Nelson In Race For State Senate Place

CAMPAIGN FOR OFFICE STARTS

Local District Attorney Asking For Higher Office; Election Set September 28

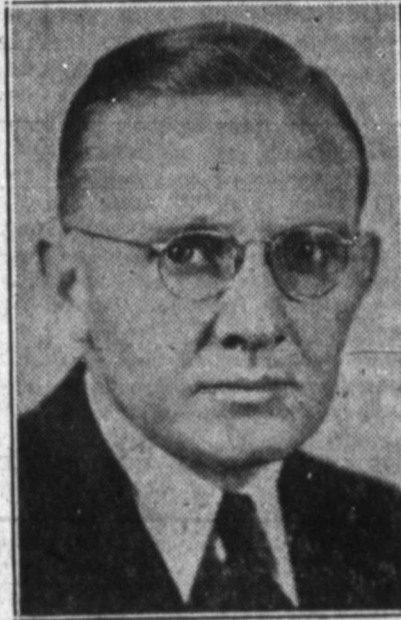

G. H. Nelson, District Attorney of the 106th Judicial District, announced Monday his candidacy for State Senator, 30th Senatorial District of Texas, to succeed the late Honorable Arthur P. Duggan. He stated he would make an active personal campaign of the district and make known his platform at an early date. Governor Allred has called a special election for September 28 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the prominent West Texas Senator.

"I will base my campaign," Nelson stated, "on proper methods of liquor control, and on the old age pension problem, in accordance with the recently voted constitutional amendments. I will favor old age pensions such as will be in keeping with the ability of the State to pay, and seek to put such pensions in operation as quickly as possible.

"I favor education for West Texas children in equality with those of other sections of Texas, and will seek adequate support of West Texas institutions of higher learning.

"If elected, I will fight for proper representation of West Texas in the legislature through redistricting (Cont'd. on last page)

Four Men Enter Race For Senate

The News is advised that Pink L. Parrish of Lubbock, William H. Evans of Lubbock, and B. Reagan of Big Spring, together with G. H. Nelson of Tahoka, are candidates for the state senate to fill the place made vacant by the death of Senator Arthur P. Duggan.

Senator Parrish represented this district in the senate one term several years ago. Evans is a young Lubbock lawyer. He has never before run for office. B. Reagan is a banker of Big Spring and has been prominent in Chamber of Commerce work.

There has been talk of other candidates but as yet there have been no other definite announcements.

Car Load Worm Poison Received

A second car of army worm poison, calcium arsenate, came in Monday, half of it to be used by Lynn county and half by Terry county. This is the second car of poison that these counties have purchased jointly.

Judge Simms of Brownfield was over Tuesday conferring with Judge W. E. Smith concerning the shipment.

For a few days last week there was quite a demand for poison, but the demand seems to have slackened down this week. Some say that the hard rain Sunday night and the cool weather the first of the week materially curbed the operations of the worms.

BAPTISTS HOLD MEETING HERE

225 Visitors Registered At District Meeting, Largest Held In Recent Years

With possibly the best attendance it has had in years, the Brownfield Baptist Association was in session here Wednesday and Thursday. More than 225 individuals registered Wednesday and possibly 200 of them were out-of-town visitors. Luncheon was served each day at the noon hour and supper Wednesday evening.

The first business of the association was the election of officers for the ensuing year, and our own Rev. George A. Dale was elected moderator, and he presided throughout the sessions of the body. Rev. Weaver Lovelace, pastor at Ropes, was elected secretary, and Mr. Pierson, president of the First National Bank of Ropesville, was elected treasurer. Rev. W. E. McGraw, pastor of the church at Wilson, preached the annual sermon.

An inspiring report on Buckner Orphans Home was brought Wednesday morning by Rev. Perry Evans. One of the high hours of the meeting followed the report of Dr. W. F. Fry of the Tech Bible Chair Wednesday afternoon who set forth the need of a building near the college in which to carry on this work and the opportunity to procure a desirable lot at a most reasonable price, when Rev. W. K. Horn of Meadow took the floor and proceeded to raise nearly $250.00 in cash and pledges with which to purchase (Cont'd. on Page 5)

Hard Rain Climax To Misty Weather

One of the heaviest rains that have visited this section in many months fell Sunday evening and night, when the rain gauge showed 1.58 inches. The total rainfall during the preceding week amounted to 1.48 inches, so that since the first of the month the total rainfall here has amounted to 3.06 inches.

While much of the precipitation Sunday came in a heavy downpour, yet a slow rain continued several hours and it was one of the best rains for many months. In most portions of the county, the fall was bountiful, though it was light in the New Home territory. Much of the county, however, reports 2 1/2 to 3 inches. The fall evidently was heavier in some places than it was here.

While some crops, both feed and cotton, had suffered terribly during the long hot days of July and most of August and have not yet recovered from the damage done, yet the crops as a whole are excellent. In large sections of the county they are superfluous. Worms a week ago threatened to do much damage but there has been little complaint this week. Many believe that the hard rain Sunday evening and night destroyed many of them. It is not too late for them to do considerable damage in some localities yet, but it does not seem probable that they will do so.

Lynn county doesn't often have better crops than it has this year.

Henry Burkhalter Goes To Ft. Worth

Henry Burkhalter, who was reared at Grassland and graduated in the Tahoka high school a number of years ago, is rapidly winning his laurels.

Removing to Lubbock with his father's family soon after his graduation here, he entered Texas Tech. In 1932 he received his B. S. degree from that institution and in 1934 his M. S. degree. Last year he taught mathematics and science in the Gruber high school up in the north Panhandle. On last Saturday he left Lubbock for Fort Worth, where he will be employed as a teacher of industrial electricity in the high school, according to The Lubbock Avalanche.

A. P. DUGGAN DIED FRIDAY

Prominent West Texas Lawmaker Passes Away Suddenly; Funeral At Austin

The death of Senator A. P. Duggan of Littlefield, which occurred at the home of his sister in Gonzales last Friday, came as a distinct surprise and shock to his constituents. A few weeks ago Senator Duggan underwent an operation in a Lubbock hospital. Having apparently recovered, he made a business trip to Laredo, where he became ill and was taken to a hospital. After a few days he left the hospital and went to the home of relatives in Gonzales to recuperate. It was while he was there that he suffered a heart attack which proved to be fatal. New School Building Project Is Not Dead, Revise PWA Fund Application

Ready-To-Wear Shop Being Opened

Mrs. Hall Robinson returned Wednesday night from Dallas, where she made purchases for her new millinery and ready-to-wear store which she is opening in the Hall Robinson building on the west side of the square.

Mrs. Robinson has had long experience as a saleslady and in millinery and ready-to-wear stores, and she is an adept in this line.

Organizing Band At High School

About 24 pupils of the high school have indicated their intention of becoming members of the high school band, provided they are able to procure instruments. About twenty of them have procured their instruments already.

Mr. Babb, teacher of science and band music, met with the class Tuesday and Wednesday to make preliminary arrangements for the work, and is expected that regular class work will begin next week.

Mr. Babb is also planning to organize a town band, we understand, and there are about 40 prospective members.

Attends FCA Short Course At Canyon

The sectional short course of the Farm Credit Administration held at West Texas State Teachers College, Canyon, Texas, September 6 and 7, was a great success, according to Deen Nowlin, Secretary-Treasurer of the Tahoka National Farm Loan Association, who with Mr. E. J. Cooper and Mr. Claud Donaldson, members of the local Cooperative organizations, and R. C. Wood, President of the Tahoka National Farm Loan Association has just returned from the meeting.

All who attended had an opportunity to learn more of the operation of the various units of this large financing system for agriculture that has, through its operations, helped thousands of Texas farmers and ranchers to carry on through the period of emergency.

Mr. Nowlin reports that all who attended were enthusiastic in their comments on the short course.

Drennon Conducting Revival Meetings

Beginning last Friday night, Elder R. P. Drennon has been conducting revival services at Edith school house this week, preaching only at night. Good-sized congregations have been in attendance. The meeting will close Sunday night.

Next week Elder Drennon will conduct a similar meeting at South Ward, closing out the following Sunday night.

The general public is cordially invited to all these services.

SCHOOL WORK IS UNDER WAY

Slight Decrease At Central Ward; South Ward And 7th Grade Enrollment Normal

The schools of Tahoka opened on Thursday of last week with a record enrollment in the high school. The attendance in Central Ward is not quite as heavy as it was last year, while the number at South Ward is about the same.

The increase in the high school is due in part to the large number of pupils that are coming from neighboring communities. It is difficult to account for the slight decrease at Central Ward, since there has apparently been no decrease in population of the district, every habitable residence in Tahoka being occupied.

There are 211 pupils enrolled in the high school against 154 enrolled the first week last year. On Thursday there was an enrollment of 315 at Central Ward. About 40 pupils have enrolled at South Ward.

So heavy is the work at the high school that it has been found necessary to increase the faculty. Mrs. Clay Bennett has been engaged to do half time work. She teaches English and History classes in the afternoon. Mrs. Bennett was a former member of the faculty, and a very efficient one.

The school year has opened most auspiciously, and it is believed that Tahoka will have one of the best, and probably the very best, school year in its history.

George Mahon Visits Tahoka

George Mahon, Representative of the nineteenth district in Congress, was here Saturday morning shaking hands with his constituents.

As a young man serving his first term, Mr. Mahon has made a most favorable impression on his colleagues. He has engaged in no pyrotechnics; he has pulled no theatrical stunts; he has not sought notoriety. He has gone along the even tenor of his way, doing all he could for his constituents, learning the ropes in Congress, studying and working hard, forming valuable friendships, and preparing for a career of great usefulness.

Following the adjournment of congress, he came back to his home recently and is now visiting the people of his district, rubbing elbows with the man on the street, in the shops, and stores and offices, and on the farm, so as to keep in touch with his constituency, keep acquainted with their problems and find out their needs and desires.

If George Mahon is allowed to remain in congress, as we believe he will, we predict that he will constantly grow in influence, power, and usefulness in that great body.

Lateral Road Projects Filed

Judge W. E. Smith reports that before the time limit period expired, the county filed application with the Works Progress Administration for the improvement of public roads across sixty-four lakes in the county. This project calls for the grading and topping of the roads across these lakes, and covers a distance of about sixteen miles, we understand.

If this project is approved and the improvements made, farmers will thereafter have much less trouble in getting to town during wet weather.

District Court will convene here on Monday, September 23, when Judge Gordon B. McGuire will empanel a grand jury as the first work of the court. Both the civil and the criminal dockets promise to be very light, according to District Clerk Skip Taylor, which is good news for the farmers, for most of them will be very busy at that time harvesting their crops.

The panel from which the grand jury will be chosen consists of the following citizens: R. L. Thompson, Earl R. Tunnell, E. A. Roberts, C. C. Cox, Tom Hale, A. H. Hood, T. H. Bassinger, W. L. Oil Showing In Well Reported

Late Wednesday afternoon drills had reached a depth of 4875 feet on the oil test west of town and expected to reach the contract depth of 5,000 feet by Thursday night.

