Commissioners interview treasurer candidates, table decision

BY MELISSA PERNER
THE OZONA STOCKMAN

The Crockett County Commissioners' Court interviewed county treasurer candidates, but a decision has not yet been made.

During the April 26 special meeting, the commissioners met in closed session and interviewed all six candidates that applied for the county treasurer position. Each candidate met with the commissioners individually. Interviews were no longer than 20 minutes each.

At the end of the meeting, the commissioners agreed that County Judge

Fred Deaton and County Attorney Jody Upham will review the qualifications, and the commissioners will meet again at 5:30 p.m. May 10 at the courthouse annex. The meeting is open to the public.

All commissioners were present at the meeting.

Candidates for the position are Amy Cowley, Annette DeHoyos, Elsa Fierro, Cynthia Hokit, Molly Martin and Pete Morado.

The commissioners are looking to appoint someone until the end of year. This is to finish out the term of Karen Webb, who died of a sudden illness last month.

Senate candidate Beto O'Rourke stops in Ozona

U.S. SENATE CANDIDATE BETO O'ROURKE made a stop in Ozona Saturday at Sonic.

BY MELISSA PERNER
THE OZONA STOCKMAN

Beto O'Rourke is becoming more recognizable across the state.

Just standing on a corner in Ozona early on a Saturday morning, two people driving by shout "ese Beto!"

The El Paso Congressman took time from traveling from San Angelo to Houston to make an early stop and visit with Ozona citizens Saturday at the local Sonic.

O'Rourke, who stayed overnight in Ozona after coming from a town hall at Angelo State University Friday, said his campaign is "less about any one candidate and any one party, but more about doing something great for Texas."

The Democratic Senate Candidate is aiming to try to beat Republican incumbent Ted Cruz.

Since launching his campaign more than a year ago, O'Rourke has traveled the state and visited more than 240 counties. He said to the Ozona crowd that his campaign is close to visiting all 254 counties.

O'Rourke said in his travels he has met people who all have the same concerns, are facing the same issues and all want to make Texas and American better.

"I feel very hopeful that there are many good people out there," he said.

During his visit, O'Rourke spoke on public education and how the state of Texas is pushing the burden onto local property taxes.

He also mentioned how teachers in other states are conducting walkouts and protests, of which Texas teachers can't do, and how states all over the country are consistently underfunding teacher's salaries and public education.

In Texas elections, there's power in small numbers

In the last presidential election — normally the high-water mark for turnout in any state — 9.0 million Texans voted, out of the 15.1 million who were registered to vote at that time. That's just a touch under 60 percent.

You already know that voter turnout in Texas is, according to a recent report, worse than almost any place else. "Almost" means Hawaii. And if turnout is bad in big and noisy elections for president, imagine the numbers just ahead in the 34 party primary election runoffs on May 22 — or worse, in the just-called June 30 special election to replace Corpus Christi Republican Blake Farenthold in Congress.

STATE ANALYSIS

out potential presidents at the top of the ticket, the numbers are far worse — and the opportunities for power moves by small groups of activists are at their highest.

When fewer people vote, it takes fewer people to swing an election from one candidate to another. Parties protect themselves from that with the kinds of redistricting maps currently in place in Texas — where the overwhelming majority of districts are designed for one major party or the other.

That current map favors many more Republicans than Democrats but leaves very few federal and state legislative choices in the hands of general election voters.

Those maps were drawn with particular attention to voter turnout. The law requires them to be equal in size, but doesn't say how many adults, how many citizens or how many potential voters each must have.

In one — the 23rd Congressional District — lawyers suing the state over its district maps contend the Legislature replaced an area mainly made up of Hispanic voters with a roughly equal area of non-voting Hispanics.

In terms of population and demographics, nothing changed. But a group of largely Democratic voters was replaced with non-voters, a change that favors Republican candidates.

If a tweak like that matters in a big general election, little things make big differences in low-turnout affairs like the coming runoffs or, for that matter, the primaries held last month.

Where the November 2016 election attracted 9 million Texas voters, the 2018 Democratic and Republican primaries attracted only 2.6 million.

Each voter in a small-turnout district is proportionately more powerful than each voter in a high-turnout district. And the voters who show up for runoffs and special elections have the most clout of all.

When Amazon Sells Bulls

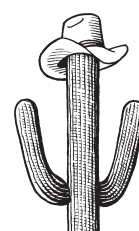

High tech has destroyed businesses, turned Main Street into a ghost town, and driven your Fed Ex and UPS delivery person to sheer exhaustion. Forget the mall, Americans are shopping on their cell phones. One of the few industries high tech has not tipped over yet is the bull business, but it's only a matter of time. Here's how, and who, you'll be buying your bulls from in the future.

