CCCCSD begins exploring conceal carry options for district staff

BY MELISSA PERNER
THE OZONA STOCKMAN

The Crockett County CCSD is exploring options regarding conceal and carry and district staff members.

At the April 18 regular board meeting, Superintendent Raul Chavarria told the board he would like to explore options in defense of the district's campuses.

He presented two different plans, the School Marshal Plan and the Guardian Plan, to the board.

The School Marshal Plan States:

- Board of trustees appoints one more specially trained and licensed employees as school marshals.

- Allowed to carry a concealed handgun, unless their primary duty involves direct and regular contact with students. In that case, the school must put the handgun in a locked and secured safe on school grounds and within their reach.

- Concealed handgun license required.

- Must be certified by Texas Commission on Law Enforcement.

- Pass a psychological exam.

- 80 hours of TCOLE-approved instruction.

The Guardian Plan States:

- School board authorizes the designation of specified employees to carry firearms on school premises.

- The school board defines the rules and trainings requirements.

- Concealed handgun license required.

- The plans also refers to Nixon-Smiley CISD near San Antonio that recently adopted the Guardian Plan and require 80 hours of training and a psychological exam.

- Under both plans, the identities of the staff members who are chosen to be armed are confidential.

Christoval ISD, Ballinger ISD, San Saba ISD, Miles ISD, Wall ISD and Veribest ISD all have Guardian Plans.

In Texas, almost 17 percent of school districts — 172 out 1,023 statewide — have some sort of policy allowing armed employees, according to the Texas Association of School Boards.

Chavarria said he plans on conducting a two-question survey of community members and district staff members regarding the issue. He will share the results with the board at the May regular board meeting.

Commissioners start treasurer selection process, reinstate burn ban

BY MELISSA PERNER
THE OZONA STOCKMAN

The Crockett County Commissioners' Court have begun the process in selecting a new county treasurer. During a special meeting Tuesday morning, the commissioners met for one hour in executive/closed session to review the six applications submitted for the position. The applicants are Amy Cowley, Annette DeHoyos, Elsa Fierro, Cynthia Hokit, Molly Martin and Pete Morado.

County Judge Fred Deaton said the applicants will be checked to see if they meet the requirements for the office.

Even though the commissioners are appointing someone until the end of the year to finish the term, Deaton said the person must meet the requirements as if they are running for the office. This is to finish out the term of Karen Webb, who died of a sudden illness last month.

According to the Texas Secretary of State's website, the qualifications to run for county treasurer are the person must be a U.S. Citzen, a Texas resident of at least 12 months, a resident of the county or district for at least six months, must be registered to vote in the area they are elected from and 18 years of age.

Deaton said those who meet the qualifications would be called for interviews at a special meeting at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, April 26, at the courthouse annex. The meeting is open to the public, but the agenda states the commissioners will meet in executive/closed session on personnel matters to conduct the interviews.

The commissioners also approved a countywide burn ban.

The burn ban does not prohibit outdoor cooking in a properly contained area.

Underneath a burn ban, any control burns must have prior approval, such as being conducted by a Prescribed Burning Association, Natural Resource Conservation Service or the Texas A&M Agricultural Experiment Station.

All controlled burns shall be reported to the

A better fight against cattle fever ticks

The same unscrupulous marlin the late 1800s and early 1900s a disease termed cattle fever caused enormous economic losses to the cattle industry. It is deadly to cattle that have not developed an immunity, and the mortality rate is estimated to be up to 90 percent in these "naive" cattle. The disease was found to be transferred from animal to animal by a tick found in much of the southern United States. The only viable way to prevent the disease is to control the tick that spreads it.

Today, the disease and its vector, referred to as the cattle fever tick, are not well known to most Americans who reside outside of South Texas, even those who raise cattle for a living. That is because the tick was largely eradicated from the United States by 1943, preventing the spread of the deadly disease. A cooperative effort between ranchers and state and federal authorities pushed the tick back to Mexico and established a buffer that became the permanent quarantine zone.