The drill is now in lime, a much softer formation than the anhydrite for several weeks. Unconfirmed reports are that considerable gas and some showing of oil has been encountered but not in paying quantities.

Lubbock Boosters Visit In Tahoka

A group of Lubbock citizens, accompanied by the Lubbock High School Band, visited Tahoka Wednesday morning in the interest of the Panhandle-South Plains Fair.

The group stopped for a few minutes at the high school and then gave a brief concert in the downtown section. Mr. Wells of the firm of Hemphill-Wells, made a brief address inviting the people of this county to the fair.

Prospects Are Bright For Football As New, Big Men Report For Team

In the first workout of the season, held Tuesday afternoon, the 1935 edition of the Tahoka Bulldogs looked more impressive than any team the high school has had in several years. Though much of the material is green, there are several new boys from the rural districts who have weight and athletic ability and are taking to the game of football rapidly.

Cosch Prentice Walker has been working with a majority of the men for two weeks, while several suited out for the first time at the opening of school last Thursday.

Among the best looking men are Roy Stevens, Jim and Danny VanDyke and Cecil Cleveland, all from Midway, Leiton Hilton from New Home. Other new men include Clayton Lawrence, Clifton Rogge, Arvil Akin, Loy Lawson and Jack Weathers.

Built around such lettermen as Capt. James Minor, A. J. Thompson, Champ Perkins, Homer Parker,

L. V. Alexander, Bonnis Brower, Eby Dyer, and Luther Carpenter, the squad of thirty-one men is composed of the following: Backs: Jim Woods, wt. 143; Jim VanDyke, wt. 152; Clifton Rogge, wt. 147; Capt. American Company Given Great Ethiopian Grant

FIVE days before the meeting of the League of Nations council to consider the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel Emperor Haile Selassie took a step that may complicate matters tremendously. The "king of kings" signed and sealed a document turning over to American interests sweeping concessions for the development of oil, mineral and other natural resources in more than half his kingdom. The charter was granted to the African Exploration and Development corporation, and runs for 75 years. It was obtained by F. W. Rickett, an English promoter representing the corporation, and the transaction was witnessed by Everett Andrews, Colson, American financial adviser to the emperor.

The emperor himself said the concession was given to Standard Oil, but officials of Standard Oil of New Jersey and other Standard Oil units flatly declared they had no knowledge of or interest in the grant. The company was incorporated in Delaware by the United States Corporation company of New York.

The governments of Great Britain, France and Italy were much stirred by this development. The British government formally "advised" the emperor to "withhold" the concession, asserting that it considered this a war for consultations between the English, French and Italian governments. The emperor in an interview declared he did not see why a concession granted to Americans should create international complications or involve the treaty which the three nations named signed in 1906. That pact creates "spheres of influence" in Ethiopia but never was recognized by the Ethiopian government.

"As a sovereign state we have the right to do anything we please in our own territory," said Haile Selassie. "The United States is not a party to the 1906 treaty in which England, France and Italy merely pledge themselves to do nothing to encroach on the interests of others. This is one of the reasons I gave the concession to Standard Oil. As the agreement is already signed, sealed, and delivered, I do not see how it can be recalled if such a thing is suggested by the British government."

It would seem that this action by the emperor has forestalled Mussolini's intentions to seize and develop the natural resources of Ethiopia, though Rickett said he felt there was "plenty of room for the duce in the general exploitation of such a hospitable land as Ethiopia without resorting to force of arms." In Rome it was unofficially asserted that the concession would not alter Italy's military program and that for the time she may welcome commercial enterprises of a neutral character undertaken in Ethiopia because the job of exploitation there is so vast and complex.

It was announced in Addis Ababa that the emperor also had granted to British and Egyptian interests a charter for the conservation of the water of Lake Tanna, the source of the Blue Nile—which is of vast importance to Great Britain. It is proposed to build a dam and pumping stations.

Premier Laval Ready to Jump Ether Way

PIERRE LAVAL, French premier, went to Geneva for the League council session with full power to act as he saw fit in the Italo-Ethiopian affair, the cabinet having authorized him to propose sanctions against Italy if he believed that wise, or to try to persuade the council to regard Mussolini's contemplated invasion of the African empire as a "colonial expedition" rather than a war. Laval's firm intention was to keep the friendship of both Italy and Great Britain if possible. For a time it was thought that, if he couldn't do this, he would stand with Italy, but later it appeared more likely that if it came to a showdown he would sacrifice Italian friendship for British. Harriot and some other members of the cabinet were reported to be in favor of sanctions.

Dispatches from London said it was rumored that the British government was ready to announce, on the day Mussolini starts war on Ethiopia, that it is no longer interested in maintaining the balance of power in Europe. This would mean it would not interfere if Hitler decided to grab Austria, which would be a terrific blow to the duce. The British admiralty sent its powerful Mediterranean fleet eastward toward the Suez canal and strengthened its garrison at Malta.

Mussolini went ahead with his war preparations, seemingly unconcerned by all the opposition he has aroused. In the military maneuvers he was conducting near Bolzano live ammunition was used in the artillery firing, and one soldier was killed and two wounded by shell fragments. In a fiery speech to the soldiers, with King Victor Emmanuel standing beside him, the duce shouted:

"The world must know once again that while there is talk so absurd and provocative of penalties (sanctions) we will not give up a single soldier, a single sailor, a single aviator."

All the Italian submarines were assembled off Sicily ready to lay a defensive line across the Mediterranean from that island to Africa, and the Sicilian coast defense batteries were strengthened. The premier already has issued numerous decrees for raising the funds necessary for his adventure and to forestall embargoes.

Neutrality Act Signed by President Roosevelt

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT signed the congressional resolution of neutrality, announcing that he approved it because it is "intended as an expression of the fixed desire of the people of the United States to avoid any action which might involve us in war."

However, he made plain his objection to the inflexible provisions of the act, saying it was conceivable that situations might arise in which these might have "exactly the opposite effect from that which was intended." The resolution calls upon the President to place an embargo on the export of "arms, ammunitions and implements of war" to all belligerents in the event of war, and creates a national munitions control board. The application of the arms embargo lasts only until March 1, 1936.

Huey Long's Dictatorship Due for Investigation

SENATOR HUEY LONG crowed a lot about the success of his one-man filibuster which killed the third deficiency appropriation bill, but he didn't add to his popularity among the people who looked forward for help from the agencies that are now hampered by the failure of the measure. Besides that, it is now admitted that his filibuster rescued the Democratic house leaders from a tight place in the matter of the cotton and wheat loans. Still further, it appears that Huey's domination of Louisiana is going to be investigated by a congressional committee. That committee probably will be headed by Representative William L. Granfield of Massachusetts, for he was the author of the elections investigation bill, which was found to contain a little "joker." This joker gives the committee such wide powers that it can probe into all the facts concerning Long's coup-d'etat control of election affairs in his state and the methods by which he has attained to the position of a dictator there.

Russia Again Warned About Communist Activities

RUSSIA'S reply in America's protest against the subversive plotting of the Communists in Soviet territory was a rejection and a coldly worded re-assertion of the old and more than dubious position that the Moscow government is not and cannot be held responsible for the doings of the Communist Internationale. This was considered for four days by official Washington and then it was decided to let the matter drop with another and rather milder warning. The new note sent to Moscow said:

"If the Soviet government pursues a policy of permitting activities on its territory involving interference with the internal affairs of the United States, instead of 'preventing' such activities, as its written pledge provides, the friendly and official relations between the two countries cannot but be seriously impaired."

Mrs. Harold Ickes Killed in Automobile Accident

MRS. ANNA WILMARTH ICKES, wife of Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, was killed when an automobile, in which she and three friends were riding was overturned in a ditch at Velarie, N. M. Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick, well-known newspaper writer; Ibrahim Seyfullah, secretary of the Turkish embassy in Washington; and Frank Allen of Gallup, N. M., the driver, were severely injured. Allen died later.

Mrs. Ickes, who for years was deeply interested in the Indians of the Southwest, had been inspecting an Indian settlement at Tuso and was returning to Santa Fe. Before she went to Washington with her husband in 1933 she was a leader in club work in Chicago, and she served three terms in the Illinois legislature. Among the many notable persons who attended the funeral in Winnetka, suburb of Chicago, was Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the President.

Norris and Mullen in Row About Power Plants

SENATOR GEORGE NORRIS, of Nebraska and Arthur F. Mullen, former Democratic national committeeman for that state, are engaged in a warm dispute that may cause considerable embarrassment for President Roosevelt, friend of both men. Mullen carried to the White House a hot protest against a $20,000,000 power project which is sponsored by Norris. He is attorney for two $7,000,000 power plants which already have been approved by the PWA, and he asserts there is no field for the enormous amount of electrical energy that would be developed by the three projects, and probably not enough water for all of them.

The first project approved by PWA was at Columbus, Neb., 80 miles west of Omaha, and situated on the Loupe river. The second was on the Platte river, 150 miles farther west, at Sutherland, Neb. Both were approved in the fall of 1933. In addition to the original grants and loans approximating $15,000,000, there was added an allocation of $2,500,000 later.

In the rivalry between these two projects the same argument about the shortage of water was used, and Mullen was criticized for acting as attorney for both.

Report That Lindbergh Baby Is Still Living

ATTORNEYS for Richard Bruno Hauptmann plan to seek a new trial for the convicted kidnaper and slayer of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's first-born son on the ground that the child still lives and that they can produce him in court.

The boy, five years and six months old and "the image of the Lindbergh baby," is said to be in custody of a Flushing (L. I.) family, which took him from an orphanage and adopted him.

Stock Raisers Urge That Tariffs Be Maintained

BECAUSE of the possibility of a continued increase in the importation of live stock and its products, an appeal in the name of more than 300,000 farmers and ranchmen, members and patrons of the National Live Stock Marketing association, was sent to President Roosevelt urging that present tariffs and sanitary restrictions on animals, meats, lard, and similar products be maintained.

In a telegram, signed by Charles A. Ewing, president of the co-operative association, the chief executive was told that any concessions in the way of lower tariffs and the removal of embargoes preventing diseased foreign animals from entering this country would further cripple the live stock industry, and tend to defeat the recovery program.

Queen Astrid of Belgium Killed in Auto Crash

BOWED down by deep grief, the Belgian people laid to rest their beloved queen, Astrid, who was killed near Lucerne, Switzerland, when the automobile driven by King Leopold swerved from the road and dashed against a tree. Astrid's skull was crushed and she died almost immediately in the arms of her husband, who was cut painfully by the smashed windshield.

The queen's body, taken back to Brussels, was taken to the cathedral of St. Gudule for the funeral ceremony and then was interred in the royal crypt at Laeken, where lie the remains of the late King Albert. The services were simple, in accord with the characters of Astrid and Leopold.

Astrid, a princess of Sweden, became the wife of Leopold in 1926 when he was the duke of Brabant, and the marriage was a genuine love match. She immediately endeared herself to the people of Belgium. Three children were born to her and Leopold.

