OMS welcomes Wounded Warriors

OMS STUDENTS WELCOME WOUNDED WARRIORS Friday during a lunch stop on a fishing trip to Lake Amistad with the Reel Thanx program in Midland.

Veterans greeted with a huge West Texas welcome by students, local citizens

BY RICK BACHMAN
OZONA MIDDLE SCHOOL

Ozona Middle School was proud to host several wounded warriors with the Reel Thanx Program on Friday, Sept. 14.

The entire student body and faculty members greeted the heroes with a huge West Texas welcoming committee along the front of the building, as well as inside the building.

The veterans were treated to a tasty lunch meal provided by Mi Taco, Corba Jones worked diligently behind the scenes to co-ordinate everything, Frank and Irma Tambunga provided the ice and drinks as well as their presence for introductions and Janet Pullen made some delicious deserts for the men to enjoy.

The OMS National Junior Honor Society served as hosts and visited with the group as they enjoyed their meal.

The group was escorted into town by the Ozona Volunteer Fire Department.

Reel Thanx is a non-profit organization that takes veterans on fishing excursions periodically throughout the year.

Reel Thanx's mission statement is: "To honor our soldiers for their patriotism, bravery and love of country by getting them back to nature. Taking them fishing so they can focus on what they can do, not what they no longer can. Finally, to inspire bass clubs around the country to seek out these heroes in local hospitals and take them fishing."

I was elated that we were able to play a small role in this wonderful event, and I'm hoping that we can do this again in the near future.

Computer science learning 3-D technology through donations

THE OZONA STOCKMAN

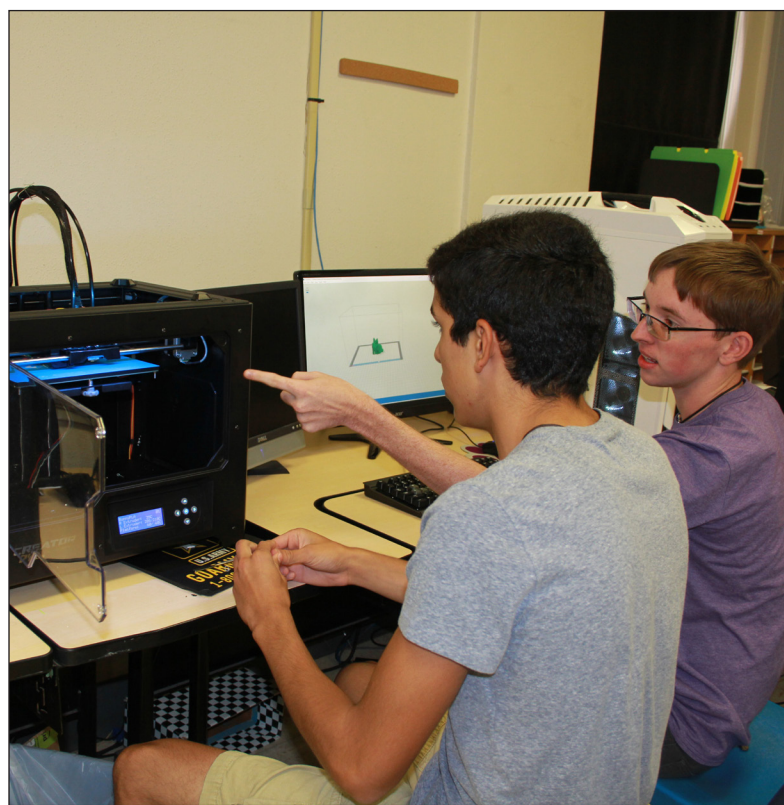

There's more to computer science than just writing programs.

Walking into Jason Davis' classroom, a new 3-D printer churns out a small, white plastic bunny. It may not seem like a lot, but on the other side of the classroom's newest gadget is a towering computer that Junior Chantz Elliott built last year.

Elliott uses the computer to create a gear for the 3-D printer's next project.

Davis' students are all about hands-on learning. The students are involved in several projects this year that, with Davis' help, are being funded mainly through donations.

"We are trying a lot of different and new things, but

Lions come up short against Crane

BY MELISSA PERNER
THE OZONA STOCKMAN

The Ozona Lions lost in a heartbreaker Friday night to Crane 27-26.

The Lions (0-3) kept up with the Golden Cranes (1-2) throughout the game, and thought they had the game won after Sophomore Lazaro Rodriguez returned a fumble 65 yards for a touchdown. Senior Kobe Rodriguez plowed to the end zone for the two-point conversion but the ruling from the officials was incomplete with 49 seconds left in the game.

"It was a hard fought game. Crane did a good job of controlling the ball. When we had the ball we were able to move it well. We just didn't capitalize on mistakes when they made them," said Athletic Director and Head Coach Kyle Freeman.

A small business owner isn't an entrepreneur

Just because you own and operate a small business doesn't make you an entrepreneur.

A study published in an issue of the Quarterly Journal of Economics revealed a key difference between being self-employed and an entrepreneur.

Researchers found that a business's legal status, whether it is incorporated or unincorporated, is what separates entrepreneurs from other small business owners.

The study found that incorporated business owners tend to start ventures that are entrepreneurial and require high level skills, while unincorporated business owners typically start businesses that demand manual talents.

The researchers said an example of an entrepreneur or incorporated business owner may start a digital advertising agency or a mobile app business. An unincorporated business owner might be a plumber, contractor or truck driver.

BUSINESS TIPS

According to Ross Levine, one of the authors of the study and a professor at the University of California at Berkeley said people often think of entrepreneurs as someone who creates something unique, non-routine or risky.

He goes on to say, "We found that people who open such businesses tend to open incorporated businesses. While those who open businesses that perform fairly routine activities, tend to have less formal education and open unincorporated businesses."