CATTLEMAN'S COLUMN

For those landowners within a quarantine zone, there are several weapons to use against the ticks. We use controlled burning, reduce the population of non-native nilgai antelope and white-tailed deer through hunting, at certain times of the year we put out ivermectin-treated corn for white-tailed deer and we systematically treat our cattle using regimens prescribed by the Cattle Fever Tick Eradication Program (CFTEP).

This program is administered jointly by USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) and the Texas Animal Health Commission (TAHC).

While cattle are closely monitored to prevent spreading the tick, growing wildlife populations can also inadvertently spread the tick as they travel in search of food and water. This is particularly true in the Laguna Atascosa and Lower Rio Grande Valley National Wildlife Refuges where the tick population has grown, largely unchecked. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) oversees the refuges and has begun taking steps to better control the tick on federal lands.

Previously, FWS only utilized controlled burning and limited reduction of some wildlife populations to help mitigate the tick resurgence. While this has been beneficial, additional tools have been needed to effectively control the tick on the two refuges. Thanks to TSCRA members working with USDA-APHIS and TAHC, FWS saw scientific evidence that supports the use of additional measures to eradicate the ticks on federal lands. These measures include using ivermectin-treated corn for white-tailed deer treatment and allowing cattle to graze the refuges.

FWS has recently started to allow ivermectin-treated corn

Looketh unto the hills

Waxing biblical comes easily when one visits beautiful Colorado. If we "looketh up"--as the psalmists did--we can do them one better on the topic of elevation. In Psalm 121, they "lifted their eyes unto the hills" from which "cometh" their strength. How about gazing even higher--yea, toward the mountains, for relaxation and refreshment? (Colorado leads the nation with 53 peaks towering more than 14,000 feet, well ahead of Alaska's 29.)

IDLE AMERICAN

benefited from one of the very best snowfalls of the season. The late snow was the "cherry on top," except for all those skiers who had to get back home. Back in Texas, we swung by Tyler to pick up our rescue dogs and visit their "hosts" during our respite in Colorado. Our arrival to the home of daughter Jana, son-in-law Kyle and "grands" Juliana, 15, and Kedren, 11, coincided with the fitting of Juliana's first eyeglasses.

It was in this setting that "little brother" was able to launch a line toward her that he'd heard many times. Jana, the youngsters' home school teacher, is a firm disciplinarian, but softens many "corrections" with an "if-you-weren't-so-cute" line, usually followed by something like, "You'd get in even more trouble." It is usually directed toward "little brother," but this time she "aimed" it at Juliana....

Upon putting on her eyeglasses for the first time, Juliana flashed her best smile, indeed looking cute, as well as scholarly. Her mom uttered the old line usually used on Kedren. "Juliana, if you weren't so cute, I'd..." Before she finished, Kedren piped in with this retort: "Look out Juliana. Mom's about to get tough with you."

Our dogs, Sadie and Sailor, were gleeful upon our arrival. Such delight can last for as long as 30 or 40 seconds. One of them pointed a paw toward feeding bowls, contents of which had been precisely measured twice daily, but with plain dog food only. The dogs didn't protest, but eagerly bounded into the car for the two-hour ride home. They knew that upon arrival, their meals would include small portions of meat morsels sneaked from the refrigerator to enhance their dining pleasure. Also, they anticipated a more liberal distribution of doggy treats. Life is good...

On April's second weekend, my wife and I flew to Denver, then drove upward to picturesque Mt. Crested Butte. It is one of the numerous Colorado meccas that induces skiers to salivate, dreaming of silken slopes by day and cozy fireplaces by night.

As we ascended, masses of vacationers drove downward, some of them with tear-stained cheeks. After all, they were returning to the workaday world and income tax reporting deadlines. With no "regular" working hours, we were merely seeking a quiet condo to edit a book.