King George's Third Son Engaged to Marry

KING GEORGE of Great Britain announced the engagement of the duke of Gloucester, his third son, to Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott. The duke is thirty-five years old and is the soldier of the royal family, Lady Alice, who is thirty-three, traces her descent from a natural son of Charles II. The date for the wedding has not been set.

With his brother's marriage the forty-one-year-old prince of Wales will be the last bachelor among the king's sons.

German Catholic Prelates Boldly Defy Herr Hitler

BOLDLY defying Reichsfuehrer Hitler, the three cardinals, 23 archbishops and other prelates of the Catholic church in Germany, issued a pastoral letter, which was read in every church, strongly criticizing the anti-religious policies of the Nazi government and intimating that the Vatican may enforce an interdict for other nations to break off relations with Germany.

J. A. Moffett Resigns As Federal Housing Chief

JAMES A. MOFFETT has resigned as federal housing commissioner, carrying out his long-expressed desire to return to private business. It was presumed in Washington that he would be succeeded by Stewart McDonald. In his letter of resignation Mr. Moffett told the President that, despite necessary delays in getting the housing program under way, the housing administration was insuring construction and repair loans at the rate of $90,000,000 a month.

How Will Mussolini Fight? Airfields and Live Wires A Teapot Tempest Will Eugenists Explain?

Mussolini fought in the big war as a simple soldier in the trenches, was badly wounded, saw the horrors of war from the bottom.

Arthur Brisbane

Now, in command, he will see war from the top. How will he manage it? Dispatches say he must do something in a "quick drive and make big gains" before the rainy season returns, seven months hence.

Mussolini's driving power and efficiency, that have transformed the fever-breeding Pontine marshes into homes for Italian families, should need no "seven months" to produce results in Abyssinia. The thing to do is to concentrate on the "Conquering Lion of Judah," otherwise the Negus, or "Power of Trinity."

Make it clear that modern war means "the ruler of the country first, the little people afterward," and war will not last long. The "Conquering Lion" has expressed willingness, almost eagerness, to die for his country, but that must not be taken too literally.

Near Burbank, Calif., a plane crashes. Three occupants, two pilots and a stewardess burn to death, after striking a live wire.

It has been said, "Alcohol and gasoline do not mix well," meaning that men should not drive when drunk.

Air fields and live wires do not mix well either. The Department of Commerce, ruling aviation and exercising admirable rules, might include among the latter a rule against exposed live wires near air fields.

There is an unnecessary fuss about American business men having secured in Abyssinia rights to develop oil and mineral wealth. An American should be able to go shopping at his own risk and on his own responsibility, wherever he chooses, as Englishmen do, without having the State department indulge in "fits."

If one of the great American organizations, Standard Oil, Du Pont or another, undertakes to do business in Ethiopia, it will not ask Uncle Sam to send over any of "our boys" to shed their blood.

Strange sight in a New York court—one boy, nine years old, accused of killing a girl by hitting her on the head with a stone because she denied his assertion that he could eat more peaches than she could. Another little boy of twelve, also killer of a playmate, appeared in the same court.

The nine-year-old boy seemed quite unconcerned, except that he thought his dog, "Lucky," would be lonesome without him.

Prosecuting authorities accuse the nine-year-old boy of murder, but hanging or drawing and quartering for children are part of the past.

Will stirpiculturists and eugenists explain these youthful crime phenomena?

The sad death of the queen of Belgium proves that the open car is the dangerous car. The queen was thrown from the car, struck her head against a tree, and was instantly killed. Had she been in a closed car, she could not have been thrown violently, and probably would have escaped death as did her husband, who was holding the wheel.

The open car is the ideal car to see the country and the sky, but a dangerous car for those who drive too fast.

San Francisco, as 'old in the minds of Americans as the word "California" itself, is cheerful. The great bridge that will unite San Francisco to Oakland across the bay is progressing rapidly. And the suspension bridge is already stretching its spiderweb cables across the Golden Gate, where the Pacific ocean comes rushing in to the bay.

Thanks to good management and an excellent engineer, Mr. Strauss, this Golden Gate bridge, with its magnificent span of more than 4,000 feet, will be finished on time and for less than the $35,000,000 guaranteed as maximum price.

England wants no war, with prosperity returning and spoils of the big war not yet digested. But the wing feathers of the peace angel must tremble at sight of British and Italian fleets in the Mediterranean, near the mouth of the Suez canal.

If Britain tries to close that canal to Italy, leaving thousands of Italian soldiers cut off from their base and from food supplies, there will probably be some heavy gunfire.

It seems unlikely that devotion to Ethiopia, even though her government was a member of the League of Nations, could persuade the British to force war at this moment.

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—Through more years than most of us can remember, the U. S. senate has Obsolete Senate Rules been the object of caustic criticism, jibe and jest because of its rule permitting unlimited debates. Time after time long senate speeches have been the object of editorial attack in one segment or another of American metropolitan newspapers. Its slow, tortoise-like methods have been held up to ridicule in spoken and written word, innumerable times, and its procedure remains unchanged.

It was no occasion for surprise, therefore, when a new outburst of criticism of senate rules of procedure was launched upon us immediately after the last session of congress adjourned. Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana, the self-styled kingfish, broke loose as he has so many times broken loose and effectively tied senate plans in a knot. He did the very thing that has precipitated criticism of the senate through all of the years mentioned above and succeeded in a one-man filibuster in blocking passage of an appropriation bill. Indeed, he was so effective in his job that he brought down on his head the wrath of President Roosevelt and all of the New Dealers who were about to realize culmination of some of their most cherished dreams.

While the Long filibuster probably should be criticized because undoubtedly there was some unfairness about it, the reason it takes on more importance at this time is because it placed so many of the New Dealers in a state of high dudgeon mentally and because it again centered attention upon these same senate rules.

By way of preliminary explanation, I believe it ought to be said that no organized body can operate effectively or orderly without first binding itself to adhere to rules of procedure that will give each an opportunity. These rules, in the case of the senate, are very old. It may be said they are antiquated and obsolete; surely some will take that view of them. But nevertheless those are the rules and the senate has been able for a good many years to produce satisfactory legislative results under them.

I do not propose here to say that they should be revised or that the present rules should be retained. But I do believe that before changes are made and before those who propose changes spread too much ballyhoo, the country should understand some of the reasons which actuate the present urge.

The kingfish spoke for nearly six hours on the closing night of the session. He could not be prevented from speaking after he was once recognized by the presiding officer. He told the senate he was battling for a government loan rate on cotton of 12 cents per pound whereas the administration was proposing to make the rate either nine or ten cents per pound. The senate had placed an amendment on an appropriation bill to carry out the idea of twelve cents a pound and had put the proposition to the house of representatives which showed no signs of agreeing at all until Mr. Roosevelt took a hand and suggested the compromise of ten cents a pound. All that remained was a formal vote of the senate to put the administration plan into effect. Senator Long decided it should not be and he proceeded to lick the administration single-handedly by continuing his filibuster until the midnight hour when the congress was to adjourn finally.

In blocking the administration compromise, Senator Long also defeated appropriation of something like $100,000,000 which the administration was going to use in setting up machinery under its so-called security laws, the Guffey bill for regulation of the soft coal industry and the bond created theoretically to settle labor disputes. All of these bills were pressed hard by the administration, if one had no had its antagonists in congress. They were and are strictly New Deal measures. As a result of the Long filibuster none of them can be made fully operative until congress convenes again next January and appropriates the money. So, it can be seen how the pride of the New Deal professors was wounded. It can be seen likewise why they, along with the President, did so much squawking about the Long filibuster. Senator Long was an ideal goal for the situation.

It is not my privilege nor is it within my power to say whether the legislation which Senator Long virtually nullified is so important that five months of delay is the difference between life and death in this country. Indeed, I cannot see any reason for all of the haste that is exemplified by the shouts and the criticisms suddenly brought forth because of that filibuster. The bills which were brought to final passage only a few days before adjournment had been languishing in congress since last January.

Unnecessary Barking

The President had repeatedly urged their enactment but the congress saw fit to delay. Consequently in various quarters in Washington I heard the inquiry as to why so much damage can be done by delays of five months when there had been delays of seven months preceding enactment of the measures. Some of the more vitriolic among the New Deal critics even went so far as to inquire why all of the hullabaloo over a delay of five months when Mr. Roosevelt made no effort to obtain enactment of the social security bill—the "keystone of the New Deal"—in the first session of congress under his control. Without knowing all of the answers, it does appear to me that there is quite a bit of unnecessary barking going on about this one incident.

So, without defending a filibuster in any wise, it occurs to me that we ought to look back into history and see the benefits accruing from unlimited debate in the senate, a procedure which the New Dealers now want to change. Through all of the years that congress has existed the senate has moved in a deliberative way. It has been slow, to be sure; yet, records of the past make it appear that this slow procedure has resulted inevitably in better legislation. Many are the schemes that surged forward on the ballyhoo of a minority to passage in the house of representatives only to be blocked and properly examined in the senate. Many are the times as well when the deliberative character of senate debate gave time for expression of a majority sentiment in the country and saved it from being precipitated into policies of national legislation that would have worked untold harm. I cannot but believe that the privilege of unlimited debate in the senate has more good features than bad.

The President had repeatedly urged their enactment but the congress saw fit to delay. Without knowing all of the answers, it does appear to me that there is quite a bit of unnecessary barking going on about this one incident.

So, without defending a filibuster in any wise, it occurs to me that we ought to look back into history and see the benefits accruing from unlimited debate in the senate, a procedure which the New Dealers now want to change. Through all of the years that congress has existed the senate has moved in a deliberative way. It has been slow, to be sure; yet, records of the past make it appear that this slow procedure has resulted inevitably in better legislation. Many are the schemes that surged forward on the ballyhoo of a minority to passage in the house of representatives only to be blocked and properly examined in the senate. Many are the times as well when the deliberative character of senate debate gave time for expression of a majority sentiment in the country and saved it from being precipitated into policies of national legislation that would have worked untold harm. I cannot but believe that the privilege of unlimited debate in the senate has more good features than bad.

Time after time in years past, demands have been made for liberalization of rules in the house of representatives so that individual members might voice their views at length. The house never has yielded from the position it has taken that its numbers were too great to permit free-for-all discussion as takes place in the senate. The house does its work in committees and those committees are generally under the guidance of the political party in control of the government. The house, therefore, invariably votes the will of the administration. In consequence of this, it is hard to believe that the senate ought to bind and gag its members and prevent their free expression. If there is a minority, that minority ought to be heard. The senate is the forum. As a personal expression, I do not see where any good at all can come from the proposed restrictions for senate debate and I do not believe it will eventually.

For the first time since the Civil war, a federal government bond issue failed the other day to attract enough subscribers to absorb the offering. It was a small offering at that. The amount was only $100,000,000. The bonds were not, strictly speaking, United States government bonds. They were being issued by the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation but they bore the guarantee of the United States treasury that they would be paid both as to interest and principal and to all intents and purposes may not be distinguished from government bonds.

When the treasury received offers of only $85,500,000, Secretary Morgenthau was both surprised and chagrined. He laid the failure of the issue to the fact that the bonds were to carry only 1 1/2 per cent interest, a very low rate. It was a part of the treasury policy to sell government securities at interest rates as low as possible to reduce the burden of the interest charge which the government must carry on its gigantic public debt. Nevertheless, "it ain't so good."