Amazon- You'll buy your bulls on your cell phone and Amazon will deliver them free if you are a member of Amazon Prime Bulls. (But not Amazon Choice.) To join Amazon Prime Bulls you must pay $10,000 up front before buying a single bull. Your bulls will be delivered by your Postal Service mail carrier and I hope your bulls arrive in better shape than my mail does.

Apple- When you buy a bull from Apple it will be the very best you can buy and it won't come with any viruses or infections. Apple bulls will have all the bells and whistles, will get their work done fast, be simple to use and will have no disposition problems. The only downside is they'll cost a fortune with the Apple 8 Bull selling for $9,999. You could buy IBM for what a golden Apple 10 Bull will cost.

Samsung- Your Samsung bull, imported from China, will do all the same things that the Apple Bull will do for half the price. The only downside is the bull may self-destruct at any minute.

Microsoft- Microsoft bulls will be cross-bred and complex, difficult to control and you may have to re-boot them with your than the beds at a ten dollar-a-night fleabag motel. With every Microsoft bull you buy you'll be making Bill Gates even richer.

IT'S THE PITTS

Facebook- The good news is that Facebook is giving bulls away but in order to get a free bull you'll have to fill out an exhaustive questionnaire and answer all sorts of personal questions about the breeding habits of you, and your cows. Facebook will then sell this information to a firm that sells Viagra online, the Chinese, Zoetis, the Democratic Party, Harbor Freight, American Angus Association, Sears, the CIA, FBI, Putin, and the IRS. All these "Facebook friends" will then know all about the feeding, breeding and pooping patterns of you and your bulls. The pinnacle of humiliation will occur when your mother calls after reading about it in all the cow papers.

Tony Lama's to get them to work. You'll have to keep sending your Microsoft bull back until they send you one that will work. This will usually happen after the sixth try but in the meantime your cows will either die of old age or get bred by your neighbor's Samsung bull. You'll need to buy lots of wormer and antibiotics because your Microsoft bulls will have bacterial infections, numerous viruses and be buggy

Instagram- This Facebook-owned firm will sell bulls online using a catalog app that will display brief nude pictures of them. Once the bulls arrive at your ranch bid them a fast "adios" because you'll never see them again.

Twitter- Twitter bulls that text will tell you where they are and what they're doing every second of every day and night. In no time your Twitter bulls will be tweeting like Trump and will be much too busy to breed any cows.

Uber- Acquiring your herd sires through Uber may be the easiest way to acquire bulls. You'll call a toll free number, order a bull and in minutes an unpapered, unpedigreed, untested bull will arrive in a broken-down 1953 International Harvester truck that will be driven by a man from Nigeria who doesn't speak English. Months later when you preg check your cows only 40% of them will be safe-in-calf because your Uber bulls were so widely traveled prior to being dumped on your doorstep that they had every venereal disease known to man.

Google- Using the Google search engine you'll type in your preferred breed, how many cows you own, and your preferred EPD range in 20 different traits. Then, as if by magic, a Google Guy or Google Gal wearing a plastic sleeve and Google Goggles will magically appear faster than you can say "artificial insemination."

Is it any wonder Google is taking over the world?

Abbott urges local officials to apply for Harvey funds

AUSTIN — Mayors, county judges and emergency management officials in communities impacted by Hurricane Harvey received letters last week from Gov. Greg Abbott, urging them to take advantage of available funding.

Some $500 million in funds from the Federal Emergency Management Agency's Hazard Mitigation Grant Program are available now, Abbott said. These funds are in addition to the more than $10 billion in Community Development Block Grant funds approved by Congress and awarded to Texas earlier this year.

"The hazard mitigation funds available today can provide immediate relief and resiliency to your community," Abbott wrote. "As of today, the Texas Department of Emergency Management has received only seven complete applications from the entire region impacted by Hurricane Harvey. That means hundreds of millions of dollars that are available to Texas communities today are not being put to use."

Abbott reminded the officials that local governments would not be obligated to pay the typical 25 percent local cost share for hazard mitigation grants and that $600 million of additional hazard mitigation funds will become available in four months.

Hazard mitigation funds can be used for purposes such as:

- Buyouts and elevations of flood-prone properties;
- Drainage and reservoir projects that eliminate future flooding;
- Projects to lessen the frequency or severity of flooding;
- Flood risk reduction projects such as dams, retention basins, levees and flood walls; and — Large-scale channeling of waterways.

CHIEFS SUPPORT PROPOSAL

The Texas Railroad Commission on April 26 joined the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality and the Public Utility Commission of Texas in submitting comments on a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency proposal to repeal the Clean Power Plan adopted under the Obama administration in 2015.

A letter signed by the executive directors of the three state agencies supports the EPA's proposed repeal of "Carbon Pollution Emission Guidelines for Existing Electric Utility Generating Units," known as the Clean Power Plan.