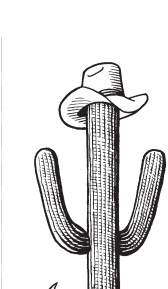

There was more to get biblical about as the ski season ended. What happened provided evidence that not only does it "rain on the just and unjust alike" (Matthew 5:45), the same may also be true of snow. After a season of "spotty" snowfall, the skies opened with one of the best snow blankets of the season in most locales.

Guess who benefited? First, resort workers throughout the state applauded wildly. Finally, "skis were on the other foot," so to speak. With the season officially over for tourists, most of the employees on the slopes took advantage of "day after" benefits. On the magical day after season's end, the slopes were theirs alone for free skiing, grand rewards for their five months or so of hard work.

Also rewarded were those of us, comfy indoors with roaring fireplaces, gazing gratefully at the grandeur. It was a scene Norman Rockwell would have loved to paint--and then choose for the cover of The Saturday Evening Post magazine. Pipe in his mouth and an easel by his side, he might well have mused, "Yep, this one rates a cover." Truly, many

The Cowboy Arts

IT'S THE PITTS
LEE PITTS

I'm proud to say that I was a vocational student, even though the rest of my high school looked down on us and we were quarantined far from the regular campus. Teachers and school administrators weren't used to straight A students and the smartest kid in the class learning to weld and one even suggested to my mom that my smarts would be wasted by taking agriculture. He suggested, "I'd make a 'wonderful lawyer.'" If there is such a thing.

I've always been a shop rat and taking ag class meant you got to take an hour of shop every day. I've always enjoyed fixing things in our home, for neighbors, antique dealers and even museums and to me a perfect day is spending all day and evening tinkering in my shop. I've collected thousands of tools used for carpentry, welding, soldering, carving, leatherworking, engraving, jewelry making, airbrushing, embossing, tinsmithing, upholstery, blacksmithing, and engine repair. I even have some dental and orthopedic surgery tools so if you need a tooth pulled or a bone set, I'm your guy. (If you don't mind anesthesia by one of my over 100 hammers.)

I've gone through phases of what I liked to do best. I started out by wielding wrenches back when cars came straight from the factory with a sick engine or cranky transmission. When they started putting computers in cars I lost interest and switched my allegiance to wood carving and woodwork. That phase lasted until I realized a guy that's overly medicated probably shouldn't be using a table saw. I'm lucky to have survived that phase with all my fingers intact. I've always loved to weld and one summer in the oilfields I was a pipeline welder's assistant. He discouraged my taking up the profession because he said all welders became cranky old men. I listened to his advice but became one anyway. A cranky old man, that is.

Then I found the perfect hobby: leatherworking. It satisfies two of my biggest urges, I get to pound on things and it requires lots of tools. Some of them are wicked looking things like round knives and head knives and they took a long time to master, but here's my secret to surviving the learning phase: Super Glue. It's better than a bandaid for cuts.

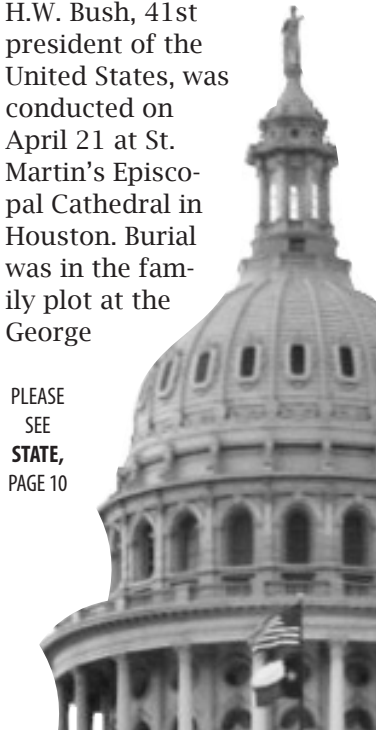

I love working with leather because you can burn it, stamp it, dye it and airbrush it without all the sawdust of woodworking, and without burning your house down with a welding torch. I can make a belt in a day or two that a friend will wear for a lifetime. So far my best creations are a miniature saddle that sold for $50,000 at a charity auction for my friend Joan Hardy's Small Miracles Foundation, and a photo album I made for the Junior Hereford Association that sold at the Nuggett auction for $18,000 and ended up in my friend John Ascuaga's hands. So, thus far I'm averaging about $34,000 per item just in case you wanted me to make you something.