The study also found that having an incorporated status provides business owners with some added legal protections, which often provides them a little more freedom to delve into larger or riskier ventures than unincorporated business owners.

Levine said, "We found that over time incorporated business owners are more likely to describe themselves as entrepreneurs than unincorporated business owners."

Researchers found that before starting their own company, incorporated entrepreneurs exhibited greater self-esteem, wanted to be more in charge of their futures, were usually involved in jobs that primarily rely on intellect and were likely than salaried workers to come from high earning families with two well educated parents.

In addition, the researchers discovered that incorporated entrepreneurs are more likely to have many employees while unincorporated business owners have few or no employees.

In either case, the Angelo State University Small Business Development Center is here to provide technical business assistance to anyone who wants to start or expand a small business in San Angelo and the Concho Valley.

Texas Strong

However, the rapid response to this natural disaster has been exemplary. Ironically, as September is National Disaster Preparedness Month, it's important to highlight the hard work and coordination of our first responders that saved countless lives and made Texas resilient in Harvey's wake. The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) has done an incredible job aligning federal, state, and local agencies while seamlessly integrating private and non-profit partners into coordinated missions. Other federal agencies have aided these response efforts as well, like the Small Business Administration which assists small businesses and homeowners as they begin to rebuild through its disaster relief loan program.

At the San Antonio Emergency Operations Center (EOC), which is led by the San Antonio Fire Department, dozens of city, county, and state organizations worked together to prepare for the storm hitting San Antonio, but then immediately shifted to disaster response along the Gulf Coast. The EOC provided critical, round-the-clock support to local and statewide efforts in the days and weeks following the Hurricane. Given San Antonio's geographic location within the state, and the work of the San Antonio Fire Department and its local first responder and law enforcement partners, the San Antonio EOC has become a crucial disaster response point for the State of Texas.

To recover from lives lost, thousands displaced, and billions of dollars in damage, Texas needs all hands on deck. This is why I supported emergency funding for disaster relief and recovery needs last week, so that FEMA can continue operations in Texas - and now in Florida. We have a long road ahead and I am doing my part to provide much-needed relief to survivors, first responders, and all of those affected during this tremendous time of need.

The efforts of state and local officials along with other private companies and non-profit partners have been nothing short of remarkable, and are absolutely critical for our fellow Texans to recover from this natural disaster. We've seen neighbors helping neighbors, and strangers helping strangers. Tens of thousands of Americans have volunteered, brought down boats, and lent a helping hand. We have a long road ahead, but it is inspiring to see that people are helping people.

HURD ON THE HILL

I was humbled to witness a few of these selfless acts firsthand in San Antonio. At that time, the American Red Cross in San Antonio had mobilized 10,139 volunteers from the area and was training an additional 10,000 in the next five days. At the survivor shelter - one of the five in San Antonio and more than 230 set up across the state, I met volunteers who had been on their feet for five days straight welcoming and helping Harvey evacuees. Another local non-profit organization had set up an arts and crafts area for children to stay occupied as they waited to return home.

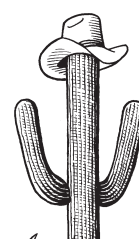

The warehouse at the Texas Diaper Bank was bustling with volunteers sorting and accepting boxes of diapers and baby supplies for families in desperate need. I also had the chance to speak with local law enforcement, whose efforts have been vital in keeping people safe as they returned to their homes to collect belongings and access damages.

The San Antonio Food Bank was the lead organization in the San Antonio area collecting food donations for Harvey victims and first responders. To date, they've distributed over 29,000 meals and more than 350,000 pounds of food and supplies to Hurricane survivors. The response from organizations, businesses, and neighbors is the real reason that we are Texas Strong.

Disasters do not plan ahead, but we can. We must continue seamless coordination among first responders, government agencies, non-profits, and private companies across the state and nation to minimize further loss of life and destruction. Together we will rebuild and be stronger than ever.

IT'S THE PITTS

LEE PITTS

My friend Frank was facing an all-too-common problem: he owned a beautiful ranch that his kids wanted no part of. His son in California is a budding entrepreneur (he builds greenhouses for pot growers), and his daughter is a vegan/animal rightist who hates cows and cowboys. So Frank responded to an ad for anyone wanting a free meal at a fancy resort to come learn about 1031 exchanges. Who says there's no such thing as a free lunch? He even took his wife who constantly complains he never takes her anywhere nice to eat.

The lawyer hosting the meet-and-greet made it all sound so easy. They could transition out of their hard life as ranchers into a leisure retirement financed by rent checks just by swapping their ranch for apartments. And all the income from the sale of the ranch would be tax free!

Now, two years later Frank is deeply depressed despite being named customer of the month by Home Depot for buying truckloads of drywall and spackle to repair all the holes in the walls left by vacating tenants. Instead of playing golf Frank is patching roofs and replacing water heaters. He has recurring nightmares about leaky faucets. (Did you know that no two are the same?) His once peaceful life has turned into one giant honey-do list.

"Frank there are people to do all that work," I advised. "They are called property managers and they'll do the maintenance and collect the rents for you."

"HA! You don't understand. I went from being land rich, cash poor to being apartment rich, cash poorer. At the end of the month there's not enough money left for my wife and I to live on so how am I going to pay a property manager? Especially when the apartments I traded for are all rent controlled! It got so bad my wife and I had to move into one of our apartments. What a dump. No wonder no one wants to rent one."

"Don't you have managers living in each of your buildings?"

"Are you kidding? I just spent six months and $10,000 to get one evicted, another turned his apartment into a meth lab and another throws wild parties every weekend the cops have to respond to. The police now have my number on speed dial."

"It's got to be physically less demanding than ranching," I said.