On April 27, Gov. Abbott, Lt. Gov. Dan Patrick and Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton sent a joint letter to the EPA, praising its plan to repeal the plan. They said it "failed to produce evidence of greenhouse gases dangerous enough to necessitate federal regulation."

Worldwide prevalence of diabetes continues to rise

Diabetes is a chronic disease that occurs either when the pancreas does not produce enough insulin or when the body cannot effectively use the insulin it produces. Insulin is a hormone that regulates blood sugar. Hyperglycemia (raised blood sugar) is a common effect of uncontrolled diabetes and over time leads to serious damage to the body's organs, and to the cardiovascular and nervous systems.

In 2014, 8.5 percent of adults aged 18 years and older had diabetes. In 2015, diabetes was the direct cause of 1.6 million deaths and in 2012 high blood glucose was the cause of another 2.2 million deaths around the world.

The world's public health authorities are at a loss to discover cures or solutions that will affect a reversal of Diabetes Mellitus Type Two's debilitating conditions. The World Health Organization (WHO) recently published the following "Key facts sheet":

"The number of people with diabetes has risen from 108 million in 1980 to 422 million in 2014.

"The global prevalence of diabetes among adults over 18 years of age has risen from 4.7 percent in 1980 to 8.5 percent in 2014.

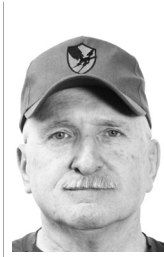

"Diabetes prevalence has been rising more rapidly in middle and low-income countries.

"Diabetes is a major cause of blindness, kidney failure, heart attacks, stroke and lower limb amputation.

"In 2015, an estimated 1.6 million deaths were directly caused by diabetes. Another 2.2 million deaths were attributable to high blood glucose in 2012.

"Almost half of all deaths attributable to high blood glucose occur before the age of 70 years. WHO projects that diabetes will be the seventh leading cause of death in 2030.

"Healthy diet, regular physical activity, maintaining a normal body weight and avoiding tobacco use are ways to prevent or delay the onset of type 2 diabetes.

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH

JIM FISH

"Diabetes can be treated, and its consequences avoided or delayed with diet, physical activity, medication and regular screening and treatment for complications."

People with diabetes experience greater reductions in brain tissues and cognitive impairments because their body's decreasing ability to regulate blood flow in the brain and throughout the body. This is especially demonstrated in the extremities, by the millions of amputations performed on diabetes sufferers every year. Blood flow can be reduced as much as 65 percent in those with diabetes and causes greater levels of inflammation.

The latest studies have observed links between diabetes and cognitive decline. Carolyn Gregoire, senior writer for the Huffington Post writes, "With a growing body of research showing an association between insulin resistance and neurodegeneration, some scientists are even referring to Alzheimer's Disease as "Type 3 diabetes" ... Hopefully, these findings will one day be used to devise better treatments for the degeneration of thinking and memory skills co-occurring with diabetes."

"Worse performance on daily activities, worse memory or slower gait speed in older diabetic adults may hallmark a decline in ability to regulate blood flow in the brain," Dr. Vera Novak of the Harvard Medical School, told The Huffington Post. "For older diabetic people it is important to maintain healthy lifestyle and minimize fluctuations of blood sugar levels, in addition to their medication regimen."

The significance of the preceding is to illustrate the fact that Diabetes Mellitus Type

Two is far more entrenched in the world community than previously thought or communicated. The world's public health authorities are yet at a loss to discover solutions that affect a reversal of its debilitating conditions. Until they do, we can only be cognizant of our own health and wellbeing, and seek our own answers in our own lives, habits and conditions.

As the WHO advises, "Healthy diet, regular physical activity, maintaining a normal body weight and avoiding tobacco use are ways to prevent or delay the onset of type 2 diabetes."

Yes, diabetes can be treated, and its ramifications avoided or at least delayed with diet and physical activity alone. That notwithstanding; regular screening, medications, and treatments are in place to treat complications. One thing each of us can do is understand the degenerative conditions that plague us and their causal factors.

In the case of diabetes and other metabolic diseases, our genetics will be primarily influenced by diet and a sedentary lifestyle. The solutions can be as simple as restricting the offending elements; those being refined, simple and starchy carbohydrates. Also, we can increase the level of activity in our lifestyles; making it something we enjoy and will likely continue.

Good solutions are born of an understanding of our individual ways of eating, knowing what foods are beneficial, and participating in life's activities. We will feel the difference as it impacts our physical, biochemical and mental wellness.

Here's to your health.

OBITUARIES

Richard Eugene Jackson

Richard Eugene Jackson entered into God's Rest at 1:18 on April 27, 2018.

He was born on January 16, 1928, in Fukuoka, Japan, the son of Southern Baptist Missionaries serving China. Political unrest in China had forced them to take temporary refuge in Japan at that time. Richard grew up in Wuxi, China not far from Shanghai. In 1940, as WWII was approaching, Richard's mother brought her four children to the United States to live. His father was kept in China under house arrest until 1941 when he was released in a prisoner swap.