For years I was too embarrassed by my work to stamp my name on it and hopefully most of it found new life as doggy chew toys. My biggest problem is I live in California and the state has outlawed all the old dyes and finishes that look so good. I'm left with making Indian "teas" out of strong coffee and rusty nails. And wouldn't you know it, just as soon as I mastered the art of carving flowers, oak leaves and scrolls, fads changed and bling, geometric designs and roughout saddles are all the rage. I can non-tool a saddle as good as anyone.

I got so tired of buying silver conches to put on my leatherwork that I took up silversmithing and engraving next. The biggest problems with it are silver is costlier than leather or wood and it's real easy to slip and put a hole through your hand while engraving. My engraving is really unbelievable when you consider I'm legally blind.

I read recently that some schools can't offer shop class because there aren't enough qualified teachers. Kids are graduating without ever having used a hammer. If the boats ever stop arriving from China there may come a time in this country when we'll once again need folks who know how to make things and there won't be any left.

Governor announces extension of hurricane-related sheltering assistance

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS By Ed Sterling | Texas Press Association

AUSTIN — Gov. Greg Abbott on April 17 announced that the Federal Emergency Management Agency had granted Texas' request to extend the deadline for Hurricane Harvey survivors to apply for transitional sheltering assistance.

The deadline has been extended from April 23 to May 31. The transitional sheltering assistance program helps displaced individuals who are unable to return to their homes find short-term shelter in hotels or other temporary housing locations.

"With many Texas families still unable to return home after Harvey, we are committed to ensuring they have a place to stay as the recovery continues," Abbott said. "We will continue to do everything in our power to help Texans get back in their homes and get our communities rebuilt as quickly as possible. I thank our federal partners and FEMA for helping provide this important assistance for those in need."

Officials discuss funding Gov. Abbott on April 20 joined U.S. Housing and Urban Development Secretary Ben Carson, U.S. Sen. Ted Cruz, R-Texas, U.S. Rep. John Culberson, R-Houston, and local officials in Houston to discuss the $5 billion recently allocated by Congress to Texas for Hurricane Harvey and disaster recovery.

Provided through the HUD Community Development Block Grant Disaster Recovery Program, the intended use of the grant funding is for the rebuilding of housing, businesses and infrastructure following Hurricane Harvey and previous flood events.

"Though Hurricane Harvey was the worst of storms, it brought out the best in the people of Texas," Abbott said. "In each community, so many lives were saved because of the courage and leadership of local officials and the efforts of our incredible first responders. These funds will help give communities the resources they need to continue recovering, and I thank HUD Secretary Ben Carson, as well as all of our federal partners, for their ongoing support throughout this process."

The funding includes: — $652 million to help rebuild damaged homes, businesses and infrastructure.

— $4.3 billion for elevating homes, property buyouts, and hardening structures from wind and water to help protect Texas families from future storms; and

— $62 million to Houston and $24 million to San Marcos for mitigation of 2015 floods.