"I had a stroke last year from the stress. And I miss my cows! I swear, my apartments are like a miniature United Nations and I don't speak any of the languages. I have to keep my dog on a short leash for fear she'll get eaten. And you never know when a renter will vacate the premises in the middle of the night and leave behind an old gross couch on the street for you to haul to the dump and an apartment that looks like a bomb went off in it. The cleaning deposit doesn't come close to cleaning things up. They say that when you do a 1031 Exchange it has to be for "like" property but there's nothing alike about ranching and owning apartments. They are as alike as New York City and Chugwater. When I sold my cattle at the auction market I got paid the same day. Most of these folks are four months behind!"

"Was the 1031 exchange a mistake then?"

"Let me put it this way, I'd much rather get up at 3:30 in the morning to pull a calf than to respond to a domestic disturbance. Perhaps instead of apartments I should have traded instead for the chain of bankrupt water parks, the shopping center anchored by a dying Sears store on one end and a JC Penney on the other, or the church building in Chicago's slums."

"Can you trade for your ranch back?"

"I've thought of that but the lawyer who did the trade won't return my calls. I've heard he either has "relocated" to San Quentin or that he's now peddling conservation easements in Colorado. I couldn't afford my old ranch anyway. It's now for sale for twice what I got paid. I tell you, that free lunch was the most expensive I ever ate. I should have known that something was fishy when they served chicken parmesan to a bunch of ranchers."

Citizens, government agencies continue hurricane recovery work

AUSTIN — Help-is-on-the-way announcements from the governor's office came last week as residents of hard-hit counties of the state labored to pull themselves out the watery mire and windblown nightmare of Hurricane Harvey.

On Sept. 14, Gov. Greg Abbott spotlighted Texas Department of Transportation contractors' efforts to remove debris along state roadways in the Coastal Bend, the area that took a full frontal assault from the deadly storm that plowed ashore and battered Texas in late August and early September.

"The cleanup in the aftermath of Hurricane Harvey is a job that will take months for Texans to complete," Abbott said, "but our state agencies have been poised and ready to begin the work of clearing our roads and public spaces of the oftentimes dangerous debris left by this storm."

TxDOT, with its initial focus on Aransas, Nueces, Refugio and San Patricio counties, worked to ensure roads and bridges were safe for travel.

In addition to debris removal, the work included damage assessments, reopening roads, replacing and re-activating traffic signals, re-installing stop, yield and one-way signs and resuming ferry service in Port Aransas.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality continue to coordinate recovery efforts.

As of Sept. 14, the TCEQ reported that of 2,238 drinking water systems affected by Harvey, some 2,014 systems are fully operational, 77 have boil-water notices and 19 were shut down. Also, the TCEQ said its personnel had made contact with 1,219 wastewater treatment plants in the 58 counties within the governor's disaster declaration, and 31 of those were inoperable.

SPECIAL DAY IS PROCLAIMED

Gov. Abbott proclaimed Sept. 12 as "Hand-In-Hand Day" and encouraged Texans to keep "the true nature of Texans on full display" by continuing to help hurricane victims.

He noted that Texans had responded generously.

"But there is even more we can do," he added. "Now that the rescues are over, the response must continue. Thousands of Texans still need our help. ... At this time, I encourage my fellow Texans to consider the many ways they can extend their hand of support to those impacted by Hurricane Harvey and show their generosity to those affected by Hurricane Irma."

Irma ravaged the Caribbean islands before striking Florida with catastrophic force as Texas and Louisiana reeled from Hurricane Harvey.

Your blood sugar and your brain

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH

JIM FISH

New studies have confirmed that what we have considered as "normal blood sugar levels" is actually profoundly detrimental to not just brain physiology, but for brain function as well... accounting for the increasing instances of Alzheimer's, other types of dementia and brain function in recent decades.

Dr. David Perlmutter recently advised, "As the authors of a new paper entitled, "Brain atrophy in ageing: Estimating effects of blood glucose levels vs. other type 2 diabetes effects" point out, our brains shrink as we age with as much as 5 percent volume loss occurring between age 60 and 70. And as you would expect, this correlates with declining function."

The studies show the impact of blood glucose on the brain is not exclusive to type-2 diabetics, and that blood glucose levels even in the normal range can have a significant impact on total brain and cell-loss. These results speak to the need for us to consider lowering our blood glucose "normal level" to around 85 mg/dl, or an A1c of 5.2 percent, and the "fasting insulin level" with a target of 8 micro units or lower.

According to Dr. Perlmutter, "These goals are best achieved by a diet that's exquisitely low in sugar and welcomes healthful fat back to the table. Keep in mind that artificial sweeteners, paradoxically, are also known to elevate blood sugar, so no more aspartame."

A lifetime of Carbohydrate Intolerance (CI) and carbohydrate abuse lies at the root of what ails most human beings in this regard. Not just in neurological and brain issues, CI has claimed more lives throughout the world community than all the victims slaughtered in our world's wars, catastrophes, chemicals and terroristic attacks combined.

Dr. John Yudkin, FRSC tried to warn us about CI in "This Slimming Business" in 1958. Robert C. Atkins,

M.D. warned us in "Dr. Atkins' Diet Revolution" in 1972. In 1997, Richard K. Bernstein, M.D. went into detail in "Dr. Bernstein's Diabetes Solution" about how carbohydrates are at the root of almost, if not all our metabolic disorders and so-called "western diseases."

In all candor, carbohydrate is not the "bad guy", it is simply a macronutrient we all have over-indulged for more than a-hundred-and-fifty-years; to the point that it threatens our very existence as a specie. Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia explains that "the term carbohydrate often means any food that is particularly rich in the complex carbohydrate starch (such as cereals, bread and pasta) or simple carbohydrates, such as sugar (found in candy, jams, and desserts)."

Significant problems for the human body arise because; "Relatively high levels of carbohydrate are associated with processed foods or refined foods made from plants, including sweets, cookies and candy, table sugar, honey, soft drinks, breads and crackers, jams and fruit products, pastas and breakfast cereals..." as explained by Wikipedia.

