SANDHILL PHILOSOPHER A Quizzical Look At A New Idea For Saving Time While Fishing

Editor's note: The Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm discusses fishing this week, we suppose.

Dear editor: I was fishing the other afternoon and thought I'd hooked a good one, even when it broke the surface glinting in the sunshine. Looked like at least a three-pound gaspergon, but when I got it to the bank I discovered it was only a copy of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal and I lost my bait besides. There are days like that.

I re-baited and let the paper dry out and looked it over and ran into an article that made me forget all about my cork.

According to it, science is moving in on fishing. It's working on a system where you ride along in a boat, locate a school of fish by radar, then pull them in with a vacuum-cleaner-type suction pipe. In thirty minutes a man can have a boat full and be back on the job on his tractor on in his office or wherever he works.

I estimate this will save 15 million man-hours of fishing a year, and it got me to thinking of other areas.

Take golf. As I understand it, from what I've seen on television when no western was on, the object of the game is to sink a ball in a minimum number of strokes, but like it is you drive the ball through the air and when it lands it bounces around no telling where. Why not connect the holes up with pipes on the ground and drive through them, making a hole-in-one at every green and thus saving maybe 50 million man-hours of golf a year?

Or dominoes. Why puts dots on just one side? Put them on both and a game could be played in 30 seconds. The same could be done with bridge cards, although I haven't worked out anything yet with checkers. Baseball? Magnetize the ball and the outfielders' gloves and finish a game in 30 minutes with 27 flies caught by both sides. All games would end in a tie, the national standings would always be the same and the newspapers would never have to re-set any type.

By failing to utilize science in all games and sports, I figure the United States is wasting 14 billion man-hours a year, delaying the average man's entry into a real home by 15 or 20 years. I turn the problem over to Congress.

After finishing reading the paper, I resumed fishing and about sundown pulled in four 3-pounders and came home. There's nothing better than a copy of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal to wrap fish in.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Easiest Thing To Forget

Poll 99 out of 100 campers and they will say that the easiest thing to forget, or lose, is the packet of gas mantles for the camp lantern.

You won't forget this all-important mantle envelope if you will tape one or more of them to the bottom of the lantern base.

When Casting Is Impossible

Every angler has run into a situation where casting was impossible due to overhanging limbs, etc.

Whatever the reason, you can place your bait just about where you want it, by putting the bait in a paper cup, floating the cup on the water, and letting air and water current carry it toward the spot you have in mind.

When the right place is reached give the line a twitch and the cup will tip over, spilling the bait into the water right where you want it.

Drying Waders

New uses for the vacuum cleaner are being discovered every day.

Now, ingenious fishermen have come up with an idea that shoes, boots, and waders can be dried in a few seconds by attaching the vacuum cleaner hose to the exhaust setting, then inserting the loose end inside the footgear and turning on the power.

Untangling "Birdsnests"

Monofilament that stubbornly resists finger picking when you get a "birdsnest" in the line usually yields to a toothpick.

Use the round kind with tapered ends.

Carry a few of these toothpicks with you when you go spin fishing.

Seldom do you get such a bad line tangle that you can't free it with this useful little stick of wood.

Use Reel As Rod-Winder

Rods need attention once in a while. Especially the windings.

You probably won't do too much rod-winding, but when you do, be it either as an emergency job, or just in the general order of repairs, your spinning reel will make a mighty good rod-winder.

Add to the line on your spinning reel enough thread to do the job at hand. Clamp reel to your bench and slip the thread behind the bail. Set the anti-reverse. Then set the tension to whatever you like.

Add Split Shot To Hooks

Fishermen can eliminate a lot of line-twist trouble by attaching a split shot to one of the treble hooks on the spinner lure.

By doing this they also increase casting distance by many yards.

Buy Bonds where you work.

He does.

It's miserable work, crawling through a rice paddy. And being shot at. This American does the job for freedom's sake. So do thousands of his buddies. Many of these brave men also support freedom with their dollars. A majority of our servicemen overseas are investing in U.S.

Savings Bonds. Would you like to show this man you're with him? One good way is to buy Savings Bonds where you work or join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. You'll make a good investment. And you'll walk a bit taller.