Richard met Trudie Wilcox, who would become the love of his life, in Brownwood, Texas. After attending the University of South Carolina at Columbia, South Carolina, Richard transferred to Howard Payne Baptist University at Brownwood.

Trudie was attending the University as well and on December 17, 1948, the two were married.

By this time, Richard had transferred to Texas A&M University and would graduate in May 1949 with a Bachelor of Science in Animal Husbandry.

Early in their marriage, Richard was employed by the Soil Conservation Service in Ballinger and was transferred to San Angelo in 1955. In 1963, he became the Water Supply Superintendent for the San Angelo Water Department where he worked until his retirement in 1994.

During this time he was also a Lieutenant in the Naval Reserves, retiring in 1968.

Richard and Trudie raised two children in San Angelo, sending them both college at Angelo State University.

Richard was very active in the First Baptist Church of San Angelo, serving as a Deacon for decades. In 2016, Richard and Trudie moved to Ozona to live with their daughter and transferred their Church Membership to the First Baptist Church of Ozona. Richard was very active in the First Baptist Church of San Angelo, serving as a Deacon for decades. In 2016, Richard and Trudie moved to Ozona to live with their daughter and transferred their Church Membership to the First Baptist Church of Ozona. Richard was a quietly strong man who walked with God before his family, co-workers, and community. He had a true servant's heart and would gladly help anybody with anything they needed. He and Trudie served wherever they could all their married life.

Richard is survived by his wife of 69 years, Trudie, his son and wife, Richard and Mary Jackson of Celeste, Texas, his daughter, Vicki Davis, of Ozona, his grandson Sean Davis of Corpus Christi and 9 nieces and nephews and numerous other relatives. He is also survived by one sister-in-law, Vivian Jackson of El Cerrito, California. A visitation for Mr. Jackson was held on Tuesday, May 1, 2018, from 6-8 p.m. at Johnson's Funeral Home. A graveside service followed at Johnson's Lawnhaven Memorial Gardens. A memorial service was held the First Baptist Church in Ozona later that afternoon.

LOSING FRIENDS AND LOVED ONES

This last year I have had several good friends pass away and also a few people that I know and visit. I miss them very much especially close friends and if it is a family member or spouse it is even harder. Death was not in God's original plan for mankind. But when Adam and Eve were in the Garden of Eden, God told them they could eat anything in the garden, (Genesis 2:8 & 2:15-17) except fruit from the tree of knowledge of good and evil. Well they ate from the tree of knowledge of good and evil and God punished them because of disobedience and one of the punishments was physical death, (Romans 6:23). Death is not pretty and also not avoidable, (Hebrews 9:27). I am reminded that death is our enemy but I also realize for Christians (Those trusting in Christ) there is victory through death (1 Corinthians 15:54-57). When Christ Jesus died on the cross He defeated death, (1 Peter 3:18). I know my close friends and acquaintances that have accepted Christ are far better off because they are with Jesus in Heaven, (1 John 5:13, 2 Corinthians 5:8-10, Philippians 1:21,23) I miss my friends and love ones very much but I must go on and I have the hope to someday be with them in Heaven where we will be forever (John 11:25,26, Romans 6:8,9, Philippians 3:20,21). OZONA SENIOR HAPPENINGS

Bingo every Thursday afternoon

BY BRENDA NEWTON
SENIOR CENTER DIRECTOR

Please use the new exit on the south side of the center. This is the crossing that is across from Avenue D. It has been paved so it is rally smooth. The exit in front of the center is dangerous because of truck traffic. There will be signs put up on this new entrance in a few days. The road department has told me they will install these signs so I expect them any time. There is talk of taking the front entrance completely out but it has not passed commissioners' court at this time. We do not want any of you to be in an accident when leaving this facility. Please pay closer attention to the traffic leaving from town.

Niki will not be here the first three weeks in May to exercise with the Wesley Nurse Program. We will miss her but she has to continue her training for her Wesley Nurse Program.

I got some new games for the center to exercise your hands and minds. Come on out and try them. You can play them standing up or sitting down. Remember, if you don't use it, you loose it.

There will be no Bingo Social during May because of the busy schedule all you parents and families will have to celebrate the graduation of our Class of 2018.

We will have afternoon bingo this Thursday at 2 p.m. Bring your nickels and play as many cards as you can handle at a nickel a card per game. If you bingo for that game, you get all the nickels. We serve Cokes and popcorn and have a good time. Then we have a blackout bingo for a little prize for the lucky winner.

The center will open at 8:30 a.m. and close at 4:30 p.m.