Our bodies have not evolved to beneficially process the high-glycemic and refined carbohydrates that have been available in our food supply for the past three millennia. Further complicating the dilemma in the worldwide health crisis is the fact that all refined sugars, refined grains and processed foods are products of the most recent 150 years. Our blood sugars have increased to levels that become toxic over time and are spreading to our progeny. We are nowhere near developing the genetics to sustain life through the consumption of simple and refined carbohydrates; and they dominate almost every food item manufactured or processed in this day and time.

In the article "White Paper: Carbohydrate Intolerance - Its Implications in Health and Fitness", on Dec. 8, 2016, Dr. Phil Maffetone warns, "Unfortunately, the early signs and symptoms of CI, while well-recognized by some researchers and clinicians, are ignored by too many health practitioners, patients and other individuals [especially in cases of cognitive and brain physiology issues]. Traditional medicine considers these as separate, isolated conditions, rather than part of a spectrum of metabolic impairment. It is therefore typical to find that CI is not treated until it has progressed to later stages, when risk factors such as hypertension or disease states like Type 2 diabetes are diagnosed (and even then is treated symptomatically rather than by addressing the cause)."

Brain degeneration and decreased functioning has been increasingly regarded as the normal aging process, but this is misleading. The toxicity of our generally accepted "normal blood glucose levels" drives this condition as it does almost all other metabolic disorders and diseases. Relearning and educating ourselves regarding "what ails us" is paramount.

Each of us would do well to be assume the role of primary advocate in the management of our own health and wellbeing. Your health care practitioner can only do so much since she does not reside in your body and will only see you professionally for less an hour annually. It's your life and your body, and you suffer the consequences when it's bad and the benefits when it's good. Here's to your health.

OZONA SENIOR HAPPENINGS

Bingo Thursday afternoons

BY BRENDA NEWTON
SENIOR CENTER DIRECTOR

Rhonda Shaw will be back on Tuesday, Sept. 26, with another craft. Please try to make it for her presentation. We made flower pens this last week and had a lot of fun with those. She is so sweet to do this for us.

I have a lot of puzzles that have already been worked here at the center. We need more puzzles to work. If you have some at your house that have already been worked, please bring them to us and you can trade for the ones we have.

I still have copies of the Senior Sourcebook for 2017 that lists all the services available for us older folks.

We are still doing the balanced exercised Monday and Thursday at 9:30 a.m. These are simple exercises that are done very slowly so that most are able to do them.

If you let me borrow any of your movies a while back to show here at the center, I have them here. I thank you for lending them to me and would love for you to have them back. Please come by and pick them up.

Niki Bishop is back offering the exercises on Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. She is the Westley Nurse at the Ozona United Methodist Church and has some great exercises, along with checking your blood pressure and keeping a record of it. Niki came last Tuesday and there was a good group. I think you would enjoy these discs. Come give it a try.

We still have Bingo on Thursday afternoons at 2 p.m. Bring your nickels and play as many cards as you can handle at a nickel a card per game. We serve Cokes and popcorn and laugh and hope we get a bingo.

Bingo social will be Oct. 9. We will be serving cheese enchiladas, beans, rice and salad. Corina Diehl will be making bread budding for dessert.

The center will open at 8:30 a.m. and close at 4:30 p.m.

Exercise - 9:30 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Mexican Train - 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Prayer Group - 3 p.m. Wednesday.

OZONA GARDEN CLUB NEWS

First meeting of the year held

BY CHARLOTTE HARRELL
OZONA GARDEN CLUB

The Hitchin' Post Restaurant was the scene of the Ozona Garden Club's first meeting of the year, held Sept. 11 with 23 members present. New members Virginia Howell and Shirley Kirby were welcomed.

President Belinda Wilkins welcomed everyone back from the summer break. She read a note of thanks from Marolyn Bean for the flowers the club sent to Joe Bean's funeral.

Jeannine Henderson reported on the progress the Landscaping Committee for the new Ozona Health Center has made. Plans were available for all to review. Crockett County is still installing the water system. Once that is done, the plans, which the Commissioners approved, will be implemented.

The new yearbook prepared by Mary Anne Deaton and Charlotte Harrell was reviewed and corrected. Treasurer Heidi Williams took orders for the National Garden Club calendars.

The scholarship committee reported that there is no qualified applicant for next year, so the fund will continue to grow for the future. Charlotte Harrell held a plant sale in August at her home, because she is preparing to move to Virginia. She decided to divide the proceeds between the Ozona Garden Club Scholarship Fund and the Texas Garden Clubs District VIII Scholarship Fund, thus a check for $689.50 was presented to the club. A similar check will go to the TGC District VIII Scholarship Fund with the San Angelo Area Foundation.

President Wilkins asked that the hostesses for each meeting this season create a table arrangement to give everyone new ideas. To this end, she did a lovely one for the first meeting, using a grouping of small vases to display herbs from her garden, along with floral patterned china.

The next meeting will be Oct. 9 at the Senior Center to make fall wreaths with Blanca Martinez.

WATCHING MIRACULOUS WORK BEING DONE

I stood by silently and watched as the doctor very carefully put on the pair of rubber gloves. The doctor said she might not live and the operation would be very dangerous because she was so tiny. I watched with great intent as the doctor worked and at one point she almost stopped breathing. I saw miraculous work done that day because he had almost no room to work because the little dog was so small. I don't know how long the operation took as we all lost track of time but then came the moment when he stepped back and wiped the sweat from his forehead and started to slowly pull of the rubber gloves. I realized one very important detail about the Christian life. The doctor had a whole box of gloves but it wasn't till he pulled out that pair and put them on that they were involved in great and mighty things. Oh, it wasn't the gloves but who had control of them and was using them that was important. The secret to the Christian life is making ourselves available, (yielding our wills) to God and letting Him work through us, (Luke 9:23&24, Romans 12:1&2). It should be our goal to surrender daily to the will of God, (Psalm 40:8 & 1 John 2:17) just as Christ Jesus did, (Luke 22:42). Sadly to say many people who say they are Christians never do that. See you in Church next Sunday. Brother J

Lions sweep Miles Cross-Country Meet

The OHS Lions and JV Lions Cross-Country Teams dominated the Bob Fuller Invitational last week in Miles.