Bond Issue Failure

The national debt now outstanding is something like $30,000,000,000. It is approximately $9,000,000,000 higher than when Mr. Roosevelt took office. It is due to go still higher because additional money must be borrowed to carry out the work-relief plans of the New Deal. Some authorities predict that before Mr. Roosevelt's present term expires as President, the public debt will aggregate something like $35,000,000,000, the highest in all history for our nation.

Long experience as a student of financial affairs prompts my conclusion that failure of the $100,000,000 issue to be fully subscribed does not mean that government bonds are a bad investment. I am inclined to the opinion that the treasury tried to drive down the interest rate too low and that most investors figured they could obtain a better return than that which Mr. Morgenthau offered them. But, after all, there is something of a warning in this circumstance. I believe the warning is that if the Roosevelt administration continues to spend and spend and borrow and borrow, it must pay higher and higher interest rates for the money it borrows. Again, that "ain't so good."

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, "Penelope," in an effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. At a baseball game a ball strikes ten-year-old Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin splits the child to Europe. Gatlin wills Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for her when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over. Nance's criminal record outweighs Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Nance escapes, although shot, and goes to Lanny's apartment, from which, by McNamara's orders, she is removed to the chief's home. From one of the men in the boat on which the girl escaped McNamara learns that Nance's real name is Penelope Gatlin. He also discovers that she is heiress to $150,000. Fearful of McNamara, in his official capacity, Nance flees. Lanny finds her in her apartment, asleep. Knowing detectives are on her trail, she disappears.

McNamara chuckled. Flynn and Angellotti would waste a great deal of time watching that apartment house in vain. Nance, discovering Ella Cates had moved, had sought quarters elsewhere. What puzzled McNamara, however, was the girl's failure to communicate with him or Lanny; and he knew now that she did not intend to. The fact that she had purchased a letter of credit was proof that she intended leaving the country, and the more the excellent fellow contemplated this impending move the more inclined was he to regard it as a not unmixt blessing. The more he thought the matter over, the more inclined did he become to take a practical and policeman-like view of the situation. While Nance remained in San Francisco she would be a constant menace to himself and Lanny; if captured she might, during one of her uncontrolled moments, consider it a great joke to tell the world how she had been enabled to escape capture so long.

"I can't baby the world," he decided. "I'll let her go. She'll probably live abroad, and when her letter of credit is gone she may remember who she is long enough to draw more checks. I can always get a line on her through the bank, and if Steve and Lanny still insist on salvaging this nut I'll tell them where to find her. Me, I'm through. If I keep this pace up I'll be as big a nut as she is."

There is more than a modicum of truth in the ancient adage, "Out of sight, out of mind." Dan McNamara lived a very full life; and when Nance Belden had definitely passed beyond his ken and he knew himself safe at last from the prying of Messrs. Flynn and Angellotti into his private affairs, he forgot the girl, for pressing matters of great importance claimed his attention and he required more first-class assistance than he was receiving. He resolved, therefore, to give Flynn and Angellotti a week in which to make up their minds they had lost the trail; then to call them in.

On the sixth day, however, he received information that the doughy pair were still as busy as two pups with a feather duster. A beautiful lady called on him at his office and told him so.

"And who might you be?" he demanded. "I'm Susan Engelbright."

"I am not aware that I have the pleasure of your acquaintance, Miss Engelbright."

"You haven't. I was sent up from Oakland."

"Oh! Alias Sapphire Susie! I've heard of you lately."

"Perhaps, I hooked three twelve-carat sapphire rings to raise money, and the papers called me Sapphire Susie after that."

"Well, that's his business. Nance Belden escaped from San Quentin and naturally he's interested in apprehending her. You were recognized by the guard at the main gate two weeks before Nance escaped. Miss Lanning, a friend of the Belden girl, had visited the prisoner that day, and since Miss Lanning was the only visitor Nance Belden had in San Quentin, naturally she was suspected of carrying a letter for delivery to the men who helped Nance escape. You rode down to Greenbrae with Miss Lanning, and she slipped the letter to you, of course. Flynn knows that. But why come to me with your tale of woe?"

"I've run straight since getting out of the pen. I served my time and I want to be let alone—that's why! Flynn told me that if I didn't come through and tell him where he could find Nance Belden he'd see to it that something nasty happened to me. I don't know where Nance Belden is. And I want protection from Patrick Flynn."

"You seem pretty sure of me, don't you?"

"Well, Nance told me that you were one human being. And I called on Miss Lanning last night to tell her to warn Nance that the dicks were after her, and Miss Lanning told me to see you about it. She said you'd see I got a square deal."

"She did so, now? How did Miss Lanning treat you otherwise?"

"She kissed me and gave me a hundred dollars and told me to be as good as I could. The old girl is sure a darling."

"Did you ask her for the hundred?"

"Of course not."

"The chief eyed her awfully, for he distrusted Sapphire Susie and wondered if she might not be working in the interests of Flynn and Angellotti."

"This is interesting," he admitted heavily. "Of course I only keep in touch with the upper office through the captain of detectives. If he set Flynn on this job he should have interfered with you a couple of weeks ago. Seems to me he has overlooked a good bet. If he'd had you under surveillance a week ago he'd have picked up Nance Belden when she came to you to deliver the rings. Flynn's a crackerjack detective," he added sadly, "but this looks as if he's sipping."

"That bird don't slip very far, take it from me, Chief. He met me on the street the day before yesterday and noticed I was wearing my big ring and my 'endrops. 'Hello, kid,' he says, 'I see you got your sapphires on again.' I says to him, 'Fall dead, you hum,'"

"He's Got Me Scared to Death," Sapphire Susie Declared.

and walked on. And the next night he came up to my room. 'Nance Belden got them sapphires out of hock for you, Susie, my dear,' he says kindly, 'I want that trail. Where is she?'

"And you wouldn't tell him, even if you could?"

"That's a fact. I wouldn't snitch on her."

"You wouldn't expect me to interfere in the work of a detective sergeant when he appears to be doing a good job, would you, Susie? But I give you my word, Susie, that if you run straight in this city I'll see to it that you're not harassed. Of course you helped Nance Belden to escape from San Quentin, and I know it, but I can't prove it; if I could I'd put you in the bridge this minute. And I'll not put Flynn off the case, although if he gets too rough I'll stop him."

"He's got me scared to death," Sapphire Susie declared, and commenced to weep a little; whereat McNamara realized she had been really frightened. She shook his hand warmly, thanked him and departed.

For several minutes McNamara sat thinking, a smile, faintly tender, illuminating his rugged countenance. So Lanny had kissed Sapphire Susie and given her a hundred dollars and begged her to be a good girl in the future. What a rare good sport Lanny was! And how good God had been to all concerned! In their pursuit of Nance, Flynn and Angellotti had followed such a hot trail they had forgotten Sapphire Susie was a pal of Nance's, but afterwards, when the trail grew cold, they had suddenly remembered her.

"That Flynn was a marvel, and McNamara sighed to think the fellow could not be promoted instantly. In all probability he had not at first connected Nance Belden with the glory of Susie's sapphires. Undoubtedly he had jumped to the conclusion that the girl had been up to her old trick of blackmailing some wealthy and socially prominent masculine jackass. So he and looked up her name in the police files. Here he had discovered something that must have convinced him of Susie's total innocence of sapphires during her trial; certainly she had not carried them to San Quentin with her, and the obvious conclusion was that she had pawned them to raise money to pay her attorney. In the hope of discovering the identity of Susie's latest victim (who, he assumed, had redeemed them for her) Flynn had thereupon made a round of the pawnshops and located the one from which the jewels had lately been redeemed; from the pawnbroker he had secured a description of the one who had redeemed them. No pawnbroker would be likely to forget Nance Belden's nose!

McNamara shuddered. If Nance should visit Sapphire Susie now, she would undoubtedly walk straight into the arms of the waiting Flynn or Angellotti.

Well, Nance Belden had stolen a dozen pairs of silk hose, but apparently Penelope Gatlin paid her debts. The chief wondered if he had loaned Nance Belden or Penelope Gatlin two hundred dollars, for of course they were two separate and distinct personalities inhabiting the same body. If Nance Belden had accepted the loan, then McNamara could kiss the money good-by. If, on the other hand, Penelope Gatlin had accepted it, then, some day, when Nance had changed places with Penelope, he would get it back. Well, he could trace her progress through the world by the drafts she would cash. Her bank in San Jose would give him that information.

He took down the telephone and called the bank. Yes, a draft had just come in. Drawn for four hundred and thirty-five dollars in favor of the French line, dated three days previously at New York. It had come across the continent by air mail. McNamara thanked the president of the bank and called up the French line's San Francisco office. After some difficulty he discovered that four hundred and thirty-five dollars was payment of one first cabin passage to Havre and that the lle de France had sailed from New York during the past three days.

Instantly Dan McNamara shot a straight telegram to police headquarters in New York, requesting that a passenger list of the lle de France be checked to see whether Nance Belden or Penelope Gatlin had taken passage on her. Four hours later, he received a reply to the effect that Nance Belden was not aboard but that Penelope Gatlin was.

"Nothing is lost if you know where it is," McNamara decided happily, and sent a cable to the prefect of police at Havre, requesting him to pick up Penelope Gatlin on her arrival at that port, shadow her and report by cable, collect the girl's destination, the names and addresses of those who should meet her and any other information that would aid in keeping track of the girl.

The following day McNamara sent for Detective-Sergeants Flynn and Angellotti. As they ranged themselves, more or less at attention, in front of his desk, the chief leaned back in his chair and bent upon the pair a long, severe and penetrating look. They grew a little edgy before he spoke.

"Well, boys, how are your private affairs prospering?"

Both shrugged, unwilling to be definite.

"They are unprosperous," the chief challenged, "so I have called you in to express the hope that you are now quite willing to abandon your private practice and return to work for the city and county of San Francisco. You draw salary from the taxpayers, you know, I may have been mistaken, Angellotti, but I thought I saw you out in Mission recently when you were supposed to be working on that racketeer killing over in North Beach. However, I'll overlook that on the assumption that you permitted yourself to be led astray by Flynn. Flynn, you lay off Sapphire Susie until that enterprising young woman does something you can pin on her. Then bring her in."

"She's done something and I'll pin it on her yet," Flynn growled, "and you know what it is. Flynn, being Irish, was unwilling that his chief should regard him as deficient in intelligence and enterprise."

"We understand each other thoroughly. Flynn, you've been after that Belden girl and you've made a mess of it." He opened his desk drawer and drew out two envelopes. One was addressed to Flynn and the other to Angellotti and both envelopes bore the return address of a prominent New York hotel, "but were neither stamped nor postmarked. "These two envelopes came in a large envelope addressed to me," McNamara explained. "They're sealed!" He handed each detective his letter and watched as they opened them and drew forth typewritten letters and two hundred and fifty dollars in bills. Flynn's letter was, undoubtedly, a carbon copy of Angellotti's.