Monday, Wednesday and Friday - 9 a.m. Exercise Wednesday - 1:30 p.m. Mexican Train; 3 p.m. Prayer Group

Thursday - 9:30 a.m. Balance Exercise; 9:30 a.m. Quilting; 2 p.m. Bingo

BETO O'ROURKE stands with the group of Ozona citizens that got up early Saturday morning to hear him speak at Sonic.

other great public school teachers, then maybe the federal government can help with that," O'Rourke said. "It's time we treat teachers as the heroic public servants that they are."

Recently, like many students across Texas, O'Rourke said he saw his own children's reactions when it came time to take the STAAR test and the amount of anxiety it put on the children and their teachers.

"We've got to allow the teachers to teach the children. We need to make sure the Teachers in Texas get the best. If it can't get down at the state level, then we need to make sure it gets done at the federal level," he said.

O'Rourke also said taking taxpayer money and putting it into private school vouchers is not the answer, as the majority of students still attend public schools, including his own in El Paso.

"I won't begrudge anyone a private education for their children, but not with taxpayer money," he said.

The issue of gerrymandering was also discussed. O'Rourke said he believes Texas is one of the money gerrymandered states, which counts for the consistent low voter turnout.

"The members of Congress are choosing their voters to ensure reelection," he said.

O'Rourke said he was in favor of term limits, that way officials can concentrate on getting things done instead of constantly focusing on reelection.

When it comes to bipartisanship, O'Rourke and fellow Republican Congressman Will Hurd showed how to work together on their 25-hour road trip from San Antonio to Washington last year when an East Coast blizzard closed airports.

Pastor Jean Reardon

thanked O'Rourke for the example he and Hurd, who represents Crockett County, set by showing they can work together.

"It's understanding common interests and working our way from that," he said. "We're still going to show the country that's the way to do it."

The question of allowing school teachers and staff to conceal carry was also brought up.

O'Rourke said recently his 7-year-old son came home from school and told him about the active shooter drill he had been through that day. The Congressman said he immediately thought of his son's teacher, his own teachers he had and the teachers his parents had.

"I want teachers to focus on students and helping them learn, not responding to threats like an active shooter. I respect the communities that have made that decision, but I think we can vigorously defend the Second Amendment and do a better job of saving lives in our lives," he said.

O'Rourke said there is more need for universal background checks, when it comes to purchasing a gun. He also said "we lead not by demanding, we lead by listening."

"An exchange of ideas. We should be strong enough to have that conversation," he said.

Throughout the campaign, O'Rourke has said he is not taking any money from PACs, Super PACs or special interest groups.

In the first quarter of this year, O'Rourke's campaign has raised $6.7 million in comparison to Cruz's $3.2 million, according to the Texas Tribune.

O'Rourke also visited Sonora and Eldorado Saturday.

Cruz, who was first elected to the U.S. Senate in 2012, made West Texas stops in Seminole and Andrews Friday, according to his press office.

Information about May 22 Primary Runoff

The May 22 Primary Runoff Election is approaching. Below is information voters need to know about this upcoming election.

Candidates

Locally, there is only one race. In the Democratic Primary incumbent Eligio Martinez is facing Michael Medina Jr. for the Crockett County Commissioner, Precinct 4 position.

State and federal races that will also appear on the Democratic Primary ballot are:

- U.S. Rep. District 23 - Gina Ortiz Jones and Rick Trevino
- Governor - Lupe Valdez and Andrew White

When is the voting period for the runoff?

Early voting for the primary runoffs will take place from May 14 through May 18. Election Day is May 22.

Early voting will take place from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. at the courthouse annex.

Where do I vote on May 22?

Crockett County Voters can cast ballots from 7 a.m.-7 p.m. May 22. Polling locations will be the courthouse annex for Precincts 1,2 and 3, and the Ozona Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Center for Precinct 4.

Are there runoffs in general elections?

No. There's no required 50 percent threshold for a candidate to win a general election race, which means the candidate who gets the most votes wins.

Why are runoffs so much later than the primaries?

After the primary, the secretary of state's office has up to 30 days to certify the votes.

Under the Texas Election Code, runoff elections can't be held earlier than the 20th or later than the 45th day after the final canvass of the primary votes is completed.

How do I know if I'm eligible to vote in one of the runoff elections?

If you voted in a party primary, you're eligible to vote in that primary's runoff. According to the Texas Election Code, if you haven't affiliated with a particular party during the same voting year — by either participating in a party's primary or convention — you can vote in any party's primary runoff election as long as you're registered to vote for that race, according to the Texas Election Code.

"So if, for example, a voter who participated in the Democratic primary wants to vote in a Republican primary runoff, he or she will not be accepted to vote in that Republican primary runoff race," said Sam Taylor, a spokesman for the Texas Secretary of State's Office.

If you voted in your party's primary and choose to vote in the runoff elections, you don't need to re-register to vote, Taylor said.

What form of ID do I need to bring to vote in a primary runoff?