"This was a great race for us coming off a short week," said Coach John Esparza. "Our guys have really stepped up they are why we were able to come away with the win." Ozona was first defeating Miles, Sonora, Cross Plains, Sterling City, Irion County, Reagan County and Water Valley.

Roman Esparza was the top runner placing second at 18 minutes, 23.79 seconds.

Aaron Rodriguez was fifth at 19:03.60; Humberto Torralba 10th at 19:56.16; Danny Posadas 11th 19:58.12; Manuel Torralba 12th 20:02.78; Marco Rodriguez 25th 21:12.40; Josh Mahannah 27th 21:15.75.

For the JV Lions, Ozona swept the top five spots with Abraham Rodriguez first at 12:28.22; Jesse Vega second 12:31.00; Marco Lozano third at 12:46.89; Justin Yeager fourth 12:48.90 and Christian Yruegas 12:53.94.

The Lady Lions placed fifth in the meet behind Iraan, Garden City, Christoval and Sonora and above Miles, Colorado City, Blackwell, Cross Plains, Irion County and Reagan County.

"On the girls side, Kenzee Talamantez continues to be our top runner and our team times continue to get lower. We are coming along well for such a young team. As always our kids represented our school and community with class and pride," Esparza said.

Talamantez was 10th at 13:29.82; Roslynn Mendez 24th at 14:07.58; Norah Rodriguez 26th at 14:15.30; Itzel Esmerado 48th 15:09.80; Dorisel Sanchez 52nd 15:24.05; Katrina Marmalejo 64th 16:20.04; Kameron Ortiz 85th 17:28.22.

there is only so much time in a school year," Davis said.

The OHS Computer Science Students have a top reputation throughout the state. Last year Elliott, Humberto Torralba, Manual Torralba and Josh Knaack won the Class 2A UIL State Championship at the State Academic Meet, a goal they plan on repeating this year.

However, along with competitions the students are working on projects that will give them real world experience.

The new 3-D printer is the start of a project to build prosthetic limbs for children in need.

Cost for the project was $1,192. All of it was funded through donorstochoose.org.

DonorsChoose.org makes it easy for anyone to help a classroom in need. Public school teachers from every corner of America create classroom project requests, and anyone can give any amount to any project.

Davis said the website also matches donations, which really helps with funding of the projects.

"It's hard to get a project funded without the matching," he said. "The school is very supportive, but the district only has so much money and it can only do so much per year."

CCCCSD is asking local voters to decide on a $5 million bond at the Nov. 7 election.

The district has lost $2 million this year due to the expiration of the Additional State Aid for Tax Reduction (ASATR) funds, along with sending around $7 million of the district's $13.4 million budget to the state due to the Robin Hood plan.

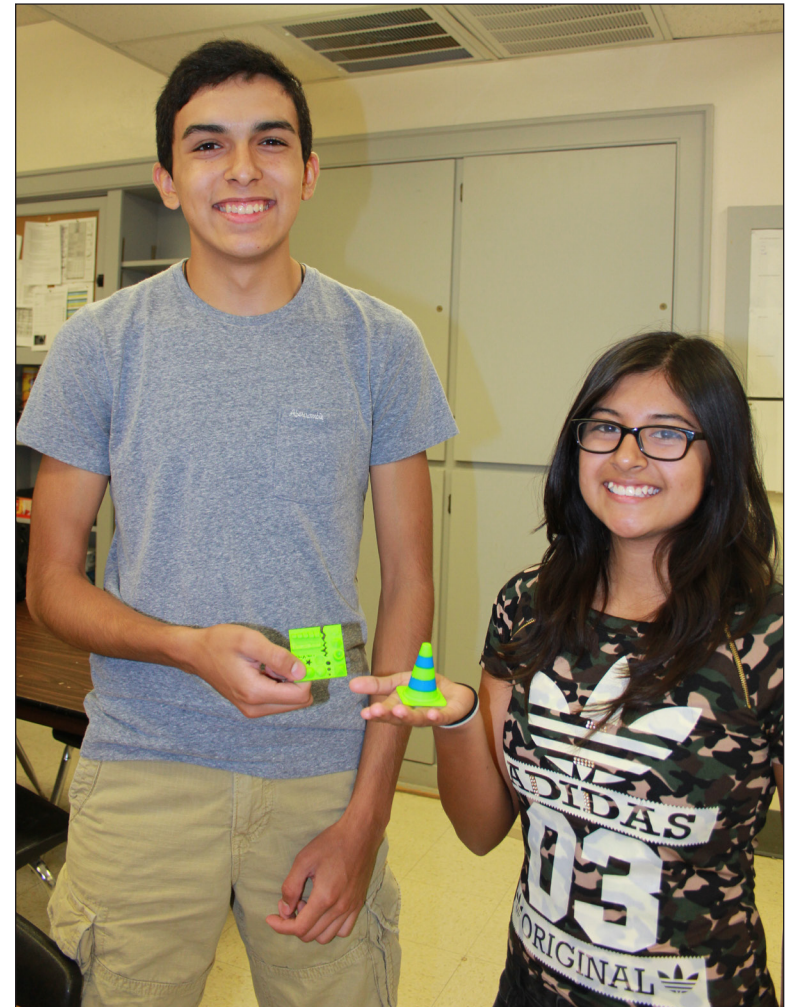

Superintendent Raul Chavarria said career and technology courses, like computer science, will see benefits from the bond money if it passes.