Flynn perused his letter and handed it to the chief, who read:

"Dear Mr. Flynn: 'You poor dear, you have worked so hard and so intelligently and in such dreadfully hard luck that my heart goes out to you. You were working for the reward, of course—no doubt because you needed the money. You and Mr. Angellotti would have had to divide two hundred and fifty dollars had you recaptured me, but just to prove I'm a sport and not holding any mean little grudge, I'm sending you each two hundred and fifty dollars. Please be good and try to forget all the unpleasant incidents. You will never get me now, so do give up your attempts, like good boys.'"

The letter was unsigned.

"How much did you get, Angellotti?" McNamara queried softly.

"Two fifty, Chief."

Lesson for September 15 TIMOTHY

GOLDEN TEXT—Give diligence to present thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, handling aright the word of truth. II Timothy 2:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Boy Timothy. JUNIOR TOPIC—A Missionary in the Making. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Training for Service. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Training in Home and Church.

Timothy's training would be the proper training for every child. In the measure that such training be given there would be a more abundant supply of Christian workers.

I. Timothy's Parentage (Acts 16:1). His father was a Greek and his mother a believing Jewess. On his mother's side at least, he had a godly ancestry. Usually the influence of the mother makes the son. A pious mother and a pious grandmother were back of Timothy.

II. Timothy's Training (II Tim. 1:5; 3:14, 15). A wise and faithful mother and grandmother carefully nurtured him in God's Word. Through this training, he knew the Scriptures from his childhood. The faith which came to him from his grandmother through his mother did not come through the laws of heredity, but through careful training and teaching. Grace is not received by the laws of heredity. The factors involved in his training were a godly ancestry, a home where God was feared, and a diligent study of the Scriptures.

III. Timothy's Call (Acts 16:1-3). While on his second missionary journey in company with Silas, Paul found Timothy at Lystra near Derbe. Perhaps he had been converted on Paul's first missionary journey, but, hearing a favorable report of him by the brethren, Paul circumcised him so as not to offend the Jews because his father was a Greek. This was not contrary to the decision of the Jerusalem council. It was a case where conciliation could be made without compromise of truth.

IV. Timothy's Character. 1. Of a retiring disposition (II Tim. 1:6). He had received a gift from God at the hands of the apostles, but it needed to be stirred up; that is, fanned into a flame. Such a temperament would mature in touch with a great personality like Paul.

2. Courageous (II Tim. 2:1-8). Having been stirred up, he was freed from the spirit of fear and deliberately identified himself with Paul in his suffering and trials.

3. Faithful. He continued in the difficult field of Ephesus during many years. He was the only man of the needed fidelity to minister to the Philippians (Phil. 2:20). The secret of his faithfulness in such a position was his fidelity to the Word of God.

V. Timothy's Ministry. 1. As fellow missionary with Paul (Phil. 2:22).

2. As pastor of the church at Ephesus. Here he labored for many years, tactfully meeting the difficulties of that great church. The Christian minister must believe in the Scriptures as God's Word and be able to rightly divide them so as to meet the need of those who hear him.

VI. Paul's Farewell Message to Timothy (II Tim. 1:1-14).

1. Personal relationship (vv. 1, 2). Timothy was Paul's spiritual son, therefore a peculiar love went out to him. This strong affection was a vital factor in influencing Timothy's life.

2. Paul's deep interest in Timothy (vv. 3-5).

a. Prayer for him. While a prisoner in a lonely dungeon, he thinks of Timothy and prays for him.

b. Longed to see him. This reveals the vital reciprocal affection between Paul and Timothy, and also Paul's inner self. He was intensely human.

3. Gives Timothy Earnest Counsel (vv. 6-14).

a. To stir up the divine gift within him (vv. 6, 7). To stir up means to fan into flame. Enthusiasm of the Christian worker has a tendency to wane and, therefore, needs to be constantly stirred up.

b. Be not ashamed (vv. 8-12). He must be willing to suffer affliction for Christ's sake.

c. Hold fast the essential truths of the gospel (vv. 13, 14). This means the fundamental truths of Christianity, including the incarnation, atonement, resurrection, and coming again of Jesus Christ. These doctrines have been committed to God's servants as precious deposits. Servants of Christ are charged with the solemn obligation of guarding them as the shepherd guards his sheep or the soldier that which has been committed unto him.

Two Rules There are two good rules which ought to be written upon every heart. Never believe anything bad about anybody, unless you positively know that it is true. Never tell even that, unless you feel that it is absolutely necessary, and that God is listening while you tell.—Van Dyke.

Judgment I have learned to judge of men by their own deeds; I do not make the accident of birth the standard of their merit.—Hale.

I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

prescribed in the Dean law apply to them.

The old local option laws, prior to the adoption of statewide prohibition, provided a fine and jail penalty for their violation.

Following the adoption of the dry amendment to the state constitution in 1919, the Dean law was enacted prohibiting the manufacture, sale, and transportation of intoxicating liquor anywhere in the state and fixing the punishment for any violation at confinement in the penitentiary for any period of time not less than one year nor more than five years.

In 1925, the legislature adopted a new code of laws for the state of Texas; that is, the laws of the state were revised, clarified, and reenacted, with all obsolete laws omitted.
The local option laws were left out of this code because they had been superseded by the "dry" amendment in the state constitution and the statewide Dean law.

On August-24 of this year the "dry" amendment in the state constitution was repealed by a vote of the people, but it was provided that these counties and subdivisions which had been dry under the old local option laws should remain dry until otherwise determined by a vote of the people.

Attorney-General William E. McCraw recently ruled that the local option laws were revived by the repeal of statewide prohibition and that the Dean law penalties apply.

There are many able lawyers in the state who do not agree with this view. It is contended that when the dry amendment to the constitution was adopted, all laws then on the statute books pertaining to the liquor traffic were automatically repealed. The Dean law enacted in pursuance of this dry amendment superseded the local option laws even if they had not been destroyed by the adoption of the amendment itself. From and after 1919, the state has had no local option laws, except that adopted two years ago pertaining to the sale of 3.2 beer. But if by any hook or crook, the local option laws could be construed to be not dead but merely dormant, these lawyers contend that the death blow was struck in 1925 when a new code was adopted in which the local option laws were not included. It is contended on the other hand that the adoption of the repeal amendment in August specifically revived the local option laws. It is pointed out, however, that this repeal amendment prescribed no penalties for the violation of these old local option statutes, and that even if they were revived there is no penalty for their violation. Many lawyers can not understand the course of reasoning by which Attorney-General McCraw concludes that the penalties prescribed for a violation of the statewide Dean law can be made to apply to the "revived" local option law.

It seems to the News that the sensible thing to be done is to enact new local option laws along with other regulatory measures unless the legislature should see fit to establish a state dispensary system, or a state monopoly in the sale of liquors.

Pending legislation, it is hoped and believed that the courts may have occasion to review the whole matter and to clarify the situation.

WHAT IS AN OPEN SALOON?

An answer to the above question must be found by the legislature which is to meet next Monday.

Efforts to arrive at a definition and to pass liquor laws in conformity to the constitutional amendment will no doubt vary widely.

Peter Molyneux, editor of THE TEXAS WEEKLY and a strong advocate of repeal in the recent campaign, has advanced the following definition: "Our conception of an open saloon is any place, open to the general public, where the chief business conducted is the sale of intoxicating liquors by the drink.
Restaurants, hotel dining rooms and coffee shops, and other bona fide eating places could serve intoxicating liquors by the drink, under strict regulation, without becoming open saloons."

Continuing, Mr. Molyneux thinks that with proper safeguards against the saloon "the sale of liquor by the drink, even in legitimate clubs, may be permitted without danger of a return to the saloon". . . . "If the law makes no provision for places where liquor may be obtained by the drink, the bootlegger will provide such places, just as he is providing such places at present. . . . But they (the saloons) can be closed up, and kept closed, if provision is made for the sale of liquor by the drink in restaurants and similar places where the sale of liquor is not the chief business conducted."

And this is the view, probably, that will be held by many of the leading wets in the legislature.
It seems to us that this definition and liquor regulations enacted in consonance therewith would bring about the worst situation with respect to the liquor traffic that has ever existed in this state. Instead of discouraging it would greatly encourage the drink habit. The placing of liquor on the table in every restaurant or cafe where our young people, as well as the older ones, may sit down for a meal or a light lunch, would offer an enticing temptation to our boys and girls to drink that the old-time saloon did not and could not offer, as bad as it was.

Besides, it would open up broad and almost unobstructed avenues for the legitimate sale of liquor—a thing Mr. Molyneux and many others of his school would like to prevent. He would limit the sale of "restaurants and similar places where the sale of liquor is not the "chief business conducted". The matter of determining what the "chief business" of such an establishment might be a most difficult problem—in most doubtful cases, it certainly would be. And who would determine it? Mr. Molyneux thinks that a State Commission should be created to control the liquor traffic. "Such a commission" he says, "could effectively keep the saloon out of Texas through the exercise of the power to revoke licenses in cases where even the spirit of the law, if not the letter, in its opinion, was being violated." But if such a commission were to undertake to revoke a license without hearing evidence on the proposal just as any ordinary court would, we suspect that the commission would find itself running up against the snag of undertaking to deprive a citizen of his rights without due process of law, which is guaranteed by our constitution to every citizen of the land.

We believe Mr. Molyneux is sincere but we think he has proposed the worst possible solution of our liquor problem.

The many friends of District Attorney G. H. Nelson here and throughout Lynn county will be delighted to give him their support as a candidate for the state senate to succeed Senator A. P. Duggan, who died last Friday. As this is written it is not known just what the final line-up of candidates will be, but we believe that we can truthfully say that there is no other candidate in the field, or that will likely be in the field, who can measure up to G. H. Nelson in fitness and ability to serve the people of this senatorial district. Born and reared in Cass county, he came to West Texas about twelve years ago as a young school teacher. A few years later he was elected and served as superintendent of the Tahoka public schools. Having studied law at the University of Texas, he decided to further pursue this study while doing chamber of commerce work, serving first as secretary of the Chamber of Commerce here and then at Ralls. Upon admission to the bar, he came back to Tahoka to practice his profession. Soon thereafter he was elected county attorney and at the end of his second term, he defeated that veteran prosecutor, Thomas L. Price, for the office of district attorney. He is now serving his second term in this position, and as district attorney he has made an enviable record.
Not only is he endowed by nature with rich mental gifts and fitted by study and training to make a brilliant record in the state senate, but he is a man of the highest integrity. Men of that type are certainly needed these days in our legislative halls, men who can not be bought, cajoled, entrapped, or intimidated by the various interests that seek favors from legislative bodies. As a representative of the people Nelson will be as true as steel, and we predict that if he goes to the senate still higher honors will await him not far down the line. Let's go out over the district and help to place Nelson in this responsible position.

There's lots of room in the FORD V-8

EVERY ONE who steps into the Ford V-8 for the first time is surprised at its roominess. There's exceptional seat room, leg room and head room in all body types — the whole car gives you a feeling of substantial size.