BEING ON A SPECIAL TEAM

Years ago there was a terrible coal mine explosion in Old Mexico where a good friend of mine lived. He was a coal miner and had worked deep underground in the coalmines for years. He had also volunteered for a special team that goes into those burning caved in mines and tries to rescue the trapped miners. He had some success but has been trapped himself and almost killed several times. One time as he was just entering a mine to rescue trapped miners, the mine exploded and blew him out of the tunnel. He was unconscious and had broken bones but he survived. They had to seal up the mine and never reenter. My friend said yes, "One life is worth it!". His statement reminds me of an event that took place over 2000 years ago when Jesus Christ, the only begotten Son of God died on a cross for us, (John 3:16). His birth, His sinless life, (Romans 5:19) and finally His death was the way that God tried to reach down rescue us from being trapped in our sins, (Romans 3:23 and 6:23). I can't imagine what a trapped miner must feel when he see a little beam of light when the rescue team finally breaks through. It was that same way on that day when Jesus shed His innocent blood for us, (1 John 5:11-13). Are we still trapped or have we been rescued? See you in Church next Sunday. Brother J

OZONA SENIOR HAPPENINGS

Bingo every Thursday

BY BRENDA NEWTON SENIOR CENTER DIRECTOR

I will be glad when the wind calms down. Hopefully, it will blow up some rain that will calm down the fires that have been hurting our area. I love the rain, but not the wind. I think you have to have one to get the other. Thanks to the Ozona Volunteer Fire Department that the fire north of us was put out last week. Now, as I am writing this, I hear the fire whistle sounding. My fingers are crossed and prayers are going up that it is not serious.

to exercise with the Wesley Nurse Program. She will be going to San Antonio for more training. She should be back on May 22. Niki has really good exercises that are not hard but are very good for all of us. She takes your blood pressure and keeps a record of it for you. She comes on Tuesday morning each week and presents the good exercises for our age group. Give it a try.

There will be no Bingo Social during May because of the busy schedule all you parents and families will have to celebrate the graduation of our Class of 2018.

We will have afternoon bingo this Thursday at 2 p.m. Bring your nickels and play as many cards as you can handle at a nickel a card per game. If you bingo for that game, you get all the nickels. We serve Cokes and popcorn and have a good time. Then we have a blackout bingo for a little prize for the lucky winner.

The center will open at 8:30 a.m. and close at 4:30 p.m.

present a draft Board Resolution at the May meeting as well.

Chavarria said that at this time the district is just exploring all options and that further discussion on the issue will take place over the next couple of months before any decision is made.

DISTRICT OF INNOVATION

The board unanimously approved the District of Innovation Plan. The plan met its final requirements of being posted on the district's website for 30 days and being approved by the Texas Education Agency Commissioner's Office.

The process, which began with informal discussions back in August 2017, allows school districts options to be exempt from certain laws.

The exemptions CCCSD is seeking in the plan are:

- SCHOOL START DATE. Current law prohibits students from starting school before the fourth Monday in August. According to the CCCSD's plan, the district would have the flexibility of creating a school calendar to balance instructional days between semesters, by allowing for an earlier start date. The 2018-2019 School Calendar has not been set yet, but Chavarria said an example would be students would start the Wednesday before the fourth Monday.
- MINIMUM MINUTES OF INSTRUCTION. According to the education code, each district must operate so that it provides at least 75,600 minutes of instruction. CCCSD's plan states "exempting completely from the 420-minute requirement would give the District a significant amount of local control over scheduling (above and beyond the six-day maximum as needed) without the fear of diminishing state funding or losing credit for instructional time that might cause the district to fall out of compliance with annual minute requirement." The plan also states the district will continue to maintain the 75,600-minute requirement. Also, the length of the instructional day cannot be changed.

- TEACHER CERTIFICATION. State law requires a teacher to hold an appropriate certification. CCCSD is seeking exemption from this rule when it comes to career and technical education courses and hard-to-fill positions. Chavarria said the district would still pursue highly qualified teachers for core subjects, but this would allow the district to hire a teacher for a year in a subject they are not certified in until they can achieve that certification. He also said it will allow the district to expand the career and technology classes by allowing the district to hire individuals with experience in their career field to teach those classes. The plan states the superintendent will inform the school board of all hiring.
- TEACHER CONTRACT. State law states that a probationary contract may not be for a term exceeding one school year for an experienced teacher. CCCSD's plan will allow the district to expand probationary contracts to two years for experienced teachers. Chavarria said this will be for new teachers hired to the district.