U.S. Savings Bonds

Bond facts: Savings Bonds pay you back $4 for every $3 at maturity in only seven years... are replaced free if lost, destroyed or stolen... have special tax advantages... can be redeemed whenever the need arises.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Bill Salter, Editor, The Lynn County News Dear Mr. Salter:

My attention was drawn to a photograph which appeared in the July 27th issue of the Lynn County News, that of the unusual terrapin which was captured by Mr. Curry. I have had the opportunity to collect a number of these turtles during my tenure in the Department of Biology at Texas Tech. Although I do not claim to be a "turtle expert", the terrapin in question is undoubtedly a fine example of a Texas Tortoise that has no business in our part of the State Gopherus berlandieri, as it is called by professional herpetologists, is normally a resident of deep South Texas and Eastern Mexico. San Antonio approximates it's northern-most point of distribution.

The capture of a specimen near Tahoka can be considered as very unusual indeed but nonetheless, it would appear that the specimen is either an escaped pet or a released individual from a passerby. Occasionally these tortoises are available from pet stores in Lubbock and other northern cities.

The forked protrusion extending from the lower front of the shell is a type of shovel that the tortoise may use to excavate a shallow trench that is used to shelter the animal from excessive heat or from enemies.

This species feeds almost entirely on fruits of prickly pears, young flower shoots and other vegetation. It is entirely harmless and makes an interesting pet.

I must commend you and your staff for your interest in publishing photographs of our interesting wildlife. It is quite a rare thing now days. So many species of our Texas animals are disappearing and many of us may never have the opportunity to see some of them. However, beware, New and more unusual animals may begin to appear on the South Plains.

Sincerely yours,
Norman R. Williams

"Zip Zip" Tone To Be Replaced

Customers of General Telephone Company in Brownfield, Denver City, Meadow, Ropesville, Seagraves, Tahoka and Wilson will be hearing the voice with a smile more frequently after July 22, 1967, according to J. H. Fowler, Brownfield district manager for General Telephone.

After that date, when customers dial a long distance call they will no longer hear the "zip zip" tone they are accustomed to. Instead they will hear a long distance operator say, "Your number, please."

Fowler explains the change this way:

When the zip signal was inaugurated, we felt it would speed up customer service since the operator was not required to ask for the customer's telephone number. It worked fine initially, but as new customers came to town or visitors used this service, the purpose of the zip tone was not understood and the caller just sat there waiting everyone's time. So a nationwide study was made and it was determined that the voice with a smile is best after all.

COTTON TALKS
FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS INC.

Chopping time on the Plains has many area cotton producers busy trying to determine whether they are required to pay the minimum wage imposed last year by Congress on farms using 500 man-days or more of hired labor in any calendar quarter.

Effective February 1, 1967, the minimum wage for hired workers on such farms was set at $1 per hour. The minimum jumps to $1.15 an hour in 1968 and to $1.30 per hour in 1969.

A man-day is any day during which an employee worked one hour or more.

This year those farms exceeding the 500 man-day limit in 1966 are required to pay the minimum wage. Whether the minimum is required on a farm in 1968 will be determined by this year's labor use.

Ed Dean, Field Service Director for Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., says the question most in the minds of cotton farmers now is in relation to cotton chopping "crews."

"The law provides that man-days performed by employees of a bona fide contractor are not counted as man-days used by the farm operator, Dean says, "but decisions already made by the Department of Labor on farms in the Rio Grande Valley clearly indicate that both cotton chopping crew leaders and individual crew members will be considered employees of the producer."

"Even when cotton chopping is contracted to a crew leader by the acre it appears that maintenance of records and payment of the minimum wage will still be the producer's responsibility in the eyes of the Labor Department."

He explains that the Department has held that crew leaders fall to qualify as "bona fide contractors" on two counts. First, according to the Department, the crew chiefs don't have a significant investment in their contracting business. Second, they don't have Grassland Butane, Inc.

REBUILT STARTERS AND GENERATORS
GRASSLAND, TEXAS

The first USDA estimate on the area planted to cotton this year came out 9,724,000 acres. Another acreage estimate, along with the first guess at total production, will be forthcoming on August 8. Acreage is certain to be well below the original figure, as the second report will take into account cotton lost to weather in many sections of the belt.

Industry sources are setting 1967 production at from 8 to 9 million bales, and USDA prognosticators shouldn't be far out of that range.