"We know there is a shortfall," Davis said.

For their project, the 3-D printer will make the parts of the limb and the students will put the pieces together.

"Just the bunny has 277 layers of plastic," Manual Torralba said, while demonstrating the new machine.

"This is a big project, a tall order, but we are going to try really hard," Davis added.

MANUEL TORRALBA AND CITLALLI CANO show off some of the small items they have made with the 3-D printer in the OHS Computer Science Class. A video with Torralba explaining how the printer works can be found on the Stockman's Facebook page.

Being in Davis' class is also a tall order. Along with the prosthetic limb project, the group plans on building two computers from scratch. This project is also being funded through donorstochoose.org.

"We want this to be a tradition every year," Davis said.

Along with Elliott, the Torralbas and Knaack, Citlalli Cano and Michael Esparza are also part of the group.

Cano is the only girl in the computer science group and is trying to encourage other girls to join.

The group practices every Thursday from 6-9 p.m., along with classroom time. Like other students, they are all balancing out computer science with participation in other extra-curricular activities and their other subjects.

Davis also has goals of expanding the school district's robotics program with fellow teacher Nate Harris.

They have created the Algorithm and Problem Solving Guild for the computer science and robotics students. The APSG will have officers and be a club where more projects and promotion will be created.

For the robotics, Davis said they want to move up to the next level to Vex Robotics. Currently, the school works with Lego Robots, but with Vex the robots have steel parts enabling them to do more and go to higher level competitions. Davis said the middle school is also included with their program.

"We are working on grants and hoping to have three per school," Davis said. "At the end of the year we hope to have a full set of robotics and a handful of 3-D printers."

Davis already has three more projects on his donorstochoose.org site for 3-D printers. Another one for a prosthetic limb and two to make musical instruments for children in impoverished countries.

He also said he would like to do local events, such as teach local children how to play chess and have a tournament.

"We want to do more," he said. "It's exciting to be a teacher and a students in all this."

For more information on the computer science and robotics projects, or to donate, visit Mr. Davis' Classroom at donorschoose.org or email him at jason.davis@ozonastockman.com.

New statewide law prohibits texting while driving

AUSTIN - Effective Sept. 1, texting while driving is illegal across the state of Texas as the result of a new texting-while-driving ban passed during the 85th Texas Legislative Session. The law prohibits motorists from reading, writing or sending electronic messages while driving.

Texas is caused by distracted driving," said TxDOT Executive Director James Bass. "We are pleased the Texas Legislature recognizes the extreme danger caused by texting and driving. The new law sends a very clear message to Texans to put down their phones and focus on the road. We are hopeful this new law will help save lives and reduce injuries."

Last year, 109,658 traffic crashes in Texas involved distracted driving. Those crashes resulted in 455 deaths and 3,087 serious injuries.

While distracted drivers risk injuring or killing themselves and others, they also now face penalties under the new statewide law. A first offense is punishable by a fine up to $99; any subsequent offense carries a fine up to $200. Drivers should be aware that some cities have additional ordinances that are more restrictive. Exceptions to the new law include emergency communication or electronic messaging when the vehicle is stopped.

For those under 18 years of age, Texas law already bans all cell phone use while driving, including hands-free, except in the case of emergencies. Additionally, drivers are currently banned from texting and using hand-held cellular devices while driving in school zones. School bus operators also are prohibited from using cell phones while driving if children are present.

To help educate the public on the new law, TxDOT will be posting information on portable roadside message signs as well as permanent signs along interstate and U.S. highways.

Consumers need to know steps for addressing unwanted calls, texts

BY PAUL SCHATTEBERG
TEXAS A&M AGRILIFE COMMUNICATIONS

COLLEGE STATION - People who are annoyed by robocalls coming to their landline and unwanted calls or texts to their mobile phone should know the steps to stop them, said a Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service specialist.

"If the number of unwanted or unknown calls you receive on your landline — provided you still have one — or your cell phone has been excessive and you're tired of the disruption, the Federal Communications Commission and the Federal Trade Commission offer some excellent consumer guidelines to address them," said Nancy Granovsky, AgriLife Extension family economics specialist at College Station.

According to the Federal Communications Commission, robocalls and telemarketing calls are among their top consumer complaints. Per commission rules, anyone making a telephone solicitation call must provide their name, the name of the person or entity on whose behalf they are calling, and the phone number and address where that person or entity can be contacted.

The FCC also prohibits phone solicitation calls to homes before 8 a.m. or after 9 p.m. In addition, telemarketers are required to comply immediately with any do-not-call requests made by the consumer during the call. FCC rules limit many types of robocalls, but some are permissible with prior consent. The rules also differ in relation to calls made to landlines as opposed to cellular phones.

According to the Federal Trade Commission, the law allows political calls, calls from charitable organizations, informational calls, calls about debts owed and phone surveys, as well as calls from companies with which the consumer has done business or has given permission to call. But if it's an unwanted sales call or robocall with a recorded message about a product, service or winning something, the FTC tells consumers there's a good chance it's a scam.

"Handling robocalls may provide a 'teachable moment' for family members who have their own cell phones and numbers too," Granovsky said. "Convene a family meeting and share the steps to take. For younger or older family members, you may need to be the one to provide direct help."

Whether telemarketing calls or calls for informational purposes, any non-emergency robocall requires the consumer give permission for the call to be made to a wireless number, she said.

"Consumers can revoke permission to be called or texted and the caller must allow them to do that in a reasonable way," she explained. "And consent to be called or sent texts is forbidden as a condition of a sale or other commercial transaction."

Granovsky said wireless and landline home phones are protected against telemarketing robocalls made without prior consent, but emergency or urgent calls or text alerts "for the public good," such as those related to health, fraud or missing persons, are allowed without prior consent.