The Ford gives you extra body room because of the compact design of the V-8 engine — an exclusive Ford feature at a low price. This V-8 engine takes up less space in the hood and permits more of the car's length to be used for passenger comfort. Many a car selling at a higher price does not give you as much interior room as the Ford V-8.

Rear seats are wide and restful . . .
three people can ride comfortably in the front seat of the Fordor Sedan, Fordor Touring Sedan, Convertible
Sedan and Phaeton, and in the Coupes and Roadster. The seat of the Ford V-8 Roadster is 52 inches wide. A ride in the Ford V-8 will show that it combines unusual body room with fine-car performance, safety and comfort.

GOOD DAY AT METHODIST CHURCH HAD LAST SUNDAY

Sunday was a good day at the Methodist Church. The pastor, Rev. H. C. Smith, brought us a wonderful message as he always does. We greatly appreciate Bro. Smith and his good family. There were four additions to the church. We have a steady growth in our church for which we are very proud and thankful.

Rev. Smith is in a meeting at Ralls, but plans to be in his pulpit Sunday.

Come to choir rehearsal Friday evening at 8:00 p. m. We need you. We are working on our music for the dedication service October 6.—Reporter.

W. M. S. ELECTS OFFICERS FOR COMING YEAR

Basing his talk on Daniel's vision and prophecy, Rev. Geo. A. Dale led the W. M. S. in a study of the period between the old Bible and the New Testament on the regular Bible study day, Monday. This outline of Jewish history under three foreign rulers proved most interesting to those in attendance.

These Bible study lessons are proving so interesting and worth while that Mrs. Caviness is urging all Sunday School teachers to attend and receive this helpful and interesting information.

Under business, with Mrs. Caviness presiding, plans were made for entertaining the visiting minister and the pastor and wife during the coming revival. Mrs. Garland Pennington was appointed chairman of the entertainment committee.

Plans were completed for entertaining the Brownfield Baptist Association which is to meet in Tahoka Baptist Church Wednesday and Thursday.

Officers who were recommended by the committee were voted upon and if elected by the church will serve the W. M. S. the ensuing year are as follows: President, Mrs. H. P. Caviness; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. E. I. Hill, Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. K. R. Durham; Pianist, Mrs. Alice Fortenberry; Chorister, Mrs. R. C. Wells; Young People's Leader, Mrs. Geo. A. Dale.

SUNSHINE SHOWER GIVEN TO MRS. A. L. SMITH

Last week we gave a very incomplete report of the Sunshine Shower given to Mrs. A. L. Smith in the hospitable home of Mrs. W. H. Thornhill, with Mrs. Thornhill, Mrs. W. C. Darby, and Mrs. M. R. Pemberton acting as joint hostesses. The home had been beautifully and elaborately decorated for the occasion.

A most interesting program of readings, vocal numbers, and tap dancing was given by LeVoyie Richardson, Baby Tot Wetsel, and Helen Belle Pemberton, and an appropriate reading by Mrs. Rafe Richardson.

Mrs. Smith was the recipient of many lovely and valuable gifts. Refreshments of pink and blue sandwiches, punch and angel food cake were served to the guests, whose names were given last week.

PARENT-TEACHERS ASS'N. ANNOUNCES FIRST MEETING

The Parent Teachers Association will hold its first meeting of the season at Central Ward Auditorium on Wednesday of next week, September 18, at 3:30 P. M., according to announcement made by Mrs. G. M. Reid, the president.

All parents who have children in school are urged to attend.

Mrs. G. W. Newton returned Sunday from Wichita Falls, where she spent the past two months visiting relatives.

CHURCH OF CHRIST NOTES

Our meeting at Edith started off in high with fine crowds, good attention and the best of singing. We will continue the meeting over next Sunday. I will preach here in the morning and there at night the Lord willing. Plans for our meeting with Brother Nelson are going forward in a fine way. We are expecting a great meeting.

Come worship at the friendly church.—R. P. Drennon.

Dixie H. D. Club Is Organized

The Home Demonstration Agent, Sylvia Robb, met with the ladies of the Dixie community at the school house Monday afternoon at three o'clock and organized a club. There were eleven members.

Officers were elected as follows: Mrs. Buel Draper, chairman; Mrs. P. E. House vice chairman; Mrs. Guyon Cobb, treasurer; Mrs. Chester Short, reporter; Mrs. Howard Basye, council representative, and Mrs. A. C. Aycox, chairman of exhibit.

The club meets every second and fourth Monday at 2:30 o'clock. The next meeting will be held in the school auditorium. Every lady that possibly can is urged to be present as we hope to grow and be one of the best clubs in the county.—Reporter.

Tahoka H. D. Club Discusses Benefits of a County Fair

The Tahoka H. D. Club met in the home of Mrs. James Connolly with Mrs. J. K. Woosley joint hostesses. In the absence of our president, Mrs. W. S. Anglin presided over the meeting. We answered roll call by showing our canned products we are entering at the South Plains Fair.

Some interesting talks were given on how a county fair could help club work. Miss Sylvia Robb gave out recipes. She also had charge of the recreation program. Our next meeting will be with Mrs. W. S. Anglin. A lovely plate of yellow meat, watermelon was served to Miss Sylvia Robb, Mrs. M. O. Canaday, George Small, W. S. Anglin, A. C. Weaver, Claud Wells, A. D. Wallace, G. M. Reid, and the hostesses, Mrs. James Connolly and J. K. Woosley.

Grassland 4-H Club Holds First Meeting

The first regular meeting of the Grassland 4-H Club was September 11 at the school building with the Club sponsor, Mrs. J. O. Thrallkill, and the home demonstration agent.

The plan for an exhibit from the club was the business of the meeting. Each girl is to have her sewing box at the next meeting and the material for a slip. These slips are to be finished by the time Miss Robb meets with us again in October.

The girls are going to have some fall gardens and keep a record of their production.

Mrs. W. S. Taylor and daughter, Olga Faye, returned Tuesday from San Antonio, where they visited Mrs. Taylor's mother, Mrs. A. Meador. Mrs. Taylor says that they had heavy rains down there and that all the streams were overflowing. The Llano, especially, she says, was a raging torrent.

Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Bridges, M. O. Jr. and Sara Beth are here this week visiting Coleman Wells and family. The Bridges family now reside at Rankin, where the oil company for which Mr. Bridges works is drilling a deep well.

J. F. Tharp returned Wednesday from a visit of three weeks at Gatesville and Turnersville in Coryell county. He reports much damage to cotton from worms in that county.

Canning Plant Proves Popular

Tahoka's canning plant is proving to be quite a popular establishment.

Since it opened on July 15, more than 8,500 cans of food have been put up, according to Miss Colysta Fitzgerald, case worker at the relief office. Mrs. R. W. Fenton is in charge of the plant.

Most of the canned goods are vegetables, but a small amount is fruit, and there are a few cans of meat, though this is not the proper season for meat canning.

The plant has been closed three weeks since it opened in July. It is now running five days in the week. It is not open on Thursdays. The products which it turns out certainly must be first class for since it first opened in November, 1934, there has been a spoilage of only five cans of food. This is a remarkable record. Furthermore, Miss Fitzgerald says she has heard no complaint whatever from the patrons of the cannery.

However, it has been found that a reception room for the vegetables is needed, and therefore one is to be built, according to County Judge W. E. Smith. This room will be 24 by 48 feet in size and will be built as an extension on the north end of the present structure. Work is to begin this week.

"This canning plant serves two purposes," said Miss Fitzgerald in commenting on its activities Tuesday. "First, it affords the public an opportunity to provide food for their families without having to purchase cans. Second, it affords a kind of training program, giving the patrons an opportunity to learn the proper methods of food preservation."

It certainly is proving a boon to the people of Lynn county, especially the farm folks.

WEIR WASHAM WILL AID BRIDGES AT ST. MARY'S

San Antonio, Sept. 11.—Weir Washam, former Baylor University star, Wednesday was named assistant to Frank Bridges, football coach at St. Mary's University here. Washam, since graduation has helped coach Baylor and Texas Tech freshmen and various high school teams.

Washam, former coach of the Tahoka Bulldogs, is the fourth ex-Tahoka high school coach to secure a college job this year.

Cecil Peoples, coach here in 1923-'24, early in the summer became president of a Baptist junior college in East Texas.

"Windy" Nicholas was named coach of Amarillo Junior College Badgers, state junior college champions in 1933 and 1934.

"Nig" McCarver is now assistant coach at Howard-Payne College, Brownwood.

So, it seems, if a coach can get eleven men out for football practice at Tahoka, he is almost sure to go on up in the coaching field.

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION MET IN TAHOKA THIS WEEK

Another high hour was that in which Dr. J. Howard Williams of Dallas, state secretary, spoke on the co-operative program Wednesday afternoon. His was a masterful address that moved the assembly deeply.

Other reports made Wednesday afternoon was that on W. M. U. work prepared by the associational president, Mrs. L. Lumsden, and presented by Mrs. Clyde Shaw of Wilson, and that of Prof. B. H. Warren on Wayland College.

On Wednesday night Rev. J. E. Anderson of Silverton spoke on Sunday School and B. T. S. work and Dr. Howard Williams of Dallas made a stirring address on the Week of Prayer. Rev. R. E. Harrison, pastor at Ralls, brought the sermon for the occasion.

Thursday was likewise consumed with the hearing of reports and addresses, a detailed report of which we are unable to give.

The association adjourned early Thursday afternoon, closing one of the most successful meetings of the body ever held.

NOTICE OF BUDGET HEARING

Nordykes To Drill Oil Well Test

Levi and T. R. Nordyke are procuring a block of leases in Callahan county near Cottonwood and Cross Plains preparatory to drilling a shallow test oil well. A 20-barrel barrel well was recently brought in at a depth of 1405 feet eight miles southeast of Cross Plains. The Cross Plains Review of last week carried the following news item respecting the proposed Nordyke well.

"Levi and T. R. Nordyke of Lynn county were at Cross Plains and Cottonwood last week end and confided that they were contemplating the drilling of a test near Cottonwood. The exact location has not yet been made pending lease finalities but it is possible that it will be located somewhere in the vicinity of Strahan farm. Mr. Nordyke told the Review Saturday afternoon. Plans are to drill to the Cross Plains sand. Local oil men are enthusiastic about seeing the test drilled, and several have predicted that a good producer will be found."

Midway School Is In Second Month

Prof. A. B. Griffith dropped in Saturday and informed us that the Midway school had been running one month. He is the principal, while Mrs. Griffith is the primary teacher and Miss Ora Anderson teaches the Intermediate grades. The Midway school is one of the best in the county. Mr. Griffith says that the enrollment is fairly good and the attendance is excellent.

Prof. and Mrs. Griffith did summer work in the West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon. For a week Prof. Griffith taught Education 432 during the absence of the regular teacher and also taught Government 422 for a brief time, both being fourth year classes.

Wade Cooper of Lubbock, district secretary-treasurer of the Production Credit Association, and a state or national representative of the organization, will meet the farmers of New Home and surrounding communities at the New Home school auditorium Tuesday night of next week, September 19, at 8 P. M., to explain to them the details of the system.