While there are many flexibilities a district can choose from in becoming a District of Innovation, Chavarria said these are the four that the committee decided on for CCCSD.

The plan was finalized by a committee comprised of Chavarria, school administrators, including all the principals and counselors, teachers and community members.

"This plan has been researched and looked at by quite a few people," Chavarria said.

CALENDAR

With the new District of Innovation Plan approved, Chavarria said one of the first uses will be on the 2018-2019 School Calendar. The board approved the calendar which meets the 75,600 required minutes for attendance with 173 school days.

Students will start school on Aug. 21, which is earlier than the normal start date.

Early out days include: Sept. 28 for Homecoming; Nov. 20 for Thanksgiving; Dec. 20 for Christmas and Feb. 15 for staff in service.

Thanksgiving break will still be three days. Christmas break will be two weeks, a little bit longer.

Labor Day, Sept. 3, President's Day, Feb. 18, and April 19 and 22 will be holidays for students and staff.

March 11-15 will be Spring Break.

Oct. 26 and Jan. 11 will be teacher in-service days and student holidays.

May 24 will be the last day of school and graduation.

WIND FARMS

The board heard a presentation from Terry Smith, from Powell & Leon, about how the district could benefit from the current wind farm projects that are pending in Crockett County.

Smith presented some projected numbers on the pending Rancho Wind and High Lonesome Wind Projects that are still in development in Crockett County.

The projects have not been finalized, but Smith's advice to the board was if they do happen "take advantage early on in the project when you get the most benefit from it."

"Get the most from those companies as you can," he said.

Smith also said before 2009, school districts could negotiate where they received more than half the tax benefit. That enabled many small districts to build new schools. Since then, the laws have changed, he said.

"There may be a lot of misconception about his in your community," he said.

BOND SALE

The board approved the order authorizing the issuance of the bonds for the Crockett County CCSD $5 million School Bond. The bond was approved by Crockett County Voters in November 2017.

This order was supposed to be approved at the March 12 regular meeting, but not enough commissioners were in attendance as a super quorum of four commissioners and the county judge is needed. All commissioners were in attendance at Monday's meeting.

Tax rate for the bond will be 14.4 cents per $100 valuation. Interest rate is 2.16 percent. The bonds are scheduled to close on May 9.

Because Crockett County has a common school district, the Crockett County Commissioners' Court also approved the bond sale at their April 9 meeting.

The bond will be used to make up the district's $2 million loss of Additional State Aid for Tax Reduction funding that was cut by the state. Chavarria said the district plans to purchase a truck for the agriculture department, maintain computer labs, purchase new computers and support for all campuses, purchasing teaching equipment and supplies for student use for all campuses, update the career and technology classes as nursing, food science and agriculture, address maintenance repairs throughout the district and continue with the updating of existing teaching housing.

BOARD TRAINING

Chavarria thanked the board members for attending the School Board Training in San Angelo on April 5. The training covered the Team of 8 Training and SB1566 (Evaluating and Improving Student Outcomes), which is new this year and mandatory for all board members.

"I want to applaud our board for everyone being there. Our board members do not get paid anything, but they took time away from their families, at their own expense, to attend these trainings," Chavarria said.

THE BOARD ALSO:

- Reviewed and accepted the District and Campus Improvement Plans.
- Approved teachers for rehire as presented after meeting in a short closed session.

FUTURE MEETING

The next regular board meeting will be 6:30 p.m. May 16 at the Administration Building, 797 Avenue D. The meeting is open to the public.