The same form of ID that's required to vote in a primary is needed for a runoff.

The forms of approved photo ID are:

- Texas Driver License
- Texas Personal Identification Card
- Texas Concealed Handgun License
- United States Military Identification card containing the person's photograph
- United States Citizenship Certificate containing the person's photograph
- United States Passport
- Election Identification Certificate - issued free by Texas DPS

With the exception of the U.S. citizenship certificate, the approved photo ID must be current or have expired no more than four years before being presented for voter qualification at the polling place. As provided by court order, if a voter does not possess and is not reasonably able to obtain one of the seven forms of approved photo ID, the voter may vote by (1) signing a declaration at the polls explaining why the voter is reasonably unable to obtain one of the seven forms of approved photo ID, and (2) providing one of various forms of supporting documentation: certified birth certificate (must be an original), a valid voter registration certificate, a copy or original of one of the following: current utility bill, bank statement, government check, or paycheck, or other government document that shows the voter's name and an address, although government documents which include a photo must be original and cannot be copies.

What does turnout typically look like for primary runoff elections?

Voter turnout in Texas is historically underwhelming (just 16 percent of the eligible voting population cast a ballot in Tuesday's primaries). If history is any guide, May primary runoff turnout will be low.

In 2012, roughly 11 percent of registered Republicans voted in their party's primary compared to 4.5 percent of Democrats. When it comes to voting numbers, typically half of the number of voters who cast a ballot in the primaries will show up to a runoff, according to the secretary of state's website.

Esparza vaults his way to state

Roman Esparza has achieved the goal of making it to state.

On Friday, the OHS Senior pole vaulted his way to Austin finishing second at 14-feet. The top two finishers automatically advance to the state meet. Luke Williams, of Wellington, vaulted 15-6 for first place.

Esparza, who recently signed a letter of intent to Cameron University in Lawton, Okla. for cross-country and track, will be making his first trip to the UIL State Track Meet held May 11-12 at Mike Myers Stadium on the University of Texas at Austin campus.

Last year, Esparza placed fourth at the regional meet missing out on advancing.

Esparza also ran in the 800-meters.

Also competing at the regional meet:

- Danny Posadas completed his track career running in the 3200-meters.

- Sebastian De La Cruz competed in high jump.

- Abraham Rodriguez ran the 110-meter and 300-meter

ROMAN ESPARZA placed second at the Region I-2A Track and Meet in pole vault to advance to the UIL State Track and Field Meet May 11-12 at Mike Myers Stadium in Austin.

Hurdles.

- Kenzee Talamantez ran in the 800-meters.

- Manuel Torralba ran in the 1600-meters.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE NEWS

TEXAS GAME WARDEN DAN WADDELL was one of the speakers at the April 24 Active Shooter Lunch and Learn at the Ozona Chamber of Commerce Visitor Center.

Active Shooter lunch draws full crowd

BY SHANON BIGGERSTAFF
OZONA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Active Shooter Survival was the topic of the Ozona Chamber of Commerce's April 24 Lunch and Learn session, attended by 51 guests.

Led by Game Wardens Chris Amthor and Dan Waddell, the program focused on how to survive an active shooter event.

Chris Amthor began by informing guests that they are responsible for their own safety.

"In an emergency, if you call 911, follow the operator's instructions. Something as simple as an operator instructing you to lock a door could save your life," said Chris. "If you find yourself in an active shooter situation, you should follow three steps: avoid the shooter, deny them access to where you are if you can, and finally defend yourself. When the police arrive their first priority will be to remove any potential threat. Be sure you are not one of those threats. Empty your hands of all objects, including your cell phones. You should also follow commands and make sure your hands are visible."

Chris also shared with the group the science behind how people generally respond to an emergency or disaster. The human brain will first deny, then it will begin to deliberate and finally decide.

"Under high levels of stress you are left with three lizard brain options: fight, flight or freeze," he said.

The group also learned about a breathing method to assist in staying calm in high stress situations.

Guests were informed that law enforcement are often scripting.

"At any given time during the day, wherever you are, you should be aware of your surroundings, familiar with exits and give some thought to what your plan is if something goes wrong," Chris said.

Dan Waddell informed the group that playing dead is not going to work.

"Pay attention to your surroundings. Look for the 'abnormal' and tell someone. If you are in a church and someone enters and places chains around the exit doors, your first thought should be, this is not normal. This should be a clue that things are not going to work out so well," said Dan. "You are not helpless and what you do matters. Know the exits to the places you go. In an emergency call 911. First look for a way out and that includes secondary exits such as breaking out a window if necessary. If there are no exits, do all you can to deny the shooter access to where you are located. Prepare to defend yourself, to fight to the death! If there is more than one shooter just know that they generally stay together."