So the odds in favor of a need for increased production in 1968 are considerably higher than they were two months ago when there were prospects for 10 million bales or more from the 1968 crop.

In fact, most observers believe the question of whether an increase will be needed has been answered, and that the only question remaining is "How?" Several alternatives have been mentioned, all which could be accomplished under existing cotton legislation by administrative ruling.

Among them are a revision of skip-row planting regulations, reduction of the mandatory minimum diversion percentage, reduction of the payment rate for acreage diverted voluntarily, reduction of the maximum permissible voluntary diversion, and the last we've heard an increase in the 16 million acre national allotment, with no changes in other phases of the program.

This last suggestion poses some interesting possibilities. First, it is the only one which would provide a guaranteed and truly predictable increase. With the same minimum and maximum diversion levels and the same payment rates producers could be expected to make about the same acreage choices they have made under the program the past two years.

But there are other considerations. One leading cotton shippers magazine recently said "everyone is in agreement now that the 1968 acreage figure will have to be raised to at least 14 million..."

USDA's 9.7 million acre estimate for this year is 60.6 per cent of the current 16 million acre national allotment. So, to assure plantings of 14 million acres in 1968, on the same percentage basis, the national allotment would have to be raised to about 23,100,000 acres.

While this sounds high, the current cotton program has made the national allotment meaningless anyway, so its size alone should be no argument against this approach.

However, with a 23.1 million acre allotment farmers would be diverting over 9 million acres instead of the 4.65 million acres diverted this year. And if the diversion payment rate were left unchanged, a significant increase in the cost of the program would occur.

If the payment rate were reduced, farmer acreage choices would not longer be predictable. And this is only one of many complications that arise in considering this or the other alternatives.

So it is still anybody's guess as to what changes will be made to increase production. Only two things are for certain. First, there will be a lot of head scratching and wrangling before the decision is made. Second, whatever the decision, it won't be to the liking of all cotton belt areas or to all segments of the diversion

Bill Griffin, County Agent Says.....

Bill Griffin says mosquitoes are a problem in many parts of the state and most everyone one way or another. They are a nuisance to both man and animal and some species transmit diseases such as malaria and yellow fever to man, encephalitis to man and horses and heartworms to dogs.

Mosquitoes breed from the spring season through to the fall months, says County Agent Bill Griffin. Eggs are laid on water or in places that later become flooded, depending upon the species.

Home owners should take every precaution to prevent mosquito breeding on their premises by eliminating standing water, advises Bill Griffin.

Common problem areas include dripping outdoor faucets and leaky pipes, puddles resulting from evaporative cooler drainage and tin cans or other containers, which may trap and hold even small quantities of water.

Proper use of insecticides around the home can be a big aid in mosquito control, says the county agent.

Good water management practices in irrigated sections of the state will also aid in controlling mosquitoes, Griffin explains.

Shallow, stagnant water with debris or floating vegetation makes an extremely favorable area for mosquito breeding, he adds.

Persons interested in additional information on mosquito control should contact their local Extension Service office for a copy of L-625.

*Weathered brown spots on the surface of your hands and face tell the world you're getting old—perhaps before you really are. Fade them away with new ESOTERICA, that medicated cream that breaks up masses of pigment on the skin, helps make hands look white and young again. Equally effective on the face, neck and arms. Not a cover-up. Acts to the skin—not on it. Fragrant, greaseless, base for softening, lubricating skin as it clears up those blemishes. Jimmie Hughes, Chief Clerk of the Lynn County ASCS Office, 1705 Lockwood Street, Tahoka, Texas, has been notified that she is to receive the highest award given by ASCS—their distinguished service award for 1967.

MRS. JIMMIE HUGHES starting in Collin County in 1956, where she received a specialist rating in 1960, Mrs. Hughes transferred to Brazoria County in 1963. She was employed there until June of 1966, at which time she transferred to the Lynn County Office. While serving in the Brazoria County Office, the county received the Incentive Award for the most improved county in Texas. During her employment there, she received a second will arise due to the station being a UHF (ultra-high frequency) station rather than the normal VHF outlet.

To receive the new station, all homes must have outside antennas especially designed for both UHF and VHF reception, or must have additional element added to present outside antenna facilities, it was learned.

