we must ask God to forgive us and that we need to ask Christ to be our Personal Lord and Savior, (1 John 1:9, John 1:12). It was the first time they had ever gone out sharing and they were afraid, (Matthew 10:32). I told them that was natural and God would help them get over it, (Acts 1:8). We had many wonderful experiences and most of them helped lead someone to Christ. Many of them shared that they still have things in their lives that need working on but they want their lives to count for something. See you in Church next Sunday. Brother J

Band Camp donations needed

This year several students involved in the band program here in Ozona have shown an interest in attending a summer band camp. In an effort to help these students continue to grow as musicians, the band will be taking any donations that the community is willing to provide for these students. Money will be distributed evenly among all students who register to attend camp. Any donation is greatly appreciated as it is difficult to raise enough funds to make the experience affordable for all students.

Please contact Vincent Del Vecchio at Ozona High School 325-392-5501 if you would like to contribute.

Food handlers class March 15

BY KAILEY E ROBERTS
TEXAS A&M AGRILIFE EXTENSION SERVICE

The "Texas Food Establishment Rules (TFER)" now requires all food employees to complete an accredited food handlers training program within 60 days of employment, effective Sept. 16, 2016.

A food handlers course accredited by the Texas Department of State Health Services is being offered by Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service, Crockett County. "Food Safety: It's In Your Hands" is set for Wed., March 15, at 10 a.m. at the extension office at 1301 Avenue AA.

This 1-2-hour course will now be required for all food service employees to help promote the service of safe food.

The certificate is good for two years and is valid anywhere in the State of Texas.

The course is a basic overview of food safety practices that are necessary to ensure that safe food is served at your establishment.

Practices discussed include good personal hygiene, cross contamination, and time and temperature abuse.

The cost is $20 per person and must be paid in full before the course begins. Those unable to attend the in-person class may also take the course online at foodsafety.tamu.edu for a $15 fee.

Individuals with disabilities who require auxiliary aide service or accommodation in order to participate in the event are encouraged to contact our office within five working days prior to the program.

Educational programs of Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service are open to all people without regard to race, color, sex, disability, religion, age, national origin or genetic information or veteran status.

The class is taught in English but Spanish handouts are available if requested in advance.

For more information, or to register for the course, call the extension office at (325) 392-2721.

obstacle to identify teachers or educators with this problem and pull their license," said Sen. Paul Bettencourt, author of Senate Bill 7.

SB 7 also would:
• Create criminal penalties for any superintendent or principal who fails to notify the state of cases of sexual misconduct involving teachers;
• Automatically revoke the teaching certificate of any teacher on deferred adjudication for sexual misconduct or on the sex offender registry; and
• Require school districts to enact policies and training addressing contact between students and teachers on the Internet and social media.

LEGENDARY JURIST DIES
Noted Texas jurist Jack Pope of Austin died at age 103 on Feb. 25.

Born in Abilene in 1913, Pope helped establish formal judicial education for Texas judges, fought for a voluntary judicial ethics code when judges had none and fought again to make that code mandatory and enforceable. He served for 38 years as a district court judge, court of appeals justice and on the Texas Supreme Court, the last two as chief justice. His judicial tenure, as a whole, was the longest of any Texas Supreme Court justice.

As a court of appeals justice, Pope's reassessment of water rights conveyed by Spanish and Mexican land grants changed Texas water law forever. As chief justice he forged a way to guarantee income to finance legal assistance for the poor. Concerned with double litigation in the same case, he won legislative support for statutory changes to thwart "forum shopping" for favorable judges.

MORE STUDENTS TAKE EXAM

Morath said the total amounts to 38.7 percent of Texas' graduating class. The national percentage is 36.2.

their land will be used and maintained through the life of the easement.

TSCRA recently conducted a survey and the feedback from our members revealed this is a real issue that must be addressed.

For example, one landowner stated, "It's been a continuous headache: fences are being torn down and not being rebuilt resulting in cattle getting out, brush has been left unprocessed in creek bottoms and they are coming in during wet conditions and leaving deep ruts in the creek bottoms."

This is just one of the many stories we hear about on a daily basis and why we are so intent on providing a solution.

Making this important change to state law requires the utmost effort from all TSCRA members, leaders, staff and every Texan who believes in their inherent right to private property. There are many components to eminent domain reform, and the bona fide offer is only one part of what we're working to address this session. To learn more visit www.texasforpropertyrights.com.

RICHARD THORPE III currently serves as president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association. He is the owner and operator of Mesa T Ranch in Winters, Texas.

Chavarría said this is 24 students less than last year, but attendance is up this year with the rate at 96.55 percent.

MEDIA HONOR ROLL

The board approved to nominate The Ozona Stockman and KYXX FM Radio Station to the Texas Association of School Boards Media Honor Roll for their efforts to report school news in a manner that is fair, accurate and balanced, and gives a high-profile position to good news about the school district.

"We want to thank them for all the positive coverage of our schools," said Superintendent Raul Chavarría.