"And although it's probably not a good idea to ignore such alerts, consumers still have the right to stop even these calls or texts if they choose to do so," she said.

To prevent unwanted calls Granovsky said the FCC and FTC provide some advice, which includes:

- Registering on the Do Not Call registry at <http://www.donotcall.gov>.

- Contacting the phone company to see if they offer robocall-blocking technology. If they do, provide them with the numbers of those unwanted callers.

- If the phone company does not offer robocall-blocking technology, consider buying a commercially available blocking device.

- Telling unwanted callers not to call and writing down their number and when the request was made to not call again. If the calls continue, contact the FCC and make a complaint.

- For unwanted calls on wireless phones, look into blocking apps offered through the mobile app store or marketplace.

Granovsky said sometimes people will continue to receive unwanted calls even after they have contacted the Do Not Call Registry or have requested their phone provider block the number.

"If these calls persist, just hang up and report the number to the Federal Trade Commission," she said. "If you punch buttons or try to ask for a person you can tell to take you off their list, this may just lead to further unwanted calls and annoyance."

To contact the FTC and report a complaint, call 1-888-382-1222 or go to <http://complaints.donotcall.gov>.

"If you get a suspicious text message on your cell from an unrecognized number, whatever you do, do not text back or click on any embedded link," she said. "Report it to your phone provider and to the FTC at 1-888-82-1222 or <http://ftc.gov/complaint>.

Gallego passes on second bid to reclaim old seat in Congress

BY PATRICK SVITEK
TEXAS TRIBUNE

Former U.S. Rep. Pete Gallego, D-Alpine, has decided not to try again to reclaim his old seat in Congress.

"Know that my public service is not done, but that for the present, I have decided to forego another run in the 23rd District," Gallego said in a statement Friday. "I continue to explore options that will allow me to give back to San Antonio and the rest of this great state which has given me and my family so much."

Gallego had been considering whether to make a second consecutive run for Texas' 23rd Congressional District, which he represented from 2013-2015 and stretches from San Antonio to El Paso, and includes Crockett County.

The incumbent, Helotes Republican Will Hurd, unseated Gallego in 2014, and Gallego unsuccessfully challenged Hurd in 2016.

At least three other Democrats have already announced they will take on Hurd in 2018: Jay Hulings, a former federal prosecutor from San Antonio; Rick Treviño, a teacher from San Antonio; and Gina Ortiz Jones, a former Air Force intelligence officer from San Antonio.

Gallego had set up an exploratory committee for the seat in July. At the time, he said he was "energized about 2018," citing a new level of Democratic enthusiasm in the district following the election of President Donald Trump.

In recent weeks, Gallego tried to raise money for his would-be congressional campaign, according to those plugged in with the Democratic establishment donor community — but found resistance after losing twice.

Moving Forward By Giving Back

James B. & Lois R. Archer Charitable Foundation and Sonora Bank

James and Lois Archer will be the first to tell you that they consider themselves to be among the very fortunate. And, in typical West Texan style, you will never hear them talk about the hard work or the sacrifices it took to get there. They understand that in order for individuals and communities to move forward, we must all give back.

Sonora Bank has also harnessed that same culture of giving back by promoting and supporting volunteerism across West Texas. The bank and our employees are there helping non-profit organizations through donations and time. It's a big part of the foundation we were built on.

PUBLIC NOTICE Brief Explanatory Statements of Proposed Constitutional Amendments Special Election, November 7, 2017

Proposition Number 1 (HJR 21)

HJR 21 proposes a constitutional amendment that would permit the Texas legislature to expand the circumstances under which a partially disabled veteran or their spouse may qualify for an exemption from ad valorem taxation of part of the market value of the veteran's residence homestead. Currently, the Texas legislature may provide that a partially disabled veteran or their spouse is entitled to an exemption from ad valorem taxation of a percentage of the market value of the disabled veteran's residence homestead only if the residence homestead was donated to the disabled veteran by a charitable organization at no cost to the veteran. The amendment would allow the Texas legislature to provide that the exemption also may be taken when the residence homestead was donated, sold, or transferred to the disabled veteran by a charitable organization for less than the market value of the residence homestead. The amendment also harmonizes certain related provisions of the Texas Constitution.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to provide for an exemption from ad valorem taxation of part of the market value of the residence homestead of a partially disabled veteran or the surviving spouse of a partially disabled veteran if the residence homestead was donated to the disabled veteran by a charitable organization for less than the market value of the residence homestead and harmonizing certain related provisions of the Texas Constitution."

Proposition Number 2 (SJR 60)

SJR 60 proposes a constitutional amendment to require that certain conditions be met for the refinancing of a home equity loan to be secured by a voluntary lien on a homestead. The amendment would: redefine what is excluded in the calculation of the cap on fees associated with a home equity loan, lower the cap from 3% to 2% of the original principal amount of the extension of credit, and specify that such fees are in addition to any bona fide discount points used to buy down the interest rate. The amendment would further specify the list of authorized lenders to make home equity loans, change the threshold for an advance of a home equity line of credit, allow agricultural property owners to acquire home equity loans, and update technical terminology in the Texas Constitution. The amendment would be effective on January 1, 2018, and applicable only to a home equity loan made or refinanced on or after that date.

The proposed amendment would appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to establish a lower amount for expenses that can be charged to a borrower and removing certain financing expense limitations for a home equity loan, establishing certain authorized lenders to make a home equity loan, changing certain options for the refinancing of home equity loans, changing the threshold for an advance of a home equity line of credit, and allowing home equity loans on agricultural homesteads."

Proposition Number 3 (SJR 34)

SJR 34 proposes a constitutional amendment that would prevent certain office holders from serving indefinitely beyond the expiration of their term. Office holders who are appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate and receive no salary would only be able to serve until the last day of the first regular session of the Texas legislature that begins after their term expires.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment limiting the service of certain officeholders appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate after the expiration of the person's term of office."