Also, most sets over 2 and one-half years old will require a UHF converter installed in order to tune in the new station and others which may follow. Newer model television sets have both UHF and VHF tuners built into their systems, and will require only the proper antenna hookup, it was further noted. Conversion of television systems to receive the UHF station is not especially expensive, sources added, and due to the wider range of programming, will be of great interest to area viewers, it was thought. Further information concerning the station will be listed as soon as additional facts are released.

FOAM DRAPES
COLLEGE STATION, July 30.—Foam backed draperies are being added to nearly every manufacturer's line in the market, says Ann Duncan, CHDA.

The foam backings, first introduced last season, now appear on the fiberglass fabrics, linen and wool. There are several advantages to having foam backed draperies. The lining foam helps insulate against heat and cold, possesses some acoustical qualities, protects the fabric from sun fading and gives the drapery body, depth and dimension. The backing is permanently bonded to the fabric by a machine, but it may be picked loose. Most are guaranteed not to crack or peel under normal wear. If the foam is bonded to a washable drapery fabric, it too is machine washable, but otherwise it should be dry-cleaned. Be sure to read the label to determine the correct method of cleaning.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Edwards and children Sari Grace, Michael and Norman, from Whittier, Calif., were here week visiting Edward's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Edwards. As an interesting note, the two boys spent much of their time looking for a terrapin to join the one they took from here to California four years ago but their searches proved fruitless, having to settle for eight horned frogs which will make them the hit of the neighborhood upon their arrival back in Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Bones Pendleton and family, Ulysses, Kan., have been visiting his mother, Mrs. Jamie Pendleton. They visited her son, V. C. Pendleton and Bobbie, Ft. Worth.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Parker and children, Fresno, California, visited over the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Leighton Knox. Arriving with them was Mrs. Knox's mother, Mrs. R. O. Yarbrough, Mangum, Okla., who were several days here visiting.

duct or appliance is determined by its usefulness—not its price. Multi-purpose products and equipment that do most of the work are the most valuable cleaning aids. For example, take cleaning and self-polishing waxes. Used frequently and in thin coats, they not only keep surfaces smooth and gleaming but also prevent soil from clinging—and working down deep.

The vacuum cleaner with attachments has multiple uses for floor care, cleaning vents and crevices, and dusting walls, sills, baseboards and drapes.

CHILD'S BREAKFAST
What a child wants for breakfast and what mother wants him to eat often are nutritionally equal. A breakfast of a hot dog, bun, milk shake and an orange is the same nutritionally as a breakfast of orange juice, egg, cereal and milk.

INSTANT FRUIT
Research has brought another convenience product to the homemaker—instant fruit. Peaches, strawberries, and blueberries are reduced to a puree to which sugar and chemicals are added. The puree is frozen into pellets which are dehydrated by a frozen-drying process. This removes moisture without changing the fruit's physical characteristics. Fruits that are too mature for shipping may be successfully used in this process.

MEAT STAINS
To remove a meat juice stain from a white or colorfast cotton tablecloth, first sponge the stain with cool water. Or soak the cloth in cool water for 30 minutes. Then rub detergent into the spot and launder the cloth in hot suds.

DISH TALK
There are seven types of dishes. "Pottery" stands at the coarse end, it is thick, porous, easily chipped and broken. Colors are usually bright and rustic and the glass often opaque.

"Earthenware", often called semi-vitreous or white ware, is produced from less coarse clay. Baked longer and at higher temperature than pottery, it is lighter in weight and color. "Ironstone" is a particularly strong earthenware. "Stoneware" is fully vitrified, non-porous, and not prone to chipping. It may be thinner than earthenware but weightier. Its dark color prevents delicate decoration. It is characteristically finished with glazes and dull glazes.

"China" has still finer materials. Its most notable trait is translucency. "Fine china" is so named because it is made of powderlike ingredients. The term "fine china" does not denote quality. It is extremely delicate looking, but actually is very strong. "Bone china" is fine china having 25 to 45 percent calcined bone ash, which fires to a dead white instead of ivory. "Porcelain" is fine china made by reverse or "hard" firing, using cooler fire and then hotter, fusing the glaze deep into the clay. It is slightly more brittle and weaker than other fine china.