CROCKETT COUNTY PUBLIC NOTICE

ORDER RESTRICTING OUTDOOR BURNING

The Commissioners' Court finds that circumstances present in all or part of the unincorporated area of the county create a public safety hazard that would be exacerbated by outdoor burning; and NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED by the Commissioners' Court of Crockett County, Texas, that outdoor burning is restricted in Crockett County for 30 days from the date of adoption of this Order, unless the restrictions are terminated earlier based on a determination made by the Texas Forest Service or this Court. This Order is adopted pursuant to Local Government Code 352.081, and other applicable statutes. This Order does NOT prohibit outdoor burning activities related to public health and safety that are authorized by the Texas Natural Resources Commission for: (1) firefighter training; (2) public utility, natural gas pipeline or mining operations; (3) planting or harvesting or agricultural crops; or (4) burns that are conducted by an approved Prescribed Burning Association, Natural Resource Conservation Service, the and/or Texas A&M Agricultural Experiment Station, or prescribed burn manager certified under Section 153.048, Natural Resources Code, and meet the standards of Section 153.047, Natural Resources Code.

All burns shall be reported to the Crockett County Sheriff's Office (325) 392-2661 and the Fire Chief (325) 392-2626 prior to commencing, together with the name of the landowner, location involved and expert to be on hand. This Order does NOT prohibit outdoor cooking in a properly contained area which is attended at all times. In accordance with the Local Government Code 352.081 (h), a violation of this Order is a Class C misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not to exceed $500.

The case is being investigated by TSCRA Special Rangers. Anyone with information that could help identify the perpetrators should call TS-CRA's Operation Cow Thief hotline at (888) 830-2333 or Special Ranger Kenny Wadsworth at (325) 392-2552.

on the refuges. The medicated corn kills ticks on white-tailed deer, one of the three major hosts for the tick. The treatment will not only improve the health of the deer population, but will prevent the deer from spreading ticks to adjacent properties.

FWS has also started to allow cattle to graze on the refuge. While it may seem counter intuitive, it is effective because cattle are preferred by the tick and unlike wildlife the cattle can be rounded up and treated year-round.

There are still unknowns that may affect the industry, including the fate of federal tax credits and a recent tariff on foreign-made solar panels, but the long-term prospects for this industry seem bright as companies work to meet our state's ever-expanding energy needs," state Comptroller Glenn Hegar said on April 16.

grasses that threaten native habitats. Cattle will not only be a mechanism to eradicate cattle fever ticks, but will also reduce the risk of wildfires and assist the establishment and recovery of native brushland vegetation.

We thank the FWS personnel who are involved in both maintaining standing eradication methods and expanding fever tick eradication efforts through the use of tools like grazing and distribution of ivermectin-treated corn. This is a huge achievement for the beef industry and an enormous relief for ranchers and landowners adjacent to quarantined refuge lands.

I manage a ranch in South Texas that is currently under quarantine. I know firsthand the challenges that are presented by fever ticks and can tell you definitively that the U.S. cannot afford to let cattle fever ticks expand into the range occupied in the early 1900s.

TSCRA members have fought hard to ensure the managers of the wildlife refuges will be using all the available tools. This will help all of us wage a better fight against cattle fever ticks.

H.W. Bush Presidential Library at Texas A&M University in College Station on April 22.

Mrs. Bush was the mother of George W. Bush, 43rd president and former governor of Texas, and Jeb Bush, former governor of Florida. She was the grandmother of current Texas Land Commissioner George P. Bush.

Gov. Abbott on April 17 said of the former first lady: "Barbara Bush dedicated her life to helping others. As only the second woman in history to be both the wife and mother of U.S. presidents, Barbara had a unique and profound impact on our country."

"Spearheading the fight against illiteracy, she created the Barbara Bush Foundation for Family Literacy, working to improve the lives of those less fortunate through education. Her selfless devotion to service defines the inspiring legacy Barbara has left behind. Her impact on Texas and our nation will forever be treasured.

"Cecilia and I extend our deepest condolences to President George H.W. Bush and the entire Bush family during this difficult time. We ask that all Texans join us in keeping them in their thoughts and prayers as they mourn the passing of a devoted wife, mother and public servant."

SOLAR INDUSTRY IS STUDIED

In the April issue of the Office of the Comptroller's online digital publication, Fiscal Notes, the solar industry in Texas is examined.