Dan also said, "If you have a concealed carry license and you are involved in a shooting event, be sure to holster your weapon, or place it back in your purse before the police arrive. They do not know who is or is not the shooter. You may be handcuffed, and you may have your weapon seized and held until all the details of the case are resolved.

After an event, there will be a delay in EMS arrival. First the police will arrive to secure the scene. You can be of assistance to victims if you have first aid training. We have learned from Afghanistan and Iraq that the most beneficial first aid item is a tourniquet. Have a number on hand, learn how to use them and develop a medical response plan for your organization.

Finally, you will notice that we do not mention the names of these shooters or criminals. We do not give them credence."

For more information, or to schedule this presentation at your organization, call either Game Warden Chris Amthor at (432) 940-9633 or Dan Waddell at (325) 206-3340.

32nd annual Sixth Grade Field Day

BY DIANE WOMACK
CROCKETT COUNTY SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT

On April 13, Crockett County Soil & Water Conservation District & NRCS hosted the 32nd Annual 6th Grade Field Day and 10th Annual Marty Acton Memorial. The all-day event was held at Jack Baggett's ranch, 10 miles south of Ozona. We had over 100 students that attended.

The sixth grade is exceptionally large this year with 70 students. We divided them into four groups and off they went to different learning stations to begin the day. I have to say how well-behaved the kids are. Now I've been around some kids in my time and believe me, they aren't all well-behaved and well-spoken. It's very pleasing to see our kids still have manners and don't swear and misbehave. They are kind and courteous and know how to conduct themselves. We can be proud of these kids and their teachers. We had 11 presenters this year. They are very interactive with the students as they present their specific topic regarding conservation of our natural resources. The students were able to see, learn and participate in educational, yet fun, presentations. A big thanks to Charlie Oglesby for helping as time keeper. We also had some sponsors and guests who joined us, and it was just an all-around fun day.

Have you ever stomped and packed wool into a wool sack? These kids got a chance to do just that. Jack always holds a few sheep back just for the shearing demonstration and it's a good one. Kraig Chandler is the shearer. He brings a helper or two and the kids come away with a much better understanding of what shearing season is all about and the hard work involved in getting the wool that is used to make many products that we enjoy.

Mandy Stanford has fun with the kids and sets up a treasure hunt. They get to use a GPS to find things in the pasture and then identify plants where they find the treasures. There's just something good and fun about seeing kids take off running in the pasture looking for treasures.

Bryan Swecker was the beekeeper this year and we appreciate him coming all the way from Bronte to help the kids learn about the necessity of bees. He's part of the Concho Valley Beekeeper's Association. They have a monthly meeting in San Angelo. They are a very helpful group of people.

Need to build something? Amanda Bragg gives a good soil identification presentation. This helps the students see how the type of soil under our feet determines its stability when building and the nutrients and water retention of the different types of soil. Practical application was made by sifting sand through different sizes of screens and then relating that to sandpaper grit size in the hardware store.

Mary Humphrey of the Texas Parks & Wildlife presented information about different wildlife habitats and how wildlife management is beneficial. This was made fun by playing the game "Oh Deer!" The information compared the wildlife to humans, so the students could understand how one species habitat is connected to another and how interwoven we are to our natural surroundings.

Slate Williams of the Crockett County Groundwater Conservation District brings out a pump and it's always a fun, hands-on demo. He shows how we pump the aquifer groundwater up to us and into our homes. He explains how the groundwater is measured and how his office keeps an eye on the health of our underground water out in the rural areas. I think every student give the pump a go as it is set up to pump water. Who doesn't love holding their hands under running water? The water is a bit murky after all the students have gone through that station.

Anthony Munoz came down for Farm Bureau. He explained how everyday items that we consume are ultimately connected with the earth and the amount of natural resources that are needed to produce them. I think the kids walk away looking at a bag of chips differently because they get an understanding of what went into the resources needed to make them.

Cliff Kinnibrugh has a very visual demonstration of rainfall and how the vegetation affects how that rainwater either soaks in or just runs off and erodes the land. Keep in mind that these presenters don't just show the students cool things, they are truly educators in their fields, so all the demonstrations are given with explanations and plenty of questions to make the students think and make it fun to participate.

Another presenter this year was Kailey Roberts from our local Ag Extension office. Lydia Munoz came to help her. The theme of their station was "from field to plate." If y'all read the Stockman you will see these ladies are always busy doing a multitude of things. We are happy they were able to help us out and give the kids some good information about what they eat and the nutritional value of their choices.

Ryan McClintock had a fun station using yellow hula hoops to represent quail habitats. The students got to be the quail while the teachers or other adults got to be the predators such as snakes and hawks. There was some chasing going on and the "quails" had to make it to their habitat to be safe. The further apart the habitats, the harder it was to make it to safety. This was a great presentation to show little vegetation provides little shelter for the wildlife.