This matter is of great importance to farmers, according to Deen Nowlin, and all farmers who are in reasonable reach of this meeting are urged to attend.

Baptist Revival Is To Open Sunday

Revival services at the Baptist Church will begin Sunday. The Sunday services will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. George A. Dale, who, on Sunday morning, will bring a message celebrating the first anniversary of his work here as pastor.

Rev. Rowan, pastor of the church at Quanaa, will arrive Monday and will do the preaching throughout the meeting. The church is looking forward to a most successful evangelistic campaign.

ITALY CONTINUES TO PREPARE, WAR INEVITABLE

The latest move of Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia (who numbers among his myriad titles those of "King of Kings" and "Lion of Judah") to save his little country from Italian domination, marks one of the most dramatic and unexpected episodes in the long history of diplomatic intrigue.

Selassie's only remaining hope for maintaining Ethiopian sovereignty lies in enlisting the aid of major powers—especially Great Britain and the United States. For some months the Emperor has striven, through high sounding appeals based on general principles of liberty and justice, to bring Anglo-American actively to his side. He has failed almost 100 per cent—Whitehall and Washington are polite, vague, and non-cooperative. England has sent and is sending large groups of warships, planes, and soldiers to her bases at Malta and the Suez Canal, and is calling on the League of Nations to step in—but she has shown no inclination to make the British lion roar in behalf of other powers. American policy, as indicated by the recently passed neutrality bill, is one of complete isolation.

As a result, smooth, urbane Selassie decided to turn England and America into Ethiopian allies whether they liked it or not. So he did the unprecedented. Working through Francis M. Rickett, a mysterious British promoter, he deeded more than half of his empire to Anglo-American interests for exploitation and development. The area deeded includes about 150,000 square miles—more than the combined areas of Indiana, Illinois and Iowa—and parts of it are supposed to be incredibly rich in petroleum and other mineral resources. The deed is to run for 75 years, and give the charterees unlimited authority to exploit mineral resources and otherwise develop the country. Holders of the charter are said to consist of British interests and an American corporation controlled by one of the Standard Oil companies. Which Standard Oil company is involved, if any, is not yet known—Standard Oil of New Jersey, principal member of the group, denied that it was any party to the deal.

Next day diplomatic response to this astounding maneuver of Selassie's was one of amazement, wonder, excitement. Foreign diplomats, baring the Italians, at first thought that Selassie had pulled a fast one on Rome that would virtually balk Mussolini's designs. Later events proved otherwise. Mussolini, visibly enraged, made a speech saying Italy would not and could not turn back, ordered sensational preparations for war, threatened interfering nations with a taste of Italy's mailed fist. And the British foreign office thrust a politely worded verbal spear into Ethiopian hopes when it "advised" Selassie to withhold concessions, and said that negotiations between British, French and Italian governments, which have a treaty concerning African rights, would be necessary before such a transaction could be carried out. The American state department was cold and non-committal—but Secretary Hull made it clear that this government has no intention of becoming involved in foreign troubles because of adventuring American capital. American editorial response to the deal was one of anger and dismay—many editors said that the government should completely disavow responsibility for the commercial interests involved, should state definitely that it couldn't be pulled into war or lesser disputes because of such financial machinations.

Irrespective of that, Selassie's move has immensely complicated the whole Italian-Ethiopian embroglio. Also, it has apparently eliminated whatever small chance remained for peace—Mussolini is going ahead, and war is certain as soon as the rainy season ends next month. Italian transport after Italian transport is leaving for Italian Somaliland, bordering Ethiopia, stuffed to the guards with troops, supplies and munitions. The powder keg is ready, the fuse is lit—and the world waits for the result in fright and wonder.—Industrial News Review.

No matter what your trouble is, we can fix it.—Ernest Lester at Snowden Motor Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Hackney, newly-weds, spent Sunday here with relatives and friends. Mrs. Hackney was the former Miss Leta Tarrance of this city. Burton also formerly resided here. They now reside in Brownfield, where Burton is practicing law.

Twins, a boy and a girl, were born to Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Summers, who reside on the A. R. McGonagill farm seven miles east of Tabora, on Tuesday morning. Mother and babes are doing well. The youngsters have not yet been named.

W. J. Burckhart returned Tuesday from a visit of several days with relatives in Fort Worth and Cleburne. Mr. Burckhart says that the cotton crop is not any too good in that section of the state—too much rain and too many worms.

Our good friend John Ray of Magnolia was in the News office Saturday and reported that his little son, who has been so seriously ill, now seems to be improving. It is hoped the little fellow will yet fully regain his health.

Jim Wetzel made a trip to Comanche county the first of the week to take a look at a little farm which he owns down there. He came back with a 70-pound watermelon and some very fine pears. Jim always was good at foraging.

Judge B. H. Howard of Crosbyton is here this week visiting his daughters, Mrs. Harley Henderson and Mrs. Frank Hill. Uris Howard, a brother of these women, visited here over the week end.

Wilson Edwards and family of Waco were here the first of the week visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jack Edwards. Mr. Edwards was also looking after business interests at New Home.

B. R. Tate has been laid up in bed most of the time the past week with a fractured rib. The injury was received in a playful scuffle with a friend one day last week.

Mrs. W. D. Nevells, who was sick so long, has almost completely recovered, to the great delight of her many friends.

John Hickerson has been quite sick this week but is now reported to be improved.

GOV. JAMES V. ALLRED

Confederate Vets Hear Gov. Allred

The tribute paid by Governor James V. Allred to the Confederate Veterans last week before their 45th Annual Reunion at Amarillo is full of stirring praise for the brave deeds of the South in defense of their ideals of states rights. Because we cherish the memory of the Confederacy and because possibly the last reunion of the thinning grey ranks was held in our state, the following excerpts from Governor Allred's speech should be of interest to our readers.

"As we catch the torch of Jeffersonian Democracy from your failing hands", the Governor said to the Veterans, "we renew our pledge to you to pass on to our posterity the creed of our forefathers—to fight and die, if need be, for the principles of state sovereignty as guaranteed by the Constitution."

"I think it was Joseph Weldon Bailey, the great states rights defender of Texas history, who once said, 'No triumph or defeat can change the immutable principles of free government!' That truth was more evident than today—70 years after the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox . . .

"The greatest discussion in the history of the nation has waged throughout the land in recent months over proposed or threatened changes in this government which has been handed down to us from the time that our early forebears gathered in groups to discuss the ratification of the Constitution. Suggestions have emanated that in America's hour of distress we should give up all that the framers of the Constitution insisted should go into it, that we should amend it so as to give the federal government the power to regulate the intricate and minute details of personal life and business. Small wonder indeed that turbulent thoughts should be aroused and seething churned in the minds of those who believe in the principles of states rights!

"The eternal principles of right and of good government are eternal and everlasting. You may change the application of a rule to changing conditions, but time brings no necessity for altering time-tried and time-proven rules of good government. It is inevitable and natural that slow and gradual change shall take place in this living constitution by construction and the change of the people themselves, but up until now we have preserved that essential characteristic, an American Republic, from the fatal experience of all the other forms of government. We have guarded against strong national government; we have adhered to the theory of states rights!

"To you immortal heroes of the Confederacy, I say that we in Texas pledge our allegiance to the cause of states rights—that true Democracy for which you so nobly fought. Texans, with the memory of the blood so illustriously shed by our fathers in the immortal defense of the Alamo, probably more than the citizens of any other state believe in states rights and local self-government.

As descendants of a proud and fearless, free and independent republic which recognized tribute to no nation, we would be unworthy of the proud heritage we claim should we not stand firm for the sovereign principles of state government so expressly granted by the United States Constitution."

A miniature greyhound on a radiator cap proved an excellent hunter when it brought home a fine South Carolina quail for its master. The luckless bird flew in front of the car driven by W. P. Yonce and was impaled on the metal canine's nose. In the sister state of South Carolina another quail crashed through a window in the home of County Agent H. A. Patten and landed squarely in a frying pan.

Little Jimmy Roberts tied his lasso to his arm and set out to capture wild horses along the Tennessee highways. The animals were conspicuous by their absence so Jimmy made a cast at a passing auto. He was successful in the throw but unsuccessful in stopping the car or getting the rope from his arm. The car wasn't traveling fast and Jimmy escaped injury.

A Michigan bank recently closed its doors for a few hours—not from lack of funds but lack of employees. During a thunderstorm lightning struck a wire leading into the bank, setting off a tear-gas bomb which drove the employees from the premises.

A Minnesota university scientist has made black rats gray by feeding them on only milk. A diet of honey and milk made them hairless.

Will Montgomery and family spent the week end visiting relatives at Tulla Tuesday and exploring the Palo Duro Canyon northeast of that city.

WPA TO FURNISH JOBS TO THOUSANDS OF YOUNGSTERS

San Antonio, Sept. 11.—Hopes of 125,000 jobless Texas youths today rested largely upon the efforts of the WPA.

It is the Lyndon B. Johnson, youth state administrator for the National Youth Administration, and to A. A. (Pat) Bullock, veteran Texas educator recently named education director for Works Progress Administration, that the more than one hundred thousand idle youngsters in this state look for help.

Differentiating between the WPA education division and the NYA, State WPA Administrator H. P. Drought explained that the NYA is located in Austin under Johnson. Bullock is headquartered with other WPA, state division heads in San Antonio. Johnson has been commissioned by President Roosevelt to administer to the needs of young Texans. All projects handled by Bullock which involve the helping of people between the ages of 16 and 25 will be correlated with Johnson's office.

Help for college and high school students, jobs on work projects and in private industry, training on apprenticeship basis, and establishment of camps for jobless young women will be works attempted in the correlation of the efforts of the two federal agencies pledged to help America's young folk.

With projects still in the formative stage, Johnson has envisioned a program embracing 10,000 young people being aided through college, 5,000 more receiving help that will enable them to attend high schools. As many as possible of the remaining persons between the ages of 16 and 25 will be placed on work projects and in private employment, Johnson stated.

Applications for college and high school aid must be made to the principal of the desired high school or to the president of the chosen college, Johnson instructed young people seeking educational aid. For work project or private industry jobs, youngsters should apply to the nearest National Re-Employment Service office, he stated.

In addition to the youths who may receive help through the combined efforts of the WPA, educational division and the NYA, many jobless school teachers will be benefited, Johnson predicted.

Freshman colleges in many small towns are planned. Thus a number of young people unable to afford college training, may be grouped together and receive freshman instruction from an employed teacher selected by the sponsoring college or university. Twin benefits of free college training in their home town for class members and a living wage for the instructor are forecast by this plan, Johnson declared.

Establishment of five training camps for unemployed young women is projected in the state, Johnson said.

One out of every 12 cultivated acres in the United States has been shifted from surplus basic crops this year under adjustment contracts.

ORIGINAL NAME STRATTON AFTER FAMILY OF AUTHOR

Few persons of the present generation know that Staten Island, one of New York's famous playgrounds and summer resident sections, was originally Stratton Island. Still fewer persons know that it was named after the family of Gene Stratton-Porter, well known author of nature novels, who, until her death in 1925, was regarded as the foremost woman writer of books of outdoor life and simple folks.