Proposition Number 4 (SJR 6)

SJR 6 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow the Texas legislature to require any court that is hearing a challenge to the constitution-ality of a state statute to notify the attorney general of that challenge, if the party raising the challenge notifies the court that the party is challenging the constitutionality of such statute. Additionally, the amendment would allow the Texas legislature to set a period of not more than 45 days following the notification to the attorney general that the court must wait before rendering a judgment that a state statute is unconstitutional.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to require a court to provide notice to the attorney general of a challenge to the constitutionality of a state statute and authorizing the legislature to prescribe a waiting period before the court may enter a judgment holding the statute unconstitutional."

Proposition Number 5 (HJR 100)

HJR 100 proposes a constitutional amendment to provide a more detailed definition of "professional sports team" for purposes of their charitable foundations, which the Texas legislature may permit to hold charitable raffles. The amendment also deletes a requirement that an eligible professional sports team charitable foundation permitted by the Texas legislature to hold charitable raffles had to be in existence on January 1, 2016.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment on professional sports team charitable foundations conducting charitable raffles."

Proposition Number 6 (SJR 1)

SJR 1 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow the Texas legislature by general law to provide that a surviving spouse of a first responder who is killed or fatally injured in the line of duty is entitled to receive an exemption from ad valorem taxation from all or part of the market value on the surviving spouse's residence homestead, as long as the surviving spouse has not remarried since the death of the first responder. It would also allow the Texas legislature to provide that the surviving spouse, who qualifies and receives the exemption and then qualifies a different property as the surviving spouse's residence homestead, receive an exemption from ad valorem taxation of the different homestead in an amount equal to the dollar amount of the exemption of the first homestead for which the exemption was received in the last year in which the surviving spouse received the exemption for that first homestead. Like the initial exemption, this benefit will only remain available if the surviving spouse has not remarried since the death of the first responder. The proposed amendment would apply only to ad valorem taxes imposed for a tax year beginning on or after January 1, 2018.

The proposed amendment would appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to provide for an exemption from ad valorem taxation of all or part of the market value of the residence homestead of the surviving spouse of a first responder who is killed or fatally injured in the line of duty."

Proposition Number 7 (HJR 37)

HJR 37 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow the Texas legislature to make an exception to the law regarding the award of certain prizes. Currently, the Texas Constitution requires the Texas legislature to pass laws prohibiting lotteries, raffles, and other programs where the award of gifts is based on luck or chance. The proposed amendment would make an exception to this general rule to allow the Texas legislature to authorize credit unions and other financial institutions to institute programs which, in order to encourage savings, would award prizes based on luck or chance to the credit union's or financial institution's customers.

The proposed amendment would appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment relating to legislative authority to permit credit unions and other financial institutions to award prizes by lot to promote savings."

Game Warden Field Notes

COMPLIED FROM TEXAS PARKS AND WILDLIFE DEPARTMENT LAW ENFORCEMENT REPORTS.

SKUNKED
A Rockwall County game warden responded to a call from a local law enforcement officer about a traffic stop involving three subjects that had been driving the neighborhoods shooting rabbits from a public roadway. When the warden arrived on scene, he found three young men standing around a truck with a bed full of dead rabbits. One young man was only wearing a trucker hat, boots, and some brightly colored underwear. The subjects said they had shot a skunk earlier in the evening and when the individual approached it, the skunk sprayed him. The others wouldn't let him back in the truck with his clothes on. Citations pending.

AFTER THE STORM
Willacy County game wardens wasted no time patrolling the county upon returning from Hurricane Harvey disaster relief operations in Woodsboro and Rockport. During opening weekend of dove season, the wardens seized at least 80 mourning dove from various groups for violations ranging from no hunting license, to over daily bag limit and unplugged shotgun. They also even made time to surprise a couple of gill netters as they were retrieving their nets and catch out of the water. Over 30 citations were issued. The cases and restitution are pending.

and earn their usual paychecks because of Hurricane Harvey.
Gov. Abbott responded on Sept. 13 by issuing an executive order suspending the seven-day waiting period requirement imposed under the state's labor law and immediately authorizing benefits to residents who became unemployed as a direct result of the natural disaster.

AG ALLEGES PRICE GOUGING

Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton on Sept. 12 filed lawsuits against two gas stations and a motel, alleging unlawful price gouging while consumers were in need of fuel, shelter and other essentials as a result of Hurricane Harvey.
"It's unconscionable that any business would take advantage of Texans at their most vulnerable: those who are displaced from their homes, have limited resources and are in desperate need of fuel, shelter and the basic necessities of life," Paxton said.

"Texas has tough price-gouging laws, and my office will continue to aggressively investigate and prosecute cases arising from Hurricane Harvey."

Texans in affected counties who believe they've been scammed or price-gouged may call the Consumer Protection Hotline, (800) 621-0508, or send a message to consumeremergency@oag.texas.gov.

STRAUS ISSUES LIST OF CHARGES

Texas House Speaker Joe Straus on Sept. 14 directed the House committees on Appropriations, Public Education and Natural Resources to begin studying issues related to Hurricane Harvey and state preparations for future natural disasters.
Findings from the committees' studies will figure into deliberations in the next regular legislative session, which will begin in January 2019.

"The importance of getting these issues right when we meet again demands that we start working on them now," Straus wrote in a letter to the committees. "I also hope you'll point us in a direction that will lead to new and innovative solutions, even as we confront familiar challenges."

AG CHEERS ELECTION RULING

Attorney General Paxton released a statement on Sept. 12 after the U.S. Supreme Court blocked two lower-court rulings that recently invalidated parts of Texas' House and congressional maps.
The high court rulings should enable Texas to continue to use maps that the state used in the last three election cycles, Paxton said.