Katie Dedeaux and her helper Joel Dunn came down from San Angelo National Weather Safety. She's the service hydrologist and they set up a model that showed water run-off in different situations. There's a big difference in how the water reacts when there's a parking lot versus a field! How is it diverted to do the least amount of harm? These things should all be considered during design phases.

Of course, we can't go without lunch. The directors have a good time cooking burger for everyone. During lunch the kids have a chance to pet and hold some baby goats. This year they even got to bottle feed them. Ginger and Paul Perner bring these in and it's always a fun part of the lunch break. The Conservation Posters were also displayed, and everyone enjoys seeing those again before they are returned to the students.

The students are always sent home with a goody bag. It is a car litter bag and hopefully these will be used to keep trash off our highways. It is filled with different items each year. This year it had a ruler, a cool pencil that changes color from body heat, note pads, pens, and some native Texas wildflower seeds we hope will be planted to help our pollinators. It is quite satisfying to plant a seed and watch it grow. The butterflies and other pollinators are happy too.

So, folks, when you hear about the Sixth Grade Field Day, or perhaps are contacted to see if you would like to offer a donation to help, this will give you an idea of what it's all about. Our aim is to help the students understand the need for conservation of our natural resources and how they can be more aware in their everyday life of the impact we have both individually and collectively.

We want to thank the many who support us and help us have activities such as this. Special thanks to all of the NRCS presenters, Concho Valley Beekeepers Association, the Crockett County Groundwater Conservation District, Texas Parks & Wildlife Department and the Farm Bureau. Thanks so much to Ozona Bank, Frank Tambunga, Crockett National Bank, Adkins Septic Service and to The Ozona Stockman for coming out to take pictures. We couldn't sponsor the field day without their participation and help.

Appreciation also goes out to the school and teachers for arranging the schedules, so the students can continue to enjoy this annual field day. We really appreciate these teachers and educators. Thank you, students, for being on your best behavior. Thank you for the respect you also showed by not littering. We also want to thank Camille Jones for being our photographer to help record the day.

Some special thanks go to Jodi and Jack Baggett for hosting this event again this year at their ranch. They always make sure everything is ready and provide a very welcoming atmosphere to all who attend.

OHS SIXTH-GRADERS watch Kraig Chandler shear sheep during the 32nd Annual Sixth Grade Field Day at the Jack Baggett Ranch on April 13. The ranch is located 10 miles south of Ozona.

CLIFF KINNIBRUGH demonstrates rainfall and how the vegetation is affected during the Sixth Grade Field Day.

AMANDA BRAGG shows students about soil identification and how the types of soil determines stability when building structures during the annual Sixth Grade Field Day.

National Day of Prayer event Thursday

The Ozona Ministerial Alliance will be hosting a National Day of Prayer event from 12:10-12:25 p.m. at the Crockett County Courthouse Steps.

Everyone is invited to attend.

Community leaders will be praying.

The theme for the 2018 National Day of Prayer observance is Pray for America - UNITY, based upon Ephesians 4:3 which challenges us to mobilize unified public prayer for America, "Making every effort to keep the unity of the Spirit through the bond of peace."

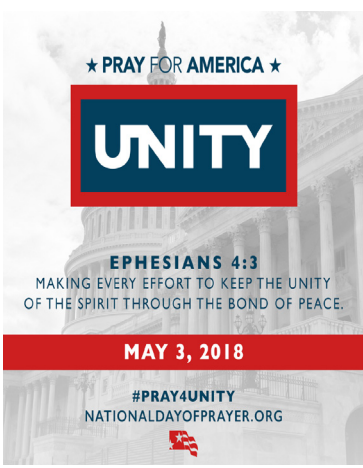

The National Day of Prayer is positioned to pray for our nation to experience unity. The need for prayer in America has never been greater.

Through the efforts of the National Day of Prayer Task Force, more than 35,000 prayer gatherings will be conducted by about 40,000 volunteers across the United States.

Several million people are expected to participate in this call to prayer from small towns to state capitals to Washington, D.C.

Dr. Ronnie Floyd serves as President of the National Day of Prayer and will give the keynote address at the National Observance in Washington, D.C. on Thursday, May 3.

Floyd states, "Mobilizing unified public prayer for America may be the most important thing we can do right now. America is broken. Division is undeniable. Racial tension is alarming. Lawlessness abounds. Reconciliation appears impossible. The National Day of Prayer in America is needed now more than ever before in our nation's history."

As our nation struggles with foreign and domestic threats, economic insecurity, cultural tensions, and constitutional challenges to basic rights, citizens of the United States are preparing to heed the call by our elected leaders to exercise one of their most precious freedoms - the right to gather, turn to God, and pray.

In response, millions will assemble at thousands of local events across the nation, where they will take time out of their daily schedules to intercede on behalf of their communities, their nation, and their leaders.

The mission of the National Day of Prayer Task Force is to mobilize unified public prayer for America.