The original settler of Staten Island was Mark Stratton, the author's forebear, and for many years Staten Island was known as Stratton Island. Time corrupted the name, but the Englishman, Stratton, gave the long stretch of sea-swept greenland its first name.

When Monogram Pictures began filming Mrs. Porter's "Keeper of the Bees", coming to the English Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, many interesting facts were brought to light in connection with the life of Gene Stratton-Porter, who was killed in an automobile accident in Los Angeles. At the time she resided on Catalina Island in 1925, just before her last book "The Keeper of the Bees," was published.

Mrs. Porter was the daughter of Mark and Mary Stratton, her mother being of Dutch extraction and her father from a long line of ancestors of British blood, he being named after the original Mark Stratton, who settled Staten Island. She was born in Hopewell House, Wabash County, Indiana, August 17, 1863. There she grew up a lover of nature and roamed the woodland to her heart's content, a fact that was to prove of immeasurable value to her in later years.

She married Charles Darwin Porter at Wabash April 21, 1886, and they built their home, "Limberlost Cabin," near Limberlost swamp. It was reputed that a man named Limber had been lost in the swamp at an earlier period. Months afterward searching parties found the skeleton of his dog, but never a trace of Limber.

It was from this swamp that Mrs. Porter got the title for her "A Girl of the Limberlost." The Keeper of the Bees was written on Catalina Island, twenty miles out in the Pacific from Los Angeles.

Gene Stratton-Porter lived the books she wrote and dwelt among the folks with whom she peopled most of her novels. There was nothing of sham or pretense in the structures she built. Her work was a constant protest against existing conditions insofar as they affected the inherent and fundamental good of the people.

In bringing "Keeper of the Bees" to the screen, Monogram Pictures sought a cast of players that would catch the spirit back of the story. As a consequence for the title role it chose Neil Hamilton. Betsy Farness was cast as the mother. Little Scout is Edith Fellowes, and Herbert Bosworth plays the Bee Master.

BECAUSE OF THY GREAT BOUNTY

(By Grace Noll Crowell)

Because I have been given much, I, too, shall give;
Because of Thy great bounty, Lord, Each day I live
I shall divide my gifts from Thee
With every brother that I see
Who has the need of help from me.

Because I have been sheltered, fed,
By Thy good care,
I can not see another's lack
—And I not share
My glowing fire, my loaf of bread,
My roofs safe shelter overhead,
That he, too, may be comforted

Because love has been lavished so Upon me, Lord,
A wealth I know that was not meant
For me to hoard,
I shall give love to those in need,
The cold and hungry clothe and feed,
Thus shall I show my thanks indeed.
—Good Housekeeping, New York.

Lady's Painful Trouble
Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramp-like pain. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'do-lieca.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." ... If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.

Taken from a Lady's Note Book

"September is a more or less routine month. Starting to school, music lessons are resumed again for the fall and winter. We will always have washing and ironing and three meals a day routine. Cooking by no means need be a routine job. As a matter of fact, it need not be termed a routine job but rather an accomplishment which can be made very interesting if it is looked upon in the right frame of mind.

"The first item to consider in planning a meal is to include the food elements that have been lacking during the day (I am speaking of the evening meal, because that is when the family is generally together, and it is usually the main meal). The second is to prepare food in some way a little different from what you have been used to doing. Third, serve it as attractively as possible, remembering the old saying, 'Feed the stomach first through the eyes'."

And let us suggest that you look further into how simplified your problems will become when cooking electrically with a Waldorf. Its performance is unexcelled and it costs no more than other forms of cooking... in many cases, less.

More Velvet Than Ever in Fall Mode

By-CHERIE NICHOLAS

WE ARE going to be more elegant in dress this fall and winter than ever. All the pre-showings of advance fashions declare for greater luxury in jewels, in furs, in fabrics, in costume design.

There is simply no limit to the enthusiasm which style creators are expressing for velvet this fall. It's velvet everywhere this season.

The girl planning her going-away-to-school wardrobe will adore the new velvet-plus-woolen outfits. Consider, for instance, the cunning ensemble shown to the right in the picture.

READY FOR SCHOOL By-CHERIE NICHOLAS

Coat fashions for the junior miss should be considered as "first aid" to preparedness in the matter of school girl wardrobe needs for fall.

Style Trend Bows of ermine are being worn instead of buckles on evening shoes in London.

ings which correlate the ensemble into an harmonious unit is a pet theme with fashion this season.

The favorite velvet suit for all-around wear during the daytime activities is linked with fitted lines. The very short jacket is apt to have almost a basque trimness, with its neatly buttoned-up-front closing, and intricate seaming and gores for the skirt.

The shirtwaist in velvet, begun by Mainbocher, is contributing a subject of exciting interest to the new style program.

DRAPE BRIDAL VEIL IN MANY NEW WAYS

New ways of draping the bridal veil are offered the girl who is planning an early fall wedding.

One of the most charming of these diadem effects was recently constructed by Worth. Of tulle and old lace, over a stiffened wire foundation, it gains in width clear to the ears and is softened by incrustated draperies at the top in crenellated fashion.

Chanel has made a bridal head-dress which starts with a cap of tulle, embroidered in crosslines of dull silver.

Knitted Evening Gown of Cellophane Is the Latest

A knitted evening gown of cellophane yarn is one of the sensations of the current mode.

We have seen knitted evening gowns before, introduced first at Palm Beach and taken up by New York and Paris.

The glittering cellophane, in black, follows the dictates of the season as to brilliance and glitter, and fits the figure like a mermaid's scales.

Glossy Lace for Gowns Glossy, transparent lace is used for gowns in black, navy and dark red.

BASKETBALL SAFE SPORT FOR GIRLS PHYSICALLY FIT

"Is Basketball a Girls' Game?" Under this title Frances Kidd discusses in Hygeia the physical dangers and benefits of basketball for young girls.

Basketball is a fast, hard game for girls, and unless it is properly coached and supervised, it has as many disastrous physical results as any game can have.

Collisions and bumps occur in nearly every phase of life, and basketball is no exception; but good coaching attempts to limit these accidents by teaching balance and co-ordination along with agility and the proper method of managing one's body.

There are several health aspects of basketball that are worthy of mention. The vigorous large muscle movements stimulate the functioning of the internal organs that care for the needs of the body.

If young girls of high school age are physically fit, that is, if they have passed the doctor's inspection, they should be given an opportunity to play. With careful coaching in the fundamentals of the game, under the watchful eye of a competent leader, no disastrous results will prevail; for it is a real game with real fun for real youngsters.

Luncheon Club Boosts Nelson

In the absence of a regular program, the luncheon club last Tuesday used the time in launching the campaign of District Attorney G. H. Nelson for state senator.

A number of the members made talks, some of the speakers urging the people of Tahoka and Lynn county to stand as a unit in this matter, to write letters to their friends in other counties and to go out in their cars in behalf of the Lynn county man. If there are any who have petty grievances or have had differences with Mr. Nelson at any time in the past, these were urged to rise above these petty matters and do battle in a common cause.

Others pointed out the outstanding ability and fitness of the candidate, the importance of having a strong man to represent this south plains district, and the special service that a man of Nelson's type can render to this and the other counties of this section of the state. The response to these appeals seemed to be hearty and generous.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING PROJECT IS NOT DEAD

 Montgomery authority to use his judgment in handling the project.

It is believed therefore that this project yet has a good chance to be approved by the Washington authorities.

The project calls for the grant of $32,622 of government funds and the furnishing of $39,873 by the Tahoka Independent School District—a total expenditure of $72,495. Of course, it may be found necessary to modify the plans and change the cost of the project considerably in order to meet the approval of the Washington authorities.

The plans for the proposed building as drawn by the architect call for a one-story building with twelve class rooms and a large combination auditorium and gymnasium. The building would have a front of about 250 feet in length by about 60 feet in width and a spacious auditorium and gym with a seating capacity of 1,300. If the site contemplated should be selected, it would face south on North 3rd street, the street leading east from the front of the high school building.

It is impractical to construct the new building on the present site, according to Alvin Hicks, president of the school board, for the reason that the grounds are not large enough.

Of course, in order to furnish the $39,873 required of the school district, it would be necessary for a bond election to be held and bonds voted. If the bonds failed to carry the whole project would fall down.

The existing Central Ward School building is said to be in very bad condition and a new structure is badly needed. It is estimated by the architect that material valued at more than $7,000 could be salvaged from the old building.

NELSON ANNOUNCES AS CANDIDATE FOR SENATE

 of representative and senatorial districts as required under law."

He also stated he would lay special emphasis on agriculture, labor, highways, revenue and taxation.

Born thirty-three years ago on a farm in Cass county, Texas, Nelson early in life acquired an ambition to serve the people in public office. He worked his way through Hughes Springs High School, East Texas State Teachers College and the University of Texas Law School, following which he served as principal of Roscoe and Hermleigh High Schools, superintendent of Tahoka High School and Secretary-Manager of Tahoka and Ralls Chambers of Commerce.

Since 1928 Nelson has served two terms as County Attorney of Lynn County and is now serving his second term, unopposed, as District Attorney under Judge Gordon B. McGuire, Lamesa.

"I believe," Nelson said, "that my twelve years in West Texas, with three of them devoted entirely to the study of West Texas problems and needs, my records before the bar, as a school man, as a civic and church worker, will show I am qualified for the office I now seek."

ARTHUR P. DUGGAN DIED SUDDENLY LAST FRIDAY

 Funeral services were held Sunday in the Senate Chamber at Austin, Rev. Lawrence Wharton, pastor of the University Presbyterian Church officiating. Interment was in the state cemetery in that city.

Mr. Duggan was elected to the senate in 1932 and was serving his first term. Last year he was an unsuccessful candidate for congress from this district. He was a native of San Marcos, having been born there 58 years ago. A graduate of the A. & M. College and the University of Texas, he came to Littlefield many years ago to take charge of the George W. Littlefield properties, his wife being a niece of the late Maj. Georg W. Littlefield of Austin. He had a prominent part in the development of the city of Littlefield and of Lamb county. For many years he was president of the school board there, and an active member of the local chamber of Commerce. Later he served as president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. For many years he had taken an active interest in civic and political affairs and was regarded as one of the most useful citizens of this section of the state.

LIGHTNING HAZARD NIL

According to Dr. William Humphries of the Weather Bureau, there is about one chance in a million that you will be struck by lightning. That makes lightning's chances of picking off a human cranium almost as slim as a lottery ticket holder's chance of winning a stake.

Welding
 ... the best way to make a perfect union of two pieces of metal is by welding them together.

... and the best way to get a more pleasing flavor and a better taste in a cigarette is by welding together the different types of tobacco ...

That is just what we do in making CHESTERFIELD Cigarettes—the three types of mild ripe home-grown tobaccos, that is tobaccos grown in this country, are welded together. Then they are welded with aromatic Turkish. When these tobaccos are welded together you get a combined flavor which is entirely different from any one type of tobacco. It is this welding of the right amounts of the right kind of tobaccos that makes CHESTERFIELD a milder and better-tasting cigarette.
